shakes her head in derision as you flee.

23 "Whom have you been defying and ridiculing?

Against whom did you raise your voice?
At whom did you look with such haughty eyes?

It was the Holy One of Israel!

24 By your messengers you have defied the Lord.

You have said, 'With my many chariots
I have conquered the highest mountains—

yes, the remotest peaks of Lebanon.

I have cut down its tallest cedars and its finest cypress trees.

I have reached its farthest heights and explored its deepest forests.

25 I have dug wells in many foreign lands and refreshed myself with their water.

With the sole of my foot,
I stopped up all the rivers of Egypt!"

26 "But have you not heard?

I decided this long ago.

Long ago I planned it,
and now I am making it happen.

I planned for you to crush fortified cities into heaps of rubble.

27 That is why their people have so little power

and are so frightened and confused.

They are as weak as grass, as easily trampled as tender green shoots.

They are like grass sprouting on a housetop, scorched before it can grow lush and tall.

28 "But I know you well—

where you stay and when you come and go.

I know the way you have raged against me.

29 And because of your raging against me and your arrogance, which I have heard for myself,

I will put my hook in your nose and my bit in your mouth.

I will make you return
by the same road on which you came."

30 Then Isaiah said to Hezekiah, "Here is the proof that what I say is true:

"This year you will eat only what grows up by itself,

and next year you will eat what springs up from that.

But in the third year you will plant crops and harvest them;
you will tend vineyards and eat their fruit.

31 And you who are left in Judah, who have escaped the ravages of the siege,

will put roots down in your own soil and grow up and flourish.

32 For a remnant of my people will spread out from Jerusalem,
a group of survivors from Mount Zion.

37:23 Whom . . . Against whom:

Sennacherib's speech was not so much an insult against Judah as it was against the Lord.

37:24 Isaiah seems to be familiar with the typical royal Assyrian boasts, including that they possessed the highest mountains. These words sound very much like those found in the annals of the Assyrian kings inscribed on the walls of their temples.

37:25 I have dug wells . . . I stopped up all the rivers of Egypt: Sennacherib's boasts demonstrate his attitude of independence. However, the Lord alone is sovereign over nature (42:15; 43:19; 44:27). * This verse is as in Dead Sea
Scrolls (see also 2 Kgs 19:24); Masoretic Text lacks in many foreign lands.

37:26 I planned for you to crush . . . into heaps of rubble: Assyria was God's agent of destruction, but the Assyrians did not realize that they were only a tool in God's hand (see ch 10), fulfilling what God had planned long before (14:24-27).

37:27 like grass sprouting on a house- top, scorched: As in Dead Sea Scrolls and some Greek manuscripts (see also 2 Kgs 19:26); most Hebrew manuscripts read like a terraced field.

37:28 you have raged against me:
Assyria was utterly hostile to the Lord, which brought them even greater condemnation.

37:29 my hook . . . my bit: The Assyrians would be led away like animals, just as they had led so many of their captives away.

37:30-35 In this prophecy of salvation, Isaiah assured Hezekiah that Jerusalem would be spared and that the remnant was under God's protection. The names of Isaiah and his sons anticipated God's rescue (see 7:1-11:16). The book's record of God's presence and rescue provided assurance that the Lord would always have a remnant that he will protect and rescue.

37:30 This year . . . next year . . . the third year: Because of the Assyrian siege and its destruction of agriculture, the people of Judah would not be able to plant and harvest as usual. The promise that life would resume after the siege assured them that God was with them and would provide as they carried out their everyday activities.

They needed to develop their trust in God over a period of three calendar years in the confident expectation (waiting, 30:15, 18) that God's word would be true. Perhaps the point was that after rescue from the Assyrians, it would be too late in the present year for fall planting. They would have to wait until fall in the second year to plant again, and they would reap their first crop in the spring and summer of the third year.

37:32 The passionate commitment of God includes his energetic zeal to keep his promise, the best guarantee his people could ever have (see also 9:7).

The passionate commitment of the LORD
of Heaven's Armies
will make this happen!

³³"And this is what the LORD says about the king of Assyria:

"His armies will not enter Jerusalem.
They will not even shoot an arrow at it.
They will not march outside its gates with their shields nor build banks of earth against its walls.

³⁴The king will return to his own country by the same road on which he came.
He will not enter this city,'
says the LORD.

³⁵For my own honor and for the sake of my servant David,
I will defend this city and protect it.' "

The LORD Rescues Jerusalem

Isa 37:36-38 // 2 Kgs 19:35-37 // 2 Chr 32:21

³⁶That night the angel of the LORD went out to the Assyrian camp and killed 185,000 Assyrian soldiers. When the surviving Assyrians woke up the next morning, they found corpses everywhere. ³⁷Then King Sennacherib of Assyria broke camp and returned to his own land. He went home to his capital of Nineveh and stayed there.

³⁸One day while he was worshipping in the temple of his god Nisroch, his sons Adram-melech and Sharezer killed him with their swords. They then escaped to the land of Ararat, and another son, Esarhaddon, became the next king of Assyria.

Hezekiah's Sickness and Recovery

38 About that time Hezekiah became deathly ill, and the prophet Isaiah son of Amoz went to visit him. He gave the king this message: "This is what the LORD says: 'Set your affairs in order, for you are going to die. You will not recover from this illness.' "

²When Hezekiah heard this, he turned his face to the wall and prayed to the LORD, ³"Remember, O LORD, how I have always been faithful to you and have served you single-mindedly, always doing what pleases you." Then he broke down and wept bitterly.

⁴Then this message came to Isaiah from the LORD: ⁵"Go back to Hezekiah and tell him, 'This is what the LORD, the God of your ancestor David, says: I have heard your prayer and seen your tears. I will add fifteen years to your life, ⁶and I will rescue you and this city from the king of Assyria. Yes, I will defend this city.

⁷"And this is the sign from the LORD to prove that he will do as he promised: ⁸I will cause the sun's shadow to move ten steps backward on the sundial of Ahaz!' " So the shadow on the sundial moved backward ten steps.

Hezekiah's Poem of Praise

37:33 armies . . . arrow . . . shields . . . banks of earth: Despite their advanced military technology and great power, the Assyrians would not succeed against Jerusalem.

37:35 for the sake of my servant David: God had promised David a perpetual dynasty (see 9:6-7; 2 Sam 7:8-17).

37:36 The angel of the LORD was a special heavenly agent through whom God worked on earth. Often his role was to communicate special messages (see Gen 16:7-14), but sometimes he brought judgment (see 2 Sam 24:16). • killed 185,000 Assyrian soldiers: The Lord began to fulfill what he had repeatedly promised—rescue of Jerusalem and judgment of Assyria (see 10:16, 33-34; 30:31; 31:8). • the surviving Assyrians: Literally they.

37:38 One day: Sennacherib was probably killed in 681 BC, about twenty years after his withdrawal from Jerusalem.

• Esarhaddon was King of Assyria from 680–669 BC. It is ironic that Sennacherib, who mocked the Lord, was killed by his sons in the temple of his god.

38:1-9 The story of Hezekiah's healing connects Hezekiah's extension of life with Jerusalem's relief from the Assyrians. The events of this story took place before Jerusalem's rescue from the Assyrians but were placed in a thematic rather than chronological order (see notes on 38:6; 2 Kgs 20:1-19). One theme is the importance of prayer (see 37:14-20; 38:2-3). The Lord does listen! Hezekiah had learned the lesson of trust that his father, Ahaz, refused. As a result, Judah and Jerusalem were spared total destruction by the Assyrians. Yet Hezekiah was not the Messiah, the Son of David promised in 7:14; 9:1-7; 11:1-16; 16:5; 32:1, and 33:17-22. Thus, these accounts of his failure and mortality (chs 38–39) prepare the reader for the revelation of the true Messiah that follows (chs 40–66).

38:1 About that time (literally in those days): This is a very general time statement. Hezekiah's illness and subsequent healing probably preceded Jerusalem's rescue (chs 36–37), even though Isaiah places it afterward. Merodach-baladan's reign in Babylon (39:1) ended before Sennacherib's invasion in 701 BC. The order in the text indicates a connection between these two events (see 38:6).

38:3 I have always been faithful to you: Hezekiah's heart was right with the Lord for most of his reign (2 Kgs 18:1-5), although his dependence on Egypt was a time of weakness when he did not act faithfully (31:1-9).

38:5 the God of your ancestor David: Hezekiah faithfully walked in David's footsteps (see 37:35; 38:1-22).

38:6 I will rescue you . . . I will defend this city: This promise refers to the rescue of Jerusalem (chs 36–37); it also provides a greater context for understanding Hezekiah's sickness and healing. Just as Hezekiah received another fifteen years, Jerusalem also received a temporary reprieve (see ch 39).

38:8 the sundial: Literally the steps.

38:9-20 Hezekiah's poem contains both lament (38:9-14) and praise (38:15-20), although the praise is distinctly muted until the final verse.

10 I said, "In the prime of my life, must I now enter the place of the dead?
Am I to be robbed of the rest of my years?"

11 I said, "Never again will I see the LORD
God
while still in the land of the living.
Never again will I see my friends or be with those who live in this world.

12 My life has been blown away like a shepherd's tent in a storm.
It has been cut short,
as when a weaver cuts cloth from a loom.

Suddenly, my life was over.
13 I waited patiently all night, but I was torn apart as though by lions.
Suddenly, my life was over.

14 Delirious, I chattered like a swallow or a crane,
and then I moaned like a mourning dove.

My eyes grew tired of looking to heaven
for help.
I am in trouble, Lord. Help me!"

15 But what could I say?
For he himself sent this sickness.
Now I will walk humbly throughout my years
because of this anguish I have felt.

16 Lord, your discipline is good,
for it leads to life and health.
You restore my health and allow me to live!

17 Yes, this anguish was good for me, for you have rescued me from death and forgiven all my sins.

18 For the 'dead cannot praise you; they cannot raise their voices in praise.

Those who go down to the grave can no longer hope in your faithfulness.

19 Only the living can praise you as I do today.

Each generation tells of your faithfulness to the next.

20 Think of it—the LORD is ready to heal me!

I will sing his praises with instruments
every day of my life in the Temple of the LORD.

21 Isaiah had said to Hezekiah's servants,
"Make an ointment from figs and spread it over the boil, and Hezekiah will recover."

22 And Hezekiah had asked, "What sign will prove that I will go to the Temple of the LORD?"

Envoys from Babylon

Isa 39:1-8 // 2 Kgs 20:12-19

39 Soon after this, Merodach-baladan son of Baladan, king of Babylon, sent Hezekiah his best wishes and a gift.
He had heard that Hezekiah had been very sick and that he had recovered. ²Hezekiah was delighted with the Babylonian envoys and showed them everything in his treasure-houses—the silver, the gold, the spices, and the aromatic oils. He also took them to see his armory and showed them everything in his royal treasuries! There was nothing in his palace or kingdom that Hezekiah did not show them.

³Then Isaiah the prophet went to King Hezekiah and asked him, "What did those men want? Where were they from?"

Hezekiah replied, "They came from the distant land of Babylon."

38:10 enter the place of the dead?

(literally enter the gates of Sheol): This image comes from an ancient idea that people enter death through gates (see 14:9). OT believers did not understand the afterlife as the NT reveals it. It was a shadowy place where all the dead were together and where no praise of God existed (see 38:18; also Ps 88:10; 115:17).

38:11 Hezekiah lamented that if he died, he would not enjoy fellowship with God, his family, and his friends.

38:12 These images depicted the brevity of life (cp. 2 Cor 5:1).

38:15 I will walk humbly: Hezekiah might have previously taken his life and good health for granted. Now he recognized that these gifts from the Lord can be withdrawn at any time.

38:16 God's restoration of Hezekiah's health also symbolized the restoration from exile that Judah would experience in the future.

38:18 the dead (Hebrew Sheol) cannot praise you: See note on 38:10. • People can experience hope when they remember God's faithfulness in the past (see 25:1).

38:21-22 Hezekiah received a sign, reminiscent of another sign the prophet had offered Ahaz (7:11). Ahaz and Hezekiah were two bookends to a long story. Ahaz represented the ungodly king and Hezekiah the godly king. The former brought disaster on his people, while the latter rescued his people (but see ch 39).

38:22 Hezekiah could not go to the Temple with an infection (see Lev 13), so going to the Temple signifies restored health.

39:1-8 Hezekiah was exemplary in godliness, prayer, and care for the people of Jerusalem. But he failed the Lord by parading his financial and military strength before the envoys from Babylon.

39:1 Merodach-baladan, the king of Babylon (722–710 and 704–703 BC), planned to rebel against Assyria and sought help from Hezekiah. His envoys visited after Hezekiah had been very sick and had recovered but before Sennacherib's final attack in 701 BC.

39:2 silver . . . aromatic oils . . . his armory: Showing these treasures demonstrated to Babylon's envoys that Hezekiah had the resources to be a worthy ally.

"What did they see in your palace?" asked Isaiah.

"They saw everything," Hezekiah replied. "I showed them everything I own—all my royal treasures."

⁵Then Isaiah said to Hezekiah, "Listen to this message from the LORD of Heaven's Armies: ⁶The time is coming when everything in your palace—all the treasures stored up by your ancestors until now—will be carried off to Babylon. Nothing will be left," says the LORD. ⁷"Some of your very own sons will be taken away into exile. They will become eunuchs who will serve in the palace of Babylon's king."

⁸Then Hezekiah said to Isaiah, "This message you have given me from the LORD is good." For the king was thinking, "At least there will be peace and security during my lifetime."

7. GOD'S GLORIOUS KINGDOM (40:1–66:24) The Good News of Salvation (40:1–48:22) Comfort for God's People

40 ¹"Comfort, comfort my people," says your God.

²"Speak tenderly to Jerusalem.

Tell her that her sad days are gone and her sins are pardoned.

Yes, the LORD has punished her twice over for all her sins."

³Listen! It's the voice of someone shouting, "Clear the way through the wilderness for the LORD!

Make a straight highway through the wasteland
for our God!

⁴Fill in the valleys,
and level the mountains and hills.
Straighten the curves,
and smooth out the rough places.

⁵Then the ⁸glory of the LORD will be revealed,
and all people will see it together.
The LORD has spoken!"

⁶A voice said, "Shout!"

I asked, "What should I shout?"

"Shout that people are like the grass.
Their beauty fades as quickly as the flowers in a field.

39:6-7 carried off to Babylon: This prophecy was given before the prophecy of the rescue of Jerusalem (37:35). Although this pronouncement of judgment and exile comes as a surprise ending to the story of Hezekiah, the exile of both Israel and Judah had been in the background from the beginning (10:3-4, 20-23). The Lord had promised that he would spare Judah and Jerusalem when the Assyrians attacked in 701 BC, but he had clearly revealed to Isaiah that worse things would come if they did not change their ways. God had demonstrated the truth of his sovereignty and trustworthiness in his defeat of the Assyrians, but that did not mean the people had changed. The only way the promises of 2:1-5 and 4:2-6 were going to be realized was through the fires of judgment (4:4). Until the burning coal of exile was applied to the nation's unclean lips (6:5-7), their mission to the nations would fail.

40:1-66:24 The rest of Isaiah provides a message of comfort and a revelation of God's character and his purposes for Israel. As 39:6-7 predicted, Judah would experience judgment and exile after the time of Isaiah. Throughout chs 40-66, Isaiah prophesied from the vantage point of the Exile having already become a reality. Therefore, the Babylonian exile provides the background for understanding these chapters.

40:1-55:13 This section announces the good news of God's coming salvation. The Lord is coming to vindicate his own and to judge his enemies. Salvation would be accomplished through the arrival, suffering, and exaltation of the Lord's servant—the Messiah, Jesus Christ.

40:1-31 This chapter introduces chs 40-66. In this section, comfort refers to the result of God's merciful way of dealing with people in the age to come. It includes encouragement, strength, and acceptance. God wants to rescue his people (40:1-11) and is more than able to do so (40:12-26). The exiles needed to believe God's promises and wait on him for their rescue (40:27-31; see also 30:15-18).

40:2 Speak tenderly: The prophet's message was to encourage Jerusalem with the good news of his forgiveness, reconciliation, and restoration. • From the prophetic perspective, Israel's sad days are gone because the Exile is over.

• punished her twice over for all her sins: Israel experienced the full brunt of God's wrath (51:19-23; cp. 61:7).

40:3-5 There is now a shift from the general announcement of the good news to the specific expectation of God's coming. The good news (40:1-2) is grounded in God himself. Isaiah portrayed the Lord as coming on a highway through the desert (see ch 35), although the imagery is here reversed: In ch 35, the people were traveling to Zion, toward the Lord. Here, the Lord is coming toward his people (see also 52:8, where the two images are brought together).

• Greek version reads He is a voice shouting in the wilderness, / "Prepare the way for the LORD's coming! / Clear a road for our God! / Fill in the valleys, / and level the mountains and hills. / And then the glory of the LORD will be revealed, / and all people will see the salvation sent from God. / The LORD has spoken!" Cp. Matt 3:3; Mark 1:3; Luke 3:4-6, all of which quote from the Greek version.

40:3 the voice of someone shouting: In Mal 3:1 this person (possibly the Elijah of Mal 4:5) was God's messenger who prepared the way for God's coming. In the Gospels, this announcer was identified with John the Baptist (Matt 3:3; Mark 1:3; Luke 3:4; John 1:23). • Clear the way . . . Make a straight highway: The announcer's message would expedite God's coming (see 35:8). As God made a way for Israel through the Red Sea (43:16), so a way would be opened up for the Lord (see 52:11-12).

40:5 The future revelation of God's glory would include the return of Judah from exile but would also go beyond it. The NT confirmed that the revelation of God's glory came in Jesus Christ (John 1:14; Heb 1:3). • The LORD has spoken: The coming salvation and judgment would certainly occur because the Lord, who keeps his word, had declared it (see 1:20; 58:14).

40:6-8 All humanity is mortal and fleeting. By contrast, God persists in his plans and succeeds. Time does not limit him from carrying out his will (see 14:24). • This verse is quoted in 1 Pet 1:24-25.

40:6 Shout: So that all can hear. • People are not worthy of the revelation of God's glory because they are mortal.

but the word of our God stands forever."

9 O Zion, messenger of good news, shout from the mountaintops!
Shout it louder, O Jerusalem.
Shout, and do not be afraid.

Tell the towns of Judah,
"Your God is coming!"

10 Yes, the Sovereign LORD is coming in power.
He will rule with a powerful arm.
See, he brings his reward with him as he comes.

The LORD Has No Equal

12 Who else has held the oceans in his hand?
Who has measured off the heavens with his fingers?
Who else knows the weight of the earth or has weighed the mountains and hills on a scale?

13 Who is able to advise the Spirit of the LORD?

Who knows enough to give him advice or teach him?

14 Has the LORD ever needed anyone's advice?

Does he need instruction about what is good?

Did someone teach him what is right or show him the path of justice?

15 No, for all the nations of the world are but a drop in the bucket.

They are nothing more than dust on the scales.

He picks up the whole earth as though it were a grain of sand.

16 All the wood in Lebanon's forests and all Lebanon's animals would not be enough to make a burnt offering worthy of our God.

17 The nations of the world are worth nothing to him.
In his eyes they count for less than nothing—
mere emptiness and froth.

18 To whom can you compare God?
What image can you find to resemble
him?

19 Can he be compared to an idol formed in a mold, overlaid with gold, and decorated with silver chains?

40:7 The breath of the LORD refers to God's spoken words of judgment (see 4:4).

40:8 the word of our God stands forever: All of God's words (his plans as well as the written word) will succeed.
God might frustrate human expectations, but everything will happen according to his wise plan (see 14:24; 55:8-11; see also Matt 25:34).

40:9-11 God is the good news. Although he comes like a warrior to rescue his people with power, he also holds them tenderly as a shepherd.

40:9 O Zion, messenger of good news, shout from the mountaintops! Shout it louder, O Jerusalem: Or O messenger of good news, shout to Zion from the mountaintops! Shout it louder to Jerusalem. • God is coming to save and restore human beings (see also 35:4; Rev 22:12).

40:10 The Lord's rule is not like that of the unjust and powerless rulers whom he will judge. It is compassionate, just, righteous, and powerful. • with a powerful arm: God manifested his power in events such as the defeat of the Egyptians (63:12), the judgment of his enemies (30:30; 48:14; 51:9), and the rescue of his people (59:16).

40:11 Isaiah used the familiar biblical metaphor of a shepherd to speak of God's care for his people (see also 49:10; Ps 23:1; Jer 3:15; 23:4; Ezek 34:11-17; Matt 2:6; John 10:1-18).

40:12-17 Against the backdrop of Israel's questions (spoken by the prophet), the Lord affirmed that he is the incomparable God, a wise and sovereign creator who rules over the nations.

40:12-13 These rhetorical questions evoke the answer "No one!" God alone created all that exists. He will judge creation (24:17), and he alone can and will restore creation through his salvation. • Who is able to advise the Spirit of the LORD? Greek version reads Who can know the LORD's thoughts? Cp. Rom
11:34; 1 Cor 2:16.

40:15 God is sovereign over all the nations of the world and over their human power structures. In comparison to God, they are almost nothing.
This included the Babylonian empire, which was merely a tool in God's hand.
• whole earth: Literally coastlands or islands.

40:16 Lebanon was prized for its abundance of wood and its wildlife (see 2:13-16; Ps 104:16-17).

40:17 The nations, including their leaders (40:23), pagan structures (41:24, 29; 44:9-11), and all enemies of God's people (41:11-12), are worth nothing
apart from God.

40:18 To whom . . . What image: Earlier in the book, idolatry was shown to be ridiculous (16:12; 37:16-19). Chapters 40-48 open up a much more extensive argument against idolatry. Idols are symbolic representations of gods and, at times, other religious concepts. Those who worship them don't recognize the implication that they are man-made trinkets. Idols are powerless (41:7, 22-24; 48:14), give a false sense of security
(42:17), delude people (44:20), and lead to severe disappointment (42:17; 45:16, 20). They cannot help those who care for them. In fact, they are so weak that they fall down (40:20; 41:7). In the end, idols compete for God's glory (42:8) and take away human dignity (44:9; see also 41:21-29). • The Lord, the true God, is incomparable (see 40:25; 46:5; Ps 86:8; 89:6); no one could resemble him.

- 20 Or if people are too poor for that, they might at least choose wood that won't decay and a skilled craftsman to carve an image that won't fall down!
- 21 Haven't you heard? Don't you understand?
Are you deaf to the words of God—
the words he gave before the world began?
Are you so ignorant?
- 22 God sits above the circle of the earth.
The people below seem like grasshoppers to him!
He spreads out the heavens like a curtain and makes his tent from them.
- 23 He judges the great people of the world and brings them all to nothing.
- 24 They hardly get started, barely taking root, when he blows on them and they wither.
The wind carries them off like chaff.
- 25 "To whom will you compare me?
Who is my equal?" asks the Holy One.
- 26 Look up into the heavens.
Who created all the stars?
He brings them out like an army, one after another, calling each by its name.
Because of his great power and incomparable strength, not a single one is missing.

- 27 O Jacob, how can you say the LORD does not see your troubles?
O Israel, how can you say God ignores your rights?
- 28 Have you never heard?
Have you never understood?
The LORD is the everlasting God,
the Creator of all the earth.
He never grows weak or weary.
No one can measure the depths of his understanding.
- 29 He gives power to the weak and strength to the powerless.
- 30 Even youths will become weak and tired, and young men will fall in exhaustion.
- 31 But those who trust in the LORD will find new strength.
They will soar high on wings like eagles.
They will run and not grow weary.
They will walk and not faint.

40:20 image that won't fall down: This is a sarcastic remark; it would be embarrassing if the idol did not even have the power to remain standing (see 40:18; 41:7; 1 Sam 5:4).

40:21 Idolaters fail to discern who God is or to respond wisely to him. The godly in Israel would understand and see the hand of God in the unfolding story of redemption, which includes both exile and restoration (41:20).

40:22 God sits enthroned as King over all the earth (see 6:1; Ps 2:4; 80:1; 99:1; 102:12; 113:5). God is so immense and awesome that humans are like grasshoppers in comparison. • Belief in God as creator of the heavens and earth contradicts the popular Babylonian and Egyptian belief that the sun, moon, and stars represent gods. • like a curtain . . . his tent: See also Ps 104:2.

40:23 great people: God is unimpressed by human power and fame.

40:25 The Holy One is a shortened form of "the Holy One of Israel," a common designation for God in Isaiah (see note on 1:4; also 10:17; Ps 22:3; 43:15).

40:26 Look up into the heavens: Just as God directed Abraham to look into the sky (Gen 15:5), he also directed Israel to look to the stars for encouragement (see also 51:2-3). The cosmos bears witness to God's great power and incomparable strength. The Strong One is able to strengthen the weak (40:27-31; see Ps 147:5).

40:27 does not see your troubles . . . ignores your rights: The coming exile, a period when God's powerful presence and rescue would not be seen, would prompt questions (see also 49:14; 54:7; Lam 5:20-22).

40:28 heard . . . understood: Cp. 40:21. • the everlasting God, the Creator of all the earth: Creation reveals God's power and wisdom. He is also the Creator of the age to come, a world of righteousness, justice, and peace (45:8; 48:6-7; 65:17-18). • He never grows weak or weary: God is not susceptible to human limitations.

40:29 The weak in this context are those who face persecution or oppression (such as the Babylonian exile); the Lord is their only recourse (see 49:4-5; 50:4; Ps 68:9; 119:28).

40:31 trust in the LORD: See note on 8:17; see also 33:2; 49:23; 51:5. • like eagles: This powerful image of rescue reminded readers of the Exodus event of long ago (Exod 19:4; Deut 32:10-12; see also Ps 103:5).

41:1-7 The Lord here invited the nations to a trial where he would prove that he alone is God. They were defenseless as he declared that a king from the east (41:2) would crush Babylon, opening the way for Israel to return.

41:1 The nations coming together for a trial have to listen in silence to the presentation of God's arguments. • Bring your strongest arguments: Literally let them find new strength, a play on 40:31. • God invited the nations to come . . . and speak, challenging them to refute his case.

41:2 This king from the east was Cyrus, the Persian king who conquered

⁴ Who has done such mighty deeds, summoning each new generation from the beginning of time? It is I, the LORD, the First and the Last. I alone am he."

⁵ The lands beyond the sea watch in fear. Remote lands tremble and mobilize for war.

⁶ The idol makers encourage one another, saying to each other, "Be strong!"

⁷ The carver encourages the goldsmith, and the molder helps at the anvil. "Good," they say. "It's coming along fine."

Carefully they join the parts together, then fasten the thing in place so it won't fall over.

⁸ "But as for you, Israel my servant, Jacob my chosen one, descended from Abraham my friend,

⁹ I have called you back from the ends of the earth, saying, 'You are my servant.' For I have chosen you and will not throw you away.

You will tear your enemies apart, making chaff of mountains.

a whirlwind will scatter them.

Then you will rejoice in the LORD.

You will glory in the Holy One of Israel.

¹⁷ "When the poor and needy search for water and there is none, and their tongues are parched from thirst,

Babylon in 539 BC and permitted the Jews to return to their land and rebuild Jerusalem (538 BC; Ezra 1:1-4). Isaiah's prophecies about Cyrus (see 44:28-45:13; 48:14-15) encouraged Israel to look to the Lord as sovereign over all of human history, including the actions of great kings. • Who gives this man victory over many nations? As victorious as the conquering Cyrus was, he was still subject to the Lord.

41:4 each new generation from the beginning of time: God is sovereign over all things. From the beginning he has unfolded each stage of history according to his plan. • In the book of Revelation, Jesus identifies himself as the Alpha and the Omega, the First and the Last, the Beginning and the End (Rev 1:8, 17; 2:8; 21:6; 22:13).

• I alone am he: The Lord alone is God (see also 43:10, 13; 46:4; 48:12; Deut 32:39). Jesus used similar expressions for himself (see John 6:35; 8:12, 24; 9:5; 10:7, 9, 11, 14; 11:25; 14:6; 15:1, 5).

41:5-7 This taunt against idolatry (see note on 40:18) was a response to God's raising up of Cyrus; the nations hope to find protection in their idols.

41:6 Be strong! The nations put their hope in things that have no strength, objects made by human craftsmen.

41:8-16 These two prophecies of salvation for God's servant Israel (41:8-13, 14-16) prepare for the first of the suffering servant songs (see note on 42:1-4).

41:8 The servant—here the nation of Israel—was God's chosen one, whose calling was grounded in God's purposes. • Abraham my friend: The phrase in Hebrew could mean Abraham who loves me or Abraham whom I love. See also Jas 2:23.

41:9 I have chosen you restates 41:8 to emphasize God's commitment and faithfulness to his people Israel, who had not been faithful to him. • not throw you away: Because of the Exile, the people felt that God had rejected them (see 49:21; 54:6). However, God had good purposes for them.

41:10 I am with you: The promise of God's presence (see 7:14) is central to the Bible. Because God is present, his people do not need to fear (see also 43:1-2, 5). • I am your God: The Lord used the language of the covenant to affirm that he is their God and that they are his people (see also Jer 7:23; 31:1, 33; Ezek 14:11; 36:28; 37:27; Zech 8:8). • hold you . . . my victorious right hand: The Lord used language reminiscent of the Exodus (cp. Exod 15:6) to encourage Israel (see also 41:13; 63:12).

41:14 In exile, Israel was in a lowly state. • God is the Redeemer. He works mightily to rescue and restore people from sin and its consequences (for Israel, the Exile; for application to Jesus, see Luke 2:38; 21:28; Rom 3:24; 1 Cor 1:30; Gal 4:5; Eph 1:1-14; Titus 2:14; Heb 9:12).

41:16 When the grain is thrown into the wind, the chaff is blown away. Likewise, Israel's enemies appeared to be strong but would easily be driven off.

then I, the LORD, will answer them.
 I, the God of Israel, will never abandon them.
 18 I will open up rivers for them on the high plateaus.
 I will give them fountains of water in the valleys.
 I will fill the desert with pools of water.
 Rivers fed by springs will flow across the parched ground.
 19 I will plant trees in the barren desert—cedar, acacia, myrtle, olive, cypress, fir, and pine.
 20 I am doing this so all who see this miracle will understand what it means—that it is the LORD who has done this, the Holy One of Israel who created it.
 21 “Present the case for your idols,” says the LORD.
 “Let them show what they can do,” says the King of Israel.
 22 “Let them try to tell us what happened long ago so that we may consider the evidence. Or let them tell us what the future holds, so we can know what’s going to happen.
 23 Yes, tell us what will occur in the days ahead.
 Then we will know you are gods.
 In fact, do anything—good or bad! Do something that will amaze and frighten us.
 24 But no! You are less than nothing and can do nothing at all.
 Those who choose you pollute themselves.

25 “But I have stirred up a leader who will approach from the north.
 From the east he will call on my name.
 I will give him victory over kings and princes.
 He will trample them as a potter treads on clay.
 26 “Who told you from the beginning that this would happen?
 Who predicted this, making you admit that he was right?
 No one said a word!
 27 I was the first to tell Zion,
 ‘Look! Help is on the way!’
 I will send Jerusalem a messenger with good news.
 28 Not one of your idols told you this.
 Not one gave any answer when I asked.
 29 See, they are all foolish, worthless things.
 All your idols are as empty as the wind.

The Lord's Chosen Servant

42 ¹Look at my ^aservant, whom I strengthen.
 He is my chosen one, who pleases me.
 I have put my Spirit upon him.
 He will bring justice to the nations.
²He will not shout or raise his voice in public.
³He will not crush the weakest reed or put out a flickering candle.
 He will bring justice to all who have been wronged.
⁴He will not falter or lose heart until justice prevails throughout the earth.

41:18 rivers . . . fountains . . . pools of water . . . springs: These images would strike a responsive chord in an agrarian culture. They also suggest that rescue from the Exile would be a second exodus (cp. Exod 15:27; 17:6).

41:21-29 This trial scene develops the Lord's case against idolatry. Idols are nothing but a human creation, whereas God is the Creator of all things. Idols cannot speak, act, accomplish anything, or save their worshipers.

41:21 the King of Israel: Literally the King of Jacob. See note on 14:1. See also 6:5; 43:15; 44:6.

41:25 I have stirred up a leader: The God who had planned the Exile through Babylon had already planned for Israel's restoration from exile through Cyrus (see note on 41:2; see also 13:17). • Although Persia is located to the east, rough terrain required those traveling to Israel and Judah to enter from the north. • I will give him victory . . . He will trample them: As Babylon was sent to trample Assyria, so Persia would trample Babylon.

41:26 Idols and false gods could not predict the future.

42:1-4 The servant here is not the people Israel (as in 41:8-28 and elsewhere in chs 41-48; see 49:5-6) but is a royal figure who accomplishes his mission with care for people, especially for those who are hurting. The passage is the first of four songs about this servant (42:1-4; 49:1-13; 50:4-11; 52:13-53:12). He brings in an era of universal justice. For the connection of the servant with Jesus Christ, see Matt 12:18-21.

42:1 who pleases me: God used similar language at Jesus' baptism (Matt 3:17).

• I have put my Spirit upon him: Any leader might be called a servant, but the presence of the Spirit suggests a king of David's line or a prophet like Moses (see Num 11:17, 24-29). • Establishing justice is the responsibility of a king (see 9:6-7; Ps 72:1). • This king's mission will be a greater mission to the nations than simply governing the small nation of Judah.

42:2 shout or raise his voice: The royal servant will have calm confidence in his message and calling from God (see also 11:1-5).

42:3 The royal servant will be gentle with the oppressed and discouraged (see 3:15; 41:17).

42:4 distant lands: The nations long for justice and for instruction on bringing it about. In this regard the servant is like Moses, to whom the law was given. However, the servant is greater in that

He gives breath to everyone, life to everyone who walks the earth.

And it is he who says,

⁶"I, the LORD, have called you to

A Song of Praise to the LORD

¹⁰ Sing a new song to the LORD!

Sing his praises from the ends of the earth!

Sing, all you who sail the seas,
all you who live in distant coastlands.

¹¹ Join in the chorus, you desert towns;
let the villages of Kedar rejoice!

Let the people of Sela sing for joy;
shout praises from the mountaintops!

¹² Let the whole world glorify the LORD;
let it sing his praise.

¹³ The LORD will march forth like a mighty hero;

he will come out like a warrior, full of fury.

He will shout his battle cry and crush all his enemies.

¹⁴ He will say, "I have long been silent;
yes, I have restrained myself.

But now, like a woman in labor,
I will cry and groan and pant.

¹⁵ I will level the mountains and hills and blight all their greenery.

I will turn the rivers into dry land and will dry up all the pools.

¹⁶ I will lead blind Israel down a new path, guiding them along an unfamiliar way.

I will brighten the darkness before them and smooth out the road ahead of them.

Yes, I will indeed do these things;
I will not forsake them.

¹⁷ But those who trust in idols, who say, 'You are our gods,' will be turned away in shame.

Israel's Failure to Listen and See

¹⁸ "Listen, you who are deaf!

Look and see, you blind!

¹⁹ Who is as blind as my own people, my servant?

Who is as deaf as my messenger?

Who is as blind as my chosen people,
the servant of the LORD?

²⁰ You see and recognize what is right but refuse to act on it.

You hear with your ears,
but you don't really listen."

²¹ Because he is righteous, the LORD has exalted his glorious law.

he extends justice beyond Israel to all the nations. • Even distant lands beyond the sea will wait for his instruction: Greek version reads And his name will be the hope of all the world. Compare Matt 12:21.

42:6 my people, Israel . . . my covenant with them (literally a covenant for the people): It is also possible that "the people" referred to all the peoples/nations of the earth (see 49:6). • light to guide the nations: See also 51:4; Acts 13:47.

42:7 The servant will open the eyes of the spiritually blind (see 6:10; 29:18) and free the spiritual captives from the prison of sin, in addition to those who were captive in the Babylonian exile (see 61:1 with Luke 4:18).

42:8-9 I am the LORD: As Creator of the world, and as the only one who can bring about the things he predicts, the Lord alone is glorious and worthy of praise.

42:10-11 The various geographical regions represent the extremes of human habitation. The whole earth is called to praise God for his commitment to redeem humanity. • Kedar and Sela (42:11; see also 16:1; 21:16-17) were representative desert sites.

42:13 a mighty hero . . . a warrior: The background of this theme is God's victory at the Red Sea during the Exodus (Exod 15:3). • God will be victorious over all his enemies in order to rescue his people (51:9; 63:1-6; see also Ps 54:7; 108:9; 112:8).

42:14 I have long been silent . . . re- strained myself: Israel had experienced God's absence in the Exile, which came about because of their idolatrous ways (57:11-13; 2 Kgs 17:6-24). The godly will pray for God's presence and renewed involvement in their situation (64:12), and the Lord will answer their prayers because of his commitment to their redemption (62:1, 6).

42:18-20 The Israelites who refused to listen to what God said and to understand what they saw God doing in history were rendered spiritually blind and deaf (see 6:9-10). They had knowledge of the truth through God's word and the prophets, but their closed minds refused to act upon it.

42:21 exalted his glorious law: God's word is a witness to his righteous rule (see 1:10).

²² But his own people have been robbed and plundered, enslaved, imprisoned, and trapped.
They are fair game for anyone and have no one to protect them, no one to take them back home.

²³ Who will hear these lessons from the past and see the ruin that awaits you in the future?

²⁴ Who allowed Israel to be robbed and hurt?
It was the LORD, against whom we sinned,
for the people would not walk in his path,
nor would they ^dobey his law.

²⁵ Therefore, he poured out his fury on them
and destroyed them in battle.
They were enveloped in flames,
but they still refused to understand.
They were consumed by fire,
but they did not learn their lesson.

The Savior of Israel

43 ¹ But now, O Jacob, listen to the LORD who created you.
O Israel, the one who formed you says,
“Do not be afraid, for I have ^ransomed
you.
I have called you by name; you are mine.

² When you go through deep waters,
I will be with you.
When you go through rivers of difficulty,
you will not drown.
When you walk through the fire of oppression,
you will not be burned up;
the flames will not consume you.

³ For I am the LORD, your God,
the Holy One of Israel, your Savior.

I gave Egypt as a ransom for your freedom;
I gave Ethiopia and Seba in your place.

⁴ Others were given in exchange for you.
I traded their lives for yours because you are precious to me.
You are honored, and I love you.

⁵ “Do not be afraid, for I am with you.
I will gather you and your children from east and west.

⁶ I will say to the north and south,
‘Bring my sons and daughters back to Israel
from the distant corners of the earth.

⁷ Bring all who claim me as their God,
for I have made them for my glory.
It was I who created them.’”

⁸ Bring out the people who have eyes but are blind,
who have ears but are deaf.

⁹ Gather the nations together!
Assemble the peoples of the world!
Which of their idols has ever foretold such things?
Which can predict what will happen tomorrow?

Where are the witnesses of such predictions?
Who can verify that they spoke the truth?

¹⁰ “But you are my witnesses, O Israel!” says
the LORD.

“You are my servant.
You have been ^chosen to know me,
believe in me,
and understand that I alone am God.
There is no other God—
there never has been, and there never will be.

42:22-25 Throughout its history, Israel's sin (42:24) made Israel fair game for foreign oppressors. Many nations, Assyria and Babylon in particular, became instruments God used to pour out his fury (42:25) on his rebellious people.

42:25 Generation after generation of Israelites did not learn their lesson, even when God disciplined them through military defeat.

43:1-7 In this promise of salvation, the Lord addressed his plundered people in the first person.

43:1 the LORD who created you: The language of creation (see note on 40:28) was now applied to God's formation of the nation Israel. • I have ransomed you: At the Exodus, when God brought his people out of bondage. Similarly, God planned to bring his people out of exile and back into their land. Ultimately, Jesus gave his life as a ransom for all humanity (Matt 20:28; 1 Tim 2:6; Heb 9:15). • I have called you by name; you are mine: Despite having faced his wrath, the people of Israel are still God's chosen people.

43:2 Conquering forces could be compared to flooding rivers (see 8:8). • I will be with you: God is committed to being with his people to protect and care for them (see 7:14; 41:10; 43:5; 45:14). • Israel experienced God's judgment as the fire of oppression during the Exile.

43:3 Holy One of Israel: See note on 1:4. • Ethiopia: Hebrew Cush.

43:7 One of God's purposes in restoring his people was to display his glory to the watching world.

43:8-13 The Lord here called on Israel, his blind servant, to be his star witness in a mock trial against idols and false gods. Israel knew that the Lord alone is God, and the people had experienced his salvation.

43:10 you are my witnesses: By their very presence in exile, Israel was evidence that God is truly God. He predicted the Exile long beforehand, and now it had come to pass. God alone is the true God because he speaks and acts and controls all of history. Idols and false gods could do none of these things. Israel would later become even greater evidence because God had also predicted their redemption (43:11-12).

- 11 I, yes I, am the LORD, and there is no other Savior.
12 First I predicted your rescue, then I saved you and proclaimed it to the world.
No foreign god has ever done this.
You are witnesses that I am the only God,"
says the LORD.
13 "From eternity to eternity I am God.
No one can snatch anyone out of my hand.
No one can undo what I have done."

The LORD's Promise of Victory

14 This is what the LORD says—your Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel:

- "For your sakes I will send an army against Babylon, forcing the Babylonians to flee in those ships they are so proud of.
15 I am the LORD, your Holy One, Israel's Creator and King.
16 I am the LORD, who opened a way through the waters, making a dry path through the sea.
17 I called forth the mighty army of Egypt with all its chariots and horses.
I drew them beneath the waves, and they drowned, their lives snuffed out like a smoldering candlewick.
18 "But forget all that—it is nothing compared to what I am going to do.
19 For I am about to do something new.
See, I have already begun! Do you not see it?
I will make a pathway through the wilderness.
I will create rivers in the dry
wasteland.
20 The wild animals in the fields will thank me,
the jackals and owls, too,
for giving them water in the desert.

- Yes, I will make rivers in the dry
wasteland
so my chosen people can be refreshed.
21 I have made Israel for myself, and they will someday honor me before the whole world.
22 "But, dear family of Jacob, you refuse to ask for my help.
You have grown tired of me, O Israel!
23 You have not brought me sheep or goats for burnt offerings.
You have not honored me with sacrifices,
though I have not burdened and wearied
you with requests for grain offerings and frankincense.
24 You have not brought me fragrant calamus or pleased me with the fat from sacrifices.
Instead, you have burdened me with your sins and wearied me with your faults.

- 25 "I—yes, I alone—will blot out your sins for my own sake
and will never think of them again.
26 Let us review the situation together, and you can present your case to prove your innocence.
27 From the very beginning, your first ancestor sinned against me;
all your leaders broke my laws.
28 That is why I have disgraced your priests;
I have decreed complete destruction for Jacob and shame for Israel.

44 1 "But now, listen to me, Jacob my servant,
Israel my chosen one.

- 2 The LORD who made you and helps you says:
Do not be afraid, O Jacob, my servant,
O dear Israel, my chosen one.

43:14-21 The Lord assured Israel of its coming redemption from Babylon;
the redemption would be modeled on Israel's past redemption from Egypt and would be greater in some ways (43:18).

43:14 Babylonians: Or Chaldeans.

43:18 God did not want the Israelites to forget the exodus from Egypt. However, they needed to look forward in faith to the spectacular event that was about to occur rather than dwelling on the past.

43:21 One purpose of redemption is to honor God through the praises of the redeemed (see 1 Pet 2:9).

43:22 Israel's history of rebellion had led them into crisis after crisis, yet their rebellion was so great that they stubbornly refused to ask God for help. When they did pray, their wickedness often caused their prayers not to be heard (1:15).

43:25 God alone can and does blot out ... sins, no matter how many or how great (see also 44:22).

43:27 leaders: God held Israel's and Judah's kings especially responsible for leading the nation into sin (see 2 Kgs 21).

43:28 complete destruction: The Hebrew term used here refers to the complete consecration of things or people to the LORD, either by destroying them or by giving them as an offering.

44:1-5 The promise of salvation extended the usefulness of sinful Israel to another generation (44:3). The past was bleak (see 43:22-28), but the future would be a glorious new era transformed by the Spirit.

44:2 Israel: Hebrew Jeshurun, a term of endearment for Israel.

³ For I will pour out water to quench your thirst and to irrigate your parched fields.
And I will pour out my Spirit on your descendants, and my blessing on your children.
⁴ They will thrive like watered grass, like willows on a riverbank.
⁵ Some will proudly claim, 'I belong to the LORD.'
Others will say, 'I am a descendant of Jacob.'
Some will write the LORD's name on their hands and will take the name of Israel as their own."

The Foolishness of Idols

⁶ This is what the LORD says—Israel's King and Redeemer, the LORD of Heaven's Armies:

"I am the First and the Last;
there is no other God.

⁷ Who is like me?
Let him step forward and prove to you his power.
Let him do as I have done since ancient times when I established a people and explained its future.

⁸ Do not tremble; do not be afraid.
Did I not proclaim my purposes for you long ago?
You are my witnesses—is there any other God?
No! There is no other Rock—not one!"

⁹ How foolish are those who manufacture idols.
These prized objects are really worthless.

The people who worship idols don't know this,
so they are all put to shame.

¹⁰ Who but a fool would make his own god—an idol that cannot help him one bit?

¹¹ All who worship idols will be disgraced along with all these craftsmen—mere humans—who claim they can make a god.

They may all stand together,
but they will stand in terror and shame.

¹² The blacksmith stands at his forge to make a sharp tool, pounding and shaping it with all his might.

His work makes him hungry and weak.
It makes him thirsty and faint.

¹³ Then the wood-carver measures a block of wood and draws a pattern on it.
He works with chisel and plane and carves it into a human figure.
He gives it human beauty and puts it in a little shrine.

¹⁴ He cuts down cedars;
he selects the cypress and the oak;
he plants the pine in the forest to be nourished by the rain.

¹⁵ Then he uses part of the wood to make a fire.
With it he warms himself and bakes his bread.

Then—yes, it's true—he takes the rest of it and makes himself a god to worship!
He makes an idol
and bows down in front of it!

¹⁶ He burns part of the tree to roast his meat and to keep himself warm.
He says, "Ah, that fire feels good."

¹⁷ Then he takes what's left and makes his god: a carved idol!
He falls down in front of it, worshiping and praying to it.
"Rescue me!" he says.
"You are my god!"

¹⁸ Such stupidity and ignorance!
Their eyes are closed, and they cannot see.
Their minds are shut, and they cannot think.

¹⁹ The person who made the idol never stops to reflect,
"Why, it's just a block of wood!
I burned half of it for heat and used it to bake my bread and roast my meat.

44:6-20 This passage uses the form of a trial speech to press God's argument that disgrace comes to all who trust in idols and false gods.

44:15-17 he uses part of the wood to make a fire . . . he takes the rest of it and makes himself a god to worship: This description of the process of making an idol drips with sarcasm and ridicule at the stupidity of the foolish idol worshipers (see also 44:19).

44:18-19 Their minds are shut: Idol worshipers cannot see the irony in using one part of a log to warm themselves and another part of the same log to be their god.

Restoration for Jerusalem

21 "Pay attention, O Jacob, for you are my servant, O Israel.

I, the LORD, made you,
and I will not forget you.

22 I have swept away your sins like a cloud.
I have scattered your offenses like the morning mist.

Oh, return to me,
for I have paid the price to set you free."

23 Sing, O heavens, for the LORD has done
this wondrous thing.

Shout for joy, O depths of the earth!
Break into song,
O mountains and forests and every tree!

For the LORD has redeemed Jacob and is glorified in Israel.

24 This is what the LORD says—
your ^aRedeemer and Creator:

"I am the LORD, who made all things.
I alone stretched out the heavens.
Who was with me
when I made the earth?

25 I expose the false prophets as liars and make fools of fortune-tellers.
I cause the wise to give bad advice,
thus proving them to be fools.

26 But I carry out the predictions of my prophets!

By them I say to Jerusalem, 'People will live here again.'

and to the towns of Judah, 'You will be rebuilt;

I will restore all your ruins!'

27 When I speak to the rivers and say, 'Dry up!'
they will be dry.

28 When I say of Cyrus, 'He is my shepherd,'
he will certainly do as I say.

He will command, 'Rebuild Jerusalem';
he will say, 'Restore the Temple.'

Cyrus, the LORD's Chosen One

45 ¹This is what the LORD says to Cyrus, his anointed one,
whose right hand he will empower.
Before him, mighty kings will be paralyzed with fear.

Their fortress gates will be opened,
never to shut again.

² This is what the LORD says:

"I will go before you, Cyrus,
and level the mountains.

I will smash down gates of bronze and cut through bars of iron.

³ And I will give you treasures hidden in the darkness—secret riches.

I will do this so you may know that I am
the LORD,
the God of Israel, the one who calls
you by name.

⁴ "And why have I called you for this work?
Why did I call you by name when you did not know me?

It is for the sake of Jacob my servant,
Israel my chosen one.

⁵ I am the LORD;
there is no other God.

I have equipped you for battle,
though you don't even know me,

⁶ so all the world from east to west will know there is no other God.
I am the LORD, and there is no other.

44:21-22 The Lord promised to forgive Israel's sins.

44:23 All creation is called to celebrate God's redemption of Israel (cp. 1:2).

44:24-45:8 The Lord alone is sovereign over history. He raised up Cyrus of Persia to execute judgment on Babylon and restore Israel to the Holy Land.

44:25 False prophets and fortune-tellers used forbidden forms of divination to try to predict the future. Eventually God would expose them as deluded liars (see 3:2; 9:15; 47:13; Deut 18:10-11).

44:27 The sudden depletion of natural resources at times indicates a divine judgment (see 42:15; cp. 43:20). Here, however, God's ability to dry up streams with just a word illustrates his power to do what he said he would do through Cyrus of Persia.

44:28 He is my shepherd: Cyrus went beyond simply permitting the Jews to return to their homeland. He facilitated a major restoration project to rebuild Jerusalem and restore the Temple (see 45:13; Ezra 1:2-4; 6:3-5).

45:1 anointed one: This designation, commonly reserved for David or the Messiah, is here applied to Cyrus. Cyrus was anointed in the sense that he was selected to fulfill a special mission.
This title was never used of any other foreign ruler (cp. 1 Sam 10:1; Rom 13:1).

• whose right hand he will empower:

The Lord would give Cyrus victory over Babylon (see 43:14).

45:2 the mountains: As in Dead Sea
Scrolls and Greek version; Masoretic
Text reads the swellings.

45:3 so you may know: Cyrus's victories provided factual proof that the Lord has the power to fulfill his plans, whereas idols and false gods do not (see 41:21-29).

45:4-5 I call you by name: Cyrus did not know the Lord, but the Lord knew him. Isaiah predicted the rescuer Cyrus by name 150 years in advance. This prophecy would prove to the exiles that the Lord is indeed God and that he knows the future.

- 7 I create the light and make the darkness.
I send good times and bad times.
I, the LORD, am the one who does these things.
- 8 "Open up, O heavens,
and pour out your ^brighteousness.
Let the earth open wide so salvation and righteousness can sprout up together.
I, the LORD, created them.
- 9 "What sorrow awaits those who argue with their Creator.
Does a clay pot argue with its maker?
Does the clay dispute with the one who shapes it, saying,
'Stop, you're doing it wrong!'
Does the pot exclaim,
'How clumsy can you be?'
- 10 How terrible it would be if a newborn baby said to its father,
'Why was I born?'
or if it said to its mother,
'Why did you make me this way?'"
- 11 This is what the LORD says—
the Holy One of Israel and your Creator:
"Do you question what I do for my children?
Do you give me orders about the work of my hands?
- 12 I am the one who made the earth and created people to live on it.
With my hands I stretched out the heavens.
All the stars are at my command.
- 13 I will raise up Cyrus to fulfill my righteous purpose,
and I will guide his actions.
He will restore my city and free my captive people—without seeking a reward!
I, the LORD of Heaven's Armies, have spoken!"

Future Conversion of Gentiles

- 14 This is what the LORD says:
"You will rule the Egyptians,
the Ethiopians, and the Sabeans.
They will come to you with all their merchandise,
and it will all be yours.
They will follow you as prisoners in chains.
They will fall to their knees in front of you and say,
'God is with you, and he is the only God.
There is no other.'"
- 15 Truly, O God of Israel, our Savior, you work in mysterious ways.
- 16 All craftsmen who make idols will be humiliated.
They will all be disgraced together.
- 17 But the LORD will save the people of Israel with ^ceternal salvation.
Throughout ^ceverlasting ages, they will never again be humiliated and disgraced.
- 18 For the LORD is God, and he created the heavens and earth and put everything in place.
He made the world to be lived in,
not to be a place of empty chaos.
"I am the LORD," he says,
"and there is no other.
- 19 I publicly proclaim bold promises.
I do not whisper obscurities in some dark corner.
I would not have told the people of Israel to seek me
if I could not be found.
I, the LORD, speak only what is true and declare only what is right.
- 20 "Gather together and come, you fugitives from surrounding
nations.
What fools they are who carry around their wooden idols and ^dpray to gods that cannot ^esave!

45:9-11 pot . . . its maker . . . baby . . . its father: It is ridiculous for a creature to question the wisdom of its creator.

45:14 Egyptians . . . Ethiopians (Hebrew Cushites) . . . Sabeans: Israel's restoration would bring them a new sovereignty. Foreign nations would honor God, and because they recognized God's special blessing on his people, they would also want to honor his people.

45:17 Israel would never again be humiliated and disgraced, oppressed, harassed, or abused. The finality of these declarations suggests that this promise will be fulfilled at the end of time.

45:18-25 Salvation is from the Lord alone. He is the creator, the revealer, and the executor of his will in human history. He promised to establish a new era of salvation and righteousness (see 45:8). Every human being will submit to God, either willingly or unwillingly (45:23-24).

45:18 Ancient pagan people viewed the world as a place of empty chaos. However, God's purposes are good, and he made the world from the beginning as a place to be lived in with him in harmony.

45:19 of Israel: Literally of Jacob. See note on 14:1.

- 21 Consult together, argue your case.
Get together and decide what to say.
Who made these things known so long ago?
What idol ever told you they would happen?
Was it not I, the LORD?
For there is no other God but me,
a righteous God and Savior.
There is none but me.
- 22 Let all the world look to me for 'salvation!
For I am God; there is no other.
- 23 I have sworn by my own name;
I have spoken the truth,
and I will never go back on my word:
Every knee will bend to me,
and every tongue will declare allegiance to me."
- 24 The people will declare,
"The LORD is the source of all my righteousness and strength."
And all who were angry with him will come to him and be ashamed.
- 25 In the LORD all the generations of Israel will be justified,
and in him they will boast.

Babylon's False Gods

- 46 ¹ Bel and Nebo, the gods of Babylon, bow as they are lowered to the ground.
They are being hauled away on ox carts.
The poor beasts stagger under the weight.
- ² Both the idols and their owners are bowed down.
The gods cannot protect the people, and the people cannot protect the gods.
They go off into captivity together.

- ³ "Listen to me, descendants of Jacob,
all you who remain in Israel.
I have cared for you since you were born.
Yes, I carried you before you were born.
- ⁴ I will be your God throughout your lifetime—until your hair is white with age.
I made you, and I will care for you.
I will carry you along and save you.
- ⁵ "To whom will you compare me?
Who is my equal?
- ⁶ Some people pour out their silver and gold and hire a craftsman to make a god from it.
Then they bow down and ^aworship it!
- ⁷ They carry it around on their shoulders,
and when they set it down, it stays there.
It can't even move!
And when someone prays to it, there is no answer.
It can't rescue anyone from trouble.
- ⁸ "Do not forget this! Keep it in mind!
Remember this, you guilty ones.
- ⁹ Remember the things I have done in the past.
For I alone am God!
I am God, and there is none like me.
- ¹⁰ Only I can tell you the future
before it even happens.
Everything I plan will come to pass,
for I do whatever I wish.
- ¹¹ I will call a swift bird of prey from the east—
a leader from a distant land to come and do my bidding.
I have said what I would do, and I will do it.

45:22 Let all the world look to me: All humanity needs to seek the Lord, the true God who created all things, while he may be found (55:6). • In God there is salvation, the only hope for all of humanity (45:8).

45:23 God's words are always true. God's swearing by his own name reinforces the certainty that he will never go back on his word (see also 14:24; 54:9; 62:8; Heb 6:13). • Every knee . . . every tongue: At the end of time all nations will submit to his authority, whether willingly or unwillingly (see Rom 14:11; 1 Cor 15:25-27; Phil 2:10-11). • will declare allegiance to me: Literally will declare, or will confess; Greek version reads will declare allegiance to God. Cp. Rom 14:11.

45:24 In this context, the people are all who turn to the Lord for salvation, even those from foreign nations (45:22).

45:25 justified: Literally righteous (see also 45:8, 24).

46:1-2 This taunt was against the self-contradiction of Babylonian religion (see note on 14:4).

46:1 Marduk-bel was the most important god in the Babylonian pantheon. Bel (similar to "Baal") designated lordship. • Nebo (Nabu, Nebu), the patron deity of Babylonian scribes, was thought to be the son of Marduk-bel. • Instead of being paraded in glory at a Babylonian festival, these gods would be hauled away on ox carts and disposed of, rejected by the Babylonian people.

46:3 Those who remain in Israel refers to the remnant that would be left alive

after the destruction of Jerusalem in 586 BC. • The Lord, the Creator of humanity, cares for and carries his people (contrast the Babylonian idols that must be carried instead). • since you were born . . . before you were born: The Lord chose Israel even before they were a nation (see also 49:5).

46:8-13 Many of the exiles would be completely discouraged and not believe the prediction of God's rescue. God challenged this unbelief.

46:10 God knows the future before it even happens; he has comprehensive control over all events, and all his acts match his words (41:4, 26). He is the First and the Last (44:6; 48:12).

46:11 The swift bird of prey from the east refers to Cyrus, the Persian king (see note on 41:2).

- ¹² "Listen to me, you stubborn people who are so far from doing right.
¹³ For I am ready to set things right, not in the distant future, but right now! I am ready to save Jerusalem and show my glory to Israel.

Prediction of Babylon's Fall

- 47 ¹ "Come down, virgin daughter of Babylon, and sit in the dust.
 For your days of sitting on a throne have ended.
 O daughter of Babylonia, never again will you be the lovely princess, tender and delicate.
² Take heavy millstones and grind flour. Remove your veil, and strip off your robe.
 Expose yourself to public view.
³ You will be naked and burdened with shame.
 I will take vengeance against you without pity."
⁴ Our Redeemer, whose name is the LORD of Heaven's Armies, is the Holy One of Israel.
⁵ "O beautiful Babylon, sit now in darkness and silence.
 Never again will you be known as the queen of kingdoms.
⁶ For I was angry with my chosen people and punished them by letting them fall into your hands.
 But you, Babylon, showed them no mercy. You oppressed even the elderly.
⁷ You said, 'I will reign forever as queen of the world!' You did not reflect on your actions or think about their consequences.

- ⁸ "Listen to this, you pleasure-loving kingdom, living at ease and feeling secure. You say, 'I am the only one, and there is no other. I will never be a widow or lose my children.'
⁹ Well, both these things will come upon you in a moment: widowhood and the loss of your children.
 Yes, these calamities will come upon you, despite all your witchcraft and magic.
¹⁰ "You felt secure in your wickedness. 'No one sees me,' you said. But your 'wisdom' and 'knowledge' have led you astray, and you said, 'I am the only one, and there is no other.'
¹¹ So disaster will overtake you, and you won't be able to charm it away. Calamity will fall upon you, and you won't be able to buy your way out.
 A catastrophe will strike you suddenly, one for which you are not prepared.
¹² "Now use your magical charms! Use the spells you have worked at all these years! Maybe they will do you some good. Maybe they can make someone afraid of you.
¹³ All the advice you receive has made you tired.
 Where are all your astrologers, those stargazers who make predictions each month? Let them stand up and save you from what the future holds.

46:12 Formerly, Israel cared little for doing right (literally righteousness; see also 58:2; 59:9).

46:13 The good news for Israel was that God was coming to set things right (literally I will bring my righteousness near; see 40:9; 51:5). • Jerusalem: Hebrew Zion. • show my glory to Israel: Unlike a craftsman who bestows material splendor on an idol (44:13), the Lord bestows true dignity on his people.

47:1-48:22 Two conclusions can be drawn from the preceding evidence that the Lord alone is God: (1) Babylon's great pride is foolishness (47:1-15); (2) Israel needs to pay attention to the word of the Lord (48:1-22).

47:1-4 In this taunt against Babylon, the queen of nations is humiliated, forced to work as a servant girl.

47:1 To sit in the dust was a way of expressing humiliation. • Babylonia: or Chaldea; also in 47:5.

47:2 Expose yourself to public view: Literally Bare your legs; pass through the rivers.

47:3 God's vengeance against those who oppose him and those who oppress his people (see 34:8) will bring justice to the world by purging it of wickedness.

47:5-11 Babylon's confidence and arrogance were well known (see 14:13-17; see Dan 4:30). All of this nation's charms, magic, and wisdom were useless against the disaster decreed for it.

47:6 The people of Israel had provoked God's wrath, prompting him to use Babylon to punish them. Now wicked Babylon itself would be punished.

47:8 I am the only one, and there is no other: This was a claim to divinity (cp. 45:5; 47:10). Only the Lord can make such a claim. For any created thing, including a nation, to utter this is the height of hubris. • To be a widow or to lose one's children was a disgrace.

47:9 Witchcraft and magic were commonly used in an attempt to ward off evil and to secure a happy future.

47:10 In this context, 'wisdom' and 'knowledge' probably refer sarcastically to the pseudo-knowledge gained through occult practices, which actually led Babylon away from the truth and into disaster (47:11).

47:13 Babylon was advanced in astronomy, which the astrologers and stargazers used as a form of divination (see Dan 2:2, 10; 5:7).

God's Stubborn People: A Call to Respond

48 ¹ "Listen to me, O family of Jacob, you who are called by the name of Israel and born into the family of Judah.
Listen, you who take oaths in the name of the LORD
and call on the God of Israel.

You don't keep your promises,
² even though you call yourself the holy city
and talk about depending on the God of Israel,
whose name is the LORD of Heaven's Armies.

³ Long ago I told you what was going to happen.

Then suddenly I took action,
and all my predictions came true.

⁴ For I know how stubborn and obstinate you are.

Your necks are as unbending as iron.
Your heads are as hard as bronze.

⁵ That is why I told you what would happen;

I told you beforehand what I was going to do.

Then you could never say, 'My idols did it.
My wooden image and metal god commanded it to happen!'

⁶ You have heard my predictions and seen them fulfilled,
but you refuse to admit it.

Now I will tell you new things, secrets you have not yet heard.

⁷ They are brand new, not things from the past.

So you cannot say, 'We knew that all the time!'

⁸ "Yes, I will tell you of things that are entirely new,
things you never heard of before.
For I know so well what traitors you are.
You have been rebels from birth.

⁹ Yet for my own sake and for the honor of my name,

I will hold back my anger and not wipe you out.

¹⁰ I have refined you, but not as silver is refined.

Rather, I have refined you in the furnace of suffering.

¹¹ I will rescue you for my sake—
yes, for my own sake!

I will not let my reputation be tarnished,
and I will not share my glory with idols!

Freedom from Babylon

¹² "Listen to me, O family of Jacob,
Israel my chosen one!

I alone am God,
the First and the Last.

¹³ It was my hand that laid the foundations of the earth,
my right hand that spread out the heavens above.

When I call out the stars,
they all appear in order."

¹⁴ Have any of your idols ever told you this?
Come, all of you, and listen:

The LORD has chosen Cyrus as his ally.
He will use him to put an end to the empire of Babylon and to destroy the Babylonian armies.

¹⁵ "I have said it: I am calling Cyrus!
I will send him on this errand and will help him succeed.

48:1-22 The Lord here calls on Israel to forsake her historic rebelliousness and listen to what he says. The Hebrew word translated listening is often synonymous with obeying or acting upon what is heard.

48:1-11 This prophecy is a disputation, a speech in which the prophet argues a set of points against his audience.

48:1-2 Israel was religious but not truly committed to the Lord.

48:1 Jacob . . . Judah: Although Isaiah's normal focus was on Judah, here he addressed all the tribes of Israel.

48:3 The Lord had forewarned Israel of what was going to happen in the Exile.

48:6-7 Even though Israel had repeatedly failed to believe God's past predictions, here he revealed new things that were not yet heard. Specifically, God revealed that Babylon would fall and Israel would be restored.

48:10 The Exile was a furnace of suffering (cp. Deut 4:20) through which God refined Israel.

48:11 I will not let my reputation be tarnished: Israel's exile raised questions among the nations about the Lord's character and reputation. The nations would not have perceived that Israel's wicked character led to the Exile.

Instead they would have viewed it as a failure of Israel's God to protect his people and their land (see 36:19-20; 37:12; Ezek 36:19-26).

48:12-22 This final trial speech reviews the arguments of chs 40-48 and announces the final conclusion.

48:14 chosen Cyrus (literally him) as his ally: See 44:28; 45:1-2. • Babylonian: Or Chaldean.

48:15 I will send him and will help him succeed: Cyrus would humiliate Babylon and liberate Israel (45:1-4).

- ¹⁶ Come closer, and listen to this.
From the beginning I have told you plainly what would happen.” And now the Sovereign LORD and his Spirit
have sent me with this message.
- ¹⁷ This is what the LORD says—
your Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel: “I am the LORD your God, who teaches you what is good for you and leads you along the paths you should follow.
- ¹⁸ Oh, that you had listened to my commands!
Then you would have had peace flowing like a gentle river and righteousness rolling over you like waves in the sea.
- ¹⁹ Your descendants would have been like the sands along the seashore—too many to count!
There would have been no need for your destruction,
or for cutting off your family name.”
- ²⁰ Yet even now, be free from your captivity!
Leave Babylon and the Babylonians.
Sing out this message!
Shout it to the ends of the earth!
The LORD has redeemed his servants,
the people of Israel.

- ²¹ They were not thirsty
when he led them through the desert.
He divided the rock, and water gushed out for them to drink.
- ²² “But there is no peace for the wicked,”
says the LORD.

The Servant of the LORD (49:1–55:13)
The LORD's Servant Commissioned

- 49 ¹ Listen to me, all you in distant lands!
Pay attention, you who are far away!
The LORD called me before my birth; from within the womb he called me
by name.
- ² He made my words of judgment as sharp
as a sword.
He has hidden me in the shadow of his hand.
I am like a sharp arrow in his quiver.
- ³ He said to me, “You are my servant,
Israel,
and you will bring me glory.”
- ⁴ I replied, “But my work seems so useless!
I have spent my strength for nothing and to ^hno purpose.
Yet I leave it all in the LORD's hand;
I will trust God for my reward.”

48:16 I have told you plainly: God's promises are clear, though not always specific as to manner and time. • now the Sovereign LORD and his Spirit have sent me with this message: The identity of the one who is sent is unclear. Isaiah might be referring to himself as a Spirit-inspired prophet who spoke the very words of God to Israel. The connection with the Spirit suggests that it refers to the promised servant, the Messiah. • The presence of the Spirit assures the servant's success.

48:18 Peace and righteousness will be established when the kingdom of God comes in its fullness (see 66:12). • like a gentle river . . . like waves: An abundance of comforting peace and overflowing resources of righteousness (cp. Amos 5:24) could have been Israel's if its people had only listened to God.

48:19 Your descendants . . . like the sands: This would fulfill God's covenant to Abraham (Gen 22:17); by contrast, the Israelites were nearly wiped out in the Exile (see 44:26).

48:20 Leave Babylon: See also 52:11-12; 55:12. • the Babylonians: Or the Chaldeans. • the people of Israel: Literally his servant, Jacob. See note on 14:1.

48:21 not thirsty . . . rock . . . water

gushed: These reminders of God's provision in the Exodus provide a fitting summary of what he would do to rescue Israel from captivity in Babylon (see Num 20:11).

48:22 This refrain, no peace for the wicked (also 57:21), continues the sharp divide between the godly and the wicked (see 66:24). Peace speaks of God's kingdom, from which the wicked are excluded.

49:1–55:13 God intended to rescue the Israelites from exile. However, the question remained: How could sinful Israel again become the servant of the Holy One? God would make a way for Israel's sin to be atoned and for their fellowship with him to be restored. That way would be the promised servant, who would come for Israel and for all peoples. This servant was introduced in 42:1-9, but in this passage he becomes the central focus.

49:1-13 This has traditionally been regarded as the second of four suffering servant songs (see note on 42:1-4). The suffering role of the promised servant becomes increasingly clear (see also 50:4-9; 52:13–53:12).

49:1 distant lands: The servant's ministry would extend beyond Israel (see 42:4, 10, 12; 51:5; 60:9; 66:19). • called me before my birth . . . from within the womb . . . by name: The promised servant's prophetic call was similar to the call of Jeremiah (see Jer 1:5; see also Gal 1:15). It was not a general call but a very specific, personal one (see also 43:1; 45:3-4).

49:2 my words of judgment: The servant's mission would be prophetic (see 11:4; Eph 6:17; Heb 4:12; Rev 1:16; 2:12, 16; 19:15).

49:3 The suffering servant would come out of Israel (see 41:8) and would himself be the true Israel. He would serve as both king (42:1) and prophet (49:1), anointed with the Spirit of God (61:1) and commissioned (48:16) as a faithful witness to God's purposes (43:12; 48:20). In his mission toward both Israel and the other nations (49:6), he would suffer rejection and disgrace while being faithful, unlike the nation of Israel (see 50:4-9). His suffering would be on behalf of God's chosen people. Jesus became the ultimate fulfillment of the suffering servant (see note on 52:13–53:12).

49:4 my work seems so useless . . . to no purpose: Even though people stubbornly refuse his message, the servant would reach out to them. • I will trust

⁷ The LORD, the Redeemer

Promises of Israel's Restoration

⁸This is what the LORD says:

"At just the right time, I will respond to
you.

On the day of salvation I will help
you.

I will protect you and give you to the people
as my covenant with them.

Through you I will reestablish the land

Isaiah deals with the theme of God's servant in chs 40–66. The servant proclaims the new order of justice and righteousness to the world (42:3–4). He serves as God's instrument to prepare the world for God's coming (52:7).

Who is the Lord's servant? Isaiah identifies the servant with Israel (41:8; 44:1–2), who serves as God's witness (43:10) and as a light to the Gentiles. Yet Israel could not fulfill this mission: Israel was deaf, blind (42:19), and in need of God's forgiveness (44:21–22). Israel failed again and again. By contrast, God's servant faithfully witnesses, proclaims, and waits for the coming redemption (61:1–3; 62:1–5). He represents the godly in Israel. Isaiah portrays him as an obedient individual who suffers. The servant is God's faithful witness to humanity and stands in opposition to the idolatrous practices of paganism.

One Israelite in particular was perfectly faithful and suffered on behalf of others: Jesus Christ fulfilled the role of the righteous servant. By his suffering, God's benefits came to many, including other nations (see Acts 26:23). In union and fellowship with him, the apostles ministered as servants of Jesus Christ to both Jews and Gentiles (Acts 13:47; 26:17).

Though Israel first received the message of the servant, this message is still relevant for all who have faith in Jesus Christ. They share in the mission of the servant and fulfill the role of God's servants in the world (e.g., Rom 14:4; Col 1:7; 4:12; 1 Tim 4:6; 2 Tim 2:24).

God: Despite discouragement and suffering, the servant would continue to discharge his duty faithfully, trusting God for the outcome. God promised to reward the servant's faithfulness (see also 40:10; 50:8).

49:6 a light to the Gentiles: As the Messiah, the servant's mission would have a worldwide reach (see 11:10, 12; 42:6). The apostle Paul explained his apostolic mission to the Gentiles on the basis of this prophecy (Acts 13:47; 26:23).

49:7 The promised servant would be despised and rejected by the nations (see 52:14–53:5) as well as by his own people (see also 50:6–7; 53:8–9). • Kings and princes will bow low to express respect and humility before the servant (see also 52:15), whom God will exalt after he has suffered. God is faithful to his servant.

49:8 God acts at just the right time to accomplish his purposes (Acts 1:7; 2 Cor 6:2). Israel returned to reestablish the land of Israel after the Exile. The land was restored and the city rebuilt beginning with Cyrus's edict (44:26–28). • I will respond to you: Greek version reads I heard you. Cp. 2 Cor 6:2.

49:10–11 Like a shepherd, the Lord in his mercy will lead the returning exiles beside cool waters; he promised to comfort them and tend to their needs (see also 40:11; Ps 23:1). • level paths . . . highways: The Lord would open up the way of salvation.

¹² See, my people will return from far away, from lands to the north and west,
and from as far south as Egypt."

¹³ Sing for joy, O heavens!
Rejoice, O earth!
Burst into song, O mountains!
For the LORD has comforted his people and will have compassion on them in their suffering.

¹⁴ Yet Jerusalem says, "The LORD has deserted us;
the Lord has forgotten us."

¹⁵ "Never! Can a mother forget her nursing child?
Can she feel no love for the child she has borne?
But even if that were possible,
I would not forget you!

¹⁶ See, I have written your name on the palms of my hands.
Always in my mind is a picture of Jerusalem's walls in ruins.

¹⁷ Soon your descendants will come back, and all who are trying to destroy you will go away.

¹⁸ Look around you and see, for all your children will come back to you.
As surely as I live," says the LORD,
"they will be like jewels or bridal ornaments for you to display.

¹⁹ "Even the most desolate parts of your abandoned land will soon be crowded with your people.
Your enemies who enslaved you will be far away.

²⁰ The generations born in exile will return and say,

"We need more room! It's crowded here!"

²¹ Then you will think to yourself,
"Who has given me all these descendants?"

For most of my children were killed, and the rest were carried away into exile.

I was left here all alone.
Where did all these people come from?
Who bore these children?
Who raised them for me?" "

²² This is what the Sovereign LORD says:
"See, I will give a signal to the godless
nations.

They will carry your little sons back to you in their arms;
they will bring your daughters on their shoulders.

²³ Kings and queens will serve you and care for all your needs.
They will bow to the earth before you and lick the dust from your feet.
Then you will know that I am the LORD.
Those who trust in me will never be put to shame."

²⁴ Who can snatch the plunder of war from the hands of a warrior?
Who can demand that a tyrant let his captives go?

²⁵ But the LORD says,
"The captives of warriors will be released, and the plunder of tyrants will be retrieved.

For I will fight those who fight you, and I will save your children.

²⁶ I will feed your enemies with their own flesh.

They will be drunk with rivers of their own blood.

49:13 This hymn of praise is in response to the salvation that the servant would make possible. • comforted his people: See note on 40:1-31.

49:14 Although the prophet announced cause for rejoicing (49:8-13), the exiles continued to ponder the calamity that came upon them when Babylon invaded the land, destroyed Jerusalem (Hebrew Zion), and carried the people of Judah into exile where they felt deserted and forgotten.

49:18 like jewels or bridal ornaments:

As a wedding calls for festivity and public display, so God's restoration of Israel would be an open act for all to see (see also 61:10).

49:19-21 The population explosion would reach beyond Israel to include the members of foreign nations who turn to the Lord (see 56:6-8; Rev 7:9). • more room: The expanded population would require space far beyond the traditional boundaries of the land of Israel (see also Zech 2:4).

49:22 carry your little sons . . . your daughters: The mighty rulers of the nations, some of whom had previously killed children in Israel, would aid in their return to Zion (see also 60:3-9). Elsewhere Isaiah envisioned people of foreign nations streaming to Zion to worship the Lord (see 2:2-4).

49:23 you will know that I am the LORD:

The stunning role-reversal—kings and queens serving the lowly exiles upon their return—would reveal God's power to do the unimaginable (see also 60:16).

• The godly would experience temporary disgrace in the Exile but would not ultimately be put to shame, as the idolaters and ungodly were.

49:24 Who can snatch . . . Who can demand: The people considered it nearly impossible that they would be rescued from their oppressors. • a tyrant: As in Dead Sea Scrolls, Syriac version, and Latin Vulgate (also see 49:25); Masoretic Text reads a righteous person.

49:25 The Lord is like a warrior who will fight to protect his children, as promised to Abraham (Gen 12:3; see also 54:15).

Did I sell you as slaves to my creditors?
No, you were sold because of your sins.
And your mother, too, was taken because of your sins.

The Lord's Faithful Servant

⁴ The Sovereign LORD has given me his words of wisdom, so that I know how to comfort the weary.
Morning by morning he awakens me and opens my understanding to his will.

⁵ The Sovereign LORD has spoken to me, and I have listened.
I have not rebelled or turned away.
⁶ I offered my back to those who beat me and my cheeks to those who pulled out my beard.
I did not hide my face
from mockery and spitting.
⁷ Because the Sovereign LORD helps me,
I will not be disgraced.
Therefore, I have set my face like a stone, determined to do his will.
And I know that I will not be put to shame.
⁸ He who gives me justice is near.
Who will dare to bring charges against me now?
Where are my accusers?
Let them appear!
⁹ See, the Sovereign LORD is on my side!
Who will declare me guilty?
All my enemies will be destroyed like old clothes that have been eaten by moths!
¹⁰ Who among you fears the LORD and obeys his servant?
If you are walking in darkness,
without a ray of light, trust in the LORD
and rely on your God.
¹¹ But watch out, you who live in your own light
and warm yourselves by your own fires.

50:1-3 This disputation shows that God was not forced to give Israel up, and therefore he could take the nation back as his people if he desired.

50:1 God was not at fault for the people's problems; it was their sin that brought about their exile (see also 59:1-15).

• Jerusalem—the mother city of Judah (Ps 87:5-6)—was destroyed, and the people of Judah were taken into exile in 586 BC.

50:2 Why didn't anyone answer: The people had not responded to God's repeated call to trust in him and repent of their sins. They were deaf and stubborn (see 6:9-10; 29:18; 35:5; 42:18-19). • The Lord came and called the people through the prophets (see also 65:1-3).

• Is it because I have no power to rescue? God was fully able to rescue Israel and Judah from the Assyrians and Babylonians, but he first had to deal justly with his people's sinfulness (see 59:1). • Speak to the sea and make it dry: This was an allusion to the parting of the Red Sea during the exodus from Egypt (Exod 14:21-22).

50:3 Phenomena such as darkness and clothes of mourning were associated with the day of the Lord (13:10; see note on 2:5-22). The mention of darkness might allude to the plague of darkness in Egypt (Exod 10:21).

50:4-11 This is the third of four servant songs (see note on 42:1-4). The faithful and suffering servant portrays an ideal Israel; the image was realized in Jesus Christ.

50:4 The Lord, who never grows weary (40:28), sends the servant with good news (see 40:28-31) to comfort those who are weary (see note on 40:1-31).

50:6 beat me . . . pulled out my beard . . . mockery and spitting: These connections with the experience of Jesus at his crucifixion are too close to be coincidental—Jesus is the true suffering servant (see Matt 27:27-31).

50:7 Externally, the servant would be disgraced and put to shame, but within himself he would calmly await God's vindication (see 29:22; 54:4; 61:7). • set my face like a stone: The servant would be determined to do God's will (see Luke 9:51).

50:8 He who gives me justice is near: God vindicates those who suffer for doing his will (see note on 49:4). Vindication is an act of God by which he exalts those who have been wrongly disgraced and strikes down the wicked, self-exalted, and arrogant (see also 2 Thes 1:6-9). • bring charges . . . my accusers: Confidence in God's vindication removes fear and bolsters faith (see Rom 8:31-34).

50:9 Who will declare me guilty? The implied answer to this rhetorical question is, "No one!" This answer foreshadows the NT understanding of justification (see Rom 8:31-35).

50:10-11 This is a call for response to the servant's ministry.

50:10 The test of whether or not an individual fears the LORD is how he or she responds to God's righteous servant. The same idea is present in Jesus' claim that no one can come to the Father except through him (John 14:6). • Those who trust in the LORD have great hope for the future (see 12:2).

50:11 warm yourselves by your own fires: Spiritually complacent people are

This is the reward you will receive from me:
You will soon fall down in great torment.

A Call to Trust the LORD

51 ¹ "Listen to me, all who hope for deliverance—
all who seek the LORD!
Consider the ^arock from which you were cut,
the quarry from which you were mined.
² Yes, think about Abraham, your ancestor, and Sarah, who gave birth to your nation.
Abraham was only one man when I called him.
But when I blessed him, he became a great nation."

³ The LORD will comfort Israel again and have pity on her ruins.
Her desert will blossom like Eden, her barren wilderness like the garden
of the LORD.
Joy and gladness will be found there.
Songs of thanksgiving will fill the air.

⁴ "Listen to me, my people.
Hear me, Israel,
for my law will be proclaimed, and my ^bjustice will become a light to the nations.

⁵ My mercy and justice are coming soon.
My salvation is on the way.
My strong arm will bring justice to the nations.
All distant lands will look to me and ^cwait in hope for my powerful arm.

⁶ Look up to the ^dskies above, and gaze down on the earth below.
For the ^dskies will disappear like smoke, and the earth will wear out like a piece of clothing.

The people of the earth will die like flies,
but my salvation lasts forever.
My righteous rule will never end!

⁷ "Listen to me, you who know right from wrong,
you who cherish my law in your hearts.

Do not be afraid of people's scorn,
nor fear their insults.

⁸ For the moth will devour them as it devours clothing.
The worm will eat at them as it eats wool.

But my righteousness will last forever.
My ^esalvation will continue from generation to generation."

⁹ Wake up, wake up, O LORD! Clothe yourself with strength!
Flex your mighty right arm!
Rouse yourself as in the days of old when you slew ^fEgypt, the dragon of the Nile.

¹⁰ Are you not the same today,
the one who dried up the sea, making a path of escape through the depths
so that your people could cross over?

¹¹ Those who have been ransomed by the LORD will return.
They will enter Jerusalem singing, crowned with ^geverlasting joy.
Sorrow and mourning will disappear, and they will be filled with joy and gladness.

unresponsive toward God. Though they have comfort and security now, they will soon fall down in great torment (see 66:24).

51:1-8 This prophecy calls for trust in the Lord. Each of its three units begins with the phrase, Listen to me (51:1, 4, 7).

51:1 The rock and the quarry represent Abraham and Sarah (51:2).

51:2 Abraham . . . became a great nation: The exiled community had decreased in number. They needed to have faith that God could restore them again to a healthy and thriving population.

51:3 comfort Israel: Hebrew Zion; also in 51:16; see note on 40:1. • *Eden . . .
the garden of the Lord*: God's salvation will one day reestablish conditions like those in which human beings first lived (see Gen 2-3).

51:4 my law . . . my justice: The work of the servant will prosper because justice will be the rule in God's kingdom on earth (see 42:1-4). • a light to the nations: The nations will receive the Lord and his revelation (see also 42:6; 49:6; 60:1-3; 66:19-23; Matt 4:15-16; Luke
2:32; John 1:4-9; 12:35-50; Acts 13:47).

51:5 God is strong enough to crush his enemies and rescue his people, such as when he rescued Israel in the Exodus (see 51:9; Exod 6:6; 15:16).

51:6 die like flies: The wicked will die in great multitudes on the day of God's judgment.

51:7 cherish my law in your hearts:
Beyond simply knowing God's word, the Lord desires for his people to internalize, treasure, and obey it (see also Ps 37:31; Jer 31:33). • Those who obey the Lord often endure scorn and insults (see also Matt 5:10-12).

51:9-10 Wake up, wake up: God does not sleep; this prayer is for God to act immediately to save his people (see 52:1; see especially God's military garb in 59:17). • in the days of old: The exodus from Egypt was an act of redemption that displayed God's power as he made a path of escape (51:10) for his people (see also 11:15). • you slew Egypt, the dragon of the Nile: Literally you slew Rahab; you pierced the dragon. Rahab is the name of a mythical sea monster that represents chaos in ancient literature. It is used here as a poetic name for Egypt; also see note on 30:7.

So why are you afraid of mere humans,

13 Yet you have forgotten the LORD, your Creator,
the one who stretched out the sky like a canopy
and laid the foundations of the earth.
Will you remain in constant dread of human oppressors?
Will you continue to fear the anger of your enemies?

Where is their fury and anger now?
It is gone!

14 Soon all you captives will be released!
Imprisonment, starvation, and death will not be your fate!

15 For I am the LORD your God, who stirs up the sea, causing its waves to roar.

My name is the LORD of Heaven's Armies.

16 And I have put my words in your mouth and hidden you safely in my hand.
I stretched out the sky like a canopy
and laid the foundations of the earth.
I am the one who says to Israel,
"You are my people!" "

17 Wake up, wake up, O Jerusalem!
You have drunk the cup of the LORD's fury.

You have drunk the cup of terror, tipping out its last drops.

18 Not one of your children is left alive to take your hand and guide you.

19 These two calamities have fallen on you:
desolation and destruction, famine and war.

And who is left to sympathize with you?
Who is left to comfort you?

20 For your children have fainted and lie in the streets,
helpless as antelopes caught in a net.
The LORD has poured out his fury;
God has rebuked them.

21 But now listen to this, you afflicted ones who sit in a drunken stupor, though not from drinking wine.

22 This is what the Sovereign LORD, your God and Defender, says:
"See, I have taken the terrible cup from your hands.

You will drink no more of my fury.

23 Instead, I will hand that cup to your tormentors,
those who said, 'We will trample you into the dust
and walk on your backs.' "

Rescue for Jerusalem

52 ¹ Wake up, wake up, O Zion!
Clothe yourself with strength.
Put on your beautiful clothes, O holy city of Jerusalem, for unclean and godless people will enter your gates no longer.

² Rise from the dust, O Jerusalem.
Sit in a place of honor.
Remove the chains of slavery from your neck,
O captive daughter of Zion.

³ For this is what the LORD says:
"When I sold you into exile,
I received no payment.
Now I can redeem you without having to pay for you."

51:13 you have forgotten the LORD: The Lord will never forget Israel (see 44:21; 49:15), so they should not forget him.
• The Creator of the world also created the nation Israel (see note on 40:28).

51:14 The Exile brought such brutal conditions as imprisonment, starvation, and death.

51:15 I am the LORD: The Lord uses this formula to identify himself as the covenant God and to assure his people of the truth of his word and the reliability of his actions (see 27:3-4; see 51:16).

51:16 my words in your mouth: The focus shifted back to the servant.
• stretched out: As in Syriac version (see also 51:13); Hebrew reads planted. • to Israel: Hebrew to Zion (see note on 1:8).
• You are my people: Israel was the covenant community.

51:17-23 The prophet called the people of Israel to be done with their past and to anticipate God's future for them.

51:17 Wake up, wake up: Israel used these words in a prayer to the Lord (51:9). Israel's problems were not the result of God's slowness to act; rather the people were slow to believe God's promises. • the cup of the LORD's fury: The Lord will appropriately measure out his judgment; those who fall under his judgment must figuratively drink from his wrath (see also Matt 26:39).

51:19 Who is left to comfort you? As in Dead Sea Scrolls and Greek, Latin, and Syriac versions; Masoretic Text reads How can I comfort you?

51:20 children have fainted: A sad commentary on Jerusalem's desolation is provided in Lam 1:13, 22; 2:11-12, 19.

51:22 God would be the Defender of Israel as he was when Assyria besieged Jerusalem (38:6).

51:23 The tormentors were the Babylonians who brought about destruction, war, and famine (51:19).

52:1 This second call to wake up (see 51:17) was in preparation for a glorious future. • holy city: The new city would be holy because its citizens would be holy (see 4:3). • enter your gates no longer: Things that are unclean will not be permitted to enter the holy city (see Rev 21:27 and note).

52:3 I sold you into exile . . . Now I can redeem you: The Lord was fully in control when he gave his people into the hands of their enemies. Likewise, he remained fully in control and could redeem them if he chose to do so.

⁴This is what the Sovereign LORD says: "Long ago my people chose to live in Egypt. Now they are oppressed by Assyria. ⁵What is this?" asks the LORD. "Why are my people enslaved again? Those who rule them shout in exultation. My name is blasphemed all day long. ⁶But I will reveal my name to my people, and they will come to know its power. Then at last they will recognize that I am the one who speaks to them."

⁷ How beautiful on the mountains are the feet of the messenger who brings good news,
the good news of peace and salvation,
the news that the God of Israel reigns!

⁸ The watchmen shout and sing with joy, for before their very eyes they see the LORD returning to Jerusalem.

⁹ Let the ruins of Jerusalem break into joyful song,
for the LORD has comforted his people.
He has redeemed Jerusalem.

¹⁰ The LORD has demonstrated his holy power
before the eyes of all the nations.
All the ends of the earth will see the victory of our God.

¹¹ Get out! Get out and leave your captivity,
where everything you touch is unclean.

Get out of there and purify yourselves, you who carry home the sacred objects of the LORD.

¹² You will not leave in a hurry, running for your lives.

For the LORD will go ahead of you;
yes, the God of Israel will protect you from behind.

The Lord's Suffering Servant

¹³ See, my servant will prosper;
he will be highly exalted.

¹⁴ But many were amazed when they saw
him.

His face was so disfigured he seemed hardly human, and from his appearance, one would scarcely know he was a man.

¹⁵ And he will startle many nations.
Kings will stand speechless in his presence.

For they will see what they had not been told;
they will understand what they had not heard about.

52:4 in Egypt . . . oppressed by Assyria: The exodus from exile would be like Israel's past exodus from Egypt.

52:5 Those who rule them shout in exultation (as in Dead Sea Scrolls; Masoretic Text reads Those who rule them wail): The oppressors would shout because they believed they had conquered not only Israel but also its God. • My name is blasphemed all day long (Greek version reads The Gentiles continually blaspheme my name because of you; cp. Rom 2:24): The condition of God's people affects God's reputation in the eyes of the watching world (see 37:6, 23; 48:11).

52:6 Just as God did to Moses before the Exodus (Exod 3:15), he will reveal himself in the coming rescue from exile.

52:7-12 This is a poetic description of God's promise to rescue his people from the alienation their sin created. Paul applies these words to the proclamation of the Good News of the Lord Jesus (Rom 10:15).

52:7 How beautiful on the mountains: See Nah 1:15; Rom 10:15. • The good news goes beyond proclaiming an end to the Exile; it also points to the peace and salvation of the age to come (Isa 4:13-14; see 40:9-10; 41:27). • of Israel: Hebrew of Zion; (see note on 1:8).

52:8 The watchmen were those looking for the news of Zion's redemption. • the LORD returning to Jerusalem (Hebrew Zion): The sin of the city's inhabitants had driven God away.

52:10 victory of our God: The rescue of God's people from disgrace foreshadows an even greater victory when God will reign victoriously to the ends of the earth (cp. Ps 98:1-3).

52:11-12 This is an exhortation to leave the captivity of sin (see 48:20 on leaving physical captivity in Babylon). See also 2 Cor 6:17; 2 Tim 2:19.

52:11 Here the imagery of leaving the unclean enemy city encourages the people to purify themselves by turning away from all known sin. Those who carry home the sacred objects of the LORD need to be pure.

52:12 not leave in a hurry: At the time of the Exodus the people had to leave quickly (see Exod 12:11, 31-36). Isaiah drew this contrast to emphasize the newness of God's plan. • protect you from behind: See Exod 13:21; 14:19-20.

52:13-53:12 This is the fourth of four passages that speak about the promised servant (see note on 42:1-4). The Hebrew poem is carefully constructed in five three-line stanzas. It begins with the servant's exaltation (52:13), proceeds to the humiliation (52:14-53:9), and ends with his exaltation (53:10-12). The faithful servant's suffering would bring reconciliation between God and humans. The Lord Jesus perfectly fulfilled this prophecy (see ch 40; Matt 8:17; Acts 8:30-35; Rom 10:15-17; 15:21; 1 Pet 2:24-25).

52:13 prosper . . . be highly exalted: The servant would be wise and successful, set apart with the great and noble. Similar terms describe God in 6:1 and 57:15.

52:14-15 Despite the servant's greatness, the actual way he would appear on earth would shock people.

52:14 were amazed: No one expected that the rescuer would suffer and die. • him: As in Syriac version; Hebrew reads you.

52:15 Startle (or cleanse) many nations: They would be amazed that a rescuer would appear so weak and helpless and would stand speechless. • What they will see and what they will understand will be in complete contrast to anything they had previously imagined. • For they will see what they had not been told; they will understand what they had not heard about: Greek version reads Those who have never been told about him will see, / and those who have never heard of him will understand. 53 ¹ Who has ^hbelieved our message?
 To whom has the LORD revealed his powerful arm?

² My servant grew up in the LORD's presence like a tender green shoot, like a root in dry ground.

There was nothing beautiful or majestic about his appearance, nothing to attract us to him.

³ He was despised and rejected—a man of sorrows, acquainted with deepest grief.

We turned our backs on him and looked the other way.

He was despised, and we did not care.

⁴ Yet it was our weaknesses he carried;
 it was our sorrows that weighed him
 down.

And we thought his troubles were a punishment from God,

 a punishment for his own sins!

⁵ But he was pierced for our rebellion, crushed for our sins.

He was beaten so we could be whole.
 He was whipped so we could be healed.

⁶ All of us, like sheep, have strayed away.
 We have left God's paths to follow our own.

Yet the LORD laid on him
 the sins of us all.

⁷ He was oppressed and treated harshly, yet he never said a word.

He was led like a lamb to the slaughter.
 And as a sheep is silent before the shearers,
 he did not open his mouth.

⁸ Unjustly condemned,
 he was led away.

The Second Exodus (52:11-12)

Exodus stands as a prominent theme in Isaiah. Israel's return from exile would, like the exodus from Egypt, restore the people of Israel to the land. Just as they had left Egypt many years before, the people of Israel would leave Babylon (48:20-21). This time they would have to be cleansed (52:11) and would not rush their departure (52:12).

The second exodus would be "new" (43:19), not merely a duplication of the first Exodus. Both the experience in exile and the journey are likened to a desert (see 35:1) from which the Lord would bring rescue. He prepares a road through the desert (43:19), transforms the desert into a watering hole with vegetation and animals (43:18-20), removes obstacles along the way (42:16; 49:11), guides his people through the desert (42:16; 58:11; 63:13), feeds them (49:10), protects them from the desert heat (49:10), and strengthens them (58:11). He changes the experience of the exiles from sorrow to great joy (51:3) and pours out his Spirit on them (44:3-4).

An "exodus" continues today—an exodus from sin and death through Christ's death and the power of his resurrection. The Holy Spirit enables us to live in newness of life and to serve God with joy as we await the coming of his kingdom in all its fullness.

53:1 our message: The identity of the speaker has been debated—the main possibilities are (1) a faithful remnant of Israel, and (2) Isaiah himself. Most likely, Isaiah the prophet was speaking for and with Israel. • powerful arm: God's strength, so dramatically described in the previous chapters (see 50:2; 51:5, 9; 52:10), would actually manifest itself in weakness and apparent helplessness through the servant's humiliation and exaltation (see 1 Cor 1:27-30). • This verse is quoted in John 12:38 and Rom 10:16.

53:2 a tender green shoot . . . in dry ground: Such a plant is vulnerable to extinction (cp. 37:27). It can hardly stay alive for itself, let alone provide anything for anyone else. • nothing beautiful or majestic: The servant appeared to have no greatness or self-evident royal splendor (see 52:13-15). • nothing to attract us to him: People like their leaders to be physically attractive and personally charismatic. The servant would be neither.

53:3 a man of sorrows, acquainted with deepest grief (or a man of pains, acquainted with illness): The servant would fully experience the effects of sin and the Fall. • we did not care: Because people would fail to see how such a weak, insignificant person could do anything beneficial for them, they would be unconcerned about his suffering.

53:4 Yet it was our weaknesses he carried; it was our sorrows: These phrases can also be rendered Yet it was our sicknesses he carried; / it was our diseases (cp. Matt 8:17). The callous world would assume that the servant somehow brought his suffering on himself, never realizing that he was suffering for them. • troubles . . . punishment: These descriptions of the servant's humiliation contrast with the descriptions of his exaltation (see note on 52:13).

53:5 he was pierced: See also Zech 12:10. • crushed . . . beaten . . .

whipped: These were typically punishments for crimes. Sin is a crime against God. • be whole: Hebrew shalom, usually translated "peace." Shalom means to experience wholeness in body, in mind, and in relationships with others. The servant would be injured so that humanity can be whole and healthy in all aspects of life (see also 57:18). We do not need to suffer divine condemnation for our sins because the servant has already done so (see Gal 1:4).

53:6 strayed away . . . left God's paths: These are metaphors for sin (see also Rom 3:10-18).

53:7-8 The Ethiopian eunuch was reading this passage when Philip met him (Acts 8:32-33).

53:7 See 1 Pet 2:21-25 for the fulfillment of this prophecy in Jesus Christ.

53:8 Unjustly condemned, he was led away: Greek version reads He was humiliated and received no justice.

No one cared that he died without descendants,
that his life was cut short in midstream.

But he was struck down for the rebellion of my people.

⁹ He had done no wrong and had never deceived anyone.
But he was buried like a criminal;
he was put in a rich man's grave.

¹⁰ But it was the LORD's good plan to crush
him
and cause him grief.

Yet when his life is made an offering for sin,
he will have many¹ descendants.
He will enjoy a long life, and the LORD's good plan will prosper in his hands.

¹¹ When he sees all that is accomplished by his anguish,
he will be satisfied.
And because of his experience, my righteous² servant will make it possible

for many to be counted righteous, for he will bear all their sins.

¹² I will give him the honors of a victorious soldier,
because he exposed himself to death.

He was counted among the rebels.
He bore the sins of many and interceded for rebels.

Future Glory for Jerusalem

54 ¹ "Sing, O childless woman, you who have never given birth!

Break into loud and joyful song,
O Jerusalem,
you who have never been in labor.

For the desolate woman now has more children
than the woman who lives with her husband,"
says the LORD.

² "Enlarge your house; build an addition.
Spread out your home, and spare no expense!

³ For you will soon be bursting at the seams.
Your descendants will occupy other nations
and resettle the ruined cities.

⁴ "Fear not; you will no longer live in shame.
Don't be afraid; there is no more disgrace for you.

You will no longer remember the shame of your youth and the sorrows of widowhood.

Acts 8:33. • cut short in midstream: To die in midlife was understood to be God's judgment.

53:9 no wrong . . . never deceived anyone: See 1 Pet 2:21-25. • in a rich man's grave: Literally he was with the rich in his death (see Matt 27:57-61). Although the Bible often considers riches as a blessing from God, it regularly condemns the rich as crooked and oppressive. The point here might be ironic: This good man would be buried with oppressors.

53:10-12 The final stanza of the poem first explains why the servant suffered and was treated unjustly in the place of others; it then explains what the result of that obedience would be.

53:10 The servant's grief would accomplish a greater good; the forgiveness and reconciliation of sinful humanity. Note also God's good plan to prosper and exalt the servant. • when his life is made an offering for sin: The suffering of the servant provided a substitute for others, just as the animal sacrifices in the Temple did. • Having many descendants and enjoying a long life are rewards for godly and wise living (see Prov 3:2; 17:6; 20:7). Because the servant left his fate in his God's hands, he would receive eternal rewards from the God who vindicates the righteous (see Phil 2:9-11).

53:11 his experience (literally his knowledge): This clearly does not refer to intellectual knowledge but to all that the servant would experience in his obedience, suffering, and intimate relationship with God. • The servant's righteous obedience enables people to be put right with God (see Gen 15:6; Rom 5:18-19), for he will bear all their sins.

53:12 the honors: See Phil 2:9-11. • He was counted among the rebels: Rebels (Hebrew poshe'im) is a stronger word than sinner and is a key word in Isaiah. It refers to those who are in willful defiance of a lawful authority, in this case, God. This phrase is quoted in Luke 22:37; see also note on Mark 15:27.

• interceded for rebels: The servant would pray for sinners in the midst of his suffering (see Exod 32:30; Luke 23:34).

54:1-55:13 This is an invitation to participate in the restoration to God's favor made possible through the ministry of the promised servant.

54:1-17 Salvation flows from the vindication of the suffering servant. The promises mentioned here go beyond the return from Babylonian exile and apply to the coming of Jesus Christ, the extension of the kingdom to the church, the benefits of the second coming of Jesus Christ as the bridegroom of the church, and the new Jerusalem.

54:1-3 The prophet encourages Jerusalem, likened to a barren woman, to rejoice because its fate was rapidly changing. She would have so many children that she would outgrow her home (see Gal 4:27).

54:1 In the ancient world, a woman who had never given birth after being married for a time would be ashamed. Isaiah compares Jerusalem to a barren woman who rejoices at the long-awaited blessing of children (see Gal 4:27).

54:3 Israel's descendants (cp. 53:10) would occupy other nations in fulfillment of God's promise to Abraham (Gen 22:17) and to Jacob (Gen 28:14). • As desolation took place (6:11; 14:21), the people of God would inherit the earth and resettle the ruined cities (51:6; 52:10; 65:17; see also Matt 5:5; Rom 4:13).

the God of all the earth.

6 For the LORD has called you back from your grief—
as though you were a young wife says your God.

7 "For a brief moment I abandoned you, but with great compassion I will take you back.

8 In a burst of anger I turned my face away for a little while.

But with everlasting love I will have ^bcompassion on you," says the LORD, your Redeemer.

9 "Just as I swore in the time of Noah that I would never again let a flood cover the earth,
so now I swear that I will never again be angry and punish you.

10 For the mountains may move and the hills disappear, but even then my faithful love for you

My covenant of blessing will never be broken," says the LORD, who has mercy on you.

11 "O storm-battered city, troubled and desolate!
I will rebuild you with precious jewels and make your foundations from lapis lazuli.

12 I will make your towers of sparkling rubies,
your gates of shining gems,
and your walls of precious stones.

13 I will teach all your children, and they will enjoy great peace.

14 You will be secure under a government that is just and fair.
Your enemies will stay far away.

You will live in peace,
and terror will not come near.

no weapon turned against you will succeed.

You will silence every voice raised up to accuse you.
These benefits are enjoyed by the servants of the LORD;
their vindication will come from me.
I, the LORD, have spoken!

Invitation to the LORD's Salvation

55 ¹"Is anyone thirsty?
Come and drink—
even if you have no money!

54:5 Creator . . . husband: The Lord committed himself to the abandoned woman (his people in exile) as her maker (44:24; see note on 40:28) and husband (see also 62:4-5; Hos 2:19-20). • LORD of Heaven's Armies: See note on 1:9. • The Redeemer transforms misery into freedom and fulfillment (see note on 41:14).

54:7-8 The pain of separation would be brief compared to the depth of the renewal of love and compassion. • The Lord abandoned Israel in exile for a little while because of the people's sins. • everlasting love: The Lord is eternally committed to his people, making the seventy-year punishment of exile seem short indeed (see 25:1; Hos 2:1).

54:9 The Exile was similar in both drama and trauma to the flood in the time of Noah. In both instances, people sinned grievously against the Lord, but the Lord renewed his commitment to creation (after Noah's flood) and to his people (after the Exile).

54:10 God's faithful love for his people endures despite their unfaithfulness. • God's covenant of blessing was the assurance of his presence, resulting in wholeness, blessing, and protection. It replaces the shame and disgrace of the Exile (see Ezek 34:25; 37:26).

54:11-17 This is a vision of the renewed Jerusalem as a city under God's protection, a place of peace and righteousness (see 59:21-60:22). This section forms the background of John's vision of the new Jerusalem (Rev 21:10-21).

54:11 The Lord himself would rebuild the city (see Heb 11:10). • Lapis lazuli is a semi-precious stone.

54:13 I will teach: Jesus alluded to this verse in John 6:45. • They will enjoy great peace, the benefits of God's presence and protection (53:5; see 48:17-18; 54:10).

54:14 Jerusalem would again be a righteous city, secure under a government that is just and fair (see 1:26).

54:15 God gives assurance that no nation can defeat his people. The Lord has promised to protect them, just as he had promised Abraham (Gen 12:3; see 49:25).

54:17 no weapon . . . will succeed . . . accuse you . . . vindication: God will protect his people in war and in the courtroom. • These benefits are enjoyed by the servants of the LORD: Only the true children of God—people who come out of Israel and the nations—will enjoy the promised blessings of the age to come that God establishes.

55:1-13 This final chapter of the prophecies of comfort (chs 40-55) summarizes the section's prominent themes: blessing, covenant, witness, word, nations, glory, forgiveness, and joy.

55:1 thirsty . . . wine or milk: The invitation to eat and drink is similar to Wisdom's call in Prov 9:5. The image promises the slaking of thirst not only by water but also by more costly items such as wine and milk. John applied a

- ² Why spend your money on food that does not give you strength?
Why pay for food that does you no good?
Listen to me, and you will eat what is good.
You will enjoy the finest food.
- ³ "Come to me with your ears wide open.

I will make an everlasting ^ccovenant with
you.
I will give you all the unfailing love I promised to David.
- ⁴ See how I used him to display my power

I made him a leader among the nations.
- ⁵ You also will command nations you do not know,
and peoples unknown to you will come running to obey, because I, the LORD your God,
the Holy One of Israel, have made you glorious."
- ⁶ Seek the LORD while you can find him.
Call on him now while he is near.
- ⁷ Let the wicked change their ways and banish the very thought of doing wrong.
Let them ^dturn to the LORD that he may have mercy on them.
Yes, turn to our God, for he will forgive generously.

- ⁸ "My thoughts are nothing like your thoughts," says the LORD.
"And my ways are far beyond anything you could imagine.
- ⁹ For just as the ^eheavens are higher than the earth,
so my ways are higher than your ways and my thoughts higher than your thoughts.
- ¹⁰ "The rain and snow come down from the fruit.

It will accomplish all I want it to,
and it will prosper everywhere I send it.
- ¹² You will live in ^fjoy and peace.
The mountains and hills will burst into song,
and the trees of the field will clap their hands!
- ¹³ Where once there were thorns, cypress trees will grow.
Where nettles grew, myrtles will sprout up.
These events will bring great honor to the LORD's name;
they will be an everlasting sign of his power and love."

similar theme to Jesus Christ (John 4:14; 6:27, 35; 7:37; Rev 21:6; 22:17). • it's all free: Reconciliation with God is for anyone and has no cost.

55:2 Listen to me . . . eat what is good: Responding positively to God satisfies one's spiritual, social, and physical being (see 1:19; 58:13-14; Prov 4:10).

55:3 Come to me. . . . Listen . . . find life: Those who respond obediently to God's word find eternal life (see also 55:11). • an everlasting covenant . . . I promised to David: King David received a special covenant from God, a promise to preserve his kingly line (see 2 Sam 7:15-16). David's dynasty was eternally confirmed in the kingship of the Messiah, Jesus Christ (see 9:6-7; 11:1-16; Acts 2:22-36; 13:34).

55:6-9 The prophet calls for a response while the time is right.

55:6 while you can find him: When God graciously extends an invitation to salvation, people must respond (65:1; Jer 29:13-14; Hos 5:6; 10:12). Those who do not seek him at such times risk never having the opportunity again.

55:7 Let the wicked change . . . turn to the LORD: True conversion demands a change of how we live in favor of God's requirements (see 1:16-17; 30:15; 59:20). • have mercy on them: God's compassion reaches out to the needy and finds them where they are. • he will forgive generously: Forgiveness of sin is foundational to the good news of redemption (see Eph 1:7; Col 1:14; see also Ps 32:1; 86:5; 99:8; 103:2-5).

55:8-9 My thoughts are nothing like your thoughts: God's plans are marvelous (Ps 92:5; cp. Ps 94:11). God's creatures, including humans, can never fully understand the Creator's thoughts, but his revelation through his messengers gives great insight and knowledge of some of the things he will do.

55:10-11 The Creator not only sends rain and snow but also his word (Hebrew dabar). In this context, dabar means his will or plan (see 14:24; 40:8). God's written word, as an expression of God's plan, accomplishes his purposes. God is effective in whatever he does (see 14:26-27; 46:10).

55:12-13 The prophet encourages his people to forget the past, to leave Babylon, and to accept the perspective of the coming age.

55:12 Joy is found in being redeemed from bondage. • Godly people experience an inner peace not known to the wicked (48:22). • mountains and hills . . . trees of the field: Creation participates in the freedom of the children of God (44:23; 49:11, 13; see Rom 8:19-23).

55:13 Redemption is like the transformation from desert to forest (see also 35:1; 41:19; 60:13). • great honor to the LORD's name: God's glory will be more and more visible to humanity as his redemption takes effect.

The Servants of the Lord (56:1–66:24) Blessings for All Nations

56 This is what the LORD says:

¹“Be just and fair to all.

Do what is right and good,
for I am coming soon to rescue you and to display my righteousness among you.

² Blessed are all those who are careful to do this.

Blessed are ³those who honor my ‘Sabbath days of rest and keep themselves from doing wrong.

³ “Don’t let foreigners who commit themselves to the LORD say,

‘The LORD will never let me be part of his people.’

And don’t let the eunuchs say,

‘I’m a dried-up tree with no children and no future.’

⁴ For this is what the LORD says:

I will bless those eunuchs who keep my Sabbath days holy and who choose to do what pleases me and commit their lives to me.

⁵ I will give them—within the walls of my house—

a memorial and a name far greater than sons and daughters could give.

For the name I give them is an everlasting one.

It will never disappear!

⁶ “I will also bless the foreigners who commit themselves to the LORD, who serve him and love his name, who worship him and do not desecrate
the Sabbath day of rest, and who hold fast to my covenant.

⁷ I will bring them to my holy mountain of Jerusalem
and will fill them with joy in my house of prayer.

I will accept their burnt offerings and sacrifices,
because my Temple will be called a house of prayer for all nations.

⁸ For the Sovereign LORD, who brings back the outcasts of Israel, says:

I will bring others, too,
besides my people Israel.”

Judgment on Sinful Leaders

⁹ Come, wild animals of the field!
Come, wild animals of the forest!
Come and devour my people!

¹⁰ For the leaders of my people—the LORD’s watchmen, his shepherds—are blind and ignorant.

They are like silent watchdogs that give no warning when danger comes.

56:1–66:24 This last major division of the book of Isaiah brings together themes from chs 1–39 (sin, justice and righteousness, responsibility, vengeance and vindication) and chs 40–55 (salvation, the age to come).

56:1-8 This section summarizes chs 1–55 with an invitation to the outcasts to participate in God’s redemption.

56:1 Be just and fair: A key aspect of the message of chs 1–39 is the call for justice in relationship with others and God. True godliness comes only through having character that is shaped by the character of God, which only happens by understanding and consistently applying God’s word. • I am coming soon: This statement summarizes the message of chs 40–55, that the Lord is creating a world of harmony, peace, restoration, vindication, and the removal of enemies (46:13).

56:2 Blessed: Cp. 30:18; 32:20; see also Ps 1:1; 119:1; Matt 5:3. • The Sabbath, as a sign of the covenant (Exod 31:13-17), is God’s gift to his people; it belongs to this age as well as to the age to come (56:4, 6; 58:13-14; see Heb 4:1-13).

56:3-7 The blessing (56:2) would extend to eunuchs and to the Gentiles.

56:3 Foreigners who commit themselves to the Lord would become full participants in the covenant community. Previously, their participation had been carefully regulated (Deut 23:3, 7-8).

• eunuch: In the past, an emasculated person was excluded from the community (Deut 23:1). Both eunuchs and foreigners had no share in Israel’s holiness and were considered marginal to God’s kingdom. In the age to come, God would bring to the center those who had previously been marginalized (cp. Matt 20:16).

56:4 The Sabbath is a sign of the covenant (Exod 31:13-17).

56:5 within the walls of my house: Those previously excluded would have a place in God’s presence. • a memorial and a name: Everlasting existence in God’s presence is better than the blessing of physical descendants.

56:6 The essential ingredient for covenant fellowship is love for God (Deut 6:5; 30:20; Matt 22:34-38). • Keeping the Sabbath is a sign of keeping the covenant itself (see Exod 31:13-17).

56:7 burnt offerings and sacrifices: God had previously rejected sinful Israel’s expressions of piety (1:11-13) but would welcome offerings from righteous Gentiles or foreigners. Nationality is worth little without true piety. • a house of prayer for all nations: The Lord would open the doors of the Temple to all nations (see 2:2-4). Jesus rebuked the people for desecrating the Temple and for preventing it from functioning as the house of prayer (Matt 21:13; Mark 11:17; Luke 18:46).

56:8 The outcasts of Israel were those dispersed among the nations as the result of the Exile (see also 11:12). • The others would be eunuchs and Gentiles (56:3-7; see also 57:19; John 10:16).

56:9–57:13 This is a reflection on the prevalence of evil among God’s people; they were greedy (56:9-12), hostile to the righteous (57:1-2), and idolatrous (57:3-13).

56:9 Wild animals are here a metaphor for the hostile nations surrounding Judah.

56:10 The leaders of Israel failed to guide and protect God’s people from the sins that led to the Exile. • sleeping and dreaming: See 29:10.

They love to lie around, sleeping and dreaming.

¹¹ Like greedy dogs, they are never satisfied.

They are ignorant shepherds, all following their own path and intent on personal gain.

¹² "Come," they say, "let's get some wine and have a party.

Let's all get drunk.

Then tomorrow we'll do it again and have an even bigger party!"

57 ¹ Good people pass away;
the godly often die before their time.

But no one seems to care or wonder why.

No one seems to understand that God is protecting them from the evil to come.

² For those who follow godly paths will rest in peace when they die.

Idolatrous Worship Condemned

³ "But you—come here, you witches'
children,
you offspring of adulterers and prostitutes!

⁴ Whom do you mock, making faces and sticking out your tongues?

You children of sinners and liars!

⁵ You worship your idols with great passion beneath the oaks and under every green tree.

You sacrifice your children down in the valleys,
among the jagged rocks in the cliffs.

⁶ Your gods are the smooth stones in the valleys.

You worship them with liquid offerings and grain offerings.
They, not I, are your inheritance.

Do you think all this makes me happy?

⁷ You have committed adultery on every high mountain.

There you have worshiped idols and have been unfaithful to me.

⁸ You have put pagan symbols on your doorposts and behind your doors.

You have left me and climbed into bed with these detestable gods.

You have committed yourselves to them.
You love to look at their naked bodies.

⁹ You have gone to Molech with olive oil and many perfumes, sending your agents far and wide,
even to the world of the dead.

¹⁰ You grew weary in your search,
but you never gave up.

Desire gave you renewed strength, and you did not grow weary.

¹¹ "Are you afraid of these idols?
Do they terrify you?

Is that why you have lied to me and forgotten me and my words?

Is it because of my long silence that you no longer fear me?

¹² Now I will expose your so-called good deeds.

None of them will help you.

¹³ Let's see if your idols can save you when you cry to them for help.

Why, a puff of wind can knock them down!

If you just breathe on them, they fall over!

56:11 ignorant shepherds: Israel's leaders did not know how to rule in a godly way (see also Ezek 34:1-6). By contrast, the Lord is the faithful Shepherd of his people (40:11). • all following their own path: They had no concern for God or his standards of godly leadership (see also 53:6). • personal gain: Contrast 33:15.

57:1-2 This is a lament for the righteous who suffer in a wicked society.

57:1 the evil to come: Judgment that would come on the wicked nations.

• protecting them: At times, God allows the godly to die in order to protect them from harsher times to come.

57:2 The wicked would not be able to rest in peace (57:21).

57:3 witches' children . . . adulterers and prostitutes: Baal religion, which flourished in Israel before the Exile (see 1:21-23), included lewd sexual practices.

57:4 Mock . . . sticking out your tongues: The wicked oppressed the righteous by their insults (57:1-2; see also 28:9, 14).

57:5 beneath the oaks and under every green tree: Tree groves were commonly used as places of pagan worship (see 1:29-30). • sacrifice your children: The horrible practice of child sacrifice was occasionally practiced in Israel (see Ps 106:37-38).

57:6 Liquid offerings and grain offerings were believed to satisfy the basic needs of the gods and thus to earn their favor.

57:8 climbed into bed: The people of Israel had a sickening commitment to the fertility religions, which included sex as part of their rituals.

57:9 to Molech: Or to the king, depending on how the Hebrew word is vocalized. • to the world of the dead: Hebrew to Sheol.

57:11 The people were living in fear of false gods instead of fearing the Lord (see 8:12-13).

57:12 The Lord did not consider the people's so-called good deeds (literally righteousness; see 59:16) to be truly righteous.

57:13 your idols . . . fall over: See note on 40:18. • inherit the land: The Hebrew word translated land can also signify the whole earth (see Ps 25:13; 37:9, 11, 22, 29, 34; Matt 5:5). • my holy mountain: God's servants will enjoy God's presence in Zion (see 2:2; 56:7).

God Forgives the Repentant

- 14 God says, "Rebuild the road!
Clear away the rocks and stones so my people can return from captivity."
15 The high and lofty one who lives in eternity,
the Holy One, says this:
"I live in the high and holy place with those whose spirits are contrite and humble.
I restore the crushed spirit of the humble and revive the courage of those with repentant hearts.
16 For I will not fight against you forever;
I will not always be angry.
If I were, all people would pass away—
all the souls I have made.
17 I was angry,
so I punished these greedy people.
I withdrew from them,
but they kept going on their own stubborn way.
18 I have seen what they do,
but I will heal them anyway!
I will lead them.
I will comfort those who mourn,
19 bringing words of praise to their lips.
May they have abundant peace, both near and far,"
says the LORD, who heals them.
20 "But those who still reject me are like the restless sea, which is never still but continually churns up mud and dirt.
21 There is no peace for the wicked," says my God.

True and False Worship

- 58 ¹ "Shout with the voice of a trumpet blast.
Shout aloud! Don't be timid.
Tell my people Israel of their sins!
² Yet they act so pious!
They come to the Temple every day and seem delighted to learn all about me.
They act like a righteous nation that would never abandon the laws of its God.
They ask me to take action on their behalf, pretending they want to be near me.
³ 'We have fasted before you!' they say.
'Why aren't you impressed?
We have been very hard on ourselves, and you don't even notice it!'
"I will tell you why!" I respond.
"It's because you are fasting to please yourselves.
Even while you fast,
you keep oppressing your workers.
⁴ What good is fasting when you keep on fighting and quarreling?
This kind of fasting will never get you anywhere with me.
⁵ You humble yourselves by going through the motions of penance, bowing your heads
like reeds bending in the wind.
You dress in burlap and cover yourselves with ashes.
Is this what you call fasting?
Do you really think this will please the
LORD?

57:14-21 The Lord here promises to be present with the humble, to heal them, and to grant them his peace. The promise extends to all the citizens of Zion, both Jews and Gentiles. The Holy One comes to the humble with an all-inclusive offer of salvation, while dealing justly with the wicked.

57:15 Even though God is the high and lofty one, he promises to dwell with the humble.

57:18 I will heal them anyway: Salvation is by God's grace (see 19:22; 30:26; 53:5).

57:19 words of praise: God's redemption should bring a response of praise from its recipients. • both near and far: Both Gentiles and Jews are included (see 56:3; John 10:16; Eph 2:17).

57:20 restless sea . . . never still: Those who live in constant opposition to God (see Ps 46:3, 6; 93:3-4) do not enjoy inner quiet because they are not at peace with God (30:15; 32:17). • churns up mud and dirt: Their activity has little productivity (see Ps 40:2).

57:21 no peace: Contrast 57:2; see also 48:22.

58:1-4 This is a charge against religious Israelites who were pleased with themselves because of their religious activities.

58:1 Israel: Literally Jacob. See note on 14:1.

58:2 they act so pious (literally they seek me): They may have been truly committed to a religious form, but they failed to truly meet God in their religious activities.

58:3 Fasting should be a time of self-deprivation in order to focus on God and pleasing him (Lev 16:29; see Zech 7:5). However, these people were only interested in pleasing themselves and continuing in their sins.

58:5 This is a satirical portrayal of the people's fasting as mere external piety without repentance and righteous acts. Ritualistic and insincere fasting is nothing but pomp. • Wearing burlap and ashes are expressions of sorrow and mourning. • please the LORD: The people erroneously believed that the Lord would bless them, if only they performed the right rituals.

- ⁶ "No, this is the kind of fasting I want:
Free those who are wrongly imprisoned;
lighten the burden of those who work for you.
Let the oppressed go free,
and remove the chains that bind people.
⁷ Share your food with the hungry, and give shelter to the homeless.
Give clothes to those who need them, and do not hide from relatives who need your help.
⁸ "Then your salvation will come like the dawn,
and your wounds will quickly heal.
Your godliness will lead you forward, and the glory of the LORD will protect you from behind.
⁹ Then when you call, the LORD will answer.
'Yes, I am here,' he will quickly reply.
"Remove the heavy yoke of oppression.
Stop pointing your finger and spreading vicious rumors!
¹⁰ Feed the hungry,
and help those in trouble.
Then your light will shine out from the darkness,
and the darkness around you will be as bright as noon.
¹¹ The LORD will guide you continually, giving you water when you are dry and restoring your strength.
You will be like a well-watered garden,
like an ever-flowing spring.
¹² Some of you will rebuild the deserted ruins of your cities.
Then you will be known as a rebuilder of walls
and a restorer of homes.

- ¹³ "Keep the Sabbath day holy.
Don't pursue your own interests on that day,
but enjoy the Sabbath and speak of it with delight as the LORD's holy day.
Honor the Sabbath in everything you do
on that day,
and don't follow your own desires or talk idly.
¹⁴ Then the LORD will be your delight.
I will give you great honor and satisfy you with the inheritance I promised to your ancestor Jacob.
I, the LORD, have spoken!"

Warnings against Sin

- 59 ¹ Listen! The LORD's arm is not too weak to save you,
nor is his ear too deaf to hear you call.
² It's your sins that have cut you off from God.
Because of your sins, he has turned away
and will not listen anymore.
³ Your hands are the hands of murderers, and your fingers are filthy with sin.
Your lips are full of lies,
and your mouth spews corruption.
⁴ No one cares about being fair and honest.
The people's lawsuits are based on lies.
They conceive evil deeds and then give birth to sin.
⁵ They hatch deadly snakes and weave spiders' webs.
Whoever eats their eggs will die;
whoever cracks them will hatch
a viper.

58:6-7 True fasting creates an awareness of injustice and oppression and prompts the practitioner to reach out to help the needy in their struggles (see 42:7; Matt 25:35-36; Jas 1:27).

58:8 your salvation (literally your light): The light of the coming age (see 42:6-7; 60:1-3) will dawn on those who turn fully to the Lord. The night of divine judgment and oppression will be over. • your wounds: The nation of Israel was wounded when they were conquered and sent into exile. • protect you from behind: See also 52:12.

58:9 the LORD will answer: Cp. 1:15; see also 19:22. • Stop . . . spreading vicious rumors: God calls for an end to acts and words that destroy relationships (see Prov 6:12-14).

58:10 your light . . . as bright as noon: God would rescue and vindicate his people (see Job 11:17; Ps 37:6).

58:12 a rebuilder of walls: Nehemiah would later fulfill this promise (see Neh 2:17).

58:13 Like the practice of fasting, the Sabbath was intended to be an expression of self-denial and worship. It consists of delighting in the Lord, trusting him to provide for one's needs while abstaining from work, and living in obedience to his will.

58:14 As people honor God through obedience, they themselves will be honored by God. • the inheritance I promised to your ancestor Jacob: The promised inheritance includes living with many descendants in the holy land and enjoying God's presence, blessing, and protection (Gen 31:3; 35:9-12).

59:1-20 The Lord alone can and will usher in his salvation. Like a warrior, he will break into the world to avenge himself on his enemies and to vindicate his holy people.

59:1-8 The people complained that the Lord could not rescue them, but the real problem was that they had not repented (59:20) and were still living in sin.

59:1 not too weak: The delay in their rescue could not be attributed to an inherent weakness in the Lord.

59:2 your sins . . . cut you off: The Israelites, like all people (Rom 3:15-17), had sinned, which resulted in alienation from God (he has turned away).

59:4 being fair and honest: Israel did not practice these qualities that are part of God's nature and that he expects from people (1:21; see 25:1).

59:5-6 The images of deadly snakes and spiders' webs represent plans designed to destroy others' lives and relationships.

6 Their webs can't be made into clothing, and nothing they do is productive.

All their activity is filled with sin,
and violence is their trademark.

7 Their feet run to do evil,
and they rush to commit murder.

They think only about sinning.
Misery and destruction always follow them.

8 They don't know where to find ^apeace or what it means to be just and good.

They have mapped out crooked roads, and no one who follows them knows a moment's ^apeace.

9 So there is no justice among us, and we know nothing about right living.

We look for light but find only darkness.

We look for bright skies but walk in gloom.

10 We grope like the blind along a wall, feeling our way like people without eyes.

Even at brightest noontime,
we stumble as though it were dark.

Among the living,
we are like the dead.

11 We growl like hungry bears;
we moan like mournful doves.

We look for justice, but it never comes.
We look for rescue, but it is far away from us.

12 For our sins are piled up before God and testify against us.

Yes, we know what sinners we are.

13 We know we have rebelled and have denied the LORD.

We have turned our backs on our God.

We know how unfair and oppressive we have been, carefully planning our deceitful lies.

14 Our courts oppose the righteous, and justice is nowhere to be found.
Truth stumbles in the streets,
and honesty has been outlawed.

15 Yes, truth is gone, and anyone who renounces evil is attacked.

The LORD looked and was displeased to find there was no justice.

16 He was amazed to see that no one intervened
to help the oppressed.

So he himself stepped in to save them with his strong arm, and his justice sustained him.

17 He put on righteousness as his body armor and placed the helmet of salvation on his head.

He clothed himself with a robe of vengeance
and wrapped himself in a cloak of divine passion.

18 He will repay his enemies for their evil
deeds.

He will pay them back even to the Salvation involves all aspects of existence. The word salvation occurs in the book of Isaiah together with righteousness to signify a harmonious order where injustice, disgrace, and mourning are absent (45:8; 51:8). Isaiah's name means Yahweh is salvation (see note on 8:18). He calls on people to turn away from their many false saviors to the only true Savior and protector.

The good news in Isaiah is that the Lord is coming to restore his people (40:10). Babylon will fall, and the anguish and humiliation of the exiles will end. Chapters 1-39 anticipate this message, while chs 40-66 clearly describe it.

The history of redemption comes in three stages: First, God restored Israel from exile. Second, Jesus Christ came, bringing the Good News of salvation through his death and resurrection (61:1-3; Luke 4:18-21; Acts 10:36). Finally, Jesus will return to inaugurate his everlasting kingdom (Matt 26:64; Heb 9:28).

59:7-8 Paul quotes from these verses in his description of the depravity of all people (Rom 3:15-17). • Misery and destruction: The people lamented being victims of oppression (51:19), yet they were oppressors themselves.

59:9-15 Israel's history of rebellion was well established. The prophet here confesses the nation's sins and laments that they could not apprehend the light of God's salvation.

59:10 people without eyes: See 6:10; Deut 28:29.

59:11-14 The people growl and moan with longing for redemption, finally coming to terms with their sinfulness.

59:15-17 The Lord goes out as a warrior intent on achieving victory against the wicked (cp. Eph 6:14).

59:18 repay his enemies: The Lord will dole out righteous retribution on the whole earth. His justice requires people to be judged for the evil they have done (see also 3:9-11; 13:9).

¹⁹ In the west, people will respect the name of the LORD;
in the east, they will glorify him.
For he will come like a raging flood tide driven by the breath of the LORD.

²⁰ "The Redeemer will come to Jerusalem to buy back those in Israel who have turned from their sins," says the LORD.

²¹ "And this is my covenant with them," says the LORD. "My Spirit will not leave them, and neither will these words I have given you. They will be on your lips and on the lips of your children and your children's children forever. I, the LORD, have spoken!

Future Glory for Jerusalem

60 ¹ "Arise, Jerusalem! Let your light shine for all to see.

For the glory of the LORD rises to shine on you.

² Darkness as black as night covers all the nations of the earth, but the glory of the LORD rises and appears over you.

³ All nations will come to your light;
mighty kings will come to see your radiance.

⁴ "Look and see, for everyone is coming home!
Your sons are coming from distant lands;
your little daughters will be carried home.

⁵ Your eyes will shine,
and your heart will thrill with joy,

for merchants from around the world will come to you.

They will bring you the wealth of many lands.

⁶ Vast caravans of camels will converge on you,

the camels of Midian and Ephah.

The people of Sheba will bring gold and frankincense and will come worshiping the LORD.

⁷ The flocks of Kedar will be given to you, and the rams of Nebaioth will be brought for my altars.

I will accept their offerings, and I will make my Temple glorious.

⁸ "And what do I see flying like clouds to Israel, like doves to their nests?

⁹ They are ships from the ends of the earth,
from lands that trust in me,
led by the great ships of Tarshish.
They are bringing the people of Israel home from far away, carrying their silver and gold.
They will honor the LORD your God,
the Holy One of Israel,
for he has filled you with splendor.

¹⁰ "Foreigners will come to rebuild your towns, and their kings will serve you.
For though I have destroyed you in my anger,
I will now have mercy on you through my grace.

¹¹ Your gates will stay open day and night to receive the wealth of many lands.

59:19 In the west . . . in the east: i.e., in all parts of the world. • For he will come like a raging flood tide driven by the breath of the LORD: Or When the enemy comes like a raging flood tide, / the Spirit of the LORD will drive him back.

59:20 The Redeemer will come to Jerusalem to buy back those in Israel who have turned from their sins: Literally The Redeemer will come to Zion / to buy back those in Jacob / who have turned from their sins. Greek version reads The one who rescues will come on behalf of Zion, / and he will turn Jacob away from ungodliness. Cp. Rom 11:26, which quotes from the Greek version.

59:21 The members of the new community have the Spirit, and they know and practice God's word (see also Ezek 36:24-28). The Lord promises to regenerate the children by his Spirit and bring them into the covenant of obedience and love for the Lord (Joel 2:28; Acts 2:39).

60:1-3 God will come to be with his people and will transform Zion's destiny from the darkness as black as night caused by sin and judgment.

60:3 The transformation of all nations and mighty kings will be so radical that all kingdoms will take notice and be drawn to God through his people (see also Rev 21:24).

60:5-7 Zion's losses from warfare will be restored by the wealth of many lands; foreign nations will be eager to make a contribution (60:11; 61:6; 66:12; see Rev 21:26).

60:6 Midian and Ephah were Midianite tribes located southeast of Israel.

• Sheba was a region in southern Arabia (see 1 Kgs 10:1-2) famed for frankincense (Jer 6:20). • These were real nations—the restoration would be a historical reality, not just an idealistic vision. Many nations would submit themselves to and worship the LORD.

60:7 Kedar was a tribe in Arabia (21:16-17). • Nebaioth was an Ishmaelite tribe. • I will make my Temple glorious: The glory of God will be even more evident than it was in Solomon's Temple (see 6:1-5; Hag 2:9; Rev 21:11, 22).

60:9 filled you with splendor: See Rev 21:26.

60:10-16 Those who previously oppressed the people of God will one day participate in restoring the holy city (see 2:2-4; 19:18-25; Neh 2:8; Amos 9:12).

60:10 their kings will serve you: God's people who were previously humiliated (2:11) will be exalted.

60:11 There are two likely reasons for why the gates are not closed at night (see also Rev 21:25): (1) So much traffic will be coming into the city (60:8-10) that the gates will need to be open. (2) The citizens of Zion will no longer need to fear enemies because the Lord is

Zion (60:1-22)

Lam 2:1-18
Mic 3:9-12
Zeph 3:14-17
Heb 12:22-24
Rev 14:1-5; 21:1-27

When David first conquered the city of Jerusalem, he captured "the fortress of Zion" and named it "the City of David" (2 Sam 5:7, 9). Later, when Solomon built the Temple in Jerusalem, the site was poetically called Mount Zion (Ps 68:16; 76:2).

In Isaiah, Zion is a theological name for Jerusalem, the city of God. Zion symbolizes God's presence and protection for his people, their resilience and victory against enemies, and the resulting peace (Ps 46). Zion is a place of security, tranquility, and rest (33:20). In essence, Zion is wherever God and his people are (60:1-22; 65:17-19). Zion proclaims the good news (40:9) that God comes to redeem his people and bring them back to his presence (46:13). The citizens of Zion are all washed, purified, and holy (4:2-3).

Zion also has a moral dimension. Because the Lord is already present among his people, they must live according to his ways. Chief characteristics of the Lord's city are trust, justice, righteousness, and commitment. The Lord does not tolerate impurity, uncleanness, idolatry, injustice, or unrighteousness (1:21-26). All of Zion's citizens must live by God's revelation; disobedience is subject to judgment. Only those who repent can be citizens of Zion (see 1:16-17). God's people are the objects of his salvation and purification (Isaiah, "Yahweh is salvation"), and he is committed to being present with them (Immanuel, "God is with us," 7:14).

In many Christian hymns, Zion is used to refer to the ultimate kingdom of God.

their protector (60:18); the nations that remain will be serving the Lord and his people (60:9, 12).

60:12 In the coming age, nations that refuse to obey God will be destroyed.

60:13 The Temple was God's sanctuary, the symbol of his presence on earth. Believers now are the temple of God by the indwelling Spirit (1 Cor 3:16). We still await the fullness of God's presence (Rev 21:22).

60:15 beautiful forever . . . a joy to all generations: This would be radical change from the conditions of the Exile in Babylon. Fulfillments of this prophecy include the Jews' restoration from exile, the coming of Jesus Christ, and the inclusion of the Gentiles in the church. The final fulfillment awaits the glorious second coming of Jesus Christ, which will usher in the New Jerusalem.

60:16 of Israel: Literally of Jacob. See note on 14:1.

60:17-20 These verses portray Zion's future grandeur (cp. Rev 21:10-22:4).

60:17 gold . . . silver . . . bronze . . . iron: These metals are for adornment and strength (cp. 54:11; Rev 21:15-21).

• Peace and righteousness will bring harmony and blessing among people and with God.

60:18 praise will be on the lips of all who enter there (literally they will call your gates "praise"): Entrance into the city of salvation will be through the metaphorical gates of praise to the Lord for his great salvation.

60:19-20 Natural sources of light such as the sun and the moon will be as nothing in comparison to the brightness of God's presence (see also 9:2; 30:26; Zech 2:5; Rev 21:23-24).

For the LORD will be your everlasting light.

Your days of mourning will come to an end.

²¹ All your people will be righteous.

They will possess their land forever, for I will plant them there with my own hands in order to bring myself glory.

²² The smallest family will become a thousand people, and the tiniest group will become a mighty nation.

At the right time, I, the LORD, will make it happen.”

Good News for the Oppressed

61 ¹ The Spirit of the Sovereign LORD is upon me, for the LORD has anointed me to bring good news to the poor.

He has sent me to comfort the brokenhearted and to proclaim that captives will be released and prisoners will be freed.

² He has sent me to tell those who mourn that the time of the LORD's favor has come, and with it, the day of God's anger against their enemies.

³ To all who mourn in Israel,

he will give a crown of beauty for ashes,

a joyous blessing instead of mourning, festive praise instead of despair.

In their righteousness, they will be like great oaks that the LORD has planted for his own glory.

⁴ They will rebuild the ancient ruins, repairing cities destroyed long ago.

They will revive them, though they have been deserted for many generations.

⁵ Foreigners will be your servants.

They will feed your flocks and plow your fields and tend your vineyards.

⁶ You will be called priests of the LORD, ministers of our God.

You will feed on the treasures of the nations and boast in their riches.

⁷ Instead of shame and dishonor, you will enjoy a double share of honor.

You will possess a double portion of prosperity in your land, and everlasting joy will be yours.

⁸ For I, the LORD, love justice.

I hate robbery and wrongdoing.

I will faithfully reward my people for their suffering and make an everlasting covenant with them.

⁹ Their descendants will be recognized and honored among the nations.

Everyone will realize that they are a people the LORD has blessed.”

¹⁰ I am overwhelmed with joy in the LORD my God!

For he has dressed me with the clothing of salvation and draped me in a robe of righteousness.

I am like a bridegroom dressed for his wedding or a bride with her jewels.

60:21 The citizens of Zion will be righteous, enjoying a right relationship with God and with others (Rev 21:27). • their land: Or the entire earth (54:5; 62:7; 65:17; 66:22).

60:22 I, the LORD: The Lord identifies himself as the covenant God of Israel. His identity ensures that he will make it happen (see 27:3-4).

61:1-3 The servant here proclaims the good news that his ministry will restore Zion. The Lord Jesus applied these words to his own mission (Luke 4:18-19).

61:1 The presence of God's Spirit ensures the success of the servant's mission (see 11:1-5; 42:1). • The servant will restore and heal the marginalized poor and the brokenhearted (see 25:4). • and prisoners will be freed: Greek version reads and the blind will see. Cp. Luke 4:18.

61:2 to tell those who mourn that the time of the LORD's favor has come: Or to proclaim the acceptable year of the LORD, which is the day of God's salvation (see 49:8). • the day of God's anger: God now turns his wrath against the enemies of his people. It will be a day of righteous vengeance (see 34:8; 63:3-4).

61:3 Putting ashes on one's head was a sign of mourning (note the reversal of the judgment stated in 3:16-25). Mourning would be replaced by joy. The words translated crown of beauty and ashes form a wordplay in Hebrew. • joyous blessing (literally oil of gladness): A face covered with oil was a sign of blessing and well-being (see Ps 45:8; 133:2). • The remnant would start out as small offshoots but would grow into great oaks (see 60:21). • in Israel: Hebrew in Zion.

61:6 priests . . . ministers: The nation would fulfill its original calling (Exod 19:6).

61:7 The people had suffered God's wrath for their sins (40:2); now they would receive a double share of God's blessing.

61:8 Those who belong to the community of God's people are to imitate the character of God, who loves justice (see Mic 6:8) and hates wrongdoing (33:15).

61:9 Their descendants: The covenant will be effective from generation to generation. • The LORD has blessed them in fulfillment of his promise to Abraham (Gen 12:1-2; see 65:23).

61:10 clothing of salvation . . . robe of righteousness: With great joy God will clothe his people with the benefits of his salvation and righteousness (see 51:5; 56:1), like a bridegroom . . . or a bride (see 49:18; 62:5; Jer 2:32; 7:34; 16:9; 25:10; 33:11).

Isaiah's Prayer for Jerusalem

- 62 ¹ Because I love Zion,
I will not keep still.
Because my heart yearns for Jerusalem,
I cannot remain silent.
I will not stop praying for her until her righteousness shines like the dawn, and her salvation blazes like a burning torch.
- ² The nations will see your ^hrighteousness.
World leaders will be blinded by your glory.
And you will be given a new name
by the LORD's own mouth.
- ³ The LORD will hold you in his hand for all to see—a splendid crown in the hand of God.
- ⁴ Never again will you be called "The Forsaken City"
or "The Desolate Land."
Your new name will be "The City of God's Delight" and "The Bride of God," for the LORD delights in you and will claim you as his bride.
- ⁵ Your children will commit themselves to you, O Jerusalem,
just as a young man commits himself to his bride.
Then God will rejoice over you as a bridegroom rejoices over his bride.

- ⁶ O Jerusalem, I have posted watchmen on your walls;
they will pray day and night, continually.
Take no rest, all you who pray to the LORD.
- ⁷ Give the LORD no rest until he completes his work, until he makes Jerusalem the pride of the earth.
- ⁸ The LORD has sworn to Jerusalem by his own strength:
"I will never again hand you over to your enemies.
Never again will foreign warriors come and take away your grain and new wine.
- ⁹ You raised the grain, and you will eat it, praising the LORD.
Within the courtyards of the Temple,
you yourselves will drink the wine you have pressed."
- ¹⁰ Go out through the gates!
Prepare the highway for my people to return!
Smooth out the road; pull out the boulders;
raise a flag for all the nations to see.
- ¹¹ The LORD has sent this message to every land:
"Tell the people of Israel,
'Look, your Savior is coming.
See, he brings his reward with him as he comes.'"
- ¹² They will be called "The Holy People" and "The People Redeemed by the LORD."
And Jerusalem will be known as "The Desirable Place" and "The City No Longer Forsaken."

62:1-12 The servant here commits himself to proclaiming the good news continuously until the glory of Zion is realized.

62:2 The real beauty and glory of God's people would not be seen in earthly treasures or a rebuilt city but would shine forth from their righteousness. Others would be drawn by this divine gift. • A new name reflects the change in Zion's status (see 62:4).

62:4 The Forsaken City: Hebrew Azubah, which means "forsaken." In the Exile, the Lord abandoned his people to the judgment they deserved (54:7). • The Desolate Land: Hebrew Shemamah, which means "desolate." • The City of God's Delight: Hebrew Hephzibah, which means "my delight is in her." • The Bride of God: Hebrew Beulah, which means "married." The people will be "married" to the Lord—an appropriate image for the close covenant relationship (54:5; Hos 1-3).

62:6-7 The watchmen probably represent the prophets. • they will pray day and night: They will continually seek the full restoration and blessing of Zion, unlike the destructive watchmen of 56:10.

62:8 The Lord swore an oath just as he did when he had sworn an oath to Noah (Gen 8:20-9:17), to Abraham (Gen 22:16; see also Luke 1:73; Heb 6:13), and to David (Ps 89:3). • I will never again hand you over: In order to punish and purge a remnant from his people, God had intentionally brought in the Assyrians and Babylonians to decimate them (see 6:12-13). He would never do this again.

62:9 The people would eat and drink the fruit of their labor (65:13, 22; see Lev 23:39-40; Deut 14:22-26). This is the opposite of what happened when God judged them (see Deut 28:38-40; Amos 5:11; Mic 6:14-15).

62:10-12 This call to prepare for God's coming salvation combines elements from all parts of Isaiah: the proclamation (the signal or banner, see 5:26), the preparation of the road (40:3; 57:14), the coming of God with his reward (40:5, 9-10), and the holy and redeemed citizenry (35:8-10).

62:10 highway: See also 40:3; 57:14. • A flag for all the nations to see is a signal that directs foreigners to come to Zion for God's salvation. Earlier, a similar signal was used to call for the nations to attack Judah (5:26).

62:11 Tell the people of Israel: Literally Tell the daughter of Zion; see also Matt 21:5.

Judgment against the LORD's Enemies

63 ¹ Who is this who comes from Edom, from the city of Bozrah,
with his clothing stained red?
Who is this in royal robes, marching in his great strength?
"It is I, the LORD, announcing your salvation!
It is I, the LORD, who has the power to save!"
² Why are your clothes so red,
as if you have been treading out grapes?
³ "I have been treading the winepress alone;
no one was there to help me.
In my anger I have trampled my enemies
as if they were grapes.
In my fury I have trampled my foes.
Their blood has stained my clothes.
⁴ For the time has come for me to avenge
my people,
to ransom them from their oppressors.
⁵ I was amazed to see that no one intervened
to help the oppressed.
So I myself stepped in to save them with my strong arm,
and my wrath sustained me.
⁶ I crushed the nations in my anger and made them stagger and fall to the ground,
spilling their blood upon the earth."

Praise for the LORD's Rescue

⁷ I will tell of the LORD's unfailing love.
I will praise the LORD for all he has done.
I will rejoice in his great goodness to Israel,

which he has granted according to his mercy and love.

- ⁸ He said, "They are my very own people.
Surely they will not betray me again."
And he became their Savior.
⁹ In all their suffering he also suffered,
and he personally rescued them.
In his love and mercy he ¹redeemed
them.
He lifted them up and carried them through all the years.
¹⁰ But they rebelled against him and grieved his Holy ¹Spirit.
So he became their enemy and fought against them.
¹¹ Then they remembered those days of old when Moses led his people out of Egypt.
They cried out, "Where is the one who brought Israel through the sea, with Moses as their shepherd?
Where is the one who sent his Holy Spirit
to be among his people?
¹² Where is the one whose power was displayed
when Moses lifted up his hand—
the one who divided the sea before them, making himself famous forever?
¹³ Where is the one who led them through the bottom of the sea?
They were like fine stallions racing through the desert, never stumbling.
¹⁴ As with cattle going down into a peaceful valley,
the Spirit of the LORD gave them rest.
You led your people, LORD, and gained a magnificent reputation."

63:1-6 The judgment of Edom typifies God's judgment of all the nations (see also 34:5-15).

63:1 The Lord's robes are stained red with blood (63:3; cp. Rev 19:13). • The name Bozrah (Hebrew botsrah) is a wordplay on the verb batsar ("gather grapes").

63:2 The term red (Hebrew 'adom) is a wordplay on the name Edom.

63:4 the time . . . to avenge my people: See note on 34:8. • to ransom: See note on 43:1.

63:6 made them stagger: The wicked nations would be forced to drink from the intoxicating cup of God's wrath (49:26; 51:17, 21).

63:7-14 The prophet reflects on Israel's past, how God showed his unfailing love and how his people alternatively rebelled against him, suffered hardship, returned to the Lord, and experienced his blessing.

63:7 unfailing love . . . all he has done . . . his great goodness: The whole history of God's care for his people demonstrates his compassion, provision, and protection.

63:8 They are my very own people: God's possession of and commitment to his people was central to the covenant (see 43:1). • they will not betray me: The Lord expected his own people to honor their relationship with him, unlike the nations, whose story is a history of treachery (Gen 3-11). But Israel, too, betrayed their God (63:10). • their Savior: God rescued and protected his people (see 43:3).

63:9 he also suffered: God identified with his suffering people, and their suffering brought him grief. Later, Jesus suffered on behalf of all humanity. • and he personally (literally and the angel of his presence) rescued them: E.g., see Exod 12:25-33; 14:10-31; 23:20-23.

63:10 But they rebelled: See also 1:2; 1:4; 59:1-15; Pss 78; 106. • Persistent disobedience and unbelief grieved his Holy Spirit (Ps 106:33; Matt 12:32; Mark 3:29). • he became their enemy: Examples include Israel's period of wandering in the wilderness (see the book of Numbers), the period of the judges (see the book of Judges), and the period leading up to the Exile (see the book of Jeremiah).

63:14 God gave his people rest after he brought them into the Promised Land (see 63:9; Josh 1:13; 22:4; 23:1).

Prayer for Mercy and Pardon

- 15 LORD, look down from heaven;
look from your holy, glorious home,
and see us.
Where is the passion and the might you used to show on our behalf?
Where are your mercy and compassion now?
16 Surely you are still our Father!
Even if Abraham and Jacob would disown us,
LORD, you would still be our Father.
You are our Redeemer from ages past.
17 LORD, why have you allowed us to turn from your path?
Why have you given us stubborn hearts so we no longer fear you?
Return and help us, for we are your servants,
the tribes that are your special possession.
18 How briefly your holy people possessed your holy place,
and now our enemies have destroyed it.
19 Sometimes it seems as though we never belonged to you,
as though we had never been known as your people.

- 64 1 Oh, that you would burst from the heavens and come down!
How the mountains would quake in your presence!
2 As fire causes wood to burn and water to boil, your coming would make the nations tremble.
Then your enemies would learn the reason for your fame!
3 When you came down long ago, you did awesome deeds beyond our highest expectations.
And oh, how the mountains quaked!

- 4 For since the world began,
no ear has heard
and no eye has seen a God like you, who works for those who wait for
him!
5 You welcome those who gladly do good,
who follow godly ways.
But you have been very angry with us,
for we are not godly.
We are constant sinners;
how can people like us be saved?
6 We are all infected and impure with sin.
When we display our righteous
deeds,
they are nothing but filthy rags.
Like autumn leaves, we wither and fall, and our sins sweep us away like the wind.
7 Yet no one calls on your name or pleads with you for mercy.
Therefore, you have turned away from us and turned us over to our sins.
8 And yet, O LORD, you are our Father.
We are the clay, and you are the potter.
We all are formed by your hand.
9 Don't be so angry with us, LORD.
Please don't remember our sins
forever.
Look at us, we pray,
and see that we are all your people.
10 Your holy cities are destroyed.
Zion is a wilderness;
yes, Jerusalem is a desolate ruin.
11 The holy and beautiful Temple where our ancestors praised you has been burned down, and all the things of beauty are destroyed.
12 After all this, LORD, must you still refuse to help us?
Will you continue to be silent and punish us?

63:15–64:12 The prophet's reflections on the past (63:7-14) inspire him to pray that God would now rescue his people as he has done before.

63:16 our Father: God's fatherhood and his commitment to his children are much more important and secure than national ancestry (see 9:6; 64:8; Deut 32:6; Ps 68:5; Mal 2:10; Matt 6:9-15; Rom 8:15-17). • Jacob: Literally Israel; see note on 14:1.

63:17 The prophet understands that God has the power to keep his people faithful, so he asks, why have you allowed us to turn from your path? • Return and help us: God likewise has the power to call his people back to himself (Ezek 36:25-27) and to defeat all their enemies.

63:18 The people were supposed to be holy, but their lack of holiness had led to destruction. • The holy place was the Temple, which the Babylonians destroyed in 586 BC (64:11; 2 Kgs 25:1-21).

63:19 Israel was constantly turning from God and then being punished by him.

64:1 In the Hebrew text this verse is included in 63:19.

64:2-12 Verses 64:2-12 are numbered 64:1-11 in Hebrew text.

64:4 Paul quotes this verse in 1 Cor 2:9.

64:5-6 constant sinners . . . infected and impure with sin: See also 59:1-15. The only hope for salvation and transformation is through Jesus Christ (see Rom 7:25-8:11).

64:7 you have turned away from us: See 1:15; 30:20; 59:2. • turned us over (as in Greek, Syriac, and Aramaic versions; Hebrew reads melted us) to our sins: Because the people were so bent on sinning, God left them to perish in their sinful ways (see Rom 1:24).

64:8 clay . . . potter: See also 29:16; 45:9; Rom 9:20-21.

64:10 holy cities: All the cities of Judah were considered holy to God. However, the Temple in the host city of Jerusalem was the most holy place.

Judgment and Final Salvation

65

The LORD says,

"I was ready to respond, but no one asked for help.

I was ready to be found, but no one was looking for me.

I said, 'Here I am, here I am!' to a nation that did not call on my name.

² All day long I opened my arms to a rebellious people.

But they follow their own evil paths and their own crooked schemes.

³ All day long they insult me to my face by worshiping idols in their sacred gardens.

They burn incense on pagan altars.

⁴ At night they go out among the graves, worshiping the dead.

They eat the flesh of pigs and make stews with other forbidden foods.

⁵ Yet they say to each other,

'Don't come too close or you will defile me!

I am holier than you!'

These people are a stench in my nostrils, an acrid smell that never goes away.

⁶ "Look, my decree is written out in front of me:

I will not stand silent;

I will repay them in full!

Yes, I will repay them—

⁷ both for their own sins and for those of their ancestors," says the LORD.

"For they also burned incense on the mountains and insulted me on the hills.

I will pay them back in full!

⁸ "But I will not destroy them all," says the LORD.

"For just as good grapes are found among a cluster of bad ones

(and someone will say, 'Don't throw them all away—some of those grapes are good!'), so I will not destroy all Israel.

For I still have true servants there.

⁹ I will preserve a remnant of the people of Israel and of Judah to possess my land.

Those I choose will inherit it, and my servants will live there.

¹⁰ The plain of Sharon will again be filled with flocks for my people who have searched for me, and the valley of Achor will be a place to pasture herds.

¹¹ "But because the rest of you have forsaken the LORD and have forgotten his Temple, and because you have prepared feasts to honor the god of Fate and have offered mixed wine to the god of Destiny,

¹² now I will 'destine' you for the sword.

All of you will bow down before the executioner.

For when I called, you did not answer.

When I spoke, you did not listen.

You deliberately sinned—before my very eyes—and chose to do what you know I despise."

65:1-66:24 Here the Lord responds to the prayer in 63:7-64:12. These chapters also conclude the book of Isaiah.

65:1-2 The Lord opened up every opportunity for the people of Israel to seek him (55:6; 58:2), but they did not. • I was ready to respond . . . to a rebellious people: Greek version reads I was found by people who were not looking for me. / I showed myself to those who were not asking for me. / All day long I opened my arms to them, / but they were disobedient and rebellious. Cp. Rom 10:20-21, which quotes from the Greek version. • to a nation that did not call on my name: or to a nation that did not bear my name.

65:3 Sacred gardens were a part of the fertility religion of Baal (see note on 1:29-30).

65:4 worshiping the dead: God had banned the practice of necromancy (consulting dead spirits; see 8:19-22; 47:9; Deut 18:9-11). • the flesh of pigs . . . other forbidden foods: See 66:3-4; Lev 11:7; Deut 14:3, 8.

65:5 you will defile me! I am holier than you! The people of Israel used the language of ritual purification, as stated in the laws of Moses, yet they practiced rites influenced by paganism. Because of this hypocrisy, they were a stench in God's nostrils (see 1:10-15).

65:6 my decree is written out (or their sins are written out; literally it stands written): God is fully committed to carry out his plan. • The godly had asked whether the Lord would stand silent forever (64:12). God answered that he would not but would deal with the wicked before restoring the righteous remnant.

65:7 The people of Israel practiced their pagan religion at sacred shrines on mountains and hills (see 1 Kgs 14:23; Hos 4:13).

65:8-16 The Lord planned to spare and reward a remnant of righteous people.

65:9 Those I choose: See note on 41:8. • remnant of the people of Israel: Literally remnant of Jacob. See note on 14:1.

65:10 Sharon was a fertile and beautiful marshy region southwest of Mount Carmel (see 33:9). The valley of Achor in the vicinity of Jericho was associated with the curse on Achan (Josh 7:24-26); it would be transformed into a place of blessing (Hos 2:15). These western and eastern regions might represent the renewal of the whole land.

65:11 Fate and Destiny are names of pagan gods (Gad, Meni) that were thought to bring fortune and determine one's destiny.

65:12 'destine': This verb (Hebrew manithi) is a wordplay on Meni (65:11). However, God alone controls human and national destinies.

My servants will rejoice,
but you will be sad and ashamed.

14 My servants will sing for joy,

15 Your name will be a curse word among for the Sovereign LORD will destroy

you

and will call his true servants by another name.

16 All who invoke a blessing or take an oath will do so by the God of ^btruth.

For I will put aside my anger and forget the evil of earlier days.

17 "Look! I am ^ccreating new ^dheavens and 18 Be glad; rejoice forever in my creation!

And look! I will create Jerusalem as a 19 I will rejoice over Jerusalem and delight in my people.

And the sound of weeping and crying will be heard in it no more.

20 "No longer will babies die when only a

No longer will adults die before they have lived a full life.

No longer will people be considered old at one hundred!

Only the cursed will die that young!

21 In those days people will live in the houses they build and eat the fruit of their own vineyards.

22 Unlike the past, invaders will not take their houses

and confiscate their vineyards.

For my people will live as long as trees, and my chosen ones will have time to enjoy their hard-won gains.

23 They will not work in vain, and their children will not be doomed to misfortune.

For they are people blessed by the LORD,
and their children, too, will be blessed.

24 I will answer them before they even call to me.

While they are still talking about their needs,

I will go ahead and answer their prayers!

25 The wolf and the lamb will feed together.

The lion will eat hay like a cow.

But the snakes will eat dust.

In those days no one will be hurt or destroyed on my holy mountain.

I, the LORD, have spoken!"

The New Order (65:17-25)

Isa 11:1; 24:14-16;
25:7-8; 26:19;
30:26; 43:18-19;
60:18-19; 62:2
Jer 23:7-8; 31:10-14
2 Cor 3:6-11; 5:17
Heb 12:18-24
Rev 21:1-22:21

Isaiah differentiates the old order, the present world of human powers and pressures, from the new order, a new creation where justice and harmony triumph.

The old order—defiled and condemned—evokes memories of weeping (65:19), death (65:20, 23), oppression and violence (65:21-22), and the absence of God (65:24). The old order contrasts with the new (43:18-19; 48:6; 62:2; 65:17). Every judgment by God reduces human power structures and pride. When the Lord acts in a redemptive way, he restructures the world under his kingship.

Isaiah's vision of the new order centers on the Lord as the Great King in his holiness and glory (6:1-5). God's people experience aspects of the new order in this life, such as God's comfort (40:1), salvation (45:22), joy (24:14-15), righteousness (24:16), peace (26:3), divine blessing, and protection. Other dimensions lie beyond our experience: the end of death (25:7-8); the resurrection (26:19); the cessation of enmity, corruption, and evil (60:18; 65:25); the full enjoyment of God's presence (30:26; 60:19); and God's uncontested rule in his eternal kingdom (see Rev 21-22).

65:13-15 The contrast between the wicked (addressed as you) and God's servants pertains to all areas of life. God punishes the wicked but blesses those who truly serve him (see 65:17-25).

65:15 The new name given to the faithful represents a new identity and a deeper relationship with the Lord (see also 62:2).

65:16 evil of earlier days: Cp. Rev 21:4.

65:17 The new heavens and new earth will be a place of righteousness (see also 2 Pet 3:13; Rev 21). Paul described those who believe in Christ as already being part of the new creation (see 2 Cor 5:17; Gal 6:15).

65:18-19 Jerusalem here symbolizes God's eternal kingdom (Rev 21:1-4).

65:24 God will be present with his people (see also 19:22; 30:19; contrast 1:15; 59:2).

65:25 The snakes represent evil (27:1; Gen 3).

66 This is what the LORD says:

"Heaven is my throne,
and the earth is my footstool.

Could you build me a temple as good as that?

Could you build me such a resting place?

² My hands have made both heaven and
earth;
they and everything in them are mine.
I, the LORD, have spoken!

"I will bless those who have humble and contrite hearts,
who tremble at my word.

³ But those who choose their own ways—delighting in their detestable sins—will not have their offerings accepted.
When such people sacrifice a bull, it is no more acceptable than a human sacrifice.

When they sacrifice a lamb,
it's as though they had sacrificed a dog!
When they bring an offering of grain, they might as well offer the blood of a pig.

When they burn frankincense,
it's as if they had blessed an idol.

⁴ I will send them great trouble—
all the things they feared.
For when I called, they did not answer.
When I spoke, they did not listen.
They deliberately sinned before my very eyes
and chose to do what they know
I despise."

⁵ Hear this message from the LORD, all you who tremble at his words:
"Your own people hate you and throw you out for being loyal to my name.
'Let the LORD be honored!' they scoff.
'Be joyful in him!'
But they will be put to shame.

⁶ What is all the commotion in the city?
What is that terrible noise from the Temple?

It is the voice of the LORD taking vengeance against his enemies.

⁷ "Before the birth pains even begin,
Jerusalem gives birth to a son.

⁸ Who has ever seen anything as strange as this?

Who ever heard of such a thing?
Has a nation ever been born in a single day?

Has a country ever come forth in a mere moment?

But by the time Jerusalem's birth pains begin,
her children will be born.

⁹ Would I ever bring this nation to the point of birth and then not deliver it?" asks the
LORD.

"No! I would never keep this nation from being born,"
says your God.

¹⁰ "Rejoice with Jerusalem!
Be glad with her, all you who love her and all you who mourn for her.

¹¹ Drink deeply of her glory even as an infant drinks at its mother's comforting breasts."

¹² This is what the LORD says:
"I will give Jerusalem a river of peace and prosperity.
The wealth of the nations will flow to her.

Her children will be nursed at her breasts, carried in her arms, and held on her lap.

¹³ I will comfort you there in Jerusalem
as a mother comforts her child."

66:1 my throne . . . my footstool: God's kingdom extends over all creation (see 40:22; Matt 5:34-35). • a temple . . . a resting place: Because the entire universe is God's dwelling place, humans cannot limit him to a building (see 1 Kgs 8:27). • Stephen quoted 66:1-2a in his last sermon (Acts 7:49-50).

66:2 God is pleased to dwell with those who have humble and contrite hearts (57:15; Ps 51:17). • they and everything in them are mine: As in Greek, Latin, and Syriac versions; Hebrew reads these things are. • who tremble at my word: The humble and contrite submit themselves to God's will, whereas the arrogant resist it.

66:3 delighting in their detestable sins: Literally delighting in abominations, which refers to pagan worship practices. • sacrifice a bull . . . blessed an idol: Wicked people brought sacrifices as prescribed by the law, but their sin rendered those sacrifices equivalent to pagan offerings (see 1:11-17).

66:6 terrible noise from the Temple: This parallels the situation described in Ezek 9 when God's executioner began to destroy the wicked people of Jerusalem. • vengeance against his enemies: God would deal out retribution to the disobedient members of his own people. They were his enemies because of their persistent sin and rejection of God.

66:7 birth pains . . . give birth to a son: See 9:6-7; 54:1-3.

66:8 by the time . . . her children will be born: A miraculous repopulation of Zion would occur (see 49:19-20; 54:1-3; contrast 1:8-9). • Jerusalem's: Hebrew Zion's.

66:9 The Lord promised that he would surely recreate his holy nation.

66:12 a river: The people, who lost peace and prosperity in the Exile, would receive it back abundantly (see 48:18).

18 "I can see what they are doing, and I know what they are thinking. So I will gather all nations and peoples together, and they will see my glory. 19 I will perform a sign among them. And I will send those who survive to be messengers to the nations—to Tarshish, to the Libyans and Lydians (who are famous as archers), to Tubal and Greece, and to all the lands beyond the sea that have not heard of my fame or seen my glory. There they will declare my glory to the nations. 20 They will bring the remnant of your people back from every nation. They will bring them to my holy mountain in Jerusalem as an offering to the LORD. They will ride on horses, in chariots and wagons, and on mules and camels," says the LORD. 21 "And I will appoint some of them to be my priests and Levites. I, the LORD, have spoken!

22 "As surely as my new heavens and earth will remain, so will you always be my people, with a name that will never disappear,"
says the LORD.

23 "All humanity will come to worship me from week to week
and from month to month.

24 And as they go out, they will see the dead bodies of those who have rebelled against me.

For the worms that devour them will never die,
and the fire that burns them will never go out.

All who pass by will view them with utter horror."

66:14 flourish like the grass: Contrast 40:7; 64:6. • God's enemies included the disobedient from the foreign nations and from within Israel (see 61:2; 66:6).

66:15-16 the LORD is coming with fire: See note on 5:25. God will appear with furious judgment against his enemies (see Ps 7:13). By contrast, he will reveal his glory to his people (see 40:5, 10). • God will judge all creation as a part of the process of renewing the earth (see 24:1-4; 65:17).

66:17 Apostates who 'consecrate' and 'purify' themselves through idolatrous practices are an abomination to God (cp. 1:28-31; 65:4).

66:18-23 When God reveals his glory to all people, the nations join in God's plan of redemption; they can even serve as priests and Levites before him. The godly from all nations last from generation to generation as they serve the living God.

66:19 The sign is the proclamation of God's glory among the nations (66:20). God will establish a righteous and faithful new people consisting of godly Gentiles together with faithful Israelites (Rev 15:3-4; see also Acts 2). • Libyans: As in some Greek manuscripts, which read Put [that is, Libya]; Hebrew reads Pul. • Lydians: Hebrew Lud. • Greece: Hebrew Javan.

66:21 That some of the Gentiles would serve as priests and Levites signifies the removal of God's distinction between Hebrews and Gentiles (see 56:7; see also Gal 6:15; Eph 4:11-13).

66:22 always be my people: God's promise to Abraham was secure (Gen 17:7; see also Gal 3:8, 14). • a name that will never disappear: The identity of this new people will last forever (see 59:21).

66:24 Isaiah gives a final warning of the severity of God's judgment. The book begins and ends with the condemnation of those who have rebelled (see 1:2-4). • The judgment of God on wicked humans will generate utter horror because such people will have no hope and no relief from suffering (see also Matt 5:22; 25:41; Mark 9:47-48; Rev 20:11-15).

THE BOOK OF Jeremiah

God called Jeremiah to warn the kingdom of Judah of its impending destruction. When Jeremiah began preaching, Judah was relatively prosperous, free, and secure, but the kingdom's fortunes changed dramatically as Nebuchadnezzar II of Babylon asserted his power in the region. Judah suffered under his heavy hand for twenty years before he destroyed the city of Jerusalem and exiled its citizens to Babylon. Throughout these events, Jeremiah warned of judgment and destruction while distinctively recording his own experience of the pain and conflict these announcements brought. As God passionately and tenderly begged his people to return to him and receive salvation, Jeremiah beautifully conveyed God's promise to restore Israel as his people.

SETTING

During the decades before Jeremiah's birth, Assyria dominated the ancient Near East, including Egypt for a time. King Manasseh of Judah became an Assyrian vassal, swore allegiance to the Assyrian deities, and worshiped idols (see 2 Kgs 21:1-7) for most of his long reign (686-642 BC). As a result, the kingdom of Judah became a spiritual wasteland (but see 2 Chr 33:10-17). Manasseh's son Amon followed his father's negative example during his brief reign (2 Kgs 21:21). When some of the palace servants in Jerusalem assassinated Amon (2 Kgs 21:23-24), his eight-year-old son, Josiah, was quickly crowned king of Judah.

Thereafter the kingdom of JUDAH experienced Babylon's crushing hand until 586 BC, when Jerusalem was destroyed. Most of Jeremiah's prophecies came 605-586 BC.

Josiah served the Lord and rejected his father's and grandfather's support of paganism. In the twelfth year of his reign, he decreed that pagan idols and altars should be destroyed (2 Chr 34:3-7). In his eighteenth year on the throne, he funded the repair of the Temple so that the priests and people of Judah could participate in worshipping the one true God (2 Chr 34:8). During these repairs, the Book of the Law, which had been forgotten during Manasseh's reign, was recovered. It so clearly described Judah's sins in Jeremiah's time that its teachings became a significant basis for Jeremiah's prophetic ministry.

Jeremiah was born into a priestly family in the small town of Anathoth, a few miles north of Jerusalem. He was familiar with the history of God's relationship with Israel and with the covenant God had made with Israel under Moses. That knowledge was enhanced by the recovery of the Book of the Law. Jeremiah's ministry began about 627 BC, soon after the Book of the Law was found.

Josiah's death in battle with the Egyptians in 609 BC (2 Kgs 23:29) spelled the end of revival in Judah and the beginning of the end of the nation. Between 612 and 605 BC, the Babylonians crushed the Assyrians and beat back the Egyptians; Judah's security and prosperity ended as the Babylonians gained control of the region. Between 605 and 586 BC, King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon attacked, subjugated, and finally destroyed the kingdom of Judah and the city of Jerusalem.

During this time, Judah's kings remained apostate from the Lord and refused to heed Jeremiah's warnings. Josiah's son, King Jehoiakim (609-598 BC), renewed pagan worship in Judah and relied on the Egyptians for support against the Babylonians; he was violently antagonistic to Jeremiah's messages. His son Jehoiachin reigned for only three months at the beginning of 597 BC. When the Babylonians defeated Judah in April 597 BC, they replaced Jehoiachin with his uncle, Zedekiah (597-586 BC), who reigned as a vassal of Babylon.

Zedekiah is depicted as weak and indecisive. He respected Jeremiah and often asked him for advice, but he lacked the courage to follow the Lord.

Instead, Zedekiah followed the advice of his administrators and broke his covenant to serve the Babylonian king. As a result, the Babylonians laid siege to Jerusalem in January 588 BC. In July 586 BC they finally broke through the walls of Jerusalem, destroyed the Temple, and razed the city. Most of the people in Jerusalem were taken captive to Babylon, though a remnant remained in Judah—including Jeremiah, who recorded what happened to the remnant community during the days following Jerusalem's destruction.

SUMMARY

Chapter 1 (627 BC) tells how God chose Jeremiah as his messenger.

Chapters 2–20 (627~605 BC) establish the dynamic pattern of relationships among God, Jeremiah, and the people of Judah. Through Jeremiah, God severely criticized pagan worship in Judah, warned of invasion from the north, and pronounced severe punishment. In chs 11–20, Jeremiah learns more about God's purposes.

Chapters 21–29 (605~593 BC) focus on verbal battles that Jeremiah had with Judah's kings, priests, and other prophets. Jeremiah's messages include scathing criticisms of these vicious leaders.

Chapters 30–33 (596~588 BC) provide a bright spot as they emphasize the possibility of restoration for the people of Judah and envision a new covenant to enrich the relationship between God and his people. The vision reaches into the future and announces a "righteous descendant" (33:15) who will bring salvation.

Chapters 34–45 (605~580 BC) tell of the Babylonian siege of Jerusalem, the breach of the city walls, and the complete destruction of the Temple, the city of Jerusalem, and the kingdom of Judah. Chapters 34–36 make it clear that the destruction was the result of Judah's having broken its covenant with the Lord. Jeremiah then describes what occurred after the Babylonians left Judah (586~580 BC): Gedaliah the governor was assassinated, and the remaining people of Judah fled to Egypt despite Jeremiah's warning not to.

Chapters 46–51 (605~593 BC) are an anthology of God's judgments on Judah's neighbors. All the nations, large and small, were to be punished for their idolatry and for their cruelty to God's chosen people. A few nations were promised divine help in the future. Israel was promised deliverance from exile and restoration in the Promised Land.

Chapter 52 (586~561 BC) describes the last days of Jerusalem, essentially repeating 2 Kgs 24:18–25:30.

AUTHORSHIP AND DATE

In the fourth year of King Jehoiakim's reign (605 BC), Jeremiah dictated a scroll to Baruch and had it delivered to the king (36:1–26). The king destroyed this scroll, but Jeremiah and Baruch rewrote the messages and "added much more!" (36:32). The contents of this second scroll probably make up Jer 2–20. Much of the rest of the book of Jeremiah appears to have been written later and added to the growing anthology. The book includes events down to Jeremiah's arrival in Egypt, so it seems likely that the book was essentially complete by 580 BC.

MANUSCRIPTS

Two very different texts of Jeremiah have been preserved. The first is the Hebrew Masoretic Text, which underlies nearly all English translations of Jeremiah. The other Hebrew text was the basis of the Greek translation (the Septuagint or LXX), which was produced by Jewish scholars in Alexandria, Egypt about 250 BC. The Septuagint text is about 2,700 words shorter than the Hebrew Masoretic Text, and it rearranges some of the material. This provides evidence for two different collections of messages, one having been finalized among the Babylonian exiles, the other among the Egyptian refugees.

LITERARY FEATURES

The Messenger System. The text of Jeremiah is dominated by a structure of communication called a “messenger system,” common in the royal governments of the ancient Near East. It is still used today. The king, emperor, or ruler of a country selected a person to deliver verbal and written messages to leaders of other countries. The messenger, often called a herald, carried the authority of his ruler as he delivered the royal message. The recipient accepted or rejected the message and sent back a reply with the messenger. If the recipient rejected the message, he might abuse the messenger and prepare for war (see 2 Sam 10:1-19). The messenger would report back to his ruler, who would decide how to punish the rebellious recipient.

Judicial Framework. Most of the messages in Jeremiah feature a judicial framework and vocabulary. The courtroom setting is established early in the book with the Lord’s statement, “I will bring my case against you. . . . I will even bring charges against your children’s children in the years to come” (2:9). The Lord assumes the roles of plaintiff, judge, and executioner. As plaintiff, he makes Jeremiah his advocate in bringing charges and evidence of sin against the leaders and the people. As judge, God makes Jeremiah the prosecutor. After the defendants express their arguments, the Lord pronounces the sentence and then carries it out.

Narratives. In Jeremiah, historical narratives focus on incidents involving Jeremiah and others. The prophet deals with kings, officials, priests, prophets, and the common people in times of crisis. The book also includes many autobiographical narratives that include the Lord speaking with Jeremiah. Often narrative sections end with the pronouncement of a decree, usually in poetic form.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

A battle raged in OT Israel between pagan idol worship and worship of the Lord. Jeremiah repeatedly reminded the Israelites that their covenant with the Lord required that they give him true, heartfelt, and exclusive devotion. In a pivotal passage (10:1-16), Jeremiah clearly contrasts the foolishness of idolatry with the majesty, glory, purity, and power of the God of Israel.

The people of Jerusalem and Judah thus faced a major conflict. If they continued to worship pagan idols, they would lose their holy city and Temple, their loved ones, and their wealth and freedom. The people tried to escape their predicament through defiance, arrogance, and anger, but the events of war soon plunged them into utter despair and death. Even then, they seemed unable to choose another course of action. To cease believing in the magical power of idols and rituals and to give up the allure and excitement of pagan festivals and sexual Jeremiah is unusual among the Hebrew prophets because of the extent to which he revealed his personal feelings. Whereas others delivered their oracles without disclosing much of their inner selves, Jeremiah effectively lays bare the turbulent emotions of a man selected somewhat against his will to be God’s spokesman to his generation.

R. K. Harrison
Jeremiah, p. 34

freedom seemed too great a loss. The possibility that the Temple and Jerusalem might be destroyed was unthinkable. So only a few repented.

With passionate pleas, often couched in “if . . . then” sentences, the Lord offered a way back to his gracious salvation. If the people would earnestly and completely remove the vicious and salacious practices of idolatry from their lives, submit to the Lord without reservation, and fulfill his ethical requirements, then the Lord would cease being angry and accept them as his people again. Even when the calamities of ruin, death, and exile became a reality, the Lord promised to preserve a remnant that would serve him. He promised to bring the captives back to their homeland and grant them peace and prosperity.

The brightest description of God’s mercies is found in 30:1–33:26, where a new covenant and a new king are promised. Instead of uprooting and tearing down, he would plant and rebuild (1:10; 31:28). However, only a few repented in Jeremiah’s days. In all of this, the prophet Jeremiah experienced a deep tension between the Lord’s command (1:17–19) and his own desires. The Lord’s command was “Go . . . and tell,” whereas the prophet desired to keep peace with his neighbors (see 20:8–9). He felt a deep solidarity with his people, and the terrible words of judgment and destruction he was called to pronounce cut deeply into his own soul. More than any other OT prophet, Jeremiah let us see his heart as he struggled to obey (15:16–18; cp. Matt 26:36–42).

⁴The LORD gave me this message:

⁵“I knew you before I formed you in your mother’s womb.

Before you were born I set you apart and appointed you as my prophet to the nations.”

⁶“O Sovereign LORD,” I said, “I can’t speak for you! I’m too young!”

⁷The LORD replied, “Don’t say, ‘I’m too young,’ for you must go wherever I send you and say whatever I tell you. ⁸And don’t be afraid of the people, for I will be with you and will protect you. I, the LORD, have spoken!” ⁹Then the LORD reached out and touched my mouth and said,

1:1–19 Jeremiah’s call is presented as a conversation; God spoke as a king to Jeremiah. Jeremiah’s objections show that he understood himself clearly. God responded to his objections with promises and compelling visions.

1:2–3 Jehoahaz and Jehoiachin are both missing from this list of kings. Neither of them reigned for longer than three months, and only a limited number of events are mentioned after the fall of Jerusalem. • The thirteenth year of the reign of Josiah was 627 BC. • In August: Literally in the fifth month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar. A number of events in Jeremiah can be cross-checked with dates in surviving Babylonian records and related accurately to our modern calendar. The fifth month in the eleventh year of Zedekiah’s reign occurred within the months of August and September 586 BC. Also see 52:12 and note.

1:4–5 In his first message from the Lord, Jeremiah learned three important truths about God: his knowledge of all things, including individuals; his ability to choose individuals for specific tasks even before they come into existence; and his willingness to extend his authority to the people he calls. • God set Jeremiah apart to perform a special task and granted him the official status of a prophet when he appointed Jeremiah to that task. • Jeremiah’s ministry extended to the nations. Although he traveled away from the kingdom of Judah only three times (see 13:4–7; 43:7–8), his written materials have been read worldwide.

1:6 Jeremiah was young (probably a teenager).

1:7–8 God urged Jeremiah to look beyond himself to the importance of the task he was called to fulfill. He had to meet God’s requirements for a royal messenger, which included willingness to travel and the faithful delivery of the Lord’s messages.

1:9 When God placed his words in Jeremiah’s mouth, he granted the prophet the status of an official royal messenger, including the ability to speak authoritatively in public.

Jeremiah (1:1-10)

Jer 13:1-14, 18:1-12, 19:1-20:6, 24:1-10, 26:1-29:32, 32:1-15, 36:1-44:30, 2 Chr 35:25, 36:12, 21, Dan 9:2, Matt 16:14, 27:9

Jeremiah, a prophet in Jerusalem before its destruction in 586 BC, was born in Anathoth, near Jerusalem, during Manasseh's reign. Jeremiah's father was Hilkiah of Benjamin. Jeremiah, a vivid OT personality, is sometimes called the "weeping prophet" because he shared his personal struggles as he delivered God's messages.

Jeremiah received his calling as a prophet during the thirteenth year of Josiah's reign (627 BC). At first, Jeremiah retreated from his call (1:6), but God assured Jeremiah that he would be told what to say, and that God would guide and protect him despite opposition (1:7-8, 18-19).

Jeremiah warned the people of Judah to repent in order to avoid exile. They had broken God's covenant, primarily through idolatry (10:1-16), and as a result, they were subject to the covenant curses (Deut 27-28). They rejected God's invitation, so Jeremiah later delivered messages of God's inevitable judgment.

Jeremiah was particularly hated by Judah's leaders. Most of Jeremiah's speeches were made to kings Jehoiakim and Zedekiah. Jehoiakim held Jeremiah in contempt and tried to silence him. Zedekiah secretly sought Jeremiah's advice, but bowed to his administrators when they wanted to silence the prophet. God's word could not be silenced, however, and the promised judgment came in 586 BC. Jerusalem was sacked, the Temple was destroyed, and Judah's leaders were killed or exiled to Babylon.

Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, knew of Jeremiah and was favorably disposed toward him (39:11-12). As a result, the captain of the Babylonian army allowed Jeremiah to stay with the remnant in Judah. Jeremiah counseled those who remained behind to submit to Babylon, even when Judean terrorists killed Gedaliah. The Judeans rejected Jeremiah's advice and fled to Egypt. Jeremiah accompanied them, and little more is ever heard about Jeremiah. According to tradition, he was stoned to death by Jewish exiles in Tahpanhes, Egypt.

Jeremiah suffered continual rejection, imprisonment, and physical abuse during his life, but his ministry was not entirely negative. He foretold that the Exile would be temporary (25:1-14) and that God would establish a new covenant with his people (31:31-34). This promise was fulfilled in Jesus Christ (Luke 22:20).

1:11-12 The almond tree is the first plant to flower, usually in late January or early February. The Hebrew word translated "watching" (shaqed) sounds like the word translated "almond tree" (shaqed). The Lord wanted Jeremiah to know that he was always watching him (see also Ps 121:3-8).

1:13-14 Like a flood of boiling water, invading armies would bring terror to the people of Judah. Although Babylon was due east of Judah, the desert between them required that the Babylonian army attack Judah from the north.

1:17 Jeremiah was afraid of looking foolish as the Lord's messenger (see Jeremiah Introduction, "Literary Features: The Messenger System," p. 1207). In reality, it would be foolish of Jeremiah to refuse to do as God commanded.

¹⁸ For see, today I have made you strong like a fortified city that cannot be captured, like an iron pillar or a bronze wall. You will stand against the whole land—the kings, officials, priests, and people of Judah.
¹⁹ They will fight you, but they will fail. For I am with you, and I will take care of you. I, the LORD, have spoken!"

3. JEREMIAH'S EARLY MINISTRY (2:1–20:18)

The LORD's Case against His People

2 The LORD gave me another message. He said, ²"Go and shout this message to Jerusalem. This is what the LORD says:

"I remember how eager you were to please me as a young bride long ago, how you loved me and followed me even through the barren wilderness.

³ In those days Israel was holy to the LORD, the first of his children. All who harmed his people were declared guilty, and disaster fell on them. I, the LORD, have spoken!"

⁴ Listen to the word of the LORD, people of Jacob—all you families of Israel! ⁵This is what the LORD says:

"What did your ancestors find wrong with me that led them to stray so far from me?

They worshiped worthless idols, only to become worthless themselves.

⁶ They did not ask, 'Where is the LORD who brought us safely out of Egypt and led us through the barren wilderness—a land of deserts and pits, a land of drought and death, where no one lives or even travels?'

⁷ "And when I brought you into a fruitful land to enjoy its bounty and goodness, you defiled my land and corrupted the possession I had promised you.

⁸ The priests did not ask, 'Where is the LORD?' Those who taught my word ignored me, the rulers turned against me, and the prophets spoke in the name of Baal, wasting their time on worthless idols.

⁹ Therefore, I will bring my case against you," says the LORD.

"I will even bring charges against your children's children in the years to come.

1:18 A fortified city could hold out for a long time against a siege, often until the besieging army left to deal with a crisis elsewhere in the empire.

1:19 I, the LORD, have spoken: This statement has the force of a royal decree (see note on 2:2).

2:1-13 Jeremiah used images of marriage, infidelity, and divorce to represent Judah's spiritual apostasy.

2:2 This is what the LORD says: This and similar statements were equivalent to an official seal or a stamp of authority on a document. In many inscriptions of royal messages from the ancient Near East, the ruler stated that the message came from him and carried his authority. • The image of Israel as a bride had been used since the days of Hosea (about 760–722 BC; Hos 2:2–19; see also Isa 54:6–8; 62:5). The concept is later applied to the redeemed community in heaven (Rev 19:7; 21:2, 9). • long ago: Following the exodus from Egypt, the Israelites were symbolically married to God when they agreed to a covenant relationship (Exod 19:8; 24:7, 8; Deut

5:27; Ezek 16:8). • eager . . . to please (Hebrew khesed): The Israelites made a commitment of loyalty to the covenant Lord (see Deut 5:29).

2:3 Israel was holy because the Lord had separated her from other nations to be his special people and reflect his character (Exod 19:5–6; Lev 19:1–37; 22:31–33). • first of his children: Literally the firstfruits of his harvest. Mosaic law required the people to offer the first portion of every harvest to the Lord (Exod 23:16, 19; 34:22, 26; Lev 2:12, 14; 23:10, 17, 20; Num 18:12; 28:26; Deut 18:4; 26:10; Zech 14:20). The people who made the covenant with God at Mount Sinai pledged their full commitment to the one true God. In return, the Lord protected them and punished their enemies during their journey to Canaan.

2:5 The Israelites worshiped worthless idols, so their lives were ruled by delusions.

2:6 By not seeking the LORD, Israel's ancestors showed that they had lost interest in their history. To them, the God of Israel was a delusion. They were only interested in the sensual excitement of the moment.

2:7 defiled . . . corrupted: See Deut 4:25–28.

2:8 Instead of teaching the people about the Lord, the leaders taught them about Baal.

2:9 Therefore often indicates that the Lord was about to issue a decree (e.g., 5:14; 6:21). • The Hebrew word translated bring my case can mean "strive" or "contend." In addition, it might indicate combat, as in a fight or a battle, a verbal quarrel, or a legal argument in court. Because the leaders of the nation (2:8) failed to direct the people to him, the Lord was going to present his case against them. He was setting up a court in which he would be the plaintiff and the all-powerful judge (Ezek 20:35, 36; Mic 6:2). Jeremiah was a messenger, prosecutor, and advocate for the plaintiff.

2:10 Cyprus: Hebrew Kittim. • Kedar, an Arabic tribe descended from Ishmael, lived in the desert area east of the Jordan River Valley (see note at 49:28–33; see also Isa 21:16).

- 11 Has any nation ever traded its gods for new ones, even though they are not gods at all? Yet my people have exchanged their glorious God for worthless idols!
- 12 The heavens are shocked at such a thing and shrink back in horror and dismay," says the LORD.
- 13 "For my people have done two evil things: They have ^aabandoned me—the fountain of living water. And they have dug for themselves cracked cisterns that can hold no water at all!

The Results of Israel's Sin

- 14 "Why has Israel become a slave? Why has he been carried away as plunder?
- 15 Strong lions have roared against him, and the land has been destroyed. The towns are now in ruins, and no one lives in them anymore.
- 16 Egyptians, marching from their cities of Memphis and Tahpanhes, have destroyed Israel's glory and power.
- 17 And you have brought this upon yourselves by rebelling against the LORD your God, even though he was leading you on the way!

- 18 "What have you gained by your alliances with Egypt and your covenants with Assyria? What good to you are the streams of the Nile or the waters of the Euphrates River?
- 19 Your wickedness will bring its own punishment. Your turning from me will shame you. You will see what an evil, bitter thing it is to abandon the LORD your God and not to fear him. I, the Lord, the LORD of Heaven's Armies, have spoken!
- 20 "Long ago I broke the yoke that oppressed you and tore away the chains of your slavery, but still you said, 'I will not serve you.' On every hill and under every green tree, you have prostituted yourselves by bowing down to idols.
- 21 But I was the one who planted you, choosing a vine of the purest stock—the very best. How did you grow into this corrupt wild vine?
- 22 No amount of soap or lye can make you clean. I still see the stain of your guilt. I, the Sovereign LORD, have spoken!

2:11 No pagan nation traded its gods for those of another nation. Although the pagan nations all worshiped the same nature deities (by different names), each nation remained loyal to its own god. Only Israel was disloyal. • their glorious God: Literally their glory.

2:12 The heavens and the earth are often portrayed as witnesses to events among humans (see 51:48; Deut 32:1, 43; 1 Chr 16:31; Ps 96:11; Isa 1:2; 44:23; 49:13).

2:13 The Israelites foolishly did two evil things: They abandoned the Lord, their true source of life, and they began to worship false gods that could not help them. • A fountain of living [i.e., running] water that flows throughout the year, even in drought, is a rare treasure (Ps 36:9; John 4:14). • The cisterns the Israelites dug after they entered Canaan were holes in the ground that were lined with plaster. These crude tanks collected water that drained from roofs in wet weather and provided water through the dry summers. The water could become putrid and dangerous to drink, and the plaster often cracked, letting the water drain out.

2:14-22 This historical review of Israel's sin further emphasizes the folly, violence, arrogance, and despair of turning away from the true God to worship false pagan gods.

2:14 The Israelites had been rescued from slavery in Egypt, but they became slaves again in Jeremiah's time through their covenants with Egypt and Assyria (2:18).

2:15 Jeremiah portrays the Assyrians who destroyed the northern kingdom (2 Kgs 17:5-23; Nah 2:11-12) as lions.

2:16 Another enemy, the Egyptians, invaded from the south to pick up the pieces (50:17; 2 Kgs 23:29-37). • Memphis (Hebrew Noph) and Tahpanhes, Egypt's major cities near the mouth of the Nile, were famous for their wealth.

2:18 Israel's alliances with Egypt and covenants with Assyria (2 Kgs 15:19–19:37) provided no benefits, only sorrow. Neither the Nile (Hebrew Shihor, a branch of the Nile River) in Egypt nor the Euphrates (literally the river) in Assyria ever helped Israel (Isa 30:1-3; Hos 5:13).

2:19 The decision to abandon the LORD brought further punishment and shame on Israel's people (Isa 3:9; Hos 5:5).

2:20-21 Long ago: Lessons from Israel's history concerning the Israelites' rescue from slavery in Egypt had little effect, and the people of Israel defiantly refused to serve God (Exod 19:8; 34:15; Lev 26:13; Deut 12:2; Josh 24:16; Judg 10:16; Isa 57:5, 7). • you have prostituted yourselves: This metaphor was especially apt regarding the Israelites' bowing down to idols. The Israelites backed their defiant words with rebellious behavior. They repeatedly worshiped fertility deities in hopes of good crops and green pastures. Their rituals were useless because the Lord is the one who had planted the Israelites in Canaan, and he creates life and fertility.

2:22 The metaphor changes from a planted vine to a dirty cloth that soap or lye cannot wash clean. However hard the Israelites scrubbed, their guilt was still apparent (cp. Isa 1:18). • I . . . have spoken: See note at 2:2.

Israel, an Unfaithful Wife

23 "You say, 'That's not true!

I haven't worshiped the images of Baal!"

But how can you say that?

Go and look in any valley in the land!
Face the awful sins you have done.

You are like a restless female camel desperately searching for a mate.

24 You are like a wild donkey, sniffing the wind at mating time.

Who can restrain her lust?

Those who desire her don't need to search,

for she goes running to them!

25 When will you stop running?

When will you stop panting after other gods?

But you say, 'Save your breath.

I'm in love with these foreign gods,
and I can't stop loving them now!"

26 "Israel is like a thief who feels shame only when he gets caught.

They, their kings, officials, priests, and prophets—
all are alike in this.

27 To an image carved from a piece of wood they say,

'You are my father.'

To an idol chiseled from a block of stone they say,

'You are my mother.'

They turn their backs on me,

but in times of trouble they cry out
to me,

'Come and save us!'

28 But why not call on these gods you have made?

When trouble comes, let them save you if they can!

For you have as many gods
as there are towns in Judah.

29 Why do you accuse me of doing wrong?
You are the ones who have rebelled,"
says the LORD.

30 "I have punished your children, but they did not respond to my discipline.

You yourselves have killed your prophets as a lion kills its prey.

31 "O my people, listen to the words of the
LORD!

Have I been like a desert to Israel?

Have I been to them a land of darkness?

Why then do my people say, 'At last we are free from God!

We don't need him anymore!'

32 Does a young woman forget her jewelry,

or a bride her wedding dress?

Yet for years on end
my people have forgotten me.

33 "How you plot and scheme to win your lovers.

Even an experienced prostitute could learn from you!

34 Your clothing is stained with the blood of the innocent and the poor, though you didn't catch them breaking into your houses!

35 And yet you say,

'I have done nothing wrong.

Surely God isn't angry with me!

But now I will punish you severely because you claim you have not sinned.

2:23–3:5 Instead of acting like a faithful wife, Israel behaved like a wild animal in heat (2:23–25), a thief (2:26–30), and a prostitute (2:31–3:5).

2:23 The people protested that it was not true that they were Baal worshippers (cp. 2:25). Archaeologists have found small plaques showing an Asherah (female goddess) and a male god resembling Baal, but their inscriptions bear the name of the Lord (Yahweh). Baal worship was apparently sometimes disguised as worship of Israel's God.

2:25 The Israelites confessed to the Baal worship that they had earlier denied (2:23), thus revealing the true state of their hearts.

2:26 Israel's leaders felt no shame for the evil they did; any contrition they expressed in the face of God's punishment stemmed from selfishness, not repentance (Ps 78:34–37).

2:27 These idols of a father and mother probably represented Baal and Asherah. • in times of trouble they cry out: See, e.g., Judg 10:10; Isa 26:16; Hos 5:15.

2:28 The Israelites were foolishly devoted to many gods (11:13; Deut 32:37; Judg 10:14; 2 Kgs 17:30–31), who were all powerless to help them. • Jeremiah addressed the individual tribe of Judah, the people standing before him.

2:30 killed your prophets: See 26:20–23.

2:31 The Lord's anger turned to an appeal. He questioned why the Israelites considered life in obedience to him a desert of death and deprivation (Num 21:5), full of the evil and terror of darkness (Job 24:17; 1 Jn 1:5–6).

2:32 For centuries, the Israelites had forgotten the Lord, their husband (13:25; Ps 106:21; Hos 8:14).

2:33–34 The Israelites would plot and scheme with their lovers, their neighbors with powerful armies, by making treaties to gain the protection that the Lord had already promised them. God considered this an act of prostitution that left a stain of blood on Israel's character. Like their pagan neighbors, Israel now crushed its own innocent and poor (7:6; 2 Kgs 21:16; 24:4).

2:35 Israel's sinful condition was evident in the people's arrogant retort. They claimed that they were innocent, and that God was needlessly angry with them. God responded to the people's denial of guilt by decreeing that he would be severe in his punishment and that he would not tolerate their denial of wrongdoing (Prov 23:13; Mal 2:17, 3:8; 1 Jn 1:8, 10).

The Broken Covenant (2:1–3:10)

Jer 2:3; 3:1; 4:4;
22:8-9; 31:31-34
Exod 6:7
Ezek 16:1-63
Hos 2:2-13; 3:1; 4:1-5:15

A central issue in the Lord's relationship with the Israelite people was whether the covenant made at Sinai (see Exod 20:1–24:11), which the people of Israel had broken, was still valid. In the politics of the ancient Near East, covenant agreements were common. When one of the partners in a covenant broke the terms of the agreement, the result was usually war.

The Sinai Covenant was unique because the Lord was one of the covenant partners. Patterned after secular covenants, the covenant required the Lord and Israel to seal the covenant with solemn oaths of faithfulness (Exod 24:1-11; Deut 29–30; Josh 8:30-35; 24:1-28). The Lord always remained faithful to his covenant commitment, but the Israelite people repeatedly broke the covenant as Canaanite polytheism lured them away from the Lord. They broke the laws banning the worship of idols, engaged in immoral sex rituals, and ignored God's requirements for righteousness.

For centuries, the Israelites swung back and forth between worship of the Lord God and worship of Baal. Whenever they repented and returned to the Lord, he mercifully took them back into the covenant relationship. However, by the mid-700s BC, the Israelites of the northern kingdom of Israel had become so determined in their idol worship that the Lord let the Assyrians destroy the kingdom and take many people into captivity.

At the time of Jeremiah's ministry, over 100 years later, Judah was headed down the same road. In Jer 2–3, Jeremiah likened this tragedy to the break-up of a marriage relationship, much as Hosea had pictured it earlier for Israel (Hos 1–2). Israel's bond with the Lord is portrayed as a marriage in which the bride forsook her husband and took up with other lovers. The Lord charged Israel with violating the marriage bond by being a prostitute (3:1), and he warned the nation to return to the Lord or face destruction. The Lord was also like a father whose relationship with his son had been broken because the son had turned his back on him. God could no longer say of the Israelites, "I will be their God, and they will be my people" (31:33; see also Exod 6:7; Hos 1:9).

Just as breaking the covenant had cost the northern kingdom its existence, so it later destroyed the southern kingdom of Judah. Jerusalem was torn apart, and the Temple was destroyed. This punishment cut deeply and painfully into God's heart. The ever-merciful Lord promised a new covenant to replace the broken Sinai Covenant (31:31-34).

2:36 Judah, in its unfaithfulness to the Lord, chose unreliable and unfaithful allies. The leaders sought political help from neighbors such as Egypt—as false a friend as Assyria had been a century before.

3:1-5 Adultery was solid grounds for divorce (Deut 24:1-2; Hos 2:1-5; 9:1). Judah committed spiritual adultery, smugly assuming that God would have no objections (Ezek 16:26; Zech 1:3).

3:1 The law prohibited a man from marrying a woman he had previously divorced who had then married another man (Deut 24:1-4). A woman who had many lovers was even less likely to be received back. • prostituted: See note on 2:20-21.

3:2 As the Lord's bride (see 2:2), Israel was not supposed to commit adultery with other gods.

3:3 The Lord did not condone the shameless behavior of the people. He had already brought on a drought, and their sexual rituals had no effect against it (14:3-6; Lev 26:19; Zeph 3:5).

For you are a brazen prostitute and completely shameless.

⁴ Yet you say to me,

'Father, you have been my guide since my youth.

⁵ Surely you won't be angry forever!

Surely you can forget about it!

So you talk,

but you keep on doing all the evil you can."

Judah Follows Israel's Example

⁶ During the reign of King Josiah, the LORD said to me, "Have you seen what fickle Israel has done? Like a wife who commits adultery, Israel has worshiped other gods on every hill and under every green tree. ⁷ I thought, 'After she has done all this, she will return to me.' But she did not return, and her faithless sister Judah saw this. ⁸ She saw that I ⁹ divorced faithless Israel because of her adultery. But that treacherous sister Judah had no fear, and now she, too, has left me and given herself to prostitution. ⁹ Israel treated it all so lightly—she thought nothing of committing adultery by worshiping idols made of wood and stone. So now the land has been polluted. ¹⁰ But despite all this, her faithless sister Judah has never sincerely returned to me. She has only pretended to be sorry. I, the LORD, have spoken!"

Hope for Wayward Israel

¹¹ Then the LORD said to me, "Even faithless Israel is less guilty than treacherous Judah!

¹² Therefore, go and give this message to Israel. This is what the LORD says:

"O Israel, my faithless people, come home to me again, for I am merciful.

I will not be angry with you forever.

¹³ Only acknowledge your guilt.

Admit that you rebelled against the LORD your God and committed adultery against him by worshiping idols under every green tree.

Confess that you refused to listen to my voice.

I, the LORD, have spoken!

¹⁴ "Return home, you wayward children," says the LORD, "for I am your master.

I will bring you back to the land of Israel—

one from this town and two from that family—from wherever you are scattered.

¹⁵ And I will give you ^dshepherds after my own heart, who will ^dguide you with knowledge and understanding.

3:4-5 Instead of confessing their sins, the people tried to cover them over with sweet talk. However, God saw through their deception. They were inadvertently correct that he would not be angry forever (Ps 103:9; Isa 57:16; Mal 1:6); though he promised to vent his wrath (4:7).

3:6-10 The Lord had been addressing the kingdom of Judah as "Israel" (2:1-3:5), emphasizing their identity as his people. Now the Lord distinguishes between Israel, the northern kingdom that had been destroyed (2 Kgs 17), and the kingdom of Judah. Since the people of the southern kingdom had learned nothing from the fate of the northern kingdom, they were doomed to experience the same fate. • Josiah (640-609 BC) promoted a return to historic faith and practice in 621 BC (2 Chr 34:29-33).

3:7-8 King Josiah's reforms failed to reach many of the common people. The love of idol worship common in northern Israel also continued among the farmers and shepherds of Judah. They failed to learn from the fate of the northern tribes, and even surpassed their practice of adultery (see note on 2:20; see also Ezek 16:47-48).

3:8 She saw: As in Dead Sea Scrolls, one Greek manuscript, and Syriac version; Masoretic Text reads I saw. • divorced: See 2 Kgs 17:23.

3:9 land has been polluted: As a result of Israel's apostasy, fertile fields no longer produced crops and sheep did not graze on green grass (Isa 57:6).

3:10 Like the northern tribes of Israel, the people of Judah did not see anything immoral about idol worship; they treated the Lord's objections lightly. The people did not really repent, but pretended to do so under the pressure of Josiah's authority (2 Chr 34:32). Their religion was tainted with deception (12:2; Hos 7:14).

3:11-4:2 The Lord appealed to Israel to repent, return, and be reconciled to him (contrast 2:1-3:10). Israel had sinned and had received its punishment. Now the people of Judah were sinning even more brazenly than their northern kin, and they ignored the lesson the Lord had taught Israel (Ezek 16:51-52). But it was still not too late to repent and become the blessing to the nations (4:1-2) that God intended them to be (Gen 12:3).

3:12 Therefore: See note on 2:9. • to Israel: Literally toward the north.

• In this decree, the Lord calls the survivors of the faithless Israel of a century before to come home. God's solid, underlying character is merciful, and he desires to extend salvation and restoration (12:15; 31:20; 33:26; 2 Kgs 17:6; Ps 86:15).

3:13 acknowledge your guilt . . . Admit that you rebelled . . . Confess that you refused to listen: Through these three elements of repentance, the people could demonstrate their willingness to receive the Lord's salvation and restoration (Lev 26:40; Deut 30:1-5).

3:14 Return home: The Lord had spoken to all Israel as a husband to an adulterous wife, but now he refers to Israel as wayward children. The Lord would bring selected exiles back to the Promised Land (31:6, 32; Hos 2:19-20; Rom 11:5). • to the land of Israel: Hebrew to Zion (see "Mount Zion, the City of God" at Ps 48, p. 947).

3:15 If the people of Israel repented, the Lord wanted to give them more than just the land. He also promised to provide leaders (shepherds) who would guide them with knowledge and understanding (23:4, 31; Ezek 34:11; Acts 20:28; Eph 4:11).

Gal 3:8

16 "And when your land is once more filled with people," says the LORD, "you will no longer wish for 'the good old days' when you possessed the Ark of the LORD's Covenant. You will not miss those days or even remember them, and there will be no need to rebuild the Ark. 17 In that day Jerusalem will be known as 'The Throne of the LORD.' All nations will come there to honor the LORD. They will no longer stubbornly follow their own evil desires. 18 In those days the people of Judah and Israel will return together from exile in the north. They will return to the land I gave your ancestors as an inheritance forever.

19 "I thought to myself,
'I would love to treat you as my own children!'
I wanted nothing more than to give you this beautiful land—
the finest possession in the world.
I looked forward to your calling me
'Father,'
and I wanted you never to turn from me.

20 But you have been unfaithful to me, you people of Israel!
You have been like a faithless wife who leaves her husband.
I, the LORD, have spoken."

21 Voices are heard high on the windswept mountains, the weeping and pleading of Israel's people.
For they have chosen crooked paths and have forgotten the LORD their God.

22 "My wayward children," says the LORD,
"come back to me, and I will heal your wayward hearts."

"Yes, we're coming," the people reply,
"for you are the LORD our God."

23 Our worship of idols on the hills and our religious orgies on the mountains are a delusion.

Only in the LORD our God will Israel ever find salvation.

24 From childhood we have watched as everything our ancestors worked for—their flocks and herds, their sons and daughters—was squandered on a delusion.

25 Let us now lie down in shame and cover ourselves with dishonor, for we and our ancestors have sinned against the LORD our God.
From our childhood to this day
we have never obeyed him."

4 ¹ "O Israel," says the LORD,
"if you wanted to return to me, you could.

You could throw away your detestable idols and stray away no more.

² Then when you swear by my name, saying,
'As surely as the LORD lives,' you could do so with truth, justice, and righteousness.

3:16 When Judah was decimated and Jerusalem was destroyed, the land was nearly empty of people. But in the future, the devastated land would once more be filled with people. Its inhabitants would not dwell on the past or need the Ark to remind them of God's presence (23:3; Isa 49:19; 65:17).

3:17 In the future, the city of Jerusalem would be a global center of worship called The Throne of the LORD, and people from nations around the earth would renounce their rebellion (7:24; Deut 29:19; Isa 60:9).

3:18 Judah and Israel would be among the people flowing to Jerusalem. The Lord would mercifully bring them from exile and once again settle them in the Promised Land (31:8; Isa 11:13; Ezek 37:16-22; Hos 1:11; Amos 9:15).

3:19-20 But: This transitional word emphasizes the contrast between what the Lord wanted and the actual situation. The Lord would love to treat his people as his precious children, but he could not. The covenant marriage between

God and his people had been ruptured by the faithless wife. The Lord could not overlook this sin (Isa 48:8).

3:21-4:2 The people, held captive in Assyria, cried out that they had repented of their sins. However, their words were insincere, and the Lord rejected their plea. God was telling his people that if they were really going to turn back to him, they had to abandon the altars on the hills where they had worshiped idols and purge their religion of every trace of idolatry.

3:22-24 The Lord heard the touching prayer of devotion; the people affirmed their acceptance of the LORD as their God (31:7; Ps 121:1-2; 38:18). • The people even confessed that they had worshiped idols and engaged in religious orgies. They admitted that all this was a delusion (11:13; 14:20; Hos 9:10) and acknowledged that salvation is found only in the LORD. Their ancestors had squandered their wealth by killing their animals and children in honor of Baal.

3:22 The Lord did not forget his children. Out of the depths of his being, he called them to come back so that he could heal them. He desired to set aside his anger and pour forth his love (30:17; 33:6; Hos 6:1; 14:4).

4:1 The Lord saw that despite their lovely prayer, the people did not intend to throw away their idols or change their lifestyle (15:19; Joel 2:12).

4:2 As surely as the LORD lives: The correct attitude when offering a prayer of confession and making oaths reflects truth, justice, and righteousness. Truth means that the inner attitudes and thoughts of those praying match the words they utter. Justice means living by the laws of the Lord, who will judge the earth. Righteousness means that people relate to others in accordance with the Lord's Spirit and the moral standards he has established. This kind of prayer requires a radical transformation of people's inner lives and outer lifestyle (Gen 22:18; Deut 10:20; Ps 72:18; Isa 48:1; 1 Cor 1:31). If the Israelites

Then you would be a blessing to the nations of the world, and all people would come and praise my name."

Coming Judgment against Judah

³This is what the LORD says to the people of Judah and Jerusalem:

"Plow up the hard ground of your hearts! Do not waste your good seed among thorns.

⁴O people of Judah and Jerusalem, surrender your pride and power. Change your hearts before the LORD, or my anger will burn like an unquenchable fire because of all your sins.

⁵"Shout to Judah, and broadcast to Jerusalem!

Tell them to sound the alarm throughout the land:

'Run for your lives! Flee to the fortified cities!'

⁶Raise a signal flag as a warning for Jerusalem:

'Flee now! Do not delay!'

For I am bringing terrible destruction upon you from the north."

⁷A lion stalks from its den, a destroyer of nations.

It has left its lair and is headed your way.

It's going to devastate your land!

Your towns will lie in ruins, with no one living in them anymore.

⁸So put on clothes of mourning and weep with broken hearts, for the fierce anger of the LORD is still upon us.

⁹"In that day," says the LORD, "the king and the officials will tremble in fear.

The priests will be struck with horror, and the prophets will be appalled."

¹⁰Then I said, "O Sovereign LORD, the people have been deceived by what you said, for you promised peace for Jerusalem. But the sword is held at their throats!"

¹¹The time is coming when the LORD will say to the people of Jerusalem, "My dear people, a burning wind is blowing in from the desert, and it's not a gentle breeze useful for winnowing grain.

¹²It is a roaring blast sent by me! Now I will pronounce your destruction!"

¹³Our enemy rushes down on us like storm clouds! His chariots are like whirlwinds. His horses are swifter than eagles. How terrible it will be, for we are doomed!

¹⁴O Jerusalem, cleanse your heart that you may be saved. How long will you harbor your evil thoughts?

¹⁵Your destruction has been announced from Dan and the hill country of Ephraim.

returned to the Lord in this way, the people would be blessed, and their influence would flow out as a blessing to all the nations of the world. Their changed lives would cause people of the world to come and join in a chorus of praise to God's name.

4:3-18 These verses bring the kingdom of Judah and its capital, Jerusalem, to center stage in God's courtroom. The Lord decreed that he would judge Jerusalem at the hands of the Babylonians.

4:3 Sinners must intentionally face their rebellion and change their ways through confession and repentance (Hos 10:12; cp. Matt 13:1-9).

4:4 To deal with their sin, the people needed to give up the pride and power that were so precious to them (Deut 10:16; 30:6; Amos 5:6; Mark 9:43; Rom 2:28; Col 2:11). • surrender your pride and power. Change your hearts before the LORD: Literally circumcise yourselves to the LORD, and take away the foreskins of your heart. Circumcision was a covenant sign of submission to God.

4:5-6 God was opening the pot of boiling water (see 1:13-14) and pouring out a cruel army upon the people (8:14; 50:2; Josh 10:20; Isa 62:10). • Jerusalem: Hebrew Zion.

4:7 The coming army of Babylonian soldiers was like a cruel and vicious lion (see 2:15). With power and savagery, it would wipe out everything, leaving houses empty and in ruins (25:9, 38; 50:17; 2 Kgs 24:1; Isa 1:7; 6:11; Ezek 26:7-10; Dan 7:4).

4:8 The Israelites were in trouble with the Lord and needed to make things right with him. Putting an army in the field or organizing guerrilla bands would be futile. Instead, Jeremiah called for the people to repent by mourning and by weeping with broken hearts (Isa 22:12). By using the pronoun us, the prophet seems to include himself in the need for repentance (see 10:24).

4:9 The impact of the foreign invasion would show Judah's leaders that they were not as invincible as they believed (48:41; Isa 22:3-5).

4:10 Jeremiah was confused and offended because he and the people thought that God had promised peace for Jerusalem. However, these promises were false prophecies (6:14; 14:13; 23:16-17).

4:11-12 The Lord's people would soon feel the burning wind and roaring blast of God's judgment (13:24; Hos 13:15).

4:13 Like his countrymen, Jeremiah was fearful when he heard that the invasion from the north had begun (Deut 28:49; Isa 5:28; Lam 4:19; Hos 8:1; Hab 1:8).

4:14-15 Jeremiah still hoped that his people would cleanse their heart, get rid of their evil thoughts, and make a clean break with idolatry. Otherwise, they would face God's judgment (4:1; 6:19; 13:27; 50:17; Prov 1:22; Isa 1:16; Jas 4:8).

Gen 18:26, 32
2 Chr 16:9

- 16 "Warn the surrounding nations and announce this to Jerusalem:
The enemy is coming from a distant land,
raising a battle cry against the towns of Judah.
- 17 They surround Jerusalem like watchmen around a field, for my people have rebelled against me,"
says the LORD.
- 18 "Your own actions have brought this upon you.
This punishment is bitter, piercing you to the heart!"

Jeremiah Weeps for His People

- 19 My heart, my heart—I writhe in pain!
My heart pounds within me! I cannot be still.
For I have heard the blast of enemy trumpets
and the roar of their battle cries.
- 20 Waves of destruction roll over the land,
until it lies in complete desolation.
Suddenly my tents are destroyed;
in a moment my shelters are crushed.
- 21 How long must I see the battle flags and hear the trumpets of war?
- 22 "My people are foolish and do not know me," says the LORD.
"They are stupid children who have no understanding.
They are clever enough at doing wrong,
but they have no idea how to do right!"

Jeremiah's Vision of Coming Disaster

- 23 I looked at the earth, and it was empty and formless.
I looked at the heavens, and there was no light.
- 24 I looked at the mountains and hills,
and they trembled and shook.

- 25 I looked, and all the people were gone.
All the birds of the sky had flown away.
- 26 I looked, and the fertile fields had become a wilderness.
The towns lay in ruins,
crushed by the LORD's fierce anger.
- 27 This is what the LORD says:
"The whole land will be ruined,
but I will not destroy it completely.
- 28 The earth will mourn and the heavens will be draped in black because of my decree against my people.
I have made up my mind and will not change it."
- 29 At the noise of charioteers and archers,
the people flee in terror.
They hide in the bushes
and run for the mountains.
All the towns have been abandoned—not a person remains!
- 30 What are you doing,
you who have been plundered?
Why do you dress up in beautiful clothing and put on gold jewelry?
Why do you brighten your eyes with mascara?
Your primping will do you no good!
The allies who were your lovers despise you and seek to kill you.
- 31 I hear a cry, like that of a woman in labor, the groans of a woman giving birth to her first child.
It is beautiful Jerusalem gasping for breath and crying out,
"Help! I'm being murdered!"

The Sins of Judah

- 5¹ "Run up and down every street in Jerusalem," says the LORD.
"Look high and low; search throughout the city!

4:17-18 The foreign armies already surrounded the capital city. The impending attack was due to the people's rebellion against the Lord.

4:19-21 When Jeremiah heard . . . trumpets and the battle cries of the invaders who brought desolation, he realized that his own family and other people he knew were being killed or left homeless. Jeremiah could not escape the effects of God's judgment even though he was faithfully serving the Lord (9:1, 19; 10:19-20; 20:9; 2 Kgs 25:11; 2 Chr 36:20; Ps 42:7; Isa 15:5; 16:11; 21:3; 22:4; Ezek 7:26).

4:23-26 In Jeremiah's vision, the LORD's fierce anger took precedence over his creative love (10:10; 12:4; Isa 5:25; 24:19; Ezek 38:20; Zeph 1:3). He was undoing the order of creation (see Gen 1:2-3).

4:28 At funerals in Hebrew society, it was customary for people to mourn and be draped in black (cp. Isa 5:30; 50:3). The Lord had determined the people's guilt, and he promised to be true to his word (5:10; 30:11, 24; Isa 5:30; 46:10, 11).

4:29 flee . . . hide . . . run: Panic gripped the people of Judah in reaction to the horrors of war. Their arrogance and smug confidence disappeared (see 6:23-24).

4:30 Strangely, some people acted as if nothing serious were happening. They tried to ignore the enemy, but their future was bleak. The enemy would kill them (22:20, 22; 2 Kgs 9:30; Isa 22:13; Lam 1:2, 19; Ezek 23:9, 10, 22, 40-42).

4:31 The people in Jerusalem felt such intense anguish that Jeremiah likened their pain to the agony of a woman giving birth to her first child. Like such women, beautiful Jerusalem (literally the daughter of Zion) was desperate (13:21; 23:23; 30:6; Isa 1:15; 42:14; Lam 1:17).

5:1-2 A just person lives according to God's laws and deals with other people accordingly. An honest person is dependable, truthful, and faithful to God.

- If you can find even one just and honest person,
I will not destroy the city.
- ² But even when they are under oath, saying, 'As surely as the LORD lives,' they are still telling lies!"
- ³ LORD, you are searching for honesty. You struck your people, but they paid no attention. You crushed them, but they refused to be corrected. They are determined, with faces set like stone; they have refused to 'repent.
- ⁴ Then I said, "But what can we expect from the poor? They are ignorant. They don't know the ways of the LORD. They don't understand God's laws.
- ⁵ So I will go and speak to their leaders. Surely they know the ways of the LORD and understand God's laws." But the leaders, too, as one man, had thrown off God's yoke and broken his chains.
- ⁶ So now a lion from the forest will attack them; a wolf from the desert will pounce on them. A leopard will lurk near their towns, tearing apart any who dare to venture out. For their rebellion is great, and their sins are many.
- ⁷ "How can I pardon you? For even your children have turned from me.
- They have sworn by gods that are not gods at all! I fed my people until they were full. But they thanked me by committing adultery and lining up at the brothels.
- ⁸ They are well-fed, lusty stallions, each neighing for his neighbor's wife.
- ⁹ Should I not punish them for this?" says the LORD. "Should I not avenge myself against such a nation?"
- ¹⁰ "Go down the rows of the vineyards and destroy the grapevines, leaving a scattered few alive. Strip the branches from the vines, for these people do not belong to the LORD.
- ¹¹ The people of Israel and Judah are full of treachery against me," says the LORD.
- ¹² "They have lied about the LORD and said, 'He won't bother us! No disasters will come upon us. There will be no war or famine.
- ¹³ God's prophets are all windbags who don't really speak for him. Let their predictions of disaster fall on themselves!"
- ¹⁴ Therefore, this is what the LORD God of Heaven's Armies says: "Because the people are talking like this, my messages will flame out of your mouth and burn the people like kindling wood.
- ¹⁵ O Israel, I will bring a distant nation against you," says the LORD.

Jeremiah did not find either justice or honesty. Although he put people under oath, their claims of innocence were false. Their behavior showed that they had perjured themselves (4:2; 7:9; Gen 18:23-32; Isa 48:1; Ezek 22:30; Titus 1:15-16).

5:3 Even when crushed by the disaster of war, the people ignored God and refused to repent of their sins (Isa 9:13).

5:4-5 Jeremiah searched for an economic reason behind Jerusalem's rebellion, but found that the leaders, despite their advantages, were as rebellious as the uneducated poor. • A wooden yoke was placed on the neck of a farm animal, with chains attached to a plow or another implement for working the fields (cp. 27:2-12; Ps 2:3).

5:6 The Babylonians would attack like a lion, a wolf, and a leopard. These ferocious beasts were capable of destroying human life. The people's rebellion and sins were very serious to the Lord (4:7; 30:14-15; Ps 104:20; Ezek 22:27; Hos 13:7; Hab 1:8; Zeph 3:3).

5:7-8 These verses list the evidence of sins the people had committed, including rejection of the Lord, submission to pagan deities, and sexual misbehavior (7:9; 12:16; Num 25:1-3; Deut 32:21; Josh 23:7; Zeph 1:5; Gal 4:8). Idolatry and adultery were closely connected in Israel because both represented the breach of an exclusive covenant.

5:9 The Lord regarded the people's sins as worthy of punishment (9:9; 13:27; 29:23; Ezek 22:11).

5:10-13 The Lord delivered a decree to destroy Judah's vineyards, which probably represented Judah itself (see Isa 5:1-7; 27:2-6). The people were ignoring the Lord. They did not belong to him as his children, and he could not overlook the treachery of their love for idols (3:6; 4:27; 7:27).

5:12-13 Even with the enemy looming on the northern horizon, the people thought that nothing bad would happen to them (14:13; Isa 47:8). They did not respect God's prophets (literally the prophets), either. • Some interpreters end the people's quote with 5:12 and attribute 5:13 to the Lord. The windbags would then refer to false prophets.

5:14-19 The approaching army was probably that of Babylon, which attacked Jerusalem in 605 bc. The Lord called the Babylonians to carry out the punishment he had promised (see Deut 28:15-62).

5:15 The Babylonian language was a Semitic language like Hebrew, but the Israelites did not understand it.

A Warning for God's People

20 "Make this announcement to Israel, and say this to Judah:

21 Listen, you foolish and senseless people, with eyes that do not see and ears that do not hear.

22 Have you no respect for me?
Why don't you tremble in my presence?

I, the LORD, define the ocean's sandy

The waves may toss and roar, but they can never pass the boundaries I set.

rebellious hearts.
They have turned away and abandoned me.

24 They do not say from the heart,
'Let us live in awe of the LORD our God, assuring us of a harvest when the time is right.'

Luke 10:27
1 Cor 13:13

Throughout Scripture, the one true God is the highest authority, and his laws are set out both as positive commands and as negative prohibitions. The positive side can be summed up in two basic laws: "You must love the LORD your God with all your heart, all your soul, and all your strength" (Deut 6:5; Matt 22:37; Mark 12:30; Luke 10:27), and "Love your neighbor as yourself" (Lev 19:18; Matt 19:19; Mark 12:31; Luke 10:27). These two basic laws are reflected in the positive laws in the Ten Commandments (Exod 20:2-17; Deut 5:6-21): "I am the LORD your God. . . . Observe the Sabbath day. . . . Honor your father and mother." Each command opens a door to the expression of "faith, hope, and love" (1 Cor 13:13).

The negative prohibitions set up a boundary between good and evil. Primary among these laws are the two that Jeremiah highlights: "You must not have any other god but me" (Exod 20:3), and "You must not make for yourself an idol of any kind or an image. . . . You must not bow down to them or worship them" (Exod 20:4-5). These prohibited behaviors violate the fundamental commands to love the Lord and one's neighbor.

In the book of Jeremiah, these laws lie behind the evaluation of the Israelites' conduct as well as the conduct of any ruler, group of people, or individual in any time or place. Those who violate these laws reject the one true God, resulting in disastrous natural consequences and in decrees of divine judgment.

5:16-17 The soldiers of the well-trained and well-equipped Babylonian army treated their victims viciously and destroyed everything of value in the lands they conquered (cp. Hab 1:6-10).

5:18-19 The Lord comforted Jeremiah with the knowledge that the destruction would not be total, and he prepared the prophet to respond to those who wondered why the Lord would bring such severe judgment upon them.

5:20-21 to Israel: Literally to the house of Jacob. The names "Jacob" and "Israel" are often interchanged throughout the Old Testament, referring sometimes to the individual patriarch and sometimes to the nation. • To be foolish is to engage in rash and immoral behavior that ignores consequences. • senseless: Literally no heart. When "heart" is used in a negative sense, it means that a person or group does not desire to do moral acts and so disdains the intelligent behavior that is pleasing to God. • The people's ears and eyes functioned (see note on 6:10), but they stubbornly shut out the true meaning of what they heard and saw (Isa 6:9; Ezek 12:2; Mark 8:18).

5:22 The people should at least respect the Lord for his power and tremble at the thought of his unleashing that power against them. If even the mighty sea was unable to pass the boundaries the Lord had set for it, surely the rebellion of little Jerusalem would fail.

5:23-25 The people falsely thought that they could do without the Lord, who provided rain for their crops (Deut 11:14). This wickedness caused them to lose wonderful blessings and good things (3:3).

- 25 Your wickedness has deprived you of these wonderful blessings.
Your sin has robbed you of all these good things.
- 26 "Among my people are wicked men who lie in wait for victims like a hunter hiding in a blind.
They continually set traps to catch people.
- 27 Like a cage filled with birds, their homes are filled with evil plots.
And now they are great and rich.
- 28 They are fat and sleek, and there is no limit to their wicked deeds.
They refuse to provide justice to orphans and deny the rights of the poor.
- 29 Should I not punish them for this?" says the LORD.
"Should I not avenge myself against such a nation?"
- 30 A horrible and shocking thing has happened in this land—
- 31 the prophets give false prophecies, and the priests rule with an iron hand.
Worse yet, my people like it that way!
But what will you do when the end comes?

Jerusalem's Last Warning

- 6 1 "Run for your lives, you people of Benjamin!
Get out of Jerusalem!
Sound the alarm in Tekoa!
Send up a signal at Beth-hakkerem!
A powerful army is coming from the north,
coming with disaster and destruction.
- 2 O Jerusalem, you are my beautiful and delicate daughter—but I will destroy you!

- 3 Enemies will surround you, like shepherds camped around the city.
Each chooses a place for his troops to devour.
- 4 They shout, 'Prepare for battle!
Attack at noon!' 'No, it's too late; the day is fading, and the evening shadows are falling.'
- 5 'Well then, let's attack at night and destroy her palaces!'
- 6 This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says:
"Cut down the trees for battering rams.
Build siege ramps against the walls of Jerusalem.
This is the city to be punished, for she is wicked through and through.
- 7 She spouts evil like a fountain.
Her streets echo with the sounds of violence and destruction.
I always see her sickness and sores.
- 8 Listen to this warning, Jerusalem, or I will turn from you in disgust.
Listen, or I will turn you into a heap of ruins,
a land where no one lives."
- 9 This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says:
"Even the few who remain in Israel will be picked over again, as when a harvester checks each vine a second time to pick the grapes that were missed."

Judah's Constant Rebellion

- 10 To whom can I give warning?
Who will listen when I speak?
Their ears are closed,
and they cannot hear.

5:26-28 Among the people of Jerusalem were wicked men who grew fat and sleek by oppressing orphans and . . . the poor (7:6).

5:29-31 The people's sins (5:26-28) fully justified the Lord's punishment, but the religious leaders committed several more. The prophets told lies and called them prophecies from the Lord (14:14; Ezek 13:6). The priests, assigned to do servant tasks, had become tyrants who dominated the people with an iron hand. Amazingly, the people approved of their leaders' new roles, even though this situation left them unprepared for the doom descending upon them (Mic 2:11).

6:1-9 The invasion from the north, probably by the Babylonians in 605 BC, was moving toward the kingdom of Judah. As the Lord's messenger, Jeremiah had the duty of arousing the people so that they could find shelter.

6:1 Jeremiah's parents lived in the tribal area of Benjamin, a narrow strip of land oriented east to west a few miles north of Jerusalem. Amos had lived in Tekoa, about twelve miles south of Jerusalem (Amos 1:1). • Beth-hakkerem was about three miles south of Jerusalem, overlooking Bethlehem.

6:2-5 Jerusalem: Literally Daughter of Zion. • Jeremiah portrayed the commanding officers of the invading army as shepherds who led their flocks of soldiers to camp around the city. The initial plan was to strike the city walls at noon, when the attackers could see their work. But the people in the city were so weakened that the attack at night was just as effective (see 2 Kgs 25:1-4).

6:6-7 The Lord was orchestrating the attack by the Babylonians. He instructed the invading enemy to construct battering rams for breaking through the walls, and to build dirt ramps against the walls for easy access (32:24).

6:8 Even at this late hour, the purpose of the Lord's accusations was to make the people listen and turn back to him.

6:9 Little time remained for the people to turn back to the one true God. The survivors of the invasion would be like leftover grapes on vines; God, the harvester, would track down the survivors to ensure that everyone in Israel experienced this punishment.

6:10-15 In a series of rhetorical questions, Jeremiah, the messenger-prosecutor, revealed his love for the

They scorn the word of the LORD.

They don't want to listen at all.

- 11 So now I am filled with the LORD's fury.
Yes, I am tired of holding it in!

"I will pour out my fury on children playing in the streets and on gatherings of young men, on husbands and wives and on those who are old and gray.

- 12 Their homes will be turned over to their enemies,
as will their fields and their wives.
For I will raise my powerful fist against the people of this land,"
says the LORD.

- 13 "From the least to the greatest,
their lives are ruled by greed.
From ^aprophets to priests,
they are all frauds.

- 14 They offer superficial treatments
for my people's mortal wound.
They give assurances of peace
when there is no peace.

- 15 Are they ashamed of their disgusting actions?
Not at all—they don't even know how to blush!

Therefore, they will lie among the slaughtered.

They will be brought down when I punish them,"
says the LORD.

Judah Rejects the LORD's Way

- 16 This is what the LORD says:
"Stop at the crossroads and look around.
Ask for the old, godly way, and walk
in it.

Travel its path, and you will find rest for your souls.

But you reply, 'No, that's not the road
we want!'

- 17 I posted watchmen over you who said,
'Listen for the sound of the alarm.'
But you replied,
'No! We won't pay attention!'

- 18 "Therefore, listen to this, all you nations.
Take note of my people's situation.

- 19 Listen, all the earth!
I will bring disaster on my people.
It is the fruit of their own schemes,
because they refuse to listen to me.
They have rejected my word.

- 20 There's no use offering me sweet frankincense from Sheba.
Keep your fragrant calamus imported from distant lands!
I will not accept your burnt offerings.
Your sacrifices have no pleasing aroma for me."

- 21 Therefore, this is what the LORD says:
"I will put obstacles in my people's path.
Fathers and sons will both fall over them.
Neighbors and friends will die together."

An Invasion from the North

- 22 This is what the LORD says:
"Look! A great army coming from the north!
A great nation is rising against you from far-off lands.

- 23 They are armed with bows and spears.
They are cruel and show no mercy.

people; he then expressed his disbelief when the people responded with scorn. After presenting evidence of sins committed by the people from the lowest level of society to the highest, the prophet transmitted a divine decree. The future tense of his indictment suggests that the message was given before the invasion.

6:10 The people could literally hear, because their retorts were filled with scorn, but they did not take the Lord's message seriously (cp. Acts 7:51).

6:11-12 Jeremiah shared the Lord's fury toward the people; he could not contain his feelings.

6:13 The people were so ruled by greed that they sought gain even by violent methods (cp. Prov 1:11-19; see also Isa 56:11; Mic 3:5, 11). The religious leaders were frauds; they did not function as their titles indicated they should.

6:14 The sinful condition of God's people was the mortal wound that warranted God's judgment. Instead of calling for repentance, the religious leaders gave the people unfounded assurances of peace (23:17; Ezek 13:10).

6:16-21 The Lord again appealed to the people to repent and warned them of the terrible consequences that awaited them if they refused.

6:16 Following the old, godly way of God's laws (Mal 4:4) would lead to rest for the people's souls (cp. Matt 11:29).

6:17 Prophets were the Lord's watchmen (25:4; Isa 58:1; Ezek 3:17).

6:18-19 All the nations would know that disaster had come upon the Lord's people because they had rejected his word (19:3; Prov 1:31; Isa 1:2).

6:20 The offerings of expensive frankincense and fragrant perfumes were repulsive to the Lord because of his people's rebellion (7:21-23; Exod 30:23; Ps 40:6; 50:7-9; Isa 1:11; 43:24; 66:3; Amos 5:21; Mic 6:6-7).

6:22-30 This dialogue between Jeremiah and the Lord probably took place at the beginning of the Babylonian invasion in 605 BC. In these three poems, Jeremiah declares the Lord's message (6:22-23), identifies with his people's fear, and urges them to repent quickly (6:24-26). He then receives a heart-to-heart message from the Lord (6:27-30).

6:22-23 The Lord reminded the people that the impending invasion was not fictitious; the soldiers had real bows and spears (Isa 13:18). * sound like a roaring sea: The sound of tens of thousands of soldiers with cavalry and chariots would have been terrifying (Isa 5:27-30). * beautiful Jerusalem: Literally daughter of Zion.

They sound like a roaring sea
as they ride forward on horses.
They are coming in battle formation, planning to destroy you, beautiful
Jerusalem."

- ²⁴ We have heard reports about the enemy, and we wring our hands in fright.
Pangs of anguish have gripped us,
like those of a woman in labor.
- ²⁵ Don't go out to the fields!
Don't travel on the roads!
The enemy's sword is everywhere and terrorizes us at every turn!
- ²⁶ Oh, my people, dress yourselves in burlap and sit among the ashes.
Mourn and weep bitterly, as for the loss of an only son.
For suddenly the destroying armies will be upon you!
- ²⁷ "Jeremiah, I have made you a tester of metals, that you may determine the quality of my people.
- ²⁸ They are the worst kind of rebel,
full of slander.
They are as hard as bronze and iron,
and they lead others into corruption.
- ²⁹ The bellows fiercely fan the flames to burn out the corruption.
But it does not purify them,
for the wickedness remains.
- ³⁰ I will label them 'Rejected Silver,' for I, the LORD, am discarding them."

Jeremiah Speaks at the Temple

7 The LORD gave another message to Jeremiah. He said, ²"Go to the entrance of the LORD's Temple, and give this message to the people: 'O Judah, listen to this message from the LORD! Listen to it, all of you who worship here! ³This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, says:

"Even now, if you quit your evil ways, I will let you stay in your own land. ⁴But don't be fooled by those who promise you safety simply because the LORD's Temple is here. They chant, 'The LORD's Temple is here! The LORD's Temple is here!' ⁵But I will be merciful only if you stop your evil thoughts and deeds and start treating each other with justice; ⁶only if you stop exploiting foreigners, orphans, and widows; only if you stop your murdering; and only if you stop harming yourselves by worshiping idols. ⁷Then I will let you stay in this land that I gave to your ancestors to keep forever.

⁸"Don't be fooled into thinking that you will never suffer because the Temple is here. It's a lie! ⁹Do you really think you can steal, murder, commit adultery, lie, and burn incense to Baal and all those other new gods of yours, ¹⁰and then come here and stand before me in my Temple and chant, 'We are safe!'—only to go right back to all those evils again? ¹¹Don't you yourselves admit that this Temple, which bears my name, has become a den of thieves? Surely I see all the evil going on there. I, the LORD, have spoken!

6:26 Jeremiah advised the people to put on burlap and sit among the ashes to show remorse for their sin and to beg for God's mercy (Isa 58:5; Amos 8:10; Jon 3:6; Mic 1:10).

6:27-30 The Lord interrupted Jeremiah's lamentation and brought him back to his commissioned task. God depicted the prophet as a silversmith working with raw ore. The refining process was going to reveal that the silver content of the ore was so small as to be worthless.

6:27 of metals: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads of my people a fortress. • Jeremiah's prophetic task was at odds with the empathy that he felt for his people. Like a metalworker, he was to direct the fire of criticism on the people to determine their quality in the light of God's standards.

6:28 The people's dross was spiritual; it included rebellion against God, slander of other people, a hard and stubborn attitude, and a disposition to lead others into corruption (Ezek 22:18).

6:29 To expose their wickedness, God was fanning the flames with the bellows of his judgment. But no valuable silver appeared; only the dross of wickedness remained (Zech 13:9; Mal 3:3).

6:30 The people, the Rejected Silver, must be thrown away (Isa 1:22).

7:1-15 Jeremiah disabused the people of their belief that God's Temple would guarantee their safety (cp. 26:1-6).

7:1-2 The people were probably at the entrance of the Lord's Temple for one of the annual festivals (see also 17:19; 26:2).

7:3-4 Pagans believed that a symbol was identical with what it represented, so in the paganized worship of Jeremiah's day, the Temple was God's heavenly house. It would be ridiculous to think that enemies could destroy it. To reinforce that idea, the people vigorously repeated a chant, The Lord's Temple is here. However, the Lord of Heaven's Armies needed no earthly house (2 Sam 7:6-7; 1 Kgs 8:27); whatever security the Israelites obtained from the Temple came from the Lord himself, and only on his terms (1 Kgs 6:12).

7:5-7 Idol worship had harmed the people—spiritually, because idols were delusions; socially, because their behavior destroyed fellowship; and politically, because they did not think foreign armies could conquer them. Unless the people changed, they had no future in the Promised Land (Exod 22:21-24; Deut 4:40; 6:14-15).

7:8-10 steal, murder, commit adultery, lie: The people's behavior violated most of the Ten Commandments (Exod 20:3-7, 13-17). • burn incense . . . chant: Israel's relationship with God did not depend on any magical, ritual connection with him. It depended on their keeping the terms of his covenant. The things they were doing violated the terms of that relationship and denied the Lord's holy character.

7:11 a den of thieves: See 5:29-31; Matt 21:13; Mark 11:17; Luke 19:46.

See what I did there because of all the wickedness of my people, the Israelites. ¹³While you were doing these wicked things, says the LORD, I spoke to you about it repeatedly, but you would not listen. I called out to you, but you refused to answer. ¹⁴So just as I destroyed Shiloh, I will now destroy this Temple that bears my name, this Temple that you trust in for help, this place that I gave to you and your ancestors. ¹⁵And I will send you out of my sight into exile, just as I did your relatives, the people of Israel.'

Judah's Persistent Idolatry

¹⁶"Pray no more for these people, Jeremiah. Do not weep or pray for them, and don't beg me to help them, for I will not listen to you. ¹⁷Don't you see what they are doing throughout the towns of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem? ¹⁸No wonder I am so angry! Watch how the children gather wood and the fathers build sacrificial fires. See how the women knead dough and make cakes to offer to the Queen of Heaven. And they pour out liquid offerings to their other idol gods! ¹⁹Am I the one they are hurting?" asks the LORD. "Most of all, they hurt themselves, to their own shame."

²⁰So this is what the Sovereign LORD says: "I will pour out my terrible fury on this place. Its people, animals, trees, and crops will be consumed by the unquenchable fire of my anger."

²¹This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, says: "Take your burnt offerings and your other sacrifices and eat them yourselves! ²²When I led your ancestors out of Egypt, it was not burnt offerings and sacrifices I wanted from them. ²³This is what I told them: 'Obey me, and I will be your God, and you will be my people. Do everything as I say, and all will be well!'

²⁴"But my people would not listen to me. They kept doing whatever they wanted, following the stubborn desires of their evil hearts. They went backward instead of forward. ²⁵From the day your ancestors left Egypt until now, I have continued to send my servants, the prophets—day in and day out. ²⁶But my people have not listened to me or even tried to hear. They have been stubborn and sinful—even worse than their ancestors.

²⁷"Tell them all this, but do not expect them to listen. Shout out your warnings, but do not expect them to respond. ²⁸Say to them, 'This is the nation whose people will not obey the LORD their God and who refuse to be taught. Truth has vanished from among them; it is no longer heard on their lips. ²⁹Shave your head in mourning, and weep alone on the mountains. For the LORD has rejected and forsaken this generation that has provoked his fury.'

The Valley of Slaughter

³⁰"The people of Judah have sinned before my very eyes," says the LORD. "They have set up their abominable idols right in the Temple that bears my name, defiling it. ³¹They

7:12-15 God had allowed the Philistines to capture the Ark of the Covenant and destroy the Tabernacle at Shiloh when the people tried to use the Ark as a magical talisman (1 Sam 4:1-11). In the same way, he would allow the Babylonians to destroy the Temple.

7:12 Shiloh was a hill located halfway between Shechem and Jerusalem. The Tabernacle had been set up there after the conquest of Canaan led by Joshua (Josh 18:1, 6-19; Judg 18:31). It remained the center of worship for the tribes of Israel until Shiloh was destroyed about 1045 BC by the Philistine army (see 26:6; Ps 78:60).

7:13-15 of Israel: Literally of Ephraim, referring to the northern kingdom of Israel. • The people of the northern kingdom had previously done what Judah was now doing. God had sent many prophets who spoke and called out to them (2 Kgs 17:22-23; 2 Chr 36:15-16), but they would not listen and refused to answer. The Lord had spared Jerusalem and the Temple when the northern tribes were taken into exile by the Assyrians in 722 BC; this time, the Temple would be destroyed.

7:16 The Lord commanded Jeremiah not to pray . . . for these people because it would not do any good (15:1; cp. Exod 32:10; Deut 9:14).

7:17-18 Pagan worship had become a family affair; each member of a family provided some part of the ritual. The object of their worship was Asherah, the Queen of Heaven, the mother goddess of the Canaanites with her family of deities (see 44:17-19 and notes).

7:19 God's law was made for human benefit. Those who refused to follow his instructions hurt themselves (cp. Mark 2:27).

7:20-23 The people's offerings and sacrifices meant nothing to the Lord if disobedience ruled in their hearts. Their sacrifices did not manipulate God into doing something he would rather not do. Rather, they embodied the people's trust in God's gracious forgiveness. When the people tried to use the sacrificial system to manipulate God while living self-serving lives, it only infuriated him (Isa 1:10-16; Amos 5:21-27). Obedience to God allows for a personal relationship between God and his people that provides the basis for a wonderful future (Hos 6:6).

7:24-26 Throughout their history, the Israelites had rejected the messages of the Lord's prophets (2 Chr 36:15; Mark 12:1-10).

7:27-29 The Lord instructed Jeremiah to continue to proclaim his messages even though the people of Judah had totally rejected the Lord and would not listen (cp. Ezek 2:7). The appropriate action for Jeremiah to take was to shave his head, mourn, and weep alone on the mountains (cp. Job 1:20).

7:30-8:3 This message decreed death for the people of Judah. It was finally fulfilled in the destruction of Jerusalem (586 BC).

7:30-34 The valley of Ben-Hinnom began on the west side of Jerusalem and continued around the south side. This narrow, steep-sided valley opened into the Kidron Valley and was the city's combined garbage dump and graveyard. The have built pagan shrines at Topheth, the garbage dump in the valley of Ben-Hinnom, and there they burn their sons and daughters in the fire. I have never commanded such a horrible deed; it never even crossed my mind to command such a thing! ³²So beware, for the time is coming," says the LORD, "when that garbage dump will no longer be called Topheth or the valley of Ben-Hinnom, but the Valley of Slaughter. They will bury the bodies in Topheth until there is no more room for them. ³³The bodies of my people will be food for the vultures and wild animals, and no one will be left to scare them away. ³⁴I will put an end to the happy singing and laughter in the streets of Jerusalem. The joyful voices of bridegrooms and brides will no longer be heard in the towns of Judah. The land will lie in complete desolation.

8 "In that day," says the LORD, "the enemy will break open the graves of the kings and officials of Judah, and the graves of the priests, prophets, and common people of Jerusalem. ²They will spread out their bones on the ground before the sun, moon, and stars—the gods my people have loved, served, and worshiped. Their bones will not be gathered up again or buried but will be scattered on the ground like manure. ³And the people of this evil nation who survive will wish to die rather than live where I will send them. I, the LORD of Heaven's Armies, have spoken!

Deception by False Prophets

⁴"Jeremiah, say to the people, 'This is what the LORD says:

" 'When people fall down, don't they get up again?

When they discover they're on the wrong road, don't they turn back?

⁵ Then why do these people stay on their self-destructive path?

Why do the people of Jerusalem refuse to turn back?

They cling tightly to their lies and will not turn around.

⁶ I listen to their conversations and don't hear a word of truth.

Is anyone sorry for doing wrong?

Does anyone say, "What a terrible thing I have done"?

No! All are running down the path of sin as swiftly as a horse galloping into battle!

⁷ Even the stork that flies across the sky knows the time of her migration, as do the turtledove, the swallow, and the crane.

They all return at the proper time each year.

But not my people!

They do not know the LORD's laws.

⁸ "How can you say, "We are wise because we have the word of the LORD," when your teachers have twisted it by writing lies?

⁹ These wise teachers will fall into the trap of their own foolishness, bodies of the poor who were murdered or died of disease were dumped there, and child sacrifice (a practice totally abhorrent to the Lord; see 2 Chr 28:3; 33:6) was performed there. The valley was also known as Topheth (2 Kgs 23:10; Isa 30:33), perhaps referring to the ritual drums (Hebrew tap) or to the sacrificial fires (tap) that were used there. In the NT it is called Gehenna, and Jesus compared hell to the fire that burned continuously in that valley (see notes on Matt 5:22; 18:9). Before long, it would be known as the Valley of Slaughter, because the siege and destruction of Jerusalem (588–586 BC) would fill the valley to overflowing with the bodies of the slain.

8:1-2 Scattering the bones of the dead was the ultimate act of contempt for a defeated nation. Jerusalem's favorite pagan deities—the sun, moon, and stars—would be unable to prevent it from happening.

8:4-17 These three short poems were probably delivered during Jehoiakim's reign.

8:4-7 These verses itemize the evidence of Judah's sins. The people had fallen into idolatrous ritual sex and followed the ways of idol worship. They remained in their delusions because their minds and hearts were trapped by lies, a term that is often applied to idols (5:3; 6; 7:24; 9:6; Prov 24:16; Isa 44:20; Amos 5:2; Mic 7:8).

8:6 The Lord, who can listen to everything (cp. Luke 12:3), heard the people even when they talked in private. Not a word correlated with reality, and no one was sorry for doing wrong. Like a horse galloping into battle with no thought of death or danger, they did not consider the consequences of their sins.

8:7 stork . . . turtledove . . . swallow . . . crane: The identification of some of these birds is uncertain. The Creator gave certain birds the ability to navigate the sky from summer nesting places to winter feeding grounds, and they always follow those instincts precisely. By contrast, the people of Israel ignored God's revelations and the covenant laws he had established.

8:8-13 The people protested God's judgment because they possessed the word of the LORD. God condemned them because they did not put his word into practice (cp. Matt 7:26; Jas 1:22-25).

8:8 The teachers, highly valued in the government and in the Temple, included priests and non-priestly Levites. They were experts in explaining the Sinai covenant, and they were honored for their knowledge of covenant doctrine and the fine points of the legal system related to it. Now they were promoting the pagan viewpoints of King Jehoiakim and his officials as an updated word of the LORD (cp. note on 2:23). The Lord called these new doctrines lies.

8:9-10 The phrase wise teachers is sarcastic—the Lord called their teachings foolishness and exposed their motivation as greed (cp. Job 28:28). This sin ruled the lives of the prophets and priests, making all of them frauds.

for they have rejected the word of the
LORD.

Are they so wise after all?

¹⁰ I will give their wives to others and their farms to strangers.

From the least to the greatest,
their lives are ruled by greed.

Yes, even my prophets and priests are like that.

They are all frauds.

¹¹ They offer superficial treatments
for my people's mortal wound.

They give assurances of peace
when there is no peace.

¹² Are they ashamed of these disgusting actions?

Not at all—they don't even know how
to blush!

Therefore, they will lie among the
slaughtered.

They will be brought down when I
punish them,

says the LORD.

¹³ I will surely consume them.

There will be no more harvests of figs and grapes.

Their fruit trees will all die.

Whatever I gave them will soon be gone.

I, the LORD, have spoken!

¹⁴ "Then the people will say,
'Why should we wait here to die?

Come, let's go to the fortified towns and die there.

For the LORD our God has decreed our destruction

and has given us a cup of poison to drink because we sinned against the LORD.

¹⁵ We hoped for peace, but no peace came.

We hoped for a time of healing, but found only terror.'

¹⁶ "The snorting of the enemies' warhorses can be heard

all the way from the land of Dan in the north!

The neighing of their stallions makes the whole land tremble.

They are coming to devour the land and everything in it—cities and people alike.

¹⁷ I will send these enemy troops among
you like poisonous snakes you cannot charm.

They will bite you, and you will die.
I, the LORD, have spoken!"

Jeremiah Weeps for Sinful Judah

¹⁸ My grief is beyond healing;
my heart is broken.

¹⁹ Listen to the weeping of my people;
it can be heard all across the land.

"Has the LORD abandoned Jerusalem?"
the people ask.

"Is her King no longer there?"

"Oh, why have they provoked my anger with their carved idols and their worthless foreign gods?"
says the LORD.

²⁰ "The harvest is finished, and the summer is gone," the people cry,
"yet we are not saved!"

²¹ I hurt with the hurt of my people.
I mourn and am overcome with grief.

²² Is there no medicine in Gilead?
Is there no physician there?
Why is there no healing for the wounds of my people?

8:10b-12 These verses repeat 6:13-15.

8:13 Having presented the evidence (see note on 8:4-7), the Lord now decreed the punishment of the elite sinners. They would be consumed, along with the land's produce. • I, the LORD, have spoken: The Lord placed his authority behind his decree (see note at 2:2).

8:14-15 These people had heard Jeremiah publicly deliver the decree of the Lord; they now realized that they deserved their punishment because they had sinned against the LORD. Though their doom was sealed, they still did not seek forgiveness for their sins.

8:16 See 6:22-23 and note.

8:18-9:26 The priests in the Temple expertly memorized and repeated carefully crafted prayers as rituals in the Temple worship. Repeating the precise wording of the prayers was thought to be very important; failure to do so drained the prayers of their perceived magical power. The character of the priests who uttered the prayers was considered of minor importance. The same was true of lamentations. In contrast, Jeremiah's prayers and lamentations were spontaneous and involved him to the depths of his being.

8:19 Jerusalem: Hebrew Zion.

8:20 Instead of confessing their sin, the people surrendered to despair. The harvest time of their salvation was gone and they were not saved.

8:21-22 Jeremiah empathized with the suffering of his people. The closeness between the Lord and his prophet means that sometimes the first-person pronouns refer to the Lord as well—the Lord also hurts with the hurt of his people (cp. Matt 23:37).

8:22 The medicine in Gilead consisted of sticky sap that oozed from cuts made in the trunks or branches of small evergreen trees in the highlands east of the Jordan River. Merchants who sold this resin to the people claimed that it had healing powers. • Jeremiah saw the people's need for God to heal their deep spiritual sickness. The people saw only the physical manifestations of God's judgment against them and refused to acknowledge that their spiritual rebellion was the source of their problems. The African-American spiritual "There is a Balm in Gilead" points to Jesus as the ultimate balm for our souls.

9¹ If only my head were a pool of water and my eyes a fountain of tears,
I would weep day and night for all my people who have been slaughtered.

² Oh, that I could go away and forget my people
and live in a travelers' shack in the desert.

For they are all adulterers—
a pack of treacherous liars.

Judgment for Disobedience

³ "My people bend their tongues like bows to shoot out lies.

They refuse to stand up for the truth.

They only go from bad to worse.

They do not know me,"

says the LORD.

⁴ "Beware of your neighbor!

Don't even trust your brother!

For brother takes advantage of brother, and friend slanders friend.

⁵ They all fool and defraud each other;
no one tells the truth.

With practiced tongues they tell lies;
they wear themselves out with all their sinning.

⁶ They pile lie upon lie and utterly refuse to acknowledge me,"
says the LORD.

⁷ Therefore, this is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says:

"See, I will melt them down in a crucible and test them like metal.

What else can I do with my people?"

⁸ For their tongues shoot lies like poisoned arrows.

They speak friendly words to their neighbors

while scheming in their heart to kill
them.

⁹ Should I not punish them for this?" says
the LORD.

"Should I not avenge myself against such a nation?"

¹⁰ I will weep for the mountains and wail for the wilderness pastures.

For they are desolate and empty of life;
the lowing of cattle is heard no more;
the birds and wild animals have all fled.

¹¹ "I will make Jerusalem into a heap of ruins," says the LORD.

"It will be a place haunted by jackals.

The towns of Judah will be ghost towns,
with no one living in them."

¹² Who is wise enough to understand all this? Who has been instructed by the LORD and can explain it to others? Why has the land been so ruined that no one dares to travel through it?

¹³ The LORD replies, "This has happened because my people have abandoned my instructions; they have refused to obey what I said. ¹⁴ Instead, they have stubbornly followed their own desires and worshiped the 9:1 Verse 9:1 is numbered 8:23 in the Hebrew text.

9:2-26 Verses 9:2-26 are numbered 9:1-25 in the Hebrew text.

9:2 Jeremiah wanted to run away and build a shack in the desert to blot the reality of war from his memory (Ps 55:6-8). He understood that his people were adulterers and liars who deserved their punishment, but he did not want to be in Jerusalem to watch it happen.

9:3-16 The heavenly court was still in session (see notes on 2:9; 4:3-18); the divine Judge lectured the people about the charges facing them and justified the severity of the verdict. Jeremiah interrupted the Lord's speech twice to respond to the Lord's messages (9:10, 12).

9:3 The Lord did not scold Jeremiah for his outburst. Instead, the Lord recited the guilty charges against his people. • The comparison with bows indicates that the people's lies were deliberately aimed to harm their targets.

9:4-6 The lie of idolatry (see note on 5:7-8) was at the root of an entire culture of deceit. • The word brother, as a synonym for neighbor, indicates that even the closest relationships were polluted with fraud.

9:7-9 The Lord announced that he would place the people in the crucible of affliction (6:27-30; Isa 1:25). The three rhetorical questions challenged Jeremiah or anyone else to suggest a possible alternative to the Lord's actions or to explain why they were not justified. • with my people: Literally with the daughter of my people; Greek version reads with the evil daughter of my people.

9:10 It is unclear whether these words were uttered by the Lord or by Jeremiah (cp. note on 8:21-22). If the words belong to the Lord, they indicate that he pronounced judgment from a broken heart. If they come from Jeremiah, they show the depths of pain in his heart as he delivered the Lord's decree. The prophet faced the difficult task of separating his patriotism and empathy for the people from his identity as the Lord's messenger.

9:11 The Lord clearly spoke these words, counterbalancing the deep emotion of 9:10 with a further declaration of judgment.

9:12 It is unclear who asks these three questions. It might be the people or Jeremiah. The first two questions express frustration that the Lord's message about the religious and political situation made no sense—the Lord's words seemed too harsh and too extreme. The third question reveals anger that the land had been desolated. The questioner seems to ask where to find the wisdom and goodness of the Lord in what was happening.

9:13-14 The Lord answered the questions (9:12) by repeating what he had said before. The people caused the destruction of city, towns, and land. They rejected the Lord's covenant instructions and deliberately disobeyed his commands. They became dedicated idol worshipers because their ancestors taught them to worship images of Baal, the Canaanite god of storm and fertility.

images of Baal, as their ancestors taught them. ¹⁵So now, this is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, says: Look! I will feed them with bitterness and give them poison to drink. ¹⁶I will scatter them around the world, in places they and their ancestors never heard of, and even there I will chase them with the sword until I have destroyed them completely."

Weeping in Jerusalem

¹⁷ This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says:

"Consider all this, and call for the mourners.

Send for the women who mourn at funerals.

¹⁸ Quick! Begin your weeping!

Let the tears flow from your eyes.

¹⁹ Hear the people of Jerusalem crying in despair,

"We are ruined! We are completely humiliated!

We must leave our land,
because our homes have been torn down."

²⁰ Listen, you women, to the words of the LORD;

open your ears to what he has to say.

Teach your daughters to wail;
teach one another how to lament.

²¹ For death has crept in through our windows and has entered our mansions.

It has killed off the flower of our youth:
Children no longer play in the streets, and young men no longer gather in the squares.

²² This is what the LORD says:

"Bodies will be scattered across the fields like clumps of manure, like bundles of grain after the harvest.

No one will be left to bury them."

²³ This is what the LORD says:

"Don't let the wise boast in their wisdom,
or the powerful boast in their power,
or the rich boast in their riches.

²⁴ But those who wish to boast should boast in this alone:
that they truly know me and understand that I am the LORD who demonstrates unfailing love and who brings justice and righteousness to the earth, and that I delight in these things.
I, the LORD, have spoken!

²⁵ "A time is coming," says the LORD, "when I will punish all those who are circumcised in body but not in spirit—²⁶the Egyptians, Edomites, Ammonites, Moabites, the people who live in the desert in remote places, and yes, even the people of Judah. And like all these pagan nations, the people of Israel also have uncircumcised hearts."

9:15-16 The LORD . . . the God of Israel then issued another decree. The Lord would provide bitterness and poison in the form of exile and widespread death in unknown countries.

9:17-26 This series of four short poems and a brief prose passage are messages from the Lord, presumably delivered to the people of Judah by Jeremiah. Three of the poems describe the effects of the Lord's judgment on the people; the fourth poem is an exhortation. The prose section predicts doom on Judah and her neighboring nations.

9:17 The Lord commanded the people to organize the professional mourners; these individuals commonly performed at ancient Near Eastern funerals (see Amos 5:16; Mark 5:38).

9:18-19 The mourners had to start their work immediately, mourning those who had already died and grieving for doomed Jerusalem. The mourners were to join the people of Jerusalem (Hebrew of Zion) who had no homes and were forced to flee as refugees.

9:20-21 Because of the many deaths in the city, not enough professional mourners were available. The women were urged to quickly teach their daughters to be skilled mourners.

9:23-24 This short poem discusses the nature of true wisdom.

9:23 Intellectuals might boast about the knowledge they have accumulated. The king and his royal court might flaunt their power with pomp and ceremony. Wealthy merchants might display their riches by wearing splendid clothes and constructing majestic buildings. All of these would be destroyed at the time of God's judgment.

9:24 The Lord would recognize just one kind of boast—the testimony of persons who truly know and understand that the LORD is the one true God (1 Cor 1:31; 2 Cor 10:17). • unfailing love: This key covenant term (Hebrew chesed) carries the basic meaning of passionate loyalty. It is often undeserved, and the word may be translated as "mercy," "grace," "kindness," or love. It is the OT equivalent of the NT affirmation that "God is love" (1 Jn 4:8). • righteousness: God deals with his people on an ethical, moral level. He does what is right in every situation. • I delight in these things: God does not find joy in bringing vicious sinners to judgment and then punishing them. Rather, he actively seeks to redeem sinners.

9:25 Because arrogant sin ruled the nation, there would soon come a time when the Lord would decree a sentence of doom. • The rite of circumcision among the Hebrew people went back to Abraham (Gen 17:10-14). Through the centuries, this rite became so closely associated with being God's covenant people that the Israelites assumed that it guaranteed their nation a lasting relationship with the Lord. Being circumcised in body is not enough, however; a person must also be circumcised . . . in spirit. The inner life must be radically separated from idol worship and completely committed to placing the LORD at the center of life and practice (Rom 2:25-29).

9:26 The Egyptians lived to the southwest on both sides of the Nile River. The Edomites lived to the south and southeast of Judah. The Ammonites lived east of the Jordan River. The Moabites lived east of the Dead Sea. These nations practiced circumcision but had uncircumcised hearts because all of them worshiped many false deities. • in remote places: Or and clip the corners of their hair. The Hebrew can be interpreted either way.

Idolatry Brings Destruction

10 Hear the word that the LORD speaks to you, O Israel! ²This is what the LORD says:

"Do not act like the other nations, who try to read their future in the stars.

Do not be afraid of their predictions, even though other nations are terrified by them.

³ Their ways are futile and foolish.
They cut down a tree, and a craftsman carves an idol.

⁴ They decorate it with gold and silver and then fasten it securely with hammer and nails
so it won't fall over.

⁵ Their gods are like helpless scarecrows in a cucumber field!

They cannot speak,
and they need to be carried because they cannot walk.

Do not be afraid of such gods, for they can neither harm you nor do you any good."

⁶ LORD, there is no one like you!
For you are great, and your name is full of power.

⁷ Who would not fear you, O King of nations?

That title belongs to you alone!

Among all the wise people of the earth and in all the kingdoms of the world, there is no one like you.

⁸ People who worship idols are stupid and foolish.

The things they worship are made of wood!

⁹ They bring beaten sheets of silver from Tarshish
and gold from Uphaz,

and they give these materials to skillful craftsmen who make their idols.

Then they dress these gods in royal blue and purple robes made by expert tailors.

¹⁰ But the LORD is the only true God.

He is the living God and the everlasting King!

The whole earth trembles at his anger.
The nations cannot stand up to his wrath.

¹¹ Say this to those who worship other gods: "Your so-called gods, who did not make the heavens and earth, will vanish from the earth and from under the heavens."

10:1-25 This poetic passage has three parts. The first is a contrast between the Lord and pagan idols (10:1-16). The second is a two-part reflection on the destruction that lay ahead for the idol-worshippers (10:17-18, 19-22). The third part is a prayer for God to act with restraint in the coming judgment and not to allow the pagan nations to go unpunished (10:23-25).

10:1-16 This poetic passage severely criticizes idol worship and strongly affirms the unity and majesty of the one true God. It is neither a rational discussion of divinity in nature nor a carefully crafted statement about God's attributes; rather, it is a poem about the foolishness of worshipping idols that the worshipers themselves have made, along with vigorous affirmations of faith that boldly declare who God is.

10:1 As usual, Jeremiah identified the source of his message (see note at 2:2) and urged his audience not simply to hear, but to pay careful attention to the word of the LORD. In Hebrew thought, the person who does not respond has not truly heard.

10:2 The Lord commanded Israel (particularly Judah, because it was all that remained of Israel) to act differently from other nations. He warned them to reject certain people, such as astrologers who claim to read their future in the stars.

10:3 The stars are unable to predict anything—only the Lord knows the future. • A wooden idol was carved from a tree; a craftsman carved the wood until it looked something like a creature that lives on earth (Isa 40:18-20; 44:9-20).

10:4 The carved image possessed no beauty or value of its own. Humans had to apply gold and silver to make it look impressive (see 10:9). Similarly, the image had no strength to stand by itself. It had to be secured to a foundation with hammer and nails.

10:5 Just as scarecrows in a garden can do nothing more than scare ignorant birds, idols are feared only by ignorant people (see note at 8:4-7).

10:6 there is no one like you! See Isa 40:21-31; 44:5-8.

10:7 The fear of the Lord is not craven terror, but profound reverence and submission to his discipline (Job 28:28; Ps 34:11-14; Prov 1:7). It results in contentment (Prov 10:23). • King of nations: God is not limited to being the Lord of one small nation; his reign is worldwide. Jeremiah pointed out that no man-made deity could ever claim that title; not even wise people deserve such reverence.

10:9 The people who created idols had to send far away for metal. They had to purchase silver from Tarshish on the southern tip of Spain. They had to buy gold from Uphaz (or Ophir) in Arabia. The skillful craftsmen and expert tailors put their best efforts into changing an otherwise worthless piece of wood or stone into an attractive artifact (see 10:4-5 and notes).

10:10 Pagan deities are neither alive nor permanent. They can easily be destroyed or put in museums. Mythical stories about idols showed them engaging in all sorts of immoral conduct because the people who invented them wanted to justify their own immorality. The true God is holy and just and abhors immoral behavior.

10:11 The pagan deities were not present at the creation of the heavens and earth, nor are they everlasting. • The original text of this verse is in Aramaic, perhaps indicating that it was a quotation of an Aramaic saying and that this passage was addressed to the exiles in Babylon, where Aramaic was spoken.

¹³ When he speaks in the thunder,
the heavens roar with rain.

He causes the clouds to rise over the earth.

He sends the lightning with the rain and releases the wind from his

¹⁴ The whole human race is foolish and has

The craftsmen are disgraced by the

for their carefully shaped works are a fraud.

These idols have no breath or

¹⁵ Idols are worthless; they are ridiculous lies!

On the day of reckoning they will all
be destroyed.

¹⁶ But the God of Israel is no idol!

He is the Creator of everything that

The LORD of Heaven's Armies is his

The Coming Destruction

¹⁷ Pack your bags and prepare to leave;
the siege is about to begin.

¹⁸ For this is what the LORD says:

"Suddenly, I will fling out all you who live in this land.

I will pour great troubles upon you,
and at last you will feel my anger."

¹⁹ My wound is severe, and my grief is great.

My sickness is incurable,
but I must bear it.

and no one is left to help me rebuild it.

Rev 15:3-4

From the moment of his call to be the Lord's messenger, Jeremiah testified that the living God is the Creator of all things, including time and space. God is not part of nature; he creates and rules nature and therefore cannot be divided into an unlimited number of gods and goddesses.

Those who believed in many gods identified their deities with the natural world; as a result, they easily misunderstood the nature of the one true God. The nature deities and their images were false, lifeless, and immobile (10:1-5). They could not communicate with people or relate to individuals. They could not even move about by their own power, because they had none.

The Lord God is uniquely different from false gods. As Creator, God stands wholly apart from the things he has created. He has always existed as the living God, the intelligent Designer who decreed that the universe should function according to his laws. He gave life to the plants and animals found on the earth, and he endowed each with the power to reproduce and multiply. As God, he is present everywhere and knows all things. He is the living God of love, holiness, justice, and power.

As the one true living God, the Lord relates to his specially made humans on a personal basis, despite his otherness. He reaches into the lives of individuals and reveals his will so that each person can understand God's desires and respond to him. The Lord, who created all things, seeks an individual relationship with each of his people.

10:12-16 This stanza contains several strong affirmations of God's nature.

10:12 Jeremiah affirmed that the Lord's power, wisdom, and understanding are the attributes with which he creates and sustains creation.

10:13 This affirmation struck at the essence of Baal, the Canaanite god of storm and fertility. The Canaanites believed that Baal actually was the thunder and the rain, but the Lord claimed them as his creations (Ps 135:5-7) through which he can speak and even roar (Job 37:2-5).

10:16 the God of Israel: Literally the Portion of Jacob. The Hebrew idiom suggests that God himself is everything the people need. See also note on 5:20. The God of Israel is not to be compared to pagan deities. As the Creator, God selected the people of Israel, rescued them from Egypt, and brought them into Canaan; the Lord redeemed them from slavery to make them his chosen people.

10:17-22 An announcement of judgment (10:17-18) is followed by a lament over what that judgment would mean (10:19-22).

10:17-18 This short decree about the coming exile is probably related to the first invasion of Judah by the Babylonians in 605 BC (see note on Dan

1:1); however, it could also have applied to the invasions of 597, 586, or 581 BC, when some of the people of Judah were taken into exile (see notes on 52:28-30). * I will fling out all you: This expression might include the refugees who fled to nearby countries as well as the exiles taken to Babylon.

10:19 Jeremiah suffered personal loss along with his people; he spoke for the nation at large as well as for himself.

10:20 Jeremiah's beloved home community of Anathoth was destroyed; even the town's children were taken into exile. The same was true of the entire nation.

My children have been taken away,
and I will never see them again.

²¹ The shepherds of my people have lost their senses.

They no longer seek wisdom from the
LORD.

Therefore, they fail completely,
and their flocks are scattered.

²² Listen! Hear the terrifying roar of great armies

as they roll down from the north.

The towns of Judah will be destroyed and become a haunt for jackals.

Jeremiah's Prayer

²³ I know, LORD, that our lives are not our own.

We are not able to plan our own course.

²⁴ So correct me, LORD, but please be gentle.
Do not correct me in anger, for I would die.

²⁵ Pour out your wrath on the nations that refuse to acknowledge you—on the peoples that do not call upon your name.

For they have devoured your people
Israel;

they have devoured and consumed
them,
making the land a desolate wilderness.

Judah's Broken Covenant

11 The LORD gave another message to Jeremiah. He said, ²"Remind the people of Judah and Jerusalem about the terms of my covenant with them. ³Say to them, 'This is what the LORD, the God of Israel, says: Cursed is anyone who does not obey the terms of my covenant! ⁴For I said to your ancestors when I brought them out of the iron-smelting furnace of Egypt, 'If you obey me and do whatever I command you, then you will be my people, and I will be your God.' ⁵I said this so I could keep my promise to your ancestors to give you a land flowing with milk and honey—the land you live in today.' "

Then I replied, "Amen, LORD! May it be so."

⁶Then the LORD said, "Broadcast this message in the streets of Jerusalem. Go from town to town throughout the land and say, 'Remember the ancient covenant, and do everything it requires. ⁷For I solemnly warned your ancestors when I brought them out of Egypt, 'Obey me!' I have repeated this warning over and over to this day, ⁸but your ancestors did not listen or even pay attention. Instead, they stubbornly followed their own evil desires. And because they refused to obey, I brought upon them all the curses described in this covenant.' "

⁹Again the LORD spoke to me and said, "I have discovered a conspiracy against me
among the people of Judah and Jerusalem.
¹⁰They have returned to the sins of their ancestors. They have refused to listen to me and are worshiping other gods. Israel and Judah have both broken the covenant
I made with their ancestors. ¹¹Therefore, this is what the LORD says: I am going to bring calamity upon them, and they will not 10:21 The shepherds (priests and prophets; see 5:29-31) had turned their backs on the wisdom from the LORD that had been preserved in priestly memory and in the prophetic messages, both verbal and written. The divine decree predicted the utter failure of these leaders, as well the resultant scattering of the people.

10:22 The invading armies would reduce every town to rubble, and jackals (wild dogs) would make their dens in the tumbled ruins.

10:23-25 Jeremiah wanted the Lord to pour out his wrath, not simply on Judah, but on the nations who devoured your people Israel (literally devoured Jacob; see note on 5:20); cp. Isa 26:9-11; Hab 1:17. These other kingdoms had gone so far in their brutality that the countryside was a desolate wilderness. Verse 25 is a quotation from Ps 79:6-7.

11:1-17 The Lord reminded Jeremiah of several messages (Exod 19:5) that had been the basis for the relationship between the Lord and Israel over many centuries. Because the kingdom of Judah was the only remaining portion of the nation of Israel, its people were the defendants in their upcoming trial before the Lord. This event probably occurred during the reign of Jehoiakim.

11:1-3 The Lord authorized Jeremiah to present the legal charges against the people of Judah and Jerusalem. With the power of the divine name behind the spoken words, the Lord brought forward the terms of the covenant pertaining to the curses that would come upon those who did not obey (see Deut 27:15-26; 28:15-68).

11:4 The Egyptians knew how to smelt iron, but the iron-smelting furnace of Egypt was also a metaphor for the Israelites' slavery in that land from which the Lord had rescued them. God had also promised to be uniquely theirs if they would be uniquely his (Exod 6:7).

11:5 The Lord wanted to give Israel prosperity and blessing. Milk implies cattle, sheep, and goats. Honey, the product of bees, implies the presence of many different flowering and fruit-bearing plants. • The word Amen is a Hebrew word that can be translated may it be so. The NLT includes both the Hebrew word and its translation.

11:6-7 Jeremiah was to use every available means to broadcast the Lord's message to as many people as he could. As he visited every town and walked the streets of Jerusalem, he reminded the people to remember and obey the requirements of the ancient covenant.

11:8 The OT books of Numbers, Judges, Samuel, and Kings describe how the people of Israel repeatedly violated the covenant right up to Jeremiah's time.

11:9-10 conspiracy: The word connotes "betrayal" or "treason" (cp. 2 Kgs 11:14). • Judah and Jerusalem would no longer worship the Redeemer God, but would give themselves to worshiping other gods. Both Israel (probably referring here to the ten northern tribes) and Judah had broken the covenant.

11:11 The Lord warned Jeremiah ahead of time about the decree that he would escape. Though they beg for mercy, I will not listen to their cries. ¹²Then the people of Judah and Jerusalem will pray to their idols and burn incense before them. But the idols will not save them when disaster strikes! ¹³Look now, people of Judah; you have as many gods as you have towns. You have as many altars of shame—altars for burning incense to your god Baal—as there are streets in Jerusalem.

¹⁴"Pray no more for these people, Jeremiah. Do not weep or pray for them, for I will not listen to them when they cry out to me in distress.

¹⁵"What right do my beloved people have to come to my Temple, when they have done so many immoral things? Can their vows and sacrifices prevent their destruction?

They actually rejoice in doing evil! ¹⁶I, the LORD, once called them a thriving olive tree, beautiful to see and full of good fruit. But now I have sent the fury of their enemies to burn them with fire, leaving them charred and broken.

¹⁷"I, the LORD of Heaven's Armies, who planted this olive tree, have ordered it destroyed. For the people of Israel and Judah have done evil, arousing my anger by burning incense to Baal."

A Plot against Jeremiah

¹⁸Then the LORD told me about the plots my enemies were making against me. ¹⁹I was like a lamb being led to the slaughter. I had no idea that they were planning to kill me! "Let's destroy this man and all his words," they said. "Let's cut him down, so his name will be forgotten forever."

²⁰O LORD of Heaven's Armies, you make righteous judgments, and you examine the deepest thoughts and secrets. Let me see your vengeance against them, for I have committed my cause to you.

²¹This is what the LORD says about the men of Anathoth who wanted me dead. They had said, "We will kill you if you do not stop prophesying in the LORD's name." ²²So this is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says about them: "I will punish them! Their young men will die in battle, and their boys and girls will starve to death. ²³Not one of these plotters from Anathoth will survive, for I will bring disaster upon them when their time of punishment comes."

Jeremiah Questions the Lord's Justice

12 ¹LORD, you always give me justice when I bring a case before you. So let me bring you this complaint: Why are the wicked so prosperous? Why are evil people so happy?

issue against the people. Calamity was approaching, and no prayers could prevent it. The time for God's mercy had passed.

11:12 The people of Judah and Jerusalem prayed and worshiped in their time of trouble, but not to the Lord; instead, they prayed to their idols. They were bonded to unreal and powerless images of wood and stone instead of to the one true God (see note on 10:9).

11:13 Idolatry was so rampant in Judah that not a town or street could be found without an idol present.

11:14 The Lord told Jeremiah not to weep or pray for the people of Jerusalem (see 7:16); the Lord had shut his ears to any prayers they might direct to him. Because the people were committed to worshiping Baal, any prayer they offered would be a charade.

11:15 The people's worship included the words and ceremonies the Lord required, but their worship was insincere; they did not love God or their neighbors.

11:16-17 At the time of the Exodus, the Lord regarded Israel as a thriving olive tree. King David likened himself to an olive tree (Ps 52:8), and the apostle Paul used this image when discussing how Gentiles could partake of the blessings of salvation (Rom 11:16-21).

11:18-23 The Lord warned Jeremiah of the plot against him. Jeremiah prayed, and the Lord promised to rescue him.

11:18-19 The Lord had warned Jeremiah at the time of his commissioning (1:19) that opposition would threaten his life. Jeremiah saw himself as a lamb being led to the slaughter, with no power to resist the betrayal of the shepherd he trusted (Ps 23:1). This opposition occurred before Jeremiah's trial in the Temple courtyard, early in the reign of Jehoiakim (between 608 and 605 BC; see ch 26). Some scholars believe that this verse prefigures the death of Christ, as does the suffering servant of Isa 53:7.

11:20 Jeremiah wanted the Lord to punish his enemies since the Lord knew their deepest thoughts and secrets. As events unfolded, Jeremiah discovered that the Lord had his own way of dealing with his foes.

11:21-23 Jeremiah's enemies even included family and relatives in his hometown of Anathoth, over whose fate he grieved (10:20). They demanded that he should stop prophesying in the Lord's name. In line with the Lord's promise to take care of him (1:19), the Lord told Jeremiah that even the families of his foes, including their boys and girls, would lose their lives when their time of punishment came. Jeremiah would have been deeply hurt by this pronouncement.

12:1-4 Jeremiah wondered why a just God did not immediately punish the wicked. Jeremiah could not stand the continued wickedness, yet he also grieved for the terrible human suffering that he saw coming (10:19-25).

12:1 Jeremiah affirmed the Lord's justice when dealing with him in the past. However, since he was obedient, he could not understand why his life was being threatened. By contrast, those who were wicked and evil seemed to be prosperous and happy.

² You have planted them, and they have taken root and prospered.
Your name is on their lips,
but you are far from their hearts.
³ But as for me, LORD, you know my heart.
You see me and test my thoughts.
Drag these people away like sheep to be butchered!
Set them aside to be slaughtered!

⁴ How long must this land mourn?
Even the grass in the fields has withered.
The wild animals and birds have disappeared
because of the evil in the land.
For the people have said,
"The LORD doesn't see what's ahead for us!"

The LORD's Reply to Jeremiah

⁵ "If racing against mere men makes you tired,
how will you race against horses?
If you stumble and fall on open ground, what will you do in the thickets near the Jordan?
⁶ Even your brothers, members of your own family,
have turned against you.
They plot and raise complaints against
you.
Do not trust them,
no matter how pleasantly they speak.

⁷ "I have abandoned my people, my special possession.
I have surrendered my dearest ones to their enemies.

⁸ My chosen people have roared at me like a lion of the forest,
so I have treated them with contempt.

⁹ My chosen people act like speckled vultures,
but they themselves are surrounded by vultures.
Bring on the wild animals to pick their corpses clean!

¹⁰ "Many rulers have ravaged my vineyard, trampling down the vines and turning all its beauty into a barren wilderness.

¹¹ They have made it an empty wasteland;
I hear its mournful cry.
The whole land is desolate,
and no one even cares.

¹² On all the bare hilltops, destroying armies can be seen.
The sword of the LORD devours people from one end of the nation to the other.
No one will escape!

¹³ My people have planted wheat but are harvesting thorns.
They have worn themselves out,
but it has done them no good.
They will harvest a crop of shame because of the fierce anger of the LORD."

12:2 Jeremiah was irked that the Lord allowed evil people to become established and enjoy prosperity and happiness.

12:3 Although Jeremiah's words seem self-righteous, he was submissive to the Lord's personal searching of his heart. Jeremiah was also angry enough to demand that his enemies suffer the fate they had intended for him. He hoped they would be butchered or slaughtered like helpless sheep. Jeremiah did not seem to desire their forgiveness or their return to the Lord.

12:4 Jeremiah expressed feelings of helplessness; the Lord's decree of desolation for the land seemed excessive. Jeremiah did recognize the evil of the people's sneering claim that the LORD could not see the future (cp. Isa 46:10).

12:5-13 The Lord rebuked his messenger and answered his question with several other questions.

12:5 Jeremiah's racing against mere men was the conflict he experienced with his family and friends. It could not be compared to the race against horses that would take place when the foreign army arrived. The coming war would be as severe as finding one's way through the thickets near the Jordan.

12:6 Jeremiah's family was a microcosm of Judah; they would plot . . . against Jeremiah behind his back (11:9) while speaking pleasantly to his face. They wanted to convince him that the Lord would not let the Babylonians harm the people of Judah and Jerusalem, and they hoped to stop him from bringing shame on the family (cp. Mark 3:21).

12:7-13 God called the people of Judah his special possession, his dearest ones, his chosen people, and his vineyard. However, they had become hostile to him, so they had to be surrendered to their enemies. Perhaps the most severe justice they could face was for the Lord to step back and let the people suffer the consequences of their evil ways.

12:9 The people of Judah would become prey to huge flocks of speckled vultures (or speckled hyenas). The people would soon be corpses that wild animals would pick . . . clean.

12:10-13 The corrupt rulers of Judah had already desolated the land by leading the people into sin (e.g., 2 Kgs 16:8-19; 21:16; 23:33-35); the invading army would simply complete the task.

12:10 A vineyard is a frequent metaphor for God's people (e.g., Isa 5:1-10; Matt 21:33-45; John 15:1-8).

12:11 Sorrow gripped the Lord as he saw the empty wasteland. He had ordered the invasion according to the terms of the Sinai Covenant, but the act gave him no satisfaction. Sadly, no one other than God even cared.

12:12 The invading armies were the sword that the LORD sent to destroy the land through murder, looting, vandalism, and rape.

12:13 The Lord found no joy in seeing his people's crops eaten by invaders, who left only thorns. However, the apostasy of the people of Judah merited the fierce anger of the LORD (cp. Ezek 16:36-39), resulting in shame.

A Message for Israel's Neighbors

¹⁴Now this is what the LORD says: "I will uproot from their land all the evil nations reaching out for the possession I gave my people Israel. And I will uproot Judah from among them. ¹⁵But afterward I will return and have compassion on all of them. I will bring them home to their own lands again, each nation to its own possession. ¹⁶And if these nations truly learn the ways of my people, and if they learn to swear by my name, saying, 'As surely as the LORD lives' (just as they taught my people to swear by the name of Baal), then they will be given a place among my people. ¹⁷But any nation who refuses to obey me will be uprooted and destroyed. I, the LORD, have spoken!"

Jeremiah's Linen Loincloth

When God called Jeremiah as his messenger, he promised to protect him. One aspect of this protection was spiritual, as the Lord gave Jeremiah the inner strength of a fortified city (1:18). God's protection was also physical: "They will fight you, but they will fail" (1:19).

During Josiah's reign (640–609 BC), Jeremiah did not encounter much personal danger, but the situation changed dramatically when Jehoiakim came to power (609–598 BC). Hostility from the king and his family toward the prophet surfaced early in Jehoiakim's reign. Jeremiah suddenly found his life in danger, but the Lord reassured him of divine protection (11:18-23). That promise seemed to be contradicted when Pashhur arrested Jeremiah, had him whipped, and placed him in stocks (20:1-2). Jeremiah rebuked the Lord for seemingly misleading him, but he soon regained his trust in the Lord (20:7-13).

Also, early in Jehoiakim's reign, Jeremiah was arrested and placed on trial (ch 26). The Lord fulfilled his promise to strengthen Jeremiah inwardly, which allowed the prophet to remain calm. The outer protection came from some elders in the community who had served under King Josiah. They reminded the group of Hezekiah's response to danger a century before, and Ahikam saved Jeremiah's life (26:24). Jeremiah then went into hiding when Jehoiakim's officers sought to kill him (36:19-20, 26). The Lord provided a silent wall of friends who refused to reveal Jeremiah's hiding place until after Jehoiakim's death.

The new king, Zedekiah, was kinder to Jeremiah, but Jeremiah's life was in danger several times during the siege of Jerusalem. At one point, the king's officials cast him into a muddy cistern. God protected Jeremiah by prompting a foreigner, Ebed-melech, to rescue the prophet. Zedekiah then placed Jeremiah in protective custody (ch 38).

Jeremiah survived the fall of Jerusalem, though he was almost taken captive to Babylon. God prompted the Babylonian general to release Jeremiah from bondage and to give him a choice between going to Babylon as a free man and staying with Gedaliah, the newly appointed governor of Judah (39:11-14; 40:1-6). God also protected Jeremiah from Johanan and his companions, who took Jeremiah and Baruch to Egypt against their will (43:1-7).

God faithfully kept his promises to Jeremiah, as he still faithfully keeps his promises to all of his people. He does not always promise to protect those who serve him (see 2 Cor 6:4-5; 2 Tim 2:10-13; 3:11-13; 1 Pet 2:21-23; 3:14-17; Rev 14:12), but he does promise eternal salvation to those who trust in him (Jas 1:12; 1 Pet 1:6; 4:12-19).

12:14-17 The Lord explained an important aspect of Jeremiah's commission (see 1:10).

12:14 No evil nations would receive protection from God's punishment, not even those nations that God used to punish Judah. He would uproot them. • The Lord would also uproot Judah, but this is a positive reference to deliverance from exile.

12:15 I will . . . have compassion on all of them: Even other nations, as wicked as they were, could be restored after experiencing disaster.

12:16 To experience God's compassion

(12:15), the people of other nations needed to convert from idolatry and learn the ways of God's people. This conversion would require a public submission to the terms of the Sinai covenant that included the words, as surely as the LORD lives. In addition, they would need to reject any oaths made in the name of Baal, by which they had persuaded Israelites to worship foreign idols.

12:17 If these nations refused to obey the Lord, they would be uprooted and destroyed (1:10). • I, the LORD, have spoken: This statement gave God's declaration the force of a divine decree.

13:1-14 The Lord told Jeremiah to act out a parable (see also chs 18, 19, 27; see "Prophetic Sign Acts" at Ezek 4:1-17, p. 1319). The parable joined action with words to reinforce and illustrate special aspects of the Lord's response to Judah's rebellion. Jeremiah seemed unable to fully grasp the evil consequences of rejecting the Lord's demand that the people worship him as the one true God. The direct relationship between Jeremiah and the Lord was the framework for this event.

13:1-2 God instructed Jeremiah to leave a linen loincloth unwashed to loincloth as the LORD directed me, and I put it on.

³Then the LORD gave me another message: ⁴"Take the linen loincloth you are wearing, and go to the Euphrates River. Hide it there in a hole in the rocks." ⁵So I went and hid it by the Euphrates as the LORD had instructed me.

⁶A long time afterward the LORD said to me, "Go back to the Euphrates and get the loincloth I told you to hide there." ⁷So I went to the Euphrates and dug it out of the hole where I had hidden it. But now it was rotting and falling apart. The loincloth was good for nothing.

⁸Then I received this message from the LORD: ⁹"This is what the LORD says: This shows how I will rot away the pride of Judah and Jerusalem. ¹⁰These wicked people refuse to listen to me. They stubbornly follow their own desires and worship other gods. Therefore, they will become like this loincloth—good for nothing! ¹¹As a loincloth clings to a man's waist, so I created Judah and Israel to cling to me, says the LORD. They were to be my people, my pride, my glory—an honor to my name. But they would not listen to me.

¹²"So tell them, 'This is what the LORD, the God of Israel, says: May all your jars be filled with wine.' And they will reply, 'Of course! Jars are made to be filled with wine!'

¹³"Then tell them, 'No, this is what the LORD means: I will fill everyone in this land with drunkenness—from the king sitting on David's throne to the priests and the prophets, right down to the common people of Jerusalem. ¹⁴I will smash them against each other, even parents against children, says the LORD. I will not let my pity or mercy or compassion keep me from destroying them.'"

A Warning against Pride

¹⁵Listen and pay attention!

Do not be arrogant, for the LORD has spoken.

¹⁶Give glory to the LORD your God before it is too late.

Acknowledge him before he brings darkness upon you, causing you to stumble and fall on the darkening mountains.

For then, when you look for light, you will find only terrible darkness and gloom.

¹⁷And if you still refuse to listen, I will weep alone because of your pride.

My eyes will overflow with tears, because the LORD's flock will be led away into exile.

¹⁸Say to the king and his mother, "Come down from your thrones and sit in the dust, for your glorious crowns will soon be snatched from your heads."

¹⁹The towns of the Negev will close their gates, and no one will be able to open them. The people of Judah will be taken away as captives.

All will be carried into exile.

²⁰Open up your eyes and see the armies marching down from the north!

symbolize Judah's unrighteousness (cp. Isa 64:5; Rev 19:8). This piece of clothing is comparable to modern-day underwear.

13:3-5 The Euphrates River (Hebrew Perath; also in 13:5, 6, 7) is 300 miles north of Jerusalem. Jeremiah probably joined a merchant caravan for protection as he walked or rode a donkey for the 600-mile round trip. Jeremiah did not know the purpose of the trip, but he obeyed God's instructions.

13:6-7 The safest time to travel was during the dry season, from June to September. The most likely time for cloth to rot was during the wet season, October to May. • A long time afterward was probably between six and ten months.

13:8-9 The parable was the Lord's way of expressing how disgusting the pride of Judah and Jerusalem had become and how he was allowing the consequences of sin to take their course.

13:10-11 The rotten loincloth represented the people of Judah and Israel, whose wicked rebellion had corrupted them and made them worthless.

• clings: The same Hebrew word can be translated "joins" and is used to describe marital faithfulness (Gen 2:24).

• my people . . . an honor to my name: See also Exod 19:5, 6; Deut 32:10-12; Eph 2:7; 3:10.

13:12-14 Of course! The people assumed that the Lord would continue to bless them as he had in the past (Ps 104:15; Prov 9:2-5). However, the wine was not a symbol of blessing; in this case, drunkenness symbolized God's wrath (cp. Rev 14:10).

13:15-16 Jeremiah pled with the people to listen and not be arrogant, but to change their attitude. If they refused to acknowledge the Lord as the one true God of Israel, a terrible darkness would fall upon the nation.

13:17 Jeremiah had learned that if the people did not acknowledge the Lord, they would be led away into exile. The thought of it filled him with grief.

13:18-19 The king was probably Jehoiachin's son Jehoiachin, who was crowned in 597 BC after the death of his father; his mother was Nehushta (see 2 Kgs 24:1-9). Jehoiachin was eighteen years old and reigned for just three months; this message was probably delivered during his short reign. His glorious crowns would soon be taken from him by the Babylonians (see 2 Kgs 24:11-16). The treasures of the Temple and palace would be given to the Babylonians, and the royalty and elite of Judah would be carried into exile. At the same time, Judah's southern neighbors would take over the towns of the Negev, the desert area from the city of Beersheba to the Gulf of Aqaba.

13:20-22 King Jehoiachin did not seem concerned about the well-being of his

Where is your flock—your beautiful flock—that he gave you to care for?

21 What will you say when the LORD takes the allies you have cultivated and appoints them as your rulers?

Pangs of anguish will grip you,
like those of a woman in labor!

22 You may ask yourself,
“Why is all this happening to me?”

It is because of your many sins!
That is why you have been stripped and raped by invading armies.

23 Can an Ethiopian change the color of his skin?

Can a leopard take away its spots?
Neither can you start doing good,
for you have always done evil.

24 “I will scatter you like chaff that is blown away by the desert winds.

25 This is your allotment, the portion I have assigned to you,”
says the LORD,

“for you have forgotten me,
putting your trust in false gods.

26 I myself will strip you and expose you to shame.

27 I have seen your adultery and lust, and your disgusting idol worship out in the fields and on the hills.

What sorrow awaits you, Jerusalem!
How long before you are pure?”

Judah's Terrible Drought

14 This message came to Jeremiah from the LORD, explaining why he was holding back the rain:

2 “Judah wilts; commerce at the city gates grinds to a halt.

All the people sit on the ground in mourning,
and a great cry rises from Jerusalem.

3 The nobles send servants to get water,
but all the wells are dry.

The servants return with empty pitchers, confused and desperate,
covering their heads in grief.

4 The ground is parched and cracked for lack of rain.

The farmers are deeply troubled;
they, too, cover their heads.

5 Even the doe abandons her newborn fawn

because there is no grass in the field.

6 The wild donkeys stand on the bare hills panting like thirsty jackals.

They strain their eyes looking for grass,
but there is none to be found.”

7 The people say, “Our wickedness has caught up with us, LORD, but help us for the sake of your own reputation.

We have turned away from you and sinned against you again and again.

8 O Hope of Israel, our Savior in times of trouble,

why are you like a stranger to us?

Why are you like a traveler passing through the land,
stopping only for the night?

9 Are you also confused?
Is our champion helpless to save us?

You are right here among us, LORD.
We are known as your people.

Please don't abandon us now!”

10 So this is what the LORD says to his
people:

“You love to wander far from me and do not restrain yourselves.

beautiful flock, the people of Judah.
Judah suffered abuse at the hands of its supposed allies as a result of the king's many sins.

13:23 an Ethiopian (Hebrew a Cushite):
People have no choice about the color of their skin, just as a leopard has no choice about being spotted. In the same way, God's people were born trapped by evil. They had no ability to change on their own, and they refused to allow the Lord to change them.

13:24-27 The divine judge decreed condemnation.

13:24 I will scatter you like chaff: This word-picture represented the Exile of the people of Judah. Cp. Ps 1:4-5.

13:25 The people of Judah could not escape their assigned punishment. They had forgotten God and had turned to false gods.

13:26 God allowed the Babylonians to strip Judah of all its treasures and take the people captive.

13:27 Judah's idol worship included ritual sex acts in the fields and on the hills. The Lord wanted his people to be spiritually and sexually pure in relation to him.

14:1-22 This chapter is a three-way conversation among the Lord, Jeremiah, and the people. It was sparked by a serious drought that affected the land.

14:2-3 During a drought, no crops were sold in the markets at the Jerusalem gates. Previous harvests could not be stored long, so starvation threatened the people. Cisterns constructed to collect water dried up, and with no rain, no water was available for drinking or for cooking meals. As a result, a great cry went up from Jerusalem.

14:4-6 Both people and animals were helpless in the drought. • The farmers would cover their heads with coarse burlap to express shame, humiliation, and mourning.

14:7-9 Although the people confessed their sins, they did not turn from their wickedness. They tried to manipulate God into helping them by questioning his love, wisdom, and power, while still claiming the special privilege of being his people.

14:10 The Lord's answer to their self-serving prayer cut to the heart of the issue. Their status as God's people had Therefore, I will no longer accept you as my people.

Now I will remember all your wickedness and will punish you for your sins."

The LORD Forbids Jeremiah to Intercede

¹¹Then the LORD said to me, "Do not pray for these people anymore. ¹²When they fast, I will pay no attention. When they present their burnt offerings and grain offerings to me, I will not accept them. Instead, I will devour them with war, famine, and disease."

¹³Then I said, "O Sovereign LORD, their prophets are telling them, 'All is well—no war or famine will come. The LORD will surely send you peace.'"

¹⁴Then the LORD said, "These prophets are telling lies in my name. I did not send them or tell them to speak. I did not give them any messages. Their prophesy of ^avisions and revelations they have never seen or heard. They speak foolishness made up in their own lying hearts. ¹⁵Therefore, this is what the LORD says: I will punish these lying prophets, for they have spoken in my name even though I never sent them. They say that no war or famine will come, but they themselves will die by war and famine!

¹⁶As for the people to whom they prophesy—their bodies will be thrown out into the streets of Jerusalem, victims of famine and war. There will be no one left to bury them. Husbands, wives, sons, and daughters—all will be gone. For I will pour out their own wickedness on them. ¹⁷Now, Jeremiah, say this to them:

"Night and day my eyes overflow with tears.
I cannot stop weeping, for my virgin daughter—my precious people—has been struck down and lies mortally wounded.

¹⁸If I go out into the fields,
I see the bodies of people slaughtered
by the enemy.
If I walk the city streets,
I see people who have died of starvation.
The prophets and priests continue with their work,
but they don't know what they're doing."

A Prayer for Healing

¹⁹LORD, have you completely rejected Judah?

Do you really hate Jerusalem?
Why have you wounded us past all hope of healing?

We hoped for peace, but no peace came.

We hoped for a time of healing, but found only terror.

²⁰LORD, we confess our wickedness and that of our ancestors, too.
We all have sinned against you.

²¹For the sake of your reputation, LORD, do not abandon us.

Do not disgrace your own glorious throne.

Please remember us,
and do not break your covenant with us.

²²Can any of the worthless foreign gods send us rain?

Does it fall from the sky by itself?
No, you are the one, O LORD our God!
Only you can do such things.
So we will wait for you to help us.

Judah's Inevitable Doom

15 Then the LORD said to me, "Even if Moses and Samuel stood before me pleading for these people, I wouldn't help them. Away with them! Get them out of my been destroyed by their wickedness, so their prayer was absurd and God's judgment would proceed.

14:11-12 For the third time (see 7:16; 11:14), God told Jeremiah not to pray for the people of Judah and Jerusalem. It would be pointless for the people to fast, since the Lord had decided to pay no attention. The priest's presentation of burnt offerings and grain offerings, which the Lord had given Moses as a way of worshiping him (see Lev 1-2), would be wasted effort, because the Lord would not accept them. Instead, the Lord would respond with war, famine, and disease.

14:13-16 their prophets: The government of Judah supported a corps of prophets who promoted the religious views of the king and his advisers. The Lord often condemned them, along with the officials and the priests. Here, the Lord exposed them as impostors and described what would happen to them and to the people to whom they prophesied.

14:17-18 As he surveyed Judah's condition, God vividly expressed his grief through a short poem. The Lord takes no pleasure in the death of the wicked (Ezek 18:23; 33:11).

14:19-22 Despite the Lord's command to the contrary (14:11), Jeremiah prayed for God to mitigate the disaster that was occurring and the greater disaster that would befall them.

14:19 Jerusalem: Hebrew Zion. (See "Mount Zion, the City of God" at Ps 48, p. 947.)

14:22 Worship of other gods is useless. Only the Creator of the universe has the power to make nature do his bidding.

15:1-9 The Lord's reply to Jeremiah's prayer (14:19-22) was that Judah's destruction was inevitable.

15:1 Moses and Samuel were noted for their intercessory prayer. Several times, when they prayed for the rebellious Israelites, the Lord withdrew his threatened punishment (see Exod 32:11-14;

sight! ²And if they say to you, 'But where can we go?' tell them, 'This is what the LORD says:

" 'Those who are destined for death, to death;
those who are destined for war, to war;
those who are destined for famine, to famine;
those who are destined for captivity, to captivity.'

³"I will send four kinds of destroyers against them," says the LORD. "I will send the sword to kill, the dogs to drag away, the vultures to devour, and the wild animals to finish up what is left. ⁴Because of the wicked things Manasseh son of Hezekiah, king of Judah, did in Jerusalem, I will make my people an object of horror to all the kingdoms of the earth.

⁵"Who will feel sorry for you, Jerusalem? Who will weep for you? Who will even bother to ask how you are?

⁶You have abandoned me and turned your back on me," says the LORD.

"Therefore, I will raise my fist to destroy you.

I am tired of always giving you another chance.

⁷I will winnow you like grain at the gates of your cities and take away the children you hold dear.

I will destroy my own people, because they refuse to change their evil ways.

⁸There will be more widows than the grains of sand on the seashore.

At noontime I will bring a destroyer against the mothers of young men. I will cause anguish and terror to come upon them suddenly.

⁹The mother of seven grows faint and gasps for breath; her sun has gone down while it is still day.

She sits childless now, disgraced and humiliated.

And I will hand over those who are left to be killed by the enemy. I, the LORD, have spoken!"

Jeremiah's Complaint

¹⁰Then I said,

"What sorrow is mine, my mother.

Oh, that I had died at birth!

I am hated everywhere I go.

I am neither a lender who threatens to foreclose nor a borrower who refuses to pay—yet they all curse me."

¹¹The LORD replied,

"I will take care of you, Jeremiah.

Your enemies will ask you to plead on their behalf in times of trouble and distress.

¹²Can a man break a bar of iron from the north, or a bar of bronze?

¹³At no cost to them, I will hand over your wealth and treasures as plunder to your enemies, for sin runs rampant in your land.

¹⁴I will tell your enemies to take you as captives to a foreign land. For my anger blazes like a fire that will burn forever."

Num 14:13-20; 1 Sam 7:8-10). But now, even their intervention would have been ineffective.

15:2 The people had no place to go to escape death . . . war . . . famine, and captivity.

15:4 Judah's apostasy could be traced back to Manasseh son of Hezekiah, the king who reigned 697–642 BC (see 2 Kgs 21:1-18; 2 Chr 33:1-20).

15:5 These three questions are rhetorical—the answer is, "No one!"

15:6-7 The people had heard the charge that they had abandoned God and turned their back on him before (2:13), but they had not taken it seriously. Though the Lord had often given them another chance to repent, their sin provoked him to carry out the curses of the Sinai covenant (Deut 27:15-26).

15:8-9 Both the old and the young men would die.

15:10-21 Jeremiah bared his heart to God over the unjust treatment he was receiving because he was delivering the Lord's message. In response, the Lord promised to protect and care for his prophet.

15:10 Feelings of grief gripped Jeremiah when people hated and cursed him for no reason.

15:11-14 The Lord replied to Jeremiah's lament with reassurance and then explained what would be happening soon.

15:11 When trouble and distress fell upon the people, they would ask Jeremiah to plead on their behalf.

15:12 Iron and bronze are metaphors for the strong resolve that the Lord would give to Jeremiah (1:18).

15:13-14 It is not clear whether the Lord was speaking of Jeremiah's or of Judah's future. If Jeremiah's, this prediction was fulfilled after the fall of Jerusalem (586 BC), when Jeremiah and Baruch were taken to Egypt against their will (see chs 41–44). If it refers to Judah's future, the prediction was fulfilled in the fall of Jerusalem and the Exile. • will burn forever: As in some Hebrew manuscripts (see also 17:4); most Hebrew manuscripts read will burn against you.

¹⁵Then I said,

"LORD, you ^bknow what's happening to me.
Please step in and help me. Punish my persecutors!

Please give me time; don't let me die young.
It's for your sake that I am suffering.

¹⁶When I discovered your words, I devoured them.

They are my joy and my heart's delight,
for I bear your name,
O LORD God of Heaven's Armies.

¹⁷I never joined the people in their merry feasts.

I sat alone because your hand was on me.

I was filled with indignation at their sins.

¹⁸Why then does my suffering continue?
Why is my wound so incurable?

Your help seems as uncertain as a seasonal brook,
like a spring that has gone dry."

¹⁹This is how the LORD responds:

"If you ^creturn to me, I will ^crestore you so you can continue to serve me.

If you speak good words rather than worthless ones,
you will be my spokesman.

You must ^cinfluence them;
do not let them ^cinfluence you!

²⁰They will fight against you like an attacking army, but I will make you as secure as a fortified wall of bronze.

They will not conquer you, for I am with you to protect and rescue you.

I, the LORD, have spoken!

²¹Yes, I will certainly keep you safe from these wicked men.
I will rescue you from their cruel hands."

Jeremiah Forbidden to Marry

16 The LORD gave me another message.
He said, ²"Do not get married or have children in this place. ³For this is what the LORD says about the children born here in this city and about their mothers and fathers: ⁴They will die from terrible diseases.
No one will mourn for them or bury them,
and they will lie scattered on the ground like manure. They will die from war and famine, and their bodies will be food for the vultures and wild animals."

Judah's Coming Punishment

⁵This is what the LORD says: "Do not go to funerals to mourn and show sympathy for these people, for I have removed my protection and peace from them. I have taken away my unfailing love and my mercy. ⁶Both
the great and the lowly will die in this land.
No one will bury them or mourn for them.
Their friends will not cut themselves in sorrow or shave their heads in sadness. ⁷No one will offer a meal to comfort those who mourn for the dead—not even at the death of a mother or father. No one will send a cup of wine to console them.

⁸"And do not go to their feasts and parties.
Do not eat and drink with them at all. ⁹For
this is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, says: In your own lifetime, before your very eyes, I will put an end to the happy singing and laughter in this land.
The joyful voices of bridegrooms and brides will no longer be heard.

15:15-18 Jeremiah's prayer sheds light on a crucial moment in his relationship with the Lord, when persecution had shattered his strength. It is possible that Jeremiah had begun to let his thinking be influenced by the rebellious people of Judah.

15:16-17 Jeremiah was glad to declare God's word, even though it meant that he could not participate in the merry feasts of his sinful people. He protested the apparent injustice he had suffered (15:18).

15:18 Jeremiah posed two rhetorical questions that seem to presuppose that he should not have to suffer.

15:19 The Lord confronted Jeremiah with the need to make a decision. If Jeremiah decided to return to a disposition of service and submission, the Lord would restore him to further usefulness.

If Jeremiah took care to utter good words of submission, faith, and obedience, and reject worthless ones (such as those that the false prophets spoke, 14:14-16), Jeremiah could continue to be the Lord's spokesman.

15:20-21 The Lord reaffirmed the promises he had made to Jeremiah when he called him to be a prophet (see 1:18-19).

16:1-18 Jeremiah's life was to be a sign or a parable (see note on 13:1-14), as the Lord instructed him not to marry (16:1-4) and not to go to funerals (16:5-7) or celebrations (16:8-9).

16:1-2 In Hebrew society, bachelors were rare and males were expected to get married in their early twenties. However, the severe crisis of the time apparently required Jeremiah to be a divine messenger without family obligations. He needed to depend entirely on the Lord (cp. 1 Cor 7:26-35).

16:3-4 Jeremiah's lack of children was the basis for a lesson about the future. The time would soon come when so many children and parents would die that no one would remain to mourn for them or bury them.

16:5-7 The ban on funerals and mourning was a parable with a message to the people of Judah. Destruction would be so great and widespread that no one would mourn properly or comfort others.

16:8-9 The ban on attending feasts and parties isolated Jeremiah from meaningful social contact, but the Lord gave it special importance. The entire nation and its social interaction would soon cease to exist.

11^aThen you will give them the LORD's reply: 'It is because your ancestors were unfaithful to me. They worshiped other gods and served them. They abandoned me and did not obey my word. 12And you are even worse than your ancestors! You stubbornly follow your own evil desires and refuse to listen to me. 13So I will throw you out of this land and send you into a foreign land where you and your ancestors have never been. There you can worship idols day and night—and I will grant you no favors!'

Hope despite the Disaster

14^aBut the time is coming," says the LORD, "when people who are taking an oath will no longer say, 'As surely as the LORD lives, who rescued the people of Israel from the land of Egypt.' 15Instead, they will say, 'As surely as the LORD lives, who brought the people of Israel back to their own land from the land of the north and from all the countries to which he had exiled them.' For I will bring them back to this land that I gave their ancestors.

16^aBut now I am sending for many fishermen who will catch them," says the LORD. "I am sending for hunters who will hunt them down in the mountains, hills, and caves. 17I am watching them closely, and I see every sin. They cannot hope to hide from me. 18I will double their punishment for all their sins, because they have defiled my land with lifeless images of their detestable gods and have filled my territory with their evil deeds."

Jeremiah's Prayer of Confidence

19 LORD, you are my strength and fortress, my refuge in the day of trouble! Nations from around the world will come to you and say, "Our ancestors left us a foolish heritage, for they worshiped worthless idols. 20 Can people make their own gods? These are not real gods at all!"

21 The LORD says, "Now I will show them my power; now I will show them my might. At last they will know and understand that I am the LORD.

Judah's Sin and Punishment

17¹ "The sin of Judah is inscribed with an iron chisel—engraved with a diamond point on their stony hearts and on the corners of their altars. 2 Even their children go to worship at their pagan altars and Asherah poles, beneath every green tree and on every high hill. 3 So I will hand over my holy mountain—along with all your wealth and treasures and your pagan shrines—as plunder to your enemies, for sin runs rampant in your land.

16:10 The Lord told Jeremiah to expect questions from the people that would express their self-righteousness and their belief that the Lord should never harm them.

16:11-13 Jeremiah's reply was the message he received when he was commissioned: The people had abandoned the Lord for idols (ch 2), so the Lord would abandon them.

16:14-18 Jeremiah's message was two-pronged: Judgment does not erase eventual hope (16:14-15), but neither does hope cancel out the certainty of judgment (16:16-18).

16:14-15 The Lord planned to bring his people back from exile to the Promised Land, an event that would be on par with the exodus from Egypt (see Ezra 1-6). The Exodus was the primary event in Israel's history that had demonstrated the reality and power of the one true God.

16:16 The fishermen and hunters were the Babylonian soldiers God used to mete out his judgment (cp. Hab 1:14-16).

16:18 The punishment was double—slaughter and exile—because the people of Judah had violated the two most important commandments. They did not love God (Deut 6:4-5), and they did not love their neighbors (Lev 19:18; see also Matt 22:37-40).

16:19-20 Jeremiah responded by worshiping the Lord for his protection in times of trouble and his provision of salvation for people from around the world.

16:21 The Lord will require all people to know his power and might and to understand that he is the Lord (cp. Exod 6:7; 8:22).

17:1-4 The families of Judah were committed to Baal worship; once again, the Lord listed the sins that justified their judgment.

17:1 A stone mason used an iron chisel or a diamond point to permanently inscribe images and texts on stones. Idol worship had so hardened the thoughts, emotions, and will of the people that it seemed impossible for them to change. * In OT times, the corners of . . . altars had projections called "horns" (e.g., Exod 27:1-2). According to covenant rules, when an animal sacrifice was offered, blood was applied to these horns. How Baal worshipers treated them is unknown.

17:2 Asherah poles were cut from trees and erected near altars dedicated to Baal, the Canaanite storm god. Asherah was the Canaanite goddess who symbolized the fertility of moist ground that could produce crops. Ritual sex was performed near these altars to cause rain to fall, seeds to sprout, and plants to grow. A tree growing near an altar could also represent this fertility goddess. The people of Judah were so depraved that parents encouraged their children to join them in these rituals.

17:3 The Lord's holy mountain was the Temple Mount in Jerusalem; wealth and treasures were stored there.

4 The wonderful possession I have reserved for you will slip from your hands. I will tell your enemies to take you as captives to a foreign land. For my anger blazes like a fire that will burn forever."

Wisdom from the LORD

5 This is what the LORD says: "Cursed are those who put their trust in mere humans, who rely on human strength and turn their hearts away from the LORD.

6 They are like stunted shrubs in the desert, with no hope for the future. They will live in the barren wilderness, in an uninhabited salty land.

7 "But blessed are those who trust in the LORD and have made the LORD their hope and confidence.

8 They are like trees planted along a riverbank, with roots that reach deep into the water. Such trees are not bothered by the heat or worried by long months of drought. Their leaves stay green, and they never stop producing fruit.

9 "The human heart is the most deceitful of all things, and desperately wicked. Who really knows how bad it is?

10 But I, the LORD, search all hearts and examine secret motives. I give all people their due rewards, according to what their actions deserve."

Jeremiah's Trust in the LORD

11 Like a partridge that hatches eggs she has not laid, so are those who get their wealth by unjust means. At midlife they will lose their riches; in the end, they will become poor old fools.

12 But we worship at your throne—eternal, high, and glorious!

13 O LORD, the hope of Israel, all who turn away from you will be disgraced.

They will be buried in the dust of the earth, for they have abandoned the LORD, the fountain of living water.

14 O LORD, if you heal me, I will be truly healed; if you save me, I will be truly saved. My praises are for you alone!

15 People scoff at me and say, "What is this 'message from the LORD' you talk about? Why don't your predictions come true?"

16 LORD, I have not abandoned my job as a shepherd for your people. I have not urged you to send disaster. You have heard everything I've said.

17 LORD, don't terrorize me! You alone are my hope in the day of disaster.

18 Bring shame and dismay on all who persecute me, but don't let me experience shame and dismay.

Bring a day of terror on them. Yes, bring double destruction upon them!

17:4 The wonderful possession, the Promised Land, would slip from Judah's hands when the people were taken as captives to Babylon.

17:5-10 This meditation on the folly of trusting in humans is contrasted with the wisdom of trusting in the Lord.

17:5 Trust is the disposition of the heart that results in obedience (cp. 11:4; Deut 27:15-26).

17:6 The people of Judah would be utterly helpless in the time of calamity because they had switched their trust from the Lord to human capabilities. The people of Judah would be just like shrubs in the desert that are stunted because they lack water.

17:7-8 Those who trust in the Lord, like trees planted along a riverbank, will have abundant resources and be well prepared to meet the vicissitudes of life.

• Water represents the law of the Lord (cp. Ps 1; Ezek 47:1-12; Rev 2:1-2).

17:9-10 By nature, the heart of all human beings is deceitful and desperately wicked. Only the Lord really knows how bad it is.

17:11-18 Jeremiah affirmed that he had learned this lesson and did indeed trust in the Lord.

17:11-13 Jeremiah commended the Lord's faithfulness to his people, in contrast to the fate awaiting those who turned away from the Lord.

17:11 Jeremiah cited a general principle (cp. Ps 73) that was not necessarily universal (Job 21:27-33): Those who have gained wealth by unjust means eventually lose those riches.

17:12 God's faithful people worship the sovereign Lord, not money.

17:14-18 Jeremiah asked that since he had been faithful to the Lord, the Lord would rescue him from his persecutors and give him healing, salvation, and vindication.

17:14 Only the Lord can heal and save, so praises are due to him alone.

17:15 Jeremiah's predictions had not yet come true, so the people treated him with scorn; they might have even called him a false prophet (cp. Deut 18:21-22).

17:16 Because he was faithful, Jeremiah appealed to the Lord for vindication.

17:17 Jeremiah had a natural fear of the coming national disaster, so he turned to the Lord for protection.

17:18 Jeremiah wanted his persecutors to experience the shame and dismay they deserved, the very feelings that he was experiencing (17:15).

Observing the Sabbath

¹⁹This is what the LORD said to me: "Go and stand in the gates of Jerusalem, first in the gate where the king goes in and out, and then in each of the other gates. ²⁰Say to all the people, 'Listen to this message from the LORD, you kings of Judah and all you people of Judah and everyone living in Jerusalem. ²¹This is what the LORD says: Listen to my warning! Stop carrying on your trade at Jerusalem's gates on the 'Sabbath day. ²²Do not do your work on the Sabbath, but make it a holy day. I gave this command to your ancestors, ²³but they did not listen or obey. They stubbornly refused to pay attention or accept my discipline.

²⁴"But if you obey me, says the LORD, and do not carry on your trade at the gates or work on the Sabbath day, and if you keep it holy, ²⁵then kings and their officials will go in and out of these gates forever. There will always be a descendant of David sitting on the throne here in Jerusalem. Kings and their officials will always ride in and out among the people of Judah in chariots and on horses, and this city will remain forever. ²⁶And from all around Jerusalem, from the towns of Judah and Benjamin, from the western foothills and the hill country and the Negev, the people will come with their burnt offerings and sacrifices. They will bring their grain offerings, frankincense, and thanksgiving offerings to the LORD's Temple.

²⁷"But if you do not listen to me and refuse to keep the Sabbath holy, and if on the Sabbath day you bring loads of merchandise through the gates of Jerusalem just as on other days, then I will set fire to these gates. The fire will spread to the palaces, and no one will be able to put out the roaring flames.' "

The Potter and the Clay

18 The LORD gave another message to Jeremiah. He said, ²"Go down to the potter's shop, and I will speak to you there." ³So I did as he told me and found the potter working at his wheel. ⁴But the jar he was making did not turn out as he had hoped, so he crushed it into a lump of clay again and started over.

⁵Then the LORD gave me this message: ⁶"O Israel, can I not do to you as this potter has done to his clay? As the clay is in the potter's hand, so are you in my hand. ⁷If I announce that a certain nation or kingdom is to be uprooted, torn down, and destroyed, ⁸but then that nation renounces its evil ways, I will not destroy it as I had planned. ⁹And if I announce that I will plant and build up a certain nation or kingdom, ¹⁰but then that nation turns to evil and refuses to obey me, I will not bless it as I said I would.

¹¹"Therefore, Jeremiah, go and warn all Judah and Jerusalem. Say to them, 'This is what the LORD says: I am planning disaster for you instead of good. So turn from your evil ways, each of you, and do what is right.' "

¹²But the people replied, "Don't waste your breath. We will continue to live as we want to, stubbornly following our own evil desires."

17:19-27 Motivated by greed, the people of Jerusalem were violating the sanctity of the Sabbath day (see Exod 20:8-11; Deut 5:12-15). If they observed the Sabbath, they would lose income from trade. The Lord spelled out the reasons why they should keep the Sabbath holy.

17:19-20 The Lord instructed Jeremiah to go from gate to gate where business was transacted and confront the offenders face to face, beginning with the king.

17:21-22 Trading on the Sabbath was wrong and had to be stopped. The Sabbath was not a time to buy and sell, but was established in the Sinai covenant as a holy day (Exod 29:8-11; 31:12-17) when the people of Israel were to rest and honor the Lord.

17:23 they did not listen or obey: The people probably considered the Sabbath too costly to observe, so they ignored it or overlooked its violations.

17:24-25 The Lord was willing to give the people a chance to change their ways. By choosing to obey God, the people could enjoy unending peace and the continuation of the kingdom and the city of Jerusalem. • The promise of chariots and horses represented the Lord's blessing.

17:26 If the people repented, the Lord's blessings would extend to the towns of Judah and Benjamin. • The western foothills (Hebrew the Shephelah) stretched north and south between the coastal plain of the Mediterranean Sea and the hill country, where Jerusalem rested. • The Negev was the desert that stretched from Beersheba southward to the Gulf of Aqaba. People from all these areas would come with their offerings to worship the Lord in his Temple.

17:27 I will set fire to these gates: This event occurred in 586 bc (2 Kgs 25:9).

18:1-11 The Lord had Jeremiah take part in an object lesson. What Jeremiah observed at the potter's shop became a picture of what the Lord was about to do with Judah.

18:1-4 Jeremiah watched as the potter formed an earthen jar, then crushed it and started over.

18:5-6 The Lord likened himself to this potter. He could set standards of perfection and choose to destroy or reshape his work.

18:7-10 If a nation or kingdom rejected the one true God, then God could decree that it be uprooted, torn down, and destroyed (cp. 1:10). If the nation changed its evil ways, the Lord's anger would relent and he would not destroy it.

18:11 The Lord planned to deal with Judah and Jerusalem as the potter dealt with the clay (18:4). However, they could still escape disaster if they would reject their evil ways and do what is right.

18:12 Instead of heeding the Lord's message, the people of Judah ridiculed it, refused to change, and made a brazen commitment to pursue their own evil desires.

- ¹³So this is what the LORD says:
 "Has anyone ever heard of such a thing,
 even among the pagan nations?
 My virgin daughter Israel has done something terrible!
¹⁴Does the snow ever disappear from the mountaintops of Lebanon?
 Do the cold streams flowing from those distant mountains ever run dry?
¹⁵But my people are not so reliable, for they have deserted me;
 they burn incense to worthless idols.
 They have stumbled off the ancient highways
 and walk in muddy paths.
¹⁶Therefore, their land will become desolate, a monument to their stupidity.
 All who pass by will be astonished and will shake their heads in amazement.
¹⁷I will scatter my people before their enemies
 as the east wind scatters dust.
 And in all their trouble I will turn my back on them and refuse to notice their distress."

A Plot against Jeremiah

¹⁸Then the people said, "Come on, let's plot a way to stop Jeremiah. We have plenty of priests and wise men and prophets. We don't need him to teach the word and give us advice and prophecies. Let's spread rumors about him and ignore what he says."

- ¹⁹LORD, hear me and help me!
 Listen to what my enemies are saying.
²⁰Should they repay evil for good?
 They have dug a pit to kill me,

- though I pleaded for them and tried to protect them from your anger.
²¹So let their children starve!
 Let them die by the sword!
 Let their wives become childless widows.
 Let their old men die in a plague, and let their young men be killed in battle!
²²Let screaming be heard from their homes
 as warriors come suddenly upon
 them.
 For they have dug a pit for me and have hidden traps along my path.
²³LORD, you know all about their murderous plots against me.
 Don't forgive their crimes and blot out their sins.
 Let them die before you.
 Deal with them in your anger.

Jeremiah's Shattered Jar

19 This is what the LORD said to me: "Go and buy a clay jar. Then ask some of the leaders of the people and of the priests to follow you. ²Go out through the Gate of Broken Pots to the garbage dump in the valley of Ben-Hinnom, and give them this message. ³Say to them, 'Listen to this message from the LORD, you kings of Judah and citizens of Jerusalem! This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, says: I will bring a terrible disaster on this place, and the ears of those who hear about it will ring!

⁴"For Israel has forsaken me and turned this valley into a place of wickedness. The people burn incense to foreign gods—idols never before acknowledged by this 18:13-17 The Lord answered that he would scatter his people who had deserted him.

18:13 Has anyone ever heard of such a thing? In other nations, people did not turn their backs on their national deities (2:11-13), but Israel blatantly mocked the one true God.

18:14-15 The answer to these two rhetorical questions was "No." The snow and the streams of the mountaintops of Lebanon were perennially reliable.
 By contrast, the Lord's people were not so reliable. • The ancient highways represented a life of faithfulness to the covenant (6:16), while the muddy paths symbolized a life of self-serving paganism.

18:16-17 The Lord pronounced sentence on Judah and Jerusalem. • their land will become desolate . . . I will

scatter my people: In 605–586 BC, Judah and Jerusalem were progressively emptied of residents. • as the east wind scatters dust: During the summer, a strong hot wind from the east can blow sand and dust from the desert into Judah. • I will turn my back on them: The people would no longer experience a covenant relationship with the Lord.

18:18-23 Jeremiah made an impassioned plea for vengeance on those who were trying to subvert his ministry.

18:18 The people hated Jeremiah because his authoritative messages challenged the messages of their leaders, so they plotted to stop him.

18:19-20 Jeremiah reminded the Lord of the injustice of his enemies' opposition.

18:21-23 In his prayer for vengeance, Jeremiah asked God to fulfill his promised curses against those who violated his covenant (cp. Deut 27:11-26; 28:15-68; see also "Prayers for Vengeance" at Ps 137, p. 1017).

19:1-15 Jeremiah acted out another parable (see note at 13:1-14) that demonstrated to the leaders of Judah that the Lord would utterly destroy their idolatrous and murderous nation.

19:2 the valley of Ben-Hinnom: See note on 7:30-34.

19:4-5 The people burn incense: According to the Sinai Covenant, offering incense while worshiping the Lord was to be an act of the priests (Exod 30:8). Offering incense to idols was a terrible affront to the Lord. • the blood of innocent children: Child sacrifice was practiced in Baal worship, and sometimes by the kings of Judah (2 Kgs 17:17; Ps 106:37-38).

generation, by their ancestors, or by the kings of Judah. And they have filled this place with the blood of innocent children. ⁵They have built pagan shrines to Baal, and there they burn their sons as sacrifices to Baal. I have never commanded such a horrible deed; it never even crossed my mind to command such a thing! ⁶So beware, for the time is coming, says the LORD, when this garbage dump will no longer be called Topheth or the valley of Ben-Hinnom, but the Valley of Slaughter.

⁷"For I will upset the careful plans of Judah and Jerusalem. I will allow the people to be slaughtered by invading armies, and I will leave their dead bodies as food for the vultures and wild animals. ⁸I will reduce Jerusalem to ruins, making it a monument to their stupidity. All who pass by will be astonished and will gasp at the destruction they see there. ⁹I will see to it that your enemies lay siege to the city until all the food is gone. Then those trapped inside will eat their own sons and daughters and friends. They will be driven to utter despair."

¹⁰"As these men watch you, Jeremiah, smash the jar you brought. ¹¹Then say to them, 'This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says: As this jar lies shattered, so I will shatter the people of Judah and Jerusalem beyond all hope of repair. They will bury the bodies here in Topheth, the garbage dump, until there is no more room for them. ¹²This is what I will do to this place and its people, says the LORD. I will cause this city to become defiled like Topheth. ¹³Yes, all the houses in Jerusalem, including the palace of Judah's kings, will become like Topheth—all the houses where you burned incense on the rooftops to your star gods, and where liquid offerings were poured out to your idols.'"

¹⁴Then Jeremiah returned from Topheth, the garbage dump where he had delivered this message, and he stopped in front of the Temple of the LORD. He said to the people there, ¹⁵"This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, says: 'I will bring disaster upon this city and its surrounding towns as I promised, because you have stubbornly refused to listen to me.'"

Jeremiah and Pashhur

20 Now Pashhur son of Immer, the priest in charge of the Temple of the LORD, heard what Jeremiah was prophesying.

Rom 13:1-7

Both the OT and the NT claim that the Lord is the one true God and that God is supreme over all nations and all peoples in all ages. The Scriptures affirm this supremacy as true even when rulers in those nations do not believe in or acknowledge the one true God. Kings and emperors might believe that they control all events in their realms, but they are wrong. The Lord God is always in control.

The OT prophets, including Jeremiah, declared that the Lord God of Israel decided who would become king or emperor of each nation. These rulers were held accountable before God concerning the morality of their policies and how they were carried out. This claim is apparent in Jer 18, 25, 46–51.

As the Lord deals with the nations, his goal has always been to bring these nations and their people to himself. God wants all nations to obey him and his laws, as expressed in the Sinai Covenant. If these nations fail to recognize the reality of the one true God, they will suffer severe judgment. To selected nations, God did soften judgment by promising that a remnant would remain to continue their history (see Jer 46–51).

The Lord desires the conversion of every nation on earth to sincere devotion and commitment to himself. He has always wanted all people to live righteous lives and to experience the joy of truly worshipping him.

19:6 Valley of Slaughter: Cp. 7:32.

19:9 The siege of Jerusalem lasted for two and a half years, resulting in severe famine and despair (see 2 Kgs 25:1-4).
• their own sons and daughters: Cp. Deut 28:53-57.

19:10-13 Judah, the nation that these leaders represented, would be utterly shattered and broken beyond all hope of repair. Never again would Judah be a sovereign nation with a Davidic king (see 33:17-18 and notes), and the city of Jerusalem would be defiled like Topheth, the unclean valley (see note on 7:30-34).

19:14-15 Jeremiah concluded his message at the Temple of the LORD, where the common people could hear him.

20:1-6 The persecution suffered by Jeremiah moved from words to action. Jeremiah was whipped and placed in stocks overnight on the charge that he had blasphemed the Temple. When he was released, Jeremiah gave his jailer a message of personal condemnation from the Lord.

20:1-2 Pashhur, the head of the police who kept order in the Temple area, ranked second to the high priest in authority. Evidently, he had heard Jeremiah proclaim the Lord's decree about ²So he arrested Jeremiah the prophet and had him whipped and put in stocks at the Benjamin Gate of the LORD's Temple.

³The next day, when Pashhur finally released him, Jeremiah said, "Pashhur, the LORD has changed your name. From now on you are to be called 'The Man Who Lives in Terror.' ⁴For this is what the LORD says: 'I will send terror upon you and all your friends, and you will watch as they are slaughtered by the swords of the enemy. I will hand the people of Judah over to the king of Babylon. He will take them captive to Babylon or run them through with the sword. ⁵And I will let your enemies plunder Jerusalem. All the famed treasures of the city—the precious jewels and gold and silver of your kings—will be carried off to Babylon. ⁶As for you, Pashhur, you and all your household will go as captives to Babylon. There you will die and be buried, you and all your friends to whom you prophesied that everything would be all right.'"

Jeremiah's Complaint

⁷ O LORD, you misled me, and I allowed myself to be misled.

You are stronger than I am,
and you overpowered me.

Now I am mocked every day;
everyone laughs at me.

⁸ When I speak, the words burst out.
"Violence and destruction!" I shout.
So these messages from the LORD have made me a household joke.

⁹ But if I say I'll never mention the LORD or speak in his name,
his word burns in my heart like a fire.
It's like a fire in my bones!
I am worn out trying to hold it in!
I can't do it!

¹⁰ I have heard the many rumors about me.
They call me "The Man Who Lives in Terror."

They threaten, "If you say anything, we will report it."

Even my old friends are watching me, waiting for a fatal slip.

"He will trap himself," they say,
"and then we will get our revenge on
him."

¹¹ But the LORD stands beside me like a great warrior.

Before him my persecutors will stumble.

They cannot defeat me.

They will fail and be thoroughly
humiliated.

Their dishonor will never be forgotten.

¹² O LORD of Heaven's Armies, you test those who are righteous, and you examine the deepest thoughts and secrets.

Let me see your vengeance against them,
for I have committed my cause to you.

¹³ Sing to the LORD!

⁸Praise the LORD!

For though I was poor and needy,
he rescued me from my oppressors.

¹⁴ Yet I curse the day I was born!
May no one celebrate the day of my birth.

¹⁵ I curse the messenger who told my father,

"Good news—you have a son!"

¹⁶ Let him be destroyed like the cities of old that the LORD overthrew without mercy.

Terrify him all day long with battle
shouts,

the destruction of Jerusalem, including the Temple. He regarded it as such blasphemy that he thought Jeremiah should be punished.

20:3 The Man Who Lives in Terror: Hebrew Magor-missabib, which means "surrounded by terror"; also in 20:10. Cp. 46:5; Ps 31:13.

20:4-5 This is the first instance in which Babylon is named as the country whose armies would invade Judah and take the people into exile. The invaders would take the precious jewels and gold and silver, leaving Judah without resources.

20:6 Pashhur would be confronted with the proof that he had been a false prophet.

20:7 you misled me: Jeremiah spoke of his calling from the Lord (1:5-10) using the same Hebrew word that elsewhere refers to sexual seduction (Exod 22:16).

20:8-9 Jeremiah found it impossible not to speak the words of God's judgment, even though his messages turned him into a household joke (cp. Job 32:18-20; Ps 39:1-3; Acts 4:18-20).

20:10 The people sarcastically threw back on Jeremiah the name that he had given to Pashhur, The Man Who Lives in Terror (20:3). Even Jeremiah's old friends looked for ways to twist his words and trip him up.

20:11 Jeremiah realized that God was like a great warrior standing at his side. Jeremiah's persecutors were at a real disadvantage and would completely fail.

20:12 Jeremiah placed his complete trust in the LORD of Heaven's Armies (see 5:14), who alone could carry out the vengeance due to the prophet's enemies.

20:13 Suddenly, relief and joy came to Jeremiah's soul; he recalled that even when he was poor and needy, the Lord had rescued him from his oppressors.

20:14-18 Jeremiah's hope of deliverance did not negate the reality of his circumstances. Shocked by his persecution, Jeremiah wished that he were already dead or that he had never been born (cp. 16:3-4; Job 3).

20:16 The cities of old were probably Sodom and Gomorrah (Gen 19:24-29).

4. MESSAGES OF JUDGMENT (21:1–28:17) Messages about the Kings of Judah (21:1–23:8)

No Deliverance from Babylon

21 The LORD spoke through Jeremiah when King Zedekiah sent Pashhur son of Malkijah and Zephaniah son of Maaseiah, the priest, to speak with him. They begged Jeremiah, ²“Please speak to the LORD for us and ask him to help us. King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon is attacking Judah. Perhaps the LORD will be gracious and do a mighty miracle as he has done in the past. Perhaps he will force Nebuchadnezzar to withdraw his armies.”

³Jeremiah replied, “Go back to King Zedekiah and tell him, ⁴‘This is what the LORD, the God of Israel, says: I will make your weapons useless against the king of Babylon and the Babylonians who are outside your walls attacking you. In fact, I will bring your enemies right into the heart of this city. ⁵I myself will fight against you with a strong hand and a powerful arm, for I am very angry. You have made me furious! ⁶I will send a terrible plague upon this city, and both people and animals will die. ⁷And after all that, says the LORD, I will hand over King Zedekiah, his staff, and everyone else in the city who survives the disease, war, and famine. I will hand them over to King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon and to their other enemies. He will slaughter them and show them no mercy, pity, or compassion.’

⁸“Tell all the people, ‘This is what the LORD says: Take your choice of life or death! ⁹Everyone who stays in Jerusalem will die from war, famine, or disease, but those who

Jeremiah put it bluntly: “Take your choice of life or death” (21:8). The prophet warned King Zedekiah and his people to submit to the Lord’s instruction. If they did, they would live; if not, they would die.

The Lord had offered such a choice before. Earlier in Jeremiah’s ministry, the Lord confronted the people of Judah with an opportunity to change, such as when God appealed to the people to come home to him (3:12–4:4). If they rejected idol worship, admitted their guilt, and confessed that they were rebels, God would cleanse their minds and hearts, and they could live peacefully in the land. However, the people scornfully rejected this offer again and again (7:5-7; 18:8-11; 23:22; 26:13; 27:12-13; 29:32; 35:15; 36:3-7; 44:5). The Lord warned them that if they rejected the path of life, they would experience judgment (25:28). This note sounds all through God’s covenant dealings with his people: Obey the covenant—life as God designed it—and live, or refuse to obey the Creator’s design and die (8:3; Lev 18:5; Deut 30:19).

In Jeremiah’s day, only a few chose life; the majority rebelled and experienced death. In the end, the people led by Zedekiah ignored the Lord, defied the Babylonian army, and suffered judgment. They intentionally rejected the gift of life.

20:17-18 Jeremiah saw no meaning to his life.

21:1–28:17 From this point forward in the book of Jeremiah, there is specific information about the last several kings of Judah, particularly Jehoiakim and Zedekiah. The narratives are mostly written in prose and are not always in exact chronological sequence.

21:1-10 This section moves to the beginning of the Babylonian siege of Jerusalem in 588 bc (cp. 52:1-23; 2 Kgs 24:18–25:21; 2 Chr 36:11-21). The Lord communicated with Judah through his messenger Jeremiah.

21:1 The reign of King Zedekiah spanned 597–586 bc. • The Pashhur mentioned here is not the one mentioned in 20:1-6 because they had different fathers. He and Zephaniah bore the full authority of the king, yet when they met the prophet, they begged Jeremiah for the Lord’s help. Clearly, they regarded Jeremiah as a man of great authority. Zedekiah recognized Jeremiah’s prophetic authority, but he lacked the courage or the moral integrity to do what Jeremiah directed him to do in the Lord’s name.

21:2 Nebuchadnezzar . . . is attacking Judah: This event probably occurred around the beginning of the siege of Jerusalem in 588 bc (2 Kgs 25:1). • Zedekiah did not pray to the Lord as his ancestor Hezekiah had done (2 Kgs 19:14-20, 29-37; 2 Chr 32:20-22; Isa 37:1-7, 14-20). However, the king expected Jeremiah to perform the miracle of turning away the Lord’s anger. • Nebuchadnezzar: Hebrew Nebuchadrezzar, a variant spelling of Nebuchadnezzar; also in 21:7.

21:3-7 The Lord answered King Zedekiah’s messengers with a judicial decree (see note on 2:2). Resisting the Babylonians would be useless because the Lord was fighting against Jerusalem. • Babylonians: Or Chaldeans; also in 21:9.

21:8-10 Although the Lord had decided to destroy the city of Jerusalem regardless, individual people still had a choice between life, probably as slaves in Babylon, or death by Babylonian swords (cp. Deut 20:10-13).

go out and surrender to the Babylonians will live. Their reward will be life! ¹⁰For I have decided to bring disaster and not good upon this city, says the LORD. It will be handed over to the king of Babylon, and he will reduce it to ashes.'

Judgment on Judah's Kings

¹¹"Say to the royal family of Judah, 'Listen to this message from the LORD! ¹²This is what the LORD says to the dynasty of David:

" 'Give justice each morning to the people you judge!

Help those who have been robbed;
rescue them from their oppressors.

Otherwise, my anger will burn like an unquenchable fire
because of all your sins.

¹³ I will personally fight against the people in Jerusalem, that mighty fortress—the people who boast, "No one can touch us here.

No one can break in here."

¹⁴ And I myself will punish you for your sinfulness,
says the LORD.

I will light a fire in your forests that will burn up everything around
you.'

A Message for Judah's Kings

22 This is what the LORD said to me:
"Go over and speak directly to the king of Judah. Say to him, ²'Listen to this message from the LORD, you king of Judah, sitting on David's throne. Let your attendants and your people listen, too. ³This is what the LORD says: Be fair-minded and just.
Do what is right! Help those who have been robbed; rescue them from their oppressors. Quit your evil deeds! Do not mistreat foreigners, orphans, and widows. Stop murdering the innocent! ⁴If you obey me, there will always be a descendant of David sitting on the throne here in Jerusalem. The king will ride through the palace gates in chariots and on horses, with his parade of attendants and subjects. ⁵But if you refuse to pay attention to this warning, I swear by my own name, says the LORD, that this palace will become a pile of rubble.'"

A Message about the Palace

⁶Now this is what the LORD says concerning Judah's royal palace:

"I love you as much as fruitful Gilead
and the green forests of Lebanon.
But I will turn you into a desert,
with no one living within your walls.

⁷ I will call for wreckers, who will bring out their tools to dismantle you.
They will tear out all your fine cedar beams and throw them on the fire.

⁸"People from many nations will pass by the ruins of this city and say to one another,
'Why did the LORD destroy such a great city?' ⁹And the answer will be, 'Because they violated their covenant with the LORD their God by worshipping other gods.'

A Message about Jehoahaz

¹⁰ Do not weep for the dead king or mourn his loss.

Instead, weep for the captive king being led away!
For he will never return to see his native land again.

21:11-14 Far from performing a miracle for the dynasty of David, God was going to hold them accountable for their sins.

21:11-12 The Lord gave the royal family of Judah the choice of treating the people with justice or facing the Lord's anger.

21:13-14 The people in Jerusalem had put their complete faith in the mighty fortress of the city, believing it could not be conquered (see 2 Kgs 18:35-37; 2 Chr 32:20-23; Isa 37:36-38). The Lord had protected the city in the past, but now the Lord was fighting against it.
• light a fire in your forests: See Isa 6:13.

22:1-23:8 This collection of messages to the last Davidic kings of Judah culminates in the promise that God would one day place a true descendant of David over his people.

22:1-5 Jeremiah delivered a statement, drawn from the Sinai covenant, that summarized the duties of a king of Judah. Fulfillment of these duties would ensure the continuation of the dynasty of David in Jerusalem; refusal would bring the unimaginable disappearance of the palace and the kingdom.

22:3 The evil deeds of Judah's leaders included not being right or fair-minded and just. They had also refused to help those who had been robbed or to rescue the oppressed, and they mistreated foreigners, orphans, and widows (see Isa 58:6-7; Mic 6:8; Zech 7:9-10; 8:16-17; Matt 23:23).

22:6-9 After the Temple, Judah's royal palace was the nation's most important building. It was an expensive building produced by the best craftsmen (1 Kgs 7:1-12), and it was the king's home and the center of his government. Although the Lord loved the palace, it would not escape the destruction he decreed for Jerusalem.

22:6-7 Valuable crops were raised in the valleys and on the slopes of Gilead, the highlands rising eastward from the Jordan Valley. • Lebanon was the area north of Israel along the seacoast, including the high mountain ridge on the country's eastern side. It was famous for its stately cedar trees.

22:8-9 The ruin of Jerusalem would proclaim to other nations the consequences of Judah's violation of their covenant with the Lord their God.

22:10-30 This section contains a series of severe indictments against the descendants of Josiah.

22:10-12 The dead king was Josiah, who was killed by the Egyptians at

¹¹For this is what the LORD says about Jehoahaz, who succeeded his father, King Josiah, and was taken away as a captive: "He will never return. ¹²He will die in a distant land and will never again see his own country."

A Message about Jehoiakim

¹³And the LORD says, "What sorrow awaits Jehoiakim, who builds his palace with forced labor.

He builds injustice into its walls, for he makes his neighbors work for nothing.

He does not pay them for their labor.

¹⁴He says, 'I will build a magnificent palace with huge rooms and many windows. I will panel it throughout with fragrant cedar and paint it a lovely red.'

¹⁵But a beautiful cedar palace does not make a great king! Your father, Josiah, also had plenty to eat and drink.

But he was just and right in all his dealings.

That is why God blessed him.

¹⁶He gave justice and help to the poor and needy, and everything went well for him. Isn't that what it means to know me?" says the LORD.

¹⁷"But you! You have eyes only for greed and dishonesty!

You murder the innocent, oppress the poor, and reign ruthlessly."

¹⁸Therefore, this is what the LORD says about Jehoiakim, son of King Josiah:

"The people will not mourn for him, crying to one another, 'Alas, my brother! Alas, my sister!' His subjects will not mourn for him, crying,

'Alas, our master is dead! Alas, his splendor is gone!'

¹⁹He will be buried like a dead donkey—dragged out of Jerusalem and dumped outside the gates!

²⁰Weep for your allies in Lebanon.

Shout for them in Bashan.

Search for them in the regions east of the river.

See, they are all destroyed.

Not one is left to help you.

²¹I warned you when you were prosperous, but you replied, 'Don't bother me.'

You have been that way since childhood—you simply will not obey me!

²²And now the wind will blow away your allies.

All your friends will be taken away as captives.

Surely then you will see your wickedness and be ashamed.

²³It may be nice to live in a beautiful palace paneled with wood from the cedars of Lebanon, but soon you will groan with pangs of anguish—anguish like that of a woman in labor.

A Message for Jehoiachin

²⁴"As surely as I live," says the LORD, "I will abandon you, Jehoiachin son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah. Even if you were the signet the Battle of Megiddo in 609 bc. The people of Judah were not to weep or mourn his death. Their sorrow should center on Josiah's son, whom they had chosen as the new king. After three months, King Jehoahaz (Hebrew Shallum, another name for Jehoahaz) was taken into exile in Egypt, where he spent the rest of his life (2 Kgs 23:1-33; 2 Chr 36:1-8).

22:13-23 Egypt placed another of Josiah's sons, Eliakim, on the throne in Jerusalem. His name was changed to Jehoiakim. Most of the material in chs 7-20 was probably written during Jehoiakim's reign (609-598 bc). The Lord indicted him because of his faithlessness and greed, brought him to trial, declared him guilty, and pronounced the death penalty against him.

22:13 Because Jehoiakim forced poor men to work as slaves with no pay, his building projects had injustice built into their walls. • with forced labor: Literally by unrighteousness.

22:14 a magnificent palace: Archaeologists have unearthed the foundations of what is believed to be this palace three miles south of Jerusalem. The foundations indicate that the building had huge rooms.

22:15-16 If Jehoiakim wanted plenty to eat and drink, he did not have to resort to corruption and oppression. Compared with his prosperous father, Josiah, Jehoiakim was not a great king. Josiah, by contrast, had been just and right in all his dealings, a servant of God and his people. Because he had lived up to the requirements of the ancient covenant, God blessed him.

22:17 Unlike his father, Josiah, Jehoiakim practiced greed and dishonesty and ignored the requirements of the covenant.

22:18-23 God delivered his verdict against Jehoiakim's terrible sins. Neither his family nor his subjects would mourn for him.

22:19 Jehoiakim died in disgrace (see note on 2 Kgs 24:6).

22:20 Jehoiakim might have believed that the nation's close neighbors, including Lebanon and Bashan, would support him in a time of crisis. They could not, because the Babylonians had already destroyed them. • Bashan was in the regions east of the Jordan river (or in Abarim).

22:22 The days of prosperity were gone, and chaos enveloped Judah. Like a wind sweeping through the land, the Babylonians would defeat Judah's allies and take many captives. • Surely then you will see: Royal self-delusions would be swept aside and the consequences of wickedness would cause the king to be ashamed.

22:24-30 Jehoiachin (Hebrew Coniah, a variant spelling of Jehoiachin; also in ring on my right hand, I would pull you off.

 25 I will hand you over to those who seek to kill you, those you so desperately fear—to King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon and the mighty Babylonian army. 26 I will expel you and your mother from this land, and you will die in a foreign country, not in your native land. 27 You will never again return to the land you yearn for.

28 “Why is this man Jehoiachin like a discarded, broken jar?
 Why are he and his children to be exiled to a foreign land?

29 O earth, earth, earth!

Listen to this message from the LORD!

30 This is what the LORD says:

‘Let the record show that this man
 Jehoiachin was childless.

He is a failure,
 for none of his children will succeed him on the throne of David to rule over Judah.’

The Righteous Descendant

23 “What sorrow awaits the leaders of my people—the shepherds of my sheep—for they have destroyed and scattered the very ones they were expected to care for,” says the LORD.

2 Therefore, this is what the LORD, the God of Israel, says to these shepherds: “Instead of caring for my flock and leading them to safety, you have deserted them and driven them to destruction. Now I will pour out judgment on you for the evil you have done to them. 3 But I will gather together the remnant of my flock from the countries where I have driven them. I will bring them back to their own sheepfold, and they will be fruitful and increase in number. 4 Then I will appoint responsible shepherds who will care for them, and they will never be afraid again. Not a single one will be lost or missing. I, the LORD, have spoken!

5 “For the time is coming,”

says the LORD,

“when I will raise up a righteous descendant from King David’s line.

He will be a King who rules with wisdom.
 He will do what is just and right throughout the land.

6 And this will be his name:

‘The LORD Is Our Righteousness.’

In that day Judah will be saved, and Israel will live in safety.

7 “In that day,” says the LORD, “when people are taking an oath, they will no longer say, ‘As surely as the LORD lives, who rescued the people of Israel from the land of Egypt.’ 8 Instead, they will say, ‘As surely as the LORD lives, who brought the people of Israel back to their own land from the land of the north and from all the countries to which he had exiled them.’ Then they will live in their own land.”

22:28), the son of Jehoiakim, came to the throne at the age of eighteen in 597 BC. The Babylonians attacked Jerusalem because of his father’s rebellion against Nebuchadnezzar. After only three months on the throne, Jehoiachin had sense enough to surrender, and he was taken captive to Babylon (2 Kgs 24:8-14), along with most of the royal family.

22:25-27 Young king Jehoiachin was desperately afraid that the Babylonians would kill him, but instead they took him into exile.

22:25 Nebuchadnezzar: Hebrew Nebuchadrezzar, a variant spelling of Nebuchadnezzar. • Babylonian: Or Chaldean.

22:28-30 This poem, a taunt directed at Jehoiachin, included two rhetorical questions with the expected answer, “I don’t know.” However, Jehoiachin’s sins and those of his forefathers were the reasons for his fate. Still, the people of Jerusalem seemed unwilling to accept the justice of his exile.

22:29 O earth: Faithful nature is called as a witness in God’s case against his faithless people (see also 6:19; Deut 30:19; Isa 1:2).

22:30 Although Jehoiachin had seven sons (see 1 Chr 3:17), he was called childless because none of them ever sat on the throne of Judah. His uncle Zedekiah later reigned as king of Judah, but many Israelites regarded Jehoiachin as the last legitimate king of David’s dynasty (see note on Ezek 1:2).

23:1-8 The Lord rebuked the three kings (ch 22) and contrasted them with the righteous leader he would place over his people after the Exile.

23:1 Kings in the ancient Near East were often referred to as shepherds. Good shepherds would protect and care for their people, but Judah’s kings scattered their people instead.

23:3 As a good shepherd, the Lord would gather the exiles and place them in their own sheepfold, the land of Judah. There, they would be fruitful and increase in number (cp. Gen 1:28; 17:6-8).

23:4 Once the people were back in Judah (23:3), the Lord would appoint responsible shepherds. As good leaders, they would care for the people.

23:5 A righteous descendant (literally a righteous branch) of King David’s line, whose ruling power had temporarily come to an end, would be a King. In stark contrast to the three kings the Lord had just rebuked (ch 22), this King would have wisdom and act in a way that is just and right (33:15; Isa 11:1-5; 53:2; Zech 3:8; Luke 1:32-33).

23:6 This ruler would have the name The Lord Is Our Righteousness (Hebrew Yahweh Tsidqenu), an interesting reversal of Zedekiah’s Hebrew name (Tsidqiyahu), which means “Righteous is the LORD.” Zedekiah’s character and the chaos of his reign were the opposite of the future King’s character and the salvation and safety that his reign would offer.

I stagger like a drunkard, like someone overcome by wine,
because of the holy words
the LORD has spoken against them.

¹⁰ For the land is full of adultery,
and it lies under a curse.

The land itself is in mourning—its wilderness pastures are dried up.
For they all do evil and abuse what power they have.

¹¹ "Even the priests and prophets are ungodly, wicked men.

I have seen their despicable acts right here in my own Temple,"
says the LORD.

¹² "Therefore, the paths they take will become slippery.
They will be chased through the dark,
and there they will fall.

For I will bring disaster upon them at the time fixed for their punishment.
I, the LORD, have spoken!

¹³ "I saw that the prophets of Samaria were terribly evil, for they prophesied in the name of Baal
and led my people of Israel into sin.

¹⁴ But now I see that the prophets of Jerusalem are even worse!
They commit adultery and love dishonesty.

They encourage those who are doing evil so that no one turns away from their sins.

These prophets are as wicked as the people of Sodom and Gomorrah once were."

¹⁵ Therefore, this is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says concerning the prophets:

"I will feed them with bitterness and give them poison to drink.
For it is because of Jerusalem's prophets that wickedness has filled this land."

¹⁶ This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says to his people:

"Do not listen to these prophets when they prophesy to you, filling you with futile hopes.
They are making up everything they say.
They do not speak for the LORD!

¹⁷ They keep saying to those who despise my word,
'Don't worry! The LORD says you will have peace!'
And to those who stubbornly follow their own desires, they say, 'No harm will come your way!'

¹⁸ "Have any of these prophets been in the LORD's presence to hear what he is really saying?
Has even one of them cared enough to listen?

¹⁹ Look! The LORD's anger bursts out like a storm,
a whirlwind that swirls down on the heads of the wicked.

²⁰ The anger of the LORD will not diminish until it has finished all he has planned.
In the days to come you will understand all this very clearly.

a session in which the Lord prepared Jeremiah to prosecute the false prophets of Jerusalem. Because these leaders had misused the Lord's name, they incurred his wrath (Exod 20:7).

23:9-10 Jeremiah stood in the Lord's presence, shocked by the severity of the Lord's decrees of doom on the religious leaders.

23:10 People everywhere engaged in adultery. They thought that the ritual sex of Baal worship would guarantee good crops, but instead it brought the curse of a crop-destroying drought upon the people of Judah.

23:11 Judah's religious leaders had committed despicable acts, not just in their private lives and in the hills and fields where pagan worship occurred, but even in the Temple, in the presence of the Lord.

23:12 As a result of their wickedness, these priests and prophets would have no stability in their lives; every moment would be filled with danger.

23:13-14 Samaria, the capital of the northern kingdom of Israel, had been dominated by Baal worship supported by the government prophets (1 Kgs 18:19; see also Jer 16:12). The religious leaders of Judah were even worse.

* Sodom and Gomorrah represented the worst of this kind of wickedness (Gen 18:20).

23:15 Although the people needed to be held responsible for their own sins, the prophets bore the blame for Jerusalem's spiritual apostasy.

23:16-32 The Lord appealed to the people to reject these prophets and listen instead to his word.

23:16 The false prophets gave the people futile hopes; they had not been commissioned to speak for the LORD, and their ideas came from their own imaginations.

23:17 These prophets lied to the people, assuring them that peace would soon come to those who would despise the Lord's word. However, the Lord had already decreed destruction.

23:18-19 These prophets invented their messages (23:16); they had never been in the LORD's presence, and none of them cared enough to listen to God's instruction.

23:19-20 Contrary to the lies of the false prophets, the world was facing the storm of the LORD's anger. The political situation was a whirlwind that would soon strike the wicked. The Lord had planned this punishment and would ensure that it took place. After the war, the survivors would look back and see that Jeremiah had prophesied correctly.

²¹ "I have not sent these prophets, yet they run around claiming to speak for me.

I have given them no message,
yet they go on prophesying.

²² If they had stood before me and listened
to me,
they would have spoken my words,
and they would have turned my people from their evil ways and deeds.

²³ Am I a God who is only close at hand?"
says the LORD.

"No, I am far away at the same time.

²⁴ Can anyone hide from me in a secret place?

Am I not everywhere in all the 'heavens and earth?'"

says the LORD.

²⁵ "I have heard these prophets say, 'Listen to the dream I had from God last night.' And then they proceed to tell lies in my name.
²⁶ How long will this go on? If they are prophets, they are prophets of deceit, inventing everything they say. ²⁷ By telling these false dreams, they are trying to get my people to forget me, just as their ancestors did by worshipping the idols of Baal.

²⁸ "Let these false prophets tell their dreams,
but let my true messengers faithfully proclaim my every word.
There is a difference between straw and grain!

²⁹ Does not my word burn like fire?"
says the LORD.

"Is it not like a mighty hammer that smashes a rock to pieces?"

³⁰ "Therefore," says the LORD, "I am against these prophets who steal messages from each other and claim they are from me. ³¹ I am against these smooth-tongued prophets who say, 'This prophecy is from the LORD!' ³² I am against these false prophets. Their imaginary dreams are flagrant lies that lead my people into sin. I did not send or appoint them, and they have no message at all for my people. I, the LORD, have spoken!"

False Prophecies and False Prophets

³³ "Suppose one of the people or one of the prophets or priests asks you, 'What prophecy has the LORD burdened you with now?'
You must reply, 'You are the burden! The LORD says he will abandon you!'"

³⁴ "If any prophet, priest, or anyone else says, 'I have a prophecy from the LORD,'
I will punish that person along with his entire family. ³⁵ You should keep asking each other, 'What is the LORD's answer?' or 'What is the LORD saying?' ³⁶ But stop using this phrase, 'prophecy from the LORD.' For people are using it to give authority to their own ideas, turning upside down the words of our God, the living God, the LORD of Heaven's Armies.

³⁷ "This is what you should say to the prophets: 'What is the LORD's answer?' or 'What is the LORD saying?' ³⁸ But suppose they respond, 'This is a prophecy from the LORD!' Then you should say, 'This is what the LORD says: Because you have used this

23:21-24 In this stanza, the Lord expressed his keen disappointment and disgust toward the false prophets.

23:22 The messages of the false prophets would have been quite different if they had actually come from the Lord. God wanted the people to reject their evil ways (such as Baal worship) and turn to the one true God.

23:23-24 The Lord revealed the difference between himself and the Canaanite nature deities. The pagan deities were close at hand, as part of nature. The Lord was close at hand because he created all nature, but he was also far away in his distinction from it. His essence is different from nature, yet he is present in all the heavens and earth.

23:25-27 The false prophets placed a high value on dreams. The claim to have had a dream supposedly gave authority to the prophet's message. However, these prophets were inventing everything they said in order to lead the people away from the Lord.

23:28 The Lord temporarily allowed the false prophets to tell their dreams. At the same time, the Lord had his true messengers, such as Jeremiah, to proclaim his every word. This allowed the people to see the difference between the useless dreams of the false prophets (straw) and the nourishing words of the Lord's messengers (grain); cp. Ps 1:3-4.

23:29 The Lord's word has power, like fire, to destroy false prophecies. It would smash the seemingly impregnable fortress of Jerusalem like a mighty hammer.

23:30-32 The Lord rebuked and opposed the prophets who spoke lies in his name.

23:33-40 The Lord presented a hypothetical conversation to show Jeremiah how to handle the false prophets.

23:33 These false prophets might taunt Jeremiah by asking for the latest message the Lord had burdened him with. • You are the burden! As in Greek version and Latin Vulgate; Hebrew reads What burden? This is a wordplay—it was common for a prophetic message to be called "a burden." The false prophets were a heavy load that the Lord would throw off and abandon.

23:34-35 Someone might falsely brag that he had heard a prophecy from the LORD. However, such a person and his entire family would be punished (cp. Num 16:27-32; Josh 7:24-25).

23:36 The Lord warned that no one should claim to have a prophecy from the LORD in order to exert authority over other people. Doing so would be contrary to God's words and constitute a misuse of his name (Exod 20:7; see also Matt 20:25-28).

23:37-40 What is the LORD saying? The Lord had decreed that he would punish the people of Judah and expel false prophets. Any prophecy that stated otherwise was not a prophecy from the LORD.

Good and Bad Figs

24 After King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon exiled Jehoiachin son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, to Babylon along with the officials of Judah and all the craftsmen and artisans, the LORD gave me this vision. I saw two baskets of figs placed in front of the LORD's Temple in Jerusalem. ²One basket was filled with fresh, ripe figs, while the other was filled with bad figs that were too rotten to eat.

³Then the LORD said to me, "What do you see, Jeremiah?"

I replied, "Figs, some very good and some very bad, too rotten to eat."

⁴Then the LORD gave me this message: ⁵"This is what the LORD, the God of Israel, says: The good figs represent the exiles I sent from Judah to the land of the Babylonians. ⁶I will watch over and care for them,

Suddenly and completely, impressive cultures full of creative and skilled people fall apart. While digging, archaeologists often find a layer of ash between strata of remarkable artifacts; the ash indicates the destruction of the culture. This is one of the most disturbing aspects of human history.

Israel's history is replete with cycles of courage and success followed by disaster. Men of God led Israel into new periods of power (Joshua, Samuel, David, Solomon), but the nation repeatedly fell into worshipping many deities instead of the one true God. Repeatedly, God's people fell under judgment as their culture disintegrated and their political independence was replaced with servitude and oppression.

The northern kingdom of Israel was especially captivated by the idol-worship of Baal and Asherah. As a result, the Lord turned the northern kingdom over to the Assyrians, who demolished it in 722 BC.

In Jeremiah's time, the same spiritual and political collapse was occurring in the southern kingdom of Judah. Some of the nation's kings, including Josiah, faithfully followed the covenant ban on idol worship and led the people of Judah back to the Lord. However, Josiah's sons did not carry on the reforms begun by their father. Jehoiakim had no interest in continuing his father's revival of devotion to the Lord, seeing that as an impediment to his own political power. He was so hardened toward the Lord that he did his best to kill Jeremiah, the Lord's messenger. Zedekiah was more fearful than hardened, but he also refused to return to the Lord.

The Lord's messages through Jeremiah contain strong indictments of Judah's devotion to Baal (2:8; 7:9; 11:13, 17; 12:16; 19:5; 23:13, 27; 32:29, 35) and condemn the immorality that accompanied this sin. Judah's moral and spiritual rottenness—exemplified by its greed, hate, and violence—were exposed for all to see.

Despite their stubborn refusal to turn away from idol worship and back to worship of the one true God, the people of Judah hoped that the Lord would work a miracle by defeating the Babylonian army and sending it back home. They thought that the Temple would magically protect them, not understanding that God's disgust over what they were doing there would speed their destruction (7:4-15). They were totally unprepared to face the horror of defeat in war and the destruction of their nation, their capital, and their Temple. They were unaware that their spiritual and moral collapse had already made their doom certain.

23:39 I will forget you completely: Some Hebrew manuscripts and Greek version read I will surely lift you up.

23:40 The false prophets would be an object of ridicule. Their predictions would be proved false when Jerusalem was destroyed and the people of the city were taken into exile.

24:1-10 This section is a discussion of the meaning of the exile of 597 BC. Some were saying that it had been God's way of getting the rotten figs out of the barrel (Jerusalem) so that the good figs would survive. Jeremiah said that the exact opposite was the case. The good figs had been taken out of the barrel (into exile) so that the rotten figs would not destroy them.

24:1 Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar (Hebrew Nebuchadrezzar, a variant spelling of Nebuchadnezzar) had taken Jehoiachin (Hebrew Jecooniah, a variant spelling of Jehoiachin) into captivity to Babylon in 597 BC. Jehoiachin's surrender had spared Jerusalem, but its treasures and 10,000 of its elite citizens had gone into exile (2 Kgs 24:8-16). • Typically, baskets of figs would be displayed in a market rather than in the Temple area.

24:4-7 The people exiled from Jerusalem had a better future than those who remained in the land, because the Lord would plant the exiles as a new community of reformed people (see 1:10).

24:5 Babylonians: Or Chaldeans.

and I will bring them back here again. I will build them up and not tear them down. I will plant them and not uproot them. ⁷I will give them hearts that recognize me as the LORD. They will be my people, and I will be their God, for they will return to me wholeheartedly.

⁸"But the bad figs," the LORD said, "represent King Zedekiah of Judah, his officials, all the people left in Jerusalem, and those who live in Egypt. I will treat them like bad figs, too rotten to eat. ⁹I will make them an object of horror and a symbol of evil to every nation on earth. They will be disgraced and mocked, taunted and cursed, wherever I scatter them. ¹⁰And I will send war, famine, and disease until they have vanished from the land of Israel, which I gave to them and their ancestors."

Seventy Years of Captivity

25 This message for all the people of Judah came to Jeremiah from the LORD during the fourth year of Jehoiakim's reign over Judah. This was the year when King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon began his reign.

²Jeremiah the prophet said to all the people in Judah and Jerusalem, ³"For the past twenty-three years—from the thirteenth year of the reign of Josiah son of Amon, king of Judah, until now—the LORD has been giving me his messages. I have faithfully passed them on to you, but you have not listened.

⁴"Again and again the LORD has sent you his servants, the prophets, but you have not listened or even paid attention. ⁵Each time the message was this: 'Turn from the evil road you are traveling and from the evil things you are doing. Only then will I let you live in this land that the LORD gave to you and your ancestors forever. ⁶Do not provoke my anger by worshiping idols you made with your own hands. Then I will not harm you.'

⁷"But you would not listen to me," says the LORD. "You made me furious by worshiping idols you made with your own hands, bringing on yourselves all the disasters you now suffer. ⁸And now the LORD of Heaven's Armies says: Because you have not listened to me, ⁹I will gather together all the armies of the north under King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon, whom I have appointed as my deputy. I will bring them all against this land and its people and against the surrounding nations. I will completely destroy you and make you an object of horror and contempt and a ruin forever. ¹⁰I will take away your happy singing and laughter. The joyful voices of bridegrooms and brides will no longer be heard. Your millstones will fall silent, and the lights in your homes will go out. ¹¹This entire land will become a desolate wasteland. Israel and her neighboring lands will serve the king of Babylon for seventy years.

¹²"Then, after the seventy years of captivity are over, I will punish the king of Babylon

24:7 The Lord would do a marvelous work in the hearts of the exiles, helping them to recognize (literally know) the LORD as a personal God (1 Chr 28:9; Ps 9:10; 36:10; Isa 19:21; 52:6; Dan 11:32; Hos 2:20; Titus 1:16; 1 Jn 4:6-8). • They will be my people, and I will be their God: God's covenant with Israel would become a personal reality to them (Exod 6:7; 19:5; Deut 29:13; Rev 21:7). • wholeheartedly: The exiles would not mix religious loyalties; they would be completely committed to the one true God.

24:8-10 The bad figs were those left in Jerusalem, and the Lord would scatter them because of their rottenness. Those included in this group ranged from the remainder of the royal family to the common people. In 586 BC, Zedekiah's reign ended exactly as predicted here.

25:1-14 The Lord had long been patient with Jerusalem's rebellion and refusal to listen, but now the time for judgment was at hand.

25:1 The fourth year of Jehoiakim's reign and the accession year of Nebuchadnezzar's reign was 605 BC. One of the first acts of Babylon's king Nebuchadnezzar (Hebrew Nebuchadrezzar, a variant spelling of Nebuchadnezzar; also in 25:9) was to force Judah's king Jehoiakim to confess loyalty to him.

25:3 The thirteenth year of the reign of Josiah was 627 BC; Jeremiah's ministry began that same year.

25:4 For many generations, God had sent prophets to the people, but they had not paid attention to the Lord's warnings.

25:5-6 The Lord appealed to his people to turn from . . . the evil things they were doing that provoked his anger. Then he would not harm them, but instead pour out his covenant blessings.

25:7-9 The people had not listened to the Lord's decrees to turn from their evil ways; instead, they kept worshiping idols. So the Lord would completely destroy them. The Hebrew term used here refers to the complete consecration of things or people to the Lord, either by destroying them or by giving them as an offering.

25:10 All forms of festivity, even simple pleasures such as singing and laughter, would cease. • millstones . . . lights: After the destruction of Judah, no one would remain to do the work or to enjoy its fruits.

25:11 seventy years: This is the first instance of a specific time period assigned to the Exile. The prediction was fulfilled either from 605 BC (the first exile to Babylon) to around 538 BC (when Cyrus allowed the exiles to return to Judea), or from 586 BC (the destruction of the Temple) to 515 BC (the dedication of the Second Temple). Or, the number can be seen as symbolic: God's judgment on Jerusalem would last a perfect lifetime, and for the exact length of time that God had determined.

25:12-14 Although the Lord used them to carry out judgment on Judah, the Babylonians (or Chaldeans) would be held accountable for their sins, for their brutality, and for their abuse of those they defeated. In 539 BC, Babylon was conquered by Cyrus the Persian, and the people were taken into captivity.

and his people for their sins," says the LORD. "I will make the country of the Babylonians a wasteland forever. ¹³I will bring upon them all the terrors I have promised in this book—all the penalties announced by Jeremiah against the nations. ¹⁴Many nations and great kings will enslave the Babylonians, just as they enslaved my people. I will punish them in proportion to the suffering they cause my people."

The Cup of the LORD's Anger

¹⁵This is what the LORD, the God of Israel, said to me: "Take from my hand this cup filled to the brim with my anger, and make all the nations to whom I send you drink from it. ¹⁶When they drink from it, they will stagger, crazed by the warfare I will send against them."

¹⁷So I took the cup of anger from the LORD and made all the nations drink from it—every nation to which the LORD sent me. ¹⁸I went to Jerusalem and the other towns of Judah, and their kings and officials drank from the cup. From that day until this, they have been a desolate ruin, an object of horror, contempt, and cursing. ¹⁹I gave the cup to Pharaoh, king of Egypt, his attendants, his officials, and all his people, ²⁰along with all the foreigners living in that land. I also gave it to all the kings of the land of Uz and the kings of the Philistine cities of Ashkelon, Gaza, Ekron, and what remains of Ashdod. ²¹Then I gave the cup to the nations of Edom, Moab, and Ammon, ²²and the kings of Tyre and Sidon, and the kings of the regions across the sea. ²³I gave it to Dedan, Tema, and Buz, and to the people who live in distant places. ²⁴I gave it to the kings of Arabia, the kings of the nomadic tribes of the desert, ²⁵and to the kings of Zimri, Elam, and Media. ²⁶And I gave it to the kings of the northern countries, far and near, one after the other—all the kingdoms of the world. And finally, the king of Babylon himself drank from the cup of the LORD's anger.

²⁷Then the LORD said to me, "Now tell them, 'This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, says: Drink from this cup of my anger. Get drunk and vomit; fall to rise no more, for I am sending terrible wars against you.' ²⁸And if they refuse to accept the cup, tell them, 'The LORD of Heaven's Armies says: You have no choice but to drink from it. ²⁹I have begun to punish Jerusalem, the city that bears my name. Now should I let you go unpunished? No, you will not escape disaster. I will call for war against all the nations of the earth. I, the LORD of Heaven's Armies, have spoken!'"

³⁰"Now prophesy all these things, and say to them,

"The LORD will roar against his own land from his holy dwelling in heaven.

He will shout like those who tread grapes; he will shout against everyone on earth.

³¹His cry of judgment will reach the ends of the earth, for the LORD will bring his case against all the nations.

For centuries, many nations and great kings reduced the Babylonians to slavery, and the territory did not become independent again until 1932, as modern Iraq.

25:15-38 The Lord is the sovereign king of all the nations, and their rebellion was about to result in judgment. • to whom I send you: Jeremiah did not physically travel to each nation. The message he delivered from the Lord spread mostly through written material, much of it in the book of Jeremiah, which has been read throughout the world.

25:15 The messages of wrath that the Lord gave to Jeremiah were represented as a cup full of the wine of the Lord's anger (Rev 14:10). Jeremiah was to make the nations drink from it; God wanted them to hear the messages of condemnation and to experience the promised judgment.

25:16 Upon drinking from the cup (25:15), the nations would stagger as though drunken. They would be crazed by the warfare and would thus be unable to protect themselves. They would feel hopeless and helpless, and in their confusion, they would panic.

25:17 So I . . . made all the nations drink from it: Jeremiah accomplished this by announcing God's judgment.

25:18 Everyone drank from the cup, meaning that the leaders heard the words of judgment. • From that day until this: Jeremiah probably delivered the Lord's messages at the time of the siege and fall of Jerusalem (588–586 BC).

25:19-20 The foreigners who heard the prophet's message included many refugees who fled from Judah and neighboring countries to Egypt when the Babylonians invaded. • Uz was a region on the northern border of Arabia; Ashkelon, Gaza, Ekron, and Ashdod were Philistine cities near the Mediterranean Sea.

25:21-22 The small nations of Edom, Moab, and Ammon were east and southeast of the Dead Sea. The Phoenician cities of Tyre and Sidon were to the northwest, along the Mediterranean Sea.

The regions across the sea were probably the islands of Cyprus and Crete.

25:23-26 Dedan, Tema, . . . Buz, and Zimri were located in the desert area east of the Jordan Valley, north of Arabia. Elam and Media, located in the highlands to the east of Babylon, made up the core of the Persian empire, which conquered Babylon in 539 BC.

25:23 who live in distant places: Or who clip the corners of their hair. The Hebrew can be interpreted either way.

25:26 Babylon: Hebrew Sheshach, a code name for Babylon.

25:27-29 These kingdoms had to drink from this cup of the Lord's anger (see note on 25:15). They would be unable to escape the disaster that would overwhelm them. Jerusalem experienced God's judgment, and so would the surrounding nations.

25:30-31 First, the Lord spoke through Jeremiah against his own land, Judah; then Jeremiah delivered the messages of God's judgment against everyone on earth.

He will judge all the people of the earth, slaughtering the wicked with the sword.

I, the LORD, have spoken!" "

³² This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says:

"Look! Disaster will fall upon nation
after nation!

A great whirlwind of fury is rising from the most distant corners of the earth!"

³³ In that day those the LORD has slaughtered will fill the earth from one end to the other. No one will mourn for them or gather up their bodies to bury them. They will be scattered on the ground like manure.

³⁴ Weep and moan, you evil shepherds!
Roll in the dust, you leaders of the flock!

The time of your slaughter has arrived;
you will fall and shatter like a fragile vase.

³⁵ You will find no place to hide;
there will be no way to escape.

³⁶ Listen to the frantic cries of the shepherds.

The leaders of the flock are wailing in despair,
for the LORD is ruining their pastures.

³⁷ Peaceful meadows will be turned into a wasteland
by the LORD's fierce anger.

³⁸ He has left his den like a strong lion seeking its prey, and their land will be made desolate
by the sword of the enemy and the LORD's fierce anger.

Jeremiah's Escape from Death

26 This message came to Jeremiah from the LORD early in the reign of Jehoia-kim son of Josiah, king of Judah. ²"This is what the LORD says: Stand in the courtyard in front of the Temple of the LORD, and make an announcement to the people who have come there to worship from all over Judah.
Give them my entire message; include every word. ³Perhaps they will listen and turn from their evil ways. Then I will change my mind about the disaster I am ready to pour out on them because of their sins.

⁴"Say to them, 'This is what the LORD says: If you will not listen to me and obey my word I have given you, ⁵and if you will not listen to my servants, the prophets—for I sent them again and again to warn you, but you would not listen to them—⁶then I will destroy this Temple as I destroyed Shiloh, the place where the Tabernacle was located.
And I will make Jerusalem an object of cursing in every nation on earth.' "

⁷The priests, the prophets, and all the people listened to Jeremiah as he spoke in front of the LORD's Temple. ⁸But when Jeremiah had finished his message, saying everything the LORD had told him to say, the priests and prophets and all the people at the Temple mobbed him. "Kill him!"
they shouted. ⁹"What right do you have to prophecy in the LORD's name that this Temple will be destroyed like Shiloh? What do you mean, saying that Jerusalem will be destroyed and left with no inhabitants?" And all the people threatened him as he stood in front of the Temple.

25:36 ruining their pastures: The nations led by evil shepherds (25:34) would be destroyed because the Lord would enforce his sentence.

25:37-38 The Lord's judgment would be so terrifying that it would be like a strong lion seeking its prey. As the object of the LORD's fierce anger, the nations would be helpless.

25:38 Following this verse, the Greek translation of the OT (the Septuagint) attaches chs 46–51, which deal primarily with the nations listed in ch 25.

26:1-24 Jeremiah was put on trial in the presence of the priests and prophets. The sanctity of the Temple was an issue, for Jeremiah declared that the Lord would destroy the Temple as well as Jerusalem.

26:1 early in the reign of Jehoiakim:
The first year of Jehoiakim's reign was 608 BC.

26:2 Jeremiah stood in the courtyard of the Temple because the people of Judah gathered there during the scheduled annual festivals.

26:3 The Lord gave the people a choice about what would happen to them in the future. If they would turn from their evil ways, the Lord would change his mind. The standard of judgment was his covenant with Israel (see Deut 5:1-21; 27:1–28:68). When Israel obeyed the terms of the covenant, the Lord blessed the people. When Israel persistently and stubbornly disobeyed, the Lord eventually punished them.

26:4-6 The people's ancestors had chosen the way of disobedience; as a result, their sanctuary at Shiloh, north of Jerusalem, had been destroyed (7:12-15; 1 Sam 1–4). Similarly, continued disobedience of the covenant commands by the people in Jeremiah's day would result in the destruction of the Temple and Jerusalem.

26:7-9 The crowd at the Temple wanted to kill Jeremiah for blasphemy because he had spoken against the Temple. This charge carried the death penalty (Lev 24:16). The prophet's opponents argued that the Lord's holy Temple could not possibly be destroyed. The priests and prophets had accepted the pagan idea that temples were indestructible because deities dwelt within them.

26:10-15 Court trials were customarily held at a gateway to the city. City gateways at this time were covered and multi-chambered. In this location, was happening, they rushed over from the palace and sat down at the New Gate of the Temple to hold court. ¹¹The priests and prophets presented their accusations to the officials and the people. "This man should die!" they said. "You have heard with your own ears what a traitor he is, for he has prophesied against this city."

¹²Then Jeremiah spoke to the officials and the people in his own defense. "The LORD sent me to prophesy against this Temple and this city," he said. "The LORD gave me every word that I have spoken. ¹³But if you stop your sinning and begin to obey the LORD your God, he will change his mind about this disaster that he has announced against you. ¹⁴As for me, I am in your hands—do with me as you think best. ¹⁵But if you kill me, rest assured that you will be killing an innocent man! The responsibility for such a deed will lie on you, on this city, and on every person living in it. For it is absolutely true that the LORD sent me to speak every word you have heard."

¹⁶Then the officials and the people said to the priests and prophets, "This man does not deserve the death sentence, for he has spoken to us in the name of the LORD our God."

¹⁷Then some of the wise old men stood and spoke to all the people assembled there. ¹⁸They said, "Remember when Micah of Moresheth prophesied during the reign of King Hezekiah of Judah. He told the people of Judah,

'This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says:
Mount Zion will be plowed like an open field;
Jerusalem will be reduced to ruins!
A thicket will grow on the heights where the Temple now stands.'

¹⁹But did King Hezekiah and the people kill him for saying this? No, they turned from their sins and worshiped the LORD. They begged him for mercy. Then the LORD changed his mind about the terrible disaster he had pronounced against them. So we are about to do ourselves great harm."

²⁰At this time Uriah son of Shemaiah from Kiriath-jearim was also prophesying for the LORD. And he predicted the same terrible disaster against the city and nation as Jeremiah did. ²¹When King Jehoiakim and the army officers and officials heard what he was saying, the king sent someone to kill him. But Uriah heard about the plan and escaped in fear to Egypt. ²²Then King Jehoiakim sent Elnathan son of Achbor to Egypt along with several other men to capture Uriah. ²³They took him prisoner and brought him back to King Jehoiakim. The king then killed Uriah with a sword and had him buried in an unmarked grave.

²⁴Nevertheless, Ahikam son of Shaphan stood up for Jeremiah and persuaded the court not to turn him over to the mob to be killed.

The Yoke of Babylon (27:1–28:17) Jeremiah Wears an Ox Yoke

27 This message came to Jeremiah from the LORD early in the reign of Zedekiah son of Josiah, king of Judah.

²This is what the LORD said to me: "Make a yoke, and fasten it on your neck with leather straps. ³Then send messages to the kings of Edom, Moab, Ammon, Tyre, and Sidon through their ambassadors who have come to see King Zedekiah in Jerusalem. ⁴Give them this message for their masters: 'This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, says: ⁵With my great strength and powerful arm I made the earth and all

where the commerce of the city went in and out, the elders of the city would congregate where they could be called upon to apply their wisdom to legal conflicts. In this case, the officials were fair; they gave each party an opportunity to present its side of the quarrel.

26:12–13 Jeremiah argued that the LORD had sent him to speak against the city and the Temple; he added that the impending disaster would not occur if the people of Jerusalem chose to obey the LORD.

26:14–15 Jeremiah submitted calmly to authority and placed his life in the officials' hands; however, he warned them that they would bear the responsibility for their decision if they killed an innocent man.

26:16 Jeremiah was successful in his defense; he convinced the officials and the people that he was innocent because he spoke for the LORD.

26:17–19 Societies in the ancient Near East greatly revered wise old men. Few people survived to old age, and those who did had a valuable store of memory. • Micah of Moresheth had lived during the reign of King Hezekiah (728–686 BC), more than 100 years earlier. Micah had written a small collection of his prophecies, from which the elders quoted a verse (Mic 3:12) that predicted the destruction of Mount Zion and Jerusalem. These elders counseled the people to do as Hezekiah had done when he turned from his sins and worshiped the LORD. Although the people of Judah relinquished their plan to harm Jeremiah, they did not heed the second part of the old men's counsel.

26:24 Ahikam had served under King Josiah (2 Kgs 22:12–14).

27:1–22 The Lord ordered Jeremiah to send messages to the ambassadors from nearby countries to announce the Lord's judgment upon them. He was to illustrate his message by wearing a wooden yoke. This event took place in 594–593 BC (see 28:1).

27:1 Zedekiah: As in some Hebrew manuscripts and Syriac version (see also 27:3, 12); most Hebrew manuscripts read Jehoiakim.

27:4–5 The entire weight of the divine name was behind this message (see its people and every animal. I can give these things of mine to anyone I choose. ⁶Now I will give your countries to King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon, who is my servant. I have put everything, even the wild animals, under his control. ⁷All the nations will serve him, his son, and his grandson until his time is up. Then many nations and great kings will conquer and rule over Babylon. ⁸So you must submit to Babylon's king and serve him; put your neck under Babylon's yoke! I will punish any nation that refuses to be his slave, says the LORD. I will send war, famine, and disease upon that nation until Babylon has conquered it.

⁹"Do not listen to your false prophets, fortune-tellers, interpreters of dreams, mediums, and sorcerers who say, "The king of Babylon will not conquer you." ¹⁰They are all liars, and their lies will lead to your being driven out of your land. I will drive you out and send you far away to die. ¹¹But the people of any nation that submits to the king of Babylon will be allowed to stay in their own country to farm the land as usual. I, the LORD, have spoken!"

¹²Then I repeated this same message to King Zedekiah of Judah. "If you want to live, submit to the yoke of the king of Babylon and his people. ¹³Why do you insist on dying—you and your people? Why should you choose war, famine, and disease, which the LORD will bring against every nation that refuses to submit to Babylon's king? ¹⁴Do not listen to the false prophets who keep telling you, 'The king of Babylon will not conquer you.' They are liars. ¹⁵This is what the LORD says: 'I have not sent these prophets! They are telling you lies in my name, so I will drive you from this land. You will all die—you and all these prophets, too.'"

¹⁶Then I spoke to the priests and the people and said, "This is what the LORD says: 'Do not listen to your prophets who claim that soon the gold articles taken from my Temple will be returned from Babylon. It is all a lie! ¹⁷Do not listen to them. Surrender to the king of Babylon, and you will live. Why should this whole city be destroyed? ¹⁸If they really are prophets and speak the LORD's messages, let them pray to the LORD of Heaven's Armies. Let them pray that the articles remaining in the LORD's Temple and in the king's palace and in the palaces of Jerusalem will not be carried away to Babylon!'

note on 2:2). The Lord's authority over everything was a direct challenge to the false nature deities worshiped by each of the nations addressed.

27:6-8 God had given Nebuchadnezzar authority over the whole region, so resistance to him was futile. All the nations would serve him and his descendants. The fall of Babylon at the hand of Cyrus took place in 539 BC during the reign of Belshazzar, a grandson of Nebuchadnezzar.

27:8 Babylon's yoke: Cp. 21:8-10; 27:2-3.

27:9-10 Jeremiah warned against those who delivered messages contrary to those of the Lord. False prophets made predictions that supported idol worship; fortune-tellers claimed to have special abilities to predict future events by reading the stars, staring into crystal balls, and analyzing animal livers; interpreters of dreams predicted the future by analyzing people's dreams and explaining what would happen; mediums claimed to converse with dead people; sorcerers specialized in casting spells to hurt or bless people by saying certain words or phrases that would concentrate evil or blessing on someone. • The king of Babylon will not conquer you: This prediction was false; Nebuchadnezzar conquered the entire region beginning in 605 BC.

27:12-15 The terms of God's decree (27:4-11) applied to Judah as much as to the surrounding nations.

27:16 The gold articles and other treasures had been taken from the Temple in 597 BC.

27:18-19 Even the false prophets were called upon to repent and pray to the LORD.

27:20-22 When Judah's king Jehoiachin

(Hebrew Jecaniah, a variant spelling of Jehoiachin) was taken prisoner, King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon left the large, valuable furniture in the Temple, all of which he carried away in 586 BC.

27:22 When Cyrus of Persia allowed the exiles to return in 538 BC, they also brought the Temple furnishings back to Jerusalem with them (Ezra 1:7-11; 5:13-15).

28:1-17 Soon after the events of ch 27, a false prophet named Hananiah publicly confronted Jeremiah in the Temple courtyard. Each prophet gave what he claimed was a message from the Lord, but only Jeremiah's prediction came true.

all the priests and people listened. He said, ²"This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, says: 'I will remove the yoke of the king of Babylon from your necks. ³Within two years I will bring back all the Temple treasures that King Nebuchadnezzar carried off to Babylon. ⁴And I will bring back Jehoiachin son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, and all the other captives that were taken to Babylon. I will surely break the yoke that the king of Babylon has put on your necks. I, the LORD, have spoken!'"

⁵Jeremiah responded to Hananiah as they stood in front of all the priests and people at the Temple. ⁶He said, "Amen! May your prophecies come true! I hope the LORD does everything you say. I hope he does bring back from Babylon the treasures of this Temple and all the captives. ⁷But listen now to the solemn words I speak to you in the presence of all these people. ⁸The ancient prophets who preceded you and me spoke against many nations, always warning of war, disaster, and disease. ⁹So a prophet who predicts peace must show he is right. Only when his predictions come true can we know that he is really from the LORD."

¹⁰Then Hananiah the prophet took the yoke off Jeremiah's neck and broke it in pieces. ¹¹And Hananiah said again to the crowd that had gathered, "This is what the LORD says: 'Just as this yoke has been broken, within two years I will break the yoke of oppression from all the nations now subject to King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon.'" With that, Jeremiah left the Temple area.

¹²Soon after this confrontation with Hananiah, the LORD gave this message to Jeremiah: ¹³"Go and tell Hananiah, 'This is what the LORD says: You have broken a wooden yoke, but you have replaced it with a yoke of iron. ¹⁴The LORD of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, says: I have put a yoke of iron on the necks of all these nations, forcing them into slavery under King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon. I have put everything, even the wild animals, under his control.'"

¹⁵Then Jeremiah the prophet said to Hananiah, "Listen, Hananiah! The LORD has not sent you, but the people believe your lies. ¹⁶Therefore, this is what the LORD says: 'You must die. Your life will end this very year because you have rebelled against the LORD.'"

¹⁷Two months later the prophet Hananiah died.

5. MESSAGES TO THE EXILES IN BABYLON (29:1-32)

A Letter to the Exiles

29 Jeremiah wrote a letter from Jerusalem to the elders, priests, prophets, and all the people who had been exiled to Babylon by King Nebuchadnezzar. ²This was after King Jehoiachin, the queen mother, the court officials, the other officials of Judah, and all the craftsmen and artisans had been deported from Jerusalem. ³He sent the letter with Elasah son of Shaphan and Gemariah son of Hilkiah when they went to Babylon as King Zedekiah's ambassadors to Nebuchadnezzar. This is what Jeremiah's letter said:

⁴This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, says to all the captives he has exiled to Babylon from Jerusalem: ⁵"Build homes, and plan to stay. Plant gardens, and eat the and September 593 BC. Also see note on 1:3.) • The people were in the Temple, so it was probably the occasion of one of the annual fall festivals, either the Day of Atonement (Lev 23:26-32) or the Festival of Shelters (Lev 23:33-36).

28:2-3 Hananiah's message was the approved propaganda, but he used strong terms (see notes on 2:2, 9) to claim the Lord's authority. • Judah had been under the yoke of the king of Babylon since 597 BC.

28:4 The false prophet's message claimed that Jehoiachin (Hebrew Jecooniah, a variant spelling of Jehoiachin) would return, which implied that Zedekiah held a lower status as ruler over the kingdom of Judah (see note on Ezek 1:2). • I, the LORD, have spoken: Hananiah closed with the same strong appeal to divine authority that Jeremiah often used.

28:5-6 Amen! (literally So be it!): Jeremiah would have been happy to see this prediction fulfilled.

28:7-9 Only when a prophet's predictions come true can people be certain that he has spoken the Lord's word (Deut 18:20-22).

28:10-11 The false prophet Hananiah broke the yoke that Jeremiah was wearing (27:2) as a sign of what the Lord would do. • Jeremiah left the confrontation without replying, probably because he had not yet received the Lord's response.

28:12-14 Jeremiah received and delivered the Lord's response to the false prophecy. The wooden yoke that Hananiah broke was replaced by a metaphorical yoke of iron. Subjection to Babylon was an absolute certainty, for the Lord had decreed it.

28:15-17 You must die: The Lord's decree for Hananiah was the lawful penalty for false prophets (Deut 13:1-5). The Lord carried out the decree that very year; Jeremiah's prophecy was validated when it was fulfilled two months later (literally in the seventh month of that same year; see 28:1 and the note there). In contrast, Hananiah's prediction that the Temple treasures would be returned in two years was not fulfilled. The Lord demonstrated that he was still in control.

29:1-23 Jeremiah contacted the Hebrew exiles in Babylon by letter. To reach all the scattered Israelites, his letter would be read repeatedly from settlement to settlement.

29:2 Jehoiachin: Hebrew Jecooniah, a variant spelling of Jehoiachin. • had been deported from Jerusalem: This refers to the exile of 597 BC.

food they produce. ⁶Marry and have children. Then find spouses for them so that you may have many grandchildren. Multiply! Do not dwindle away! ⁷And work for the peace and prosperity of the city where I sent you into exile. Pray to the LORD for it, for its welfare will determine your welfare."

⁸This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, says: "Do not let your prophets and fortune-tellers who are with you in the land of Babylon trick you. Do not listen to their dreams, ⁹because they are telling you lies in my name. I have not sent them," says the LORD.

¹⁰This is what the LORD says: "You will be in Babylon for seventy years. But then I will come and do for you all the good things I have promised, and I will bring you home again. ¹¹For I know the plans I have for you," says the LORD. "They are plans for good and not for disaster, to give you a future and a hope. ¹²In those days when you pray, I will listen. ¹³If you look for me wholeheartedly, you will find me. ¹⁴I will be found by you," says the LORD. "I will end your captivity and restore your fortunes. I will gather you out of the nations where I sent you and will bring you home again to your own land."

¹⁵You claim that the LORD has raised up prophets for you in Babylon. ¹⁶But this is what the LORD says about the king who sits on David's throne and all those still living here in Jerusalem—your relatives who were not exiled to Babylon. ¹⁷This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says: "I will send war, famine, and disease upon them and make them like bad figs, too rotten to eat. ¹⁸Yes, I will pursue them with war, famine, and disease, and I will scatter them around the world. In every nation where I send them, I will make them an object of damnation, horror, contempt, and mockery. ¹⁹For they refuse to listen to me, though I have spoken to them repeatedly through the prophets I sent. And you who are in exile have not listened either," says the LORD.

²⁰Therefore, listen to this message from the LORD, all you captives there in Babylon. ²¹This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, says about your prophets—Ahab son of Kolaiah and Zedekiah son of Maaseiah—who are telling you lies in my name: "I will turn them over to Nebuchadnezzar for execution before your eyes. ²²Their terrible fate will become proverbial, so that the Judean exiles will curse someone by saying, 'May the LORD make you like Zedekiah and Ahab, whom the king of Babylon burned alive!' ²³For these men have done terrible things among my people. They have committed adultery with their neighbors' wives and have lied in my name, saying things I did not command. I am a witness to this. I, the LORD, have spoken."

A Message for Shemaiah

²⁴The LORD sent this message to Shemaiah the Nehelamite in Babylon: ²⁵"This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, says: You wrote a letter on your own authority to Zephaniah son of Maaseiah, the priest, and you sent copies to the other priests and people in Jerusalem. You wrote to Zephaniah, 29:5-7 Jeremiah urged the exiled people to plan to stay in Babylon for a long time. God wanted them to become productive citizens, concerned and praying to the LORD for the welfare of the Babylonian communities in which they lived, so their population could grow. They should not listen to false prophecies such as Hananiah's, promising that they would be coming home shortly.

29:8-9 The next divine command warned against false prophets and fortune-tellers.

29:10 The exiled people of Judah would be in Babylon for seventy years; this was not new information (see 25:11 and note), but Jeremiah's audiences in Jerusalem had not believed him. Now that those people were in exile, they needed to accept reality.

29:11 The Lord's plans for good, to prosper the exiled people and to return them to the land of Judah, gave them a future and a hope. This promise was specific to the exiles in Babylon, but it has given hope to millions of God's people in various difficult circumstances.

29:12-13 Through Jeremiah, the Lord reminded the exiled people that if they would look for him wholeheartedly, they would find him. The Exile taught the Israelites to reject false gods and give their wholehearted devotion to the Lord (Deut 6:4-6). It also gave them a new commitment to the revealed word of God.

29:15 False prophets could still be found among the exiles; they held out hope for the survival of Jerusalem and a quick end to the Exile.

29:16-18 To keep the exiles in Babylon from thinking that they were worse off than those left behind, the Lord reiterated his decree of disaster for the bad figs still in Jerusalem (see 24:6-10); their time of horror was yet to come.

29:20-22 Although Jeremiah was in Jerusalem, God was able to tell him what was happening in Babylon, just as he was able to tell Ezekiel in Babylon what was happening in Jerusalem (Ezek 8). • The Lord named two prophets who were telling . . . lies in his name, and sentenced them to death (Deut 18:20-22; cp. He said, ‘Build homes, and plan to stay. Plant gardens, and eat the food they produce.’”

²⁹But when Zephaniah the priest received Shemaiah's letter, he took it to Jeremiah and read it to him. ³⁰Then the LORD gave this message to Jeremiah: ³¹“Send an open letter to all the exiles in Babylon. Tell them, ‘This is what the LORD says concerning Shemaiah the Nehelamite: Since he has prophesied to you when I did not send him and has tricked you into believing his lies, ³²I will punish him and his family. None of his descendants will see the good things I will do for my people, for he has incited you to rebel against me. I, the LORD, have spoken!’”

6. MESSAGES OF HOPE (30:1–33:26)

Promises of Deliverance

30 The LORD gave another message to Jeremiah. He said, ²“This is what the LORD, the God of Israel, says: Write down for the record everything I have said to you, Jeremiah. ³For the time is coming when I will restore the fortunes of my people of Israel and Judah. I will bring them home to this land that I gave to their ancestors, and they will possess it again. I, the LORD, have spoken!”

⁴This is the message the LORD gave concerning Israel and Judah. ⁵This is what the LORD says:

“I hear cries of fear;
there is terror and no peace.

⁶ Now let me ask you a question:
Do men give birth to babies?

Then why do they stand there,
ashen-faced,
hands pressed against their sides
like a woman in labor?

⁷ In all history there has never been such a time of terror.

It will be a time of trouble for my people Israel.

Yet in the end they will be saved!

⁸ For in that day,”

says the LORD of Heaven's Armies,

“I will break the yoke from their necks and snap their chains.

Foreigners will no longer be their masters.

⁹ For my people will serve the LORD their God

and their king descended from David—the king I will raise up for them.

¹⁰ “So do not be afraid, Jacob, my servant;
do not be dismayed, Israel,”
says the LORD.

“For I will bring you home again from distant lands,
and your children will return from their exile.

Israel will return to a life of peace and quiet,
and no one will terrorize them.

accept a long exile (29:4-23). Shemaiah sent a letter to a leading priest in Jerusalem, urging him to take action against Jeremiah; Jeremiah responded with a letter to the exiles that condemned Shemaiah.

29:29 Zephaniah had enough good sense to show Jeremiah the letter from Shemaiah.

29:30-32 Since Shemaiah had no commission from the Lord, he was a liar; he tried to persuade the exiles to believe in a brief exile. With a threefold invocation of the Lord's authority (see note on 2:2), Shemaiah was charged, convicted, and sentenced to execution.

30:1–33:26 These four chapters are often called “The Book of Consolation,” a high point in OT revelation. In contrast to the many messages of judgment that Jeremiah delivered to his people, these messages are filled with hope and point to a marvelous future restoration.

30:1-24 This series of messages is mainly positive, with only two verses carrying a tone of judgment (30:23-24). They speak of the beneficial effects of the destruction of Jerusalem and of the Exile.

30:3 The new messages expand on the theme of 29:10-14 (see 3:18; 16:15; 24:6). The fall of Jerusalem and the Exile did not mark the end of the Lord's relationship with Israel. The Lord had a wonderful future for the remnant of his people. Descendants of people from the northern kingdom of Israel who were taken into exile by the Assyrians in 722 BC would be restored. Likewise, descendants of the people of Judah who were taken into Babylonian exile in 597 and 586 BC would return to the Promised Land. • I will bring them home: The first major return from exile occurred in 538 BC (Ezra 1–6), the second in 458 BC (Ezra 7–10), and the third in 445 BC (Neh 1–13).

30:7 The time of trouble was the Babylonian capture and the final destruction of Judah in 586 BC. • Israel: Literally Jacob; also in 30:10b, 18; see note on 5:20.

30:8 Although the return of the exiles began in 538 BC, foreigners were still their masters for most of Israel's history from the Exile through the Roman period. However, Israel experienced a measure of freedom during that time.

30:9 After the Exile, the Israelites cast aside their persistent worship of idols and truly served the Lord their God.

• The Lord would provide a king, also a descendant of David, who would be called the Messiah (Isa 55:3-4; Ezek 34:23; 37:24; Hos 3:5; Luke 1:69; Acts 2:30; 13:22-23).

30:10 The gathering of exiles would include those held in Babylon and also those who were scattered in distant lands. The Lord's promised gifts would include peace and quiet without fear-some enemies.

- ¹¹ For I am with you and will save you," says the LORD.
 "I will completely destroy the nations where I have scattered you, but I will not completely destroy you. I will discipline you, but with justice; I cannot let you go unpunished."
- ¹² This is what the LORD says:
 "Your injury is incurable—a terrible wound."
- ¹³ There is no one to help you or to bind up your injury. No medicine can heal you.
- ¹⁴ All your lovers—your allies—have left you and do not care about you anymore. I have wounded you cruelly, as though I were your enemy. For your sins are many, and your guilt is great.
- ¹⁵ Why do you protest your punishment—this wound that has no cure? I have had to punish you because your sins are many and your guilt is great.
- ¹⁶ "But all who devour you will be devoured, and all your enemies will be sent into exile. All who plunder you will be plundered, and all who attack you will be attacked."
- ¹⁷ I will give you back your health and heal your wounds," says the LORD.
 "For you are called an outcast—'Jerusalem for whom no one cares.'"
- ¹⁸ This is what the LORD says:
 "When I bring Israel home again from captivity

- and restore their fortunes, Jerusalem will be rebuilt on its ruins, and the palace reconstructed as before.
- ¹⁹ There will be joy and songs of thanksgiving, and I will multiply my people, not diminish them; I will honor them, not despise them.
- ²⁰ Their children will prosper as they did long ago. I will establish them as a nation before me, and I will punish anyone who hurts them.
- ²¹ They will have their own ruler again, and he will come from their own people. I will invite him to approach me," says the LORD, "for who would dare to come unless invited?"
- ²² You will be my people, and I will be your God."
- ²³ Look! The LORD's anger bursts out like a storm, a driving wind that swirls down on the heads of the wicked.
- ²⁴ The fierce anger of the LORD will not diminish until it has finished all he has planned. In the days to come you will understand all this.

Hope for Restoration

31 "In that day," says the LORD, "I will be the God of all the families of Israel, and they will be my people. ²This is what the LORD says:

30:11 The Lord could make these promises because he was with his people and had the power to save them. He promised to destroy vicious nations and preserve his people. Still, the Lord would discipline his people if they sinned.

30:12-14 The exiles suffered injury—a terrible wound—because of their many sins. • lovers . . . allies: The Lord used these terms to refer to nations, especially Egypt, that had been Judah's trusted friends (see 4:30 and note; see also Ezek 16:15-63).

30:15 The Israelites had no right to protest their punishment; they deserved their exile, and God's justice demanded that they be punished.

30:16 all who devour you will be devoured: See 25:11-12.

30:17 I will . . . heal your wounds: The people would return from exile and their sins would be removed. • Jerusalem: Hebrew Zion.

30:18 The walls of Jerusalem were rebuilt in 445 BC under Nehemiah's leadership (Neh 12:22-43).

30:19-21 The rebuilt Jerusalem would be the center of a healthy and growing nation. Its growing population would experience joy and sing songs of thanksgiving. The city would be honored by its neighbors, and its streets would be filled with children who would grow up and prosper. The nation would have its own ruler again.

30:22 The Lord wanted to establish a nation whose people were totally committed to worshiping him as the one true God (Exod 6:7; Ezek 36:38).

30:23 The reestablished nation was still held accountable for rebellion. The Lord reserved the authority to express his stormy anger against the wicked.

30:24 Punishment remained an important aspect of what the Lord had planned. The Israelites, including Jeremiah, found it difficult to reconcile divine promises with divine anger. Looking back on events at a later time would help the people to understand this paradox.

31:1 In that day: This phrase refers to the return from exile that began in 538 BC. • all the families of Israel: The coming restoration included all twelve tribes of Israel.

31:2 The Lord directed his message to those who would survive the coming destruction at the fall of Jerusalem in 586 BC.

³ Long ago the LORD said to Israel:
"I have loved you, my people, with an everlasting love.

With unfailing love I have drawn you to myself.

⁴ I will rebuild you, my virgin Israel.
You will again be happy and dance merrily with your

"Sing with joy for Israel.

Shout for the greatest of nations!

Shout out with praise and joy:

'Save your people, O LORD,
the remnant of Israel!'

⁸ For I will bring them from the north

and from the distant corners of the

I will not forget the blind and lame, the expectant mothers and women in labor.

A great company will return!

faces,

and I will lead them home with great care.

They will walk beside quiet streams and on smooth paths where they will

For I am Israel's father, and Ephraim is my oldest child.

Future Hope (30:1–33:26)

Heb 9:13–15;
12:22–24

The book of Jeremiah contains many messages of judgment and doom, but flashes of hope occasionally shine through.

The first ray of hope in Jeremiah is found in the Lord's appeal to Israel to turn from idolatry back to the Lord God and the Sinai Covenant (3:11–4:2). A positive response would open a bright future for the people. They could know the salvation that heals hearts (3:22–23), and Israel would become a blessing to all nations. The nation would not be destroyed if the people repented, which would bring God's anger to an end (4:1–2). Even in times of crisis before the fall of Jerusalem, promises of a wonderful future offered hope for the nation (see 16:15; 23:3–8; 29:10–14; 30:1–33:26).

After the fall of Jerusalem, the Lord again offered hope to the exiles in Babylon. After seventy years, the exiles who turned to the Lord would return to the Promised Land to rebuild the Temple and the city of Jerusalem. A functioning community would know peace and prosperity (see 46:27–28; chs 50–51). Babylon would be destroyed as the capital of a great empire, and the exiles would return to Judah. These events occurred in 539–538 BC.

In addition to Jeremiah, the Lord specifically offered hope to two individuals. Baruch (Jeremiah's scribe) and Ebed-melech (the royal servant who saved Jeremiah from the cistern) both received the divine promise that they would survive the coming fall of Jerusalem (39:16–18; 45:1–5).

Hope for the new nation extended well into the future, as the Lord promised a righteous descendant of King David who would rule over the Lord's people (23:5; 33:15). Jesus Christ is that righteous descendant; through his death on the cross, he became the mediator of a new covenant (Heb 9:13–15; 12:22–24).

31:3 Long ago, the Lord had revealed himself during the Exodus (see Exod 15:13; 20:6; 34:6–7; Num 14:18–19; Deut 5:10; 7:7, 10, 12–13; 10:15, 18).

31:4 In their homeland, the Israelites had been guilty of "adultery" with false gods. The restored community would be like a virgin, as though the people had never forsaken the Lord. The happiness and joy of their celebrations would manifest this transformation.

31:5 Samaria was located in north central Israel.

31:6 In the fully restored nation, the kingdom would no longer be divided (1 Kgs 12:16–29; Ezek 37:16–22). • Jerusalem: Hebrew Zion; also in 31:12.

31:7 Israel: Literally Jacob; also in 31:11; see note on 5:20. • The remnant refers to those who were living in exile.

31:8 The Lord promised to gather the surviving exiles from wherever they were scattered without overlooking the weak and helpless. • The great company of exiles who returned in 538–536 BC numbered 49,697 (Ezra 2:64).

31:9 Those returning to their homeland would cry for joy, knowing the Lord as their shepherd (Ps 23:1–3) and feeling secure (see Isa 35:10) with God as their father.

¹⁰ "Listen to this message from the LORD,
you nations of the world;
proclaim it in distant coastlands:
The LORD, who scattered his people, will gather them and watch over them
as a shepherd does his flock.

¹¹ For the LORD has ^{re}deemed Israel from those too strong for them.

¹² They will come home and sing songs of joy on the heights of Jerusalem.
They will be radiant because of the LORD's good gifts—
the abundant crops of grain, new wine, and olive oil,
and the healthy flocks and herds.
Their life will be like a watered garden,
and all their sorrows will be gone.

¹³ The young women will dance for joy, and the men—old and young—will join in the celebration.

I will turn their mourning into joy.
I will comfort them and exchange their sorrow for rejoicing.

¹⁴ The priests will enjoy abundance, and my people will feast on my good gifts.

I, the LORD, have spoken!"

Rachel's Sadness Turns to Joy

¹⁵ This is what the LORD says:

"A cry is heard in Ramah—deep anguish and bitter weeping.
Rachel weeps for her children, refusing to be comforted—for her children are gone."

¹⁶ But now this is what the LORD says:

"Do not weep any longer,
for I will reward you," says the LORD.

"Your children will come back to you from the distant land of the enemy.

¹⁷ There is hope for your future," says the LORD.

"Your children will come again to their own land.

¹⁸ I have heard Israel saying,
'You disciplined me severely, like a calf that needs training for the yoke.

Turn me again to you and restore me,
for you alone are the LORD my God.

¹⁹ I turned away from God,
but then I was sorry.
I kicked myself for my stupidity!
I was thoroughly ashamed of all I did in my younger days.'

²⁰ "Is not Israel still my son, my darling child?" says the LORD.

"I often have to punish him,
but I still love him.
That's why I long for him and surely will have mercy on him.

²¹ Set up road signs;
put up guideposts.
Mark well the path
by which you came.

Come back again, my virgin Israel;
return to your towns here.

²² How long will you wander,
my wayward daughter?
For the LORD will cause something new to happen—
Israel will embrace her God."

²³ This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, says: "When I bring them back from captivity, the people of Judah and its towns will again say, 'The LORD

31:11 The Lord alone could accomplish the people's release from exile.

31:12 The restored community would enjoy the LORD's good gifts. The people could expect abundant crops to spring forth in the fields with no appeal to Baal. The sorrows of their exile would be cast off, and the returnees could expect to be fruitful, like a watered garden.

31:13 The Lord would replace mourning, a daily experience in exile, with his comfort and a continual outpouring of rejoicing (see Isa 40:1-3; 61:3).

31:14 The priests and the people would

31:15 Rachel, Jacob's favorite wife, was the mother of Joseph (father of the tribes of Ephraim and Manasseh in the northern kingdom) and Benjamin (whose descendants were in the southern kingdom). She represented the mothers in all Israel whose children were taken into exile. * Matthew 2:18 quotes this verse in relation to the slaughter of the young boys in Bethlehem.

31:16-17 Rachel should not weep, because the Lord promised to bring her exiled children out of captivity and back to their own land.

31:18-19 Israel (literally Ephraim, referring to the northern kingdom of Israel; also in 31:20) was now repenting of its sins and humbly asking for restoration; the people realized that they had no power to redeem themselves. They were turning away from idols and affirming that God alone is the LORD.

31:19 When the exiles realized the stupidity of their sins, they were ashamed.

31:20 The exiled people had been in the Lord's memory all along. God responded to his people's repentance with a father's love for his wayward children (cp. Luke 15:11-24).

31:21 road signs . . . guideposts: The Lord guided his people physically back to the land of Israel and spiritually back to their covenant relationship with the Lord.

The New Covenant (31:31-34)

Isa 11:1-9; 54:13-15
Ezek 37:24-28
Matt 26:27-28
Luke 22:20
Rom 11:25-36
1 Cor 11:23-26
2 Cor 3:6-18
Heb 8:8-9:28

One section in the book of Jeremiah (chs 30–33) stands above other passages in the OT in its optimistic view of Israel's future. The high point (31:31–34) is the announcement that the Lord God will form a new covenant with his people. It points toward Jesus of Nazareth, whose death would seal this new covenant.

One sentence in particular gives a new context to the key affirmation of the Sinai covenant: "I will be their God, and they will be my people" (31:33; see also Exod 6:7). The relationship between God and his people envisioned in the Sinai Covenant was surrounded by laws chiseled in stone and a priestly class in charge of all religious institutions and activities. The new covenant would differ from the old in one primary way: It would no longer be external to the worshipers, but would now be written on their hearts (31:33). The great defect of the old covenant was that it lacked the power to enable people to do what it commanded (Rom 8:3). The new covenant would be internalized through the power of the Holy Spirit, whose indwelling would be made possible through the sacrifice of Christ (Ezek 36:24–27). Thus, it would become possible for people everywhere (not just a select few) to fulfill God's covenant plan for life as summed up in the two "Great Commandments" (Matt 22:35–40): "You must love the LORD your God" (Deut 6:5) and "Love your neighbor as yourself" (Lev 19:18).

In the new covenant, God's role as Creator goes beyond making all material things. The new covenant would achieve the goal that the old one pointed to, but could not reach: creating new persons and a new community. The goal is a deep transformation of sinners, beginning with forgiveness of sins and culminating in a holiness exemplified by good works (Eph 1:4; 2:8–10). According to the NT, all believers in Jesus Christ will know him directly by the activity of the Holy Spirit. They will know him personally and experience him powerfully, as only a few did in OT times.

Jesus applied the new covenant to himself when he instituted the communion ritual (Matt 26:28; Mark 14:24; Luke 22:20; see also 1 Cor 11:25; 2 Cor 3:6). Jesus' death inaugurated the new covenant, and Christians commemorate that reality each time they take communion.

Hebrews 8:8–12 quotes Jer 31:31–34, and Heb 9 contrasts the old and new covenants. The writer clearly states that Jesus' death brought the new covenant into existence and made him the mediator of the covenant for whoever believes in him.

31:26 Evidently, either Jeremiah or his scribe had fallen asleep and was awakened with a start. His sleep was very sweet, like the rest and joy promised by the Lord (31:25).

31:27 A clear indication of the Lord's care for Israel and Judah would be their population growth and the number of animals grazing in their pastures.

31:28 The future refers to the return of the exiled people to the Promised Land, which the Lord had promised to plant and build (see 1:10).

31:29–30 Some seemed to think that this proverb (apparently a misinterpretation of Exod 20:5; 34:7; Num 14:18) meant that innocent children were dying because of their parents' sins. The Lord made it clear that each individual is punished for his or her own sins (see Lam 5:7; Ezek 18:2–32; 33:10–20).

31:31 The day of the new covenant was realized when Jesus Christ accomplished his redemptive mission on earth (see Heb 8:8–12).

31:32–34 The key difference between the new covenant and the one God made with their ancestors is that the Lord them as a husband loves his wife," says the LORD.

³³"But this is the new covenant I will make with the people of Israel after those days," says the LORD. "I will put my instructions deep within them, and I will write them on their hearts. I will be their God, and they will be my people. ³⁴And they will not need to teach their neighbors, nor will they need to teach their relatives, saying, 'You should know the LORD.' For everyone, from the least to the greatest, will know me already," says the LORD. "And I will forgive their wickedness, and I will never again remember their sins."

³⁵It is the LORD who provides the sun to light the day and the moon and stars to light the night,
and who stirs the sea into roaring waves.
His name is the LORD of Heaven's Armies, and this is what he says:
³⁶"I am as likely to reject my people Israel as I am to abolish the laws of nature!"
³⁷This is what the LORD says:
"Just as the heavens cannot be measured and the foundations of the earth cannot be explored, so I will not consider casting them away for the evil they have done.
I, the LORD, have spoken!"

³⁸"The day is coming," says the LORD, "when all Jerusalem will be rebuilt for me, from the Tower of Hananel to the Corner Gate. ³⁹A measuring line will be stretched out over the hill of Gareb and across to Goah. ⁴⁰And the entire area—including the graveyard and ash dump in the valley, and all the fields out to the Kidron Valley on the east as far as the Horse Gate—will be holy to the LORD. The city will never again be captured or destroyed."

Jeremiah's Land Purchase

32 The following message came to Jeremiah from the LORD in the tenth year of the reign of Zedekiah, king of Judah. This was also the eighteenth year of the reign of King Nebuchadnezzar. ²Jerusalem was then under siege from the Babylonian army, and Jeremiah was imprisoned in the courtyard of the guard in the royal palace. ³King Zedekiah had put him there, asking why he kept giving this prophecy: "This is what the LORD says: 'I am about to hand this city over to the king of Babylon, and he will take it. ⁴King Zedekiah will be captured by the Babylonians and taken to meet the king of Babylon face to face. ⁵He will take Zedekiah to Babylon, and I will deal with him there,' says the LORD. 'If you fight against the Babylonians, you will never succeed.'"

⁶At that time the LORD sent me a message. He said, ⁷"Your cousin Hanamel son of Shalum will come and say to you, 'Buy my field at Anathoth. By law you have the right to buy it before it is offered to anyone else.'" would write his instructions deep within his people's hearts (see Heb 11:16). The old covenant was external and legal, whereas the new covenant would be a vital, person-to-person relationship. The new covenant would emphasize the redeeming, transforming change of an individual's spiritual nature.

⁸Then, just as the LORD had said he would, my cousin Hanamel came and visited me in the prison. He said, "Please buy my field at Anathoth in the land of Benjamin. By law you have the right to buy it before it is offered to anyone else, so buy it for yourself." Then I knew that the message I had heard was from the LORD.

31:34 The old covenant had to be taught (see Deut 6:4-9), but the heart of the new covenant would be an inner, personal relationship with the Lord. • I will forgive: Each repentant believer would experience God's forgiveness. • I will never again remember: When sins are forgiven, they can never bring divine judgment (see Heb 11:17). • Jesus' death inaugurated the new covenant (see Matt 26:28; Mark 14:24; Luke 22:20; 1 Cor 11:25; 2 Cor 3:6; Heb 8:1-13; 9:15; 12:22-24).

31:35-37 The Lord compared his promise of the new covenant to his faithfulness in maintaining the laws of nature.

31:38 The Lord revealed his plan for Jerusalem to be rebuilt. The Tower of Hananel stood at the northeast corner of the old city, while the Corner Gate had been at the northwest corner (2 Kgs 14:13; 2 Chr 26:9).

31:39 Gareb and Goah do not appear elsewhere in Scripture, but they were probably on the west side of the city.

31:40 Jerusalem will be an eternal holy . . . city, present in the heavenly realm and on the new earth (Rev 21-22).

• The graveyard and ash dump were in the valley of Ben-Hinnom (see note on 7:30-34) on the south side of the city and the Kidron Valley on the east (2 Kgs 23:4-6). • The exact location of the Horse Gate on the eastern wall is unknown.

32:1 The tenth year of the reign of Zedekiah and the eighteenth year of the reign of King Nebuchadnezzar was 587 BC, just before the fall of Jerusalem. • Nebuchadnezzar: Hebrew Nebuchadrezzar, a variant spelling of Nebuchadnezzar; also in 32:28.

32:2 Jerusalem had been under siege since January 588 BC (2 Kgs 25:1). • Jeremiah favored surrender to the Babylonians, but the thought angered many who believed that they could successfully defy the foreign army. To protect Jeremiah, Zedekiah imprisoned him in the courtyard of the guard (37:21).

32:4-5 Continuing to resist the Babylonians (or Chaldeans; also in 32:5, 24, 25, 28, 29, 43) was hopeless; it would result in disaster for the city and for Zedekiah.

32:6-8 Anathoth was Jeremiah's hometown (1:1). • By law you have the right: Hebrew custom required Jeremiah's cousin to offer the land first to his nearest relative (see Lev 25:25, 32; Ruth 4:1-4).

⁹So I bought the field at Anathoth, paying Hanamel seventeen pieces of silver for it. ¹⁰I signed and sealed the deed of purchase before witnesses, weighed out the silver, and paid him. ¹¹Then I took the sealed deed and an unsealed copy of the deed, which contained the terms and conditions of the purchase, ¹²and I handed them to Baruch son of Neriah and grandson of Mahseiah. I did all this in the presence of my cousin Hanamel, the witnesses who had signed the deed, and all the men of Judah who were there in the courtyard of the guardhouse.

¹³Then I said to Baruch as they all listened, ¹⁴"This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, says: 'Take both this sealed deed and the unsealed copy, and put them into a pottery jar to preserve them for a long time.' ¹⁵For this is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, says: 'Someday people will again own property here in this land and will buy and sell houses and vineyards and fields.'"

Jeremiah's Prayer

¹⁶Then after I had given the papers to Baruch, I ¹⁶prayed to the LORD:

¹⁷"O Sovereign LORD! You made the heavens and earth by your strong hand and powerful arm. Nothing is too hard for you! ¹⁸You show unfailing love to thousands, but you also bring the consequences of one generation's sin upon the next. You are the great and powerful God, the LORD of Heaven's Armies. ¹⁹You have all wisdom and do great and mighty miracles. You see the conduct of all people, and you give them what they deserve. ²⁰You performed miraculous signs and wonders in the land of Egypt—things still remembered to this day! And you have continued to do great miracles in Israel and all around the world. You have made your name famous to this day.

²¹"You brought Israel out of Egypt with mighty signs and wonders, with a strong hand and powerful arm, and with overwhelming terror. ²²You gave the people of Israel this land that you had promised their ancestors long before—a land flowing with milk and honey. ²³Our ancestors came and conquered it and lived in it, but they refused to obey you or follow your word. They have not done anything you commanded. That is why you have sent this terrible disaster upon them.

²⁴"See how the siege ramps have been built against the city walls! Through

32:9-12 Many people might have thought that Jeremiah did a foolish thing when he agreed to buy the land. After the fall of Jerusalem and the exile of many people, the value of the land would drop to almost nothing. Still, Jeremiah immediately bought the field. • seventeen pieces: Hebrew 17 shekels, about 7 ounces or 194 grams in weight. • Matt 27:9-10 refers to the "prophecy of Jeremiah," which might be an allusion to this event.

32:10 Jeremiah carefully followed the proper legal procedures for buying property. The deed of purchase was a sheet of papyrus that listed the terms of the purchase in Hebrew. Jeremiah signed and sealed the deed and paid the purchase price in the presence of witnesses (Gen 23:3-18; 2 Sam 24:20-24).

32:11-12 According to custom, a copy of the deed was made. The two documents were entrusted to the care of Jeremiah's secretary, Baruch. This was done publicly, in the courtyard of the guardhouse.

32:13-14 According to custom, the two copies of the deed were placed in a pottery jar so that they would be preserved for a long time.

32:15 Jeremiah explained the reason for his purchase: He was making an investment in the future that God had promised. Someday exiled survivors of the destruction of Judah would return, and worthless land would again become productive and valuable. Jeremiah had already predicted that the exile would last for seventy years (25:11-12; 29:10). Jeremiah's purchase was a declaration of faith in the Lord's plan for restoring his people.

32:16-25 This prayer of Jeremiah differed from his previous prayers, which expressed strong emotions of anguish and despair and even sharp criticism of the Lord's treatment of the people of Judah. This prayer was calm, affirming, and worshipful.

32:16 Jeremiah prayed in response to his purchase of land.

32:17 As the all-powerful Creator of all things, the Sovereign LORD could do what he had promised for his people.

32:18 The Lord consistently showed his unfailing love, but he also held generations accountable for their sins, and their children harvested the consequences. Through his mercy and his judgment, the LORD demonstrated his unlimited power. Jeremiah was confident that the Lord would show his love to his people as he had promised.

32:19 The Lord knows what each person does, and he holds each one accountable as he judges their sins fairly.

32:20 The Lord had done great miracles throughout the history of Israel, but he had also been active all around the world. As a result, everyone knew about Israel's God.

32:21 The first great miracle in Israel's history was the exodus from Egypt, an act filled with mighty signs and wonders. These divine acts caused terror in Egypt and among the desert tribes.

32:22 God also gave the productive Promised Land to Israel. • milk and honey: See note on 11:5.

32:23 After Israel entered the Promised Land, they quickly turned from faithfully obeying the Lord. Generation after generation up to Jeremiah's day was guilty of rebellion. This long history of sin was the cause of the present terrible disaster. Previously, Jeremiah had trouble accepting that this act of God was just, but now he saw that the Lord's word was true.

32:24 Jeremiah was amazed at the skill of the attacking Babylonians. They used ramps to lay siege to the walled city. Within Jerusalem, he saw the horrors of war, famine, and disease. It was war, famine, and disease, the city will be handed over to the Babylonians, who will conquer it. Everything has happened just as you said. ²⁵And yet, O Sovereign LORD, you have told me to buy the field—paying good money for it before these witnesses—even though the city will soon be handed over to the Babylonians.”

A Prediction of Jerusalem's Fall

²⁶Then this message came to Jeremiah from the LORD: ²⁷“I am the LORD, the God of all the peoples of the world. Is anything too hard for me? ²⁸Therefore, this is what the LORD says: I will hand this city over to the Babylonians and to Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and he will capture it. ²⁹The Babylonians outside the walls will come in and set fire to the city. They will burn down all these houses where the people provoked my anger by burning incense to Baal on the rooftops and by pouring out liquid offerings to other gods. ³⁰Israel and Judah have done nothing but wrong since their earliest days. They have infuriated me with all their evil deeds,” says the LORD. ³¹“From the time this city was built until now, it has done nothing but anger me, so I am determined to get rid of it.

³²“The sins of Israel and Judah—the sins of the people of Jerusalem, the kings, the officials, the priests, and the prophets—have stirred up my anger. ³³My people have turned their backs on me and have refused to return. Even though I diligently taught them, they would not receive instruction or obey. ³⁴They have set up their abominable idols right in my own Temple, defiling it. ³⁵They have built pagan shrines to Baal in the valley of Ben-Hinnom, and there they sacrifice their sons and daughters to Molech. I have never commanded such a horrible deed; it never even crossed my mind to command such a thing. What an incredible evil, causing Judah to sin so greatly!

A Promise of Restoration

³⁶“Now I want to say something more about this city. You have been saying, ‘It will fall to the king of Babylon through war, famine, and disease.’ But this is what the LORD, the God of Israel, says: ³⁷I will certainly bring my people back again from all the countries where I will scatter them in my fury. I will bring them back to this very city and let them live in peace and safety. ³⁸They will be my people, and I will be their God. ³⁹And I will give them one heart and one purpose:

obvious that the Babylonians would conquer the city. A sense of awe swept through Jeremiah as he realized that he was seeing the fulfillment of everything the Lord had said.

32:25 Jeremiah was still puzzled about the Lord's command to buy the field (32:8). That field would be under the control of the Babylonian army, and the purchase price drew on Jeremiah's good money, his savings. Because the Lord had decreed that the city would be destroyed, the purchase appeared futile from a human perspective. Also see note on 32:44.

32:26-41 The Lord responded to Jeremiah's concern (32:25) with several affirmations. The Lord had decided on his course of action, the events of the immediate and long-range future had been established, and real doom was hanging over Jerusalem.

32:26-27 The Lord affirmed that he is the sovereign God of all the peoples of the world. • Using a rhetorical question, the Lord also affirmed that nothing is too hard for him.

32:28-29 The Lord affirmed that the army of Nebuchadnezzar would soon crash through the walls, Jerusalem would be captured, and fire would consume everything that could burn. • Baal worship was both a family affair and a national commitment (see note on 7:17-18). All the places used for idol worship, including individual houses, would be destroyed.

32:30-35 The Lord continued to affirm his plans, recounting that Israel and Judah had done evil, had turned their backs on the Lord, and had stirred up his anger against their sin.

32:30 The people of Israel (the northern tribes) and Judah (the southern tribes) had worshiped idols for centuries, since their earliest days, contrary to God's ancient covenant with them. The Lord was infuriated by these evil deeds.

32:31 The time this city was built was during the reigns of David and Solomon, when Jerusalem became the capital city of Israel. During the history of the northern kingdom of Israel, every king promoted worship of false gods. In the kingdom of Judah, only a few kings encouraged worship of the Lord, usually without lasting success (e.g., 2 Chr 14:3; 17:6; 29:5; 33:15-16; 34:3, 31-32). The northern kingdom had already been destroyed (2 Kgs 17:5-12), and now the Lord had decided to get rid of the southern kingdom of Judah (see Deut 8:19-20).

32:34-35 The people had sinned by defiling God's own Temple with abominable idols (Ezek 8:3). The leaders of Judah were also known to sacrifice their own children to an Ammonite deity named Molech (see note at 7:30-34).

32:36-44 The Lord affirmed (see note on 32:26-41) that the destruction of Jerusalem would not bring an end to his plans. Beyond the immediate doom, the Lord planned a future of salvation and restoration for his people.

32:36-37 Jeremiah was responsible for repeating whatever the Lord told him, even if the messages seemed contradictory on the surface. Jeremiah had been saying for years that God was going to destroy the city. Now he was saying that God would rebuild the city. Cp. Isa 38:1-6.

32:37 God would certainly bring his people back again to Jerusalem, where they would live in peace and safety.

32:38-40 The new covenant (31:31-34) would take root deep within the spiritual being of the people, both as individuals and in the community. • They will be my people, and I will be their God: A deep relationship between God and his people would finally be realized, as had been the intent of the covenant all along (7:23; Lev 26:12; Ezek 11:20; 37:23; Zech 8:8).

32:39 Under the new covenant, the people would worship the one true God rather than idols.

⁴⁰And I will make an everlasting covenant with them: I will never stop doing good for them. I will put a desire in their hearts to worship me, and they will never leave me. ⁴¹I will find joy doing good for them and will faithfully and wholeheartedly replant them in this land.

⁴²"This is what the LORD says: Just as I have brought all these calamities on them, so I will do all the good I have promised them. ⁴³Fields will again be bought and sold in this land about which you now say, 'It has been ravaged by the Babylonians, a desolate land where people and animals have all disappeared.' ⁴⁴Yes, fields will once again be bought and sold—deeds signed and sealed and witnessed—in the land of Benjamin and here in Jerusalem, in the towns of Judah and in the hill country, in the foothills of Judah and in the Negev, too. For someday I will restore prosperity to them. I, the LORD, have spoken!"

Promises of Peace and Prosperity

33 While Jeremiah was still confined in the courtyard of the guard, the LORD gave him this second message: ²"This is what the LORD says—the LORD who made the earth, who formed and established it, whose name is the LORD: ³Ask me and I will tell you remarkable secrets you do not know about things to come. ⁴For this is what the LORD, the God of Israel, says: You have torn down the houses of this city and even the king's palace to get materials to strengthen the walls against the siege ramps and swords of the enemy. ⁵You expect to fight the Babylonians, but the men of this city are already as good as dead, for I have determined to destroy them in my terrible anger. I have abandoned them because of all their wickedness.

⁶"Nevertheless, the time will come when I will heal Jerusalem's wounds and give it prosperity and true peace. ⁷I will restore the fortunes of Judah and Israel and rebuild their towns. ⁸I will cleanse them of their sins against me and forgive all their sins of rebellion. ⁹Then this city will bring me joy, glory, and honor before all the nations of the earth! The people of the world will see all the good I do for my people, and they will tremble with awe at the peace and prosperity I provide for them.

¹⁰"This is what the LORD says: You have said, 'This is a desolate land where people and animals have all disappeared.' Yet in the empty streets of Jerusalem and Judah's other towns, there will be heard once more ¹¹the sounds of joy and laughter. The joyful voices of bridegrooms and brides will be heard again, along with the joyous songs of people bringing 'thanksgiving offerings to the LORD. They will sing,

'Give thanks to the LORD of Heaven's Armies, for the LORD is good.
His faithful love endures forever!'

For I will restore the prosperity of this land to what it was in the past, says the LORD.

¹²"This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says: This land—though it is now desolate and has no people and animals—will 32:41 find joy: The Lord's anger at seeing his people worship sex-idols and his grief in punishing them for breaching the old covenant would be gone. No longer would he uproot them (1:10); instead, it would be his delight to replant them.

32:42-43 God's promises for good were just as certain as the judgments that were being carried out as the Babylonians laid siege to Jerusalem.

32:44 fields will once again be bought and sold: The Lord directly answered Jeremiah's query (32:25). Jeremiah had signed and sealed and witnessed a deed for his inherited property (32:9-11), and people would do the same throughout the land of Judah. • the foothills of Judah: Hebrew the Shephelah.

33:1-26 As the city of Jerusalem and the king of Judah were falling to invaders, God gave Jeremiah a greater understanding of his long-range plan.

The promises could only come true after the promised destruction. The hope of the nation was not to be found in escape from destruction but in the purification that destruction would bring. • Jeremiah was . . . confined in the courtyard of the guard in the royal palace from the latter part of 587 BC, when the siege was underway, until the fall of Jerusalem in August 586 BC (see 32:2).

33:2 The Lord grounded this message in his power as the Creator of all things, and in the power of his name.

33:4 Zedekiah and his men had torn down some structures to defend the city's walls against the Babylonians' siege ramps and swords.

33:5 Babylonians: Or Chaldeans. • The men were already as good as dead because the Lord had decreed the destruction of the city.

33:8 The Lord promised to cleanse and forgive all their sins of rebellion; this was the foundation upon which the new, everlasting covenant would rest (31:34; 32:38-41).

33:9 Once the new covenant was established, all the nations of the earth would see the Lord's blessing on Jerusalem.

33:10-11 Although seventy years of exile would come first, the Lord's curse (7:34) would be reversed (25:10-12). Singing would be a hallmark of the restored worship (Ps 136:1). This prediction was fulfilled in 538-536 BC when worship in Jerusalem was restored and the foundations of the Second Temple were laid (Ezra 3).

33:11 bridegrooms and brides: Contrast the earlier prophecies in 7:34 and 25:10.

33:12 The land was desolate as a result of the Babylonian invasion.

once more have pastures where shepherds can lead their flocks. ¹³Once again shepherds will count their flocks in the towns of the hill country, the foothills of Judah, the Negev, the land of Benjamin, the vicinity of Jerusalem, and all the towns of Judah. I, the LORD, have spoken!

¹⁴"The day will come, says the LORD, when I will do for Israel and Judah all the good things I have promised them.

¹⁵"In those days and at that time I will raise up a righteous descendant from King David's line.

He will do what is just and right throughout the land.

¹⁶In that day Judah will be saved, and Jerusalem will live in safety.

And this will be its name:

"The LORD Is Our Righteousness."

¹⁷For this is what the LORD says: David will have a descendant sitting on the throne of Israel forever. ¹⁸And there will always be Levitical priests to offer burnt offerings and grain offerings and sacrifices to me."

¹⁹Then this message came to Jeremiah from the LORD: ²⁰"This is what the LORD says: If you can break my covenant with the day and the night so that one does not follow the other, ²¹only then will my covenant with my servant David be broken. Only then will he no longer have a descendant to reign on his throne. The same is true for my covenant with the Levitical priests who minister before me. ²²And as the stars of the sky cannot be counted and the sand on the seashore cannot be measured, so I will multiply the descendants of my servant David and the Levites who minister before me."

²³The LORD gave another message to Jeremiah. He said, ²⁴"Have you noticed what people are saying?—'The LORD chose Judah and Israel and then abandoned them!' They are sneering and saying that Israel is not worthy to be counted as a nation. ²⁵But this is what the LORD says: I would no more reject my people than I would change my laws that govern night and day, earth and sky. ²⁶I will never abandon the descendants of Jacob or David, my servant, or change the plan that David's descendants will rule the descendants of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Instead, I will restore them to their land and have mercy on them."

7. JERUSALEM'S DESTRUCTION (34:1–39:18)

A Warning for Zedekiah

34 King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon came with all the armies from the kingdoms he ruled, and he fought against Jerusalem and the towns of Judah. At that time this message came to Jeremiah from the LORD: ²"Go to King Zedekiah of Judah, and tell him, 'This is what the LORD, the God of Israel, says: I am about to hand this city over to the king of Babylon, and he will burn it down. ³You will not escape his grasp but will be captured and taken to meet the king of Babylon face to face. Then you will be exiled to Babylon.

⁴"But listen to this promise from the LORD, O Zedekiah, king of Judah. This is what the LORD says: You will not be killed in war but will die peacefully. People will burn incense in your memory, just as they 33:13 the foothills of Judah: Hebrew the Shephelah.

33:14-18 Picking up on the discussion of flaws in Zedekiah and the other kings of David's dynasty (23:1-5), the Lord revealed the glories of the new ruler of the future.

33:14-15 The day will come . . . In those days: These phrases point beyond the exiles' return to a more distant event mentioned previously by the Lord's prophets (Isa 32:1-2). They indicate the NT fulfillment of God's plan in Jesus Christ, the Good Shepherd (John 10:11) and the righteous descendant (literally a righteous branch; Isa 4:2; 11:1; Zech 3:8; 6:12, 13). • He: An individual, not a remnant, would be a fair judge and bring justice with his pronouncements.

33:16 The LORD Is Our Righteousness: Hebrew Yahweh Tsidqenu; see 23:5-6, where this title is given to the Messiah. This name was a reversal of Zedekiah's name (Tsidqiyahu, "Righteous is the LORD"). Zedekiah did not live up to his name, but the Messiah would do so.

33:17 Though Zedekiah was the last descendant of David to rule over the kingdom of Judah (see 19:10-13 and note), the Messiah, a future descendant of David, would be Israel's king forever.

33:18 After the exiles returned to Jerusalem, Levitical priests conducted worship in the new Temple (Ezra 6:13-22).

33:19-22 Jeremiah delivered God's promise that the new covenant of the Lord with the descendant of David and with the Levitical priests would be as sure as the sequence of day and night.

33:23-26 The Lord had rejected individuals, cities, and kingdoms, but he would never abandon his people, who stretched across many generations.

34:1-39:18 This section begins with the prediction of Jerusalem's fall and Zedekiah's captivity (34:1-7); the fulfillment of that prediction comes toward the end (39:1-10). These messages underline the truth that the old covenant had been irreparably broken, especially by those kings descended from David who should have been most committed to maintaining it.

34:1-7 The Lord encouraged Zedekiah, even though he was a weak leader who lacked courage. The message contains judgment and a promise.

34:2 No matter what King Zedekiah did, Jerusalem would fall. The Lord would not rescue the city.

34:4-5 Even though the Babylonians would defeat Judah, the Lord promised to protect Zedekiah during the war; the king would die peacefully and be honored by the survivors of the siege. But see 39:5-7 for a description of Zedekiah's being captured and tortured and then taken away to Babylon.

did for your ancestors, the kings who preceded you. They will mourn for you, crying, "Alas, our master is dead!" This I have decreed, says the LORD."

⁶So Jeremiah the prophet delivered the message to King Zedekiah of Judah. ⁷At this time the Babylonian army was besieging Jerusalem, Lachish, and Azekah—the only fortified cities of Judah not yet captured.

Freedom for Hebrew Slaves

⁸This message came to Jeremiah from the LORD after King Zedekiah made a covenant with the people, proclaiming freedom for the slaves. ⁹He had ordered all the people to free their Hebrew slaves—both men and women. No one was to keep a fellow Judean in bondage. ¹⁰The officials and all the people had obeyed the king's command, ¹¹but later they changed their minds. They took back the men and women they had freed, forcing them to be slaves again.

¹²So the LORD gave them this message through Jeremiah: ¹³"This is what the LORD, the God of Israel, says: I made a covenant with your ancestors long ago when I rescued them from their slavery in Egypt. ¹⁴I told them that every Hebrew slave must be freed after serving six years. But your ancestors paid no attention to me. ¹⁵Recently you repented and did what was right, following my command. You freed your slaves and made a solemn covenant with me in the Temple that bears my name. ¹⁶But now you have shrugged off your oath and defiled my name by taking back the men and women you had freed, forcing them to be slaves once again.

¹⁷"Therefore, this is what the LORD says: Since you have not obeyed me by setting your countrymen free, I will set you free to be destroyed by war, disease, and famine. You will be an object of horror to all the nations of the earth. ¹⁸Because you have broken the terms of our covenant, I will cut you apart just as you cut apart the calf when you walked between its halves to solemnize your vows. ¹⁹Yes, I will cut you apart, whether you are officials of Judah or Jerusalem, court officials, priests, or common people—for you have broken your oath. ²⁰I will give you to your enemies, and they will kill you. Your bodies will be food for the vultures and wild animals.

²¹"I will hand over King Zedekiah of Judah and his officials to the army of the king of Babylon. And although they have left Jerusalem for a while, ²²I will call the Babylonian armies back again. They will fight against this city and will capture it and burn it down. I will see to it that all the towns of Judah are destroyed, with no one living there."

The Faithful Recabites

35 This is the message the LORD gave Jeremiah when Jehoiakim son of Josiah was king of Judah: ²"Go to the settlement where the families of the Recabites live, and invite them to the LORD's Temple. Take them into one of the inner rooms, and offer them some wine."

34:6-7 King Rehoboam had made Lachish and Azekah into forts (2 Chr 11:5-10). Located on low hills southwest of Jerusalem, these towns guarded the key roads leading up from the great highway on the coast into the heartland of Judah. Military messages written on pieces of pottery have been found in the gateway of Lachish, reporting the progress of the Babylonians as they moved toward it.

34:8-35:19 Here are faithless (34:8-22) and faithful (35:1-19) examples of covenant-keeping.

34:8-22 Zedekiah ordered the people to free their slaves; he was apparently trying to curry favor with God by enforcing the covenant requirements regarding the Hebrew ownership of slaves (Exod 21:2-4) that had been neglected since Moses' time. However, the order was worse than useless because the people soon went back on this new affirmation of the covenant, just as they had broken their treaty with Nebuchadnezzar (see Ezek 21:23-24) and their original covenant with the Lord. The Lord would punish them as their treachery deserved.

34:15-16 The slaveholders had done what was right in releasing their slaves; they had obeyed God's command. But their covenant had been made in the Temple, and when they broke their covenant, they defiled God's name and treated it with contempt (in violation of Deut 5:11).

34:17-20 Because of their sin in breaking the terms of their covenant, the Lord would cut them apart and separate them from his protective care. This expression relates to the covenant ceremony of killing and cutting a calf sacrifice into two parts from head to tail. Those making a covenant walked between the laid-out portions to indicate their willingness to be similarly cut apart if they violated the covenant (see Gen 15:9-18). All classes of people in Judah had broken their oath, so they would all receive the punishment to which they had agreed.

34:21-22 Pharaoh Hophra had a treaty with Zedekiah to help him if he were attacked (Isa 30:1-3; 31:1-3). The Babylonians left Jerusalem to fight against Pharaoh Hophra (37:5-7), but their departure was temporary.

35:1-36:32 These two chapters look back two decades to the time when Jehoiakim was on the throne.

35:1-19 The Recabites' obedience to their ancestor contrasted sharply with the Israelites' rebellion against the Lord their God.

35:1 This incident took place during Jehoiakim's reign, when the Babylonian army first attacked Jerusalem (605 BC; see 35:11).

35:2 The Recabites were descendants of Jehonadab son of Recab, a Kenite who had served under Jehu, king of Israel (2 Kgs 10:15, 23; 1 Chr 2:55). Jeremiah probably knew that the Recabites did not drink wine, but he obeyed the Lord's command.

³So I went to see Jaazaniah son of Jeremiah and grandson of Habazziniah and all his brothers and sons—representing all the Recabite families. ⁴I took them to the Temple, and we went into the room assigned to the sons of Hanan son of Igdaiah, a man of God. This room was located next to the one used by the Temple officials, directly above the room of Maaseiah son of Shallum, the Temple gatekeeper.

⁵I set cups and jugs of wine before them and invited them to have a drink, ⁶but they refused. “No,” they said, “we don’t drink wine, because our ancestor Jehonadab son of Recab gave us this command: ‘You and your descendants must never drink wine. ⁷And do not build houses or plant crops or vineyards, but always live in tents. If you follow these commands, you will live long, good lives in the land.’ ⁸So we have obeyed him in all these things. We have never had a drink of wine to this day, nor have our wives, our sons, or our daughters. ⁹We haven’t built houses or owned vineyards or farms or planted crops. ¹⁰We have lived in tents and have fully obeyed all the commands of Jehonadab, our ancestor. ¹¹But when King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon attacked this country, we were afraid of the Babylonian and Syrian armies. So we decided to move to Jerusalem. That is why we are here.”

¹²Then the LORD gave this message to Jeremiah: ¹³“This is what the LORD of Heaven’s Armies, the God of Israel, says: Go and say to the people in Judah and Jerusalem, ‘Come and learn a lesson about how to obey me. ¹⁴The Recabites do not drink wine to this day because their ancestor Jehonadab told them not to. But I have spoken to you again and again, and you refuse to obey me. ¹⁵Time after time I sent you prophets, who told you, “Turn from your wicked ways, and start doing things right. Stop worshipping other gods so that you might live in peace here in the land I have given to you and your ancestors.” But you would not listen to me or obey me. ¹⁶The descendants of Jehonadab son of Recab have obeyed their ancestor completely, but you have refused to listen to me.’

¹⁷“Therefore, this is what the LORD God of Heaven’s Armies, the God of Israel, says: ‘Because you refuse to listen or answer when I call, I will send upon Judah and Jerusalem all the disasters I have threatened.’”

¹⁸Then Jeremiah turned to the Recabites and said, “This is what the LORD of Heaven’s Armies, the God of Israel, says: ‘You have obeyed your ancestor Jehonadab in every respect, following all his instructions.’ ¹⁹Therefore, this is what the LORD of Heaven’s Armies, the God of Israel, says: ‘Jehonadab son of Recab will always have descendants who serve me.’”

Baruch Reads the Lord’s Messages

36 During the fourth year that Jehoia-kim son of Josiah was king in Judah, the LORD gave this message to Jeremiah: ²“Get a scroll, and write down all my messages against Israel, Judah, and the other nations. Begin with the first message back in the days of Josiah, and write down every message, right up to the present time. ³Perhaps the people of Judah will repent when they hear again all the terrible things I have planned for them. Then I will be able to forgive their sins and wrongdoings.”

35:3 The Jeremiah mentioned here was not the prophet; he and the others represented the Recabite community.

35:4 Jeremiah the prophet carefully described the location of the room in the Temple, taking note that Hanan, the man in charge, was a man of God. During this idolatrous time in Judah’s history, the prophet had some friends in high places who remained believers in the one true God.

35:6-10 Jehonadab (Hebrew Jonadab, a variant spelling of Jehonadab; also in 35:10, 19; see 2 Kgs 10:15) had bound his descendants to a nomadic lifestyle free of the trappings of sedentary life, and the Recabites had been obedient.

35:11 Nebuchadnezzar: Hebrew Nebuchadrezzar, a variant spelling of Nebuchadnezzar. • Babylonian and Syrian: Or Chaldean and Aramean.

35:12-19 The Lord applied the Recabites’ example in stark contrast to the people of Judah. The Recabites had been deprived of many good things in life, yet they remained obedient.

35:14-16 The Recabites never drank wine, simply because their human ancestor had told them not to. The people of Israel should have been even more willing to listen and obey when the Lord told them to turn from their wicked ways and live according to his laws.

35:17-19 The Lord pronounced punishment on Judah’s sin.

35:19 One of the descendants of Jehonadab son of Recab apparently returned from Babylon after the Exile and helped to rebuild the wall of Jerusalem (see Neh 3:14).

36:1-32 This description of Jehoia-kim’s cynical response to God’s attempt to call him to repentance and covenant obedience (36:3, 7) graphically underscores the hopelessness of the situation. • Nowhere else does the OT provide this much detail about the process of preserving spoken messages in written form.

36:1-2 The fourth year of Jehoia-kim’s reign was 605 bc. This was the year Nebuchadnezzar first attacked Jerusalem (see note on Dan 1:1). • In those days, a scroll was a roll of papyrus or leather strips joined edge to edge and rolled up.

36:3 The Lord gave the people of Judah every opportunity to repent. God wanted the messages of judgment not just to alarm his people, but to awaken them to the judgment they would face if they did not turn from idol-worship. If they heeded the alarm, repented, and sincerely worshiped the one true God, he would forgive their sins and wrongdoings.

4So Jeremiah sent for Baruch son of Neriah, and as Jeremiah dictated all the prophecies that the LORD had given him, Baruch wrote them on a scroll. 5Then Jeremiah said to Baruch, "I am a prisoner here and unable to go to the Temple. 6So you go to the Temple on the next day of fasting, and read the messages from the LORD that I have had you write on this scroll. Read them so the people who are there from all over Judah will hear them. 7Perhaps even yet they will turn from their evil ways and ask the LORD's forgiveness before it is too late. For the LORD has threatened them with his terrible anger."

8Baruch did as Jeremiah told him and read these messages from the LORD to the people at the Temple. 9He did this on a day of sacred fasting held in late autumn, during the fifth year of the reign of Jehoiakim son of Josiah. People from all over Judah had come to Jerusalem to attend the services at the Temple on that day. 10Baruch read Jeremiah's words on the scroll to all

When Jeremiah's ministry was in crisis during his public trial in the Temple grounds (ch 26), friends saved his life, but he was banned from speaking. King Jehoiakim expressed his anger by having the prophet Uriah killed and by sending officers to arrest Jeremiah. Would this signal the end of Jeremiah's public ministry? Was oral delivery of the Lord's messages the only way to get the divine word to the leaders and people of Judah?

Killing and silencing prophets did not stop divine messages from the Lord—the Lord's word could be broadcast effectively in writing. The Lord told the prophet to write down all the messages he had ever delivered (ch 36). Jeremiah had a helper, Baruch, who was skilled in writing messages on papyrus (an ancient form of paper) and making as many copies as were needed. While Jeremiah and Baruch were in hiding, they purchased a scroll (a roll of papyrus) and prepared it to receive the written messages. When the writing was finished, the scroll was read in the Temple courtyard and in the presence of King Jehoiakim. The king cut up the scroll and burned it, but Jeremiah wrote the messages again on a new scroll, adding new material. Throughout the remainder of Jeremiah's ministry, he had his messages written on papyrus and sent to the leaders of various countries, as well as to the exiles in Babylon.

The earliest example of writing the word of God appears in Exodus, where Moses was commanded to write down the words of the covenant (Exod 24:4, but see also Exod 17:14). It is specifically stated that Moses wrote the entire book of Deuteronomy (Deut 31:9, 24). The existence of the written book of the Law probably stimulated a tradition of writing down certain elements of what God was revealing (Josh 24:26; 1 Sam 10:25; 1 Chr 29:29; 2 Chr 9:29; Isa 8:16-17; 30:8). Many of Israel's historical writings are said to have been kept by prophets (see 2 Chr 12:15; 13:22).

These written documents, especially those written on leather scrolls, were kept in communities for a long time, and many copies were made from one document. These copies were so valuable that they were carefully preserved for centuries. The copies were also translated into any number of languages. The book of Jeremiah and the writings of other prophets, wise men, and teachers have been preserved, collected, and handed down to us as the Old and New Testaments, giving us a written record of God's messages to his people long ago (see 2 Tim 3:16-17; 2 Pet 1:20-21).

36:4 Evidently, Jeremiah was not skilled in writing, so he enlisted the services of a scribe named Baruch. As they sat in their private quarters, Jeremiah repeated message after message from memory. It is not known whether Baruch had a role in composition or arrangement, or whether he simply recorded exactly what Jeremiah dictated.

36:5 Jeremiah was either a prisoner under house arrest, or he had been banished from the Temple grounds.

36:6 The next day of fasting was a national festival, but it is not clear which one (none of the annual festivals occurred in the ninth month; see note on 36:8-9). Reading the written scroll to the multitude gathered in the Temple would have placed Baruch in danger of arrest or assault.

36:7 Jeremiah repeated the purpose for writing the scroll (36:3) and reading it in public. • Perhaps . . . turn from their evil ways: The people could still receive the Lord's forgiveness and avert his anger.

36:8-9 Baruch filled the columns of the scroll with Jeremiah's messages from the Lord. Finally, a day of fasting was announced toward the end of 604 BC.

Baruch faithfully obeyed Jeremiah's order to read the scroll in the Temple, where many people crowded the courtyard. • in late autumn: Literally in the ninth month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar (also in 36:22). The ninth month in the fifth year of Jehoiakim's reign occurred within the months of November and December 604 BC. See also note on 1:3. Israel had no traditional recurring festival during the ninth month, so apparently another day of sacred fasting had been scheduled.

36:10 Baruch . . . stood in front of the Temple room of Gemariah: That is, the people. He stood in front of the Temple room of Gemariah, son of Shaphan the secretary. This room was just off the upper courtyard of the Temple, near the New Gate entrance.

¹¹When Micaiah son of Gemariah and grandson of Shaphan heard the messages from the LORD, ¹²he went down to the secretary's room in the palace where the administrative officials were meeting. Elishama the secretary was there, along with Delaiah son of Shemaiah, Elnathan son of Acbor, Gemariah son of Shaphan, Zedekiah son of Hananiah, and all the other officials. ¹³When Micaiah told them about the messages Baruch was reading to the people, ¹⁴the officials sent Jehudi son of Nethaniah, grandson of Shelemiah and great-grandson of Cush, to ask Baruch to come and read the messages to them, too. So Baruch took the scroll and went to them. ¹⁵"Sit down and read the scroll to us," the officials said, and Baruch did as they requested.

¹⁶When they heard all the messages, they looked at one another in alarm. "We must tell the king what we have heard," they said to Baruch. ¹⁷"But first, tell us how you got these messages. Did they come directly from Jeremiah?"

¹⁸So Baruch explained, "Jeremiah dictated them, and I wrote them down in ink, word for word, on this scroll."

¹⁹"You and Jeremiah should both hide," the officials told Baruch. "Don't tell anyone where you are!" ²⁰Then the officials left the scroll for safekeeping in the room of Elishama the secretary and went to tell the king what had happened.

King Jehoiakim Burns the Scroll

²¹The king sent Jehudi to get the scroll. Jehudi brought it from Elishama's room and read it to the king as all his officials stood by. ²²It was late autumn, and the king was in a winterized part of the palace, sitting in front of a fire to keep warm. ²³Each time Jehudi finished reading three or four columns, the king took a knife and cut off that section of the scroll. He then threw it into the fire, section by section, until the whole scroll was burned up. ²⁴Neither the king nor his attendants showed any signs of fear or repentance at what they heard. ²⁵Even when Elnathan, Delaiah, and Gemariah begged the king not to burn the scroll, he wouldn't listen.

²⁶Then the king commanded his son Jerahmeel, Seraiah son of Azriel, and Shelemiah son of Abdeel to arrest Baruch and Jeremiah. But the LORD had hidden them.

Jeremiah Rewrites the Scroll

²⁷After the king had burned the scroll on which Baruch had written Jeremiah's words, the LORD gave Jeremiah another message. He said, ²⁸"Get another scroll, and write everything again just as you did on the scroll King Jehoiakim burned. ²⁹Then say to the king, 'This is what the LORD says: You burned the scroll because it said the king of Babylon would destroy this land and empty it of people and animals. ³⁰Now this is what the LORD says about King Jehoiakim of Judah: He will have no heirs to sit on the throne of David. His dead body will be thrown out to lie unburied—exposed to the heat of the day and the frost of the night.

³¹I will punish him and his family and his

Baruch obtained permission from this high official to read to the public. This elevated location near the New Gate entrance was close to where Jeremiah's public trial had taken place a few years earlier (26:10). • Gemariah had a godly heritage. His father, Shaphan, had participated in Josiah's reading of the scrolls found in the Temple (2 Kgs 22:8-10).

36:11-13 Micaiah realized the importance of the messages from the LORD that Baruch was reading, so he made sure that the administrative officials of the palace knew what was being said.

36:14-16 The palace officials acted quickly. When they heard Baruch reading Jeremiah's messages, they were terrified and decided to report the situation to the king.

36:17-18 The officials wanted to know the source of the scroll and its messages.

36:19-20 The officials showed their respect for Jeremiah and Baruch by advising that they should both hide; they showed their respect for the LORD's messages by placing the scroll in safekeeping while they went to inform the king.

36:21 Jehudi was well educated, and was perhaps a scribe. Only the elite were trained to read and write.

36:23-24 Jehoiakim was so antagonistic and hardened that after three or four columns of the scroll were read, he cut off the section with a sharp knife and threw it into the fire. Jehoiakim's father, Josiah, had responded very differently when the newly discovered Book of the Law was read to him (2 Kgs 22:11).

36:25 The three officials who begged the king not to destroy the scroll probably held positions of great power, because Jehoiakim did not punish them for trying to preserve Jeremiah's scroll.

36:26 Once the LORD had hidden them, no one betrayed Jeremiah and Baruch. The LORD can protect his servants.

36:27-32 While in hiding, Jeremiah and Baruch rewrote all the messages that had been recorded on the destroyed scroll onto a new roll of papyrus. No human king can destroy God's words. Instead, Jehoiakim was brought before God's court and sentenced to death.

36:29-31 To die without heirs or a decent burial was to suffer the worst imaginable fate (see 22:19 and note; Eccl 6:3). Jehoiakim's son Jehoiachin ruled for just three months. Unlike his father, Jehoiachin took Jeremiah's warning seriously and surrendered to the Babylonians, who took him and others to Babylon as captives (22:24-30; 2 Kgs 24:8-16).

attendants for their sins. I will pour out on them and on all the people of Jerusalem and Judah all the disasters I promised, for they would not listen to my warnings.'"

³²So Jeremiah took another scroll and dictated again to his secretary, Baruch. He wrote everything that had been on the scroll King Jehoiakim had burned in the fire. Only this time he added much more!

Zedekiah Calls for Jeremiah

37 Zedekiah son of Josiah succeeded Jehoiachin son of Jehoiakim as the king of Judah. He was appointed by King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon. ²But neither King Zedekiah nor his attendants nor the people who were left in the land listened to what the LORD said through Jeremiah.

³Nevertheless, King Zedekiah sent Jehucal son of Shelemiah, and Zephaniah the priest, son of Maaseiah, to ask Jeremiah, "Please pray to the LORD our God for us."

⁴Jeremiah had not yet been imprisoned, so he could come and go among the people as he pleased.

⁵At this time the army of Pharaoh Hophra of Egypt appeared at the southern border of Judah. When the Babylonian army heard about it, they withdrew from their siege of Jerusalem.

⁶Then the LORD gave this message to Jeremiah: "This is what the LORD, the God of Israel, says: The king of Judah sent you to ask me what is going to happen. Tell him, 'Pharaoh's army is about to return to Egypt, though he came here to help you. ⁸Then the Babylonians will come back and capture this city and burn it to the ground.'

⁹"This is what the LORD says: Do not fool yourselves into thinking that the Babylonians are gone for good. They aren't! ¹⁰Even if you were to destroy the entire Babylonian army, leaving only a handful of wounded survivors, they would still stagger from their tents and burn this city to the ground!"

Jeremiah Is Imprisoned

¹¹When the Babylonian army left Jerusalem because of Pharaoh's approaching army, ¹²Jeremiah started to leave the city on his way to the territory of Benjamin, to claim his share of the property among his relatives there. ¹³But as he was walking through the Benjamin Gate, a sentry arrested him and said, "You are defecting to the Babylonians!" The sentry making the arrest was Irijah son of Shelemiah, grandson of Hananiah.

¹⁴"That's not true!" Jeremiah protested. "I had no intention of doing any such thing." But Irijah wouldn't listen, and he took Jeremiah before the officials. ¹⁵They were furious with Jeremiah and had him flogged and imprisoned in the house of Jonathan the secretary. Jonathan's house had been converted into a prison. ¹⁶Jeremiah was put into a dungeon cell, where he remained for many days.

¹⁷Later King Zedekiah secretly requested that Jeremiah come to the palace, where the king asked him, "Do you have any messages from the LORD?"

"Yes, I do!" said Jeremiah. "You will be defeated by the king of Babylon."

¹⁸Then Jeremiah asked the king, "What crime have I committed? What have I done against you, your attendants, or the people that I should be imprisoned like this?"

¹⁹Where are your prophets now who told

37:1–38:28 The focus now returns to Zedekiah, who succeeded his nephew Jehoiachin as king of Judah. These chapters record encounters between Zedekiah and Jeremiah that make plain Zedekiah's inability to commit himself wholeheartedly to God's word (cp. Deut 10:12-13). Zedekiah is a classic example of a "person with divided loyalty" (Jas 1:6-8).

37:1-2 These verses summarize Zedekiah's reign and his entire response to the Lord's messages through Jeremiah.

37:1 Jehoiachin: Hebrew Coniah, a variant spelling of Jehoiachin. • Nebuchadnezzar: Hebrew Nebuchadrezzar, a variant spelling of Nebuchadnezzar.

37:3-4 In asking for prayer, Zedekiah apparently hoped that Jeremiah's petitions would magically defeat the enemy (see 14:7-9 and note).

37:5 The Babylonians began their siege of Jerusalem in 588 BC (see note on 52:4). But they left Jerusalem because the army of Pharaoh Hophra (literally the army of Pharaoh; see 44:30) was coming to help Judah. The Babylonians hoped to block and defeat the Egyptians, which they did. • Babylonian: Or Chaldean; also in 37:10, 11.

37:6-10 The Lord answered Jeremiah's prayer (37:3) with a warning for Zedekiah. The Egyptians would provide no lasting help, and the Babylonians would return to destroy Jerusalem—a prophecy that was fulfilled in 586 BC.

37:8 Babylonians: Or Chaldeans; also in 37:9, 13.

37:11-12 When the Babylonians went to face the Egyptians, Jeremiah decided to walk three miles north to his hometown, Anathoth, to claim his share of the property among his relatives there (literally to separate from there in the midst of the people). He wanted to see his newly purchased property (32:1-25).

37:13-16 The sentry and other officials of Judah misinterpreted Jeremiah's action as desertion.

37:17 By asking Jeremiah about other messages from the Lord, the king indicated that he was fearful of the future and still hoped that the Lord would defeat the Babylonians. Jeremiah answered quickly and emphatically that there was no hope for the kind of divine intervention that had destroyed the Assyrian army during Hezekiah's reign (2 Kgs 19:8-37).

37:18-20 Jeremiah evidently assumed that Zedekiah was involved in his arrest and imprisonment. The prophet would have been in poor physical condition after being flogged and confined without medical treatment and with little food.

you the king of Babylon would not attack you or this land? ²⁰Listen, my lord the king, I beg you. Don't send me back to the dungeon in the house of Jonathan the secretary, for I will die there."

²¹So King Zedekiah commanded that Jeremiah not be returned to the dungeon. Instead, he was imprisoned in the courtyard of the guard in the royal palace. The king also commanded that Jeremiah be given a loaf of fresh bread every day as long as there was any left in the city. So Jeremiah was put in the palace prison.

Jeremiah in a Cistern

38 Now Shephatiah son of Mattan, Gedaliah son of Pashhur, Jehucal son of Shelemiah, and Pashhur son of Malkijah heard what Jeremiah had been telling the people. He had been saying, ²"This is what the LORD says: 'Everyone who stays in Jerusalem will die from war, famine, or disease, but those who surrender to the Babylonians will live. Their reward will be life. They will live!' ³The LORD also says: 'The city of Jerusalem will certainly be handed over to the army of the king of Babylon, who will capture it.'"

⁴So these officials went to the king and said, "Sir, this man must die! That kind of talk will undermine the morale of the few fighting men we have left, as well as that of all the people. This man is a traitor!"

⁵King Zedekiah agreed. "All right," he said. "Do as you like. I can't stop you."

⁶So the officials took Jeremiah from his cell and lowered him by ropes into an empty cistern in the prison yard. It belonged to Malkijah, a member of the royal family. There was no water in the cistern, but there was a thick layer of mud at the bottom, and Jeremiah sank down into it.

⁷But Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, an important court official, heard that Jeremiah was in the cistern. At that time the king was holding court at the Benjamin Gate, ⁸so Ebed-melech rushed from the palace to speak with him. ⁹"My lord the king," he said, "these men have done a very evil thing in putting Jeremiah the prophet into the cistern. He will soon die of hunger, for almost all the bread in the city is gone."

¹⁰So the king told Ebed-melech, "Take thirty of my men with you, and pull Jeremiah out of the cistern before he dies."

¹¹So Ebed-melech took the men with him and went to a room in the palace beneath the treasury, where he found some old rags and discarded clothing. He carried these to the cistern and lowered them to Jeremiah on a rope. ¹²Ebed-melech called down to Jeremiah, "Put these rags under your armpits to protect you from the ropes." Then when Jeremiah was ready, ¹³they pulled him out. So Jeremiah was returned to the courtyard of the guard—the palace prison—where he remained.

Zedekiah Questions Jeremiah

¹⁴One day King Zedekiah sent for Jeremiah and had him brought to the third entrance of the LORD's Temple. "I want to ask you something," the king said. "And don't try to hide the truth."

¹⁵Jeremiah said, "If I tell you the truth, you will kill me. And if I give you advice, you won't listen to me anyway."

37:21 The king defied his officials and ordered the guards to keep Jeremiah in the courtyard of the guard in the royal palace under protective custody. Considering the scarcity of food during the long siege, a loaf of fresh bread every day was a generous ration.

38:1-13 Jeremiah was free to talk to people while he was in the prison courtyard. He repeated the Lord's decrees of judgment, but this stirred fierce anger among some of the government officials. Zedekiah showed his cowardice by letting these men put Jeremiah in a muddy cistern; the king also had a courageous moment when he permitted a palace servant to rescue Jeremiah and return him to the palace prison.

38:1 The Gedaliah mentioned here had a different father than the Gedaliah in 40:6. • The first Pashhur might have been the man in 20:1. The second Pashhur had a different father. • Jehucal:

38:4 The officials apparently believed that the morale of the men resisting the Babylonian army outside the walls of the city would be harmed if Jeremiah continued to prophesy, so they put him on trial for treason.

38:5 When the officials angrily confronted King Zedekiah and made their demands, he was weak and cowardly.

38:6 In the presence of everyone in the palace courtyard, Jeremiah was thrown into an empty cistern. At the bottom was a thick layer of mud that slowly enveloped Jeremiah's body.

38:7-8 the Ethiopian (Hebrew the Cushite; cp. Luke 17:18; Acts 28:28): Jeremiah's rescuer was not from Judah;

he was a foreigner who dared to defy the other officials. He ran to the Benjamin Gate, where Jeremiah was first arrested (37:11-13), and rushed into the king's presence without ceremony.

38:10 The rescue party included thirty . . . men, perhaps indicating that Zedekiah felt the need to keep his officials from attacking it.

38:11-12 Ebed-melech, the Ethiopian rescuer (38:7), was a caring person who wanted to protect Jeremiah's weakened body as much as possible.

38:14-16 Zedekiah so desperately wanted a miracle to save his kingdom from the attacking Babylonian armies that he arranged a secret meeting with Jeremiah.

38:14 The location of the third entrance of the LORD's Temple is not known. The gates of the Temple had small rooms nearby, so the private meeting probably took place in one of them.

¹⁶So King Zedekiah secretly promised him, "As surely as the LORD our Creator lives, I will not kill you or hand you over to the men who want you dead."

¹⁷Then Jeremiah said to Zedekiah, "This is what the LORD God of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, says: 'If you surrender to the Babylonian officers, you and your family will live, and the city will not be burned down. ¹⁸But if you refuse to surrender, you will not escape! This city will be handed over to the Babylonians, and they will burn it to the ground.'"

¹⁹"But I am afraid to surrender," the king said, "for the Babylonians may hand me over to the Judeans who have defected to them. And who knows what they will do to me!"

²⁰Jeremiah replied, "You won't be handed over to them if you choose to obey the LORD. Your life will be spared, and all will go well for you. ²¹But if you refuse to surrender, this is what the LORD has revealed to me: ²²All the women left in your palace will be brought out and given to the officers of the Babylonian army. Then the women will taunt you, saying,

'What fine friends you have!

They have betrayed and misled you.

When your feet sank in the mud,
they left you to your fate!'

²³All your wives and children will be led out to the Babylonians, and you will not escape. You will be seized by the king of Babylon, and this city will be burned down."

²⁴Then Zedekiah said to Jeremiah, "Don't tell anyone you told me this, or you will die!

²⁵My officials may hear that I spoke to you, and they may say, 'Tell us what you and the king were talking about. If you don't tell us, we will kill you.' ²⁶If this happens, just tell them you begged me not to send you back to Jonathan's dungeon, for fear you would die there."

²⁷Sure enough, it wasn't long before the king's officials came to Jeremiah and asked him why the king had called for him. But Jeremiah followed the king's instructions, and they left without finding out the truth. No one had overheard the conversation between Jeremiah and the king. ²⁸And Jeremiah remained a prisoner in the courtyard of the guard until the day Jerusalem was captured.

The Fall of Jerusalem

Jer 39:1-10 // Jer 52:3b-16 // 2 Kgs 24:20b-25:12

39 In January of the ninth year of King Zedekiah's reign, King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon came with his entire army to besiege Jerusalem. ²Two and a half years later, on July 18 in the eleventh year of Zedekiah's reign, a section of the city wall was broken down. ³All the officers of the Babylonian army came in and sat in triumph at the Middle Gate: Nergal-sharezer of Samgar, and Nebo-sarsekim, a chief officer, and Nergal-sharezer, the king's adviser, and all the other officers of the king of Babylon.

⁴When King Zedekiah of Judah and all the soldiers saw that the Babylonians had broken into the city, they fled. They waited for nightfall and then slipped through the gate between the two walls behind the king's garden and headed toward the Jordan Valley.

38:17-18 Jeremiah laid out the Lord's decree. Zedekiah could save the city by surrendering or he could watch as it was destroyed by the invaders.

38:19 Zedekiah still feared his fellow countrymen—this time, those who had defected—more than he feared the Lord or the Babylonians, so he rejected Jeremiah's advice. This was Jeremiah's last message to the king.

38:20-22 Jeremiah reassured Zedekiah that everything would go well if Zedekiah chose to obey the LORD. If he refused, even his friends would abandon him.

38:24-28 When Zedekiah's fear of his officials surfaced again, he demanded that Jeremiah keep secret what he had told the king. • The officials might have suspected that Zedekiah was about to surrender to the enemy. Jeremiah obeyed the king's order to keep quiet, and he spent the final days of the siege in the palace prison under the king's protection.

39:1-10 Just as Jeremiah had predicted (34:1-7), the Lord's judgment fell on Zedekiah and the kingdom of Judah. For other accounts of this event, see 52:4-16; 2 Kgs 25:1-21; 2 Chr 36:11-21; Ezek 24:1-14.

39:1 In January: Literally In the tenth month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar. A number of events in Jeremiah can be cross-checked with dates in surviving Babylonian records and related accurately to our modern calendar. This event occurred on January 15, 588 BC; see 52:4 and note. • Nebuchadnezzar: Hebrew Nebuchadrezzar, a variant spelling of Nebuchadnezzar; also in 39:5, 11.

39:2 The Babylonian siege took a long time because the stone walls of Jerusalem were thick and their resistance was strong. • Two and a half years later, on July 18: Literally On the ninth day of the fourth month. This day was July 18, 586 BC; also see note on 39:1.

39:3 High ranking officers came into the city to oversee its destruction and sat in triumph at the Middle Gate, showing how important this victory was to the Babylonians. According to custom, victorious officials positioned themselves at one of the gates, since judicial and administrative matters were controlled at gateways. • Nergal-sharezer of Samgar, and Nebo-sarsekim: Or Nergal-sharezer, Samgar-nebo, Sarsekim.

39:4 The steep slopes of the Kidron Valley on the east side and the Ben-Hinnom Valley on the west and south sides of Jerusalem forced the Babylonian army to concentrate their men to the north. This made it possible for Zedekiah, his family, and his officials to slip out of the south end of the city, cross the Kidron Valley, and travel up and over the Mount of Olives. Although they made this move after nightfall, the noise of their departure alerted Babylonian sentries, and soldiers were soon chasing them. • the Jordan Valley: Hebrew the Arabah.

⁸Meanwhile, the Babylonians burned Jerusalem, including the royal palace and the houses of the people, and they tore down the walls of the city. ⁹Then Nebuzaradan, the captain of the guard, took as exiles to Babylon the rest of the people who remained in the city, those who had defected to him, and everyone else who remained. ¹⁰But Nebuzaradan allowed some of the poorest people to stay behind in the land of Judah, and he assigned them to care for the vineyards and fields.

Jeremiah Remains in Judah

¹¹King Nebuchadnezzar had told Nebuzaradan, the captain of the guard, to find Jeremiah. ¹²"See that he isn't hurt," he said. "Look after him well, and give him anything he wants." ¹³So Nebuzaradan, the captain of the guard; Nebushazban, a chief officer; Nergal-sharezer, the king's adviser; and the other officers of Babylon's king ¹⁴sent messengers to bring Jeremiah out of the prison. They put him under the care of Gedaliah son of Ahikam and grandson of Shaphan, who took him back to his home. So Jeremiah stayed in Judah among his own people.

A Message for Ebed-melech

¹⁵The LORD had given the following message to Jeremiah while he was still in prison:

¹⁶"Say to Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, 'This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, says: I will do to this city everything

I have threatened. I will send disaster, not prosperity. You will see its destruction, ¹⁷but I will rescue you from those you fear so much. ¹⁸Because you trusted me, I will give you your life as a reward. I will rescue you and keep you safe. I, the LORD, have spoken!'"

8. AFTER THE DESTRUCTION OF JERUSALEM (40:1–44:30)

A Message for Jeremiah

40 The LORD gave a message to Jeremiah after Nebuzaradan, the captain of the guard, had released him at Ramah. He had found Jeremiah bound in chains among all the other captives of Jerusalem and Judah who were being sent to exile in Babylon.

²The captain of the guard called for Jeremiah and said, "The LORD your God has brought this disaster on this land, ³just as he said he would. For these people have sinned against the LORD and disobeyed him. That is why it happened. ⁴But I am going to take off your chains and let you go. If you want to come with me to Babylon, you are welcome. I will see that you are well cared for. But if you don't want to come, you may stay here. The whole land is before you—go wherever you like. ⁵If you decide to stay, then return to Gedaliah son of Ahikam and grandson of Shaphan. He has been appointed governor of Judah by the king of Babylon. Stay there with the people he rules. But it's up to you; go wherever you like."

Then Nebuzaradan, the captain of the guard, gave Jeremiah some food and money and let him go. ⁶So Jeremiah returned to Gedaliah son of Ahikam at Mizpah, and he lived in Judah with the few who were still left in the land.

39:11–14 It is not fully known how Jeremiah and his urging the king to surrender to Babylon came to Nebuchadnezzar's attention. Perhaps it was through the messages that Jeremiah sent to the exiles (ch 29; see 40:2-3).

40:1-6 This passage provides some details about what happened to Jeremiah immediately after the fall of Jerusalem.

40:2-3 The captain of the guard quoted the prediction of the LORD through Jeremiah that had now been fulfilled.

40:6 Gedaliah's new headquarters were in Mizpah, eight miles north of the ruined Jerusalem.

40:7-12 The new government was organized under Gedaliah, who belonged to a family of high rank.

Jer 16:6

Babylon had appointed Gedaliah son of Ahikam as governor over the poor people who were left behind in Judah—the men, women, and children who hadn't been exiled to Babylon. ⁸So they went to see Gedaliah at Mizpah. These included: Ishmael son of Nethaniah, Johanan and Jonathan sons of Kareah, Seraiah son of Tanhumeth, the sons of Ephai the Netophathite, Jezaniah son of the Maacathite, and all their men.

⁹Gedaliah vowed to them that the Babylonians meant them no harm. "Don't be afraid to serve them. Live in the land and serve the king of Babylon, and all will go well for you," he promised. ¹⁰"As for me, I will stay at Mizpah to represent you before the Babylonians who come to meet with us. Settle in the towns you have taken, and live off the land. Harvest the grapes and summer fruits and olives, and store them away."

¹¹When the Judeans in Moab, Ammon, Edom, and the other nearby countries heard that the king of Babylon had left a few people in Judah and that Gedaliah was the governor, ¹²they began to return to Judah from the places to which they had fled. They stopped at Mizpah to meet with Gedaliah and then went into the Judean countryside to gather a great harvest of grapes and other crops.

A Plot against Gedaliah

¹³Soon after this, Johanan son of Kareah and the other military leaders came to Gedaliah at Mizpah. ¹⁴They said to him, "Did you know that Baalis, king of Ammon, has sent Ishmael son of Nethaniah to assassinate you?" But Gedaliah refused to believe them.

¹⁵Later Johanan had a private conference with Gedaliah and volunteered to kill Ishmael secretly. "Why should we let him come and murder you?" Johanan asked. "What will happen then to the Judeans who have returned? Why should the few of us who are still left be scattered and lost?"

¹⁶But Gedaliah said to Johanan, "I forbid you to do any such thing, for you are lying about Ishmael."

The Murder of Gedaliah

Jer 41:1-3, 17-18 // 2 Kgs 25:25-26

41 But in midautumn of that year, Ishmael son of Nethaniah and grandson of Elishama, who was a member of the royal family and had been one of the king's high officials, went to Mizpah with ten men to meet Gedaliah. While they were eating together, ²Ishmael and his ten men suddenly jumped up, drew their swords, and killed Gedaliah, whom the king of Babylon had appointed governor. ³Ishmael also killed all the Judeans and the Babylonian soldiers who were with Gedaliah at Mizpah.

⁴The next day, before anyone had heard about Gedaliah's murder, ⁵eighty men arrived from Shechem, Shiloh, and Samaria

His grandfather Shaphan had taken King Josiah the scroll of the law that sparked reformation (2 Kgs 22:10). Gedaliah's father, Ahikam, had held a high post in Jehoiakim's close circle of officials, and he had saved Jeremiah's life (26:24).

40:7-8 News spread swiftly among the Judean military groups and the poor people who were left behind about Gedaliah's appointment as governor.

40:7-41:18 (Jer 40:7-41:18; see also 2 Kgs 25:22-26). After the destruction of JERUSALEM, Gedaliah made MIZPAH his headquarters. Here Ishmael murdered him (†) and many others, including those on a pilgrimage from the north (41:5-8). Ishmael and his company (solid lines) took their prisoners toward GIBEON, then fled eastward to AMMON. The people of Judah, fearing the Babylonians, exiled themselves to EGYPT (dotted line).

A small group of military leaders arranged to meet with Gedaliah in order to gain a better understanding of the new governor's plans.

40:9-10 Gedaliah did his best to assure the Judean soldiers that peaceful settlement under the rule of the Babylonians (or Chaldeans; also in 40:10) would bring prosperity.

40:11-12 The new governor's promises encouraged people of Judah who had fled to neighboring countries to move back to their land. The mention of a great harvest indicates that the Babylonians had not destroyed the crops when they laid siege to Jerusalem.

40:14 Ammon was a small highland nation east of the Jordan Valley. • Ishmael son of Nethaniah had royal blood in his veins (2 Kgs 25:25).

40:16 Gedaliah's response betrayed his naiveté and the lack of trust in advisers that infected the whole chaotic situation.

41:1-2 In midautumn: Literally in the seventh month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar. This month occurred within the months of October and November 586 BC; also see note on 39:1. These events took place three months after the fall of Jerusalem. • While they were eating together: It was common practice that no evil deed should be done while eating at a host's table. With this attack, Ishmael viciously violated Gedaliah's hospitality.

41:3 Babylonian: Or Chaldean.

41:4-5 The murderers kept their deed secret until the next day, when men from Shechem, Shiloh, and Samaria to the north arrived on their way south to the ruins of Jerusalem. Their appearance and the offerings they carried indicated that they were on their way to plead for mercy from the Lord (Lev 2:1; 14:2-9). The annual Festival of Shelters to worship at the Temple of the LORD. They had shaved off their beards, torn their clothes, and cut themselves, and had brought along grain offerings and frankincense. ⁶Ishmael left Mizpah to meet them, weeping as he went. When he reached them, he said, "Oh, come and see what has happened to Gedaliah!"

⁷But as soon as they were all inside the town, Ishmael and his men killed all but ten of them and threw their bodies into a cistern. ⁸The other ten had talked Ishmael into letting them go by promising to bring him their stores of wheat, barley, olive oil, and honey that they had hidden away. ⁹The cistern where Ishmael dumped the bodies of the men he murdered was the large one dug by King Asa when he fortified Mizpah to protect himself against King Baasha of Israel. Ishmael son of Nethaniah filled it with corpses.

¹¹But when Johanan son of Kareah and the other military leaders heard about Ishmael's crimes, ¹²they took all their men and set out to stop him. They caught up with him at the large pool near Gibeon. ¹³The people Ishmael had captured shouted for joy when they saw Johanan and the other military leaders. ¹⁴And all the captives from Mizpah escaped and began to help Johanan. ¹⁵Meanwhile, Ishmael and eight of his men escaped from Johanan into the land of Ammon.

¹⁶Then Johanan son of Kareah and the other military leaders took all the people they had rescued in Gibeon—the soldiers, women, children, and court officials whom Ishmael had captured after he killed Gedaliah. ¹⁷They took them all to the village of Geruth-kimham near Bethlehem, where they prepared to leave for Egypt. ¹⁸They were afraid of what the Babylonians would do when they heard that Ishmael had killed Gedaliah, the governor appointed by the Babylonian king.

Warning to Stay in Judah

42 Then all the military leaders, including Johanan son of Kareah and Jezaniah son of Hoshaiah, and all the people, from the least to the greatest, approached ²Jeremiah the prophet. They said, "Please pray to the LORD your God for us. As you can see, we are only a tiny remnant compared to what we were before. ³Pray that the LORD your God will show us what to do and where to go."

⁴"All right," Jeremiah replied. "I will pray to the LORD your God, as you have asked, and I will tell you everything he says. I will hide nothing from you."

⁵Then they said to Jeremiah, "May the LORD your God be a faithful witness against us if we refuse to obey whatever he tells us to do! ⁶Whether we like it or not, we will obey the LORD our God to whom we are sending you with our plea. For if we obey him, everything will turn out well for us."

⁷Ten days later the LORD gave his reply to Jeremiah. ⁸So he called for Johanan son of Kareah and the other military leaders, and for all the people, from the least to the greatest. ⁹He said to them, "You sent me to the LORD, the God of Israel, with your re-was held at this time of year at the Temple (Lev 23:33-36), and the eighty worshipers were probably unarmed.

41:8 The surviving ten men had quick wits and saved their lives by promising to provide what Ishmael's men needed most: wheat, barley, olive oil, and honey.

41:9 dug by King Asa when he fortified Mizpah: See 2 Chr 16:1-6. That passage does not refer to cisterns, but the need for water and grain storage would have required such structures, and several cisterns have been found in the ruins of the city.

41:10 Some of the king's daughters somehow escaped being killed or taken into exile.

41:11-12 Johanan and his companions learned of Gedaliah's death in time to attack Ishmael's party at the pool near Gibeon, which was only a few miles south of Mizpah.

41:16 Johanan had with him a variety of important people, including soldiers, women, children, and court officials (or eunuchs).

41:17-18 The group led by Johanan headed south, past the ruins of Jerusalem to Geruth-kimham, a small village near Bethlehem. During this trip, the leaders decided that they would be safe from Babylonian reprisals if they fled to Egypt. The Babylonians (or Chaldeans) were cruel, and no one trusted them to seek out the true culprit in Gedaliah's death.

42:1-3 The party of Judean soldiers and the people they had rescued (41:16) came to Jeremiah with what sounded like a sincere request for guidance.

42:1 Jezaniah: Greek version reads Azariah; cp. 43:2.

42:4 The first phrase, All right (literally I heard), indicates that Jeremiah questioned the sincerity of the Judean group led by Johanan. Still, the prophet agreed to pray for divine guidance and to give them the full content of the Lord's answer.

42:5-6 Perhaps these people sensed that Jeremiah doubted their sincerity. They responded by making a solemn oath: They committed to obey the Lord's instructions and to submit to punishment if they failed to keep the oath. They were confident that the Lord's answer would be what they wanted to hear.

42:10-12 The Lord replied that he wanted the people to stay in Judea and settle down, and he would plant them quest, and this is his reply: ¹⁰Stay here in this land. If you do, I will build you up and not tear you down; I will plant you and not uproot you. For I am sorry about all the punishment I have had to bring upon you. ¹¹Do not fear the king of Babylon anymore,' says the LORD. 'For I am with you and will save you and rescue you from his power. ¹²I will be merciful to you by making him kind, so he will let you stay here in your land.'

¹³But if you refuse to obey the LORD your God, and if you say, 'We will not stay here; ¹⁴instead, we will go to Egypt where we will be free from war, the call to arms, and hunger,' ¹⁵then hear the LORD's message to the remnant of Judah. This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, says: 'If you are determined to go to Egypt and live there, ¹⁶the very war and famine you fear will catch up to you, and you will die there. ¹⁷That is the fate awaiting every one of you who insists on going to live in Egypt. Yes, you will die from war, famine, and disease. None of you will escape the disaster I will bring upon you there.'

¹⁸This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, says: 'Just as my anger and fury have been poured out on the people of Jerusalem, so they will be poured out on you when you enter Egypt. You will be an object of damnation, horror, cursing, and mockery. And you will never see your homeland again.'

¹⁹Listen, you remnant of Judah. The LORD has told you: 'Do not go to Egypt!' Don't forget this warning I have given you today. ²⁰For you were not being honest when you sent me to pray to the LORD your God for you. You said, 'Just tell us what the LORD our God says, and we will do it!' ²¹And today I have told you exactly what he said, but you will not obey the LORD your God any better now than you have in the past. ²²So you can be sure that you will die from war, famine, and disease in Egypt, where you insist on going."

Jeremiah Taken to Egypt

43 When Jeremiah had finished giving this message from the LORD their God to all the people, ²Azariah son of Hoshaiah and Johanan son of Kareah and all the other proud men said to Jeremiah, "You lie! The LORD our God hasn't forbidden us to go to Egypt! ³Baruch son of Neriah has convinced you to say this, because he wants us to stay here and be killed by the Babylonians or be carried off into exile."

⁴So Johanan and the other military leaders and all the people refused to obey the LORD's command to stay in Judah. ⁵Johanan and the other leaders took with them all the people who had returned from the nearby countries to which they had fled. ⁶In the crowd were men, women, and children, the king's daughters, and all those whom Nebuzaradan, the captain of the guard, had left with Gedaliah. The prophet Jeremiah and Baruch were also included. ⁷The people refused to obey the voice of the LORD and went to Egypt, going as far as the city of Tahpanhes.

⁸Then at Tahpanhes, the LORD gave another message to Jeremiah. He said, ⁹"While the people of Judah are watching, take some large rocks and bury them under the pavement stones at the entrance of Pharaoh's palace here in Tahpanhes. ¹⁰Then say to the people of Judah, 'This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, says: I will certainly bring my servant Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, here to Egypt. I will set his throne over these stones that I have hidden. He will spread his royal canopy over them. ¹¹And when he comes, he will destroy the land of Egypt. He will bring death to those destined for death, captivity to those destined for captivity, and war to those destined for war. ¹²He will set fire to the temples of Egypt's gods; he will burn the temples and carry the idols away as plunder. He will pick clean the land of Egypt as a shepherd picks fleas from his cloak. And he himself will leave unharmed. ¹³He will break down the sacred pillars standing in the temple of in the land (see 1:10). Judea's time of judgment was over. • For I am with you and will save you: The Lord was calling the remnant of Judea to trust him for protection against the king of Babylon.

42:13-22 Jeremiah had already prophesied Egypt's destiny; it would be destroyed by the Babylonians (46:2-26). This remnant of Judah would walk into the path of the Lord's judgment if they continued on to Egypt.

42:21 Like their ancestors, this group of people from Judah trusted in the Egyptians to protect them, rather than in the Lord.

43:1-7 Johanan and the rest of the people betrayed their oath (42:20) when they chose not to trust in the Lord's answer through Jeremiah.

43:3 It is not known why Baruch was blamed. • Babylonians: Or Chaldeans.

43:7 The city of Tahpanhes (2:16; Ezek 30:18), now known as Tell Dafneh, guarded the road entering Egypt at its northeast corner.

43:10 Nebuchadnezzar: Hebrew Nebuchadrezzar, a variant spelling of Nebuchadnezzar. Cp. 42:2-22; Ezek 29:19-20. According to an Akkadian inscription, Nebuchadnezzar invaded Egypt in 568-567 BC, less than twenty years after Jeremiah's message.

43:12-13 In the ancient Near East, temples and idols were regarded as power centers, so successful invaders usually destroyed them.

43:13 The sacred pillars were highly prized by the ancient Egyptians. • in the Judgment for Idolatry

44 This is the message Jeremiah received concerning the Judeans living in northern Egypt in the cities of Migdol, Tahpanhes, and Memphis, and in southern Egypt as well: ²"This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, says: You saw the calamity I brought on Jerusalem and all the towns of Judah. They now lie deserted and in ruins. ³They provoked my anger with all their wickedness. They burned incense and worshiped other gods—gods that neither they nor you nor any of your ancestors had ever even known.

⁴"Again and again I sent my servants, the prophets, to plead with them, 'Don't do these horrible things that I hate so much.' ⁵But my people would not listen or turn back from their wicked ways. They kept on burning incense to these gods. ⁶And so my fury boiled over and fell like fire on the towns of Judah and into the streets of Jerusalem, and they are still a desolate ruin today.

⁷"And now the LORD God of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, asks you: Why are you destroying yourselves? For not one of you will survive—not a man, woman, or child among you who has come here from Judah, not even the babies in your arms. ⁸Why provoke my anger by burning incense to the idols you have made here in Egypt? You will only destroy yourselves and make yourselves an object of cursing and mockery for all the nations of the earth. ⁹Have you forgotten the sins of your ancestors, the sins of the kings and queens of Judah, and the sins you and your wives committed in Judah and Jerusalem? ¹⁰To this very hour you have shown no remorse or reverence. No one has chosen to follow my word and the decrees I gave to you and your ancestors before you.

¹¹"Therefore, this is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, says: I am determined to destroy every one of you! ¹²I will take this remnant of Judah—those who were determined to come here and live in Egypt—and I will consume them. They will fall here in Egypt, killed by war and famine. All will die, from the least to the greatest. They will be an object of damnation, horror, cursing, and mockery. ¹³I will punish them in Egypt just as I punished them in Jerusalem, by war, famine, and disease. ¹⁴Of that remnant who fled to Egypt, hoping someday to return to Judah, there will be no survivors. Even though they long to return home, only a handful will do so."

¹⁵Then all the women present and all the men who knew that their wives had burned incense to idols—a great crowd of all the Judeans living in northern Egypt and southern Egypt—answered Jeremiah, ¹⁶"We will not listen to your messages from the LORD! ¹⁷We will do whatever we want. We will burn incense and pour out liquid offerings to the Queen of Heaven just as much as we like—just as we, and our ancestors, and our kings and officials have always done in the towns of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem. For in those days we had plenty to eat, and we were well off and had no troubles! ¹⁸But ever since we quit burning incense to temple of the sun: Or in Heliopolis.

The sun was the supreme deity of the Egyptian religion. The ruins of this city are about six miles northeast of modern Cairo.

44:1 After their arrival in Egypt, the refugees of Judah scattered throughout the country. Migdol was a fortress near Tahpanhes (see note on 43:7) in the northeastern corner of Egypt. Memphis (Hebrew Noph) was the original capital of Egypt. It became the religious center of northern Egypt, and its ruins are located on the west side of the Nile River, about thirteen miles southwest of Cairo. Some refugees had already moved to southern Egypt (Hebrew Pathros), following the Nile River upstream.

44:2 Jeremiah's message appealed to the common knowledge he and his audience shared about the calamity that had wiped out Judah and Jerusalem.

44:3 Since the Exodus, worship of false gods had been forbidden in Israel.

44:9 These Judean refugees had learned nothing; they had already forgotten their former sins and how God had judged them.

44:11 The Lord pronounced a death sentence, backed by the authority of his own name.

44:12 Unlike those exiled to Babylon, to whom the Lord had given hope (see 33:7-18; Ezek 34:12-15; 36:24-31), this remnant of Judah had no future.

44:15-19 The people did not accept Jeremiah's pronouncement of judgment; they had abandoned even the pretense of serving the Lord (42:1-3) and were completely committed to idolatry.

44:15 This group of Judeans had probably gathered to observe a pagan festival. • in northern Egypt and southern Egypt: Hebrew in Egypt, in Pathros.

44:17 The Judean refugees imagined that they had freedom. They apparently believed that obedience to the Lord entailed bondage and that their pagan worship was the way to fulfillment.

• The Queen of Heaven was worshiped under a variety of names throughout the ancient Near East. In Assyria and Babylon she was called "Ishtar," and the Canaanites called her "Astarte." In the OT, she is usually called "Asherah" and associated with Baal. Manasseh gave her official status in Judah (2 Kgs 21:7), but Josiah prohibited worship of her (2 Kgs 23:1-19). She was associated with the planet Venus and with all types of reproduction among plants and animals, so she was a popular idol among farmers and herdsmen. Offerings of incense, food, and liquids were regarded as magical triggers that would induce reproduction and prosperity.

44:18 These Judeans believed that worshipping the Queen of Heaven provided prosperity and that ceasing to worship the Queen of Heaven and stopped worshiping her with liquid offerings, we have been in great trouble and have been dying from war and famine."

²⁴Then Jeremiah said to them all, including the women, "Listen to this message from the LORD, all you citizens of Judah who live in Egypt. ²⁵This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, says: 'You and your wives have said, "We will keep our promises to burn incense and pour out liquid offerings to the Queen of Heaven," and you have proved by your actions that you meant it. So go ahead and carry out your promises and vows to her!'

²⁶"But listen to this message from the LORD, all you Judeans now living in Egypt: 'I have sworn by my great name,' says the LORD, 'that my name will no longer be spoken by any of the Judeans in the land of Egypt. None of you may invoke my name or use this oath: "As surely as the Sovereign LORD lives." ²⁷For I will watch over you to bring you disaster and not good. Everyone from Judah who is now living in Egypt will suffer war and famine until all of you are dead. ²⁸Only a small number will escape death and return to Judah from Egypt. Then all those who came to Egypt will find out whose words are true—mine or theirs!

²⁹"'And this is the proof I give you,' says the LORD, 'that all I have threatened will happen to you and that I will punish you here.' ³⁰This is what the LORD says: 'I will turn Pharaoh Hophra, king of Egypt, over to his enemies who want to kill him, just as I turned King Zedekiah of Judah over to King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon.'"

9. A MESSAGE FOR BARUCH (45:1-5)

45 The prophet Jeremiah gave a message to Baruch son of Neriah in the fourth year of the reign of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, after Baruch had written down everything Jeremiah had dictated to him. He said, ²"This is what the LORD, the God of Israel, says to you, Baruch: ³You have said, 'I am overwhelmed with trouble! Haven't I had enough pain already? And now the LORD has added more! I am worn out from sighing and can find no rest.'

⁴"Baruch, this is what the LORD says: 'I will destroy this nation that I built. I will uproot what I planted. ⁵Are you seeking great things for yourself? Don't do it! I will bring great disaster upon all these people; but I will give you your life as a reward wherever you go. I, the LORD, have spoken!'" her would cause war and famine (cp. Hos 2:8). Their mindset was completely pagan.

44:20-30 This group of Judeans in Egypt had severed themselves from all meaningful relationship with the one true God of Israel; they were condemned to death.

44:20-23 The destruction of Judah and Jerusalem had not been due to the Lord's inability to provide prosperity; rather, he could no longer bear all the disgusting things the people were doing.

44:24-25 The Lord released the people to serve the Queen of Heaven; they would bear the consequences of their decision (cp. Rom 1:24, 28).

44:26-28 The Judeans in Egypt were now forever free of covenant obligations to the Lord. They were also banned from covenant protection.

They chose to sever their relationship with the one true God of Israel, so they retained no privileges—they could not pray or make oaths in God's name. Still, the Lord would not be absent from their lives, because he would see to it that disaster plagued them. Those who individually turned to the Lord in repentance would enjoy salvation and blessings. Even in Egypt, a small remnant of people trusted in the Lord (e.g., Jeremiah and Baruch).

44:30 Pharaoh Hophra was killed by his enemies in Egypt in 570 BC. • Nebuchadnezzar: Hebrew Nebuchadrezzar, a variant spelling of Nebuchadnezzar. • This verse concludes the record of Jeremiah's forty-year ministry. Nothing is known about where, when, or how Jeremiah died.

45:1-5 This chapter is dated 605 BC, more than two decades prior to the preceding chapters. Jeremiah's secretary, Baruch, was overwhelmed with trouble, and the Lord promised him safety.

45:1 The fourth year of the reign of Jehoiakim was 605 BC. This event occurred during the same year that Baruch spent long hours in a hiding place, where he wrote down the messages the Lord had given to Jeremiah (36:1-4).

45:3 Jehoiakim had threatened to kill both Jeremiah and Baruch, which forced the prophet and the scribe into hiding. Baruch was physically exhausted, and he felt sorry for himself.

45:5 Baruch could depend on divine protection, no matter what trouble came his way. The several chapters preceding this one show that the Lord fulfilled this promise. Baruch was with Jeremiah when they were taken to Egypt.

10. MESSAGES FOR THE NATIONS (46:1–51:64)

46 The following messages were given to Jeremiah the prophet from the LORD concerning foreign nations.

Messages about Egypt (46:2–28)

²This message concerning Egypt was given in the fourth year of the reign of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, the king of Judah, on the occasion of the battle of Carchemish when Pharaoh Neco, king of Egypt, and his army were defeated beside the Euphrates River by King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon.

³ “Prepare your shields, and advance into battle!

⁴ Harness the horses,
and mount the stallions.
Take your positions.
Put on your helmets.

Sharpen your spears,
and prepare your armor.

⁵ But what do I see?

The Egyptian army flees in terror.
The bravest of its fighting men run without a backward glance.
They are terrorized at every turn,”
says the LORD.

⁶ “The swiftest runners cannot flee;
the mightiest warriors cannot escape.
By the Euphrates River to the north,
they stumble and fall.

⁷ “Who is this, rising like the Nile at floodtime,
overflowing all the land?

⁸ It is the Egyptian army,
overflowing all the land,

boasting that it will cover the earth like a flood,

destroying cities and their people.

⁹ Charge, you horses and chariots;
attack, you mighty warriors of Egypt!
Come, all you allies from Ethiopia, Libya, and Lydia

who are skilled with the shield and bow!

¹⁰ For this is the day of the Lord, the LORD
of Heaven’s Armies,
a day of vengeance on his enemies.
The sword will devour until it is satisfied,
yes, until it is drunk with your blood!
The Lord, the LORD of Heaven’s Armies, will receive a sacrifice today in the north country beside the Euphrates River.

¹¹ “Go up to Gilead to get medicine,
O virgin daughter of Egypt!
But your many treatments will bring you no healing.

¹² The nations have heard of your shame.
The earth is filled with your cries of despair.
Your mightiest warriors will run into each other and fall down together.”

¹³ Then the LORD gave the prophet Jeremiah this message about King Nebu-chadnezzar’s plans to attack Egypt.

¹⁴ “Shout it out in Egypt!
Publish it in the cities of Migdol, Memphis, and Tahpanhes!
Mobilize for battle, for the sword will devour everyone around you.

46:1–51:64 This series of messages is directed toward foreign nations (see 1:5, 10, and similar messages in Isa 13–23; Ezek 25–32; Amos 1:3–2:3; see map, p. 679). Through Nebuchadnezzar, the Lord was going to judge all the nations from the Euphrates River to Egypt for their rebellion and sins against him (cp. Lev 18:24–25). Ultimately, Babylon would also come under God’s judgment (50:1–51:64). These chapters were probably written while Jeremiah and Baruch were in hiding (36:27–32). Among the pronouncements of doom on the foreign nations for their sins are a few statements of hope for salvation. Collections of oracles against the nations are also found in Isaiah (Isa 13–23) and Ezekiel (Ezek 25–32). Although God used surrounding nations to punish his rebellious people, those nations were also held accountable for their actions. The Lord is not only the God of Israel; he is the God of the entire world.

46:2–12 Jeremiah used the results of a battle known to Jehoiakim to warn him and the people of Jerusalem that Egypt could not protect them from Babylon. Pharaoh Neco had thought that the time was ripe to become the dominant power in the ancient Near East, so he moved north in 609 bc. After Neco spent several years trying to help fragments of the Assyrian army stop the westward movements of the Babylonian army, he was soundly defeated at Carchemish on the Euphrates River in 605 bc. Soon after that, the Babylonian army surrounded Jerusalem and forced Jehoiakim to become a vassal of Babylon.

46:2 battle of Carchemish: This event occurred in 605 bc, during the fourth year of Jehoiakim’s reign (according to the calendar system in which the new year begins in the spring; see “Chronology: Israel’s Monarchy,” p. 562). • Nebuchadnezzar: Hebrew Nebuchadrezzar, a variant spelling of Nebuchadnezzar; also in 46:13, 26.

46:3–4 Military commands such as these would have been issued when the soldiers were excited, well armed, and ready to fight.

46:7–8 In spite of Pharaoh Neco’s boasting and the imposing presence of his soldiers, his tactics did not confuse the enemy or win the battle (cp. 1 Kgs 20:11).

46:9–10 The Lord had decreed that Egypt would lose the battle, so allies would be of little help. The battle of Carchemish was pivotal to the rise of Babylon as the great empire of the area. • from Ethiopia, Libya, and Lydia: Hebrew from Cush, Put, and Lud.

46:11 Gilead was known as a source of healing plants (see note on 8:22).

46:13–24 The defeat at Carchemish created chaos in Egypt and among its armies. The Lord was executing judgment on Egypt.

46:14 Memphis: Hebrew Noph; also in 46:19.

Baruch the Scribe (45:1-5)

Jer 32:9-15; 36:1-21;
36:26-32; 43:1-7

Baruch the son of Neriah was a royal scribe in Jerusalem who served as secretary for Jeremiah the prophet. His brother Seraiah was a "staff officer" in Zedekiah's administration (51:59-64). Baruch's family evidently ranked highly in the administration of Judah.

In the fourth year of King Jehoiakim of Judah (605 BC), Jeremiah prophesied God's judgment against Judah (36:1-3). Jeremiah sent for Baruch, who wrote the prophecy down (36:4) and read the words of the prophecy to the people (36:8-19). When the message reached Jehoiakim, he destroyed the scroll and called for Baruch's and Jeremiah's arrest (36:21-26). But they had gone into hiding, where Jeremiah repeated the prophecy and Baruch again wrote it down (36:27-32).

At about that time, God gave Baruch a personal message through Jeremiah (Jer 45:1-5). Baruch might have been troubled about the loss of career prospects or personal comfort resulting from his association with Jeremiah. God comforted Baruch with an assurance of protection and instructed him not to seek "great things" for himself, because the promise of Judah's destruction was certain.

When Jerusalem was destroyed in 586 BC, Baruch remained with Jeremiah and the others who remained in the land. Apparently Baruch was viewed as influential: The rebel leaders wanted to go to Egypt and Jeremiah warned them against it (42:1-22), so they accused Baruch of persuading Jeremiah. They did not listen, but took Baruch and Jeremiah with them to Egypt (43:1-7). We do not know how, when, or where Baruch died. One tradition records that he was taken to Babylon when Nebuchadnezzar invaded Egypt. It is also possible that Baruch died in Egypt.

Although God warned Baruch not to pursue great things, and he seemed to die without honors, his legacy might in fact be the book of Jeremiah, which he clearly had a hand in producing—a book that warns of judgment and eloquently expresses the hope for the new covenant (31:31-34).

In 1975, a clay impression (bulla) formed from a scribe's seal was found with the words "[Belonging to] Berechiah, son of Neriah, the scribe" (Berechiah is the long form of the name Baruch). Each scribe, and each government official, had a unique seal bearing his name, with which he would seal documents to verify their authenticity—it was the ancient equivalent of a signature. The seal would be pressed into soft clay to form an impression (bulla), which was affixed to the signed document. The bulla of Baruch dates from the time of Jeremiah and Baruch; the other bullae found include the names of several other individuals in Jeremiah (e.g., "Gemariah the son of Shaphan," 36:10-12, 25; Ishmael, 40:7-41:10). Most scholars have concluded that the Baruch bulla was in fact formed by the seal of Baruch, Jeremiah's scribe. These bullae, seemingly insignificant artifacts of an ancient civilization, provide independent historical verification of some of the details of Jeremiah's account.

46:15-17 The Lord filled the Egyptian soldiers with fear, and no one could keep them in military order as they fled from Carchemish through Canaan to their Egyptian homes. Back in Egypt, they would become strong critics of Pharaoh Neco and say that he was a loudmouth.

46:18 Mount Tabor towers over the eastern part of the Jezreel Valley. Mount Carmel rises above the coastline of the Mediterranean Sea.

46:19 Memphis will be destroyed: This happened in 568-567 BC, when Nebuchadnezzar invaded Egypt (see note on 43:10).

²¹ Egypt's mercenaries have become like fattened calves.
They, too, will turn and run,
for it is a day of great disaster for Egypt,
a time of great punishment.

²² Egypt flees, silent as a serpent gliding away.
The invading army marches in;
they come against her with axes like woodsmen.

²³ They will cut down her people like trees,"
says the LORD,
"for they are more numerous than locusts.

²⁴ Egypt will be humiliated;
she will be handed over to people from the north."

²⁵The LORD of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, says: "I will punish Amon, the god of Thebes, and all the other gods of Egypt. I will punish its rulers and Pharaoh, too, and all who trust in him. ²⁶I will hand them over to those who want them killed—to King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon and his army. But afterward the land will recover from the ravages of war. I, the LORD, have spoken!

²⁷ "But do not be afraid, Jacob, my servant;
do not be dismayed, Israel.
For I will bring you home again from distant lands,
and your children will return from their exile.
Israel will return to a life of peace and quiet,
and no one will terrorize them.

²⁸ Do not be afraid, Jacob, my servant,
for I am with you," says the LORD.
"I will completely destroy the nations to which I have exiled you,

but I will not completely destroy you.
I will discipline you, but with justice;
I cannot let you go unpunished."

A Message about Philistia (47:1-7)

47 This is the LORD's message to the prophet Jeremiah concerning the Philistines of Gaza, before it was captured by the Egyptian army. ²This is what the LORD says:

"A flood is coming from the north to overflow the land.
It will destroy the land and everything
in it—
cities and people alike.

People will scream in terror,
and everyone in the land will wail.

³ Hear the clatter of stallions' hooves and the rumble of wheels as the chariots rush by.

Terrified fathers run madly, without a backward glance at their helpless children.

⁴ "The time has come for the Philistines to be destroyed,
along with their allies from Tyre and Sidon.

Yes, the LORD is destroying the remnant of the Philistines, those colonists from the island of Crete.

⁵ Gaza will be humiliated, its head shaved bald;

Ashkelon will lie silent.

You remnant from the Mediterranean coast,
how long will you cut yourselves in mourning?

⁶ "Now, O sword of the LORD,
when will you be at rest again?

46:21 Egypt depended on hired mercenaries from other countries who had no interest in dying for Egypt. Under threat, they would turn and run.

46:22-23 The picture of a serpent gliding away illustrates the panic that gripped Egypt. The invaders would chop the people to pieces like woodsmen after swarming into the country like locusts.

46:25-26 Amon was a fertility god worshiped in Thebes (Hebrew No), the capital of Southern Egypt. Amon's idol, in the form of a ram, represented the sun. The Egyptians thought that this god was very powerful, but like all the other deities of Egypt, it would be destroyed by the all-powerful God of Israel. The Pharaoh, who claimed to be the son of the sun-god, would suffer the same fate. • the land will

46:27 Israel: Literally Jacob; see note on 5:20. • I will bring you home again: The exiles began returning to Judea in 538 BC. Israel was disciplined but not destroyed.

47:1-7 This message from the Lord was directed against the Philistine cities along the southeastern coast of the Mediterranean Sea and their allies farther north. The Lord had determined that these cities would be destroyed in connection with the Babylonian invasion of the area.

47:2 A flood: This metaphor depicts the movement of the Babylonian armies into the coastal area, beginning in 609

BC and peaking in 605 BC (cp. 1:11-14).

47:4 The time has come . . . the Lord is destroying: The Lord controlled what would happen, as well as when events would occur. • The Philistines had come into the southeastern coastal areas from the island of Crete (Hebrew from Caphtor) between 1200 and 1100 BC. The northern cities, Tyre and Sidon, were colonized at about the same time by distant cousins of the Philistines who mixed with the native Canaanites.

47:5 Gaza was a major Philistine city. • head shaved bald: The city's people expressed their grief by following this ritual (cp. Isa 15:2; Mic 1:16). • Ashkelon, another Philistine city a few miles north on the coast, would be emptied. • the Mediterranean coast: Literally the plain.

A Message about Moab (48:1-47)

48 This message was given concerning Moab. This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, says:

"What sorrow awaits the city of Nebo;
it will soon lie in ruins.

The city of Kiriathaim will be humiliated and captured;
the fortress will be humiliated and broken down.

² No one will ever brag about Moab again, for in Heshbon there is a plot to destroy her.

'Come,' they say, 'we will cut her off from being a nation.'

The town of Madmen, too, will be silenced;
the sword will follow you there.

³ Listen to the cries from Horonaim, cries of devastation and great destruction.

⁴ All Moab is destroyed.

Her little ones will cry out.

⁵ Her refugees weep bitterly, climbing the slope to Luhith.

They cry out in terror, descending the slope to Horonaim.

⁶ Flee for your lives!

Hide in the wilderness!

⁷ Because you have trusted in your wealth and skill,

you will be taken captive.

Your god Chemosh, with his priests and officials,

will be hauled off to distant lands!

⁸ "All the towns will be destroyed, and no one will escape—
either on the plateaus or in the valleys, for the LORD has spoken.

⁹ Oh, that Moab had wings
so she could fly away,
for her towns will be left empty,
with no one living in them.

¹⁰ Cursed are those who refuse to do the LORD's work, who hold back their swords from shedding blood!

¹¹ "From his earliest history, Moab has lived in peace,
never going into exile.

He is like wine that has been allowed to settle.

He has not been poured from flask to flask,
and he is now fragrant and smooth.

¹² But the time is coming soon," says the
LORD,

"when I will send men to pour him from his jar.

request might have come from the Philistine cities being attacked by the Babylonians. The people were eager for the attacks against them to stop.

47:7 The punishment would not end soon, because the judge had declared his judgment and his mission had to be accomplished: Ashkelon . . . must be destroyed.

48:1-49:6 The Lord decreed the destruction and future restoration of Moab and Ammon, the two nations descended from Lot, Abraham's nephew (Gen 19:36-38).

48:1-47 Moab, one of two nations descended from Abraham's nephew Lot (Gen 19:36-38), was the next nation brought to trial in the Lord's courtroom (cp. Isa 15:1-16:14). Moab's territory lay between the Arnon River and the Zered Brook east of the Dead Sea. At the time, the Moabites felt self-assured because they were relatively free from the military reach of the Babylonians.
However, the Lord found the Moabites to be greedy and cruel, and their worship was vicious and sensuous.

48:1 The powerful judge, the God of Israel (see note on 2:2), introduced the indictments and decrees against Moab.

• The city of Nebo was on the side of Mount Nebo (Num 32:3, 38), several miles east of the north end of the Dead Sea. • The city of Kiriathaim was built by the tribe of Reuben (Josh 13:19) in the highlands east of the Dead Sea.

48:2 Heshbon was located between the Jabbok and Arnon rivers, east of the Dead Sea. • Madmen was apparently another name for Dibon, a town near Heshbon; it would also be destroyed.
Madmen sounds like a Hebrew word meaning "silence"; it should not be confused with the English word madmen.

48:3-4 Little is known about the village of Horonaim (see Isa 15:5); it was probably situated near the southeastern shore of the Dead Sea. • Her little ones will cry out: Greek version reads Her cries are heard as far away as Zoar.

48:5-6 Luhith was another small village near Horonaim. The sorrows of oppression would reach into the smallest places. • Hide in the wilderness: Or Hide like a wild donkey; or Hide like a juniper shrub; or Be like [the town of] Aroer. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

48:7 The people of Moab bragged about their wealth and skill, but their most serious sin was devotion to a deity named Chemosh; this false god represented the magical power of reproduction, but it would become clear that Chemosh was powerless.

48:8-10 The Lord sentenced all the towns of Moab to destruction, and he warned the agents of his judgment to faithfully carry out his decree.

48:9 Oh, that Moab had wings so she could fly away: Or Put salt on Moab, / for she will be laid waste. The Hebrew can be interpreted either way.

48:11-12 Moab had a long history of relative peace and a culture that its people highly valued. Vineyards were plentiful in Moab. After the juice was squeezed from the grapes, the wine was stored in clay flasks until it became fragrant and smooth.

They will pour him out,
then shatter the jar!
¹³ At last Moab will be ashamed of his idol Chemosh,
as the people of Israel were ashamed of their gold calf at Bethel.
¹⁴ "You used to boast, 'We are heroes, mighty men of war.'
¹⁵ But now Moab and his towns will be destroyed.
His most promising youth are doomed to slaughter," says the King, whose name is the LORD of Heaven's Armies.
¹⁶ "Destruction is coming fast for Moab;
calamity threatens ominously.
¹⁷ You friends of Moab, weep for him and cry!
See how the strong scepter is broken,
how the beautiful staff is shattered!
¹⁸ "Come down from your glory and sit in the dust, you people of Dibon, for those who destroy Moab will shatter Dibon, too.
They will tear down all your towers.
¹⁹ You people of Aroer, stand beside the road and watch.
Shout to those who flee from Moab,
'What has happened there?'
²⁰ "And the reply comes back,
'Moab lies in ruins, disgraced;
weep and wail!
Tell it by the banks of the Arnon River:
Moab has been destroyed!'
²¹ Judgment has been poured out on the towns of the plateau—on Holon and Jahaz and Mephaath, ²² on Dibon and Nebo and Beth-diblathaim, ²³ on Kiriathaim and Beth-gamul and Beth-meon,
²⁴ on Kerieth and Bozrah—all the towns of Moab, far and near.
²⁵ "The strength of Moab has ended.
His arm has been broken," says the
LORD.

²⁶ "Let him stagger and fall like a drunkard, for he has rebelled against the LORD.
Moab will wallow in his own vomit, ridiculed by all.
²⁷ Did you not ridicule the people of Israel?
Were they caught in the company of thieves
that you should despise them as you do?
²⁸ "You people of Moab, flee from your towns and live in the caves.
Hide like doves that nest
in the clefts of the rocks.
²⁹ We have all heard of the pride of Moab, for his pride is very great.
We know of his lofty pride,
his arrogance, and his haughty heart.
³⁰ I know about his insolence,"
says the LORD,
"but his boasts are empty—
as empty as his deeds.
³¹ So now I wail for Moab;
yes, I will mourn for Moab.
My heart is broken for the men of Kir-hareseth.
³² "You people of Sibmah, rich in vineyards,
I will weep for you even more than I did for Jazer.
Your spreading vines once reached as far as the Dead Sea,
but the destroyer has stripped you bare!
He has harvested your grapes and summer fruits.
³³ Joy and gladness are gone from fruitful Moab.
The presses yield no wine.
No one treads the grapes with shouts of joy.
There is shouting, yes, but not of joy.

³⁴ "Instead, their awful cries of terror can be heard from Heshbon clear across to Elealeh and Jahaz; from Zoar all the way to Horonaim and Eglath-shelishiyah. Even the waters of Nimrim are dried up now.

See 1 Kgs 12:28-30.

48:18-19 Dibon and nearby Aroer were key Moabite cities.

48:20 When the news spread that Moab

lay in ruins, disgraced and destroyed, panic would rapidly increase in the Arnon Valley.

48:21-25 Eleven Moabite villages would soon hear that the strength of Moab's arm was broken. This meant that the villages had no one to defend them against the advancing enemy.

48:21 Jahaz: Hebrew Jahzah, a variant spelling of Jahaz.

48:26-27 Moab's hatred for Israel was ultimately against the LORD.

48:31 The Lord had to punish Moab

and other nations that sinned, but it caused him to mourn. • Kir-hareseth (Hebrew Kir-heres, a variant spelling of Kir-hareseth; also in 48:36) was Moab's capital city.

48:32 Sibmah and Jazer were conquered and rebuilt by the tribe of Reuben (Num 32:3, 38; Josh 13:19), who transformed the high plateau east of the Dead Sea (Hebrew the sea of Jazer) into vineyards.

35 "I will put an end to Moab," says the LORD, "for the people offer sacrifices at the pagan shrines and burn incense to their false gods. 36 My heart moans like a flute for Moab and Kir-hareseth, for all their wealth has disappeared. 37 The people shave their heads and beards in mourning. They slash their hands and put on clothes made of bur-lap. 38 There is crying and sorrow in every Moabite home and on every street. For I have smashed Moab like an old, unwanted jar. 39 How it is shattered! Hear the wailing! See the shame of Moab! It has become an object of ridicule, an example of ruin to all its neighbors."

40 This is what the LORD says:

"Look! The enemy swoops down like an eagle, spreading his wings over Moab.

41 Its cities will fall, and its strongholds will be seized. Even the mightiest warriors will be in anguish like a woman in labor.

42 Moab will no longer be a nation, for it has boasted against the LORD.

43 "Terror and traps and snares will be your lot, O Moab," says the LORD.

44 "Those who flee in terror will fall into a trap, and those who escape the trap will step into a snare. I will see to it that you do not get away, for the time of your judgment has come," says the LORD.

45 "The people flee as far as Heshbon but are unable to go on. For a fire comes from Heshbon, King Sihon's ancient home, to devour the entire land with all its rebellious people.

46 "What sorrow awaits you, O people of Moab!

The people of the god Chemosh are destroyed!

Your sons and your daughters have been taken away as captives.

47 But I will restore the fortunes of Moab in days to come.

I, the LORD, have spoken!"

This is the end of Jeremiah's prophecy concerning Moab.

A Message about Ammon (49:1-6)

49 This message was given concerning the Ammonites. This is what the LORD says:

"Are there no descendants of Israel to inherit the land of Gad?

Why are you, who worship Molech, living in its towns?

2 In the days to come," says the LORD, "I will sound the battle cry against your city of Rabbah.

It will become a desolate heap of ruins, and the neighboring towns will be burned.

Then Israel will take back the land you took from her," says the LORD.

3 "Cry out, O Heshbon, for the town of Ai is destroyed.

Weep, O people of Rabbah!

Put on your clothes of mourning. Weep and wail, hiding in the hedges, for your god Molech, with his priests and officials, will be hauled off to distant lands.

4 You are proud of your fertile valleys, but they will soon be ruined.

You trusted in your wealth, you rebellious daughter, and thought no one could ever harm you.

listed here were located along the small rivers that flow from the east into the Dead Sea.

48:35-37 The Moabites expressed their sorrow and grief with customary actions; they shaved their heads and beards, cut their hands, and used bur-lap for clothing (41:5; Job 1:20).

48:39 The Lord's judgment of Moab would cause nearby countries to realize that the same kind of ruin might be their punishment.

48:40 The eagle represents speed and surprise; its victim is caught and carried off before it is able to react.

48:43-45 Between the terror (Hebrew pakhad), the traps (Hebrew pakhath), and a snare (Hebrew pakh), there would be no escape for the people of Moab.

48:45 If the Moabites fled north, they would be met by their enemies at Heshbon. • a fire comes from Heshbon: Cp. Num 21:28.

48:47 The Lord would have mercy on Moab; he promised that the people would prosper at some time in the future.

49:1-6 Ammon was the next nation brought to trial in the Lord's courtroom. Ammon was the second of Lot's descendants (see note on 48:1-47); its territory was north of Moab and east of Israel. The destruction of Ammon occurred shortly after the fall of Jerusalem.

49:1 After the fall of the northern kingdom of Israel in 722 BC, the Ammonites moved into territory that had been vacated by the tribe of Gad. • The Ammonites worshiped a fertility god named Molech ("ruler"), who was a lot like Baal ("master"). • Molech: Hebrew Malcam, a variant spelling of Molech; also in 49:3.

49:2 Rabbah, the capital of Ammon, was destroyed in 582 BC.

49:3 The Ammonites might have thought that their deity, Molech, was powerful. However, the coming invader would take this idol into exile with his priests and officials; their ritual magic would be exposed as a fraud.

49:4-6 The Ammonites trusted in their wealth, but it could not provide security. The Lord ensured their judgment and their future restoration.

- ⁵ But look! I will bring terror upon you," says the Lord, the LORD of Heaven's Armies.
 "Your neighbors will chase you from your land,
 and no one will help your exiles as they flee.
⁶ But I will restore the fortunes of the Ammonites in days to come.
 I, the LORD, have spoken."

Messages about Edom (49:7-22)

⁷This message was given concerning Edom. This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says:

- "Is there no wisdom in Teman?
 Is no one left to give wise counsel?
⁸ Turn and flee!
 Hide in deep caves, you people of Dedan!
 For when I bring disaster on Edom,
 I will punish you, too!
⁹ Those who harvest grapes always leave a few for the poor.
 If thieves came at night,
 they would not take everything.
¹⁰ But I will strip bare the land of Edom, and there will be no place left to hide.
 Its children, its brothers, and its neighbors will all be destroyed, and Edom itself will be no more.
¹¹ But I will protect the orphans who remain among you.
 Your widows, too, can depend on me
 for help."
¹²And this is what the LORD says: "If the innocent must suffer, how much more must you! You will not go unpunished! You must drink this cup of judgment! ¹³For I have sworn by my own name," says the LORD, "that Bozrah will become an object of horror and a heap of ruins; it will be mocked and cursed. All its towns and villages will be desolate forever."

- ¹⁴ I have heard a message from the LORD that an ambassador was sent to the nations to say,
 "Form a coalition against Edom, and prepare for battle!"
¹⁵ The LORD says to Edom,
 "I will cut you down to size among the nations.
 You will be despised by all.
¹⁶ You have been deceived by the fear you inspire in others and by your own pride.
 You live in a rock fortress and control the mountain heights.
 But even if you make your nest among the peaks with the eagles,
 I will bring you crashing down,"
 says the LORD.
¹⁷ "Edom will be an object of horror.
 All who pass by will be appalled and will gasp at the destruction they see there.
¹⁸ It will be like the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah
 and their neighboring towns," says
 the LORD.
 "No one will live there;
 no one will inhabit it.
¹⁹ I will come like a lion from the thickets of the Jordan,
 leaping on the sheep in the pasture.
 I will chase Edom from its land, and I will appoint the leader of my choice.

49:7-22 The people of Edom were descendants of Esau, Jacob's brother (Gen 32:3). The land of Edom lay south of Moab, in the highlands rising east of the Arabah Valley. The divine Judge exercised his right to hold every nation accountable.

49:7-8 Is there no wisdom: Edom was famous for its wise men, but they would suddenly appear foolish because they were unaware of the coming doom. • Teman and Dedan were cities of Edom.

49:8 Edom: Literally Esau; also in 49:10.

49:9-11 Harvesters customarily left some of the crop for the poor (Lev 19:9-10); thieves would take only those grapes they could get quickly and easily. The invaders would take their time and mercilessly strip Edom bare, leaving only ruin behind them. However, the Lord promised to be merciful to the defeated nation's orphans and widows.

49:12-22 The cup of judgment symbolized the fulfillment of the Lord's decrees (see 25:15-17). This section vividly depicts the aftermath of a nation's drinking from that cup.

49:12 The innocent included victims of child sacrifice and social injustice. The wicked needed to suffer in a greater way when the divine Judge carried out justice.

49:13 Bozrah was a fortress built on top of a high rock with steep sides, but no place in Edom would be safe.

49:14 The ambassador might have been an angel sent by God (cp. 1 Kgs 22:20-22).

49:15-16 The leaders of Edom thought themselves powerful because they stirred fear in those who passed through their land on the Kings' Highway (see map, p. 285). • Edom had a rock fortress, now called Petra; it was hard to find and could only be approached through a deep, narrow gorge. Even this remote place could not secure the Edomites against the Lord's judgment.

49:18 As had occurred with the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah, Edom would become uninhabited.

49:19 In divine judgment, the Lord would use the Babylonians to come like a lion . . . leaping on the sheep as they chased Edom's leaders out of the land. • The Lord's rhetorical questions implied the answer, "No one can challenge the Lord; he is the only Almighty ruler."

A Message about Damascus (49:23-27)

²³ This message was given concerning Damascus. This is what the LORD says:

"The towns of Hamath and Arpad are struck with fear, for they have heard the news of their destruction.

Their hearts are troubled like a wild sea in a raging storm.

²⁴ Damascus has become feeble, and all her people turn to flee.

Fear, anguish, and pain have gripped her as they grip a woman in labor.

²⁵ That famous city, a city of joy, will be forsaken!

²⁶ Her young men will fall in the streets and die.

Her soldiers will all be killed,"
says the LORD of Heaven's Armies.

²⁷ "And I will set fire to the walls of Damascus that will burn up the palaces of Ben-hadad."

A Message about Kedar and Hazor (49:28-33)

²⁸ This message was given concerning Kedar and the kingdoms of Hazor, which were attacked by King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon. This is what the LORD says:

"Advance against Kedar!

Destroy the warriors from the East!

²⁹ Their flocks and tents will be captured, and their household goods and camels will be taken away.

Everywhere shouts of panic will be heard:
'We are terrorized at every turn!'

³⁰ Run for your lives," says the LORD.

"Hide yourselves in deep caves, you people of Hazor, for King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon has plotted against you and is preparing to destroy you.

³¹ "Go up and attack that complacent nation,"
says the LORD.

"Its people live alone in the desert without walls or gates.

³² Their camels and other livestock will all be yours.

I will scatter to the winds these people who live in remote places.

I will bring calamity upon them from every direction," says the LORD.

³³ "Hazor will be inhabited by jackals, and it will be desolate forever.

No one will live there;
no one will inhabit it."

A Message about Elam (49:34-39)

³⁴ This message concerning Elam came to the prophet Jeremiah from the LORD at the beginning of the reign of King Zedekiah of Judah. ³⁵ This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says:

"I will destroy the archers of Elam—
the best of their forces.

49:21 Red Sea: Literally sea of reeds.

49:22 The eagle, a common bird in the rugged mountains of Edom, is a metaphor for the rapid penetration of the region by the Babylonians (see note on 48:40).

49:23-27 Damascus, the capital of Aram (ancient Syria), and the Aramean cities of Hamath and Arpad, indicate Aram as the next object of the Lord's judgment.

49:25 Damascus had a long history of power and glory at the hub of major trade routes. Its people enjoyed prosperity and joy, but they would lose these pleasures when they were forsaken by the Lord.

49:27 The city's walls and palaces were probably built with timbers from the slopes of Mount Hermon. • Ben-hadad (literally son of the mighty one) was the royal title given to a long line of Aramean kings.

49:28-33 The nomads of Kedar roamed freely in the upper Arabian Desert east of Palestine. They were a belligerent people (Ps 120:5-7; Isa 21:13-16) who raised flocks and herds for lucrative trade with Tyre (Ezek 27:21). • Hazor was a region east of Damascus inhabited by nomads. • The poem urges King Nebuchadnezzar to attack, and it describes the impact of the battles.

49:28-29 The Babylonians wanted to defeat the warriors of Kedar so they could capture their rich household goods and camels. • Nebuchadnezzar:

Hebrew Nebuchadrezzar, a variant spelling of Nebuchadnezzar; also in 49:30.

49:30 The Lord exhorted the people of Hazor to run and hide, even though it would do them no good. Nebuchadnezzar, the Babylonian king, had them on his agenda for conquest.

49:32 who live in remote places: Or who clip the corners of their hair. The Hebrew can be interpreted either way.

49:34-39 The final poetic message of this series was addressed to Elam. This nation, known for its ferocity, was located in the Zagros Mountains, far to the east beyond Babylon (Ezek 32:24).

49:35 The Elamite warriors were expert archers, but their skills could not save Elam.

- ³⁶ I will bring enemies from all directions, and I will scatter the people of Elam to the four winds.
They will be exiled to countries around the world.
- ³⁷ I myself will go with Elam's enemies to shatter it.
In my fierce anger, I will bring great disaster
upon the people of Elam," says the LORD.
- "Their enemies will chase them with the sword
until I have destroyed them completely.
- ³⁸ I will set my throne in Elam," says the LORD,
"and I will destroy its king and officials.
- ³⁹ But I will restore the fortunes of Elam
in days to come.
I, the LORD, have spoken!"

Messages about Babylon (50:1–51:64)

A Message about Babylon

50 The LORD gave Jeremiah the prophet this message concerning Babylon and the land of the Babylonians. ²This is what the LORD says:

"Tell the whole world,
and keep nothing back.
Raise a signal flag
to tell everyone that Babylon will fall!
Her images and idols will be shattered.

- Her gods Bel and Marduk will be utterly disgraced.
- ³ For a nation will attack her from the north and bring such destruction that no one will live there again.
Everything will be gone;
both people and animals will flee.
- Hope for Israel and Judah*
- ⁴ "In those coming days,"
says the LORD,
"the people of Israel will return home together with the people of Judah.
They will come weeping and seeking the LORD their God.
- ⁵ They will ask the way to Jerusalem and will start back home again.
They will bind themselves to the LORD with an eternal covenant that will never be forgotten.
- ⁶ "My people have been lost sheep.
Their shepherds have led them astray and turned them loose in the mountains.
They have lost their way and can't remember how to get back to the sheepfold.
- ⁷ All who found them devoured them.
Their enemies said,
'We did nothing wrong in attacking
them,
for they sinned against the LORD,
their true place of rest,
and the hope of their ancestors.'

49:36 The common aftermath of a successful invasion was for the victors to scatter the refugees far and wide.

49:37 The Lord would express his fierce anger through the great disaster to come upon Elam. No specific charge is mentioned here, but like other nations, Elam served false gods and was cruel in its wars against its neighbors.

49:38 I will set my throne in Elam: The Lord would express his supreme authority by destroying Elam's king and officials.

49:39 The Lord's decree of judgment was balanced by his promise to restore the fortunes of Elam. In 539 bc, a native of Elam named Cyrus conquered Babylon and founded the Persian empire. Susa, the former capital of Elam, then became the capital of the Persian empire (Esth 1:2). Cyrus would be God's anointed instrument to set the Judeans free (Isa 44:28–45:1).

50:1–51:64 This message of judgment on Babylon is the longest for any nation except Judah, and threats against Babylon are interwoven with promises for Judah's restoration. Babylon was the Lord's agent for destroying the other civilizations of the Near East, but it was also guilty of its own sins. The Lord would judge Babylon by doing to her what she had done to others (50:15).

50:1 Babylonians: Or Chaldeans; also in 50:8, 25, 35, 45.

50:2 Raising a signal flag was a favored method for warning that an enemy was approaching a city (cp. Isa 13:2). • The people of Babylon would be under divine judgment because they worshiped the gods Bel (the Babylonian name for Baal) and Marduk (the Babylonian deity of wind, storm, and fertility). • idols: The Hebrew term (literally round things) probably alludes to dung.

50:3 The nation . . . from the north was the Persian nation led by Cyrus in 539 bc. Persia was east of Babylon, but it first struck Babylonia in the north and then moved south. The attack destroyed the powerful Babylonian empire.

50:4–10 This poetic interlude was a message of hope for the Israelite exiles in Babylon in contrast to the judgment and oppression they had been experiencing. The divine Judge is also the divine Savior.

50:4 In those coming days: In 538, 458, and 445 bc, some exiles of Israel moved back to their homeland. • The people of Israel and Judah would come weeping with joy and repentance, choosing to worship the LORD their God instead of worshipping idols.

50:5 Jerusalem: Hebrew Zion; also in 50:28. • an eternal covenant: See 31:23–34.

50:6 The shepherds of Israel and Judah, such as Jeroboam I and Manasseh (see 1 Kgs 12:25–13:34; 2 Kgs 21:1–18), had led the people away from the Lord. • The mountains were both literal and metaphorical—Baal worship tended to take place at high elevations.

50:7 This verse continues the metaphor of lost sheep (50:6), connecting Israel's vulnerability to attack with

Jer 31:10

- 8 "But now, flee from Babylon!
Leave the land of the Babylonians.
Like male goats at the head of the flock, lead my people home again.
- 9 For I am raising up an army of great nations from the north.
They will join forces to attack Babylon,
and she will be captured.
The enemies' arrows will go straight to the mark;
they will not miss!
- 10 Babylonia will be looted until the attackers are glutted with loot.
I, the LORD, have spoken!

Babylon's Sure Fall

- 11 "You rejoice and are glad,
you who plundered my chosen people.
You frisk about like a calf in a meadow and neigh like a stallion.
- 12 But your homeland will be overwhelmed with shame and disgrace.
You will become the least of nations—
a wilderness, a dry and desolate land.
- 13 Because of the LORD's anger, Babylon will become a deserted
wasteland.
All who pass by will be horrified and will gasp at the destruction they
see there.
- 14 "Yes, prepare to attack Babylon,
all you surrounding nations.
Let your archers shoot at her; spare no arrows.
For she has sinned against the LORD.

- 15 Shout war cries against her from every side.
Look! She surrenders!
Her walls have fallen.
It is the LORD's vengeance,
so take vengeance on her.
Do to her as she has done to others!
- 16 Take from Babylon all those who plant crops;
send all the harvesters away.
Because of the sword of the enemy, everyone will run away and rush back to their own lands.

Hope for God's People

- 17 "The Israelites are like sheep that have been scattered by lions.
First the king of Assyria ate them up.
Then King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon cracked their bones."
- 18 Therefore, this is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies,
the God of Israel, says:
"Now I will punish the king of Babylon and his land,
just as I punished the king of Assyria.
- 19 And I will bring Israel home again to its own land,
to feed in the fields of Carmel and Bashan,
and to be satisfied once more in the hill country of Ephraim and Gilead.

their apostasy in turning away from the Lord. Their enemies rationalized their mistreatment of Israel by saying that the Israelites had sinned against the LORD. These enemies understood that the Israelites' true place of rest and hope was in the Lord.

50:8-9 The Lord urged the Israelites to leave when he ordered an army of great nations (Persia and its allies) to attack Babylon in 539 BC.

50:10 Babylonia: Or Chaldea.

50:11-16 These verses describe in vivid detail the defeat of Babylon by the Persian invasion (see ch 51; Isa 13:14; 21:1-10; 44:28; 47:1-5; Dan 5). Babylon was never an important kingdom again. The city of Babylon was leveled in 485 BC. Archaeological excavation of Babylon began in 1899, and the remains of Babylon were brought to light over several decades.

50:11 rejoice . . . frisk about: The Babylonians had been light-hearted and carefree because they had plundered the Lord's people in Jerusalem. They gave no thought to the well-being of those they conquered.

50:12 your homeland: Literally your mother. • The divine Judge rendered his verdict, describing the disgrace of a defeated Babylon.

50:14 The Lord ordered armies to attack Babylon with a multitude of arrows, the artillery of that age. • she has sinned against the LORD: The primary charge leveled against other nations was also directed toward Babylon.

50:15 The Lord's judgment was fulfilled when Babylon surrendered and her walls fell. The LORD's vengeance carried out justice by doing to Babylon what she had done to others (cp. Deut 19:21; Luke 6:38).

50:16 As Babylon fell, farmers fled and left their crops behind. The slaughter on the battlefield caused the people to run away.

50:17-20 Another poetic interlude laments Israel's sufferings and promises future restoration.

50:17 Assyria conquered the northern kingdom of Israel in 734–722 BC, and Nebuchadnezzar (Hebrew Nebuchadrezzar, a variant spelling of Nebuchadnezzar) conquered the southern kingdom of Judah in 605–586 BC.

50:18 Therefore: This word introduces two divine decrees. The first decree condemned Babylon to complete annihilation, like the punishment the Lord gave Assyria (Nah 3). Assyria fell in 612 BC; Babylon fell in 539 BC.

50:19 I will bring Israel home: The second divine decree (see note on 50:18) promises restoration for Israel, specifically the people of the northern tribes, whose land was defined by the indicated landmarks. • Carmel is a mountain range close to the Mediterranean Sea in the northwestern corner of Israel. • Bashan was a region in the highlands rising east of the Sea of Galilee. • The tribe of Ephraim occupied the hill country in the central part of Israel west of the Jordan River. • Gilead was a highland area that rose on the east side of the Jordan River, opposite Ephraim.

20 In those days," says the LORD,
"no sin will be found in Israel or in Judah,
for I will forgive the remnant I preserve.

The LORD's Judgment on Babylon

21 "Go up, my warriors, against the land of Merathaim
and against the people of Pekod.
Pursue, kill, and completely destroy
them,
as I have commanded you," says the
LORD.

22 "Let the battle cry be heard in the land,
a shout of great destruction.

23 Babylon, the mightiest hammer in all the earth,
lies broken and shattered.
Babylon is desolate among the nations!

24 Listen, Babylon, for I have set a trap for
you.
You are caught, for you have fought against the LORD.

25 The LORD has opened his armory and brought out weapons to vent his fury.

The terror that falls upon the Babylonians will be the work of the Sovereign
LORD of Heaven's Armies.

26 Yes, come against her from distant lands.
Break open her granaries.
Crush her walls and houses into heaps of rubble.

Destroy her completely, and leave nothing!

27 Destroy even her young bulls—it will be terrible for them, too!
Slaughter them all!

For Babylon's day of reckoning has come.

28 Listen to the people who have escaped
from Babylon,
as they tell in Jerusalem
how the LORD our God has taken vengeance
against those who destroyed his Temple.

29 "Send out a call for archers to come to Babylon.
Surround the city so none can escape.
Do to her as she has done to others,
for she has defied the LORD, the Holy
One of Israel.

30 Her young men will fall in the streets
and die.
Her soldiers will all be killed,"
says the LORD.

31 "See, I am your enemy, you 'arrogant
people,"
says the Lord, the LORD of Heaven's Armies.

"Your day of reckoning has arrived—
the day when I will punish you.

32 O land of 'arrogance, you will stumble and fall,
and no one will raise you up.
For I will light a fire in the cities of Babylon
that will burn up everything around
them."

33 This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says:

"The people of Israel and Judah have been wronged.
Their captors hold them and refuse to let them go.

34 But the one who 'redeems them is strong.
His name is the LORD of Heaven's Armies.

He will defend them and give them rest again in Israel.
But for the people of Babylon
there will be no rest!

50:20 The Lord would forgive the remnant of people from Israel and Judah; they would seek the Lord as they returned to their homeland (50:4-5; see chs 31; 33).

50:21 The judgments against Babylon continue. The divine Judge is also portrayed as the divine commander of the armies. The Persians were the Lord's warriors against Babylon, just as Babylon had been his warriors against Judah (25:9). • Merathaim (literally double rebellion) refers to the southern part of the Tigris and Euphrates river valley. Pekod (literally punishment) designates a people living on the eastern side of the same valley. These people were Babylonian. • completely destroy: The Hebrew term used here refers to the complete consecration of things or people to the Lord, either by destroying them or by giving them as an offering; see Lev 27:28-29; Josh 6:21; 1 Sam 15:3.

50:28 The exiles returning to Jerusalem would be able to encourage those left behind that the enemy had been punished as God had promised and that his promised restoration of Israel was beginning.

50:29-30 Skilled archers would kill the Babylonian soldiers even as those soldiers had killed their victims in battle (see note at 50:15). This was the Lord's way of judging the ruthless empire builders who had defied the one true God by worshiping other deities (50:38).

50:31-32 Because of the Lord's decree, the arrogant Babylonian empire would never rise again as a mighty power in the world.

50:33-34 The people of Israel and Judah had suffered greatly. The Lord's act of redemption would defend them and give them rest again in Israel. God is strong, and he is as able to redeem as he is to punish.

36 The sword will strike her wise counselors, and they will become fools. The sword will strike her mightiest warriors, and panic will seize them.

37 The sword will strike her horses and chariots and her allies from other lands, and they will all become like women. The sword will strike her treasures, and they all will be plundered.

38 A drought will strike her water supply, causing it to dry up. And why? Because the whole land is filled with idols, and the people are madly in love with them.

39 "Soon Babylon will be inhabited by desert animals and hyenas. It will be a home for owls. Never again will people live there; it will lie desolate forever.

40 I will destroy it as I destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah and their neighboring towns," says the LORD.

"No one will live there; no one will inhabit it.

41 "Look! A great army is coming from the north. A great nation and many kings are rising against you from far-off lands.

42 They are armed with bows and spears. They are cruel and show no mercy. As they ride forward on horses, they sound like a roaring sea.

They are coming in battle formation, planning to destroy you, Babylon.

43 The king of Babylon has heard reports about the enemy, and he is weak with fright. Pangs of anguish have gripped him, like those of a woman in labor.

44 "I will come like a lion from the thickets of the Jordan, leaping on the sheep in the pasture. I will chase Babylon from its land, and I will appoint the leader of my choice. For who is like me, and who can challenge me? What ruler can oppose my will?"

45 Listen to the LORD's plans against Babylon and the land of the Babylonians. Even the little children will be dragged off like sheep, and their homes will be destroyed. 46 The earth will shake with the shout, "Babylon has been taken!" and its cry of despair will be heard around the world.

51 ¹ This is what the LORD says: "I will stir up a destroyer against Babylon and the people of Babylonia.

² Foreigners will come and winnow her, blowing her away as chaff. They will come from every side to rise against her in her day of trouble.

³ Don't let the archers put on their armor or draw their bows. Don't spare even her best soldiers! Let her army be completely destroyed.

⁴ They will fall dead in the land of the Babylonians, slashed to death in her streets.

⁵ For the LORD of Heaven's Armies has not abandoned Israel and Judah.

50:35-38 Babylon would experience exactly the kind of violence it had meted out. The same charges were brought against Babylon as were brought against Israel, Judah, Egypt, and their neighbors. All of them worshiped idols instead of the one true God. • The sword of destruction refers to the Persian army.

50:38 The Euphrates River ran through the city of Babylon, providing its water supply. The Persians were reputed to have diverted the river during the siege by digging a canal around the city walls and then attacking through the riverbed.

50:39-40 The doom of Babylon would be like the utter desolation of Sodom and Gomorrah (Gen 19:24-25).

50:40 as I: Literally as God.

50:43 The Babylonians would experience the same terror their own victims had felt (cp. 6:22-23).

50:44-46 These verses essentially repeat 49:19-21, with Babylon in place of Edom.

51:1-2 The destroyer selected by the Lord was Persia, led by Cyrus, who came against Babylon in 539 BC. • Babylonia:

Hebrew Leb-kamai, a code name for Babylonia.

51:3-4 God took the role of commander and ordered the destroyer to wipe out the Babylonians. • completely destroyed: The Hebrew term used here refers to the complete consecration of things or people to the LORD, either by destroying them or by giving them as an offering; see Lev 27:28-29; 1 Sam 15:3. • Babylonians: Or Chaldeans; also in 51:54.

51:5 Although the Israelites had committed many sins against the Holy One,

- He is still their God, even though their land was filled with sin against the Holy One of Israel.”
- ⁶ Flee from Babylon! Save yourselves!
Don't get trapped in her punishment!
It is the LORD's time for vengeance;
he will repay her in full.
- ⁷ Babylon has been a gold cup in the LORD's hands,
a cup that made the whole earth
drunk.
The nations drank Babylon's wine,
and it drove them all mad.
- ⁸ But suddenly Babylon, too, has fallen.
Weep for her.
Give her medicine.
Perhaps she can yet be healed.
- ⁹ We would have helped her if we could,
but nothing can save her now.
Let her go; abandon her.
Return now to your own land.
For her punishment reaches to the heavens;
it is so great it cannot be measured.
- ¹⁰ The LORD has vindicated us.
Come, let us announce in Jerusalem everything the LORD our God has done.
- ¹¹ Sharpen the arrows!
Lift up the shields!
For the LORD has inspired the kings of the Medes to march against Babylon and destroy her.
This is his vengeance against those who desecrated his Temple.
- ¹² Raise the battle flag against Babylon!
Reinforce the guard and station the watchmen.
Prepare an ambush,
for the LORD will fulfill all his plans
against Babylon.
- ¹³ You are a city by a great river,
a great center of commerce,

- but your end has come.
The thread of your life is cut.
- ¹⁴ The LORD of Heaven's Armies has taken this vow
and has sworn to it by his own name:
“Your cities will be filled with enemies, like fields swarming with locusts, and they will shout in triumph over
you.”
- A Hymn of Praise to the LORD*
- ¹⁵ The LORD made the earth by his power, and he preserves it by his wisdom.
With his own understanding he stretched out the heavens.
- ¹⁶ When he speaks in the thunder,
the heavens roar with rain.
He causes the clouds to rise over the earth.
He sends the lightning with the rain
and releases the wind from his storehouses.
- ¹⁷ The whole human race is foolish and has no knowledge!
The craftsmen are disgraced by the idols they make,
for their carefully shaped works are a fraud.
These idols have no breath or power.
- ¹⁸ Idols are worthless; they are ridiculous
lies!
On the day of reckoning they will all
be destroyed.
- ¹⁹ But the God of Israel is no idol!
He is the Creator of everything that exists, including his people, his own special
possession.
The LORD of Heaven's Armies is his name!

51:9-10 Nothing could save Babylon; her punishment could not be measured. After Babylon collapsed, it would be time for the exiles to return home, where they could tell others of God's wonderful acts on their behalf. • Jerusalem: Hebrew Zion; also in 51:24.

51:20 You: Possibly Cyrus, whom God used to conquer Babylon. Cp. Isa 44:28; 45:1. The Lord had chosen and empowered King Cyrus of Persia to turn the Babylonian empire to dust.

led by the kings of the Medes and all their captains and officers.
- 29 The earth trembles and writhes in pain, for everything the LORD has planned against Babylon stands unchanged.
Babylon will be left desolate without a

They stay in their barracks, their courage

They have become like women.
The invaders have burned the houses

say the people of Zion.
“Make the people of Babylonia pay for spilling our blood,” says Jerusalem.
- The LORD's Vengeance on Babylon*
- 36 This is what the LORD says to Jerusalem:
“I will be your lawyer to plead your case,
and I will avenge you.
I will dry up her river,
as well as her springs,
and Babylon will become a heap of ruins,
haunted by jackals.
She will be an object of horror and contempt,
a place where no one lives.

51:24 Babylonia: Or Chaldea; also in 51:35.

51:27-28 Ararat was the mountainous region north of Babylon. • Ashkenaz was Noah's great-grandson through Japheth and Gomer (Gen 10:2-3); his descendants probably lived in Ararat, as did the people of Minni, who are otherwise unknown. • signal flag: See note on 50:2.

51:29-30 The terrible fall of Babylon happened just as the Lord had planned. The Babylonian soldiers lost all desire to fight, and the Persian invaders quickly penetrated its city walls.

51:31 This king was Nabonidus; at the time, he was at Borsippa, north of Babylon. His son Belshazzar was regent in Babylon. See Dan 5:1-30.

51:33 The wealth of the city was likened to wheat on a threshing floor; the looting of Babylon was like a harvest.

51:34 Nebuchadnezzar: Hebrew Nebuchadrezzar, a variant spelling of Nebuchadnezzar.

51:35 Make Babylon suffer as she made us suffer: See “Prayers for Vengeance” at Ps 137, p. 1017.

51:36 I will be your lawyer: In response to the people's request (51:35), the Lord would prosecute Babylon for its brutal sins.

51:37 The looting of the city and the damage to its structures would inspire contempt rather than awe in its visitors.

38 Her people will roar together like strong lions.
They will growl like lion cubs.
39 And while they lie inflamed with all their wine,
I will prepare a different kind of feast for them.
I will make them drink until they fall asleep,
and they will never wake up again," says the LORD.
40 "I will bring them down like lambs to the slaughter, like rams and goats to be sacrificed.

41 "How Babylon is fallen—great Babylon, praised throughout the earth!
Now she has become an object of horror among the nations.
42 The sea has risen over Babylon;
she is covered by its crashing waves.
43 Her cities now lie in ruins;
she is a dry wasteland where no one lives or even passes by.
44 And I will punish Bel, the god of Babylon, and make him vomit up all he has eaten.
The nations will no longer come and worship him.
The wall of Babylon has fallen!

A Message for the Exiles

45 "Come out, my people, flee from Babylon.
Save yourselves! Run from the LORD's fierce anger.
46 But do not panic; don't be afraid when you hear the first rumor of approaching forces.
For rumors will keep coming year by year.

Violence will erupt in the land as the leaders fight against each other.
47 For the time is surely coming when I will punish this great city and all her idols.
Her whole land will be disgraced, and her dead will lie in the streets.
48 Then the heavens and earth will rejoice, for out of the north will come destroying armies against Babylon," says the LORD.
49 "Just as Babylon killed the people of Israel and others throughout the world, so must her people be killed.
50 Get out, all you who have escaped the sword!
Do not stand and watch—flee while you can!
Remember the LORD, though you are in a far-off land, and think about your home in Jerusalem."

51 "We are ashamed," the people say.
"We are insulted and disgraced because the LORD's Temple has been defiled by foreigners."
52 "Yes," says the LORD, "but the time is coming when I will destroy Babylon's idols.
The groans of her wounded people will be heard throughout the land.
53 Though Babylon reaches as high as the heavens and makes her fortifications incredibly strong,
I will still send enemies to plunder her.
I, the LORD, have spoken!

51:41 Babylon: Hebrew Sheshach, a code name for Babylon.

51:42 The sea represents the armies that overwhelmed Babylon. The crashing waves symbolize the assault against the city.

51:44 The defeat of its chief deity, Bel, was the ultimate disaster for Babylon. This idol's lavish adornments would be taken away, and its supposed power would be exposed as a monumental fraud.

51:45-53 The Lord was concerned about the spiritual and physical well-being of the Jewish exiles in Babylon, where their political situation was perilous. The Lord pointed to the future, when the exiles would be redeemed from disgrace and return with great joy to live in their own land.

51:45-46 As the Lord described the terrors of his angry judgment against Babylon, he pointed his people to their homeland to assure them of their safety. As an enemy army headed toward Babylon, the leaders inside the city were blaming each other. Vicious in-fighting was tearing Babylon apart.

51:47-48 The Lord's punishment of Babylon would cause the heavens and earth to rejoice at this display of God's justice.

51:49-50 Babylon's penalty would match the brutality it had poured out on the Israelites and other nations.

51:51 The exiled people carried a heavy load of shame and disgrace for their past sins. The LORD's Temple was defiled when the Babylonians destroyed it in 586 BC.

51:52 Yes: The Lord agreed with his people that their past was shameful, but he gave them hope for the future when Babylon's power would be broken.

51:53 Babylon's fortifications could not protect it; the city would certainly be plundered, for the LORD had spoken and decreed their punishment.

Babylon's Complete Destruction

54 "Listen! Hear the cry of Babylon, the sound of great destruction from the land of the Babylonians.

55 For the LORD is destroying Babylon.
He will silence her loud voice.
Waves of enemies pound against her;
the noise of battle rings through the city.

56 Destroying armies come against Babylon.
Her mighty men are captured, and their weapons break in their hands.

For the LORD is a God who gives just punishment;
he always repays in full.

57 I will make her officials and wise men drunk,
along with her captains, officers, and warriors.

They will fall asleep and never wake up again!"
says the King, whose name is the LORD of Heaven's Armies.

58 This is what the LORD of Heaven's
Armies says:
"The thick walls of Babylon will be leveled to the ground, and her massive gates will be burned.
The builders from many lands have worked in vain,
for their work will be destroyed by fire!"

Jeremiah's Message Sent to Babylon

59 The prophet Jeremiah gave this message to Seraiah son of Neriah and grandson of Maheiah, a staff officer, when Seraiah went to Babylon with King Zedekiah of Judah. This was during the fourth year of Zedekiah's reign. 60 Jeremiah had recorded on a scroll all the terrible disasters that would soon come upon Babylon—all the words written here. 61 He said to Seraiah,

"When you get to Babylon, read aloud everything on this scroll. 62 Then say, 'LORD, you have said that you will destroy Babylon so that neither people nor animals will remain here. She will lie empty and abandoned forever.' 63 When you have finished reading the scroll, tie it to a stone and throw it into the Euphrates River. 64 Then say, 'In this same way Babylon and her people will sink, never again to rise, because of the disasters I will bring upon her.'"

This is the end of Jeremiah's messages.

11. HISTORICAL APPENDIX: JUDGMENT
ON JERUSALEM (52:1-34)The Fall of Jerusalem*

Jer 52:1-3a // 2 Kgs 24:18-20a // 2 Chr 36:11-12

Jer 52:3b-11 // 2 Kgs 24:20b-25:7 // Jer 39:1-7

52 Zedekiah was twenty-one years old when he became king, and he reigned in Jerusalem eleven years. His mother was Hamutal, the daughter of Jeremiah from Libnah. 2 But Zedekiah did what was evil in the LORD's sight, just as Jehoia-kim had done. 3 These things happened because of the LORD's anger against the people of Jerusalem and Judah, until he finally banished them from his presence and sent them into exile.

Zedekiah rebelled against the king of Babylon. 4 So on January 15, during the ninth year of Zedekiah's reign, King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon led his entire army against Jerusalem. They surrounded the city and built siege ramps against its walls. 5 Jerusalem was kept under siege until the eleventh year of King Zedekiah's reign.

51:54 As Babylon was destroyed, the din of battle would be overwhelming.
People would scream and yell, soldiers would shout their battle cries, and boulders would crash against each other as walls were torn down.

51:55-56 The destruction of Babylon was not a historical accident—the LORD was in control and would bring it to pass. • The noise (51:54) would dissolve into the silence of death.
The invading army would kill or capture the Babylonian soldiers, and the population would flee into the countryside.

51:57 Belshazzar, the ruler of the city, and his officers had a feast at which drunkenness was dominant; it ended in their death (Dan 5).

51:59-64 Just as Babylon had destroyed Jerusalem, this great kingdom would itself be destroyed. This passage contains a message sent to Babylon seven years before the fall of Jerusalem.

51:59 King Zedekiah made a trip to Babylon to build trust between himself and Nebuchadnezzar. It was probably during this visit that Zedekiah swore an oath of loyalty to the Babylonian king (2 Chr 36:13). The fourth year of Zedekiah's reign was 593 BC.

51:63-64 Throwing the scroll . . . into the Euphrates River signaled the permanent destruction of Babylon.

52:1-34 This chapter repeats the narrative of 2 Kgs 24:18-25:30, which recounts the final month of Jerusalem's existence with a few added details and changes. The repetition of this passage emphasizes Jeremiah's integrity as a true prophet of Almighty God. Everything Jeremiah had predicted about the destruction of the holy city and the end of the kingdom of Judah came true.

Likewise, everything that he predicted about the Exile, the sufferings of the exiled survivors in Babylon, and their return from exile, came true.

52:4 on January 15: Literally on the tenth day of the tenth month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar. A number of events in Jeremiah can be cross-checked with dates in surviving Babylonian records and related accurately to our modern calendar. This day was January 15, 588 BC. • Nebuchadnezzar: Hebrew Nebuchadrezzar, a variant spelling of Nebuchadnezzar; also in 52:12, 28, 29, 30.

⁶By July 18 in the eleventh year of Zedekiah's reign, the famine in the city had become very severe, and the last of the food was entirely gone. ⁷Then a section of the city wall was broken down, and all the soldiers fled. Since the city was surrounded by the Babylonians, they waited for nightfall. Then they slipped through the gate between the two walls behind the king's garden and headed toward the Jordan Valley.

⁸But the Babylonian troops chased King Zedekiah and overtook him on the plains of Jericho, for his men had all deserted him and scattered. ⁹They captured the king and took him to the king of Babylon at Riblah in the land of Hamath. There the king of Babylon pronounced judgment upon Zedekiah. ¹⁰The king of Babylon made Zedekiah watch as he slaughtered his sons. He also slaughtered all the officials of Judah at Riblah. ¹¹Then he gouged out Zedekiah's eyes and bound him in bronze chains, and the king of Babylon led him away to Babylon. Zedekiah remained there in prison until the day of his death.

The Temple Destroyed

¹²On August 17 of that year, which was the nineteenth year of King Nebuchadnezzar's reign, Nebuzaradan, the captain of the guard and an official of the Babylonian king, arrived in Jerusalem. ¹³He burned down the Temple of the LORD, the royal palace, and all the houses of Jerusalem. He destroyed all the important buildings in the city. ¹⁴Then he supervised the entire Babylonian army as they tore down the walls of Jerusalem on every side. ¹⁵Then Nebuzaradan, the captain of the guard, took as exiles some of the poorest of the people, the rest of the people who remained in the city, the defectors who had declared their allegiance to the king of Babylon, and the rest of the craftsmen. ¹⁶But Nebuzaradan allowed some of the poorest people to stay behind to care for the vineyards and fields.

¹⁷The Babylonians broke up the bronze pillars in front of the LORD's Temple, the bronze water carts, and the great bronze basin called the Sea, and they carried all the bronze away to Babylon. ¹⁸They also took all the ash buckets, shovels, lamp snuffers, basins, dishes, and all the other bronze articles used for making sacrifices at the Temple. ¹⁹The captain of the guard also took the small bowls, incense burners, basins, pots, lampstands, ladles, bowls used for liquid offerings, and all the other articles made of pure gold or silver.

²⁰The weight of the bronze from the two pillars, the Sea with the twelve bronze oxen beneath it, and the water carts was too great to be measured. These things had been made for the LORD's Temple in the days of King Solomon. ²¹Each of the pillars was 27 feet tall and 18 feet in circumference. They were hollow, with walls 3 inches thick. ²²The bronze capital on top of each pillar was 7½ feet high and was decorated with a network of bronze pomegranates all the way around. ²³There were 96 pomegranates on by looting all the precious metals in the Temple before it was burned. • The Babylonian looters had to break large metal items into pieces in order to get them on wagons and carry them away.

52:12-21 This section adds some details not found in 2 Kgs 25 (see note on 52:1-34). The Babylonians gained vast wealth

52:13 He burned down the Temple: Although the Temple was constructed mostly of stone, beams of cedar were laid among the stones. Cedar panels covered the walls, and cypress planks were used for the floors. Wood was also used for window frames and for doors (see 1 Kgs 6). All of this wood burned.

• destroyed all the important buildings: Or destroyed the houses of all the important people.

So the people of Judah were sent into exile from their land.

³¹In the thirty-seventh year of the exile of King Jehoiachin of Judah, Evil-merodach ascended to the Babylonian throne. He was kind to Jehoiachin and released him from prison on March 31 of that year. ³²He spoke kindly to Jehoiachin and gave him a higher place than all the other exiled kings in Babylon. ³³He supplied Jehoiachin with new clothes to replace his prison garb and allowed him to dine in the king's presence for the rest of his life. ³⁴So the Babylonian king gave him a regular food allowance as long as he lived. This continued until the day of his death.

52:25 seven: The parallel in 2 Kgs 25:18 reads "five."

52:28-30 The numbers in these verses amplify the data given in 2 Kgs 24:14-16 regarding the deportation of exiles in 597 BC. The deportation in 52:30 is not mentioned elsewhere in Scripture; it was probably a Babylonian reprisal for Gedaliah's murder (41:1-3). This suggests that the person(s) responsible for making this adaptation lived after 581 BC, probably in Babylon, and knew the content of Jeremiah's account of the fall of Jerusalem.

52:28 This exile in the seventh year of Nebuchadnezzar's reign occurred in 597 BC. The account in 2 Kgs 24:12-14 states that this event occurred in Nebuchadnezzar's eighth year. This difference reflects two ancient Near Eastern methods of calculating the beginning of a king's reign. In 2 Kings, the year in which Nebuchadnezzar ascended the throne is treated as the first year of his reign. Jeremiah apparently started counting the first full year as Nebuchadnezzar's first year (see "Chronology: Israel's Monarchy," p. 562).

52:29 This exile in the eighteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar's reign occurred in 586 BC, when Jerusalem was destroyed.

52:30 This exile in the twenty-third year of Nebuchadnezzar's reign occurred in 581 BC. See note on 52:28-30.

52:31-34 This paragraph repeats 2 Kgs 25:27-30. This part of the narrative supplies the fulfillment of Jeremiah's prediction of Jehoiachin's future (see 22:24-30). • Evil-merodach reigned in Babylon 561–560 BC. Several inscriptions found in a basement near Babylon's Ishtar Gate tell of rations of food provided to Jehoiachin and his family.

52:31 He was kind to: Literally He raised the head of. • on March 31 of that year: Literally on the twenty-fifth day of the twelfth month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar. This day was March 31, 561 BC; also see note on 52:4.

THE BOOK OF

Lamentations

Most of us have been observers, not participants, in wars. Most of us have not experienced the death of our nation, and we know little of the agony of utter despair; but others in our world have experienced total devastation as their cities or nations have been destroyed by wars, earthquakes, tsunamis, or hurricanes. Reading the book of Lamentations can give us a point of entry into their experience. It can help us to face the darkest aspects of human existence.

SETTING

A catastrophe had wiped out the kingdom of Judah, its capital (Jerusalem), its Temple, and most of its people. After a long siege, the Babylonian army breached Jerusalem's defenses and took control. They deported many of the people of Judah to exile in Babylon, and they destroyed the city of Jerusalem, including the Temple of God. Only a few survivors were left in the land, including Jeremiah the prophet. Nothing else was left, and the hopes of God's people were nearly dead.

SUMMARY

There is no attempt to hide the horror of the destruction that the people experienced. The reader is invited to ground zero of the devastation, there to stand dumbfounded by the enormity of the collapse of this once glorious city.

Dianne Bergant
Lamentations

The book of Lamentations is a collection of five highly structured and emotionally powerful poems that lament Jerusalem's destruction. The first four poems are acrostics based on the twenty-two letters of the Hebrew alphabet, with each successive stanza beginning with the next letter (a feature that is lost in translation). Chapter 5 has twenty-two verses but is not an acrostic.

Chapter 1 describes Jerusalem's ruins. Jerusalem is personified as a woman who was once a famous princess but is now a wounded slave, lamenting the contrast between her past and present with intense agony and shame. The woman acknowledges that she has earned her distress, and she prays that the Lord will relieve her miserable condition.

Chapter 2 summarizes the shameful situation of the false prophets, city leaders, and young women. The author agonizes as he watches starving children and weeping mothers, lying prophets and mocking enemies. It happened because God withdrew his mercy and kept his promise to judge his people when they sinned against him.

Chapter 3 is an eyewitness account of God's wrath. The author is sickened by the carnage; he is abused, without hope, and crushed by shame. Then hope suddenly floods his soul in the realization that God's anger will not last forever. God's faithfulness, love, kindness, and goodness are the ultimate, saving reality. The battered believer sings. Yet the hurt remains, and his tears flow abundantly as he pours out his repentant prayer.

Chapter 4 is a gloomy description of the devastation before and after the walls of Jerusalem were breached, in contrast to the city's years of glory. God was justly punishing the vicious sins of his people, and they could not escape his judgment.

J:

The prayer in chapter 5 asks God to carefully consider the people's plight; it ends with a plea for salvation, if salvation is still available.

In all five poems, pain and distress are paired with faith and hope. The suffering of the present seems more real than the possibility of redemption in the future, but God's love and faithfulness remain.

AUTHORSHIP

The book of Lamentations does not identify its author. The poems take place within the context of the situation immediately before and after the fall of Jerusalem in 586 BC, so the prophet Jeremiah has long been identified as the author. It was probably written with the help of Baruch, his assistant and scribe. Jeremiah also wrote laments at the time of King

Josiah's death (2 Chr 35:25). The five poems of Lamentations are thematically unified by the desolation of Jerusalem, and Jeremiah was in Jerusalem through all of its disasters, from its first defeat in 605 BC through its final destruction in 586 BC. The author of Lamentations freely pours out his emotions, as does Jeremiah in the book that bears his name. Both books are about the future of the nation.

There are a number of other parallels between the books of Jeremiah and Lamentations. Compare the treatment of the following themes: troubled widows (1:1; 5:3; cp. Jer 15:8; 18:21); weeping people (1:2, 16; 2:18; 3:48-49; cp. Jer 4:8; 6:26; 9:1; 13:17; 14:17; 25:34); sins (1:5, 10, 18, 22; 3:42; 4:13-14; 5:7; cp. Jer 2:34; 4:17; 14:20; 30:14-16; 31:29; 51:51); punishment (2:2-22; 3:39; 5:14-16; cp. Jer 6:11, 25; 7:14; 16:2-4; 18:21; 51:30, 34; 52:14); false prophets (2:14; cp. Jer 23:25-29; 29:8-9); bitterness (3:19; cp. Jer 9:15); pits (3:53, 55; cp. Jer 37:16; 38:6-13); and clay pots (4:2; cp. Jer 19:11). Such parallels support Jeremiah's authorship. However, some OT scholars ascribe Lamentations to a much later author.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

What positive meaning can be gained from staring at blackened stones hour after hour, or from walking among starving children and wailing mothers, or from remembering false prophets who promised rescue from the Babylonian army encamped around Jerusalem? What significance is there in watching priests, who had been confident that the sacrifices they offered would provide victory and success, wander the city searching for food? How can one believe in God's goodness when corpses lie everywhere?

But the author did find meaning in the calamity. The false worship and immoral behavior of the leaders and the people had brought disaster upon them. God was angry because his people rejected his sovereignty and

Lamentations in Cornerstone Biblical Commentary, vol. 8 (2005)

ignored his reality as the one, true God. They had violated their covenant with the Lord, and the Lord had judged them, as he had promised to do (cp. Lam 1:3, 5 with Deut 28:32-33; Lam 1:9 with Deut 28:43; Lam 1:16 with Deut 28:41; Lam 2:20; 4:10 with Deut 28:53; Lam 3:14, 45 with Deut 28:37; and Lam 4:16 with Deut 28:48-50). God's punishment was righteous and just (1:18); he does not tolerate human rebellion.

But what about the future? Those in anguish can plead before God (1:20-22). They can understand that in catastrophe, God fulfills justice (2:17; see Lev 26:14-17). In the midst of utter sorrow, they can experience the Lord's mercy. Those who truly seek God have hope. God is great in his faithfulness (3:21-26). Misery threatens to overwhelm the soul, but moments of hope bring light (3:29-33). God is eternal, and his throne forever dominates the universe. Though doubts and fears continue to assault the human spirit, God remains dependable. God's anger, which has a just foundation, is temporary. God's anger ceases when confession and repentance begin, and it becomes possible to sing of God's great faithfulness. The ultimate goal is that each person, and each community, will experience God's forgiveness and restoration.

1. SORROW IN JERUSALEM (1:1-22)

1 Jerusalem, once so full of people, is now deserted.

She who was once great among the nations

now sits alone like a widow.

Once the queen of all the earth,
she is now a slave.

2 She sobs through the night;
tears stream down her cheeks.
Among all her lovers,
there is no one left to comfort her.
All her friends have betrayed her and become her enemies.

3 Judah has been led away into captivity, oppressed with cruel slavery.
She lives among foreign nations and has no place of rest.
Her enemies have chased her down,
and she has nowhere to turn.

4 The roads to Jerusalem are in mourning, for crowds no longer come to celebrate the festivals.

The city gates are silent,
her priests groan,
her young women are crying—
how bitter is her fate!

5 Her oppressors have become her masters,
and her enemies prosper,
for the LORD has punished Jerusalem for her many sins.
Her children have been captured and taken away to distant lands.

6 All the majesty of beautiful Jerusalem has been stripped away.
Her princes are like starving deer searching for pasture.
They are too weak to run from the pursuing enemy.

1:1-22 Each of the first four chapters of this book is an acrostic, laid out in the order of the Hebrew alphabet. The first word of each verse begins with a successive Hebrew letter. Chapters 1, 2, and 4 have one verse for each of the twenty-two Hebrew letters. Chapter 3 contains twenty-two stanzas of three verses each. • Chapter 1 mourns the destruction and desolation of Jerusalem, recognizing that this was God's well-deserved judgment on Israel's sins.

1:2 The lovers were the fertility deities, Baal and Asherah, who were worshiped by most people in Judah. Her friends were her military allies, notably Egypt, who was no match for Babylon (Jer 37:5-11).

1:3 The woman of 1:1 is the nation of Judah. • led away into captivity: This happened four times: 605 BC (Dan 1:3-4) 597 BC (2 Kgs 24:12-16; Ezek 1:2-3; Jer 52:28) 586 BC (2 Kgs 25:5-7, 18-21; Jer 39:5-10, 52:29) 581 BC (Jer 52:30).

1:4 Jerusalem (Hebrew Zion; also in 1:17): In the Psalms and in the prophetic books, Zion represents the city of Jerusalem. In Lamentations, Zion is a poetic name for the city, even in ruins. Hebrews 12:22-24 speaks of the heavenly Zion (see also Rev 14:1-5).

• The annual festivals in Jerusalem were the Passover, Unleavened Bread, First

Harvest, Harvest (Pentecost), Trumpets, the Day of Atonement, and Shelters (Tabernacles). See Lev 23:1-44 and chart on p. 235. • The main duties of the priests were carried out in the Temple and its surrounding area. Since the Temple was in ruins, they had no jobs and hence no future.

1:5 for her many sins: Judah's sins before the Babylonian invasion are outlined in 2 Kgs 21:1-9, 16; 24:3-4 (cp. 2 Chr 33:1-10, 22-23 and 2 Chr 36:11-16). Similarly, a list of Israel's sins before Assyria destroyed it is found in 2 Kgs 17:14-23.

1:6 of beautiful Jerusalem: Literally of the daughter of Zion.

- 7 In the midst of her sadness and wandering,
Jerusalem remembers her ancient splendor.
But now she has fallen to her enemy,
and there is no one to help her.
Her enemy struck her down and laughed as she fell.
- 8 Jerusalem has sinned greatly,
so she has been tossed away like a filthy rag.
All who once honored her now despise her,
for they have seen her stripped naked and humiliated.
All she can do is groan
and hide her face.
- 9 She defiled herself with immorality and gave no thought to her future.
Now she lies in the gutter with no one to lift her out.
"LORD, see my misery," she cries.
"The enemy has triumphed."
- 10 The enemy has plundered her completely, taking every precious thing she owns.
She has seen foreigners violate her sacred Temple,
the place the LORD had forbidden them to enter.
- 11 Her people groan as they search for bread.
They have sold their treasures for food to stay alive.
"O LORD, look," she mourns,
"and see how I am despised."
- 12 "Does it mean nothing to you, all you who pass by?
Look around and see if there is any suffering like mine, which the LORD brought on me when he erupted in fierce anger.

- 13 "He has sent fire from heaven that burns in my bones.
He has placed a trap in my path and turned me back.
He has left me devastated, racked with sickness all day long.
- 14 "He wove my sins into ropes to hitch me to a yoke of captivity.
The LORD sapped my strength and turned me over to my enemies;
I am helpless in their hands.
- 15 "The LORD has treated my mighty men with contempt.
At his command a great army has come to crush my young warriors.
The LORD has trampled his beloved city like grapes are trampled in a winepress.
- 16 "For all these things I weep;
tears flow down my cheeks.
No one is here to comfort me;
any who might encourage me are far away.
My children have no future,
for the enemy has conquered us."
- 17 Jerusalem reaches out for help,
but no one comforts her.
Regarding his people Israel,
the LORD has said,
"Let their neighbors be their enemies!
Let them be thrown away like a filthy rag!"
- 18 "The LORD is right," Jerusalem says,
"for I rebelled against him.
Listen, people everywhere;
look upon my anguish and despair,
for my sons and daughters have been taken captive to distant lands.
- 19 "I begged my allies for help,
but they betrayed me.
My priests and leaders starved to death in the city, even as they searched for food to save their lives.

1:7 laughed as she fell: See also Jer 24:9; Ezek 22:5; 36:4.

1:8-9 Jerusalem was stripped of everything of physical and spiritual value that the people cherished.

1:10 For historical accounts of these events, see 2 Kgs 25:8-17; 2 Chr 36:13-21; Jer 52:4-30.

1:13 The destruction of Jerusalem at the hands of the Babylonians was like fire from heaven.

1:14 For their sins, the people of Judah were tied to one another with ropes and taken as captives into exile.

1:15 his beloved city (literally the virgin daughter of Judah): God had given special care to Jerusalem, like a father protecting his daughter. But her sins had been persistent, and her punishment was horrible. • like grapes . . . trampled in a winepress: This common procedure for extracting juice from grapes is used vividly in Isa 63:3 to show the horrors of punishment. In Rev 14:18-20; 19:15, the image graphically represents universal judgment.

1:17 Israel: Literally Jacob. The names "Jacob" and "Israel" are often interchanged throughout the Old Testament, referring sometimes to the individual patriarch and sometimes to the nation.

1:19 I begged my allies: Egypt had a great deal of interest in Judah because Judah controlled the only good route to the north. However, Egypt turned her back on Judah when Babylon attacked Jerusalem (Jer 37:5-11). • When there was little rain in the fall and spring in Palestine, a summer without rain could destroy crops and cause a food shortage. The food supply also ran out under the prolonged siege of a city (Jan 588–July 586 BC), and many people starved to death (2 Kgs 25:2-3; cp. Jer 37:21).

²⁰ "LORD, see my anguish!
My heart is broken
and my soul despairs, for I have rebelled against you.
In the streets the sword kills,
and at home there is only death.

²¹ "Others heard my groans, but no one turned to comfort me.
When my enemies heard about my troubles, they were happy to see what you had done.
Oh, bring the day you promised, when they will suffer as I have suffered.

²² "Look at all their evil deeds, LORD.
Punish them,
as you have punished me
for all my sins.
My groans are many,
and I am sick at heart."

2. GOD'S ANGER AT SIN (2:1-22)

2 The Lord in his anger has cast a dark shadow over beautiful Jerusalem.
The fairest of Israel's cities lies in the dust, thrown down from the heights of heaven.
In his day of great anger, the Lord has shown no mercy even to his Temple.

² Without mercy the Lord has destroyed
every home in Israel.
In his anger he has broken down the fortress walls of beautiful
Jerusalem.
He has brought them to the ground, dishonoring the kingdom and its rulers.

³ All the strength of Israel vanishes beneath his fierce anger.
The Lord has withdrawn his protection
as the enemy attacks.
He consumes the whole land of Israel like a raging fire.

⁴ He bends his bow against his people,
as though he were their enemy.
His strength is used against them to kill their finest youth.
His fury is poured out like fire on beautiful Jerusalem.

⁵ Yes, the Lord has vanquished Israel like an enemy.
He has destroyed her palaces and demolished her fortresses.
He has brought unending sorrow and tears
upon beautiful Jerusalem.

⁶ He has broken down his Temple as though it were merely a garden shelter.
The LORD has blotted out all memory of the holy festivals and Sabbath days.
Kings and priests fall together before his fierce anger.

⁷ The Lord has rejected his own altar;
he despises his own sanctuary.
He has given Jerusalem's palaces to her enemies.
They shout in the LORD's Temple
as though it were a day of celebration.

⁸ The LORD was determined to destroy the walls of beautiful
Jerusalem.
He made careful plans for their
destruction,
then did what he had planned.
Therefore, the ramparts and walls have fallen down before him.

1:20 The leaders and people of Judah had rebelled (Jer 2:17; 5:6, 23) by rejecting the one true God and his commandments and by resisting the invaders God had sent (2 Kgs 24:1, 20; 2 Chr 36:13).

1:21 the day you promised: The poet's spirit was heartened by the belief that God would set up a day when everyone—oppressors and victims—would be judged justly (see Isa 13:6, 9; Jer 46:10-12, 27-28; Amos 5:18-20; Obad 1:15; 1 Thes 5:2-3; 2 Thes 2:2).

1:22 See "Prayers for Vengeance" at Ps 137, p. 1017.

2:1-22 This chapter is an acrostic poem; each verse begins with a successive Hebrew letter (see note on 1:1-22). It graphically portrays the Lord as Jerusalem's destroyer.

2:1 beautiful Jerusalem: Literally the daughter of Zion; also in 2:8, 10, 18. See note on 1:4. • the heights of heaven: Jerusalem's buildings were splendid, adorned with precious metals and jewels. Jerusalem had the reputation of being the sacred city of the Lord. • his Temple (literally his footstool): Cp. 1 Chr 28:2; Ps 99:5; 132:7.

2:2 Israel: Literally Jacob; also in 2:3b. See note on 1:17. • beautiful Jerusalem: Literally the daughter of Judah; also in 2:5.

2:3-4 bends his bow: In the past, the Lord had been a mighty warrior on Israel's behalf (see Exod 14:13-15:21; Josh 23:9-11; Judg 7:1-25; 2 Kgs 19:32-35); now he waged war against Jerusalem (see Isa 63:10; Ezek 24:25). • on beautiful Jerusalem: Literally on the tent of the daughter of Zion.

2:6 A garden shelter was a temporary structure that harvesters put up to provide shade. God had promised to take care of his Temple forever (1 Kgs 9:3), but now it seemed that he had abandoned it.

2:7 The Temple was destroyed because the sins that the priests and the people had committed within its walls had defiled its holiness (cp. Jer 7:3-15; 26:3-6, 12-13; Ezek 24:21).

2:8 Ramparts were stone walls or mounds of earth built around a city to protect it from assault by an enemy army.

9 Jerusalem's gates have sunk into the ground.

He has smashed their locks and bars.
Her kings and princes have been exiled to distant lands;
her law has ceased to exist.
Her prophets receive no more visions from the LORD.

10 The leaders of beautiful Jerusalem sit on the ground in silence.

They are clothed in burlap and throw dust on their heads.
The young women of Jerusalem hang their heads in shame.

11 I have cried until the tears no longer
come;
my heart is broken.

My spirit is poured out in agony as I see the desperate plight of my people.

Little children and tiny babies are fainting and dying in the streets.

12 They cry out to their mothers,
"We need food and drink!"

Their lives ebb away in the streets like the life of a warrior wounded in battle.

They gasp for life
as they collapse in their mothers' arms.

13 What can I say about you?
Who has ever seen such sorrow?
O daughter of Jerusalem,
to what can I compare your anguish?
O virgin daughter of Zion,
how can I comfort you?
For your wound is as deep as the sea.
Who can heal you?

14 Your prophets have said so many foolish things, false to the core.
They did not save you from exile
by pointing out your sins.

Instead, they painted false pictures, filling you with false hope.

15 All who pass by jeer at you.
They scoff and insult beautiful Jerusalem, saying,
"Is this the city called 'Most Beautiful in All the World' and 'Joy of All the Earth'?"

16 All your enemies mock you.
They scoff and snarl and say,
"We have destroyed her at last!
We have long waited for this day,
and it is finally here!"

17 But it is the LORD who did just as he planned.
He has fulfilled the promises of disaster
he made long ago.
He has destroyed Jerusalem without
mercy.
He has caused her enemies to gloat over her and has given them power over her.

18 Cry aloud before the Lord,
O walls of beautiful Jerusalem!
Let your tears flow like a river day and night.
Give yourselves no rest;
give your eyes no relief.

19 Rise during the night and cry out.
Pour out your hearts like water to the Lord.
Lift up your hands to him in prayer,
pleading for your children, for in every street
they are faint with hunger.

20 "O LORD, think about this!
Should you treat your own people this
way?
Should mothers eat their own children, those they once bounced on their knees?

2:9 no more visions: Daniel and Ezekiel were prophets of the Lord who had visions while they lived among the exiles far from the land of Judah (Ezek 1:1; Dan 7:1). This verse refers to prophets in Jerusalem who claimed to have visions that proved to be false.

2:10 Burlap (or sackcloth) was made of goat or camel hair and was often used for grain sacks or for items to be carried on pack animals. Poor people wore it as clothing because it was inexpensive, and people in mourning wore it as a sign of their deep sorrow (its dark color matched their mood, and its roughness matched their discomfort). • Throwing dust on their heads and clothing was a sign to neighbors that a family member had died.

2:13 Who can heal you? Reputed healers and prophets were all liars and frauds (Jer 6:13-14).

2:15 beautiful Jerusalem: Literally the daughter of Jerusalem.

2:16 Their enemies were glad that Jerusalem was defeated.

2:17 promises . . . made long ago: God's promises of blessing were always contingent upon Israel's obedience to the law (Deut 8). He had promised to destroy them if they disobeyed it (Lev 26).

2:18-19 Repentance and prayer are the proper responses when facing the devastation of God's judgment.

2:18 Cry aloud: Literally Their heart cried.

2:20 Jeremiah had predicted that the same cannibalism that occurred during a siege of Samaria (2 Kgs 6:28-29) would happen in Jerusalem (Jer 19:9; see also Lam 4:10; Ezek 5:10; cp. Deut 28:53-57).

Should priests and prophets be killed within the Lord's Temple?

²¹ "See them lying in the streets—young and old,
boys and girls,
killed by the swords of the enemy.
You have killed them in your anger, slaughtering them without mercy.

²² "You have invited terrors from all around, as though you were calling them to a day of feasting.
In the day of the LORD's anger,
no one has escaped or survived.
The enemy has killed all the children whom I carried and raised."

3. HOPE IN THE LORD'S FAITHFULNESS (3:1-66)

3 I am the one who has seen the afflictions that come from the rod of the LORD's anger.

² He has led me into darkness, shutting out all light.

³ He has turned his hand against me again and again, all day long.

⁴ He has made my skin and flesh grow old.
He has broken my bones.

⁵ He has besieged and surrounded me with anguish and distress.

⁶ He has buried me in a dark place, like those long dead.

⁷ He has walled me in, and I cannot escape.
He has bound me in heavy chains.

⁸ And though I cry and shout,
he has shut out my prayers.

⁹ He has blocked my way with a high stone wall;
he has made my road crooked.

¹⁰ He has hidden like a bear or a lion, waiting to attack me.

¹¹ He has dragged me off the path and torn me in pieces,
leaving me helpless and devastated.

¹² He has drawn his bow and made me the target for his arrows.

¹³ He shot his arrows deep into my heart.

¹⁴ My own people laugh at me.
All day long they sing their mocking songs.

¹⁵ He has filled me with bitterness and given me a bitter cup of sorrow to drink.

¹⁶ He has made me chew on gravel.
He has rolled me in the dust.

¹⁷ Peace has been stripped away, and I have forgotten what prosperity is.

¹⁸ I cry out, "My splendor is gone!
Everything I had hoped for from the LORD is lost!"

¹⁹ The thought of my suffering and homelessness is bitter beyond words.

²⁰ I will never forget this awful time,
as I grieve over my loss.

²¹ Yet I still dare to ^ahope when I remember this:

²² The faithful ^blove of the LORD never ends!
His mercies never cease.

²³ Great is his faithfulness;
his mercies begin afresh each morning.

²⁴ I say to myself, "The LORD is my inheritance;
therefore, I will hope in him!"

2:22 calling them to a day of feasting: The poet compares Jerusalem's destruction to an invitation to a banquet at which war, famine, wild animals, and sickness would feast on the wicked in Jerusalem (Deut 28:15-68; cp. Rev 19:17-21).

3:1-66 This chapter is an acrostic poem, the verses in each stanza beginning with a successive letter of the Hebrew alphabet (see note on 1:1-22). In it, the author laments what has happened (3:1-20, 48-54), remembers the faithful love of the Lord (3:21-25), describes how God's people should respond (3:26-47), and calls upon the Lord in prayer (3:55-66).

3:1-24 The author speaks of the suffering of Judah and Jerusalem as his own.

3:6-9 Some understand these verses as a poetic reference to Jeremiah's confinement in a muddy cistern before the destruction of Jerusalem (Jer 38:6-13).

3:9 blocked my way . . . made my road crooked: Sin causes confusion and cuts a person or a community off from a happy future. Innocent people know the future as a straight path that is easy to follow (Prov 21:8). Isaiah imagined God's activities as a parade on a straight road that his worshipers would prepare (Isa 40:3).

3:12 Cp. Job 6:4.

3:19 is bitter beyond words (or is wormwood and gall): Wormwood is a plant with a bitter taste; here it represents the emotional intensity of inner agony (Prov 5:4; Rev 8:11). Gall is a poisonous plant that causes severe physical pain if eaten; it is a powerful symbol for extremely stressful emotions (Deut 29:18; Ps 69:21). The survivor seems to be at a dead end from which he cannot escape.

3:22-33 God's love and faithfulness never cease. Just as God had been faithful in bringing judgment on Jerusalem for their sins, he would be faithful in bringing restoration to those who returned to him.

3:22 The faithful love of the LORD is the basis for the poet's recovery from deep depression. As with Jeremiah in the cistern (Jer 38:6-13) and Jonah in the stomach of the great fish (Jon 2:2-10), the Lord provided salvation from death. • The faithful love of the LORD never ends: As in Syriac version; Hebrew reads The faithful love of the LORD keeps us from destruction.

3:23 God's faithfulness speaks of his absolute reliability, which is evident in his daily mercies. He continually provides a habitable world in which we can live.

3:24 The LORD is my inheritance: The land of Canaan had been regarded as Israel's inheritance since the time of Moses (Exod 15:17; Josh 21:19; 1 Chr

Ps 26:1; 43:1

- 25 The LORD is good to those who depend on him,
to those who search for him.
- 26 So it is good to wait quietly for salvation from the LORD.
- 27 And it is good for people to submit at an early age to the yoke of his discipline:
- 28 Let them sit alone in silence beneath the LORD's demands.
- 29 Let them lie face down in the dust, for there may be hope at last.
- 30 Let them turn the other cheek to those who strike them and accept the insults of their enemies.
- 31 For no one is abandoned by the Lord forever.
- 32 Though he brings grief, he also shows ‘compassion because of the greatness of his unfailing love.
- 33 For he does not enjoy hurting people or causing them sorrow.
- 34 If people crush underfoot all the prisoners of the land, 35 if they deprive others of their rights in defiance of the Most High, 36 if they twist justice in the courts— doesn't the Lord see all these things?
- 37 Who can command things to happen without the Lord's permission?
- 38 Does not the ‘Most High send both calamity and good?
- 39 Then why should we, mere humans, complain when we are punished for our ‘sins?
- 40 Instead, let us test and examine our ways. Let us turn back to the LORD.
- 41 Let us lift our hearts and hands to God in heaven and say, 42 “We have sinned and rebelled, and you have not forgiven us.

- 43 “You have engulfed us with your anger, chased us down, and slaughtered us without mercy.
- 44 You have hidden yourself in a cloud so our prayers cannot reach you.
- 45 You have discarded us as refuse and garbage among the nations.
- 46 “All our enemies have spoken out against us.
- 47 We are filled with fear, for we are trapped, devastated, and ruined.”
- 48 Tears stream from my eyes because of the destruction of my people!
- 49 My tears flow endlessly; they will not stop
- 50 until the LORD looks down from heaven and sees.
- 51 My heart is breaking over the fate of all the women of Jerusalem.
- 52 My enemies, whom I have never harmed, hunted me down like a bird.
- 53 They threw me into a pit and dropped stones on me.
- 54 The water rose over my head, and I cried out, “This is the end!”
- 55 But I called on your name, LORD, from deep within the pit.
- 56 You heard me when I cried, “Listen to my pleading! Hear my cry for help!”
- 57 Yes, you came when I called; you told me, “Do not fear.”
- 58 Lord, you have come to my defense; you have ‘redeemed my life.
- 59 You have seen the wrong they have done to me, LORD. Be my judge, and prove me right.
- 60 You have seen the vengeful plots my enemies have laid against me.

28:8; Ps 47:4), but the true inheritance of God's people is really God himself (see Ps 16:5-6; Eph 1:11; Heb 9:15; 1 Pet 1:3-4).

3:26 Those who are confident of God's plan can wait quietly for him to grant salvation.

3:28 sit alone in silence: Humble submission stops the tongue and quiets the heart.

3:29 In the ancient Near East, lying face down in the dust expressed submission (Gen 17:1-3; Lev 9:24; Josh 7:6; 1 Sam 5:4; 1 Kgs 18:39; 1 Chr 21:16; Matt 17:5-6).

3:30 To turn the other cheek also expresses submission. Jesus evidently had this verse in mind when he taught his disciples to submit to persecution (Matt 5:39). This response sees all suffering as coming from the Lord's hand.

3:31 Cp. Ps 103:8-11.

3:34-36 The people of Judah were doing such things before Jerusalem was destroyed (see Jer 5:26-31; 21:11-14; 23:10-14; Mic 3:1-12).

3:37-39 Some calamities have natural causes (Luke 13:1-5), and bad things happen to the righteous as well as to the wicked (Matt 5:45); whatever happens, we should give thanks (1 Thes 5:18) and not complain.

3:40-42 Repentance is the key to receiving salvation (Isa 1:27; Jer 3:22; Ezek 3:21).

3:48-66 The author focuses on the viciousness of the enemies and cries out to the Lord.

3:52-57 This passage might refer to Jeremiah's experience in the cistern (Jer 37:11-15; 38:1-13).

3:58-66 Jerusalem deserved punishment, but the enemies carried it out with undeserved cruelty. The writer calls upon God to punish them.

- ⁶¹ LORD, you have heard the vile names
they call me.
You know all about the plans they have made.
- ⁶² My enemies whisper and mutter
as they plot against me all day long.
- ⁶³ Look at them! Whether they sit or stand,
I am the object of their mocking songs.
- ⁶⁴ Pay them back, LORD,
for all the evil they have done.
- ⁶⁵ Give them hard and stubborn hearts, and then let your curse fall on them!
- ⁶⁶ Chase them down in your anger, destroying them beneath the LORD's heavens.

4. GOD'S ANGER SATISFIED (4:1-22)

- 4 How the gold has lost its luster!
Even the finest gold has become dull.
The sacred gemstones lie scattered in the streets!
- ² See how the precious children of Jerusalem,
worth their weight in fine gold, are now treated like pots of clay made by a common potter.
- ³ Even the jackals feed their young,
but not my people Israel.
They ignore their children's cries,
like ostriches in the desert.
- ⁴ The parched tongues of their little ones stick to the roofs of their mouths in thirst.
The children cry for bread,
but no one has any to give them.
- ⁵ The people who once ate the richest foods now beg in the streets for anything they can get.
Those who once wore the finest clothes now search the garbage dumps for food.
- ⁶ The guilt of my people is greater than that of Sodom, where utter disaster struck in a moment and no hand offered help.

- ⁷ Our princes once glowed with health—brighter than snow, whiter than milk.
Their faces were as ruddy as rubies, their appearance like fine jewels.
- ⁸ But now their faces are blacker than soot.
No one recognizes them in the streets.
Their skin sticks to their bones;
it is as dry and hard as wood.
- ⁹ Those killed by the sword are better off than those who die of hunger.
Starving, they waste away for lack of food from the fields.
- ¹⁰ Tenderhearted women have cooked their own children.
They have eaten them to survive the siege.
- ¹¹ But now the anger of the LORD is satisfied.
His fierce anger has been poured out.
He started a fire in Jerusalem that burned the city to its foundations.
- ¹² Not a king in all the earth—
no one in all the world—would have believed that an enemy could march through the gates of Jerusalem.
- ¹³ Yet it happened because of the sins of her prophets and the sins of her priests, who defiled the city
by shedding innocent blood.
- ¹⁴ They wandered blindly through the streets, so defiled by blood
that no one dared touch them.
- ¹⁵ "Get away!" the people shouted at them.
"You're defiled! Don't touch us!"
So they fled to distant lands and wandered among foreign nations, but none would let them stay.
- ¹⁶ The LORD himself has scattered them,
and he no longer helps them.
People show no respect for the priests and no longer honor the leaders.

3:64-66 This prayer for vengeance is similar to several psalms (see "Prayers for Vengeance" at Ps 137, p. 1017).

4:1-22 This chapter is an acrostic poem; each verse begins with a successive letter of the Hebrew alphabet (see note on 1:1-22). Although God's people still experience his judgment, they will soon experience restoration.

4:2 precious children of Jerusalem: Literally precious sons of Zion. See note on 1:4.

4:3 like ostriches: See also Job 39:16.

4:6 guilt: Or punishment.

4:7 like fine jewels: (literally like lapis lazuli): Lapis lazuli is a beautiful blue stone that is soft enough to carve. It is often used in decorations and mosaics.

4:8 Skin sticking to bones is symptomatic of the final stages of starvation, just before death.

4:9 Long sieges result in a serious lack of food. Even if people could get to the fields, they would find the crops destroyed or harvested to feed the soldiers.

4:11 in Jerusalem: Hebrew in Zion.

4:12 Not a king . . . could march through the gates of Jerusalem: Since God had delivered Jerusalem from Sennacherib of Assyria more than a century earlier (2 Kgs 19:36-37), Judeans had strongly believed that not even the mightiest king, Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon, could defeat the city.

4:15 It appears that these leaders fled from Jerusalem as refugees to other lands.

Isa 64:9

- 17 We looked in vain for our allies
to come and save us, but we were looking to nations that could not help us.
- 18 We couldn't go into the streets without danger to our lives.
Our end was near; our days were numbered.
We were doomed!
- 19 Our enemies were swifter than eagles in flight.
If we fled to the mountains, they found us.
If we hid in the wilderness,
they were waiting for us there.
- 20 Our king—the LORD's anointed, the very life of our nation—
was caught in their snares.
We had thought that his shadow would protect us against any nation on earth!
- 21 Are you rejoicing in the land of Uz,
O people of Edom?
But you, too, must drink from the cup of the LORD's anger.
You, too, will be stripped naked in your drunkenness.
- 22 O beautiful Jerusalem, your punishment will end;
you will soon return from exile.
But Edom, your punishment is just beginning;
soon your many sins will be exposed.

5. PRAYER FOR RESTORATION (5:1-22)

- 5 LORD, remember what has happened to us.
See how we have been disgraced!
- 2 Our inheritance has been turned over to strangers,
our homes to foreigners.
- 3 We are orphaned and fatherless.
Our mothers are widowed.
- 4 We have to pay for water to drink, and even firewood is expensive.

- 5 Those who pursue us are at our heels;
we are exhausted but are given no rest.
- 6 We submitted to Egypt and Assyria to get enough food to survive.
- 7 Our ancestors sinned, but they have died—and we are suffering the punishment they deserved!
- 8 Slaves have now become our masters;
there is no one left to rescue us.
- 9 We hunt for food at the risk of our lives,
for violence rules the countryside.
- 10 The famine has blackened our skin
as though baked in an oven.
- 11 Our enemies rape the women in Jerusalem
and the young girls in all the towns
of Judah.
- 12 Our princes are being hanged by their thumbs,
and our elders are treated with contempt.
- 13 Young men are led away to work at millstones,
and boys stagger under heavy loads of wood.
- 14 The elders no longer sit in the city gates;
the young men no longer dance and sing.
- 15 Joy has left our hearts;
our dancing has turned to mourning.
- 16 The garlands have fallen from our heads.
Weep for us because we have sinned.
- 17 Our hearts are sick and weary,
and our eyes grow dim with tears.
- 18 For Jerusalem is empty and desolate, a place haunted by jackals.
- 19 But LORD, you remain the same forever!
Your throne continues from generation to generation.
- 20 Why do you continue to forget us?
Why have you abandoned us for so long?
- 21 Restore us, O LORD, and bring us back to you again!
*Give us back the joys we once had!
- 22 Or have you utterly rejected us?
Are you angry with us still?

4:20 Our king . . . was caught: A reference to Zedekiah, who tried to flee but was caught and treated cruelly by Nebuchadnezzar (2 Kgs 25:4-7; Jer 39:4-7; 52:9-11).

4:21-22 The people of Edom were feeling secure and gloating over Jerusalem's misfortune, but they, too, would experience punishment for their sins (see Obad 1:1-21; Jer 49:7-22).

4:21 Uz was an area east of the Jordan River that extended south to Edom. It was Job's home (Job 1:1).

4:22 O beautiful Jerusalem: Literally

O daughter of Zion. See note on 1:4.

* The first return from exile occurred in 538 BC, after Cyrus of Persia defeated Babylon (2 Chr 36:22-23; Ezra 1:1-4).

5:1-22 Unlike the previous chapters, this chapter is not an alphabetic acrostic (see note on 1:1-22). It is a heartfelt prayer for restoration (cp. Dan 9:4-19).

5:10 There was a famine in the city during the siege (2 Kgs 25:3; Jer 37:21; 38:9; 52:6). See note on 4:8.

5:11 in Jerusalem: Hebrew in Zion.

5:12-17 These terrible things happened because the people had sinned (see Isa 24:7-12; Jer 7:24; 13:18; 25:10-11; Amos 8:10).

5:16 The garlands have: Or The crown has.

5:18 Jerusalem: Hebrew Mount Zion. * haunted by jackals: Cp. Isa 13:22; 34:13; Jer 9:11; 10:22; Mal 1:3.

5:22 have you utterly rejected us? The tragedy of the Exile raised the question of whether God would forgive sin and restore his people. God answered clearly through the prophets (Isa 40:27-31; 41:8-20) and by sending Christ (Matt 9:2-6; 26:28; Luke 24:47).

THE BOOK OF Ezekiel

The prophet Ezekiel's book contains strange visions, images, and messages that seem far removed from contemporary life. It is not easy reading, yet its message remains very relevant: God will purify his people and live among them forever. Even during the darkest days, God insisted that he would restore his people. This message offers hope and inspiration not just to the exiled people of Judah, but to all who put their trust in him.

SETTING

The book of Ezekiel was written during the difficult days of Judah's exile in Babylon (605–538 BC). As the Assyrian empire's power waned, the Babylonians gradually became more powerful. They captured the Assyrian capital of Nineveh (612 BC), and Babylonian domination was made complete with the defeat of the last resisting Assyrians at the decisive battle of Carchemish (605 BC). In the same year, the Babylonians raided Judah and took hostages from the upper classes back to Babylon, including Daniel and his three friends (Dan 1:1-5).

In 601 BC, King Jehoiakim of Judah rebelled against the Babylonians, and he died during the ensuing siege (598 BC). His son, Jehoiachin, reigned for only a brief period before he surrendered and was taken to Babylon in 597 BC. The Babylonians also took the prophet Ezekiel and other prominent people into exile and plundered many treasures from the Temple in Jerusalem.

While Ezekiel was in Babylon, the Babylonians placed Jehoiachin's uncle Zedekiah on the throne of Judah. When Zedekiah rebelled against Babylon, the Babylonians ravaged Judah and besieged Jerusalem in January 588 BC. The city was finally breached and destroyed in August 586 BC. The Babylonians forced Zedekiah to watch as they put his sons to death; then he was blinded and taken to Babylon with the other citizens of Judah who had skills useful to their overlords. These exiles remained in Babylon for a generation until the fortunes of the empire changed again (see Ezra).

Ezekiel's first visions took place in Babylon in 593 BC, when he was thirty years old (1:1-2).

SUMMARY

Ezekiel's visions span the years leading up to and following the fall of Jerusalem in 586 BC. Before Jerusalem's fall, Ezekiel delivered the woe-filled message that judgment would come upon the people of Judah. After Jerusalem fell, however, Ezekiel conveyed a new vision of hope: Israel would emerge from the ashes of her past. Although the prophet mourned what had been lost, he dreamed of a bright future when the people would repent of the sins that brought their destruction and the Lord would establish the nation in holiness.

Ezekiel 1–3 tells of Ezekiel's call and commissioning as a prophet. His opening vision tells of the Lord's glory, ominously on the move (1:4-28). With images of motion and judgment, the vision depicts the Lord as the divine warrior in his heavenly chariot, coming to judge his people. During Ezekiel's call (2:1–3:15), the Spirit told him that the stubborn and rebellious people of Judah would not listen to his message. However, the Lord wanted him to be equally stubborn in faithfully delivering his message. Like a watchman (3:16-27), he should sound the alarm clearly and distinctly. God would hold the prophet accountable for delivering the message, not for the people's response.

In chs 4–24, Ezekiel delivers a litany of doom against Judah and Jerusalem. The prophet receives instructions to perform a series of sign acts depicting the coming siege and destruction of Jerusalem (see "Prophetic Sign Acts" at 4:1-17, p. 1319). Ezekiel 8–11 depicts Jerusalem's sins in four scenes of increasing abomination that clearly illustrate the reason for the coming destruction. God's glory departs from the sanctuary, and the Temple is completely destroyed. The poems, oracles, and visions throughout this section cumulatively establish the inevitability and justice of Jerusalem's fall, culminating with the announcement of Nebuchadnezzar's siege of Jerusalem and a final message of the certainty of judgment (ch 24).

Ezekiel then turns toward hope, beginning with seven messages (chs 25–32) that indict the surrounding nations for having assisted the Babylonians and for delighting in Jerusalem's fall. These messages show that the promise God made to Abraham remained intact: "I will . . . curse those who treat you with contempt" (Gen 12:3). God's judgment was to come on all who took pleasure in the downfall of his people and who profited from their demise.

Ezekiel 33–48 completes the movement from judgment to hope, beginning with the decisive moment when the exiles finally hear the news of Jerusalem's fall (33:21). The Lord again commissions the prophet to minister as a watchman, proclaiming judgment on those who refuse to repent and promising life for those who do. Messages of hope promise a new shepherd with a renewed covenant and land where the people will dwell together in unity (chs 34–37).

The dark clouds of war threaten this picture of blessing (chs 38–39), but the Lord simply demonstrates the certainty of the new state of affairs. The Lord gathers the forces of Gog and his allies, not to judge his peacefully settled people, but to smash their enemies once and for all.

After God defeats Gog and his allies, he can reveal the final Temple and the reoriented land (chs 40–48). With architectural, ritual, and geographic imagery, Ezekiel's final vision depicts the same message as the rest of the book: God will raise his people to a new level of holiness so that he can once again dwell in their midst. Those who were faithful in the past receive renewed access to God's presence, while those who were less faithful remain on the margins. A river of life flows out from the final Temple; as it flows, it grows and transforms death into life. God's final words to his people do not warn of abandonment and destruction; rather, they promise fellowship and life.

AUTHORSHIP AND DATE

In the opening verses of the book, the prophet Ezekiel claims that he is the author (1:3), and there is little reason to doubt his claim. The book shows all the interests expected from a priest such as Ezekiel, and the central event of Jerusalem's destruction dominates the book's structure. The prophet most likely wrote the book during the period in which his visions and messages were given (593–570 BC), with the completed composition probably dating shortly after the final message.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

Before 586 BC, both the exiles in Babylon and the people remaining in Judah were convinced that Jerusalem could not fall. They believed that the presence of the Temple and its prescribed rituals would guarantee the city's survival. Ezekiel had to tell them that they were completely wrong. Because the Temple and its rituals were corrupt and the hearts and lives of the people were thoroughly pagan, Jerusalem had to fall.

While all the OT prophets condemned sin and idolatry, perhaps none used quite such sweeping terms as Ezekiel. From their time in Egypt onward, the disobedience of God's people infected every branch of society and encompassed every form of offense against God. God could not ignore or condone such sin and would surely Exile. It is not simply being homeless. Rather, it is knowing that you do have a home, but that your home has been taken over by enemies. Exile. It is not being without roots. On the contrary, it is having deep roots which have now been plucked up, and there you are, with roots dangling, writhing in pain, exposed to a cold and jeering world, longing to be restored to native and nurturing soil.

Exile is knowing precisely where you belong, but knowing that you can't go back, not yet.

judge his people soon. Nothing could save God's city or its people from his judgment.

Following the destruction of Jerusalem, the prophet addressed his people, who were in grave danger of disillusionment and despair. They felt spiritually dead, abandoned by God and cut off from his presence. They said, "Our sins are heavy upon us; we are wasting away! How can we survive?" (33:10). Babylonian deities, who seemed to have triumphed over the Lord, surrounded the people. No one had ever returned home from captivity. Their hopes dashed, they believed they had no choice but to settle in the pagan land of Babylon and become part of its culture.

To these disillusioned people, the prophet delivered a message of God's sovereignty and glory, depicting God as majestic, transcendent, and powerful. The Babylonian gods had certainly not defeated God; rather, the Lord had temporarily abandoned his land and dwelling place because of his people's sin. Although he left the defiled city of Jerusalem, this glorious God did not abandon his people. Instead, he went to the remnant of his people in exile (11:16), where Ezekiel himself first saw the Lord's glory (1:1). God was still controlling all things, even the Babylonian king Nebuchadnezzar's attempts to consult his own gods through divination (21:21-23; cp. Dan 2-4). The Lord had decreed the destruction of Jerusalem for its sins; Nebuchadnezzar simply acted as God's agent.

Destruction did not mark the end of the story for God's people. God had promised to bless Abraham's descendants, making them into a mighty nation and blessing all nations through them. The oracles against the nations surrounding Judah (chs 25-32) demonstrated that God had not forgotten his ancient promise that those who rejoiced at Israel's downfall would themselves be severely judged. God would not forever abandon his people. One day he would return to be their shepherd (34:11); he would transform the land and the people from death into life. God's glory would once again return to the Temple, which would never again be defiled. Further, God would gather his scattered people into his presence and replace the old ways of doing things with new laws and higher standards of holiness. When filled with God's Spirit, the hearts of the people would no longer defile the land with their sins.

Ezekiel points toward a greater revelation of hope fulfilled in Jesus Christ. Through him, God's glory fully dwells in our midst as light in the darkness of our exile (11:16; 43:1-5; John 1:14). The Good Shepherd restores justice for his sheep (34:1-24; John 10:11). He fills us with his Spirit and makes us new creatures in him (36:26-28; 37:1-14; 2 Cor 5:17). Those who have allied themselves with Christ have even greater access to God's presence than Ezekiel's visions anticipated. They are able to approach the throne of grace freely and drink from the life-giving water that flows from the throne (47:1-11; Rev 22:1-5). Everything that Ezekiel anticipated—and more—is ours in Christ.

1. EZEKIEL'S CALL AND COMMISSIONING

(1:1–3:27)

Introduction (1:1–3)

1 On July 31 of my thirtieth year, while I was with the Judean exiles beside the Kebar River in Babylon, the heavens were opened and I saw visions of God. ²This happened during the fifth year of King Jehoiachin's captivity. ³(The LORD gave this message to Ezekiel son of Buzi, a priest, beside the Kebar River in the land of the Babylonians, and he felt the hand of the LORD take hold of him.)

A Vision of Living Beings (1:4–28)

⁴As I looked, I saw a great storm coming from the north, driving before it a huge cloud that flashed with lightning and shone with brilliant light. There was fire inside the cloud, and in the middle of the fire glowed something like gleaming amber. ⁵From the center of the cloud came four living beings that looked human, ⁶except that each had four faces and four wings. ⁷Their legs were straight, and their feet had hooves like those of a calf and shone like burnished bronze. ⁸Under each of their four wings I could see human hands. So each of the four beings had four faces and four wings. ⁹The wings of each living being touched the wings of the beings beside it. Each one moved straight forward in any direction without turning around.

¹⁰Each had a human face in the front, the face of a lion on the right side, the face of an ox on the left side, and the face of an eagle at the back. ¹¹Each had two pairs of outstretched wings—one pair stretched out to touch the wings of the living beings on

1:1–3:27 OT prophetic books often begin with a “call narrative” that gives details of the prophet’s commissioning to his office (e.g., Jer 1:4–19). The prophetic call narrative demonstrated that the prophet’s words were legitimate, showing that he spoke as the Lord’s ambassador. It often introduced themes that his prophecy would address in greater detail, just as the overture to a symphony introduces the musical motifs that form the basis for the composition that follows. The focus of Ezekiel’s call narrative is the Lord’s impending judgment of his people.

1:1–3 The opening verses locate the prophet’s ministry among the exiles from Judah who had been carried off to Babylon.

1:1 On July 31: Literally On the fifth day of the fourth month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar. A number of dates in Ezekiel can be cross-checked with dates in surviving Babylonian records and related accurately to our modern calendar. This event occurred on July 31, 593 bc. • of my thirtieth year (or in the thirtieth year): Priests began to minister in the Jerusalem Temple when they were thirty years old. Ezekiel was a priest (see 1:3), but he was with the Judean exiles . . . in Babylon and was therefore unable to serve in the usual ways. Ezekiel’s identity as a priest in exile is significant to the message that follows. The exiles felt cut off from God and from conventional ways of appealing to him in the Temple. In the ancient world, most gods were closely tied to particular lands, so it was easy for those who were removed from the Promised Land to assume that the Lord was no longer interested in them. That God’s word had come to a prophet among the exiles in Babylon showed that God had not forgotten them and still had a future for them. • The Kebar River was probably a large irrigation canal in the Nippur region southeast of Babylon. The Babylonians had deported the previous occupants because of their Assyrian sympathies and replaced them with exiles from elsewhere in their empire, including Judah. The Babylonians generally resettled peoples by ethnic groups and allowed them to retain their identity, unlike the Assyrians, whose policy of exile was to disperse and scatter populations. This difference later made it possible for the remnant of the exiles of Judah to return to their homeland. Those who had been exiled from the northern kingdom by the Assyrians were not able to return in the same way.

1:2 This happened during the fifth year of King Jehoiachin’s captivity: The word of the Lord first came to Ezekiel in 593 bc, while Judah was still a semi-independent state (see Ezekiel Introduction, “Setting,” p. 1310). Judah had been subjugated by the Babylonians in 597 bc, and King Jehoiachin had been carried into exile in Babylon at that time. Jehoiachin’s uncle, Zedekiah, ruled Judah as a Babylonian vassal (597–586 bc). Ezekiel dates his prophecy with reference to Jehoiachin’s captivity rather than to Zedekiah’s reign because he seems to have viewed Zedekiah as a stand-in for the lawful king, Jehoiachin. Zedekiah later rebelled against Nebuchadnezzar (2 Kgs 24:20), who besieged the city of Jerusalem (588 bc), destroyed it, and burned the Temple (586 bc).

1:3 Ezekiel was a priest by descent and a prophet because the hand of the LORD was upon him. Priests offered sacrifices in the Temple and explained God’s law. Prophets delivered God’s words of blessing or curse to the people and interceded with God for them.

Ezekiel’s ministry included aspects of both priestly and prophetic mediation between God and the Israelites. • Babylonians: Or Chaldeans.

1:4–28 The language of this opening vision is that of theophany, a physical manifestation of God (see note on Deut 1:33). It was difficult for Ezekiel to describe what he saw, as is evident from his frequent use of “looked like,” “something like,” and “seemed.” The overall effect is nonetheless clear and menacing; verbs of motion are combined with symbols of judgment to warn that God’s judgment will inevitably fall upon rebellious Jerusalem.

1:4 I saw a great storm: This language speaks of theophany (see note on 1:4–28) as God appears in judgment. That this fiery presence is coming from the north, the direction from which Israel’s enemies had traditionally come, compounds the perception of danger. God was coming as a mighty warrior, not to rescue his people but to bring judgment against them. • like gleaming amber: Or like burnished metal; also in 1:27.

1:5–9 At the center of the fiery cloud were four living beings, each having four faces and four wings. Four is a number of completeness; these composite creatures summed up the created order.

1:10 Each had the face of a lion, the greatest of the wild animals; the face of an ox, the greatest of domestic animals; the face of an eagle, the greatest of the birds; and a human face, representing the pinnacle of creation. The guardians of Mesopotamian palaces also combined features of these same four creatures (though not the four faces).

1:11–14 These fiery creatures had both wings and legs, enabling them to move like . . . lightning in any direction. No

¹³The living beings looked like bright coals of fire or brilliant torches, and lightning seemed to flash back and forth among them. ¹⁴And the living beings darted to and fro like flashes of lightning.

The presence and absence of God's glory is a central theme in Ezekiel. The opening vision depicts God's glory as powerful and majestic. In earlier times, this visible glory was the sign of God's presence among his people (see Exod 40:34; 1 Kgs 8:10-11). Now God's glory appears to the prophet Ezekiel while he is exiled in Babylon.

The reason for that shift becomes clear in Ezekiel's vision of chs 8-11, in which he sees the abominations that had polluted the Temple in Jerusalem and forced God's glory to depart. Without God's presence, the Temple had become an empty shell awaiting destruction. God was not evicted by the superior might of the Babylonian army; he departed because his people were defiled. Their sin drove him away from the land he had promised to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. For a time, the Lord went from Jerusalem to Babylon to become a sanctuary for the exiles there (see 11:16).

God would not abandon his people forever. After pouring out his wrath in full measure on their sin, he would restore a remnant to their land and sanctify them by his Spirit so that he could once again dwell in their midst in a new sanctuary (37:26). God's glory, dwelling among his people forever (43:1-5), is at the heart of Ezekiel's vision of their restoration. Never again would God abandon them.

The glory of God has come to us fully in the person of Jesus Christ. As John testifies, "We have seen his glory, the glory of the Father's one and only Son" (John 1:14). The aged Simeon saw the baby Jesus brought to the Temple and described him as "a light to reveal God to the nations, and . . . the glory of your people Israel" (Luke 2:32). Jesus' glory was veiled while he was on earth, though for a moment on the Mount of Transfiguration his radiance was revealed to his closest disciples (Matt 17:2). He experienced his own abandonment by God as he hung on the cross, bearing the curse for our sin (Matt 27:46). Now, as the exalted and glorified Lord, he sits at God's right hand (Eph 1:20). By his Spirit, he has promised never to abandon us, but to be with us to the end of time (Matt 28:20).

one could run away from such fearsome beasts. In the similar vision of ch 10, they are identified as cherubim, agents of divine judgment.

1:15 The living creatures were not the only cause for fear—in their midst, Ezekiel saw four wheels that were part of a divine war chariot. Chariots were among the most feared weapons of war in the ancient world.

1:16-17 It would be impossible to build a physical chariot in which each wheel had a second wheel turning crosswise within it. This picture depicts a chariot that could travel equally well in any direction, symbolizing God's freedom of movement in judgment.

1:18 The wheels were tall and frightening, and they were covered with eyes (cp. 10:12). There was no more hope of hiding from this chariot than of running from it.

1:19-21 The chariot was infused with the spirit of the living beings, and the whole assembly moved as a single entity.

1:22-25 The surface like the sky, glittering like crystal separated the realm of God's presence (heaven) from the realm of humanity (earth). References to the sky, the cherubim (see note on 1:11-14), and the rainbow (1:28) remind us of the opening chapters of Genesis and suggest that the narrative about to unfold concerns the destruction of what God had created, followed by its re-creation. Just as God destroyed the world he had made with a flood and then restored it through Noah, Ezekiel's world was also being unmade and restored.

stretched out to touch the others' wings, and each had two wings covering its body. ²⁴As they flew, their wings sounded to me like waves crashing against the shore or like the voice of the Almighty or like the shouting of a mighty army. When they stopped, they let down their wings. ²⁵As they stood with wings lowered, a voice spoke from beyond the crystal surface above them.

²⁶Above this surface was something that looked like a ^athrone made of blue lapis lazuli. And on this ^athrone high above was a figure whose appearance resembled a man. ²⁷From what appeared to be his waist up, he looked like gleaming amber, flickering like a fire. And from his waist down, he looked like a burning flame, shining with splendor. ²⁸All around him was a glowing halo, like a rainbow shining in the clouds on a rainy day. This is what the glory of the LORD looked like to me. When I saw it, I fell face down on the ground, and I heard someone's voice speaking to me.

Ezekiel's Call (2:1–3:15)

2 “Stand up, ^bson of man,” said the voice. “I want to speak with you.” ²The Spirit came into me as he spoke, and he set me on my feet. I listened carefully to his words.

³“Son of man,” he said, “I am sending you to the nation of Israel, a rebellious nation that has rebelled against me. They and their ancestors have been rebelling against me to this very day. ⁴They are a stubborn and hard-hearted people. But I am sending you to say to them, ‘This is what the Sovereign LORD says!’ ⁵And whether they listen or refuse to listen—for remember, they are rebels—at least they will know they have had a prophet among them.

⁶“Son of man, do not fear them or their words. Don't be afraid even though their threats surround you like nettles and briers and stinging scorpions. Do not be dismayed by their dark scowls, even though they are rebels. ⁷You must give them my messages whether they listen or not. But they won't listen, for they are completely rebellious! ⁸Son of man, listen to what I say to you. Do not join them in their rebellion. Open your mouth, and eat what I give you.”

⁹Then I looked and saw a hand reaching out to me. It held a scroll, ¹⁰which he unrolled. And I saw that both sides were covered with funeral songs, words of sorrow, and pronouncements of doom.

1:24 the Almighty: Hebrew Shaddai.

1:26-27 On the throne of God was a figure whose appearance resembled a man. Ezekiel's ability to describe the scene was overwhelmed by the magnificence of the sight. This human form revealed the Lord's overpoweringly radiant glory that had once filled the Tabernacle and the Temple as a visible manifestation of God's presence (cp. Dan 7:9-10; Rev 1:12-17). While God's awesome presence in human form comforts his faithful people, it signifies inevitable judgment for those who are disobeying him. This vision presages God's coming to earth as a man in Jesus Christ.

1:28 rainbow shining in the clouds: This image combines the prospect of judgment with a note of mercy. The storm clouds were going to drop a full load of judgment on God's sinful people, but a rainbow, the sign of hope that God established after the flood (Gen 9:12-17), would appear also. Although the destruction of Jerusalem and the exile of its people to Babylon would be a severe catastrophe in which many would die, God would not forget his promise to keep a remnant alive. Judgment would not be God's final word. • When Ezekiel saw the glory of the Lord, he fell face down on the ground as though dead—a common human response to God's glory (cp. Lev 9:23-24; Num 22:31; 1 Kgs 18:38-39; 1 Chr 21:16; 2 Chr 7:1-3; Matt 17:5-6).

2:1-10 Being a prophet was neither a career choice nor an occupation passed down from father to son like the priesthood. God called prophets to their task, and the story of their call is often included in their writings (see, e.g., Isa 6:1-13; Jer 1:4-19; Jon 1:1-2).

2:1-2 Stand up: God empowered Ezekiel by the Spirit so that he was able to obey this command as God set him on his feet. What God would later do for the people as a whole (cp. 37:4-10), he did first for the prophet.

2:3 The Lord addressed Ezekiel regularly as son of man (Hebrew ben-'adam, “son of Adam”). This phrase reminded Ezekiel that he was profoundly different from the heavenly beings before whom he stood. In contrast to them, he was a child of the dust, a mere mortal. It also marked him out from the nation of Israel (literally the sons of Israel). They were a rebellious nation, true descendants of Jacob, whose defining characteristic was striving with God and man (Gen 32:28). As a son of Adam, Ezekiel represented a new community of faith, empowered by the Spirit to form a life of radical obedience. He was a sign of hope to the exiles. Jesus is the ultimate son of man who combines in himself the human aspect of the title with the exalted heavenly aspect (Dan 7:13-14; Rev 1:13-20). By obeying where Adam failed, Jesus became the first member of God's new community of faith. All other children of Adam find hope in him.

2:4-5 Israel was stubborn and hard-hearted—they would not heed Ezekiel, whose message would bear little immediate fruit. However, they would know that they had a prophet among them who was speaking God's word.

2:6 Ezekiel's ministry would be as painful as traversing a thicket of nettles and briers and stinging scorpions.

2:7 Ezekiel would not be accountable for the people's response to the message, only for his own faithful delivery of God's word.

2:8 Ezekiel must not resemble the disobedient and rebellious people around him. The first Adam disobeyed God's command not to eat the apparently desirable fruit of knowledge (Gen 2:17); Ezekiel was to obey by eating the apparently undesirable words of God.

2:9–3:1 There was so much judgment on the scroll that both sides were covered with writing. Ezekiel had to declare the curses for covenant breaking (Deut 28:15-68) to a rebellious people (cp. Zech 5:2-4). The scroll covered with messages of judgment is an apt image of the content of chs 1–24.

⁴Then he said, "Son of man, go to the people of Israel and give them my messages. ⁵I am not sending you to a foreign people whose language you cannot understand. ⁶No, I am not sending you to people with strange and difficult speech. If I did, they would listen! ⁷But the people of Israel won't listen to you any more than they listen to me! ¹⁴The Spirit lifted me up and took me away. I went in bitterness and turmoil, but the LORD's hold on me was strong. ¹⁵Then I came to the colony of Judean exiles in Tel-abib,

Ezekiel the Prophet (2:1-10; 24:15-27)

Ezekiel, a priest and prophet (1:3), was born around 623 bc, was probably raised in Jerusalem, and was married (24:16-18). He went into exile in Babylon with Jehoiachin in 597 bc, where he lived by the Kebar River. He was called to be a prophet in Babylon on July 31, 593 bc (1:1). All we know of his personal life is from the book named after him.

Among the prophets, Ezekiel's speech and actions are perhaps the most surprising. Ezekiel often reinforced his prophetic words with strange actions, such as illustrating his message about the dire lack of food in the final siege of Jerusalem by eating food cooked over dung (4:12). Another time, he lay motionless for 430 days, one day for each year of Israel's and Judah's sin (4:4-7). When Ezekiel's wife died suddenly during the Exile, he was forbidden to mourn her in public (24:16-18). Her death was a solemn warning of what would happen in Judah (24:15-27). Ezekiel's strange actions were designed to grab people's attention.

At first, Ezekiel's messages were rejected, but his prophecies were later vindicated as they began to come true and the nation was purged of idolatry. His teaching emphasized holiness, purity, resurrection, and the ritual law. His message of hope encouraged the exiles to remain faithful during the dark hours of their captivity, and after their return it kept them looking toward a greater fulfillment.

The circumstances of Ezekiel's death are unknown, and he is not mentioned elsewhere in the OT. The NT has over 60 references to Ezekiel's prophecies, mostly in the book of Revelation. Ezekiel's prophetic vision extended beyond his immediate future to the final judgment and the great hope of heaven.

3:2-3 Although the scroll looked bitter, Ezekiel found it as sweet as honey when he ate it. Adam's disobedience turned bitter, but Ezekiel's obedience became pleasant and satisfying. Psalm 119:103 also describes God's words as "sweeter than honey."

3:4-7 Ezekiel was sent to God's people, the people of Israel, whom one would expect to be eager to listen to the Lord. However, it would have been easier for the prophet if he had been sent to people with strange and difficult speech who could not understand him. This hard-hearted community refused to obey the Lord.

3:8-9 God would make Ezekiel as thoroughly persistent in presenting God's message as the people were in rejecting it.

3:10 Ezekiel first had to internalize God's messages himself before delivering them to the exiles among whom he lived.

3:11 whether they listen to you or not: The Lord's message was not subject to debate, negotiation, or rejection; things would happen as he said.

3:12 May the glory of the LORD be praised in his place! In the Hebrew text, this exclamation of praise is odd in both placement and grammar. With the emendation of a single Hebrew letter, a possible reading is as the glory of the LORD rose from its place.

3:14-15 The Spirit lifted me up: Ezekiel was brought back from his visionary experience to the ordinary world of the exiles. Ezekiel regularly experienced the powerful impact of the Spirit's transporting him to another location (see also 8:3; 11:1, 24; 40:1-3; 43:5). • After the Spirit departed from him, Ezekiel experienced the conflicting emotions associated with his commission. As a prophet who spoke for God, he began to feel the bitterness and turmoil of God's anger against the sins of his people.

3:15 The exact location of Tel-abib in Babylonia has not been determined. • As one of the exiles, Ezekiel was overwhelmed by the prospect of this fearsome judgment. As with Job's beside the Kebar River. I was overwhelmed and sat among them for seven days.

Ezekiel's Commission as Watchman (3:16-27)

¹⁶After seven days the LORD gave me a message. He said, ¹⁷"Son of man, I have appointed you as a watchman for Israel. Whenever you receive a message from me, warn people immediately. ¹⁸If I warn the wicked, saying, 'You are under the penalty of death,' but you fail to deliver the warning, they will die in their sins. And I will hold you responsible for their deaths. ¹⁹If you warn them and they refuse to repent and keep on sinning, they will die in their sins. But you will have saved yourself because you obeyed me.

²⁰"If righteous people turn away from their righteous behavior and ignore the obstacles I put in their way, they will die. And if you do not warn them, they will die in their sins. None of their righteous acts will be remembered, and I will hold you responsible for their deaths. ²¹But if you warn righteous people not to sin and they listen to you and do not sin, they will live, and you will have saved yourself, too."

²²Then the LORD took hold of me and said, "Get up and go out into the valley, and I will speak to you there." ²³So I got up and went, and there I saw the glory of the LORD, just as I had seen in my first vision by the Kebar River. And I fell face down on the ground.

²⁴Then the Spirit came into me and set me on my feet. He spoke to me and said, "Go to your house and shut yourself in. ²⁵There, son of man, you will be tied with ropes so you cannot go out among the people. ²⁶And I will make your tongue stick to the roof of your mouth so that you will be speechless and unable to rebuke them, for they are rebels. ²⁷But when I give you a message, I will loosen your tongue and let you speak. Then you will say to them, 'This is what the Sovereign LORD says!' Those who choose to listen will listen, but those who refuse will refuse, for they are rebels.

counselors, no words were possible at first, and he sat silently for seven days (see Job 2:13).

3:16-19 Ezekiel was called to be a watchman, a familiar image for OT prophets (see Isa 56:10; Jer 6:17; Hos 9:8). The watchman was a lookout for the community. He was responsible for providing advance warning of approaching enemies so that the people could take refuge in time. In this case, the enemy they had to fear was not a human invader but God. As difficult as his task was, the blood of those he failed to warn would be on his head if he remained silent.

3:20-21 The prophet spoke to two classes of people, the righteous and the wicked. Ezekiel was to address his message indiscriminately, for both the righteous and the wicked would be judged on the basis of their response to his words (cp. Matt 13:3-9, 18-23). Those who heeded him would receive life; those who rejected his message would receive death, even if they had previously been righteous. Faith in the Lord's word through his prophet was the sole criterion that divided those who would live from those who would die.

3:22-23 The Lord summoned Ezekiel out into the valley, into a wilderness that was away from other people. • Although this was the second time he had seen the glory of the LORD, it was not something to which Ezekiel had grown accustomed. Its awesome magnificence prostrated him.

3:24-25 Ezekiel was God's prisoner, shut . . . in his house and tied with ropes. It is not clear whether these were literal ropes used to express the hostility of his fellow exiles toward the prophet, or a vivid image of their opposition and his restricted mobility among them. His complete captivity was striking, including the limitation placed on his speech (3:26-27); it would be a sign to the people.

3:26-27 Even Ezekiel's tongue was under arrest, bound to the roof of his mouth except when God freed it to speak his words of judgment. He was not physiologically incapable of speaking, but his communication was so restricted by God that he could only deliver the message of disaster that God gave him; all other speech was prohibited. This made Ezekiel's role more limited than that of most prophets, who were free to intercede for and mediate between God and his people. Ezekiel could not speak on their behalf because the time for dialogue between

God and his people had passed. No further appeal was possible against the coming judgment. Ezekiel's speech would be restricted until the news of Jerusalem's fall arrived (24:27). At that point, with the completion of God's judgment on his people, the prophet's tongue would be freed to intercede for them again.

4:1-24:27 In words and in mimed actions, the prophet Ezekiel declared the certainty of impending judgment on Jerusalem. God's people, having broken the terms of the Lord's covenant with them at Mount Sinai, now faced the curses of death and destruction that were attached to that covenant. Only after these curses had taken effect could there be any hope for the future.

4:1-7:27 These chapters focus on words and actions that proclaim doom to the city of Jerusalem (chs 4-5) and to the surrounding land of Judah (chs 6-7).

4:1-2 The first of Ezekiel's sign acts (see "Prophetic Sign Acts" at 4:1-17, facing page) was to create a detailed tableau depicting Jerusalem . . . under siege.

4:3 The prophet was to take on the role of God in this dramatic scene. The iron griddle set up between him and the city showed that Jerusalem had cut itself off from God. Meanwhile, the prophet was

Sign Act 2: The Prone Prophet

⁴"Now lie on your left side and place the sins of Israel on yourself. You are to bear their sins for the number of days you lie there on your side. ⁵I am requiring you to bear Israel's sins for 390 days—one day for each year of their sin. ⁶After that, turn over and lie on your right side for 40 days—one day for each year of Judah's sin.

⁷"Meanwhile, keep staring at the siege of Jerusalem. Lie there with your arm bared and prophesy her destruction. ⁸I will tie you up with ropes so you won't be able to turn from side to side until the days of your siege have been completed.

Sign Act 3: The Defiled Bread

⁹"Now go and get some wheat, barley, beans, lentils, millet, and emmer wheat, and mix them together in a storage jar. Use them to make bread for yourself during the 390 days you will be lying on your side. ¹⁰Ration this out to yourself, eight ounces of food for each day, and eat it at set times. ¹¹Then measure out a jar of water for each day, and drink it at set times. ¹²Prepare and eat this food as you would barley cakes. While all the people are watching, bake it over a fire using dried human dung as fuel and then eat the bread." ¹³Then the LORD said, "This is how Israel will eat defiled bread in the Gentile lands to which I will banish them!"

Ezekiel frequently behaved in unusual, even outlandish, ways. His actions were strange even in ancient Israel, not just from a modern perspective. Unlike modern readers, however, who might think that the prophet was psychologically disturbed, ancient observers understood these sign acts as a regular part of a prophet's communication style. Sign acts were dramatic visual aids performed in public to increase the impact of the message and help people feel the truth as much as hear it. Their purpose was to drive the message unforgettably into people's hearts.

Other prophets of Israel and Judah also performed sign acts (see Isa 20:2-6; Jer 13:1-11), but Ezekiel was required to act out his message more frequently than any other (see 4:1-8, 9-17; 5:1-4; 6:11-12; 12:3-16, 17-20; 21:19-22; 24:15-27; 37:16-26), perhaps because he was communicating to a particularly hardened audience (2:6). The sign acts reinforced the content of his message and underlined the depth of his personal commitment to it. For example, after he swallowed the word of God (2:8-3:3), Ezekiel embodied it for the exiles (3:4-9) in a series of judgment scenes (chs 4-6). This dramatic form of communication is difficult for even a hostile audience to ignore or forget.

The ultimate sign act is the cross of Jesus Christ (see Matt 27:32-54). There God visibly depicted his wrath against sin in the darkness, the earthquake, and the agony of the sinless one who was apparently abandoned by his Father. God also depicted his profound love for the world in that he would rather die than let his people go. The cross is a confrontational message of God's love and wrath that is hard to ignore or forget.

to turn his face aggressively toward the city, showing that God's attention had not flagged but that he was implacably determined to destroy Jerusalem in the coming siege.

4:4-8 The prophet's second sign act was related to the first, but this time he was to act the roles of both God and victims of the siege. As a siege victim, he was tied up with ropes (4:8) and confined to a single position. Possibly Ezekiel was not confined continually during this 14-month period, but performed this sign on a daily basis. As Ezekiel represented Israel, he was to bear Israel's sins symbolically by lying on one side, without bringing atonement and forgiveness to Israel.

4:4-5 Israel indicates the whole covenant community, not just the northern kingdom. The number 390 has been interpreted in various ways. A likely explanation is that 390 represents years, perhaps from early in Solomon's reign (971-931 BC) to the destruction of Jerusalem (586 BC; see 2 Kgs 25:3-7).

4:6 Judah was the community of those in exile, whose sojourn outside the land was represented by the symbolic figure of 40 years. They were a lost generation, just like the generation that spent 40 years in the wilderness for their sin (Num 14:34). • The 430 days of Ezekiel's confinement (cp. 4:5) parallel the 430 years that Israel spent in Egypt (Exod 12:40), hinting that there would be a new exodus at the end of the Exile.

4:7 Throughout the depiction, Ezekiel

continued to represent God. With his arm bared, he stared at the siege of Jerusalem and prophesied her destruction.

4:9-17 The near-starvation diet of eight ounces (Hebrew 20 shekels [228 grams]) of food and a jar (Hebrew $\frac{1}{4}$ of a hin [about 1 pint or 0.6 liters]) of water for each day represent siege rations and reflect a desperate situation in which there was not enough of any one kind of grain to make a whole loaf.

4:12-13 Cooking over human dung would render the bread ceremonially unclean, thus defiling Ezekiel when he ate it. The Israelites had to eat defiled bread in exile, when it was extremely difficult to observe kosher dietary laws. They would be unclean and cut off from the cleansing presence of the Lord.

¹⁴Then I said, "O Sovereign LORD, must I be defiled by using human dung? For I have never been defiled before. From the time I was a child until now I have never eaten any animal that died of sickness or was killed by other animals. I have never eaten any meat forbidden by the law."

¹⁵"All right," the LORD said. "You may bake your bread with cow dung instead of human dung." ¹⁶Then he told me, "Son of man, I will make food very scarce in Jerusalem. It will be weighed out with great care and eaten fearfully. The water will be rationed out drop by drop, and the people will drink it with dismay. ¹⁷Lacking food and water, people will look at one another in terror, and they will waste away under their punishment.

Sign Act 4: The Shaved Prophet

5"Son of man, take a sharp sword and use it as a razor to shave your head and beard. Use a scale to weigh the hair into three equal parts. ²Place a third of it at the center of your map of Jerusalem. After acting out the siege, burn it there. Scatter another third across your map and chop it with a sword. Scatter the last third to the wind, for I will scatter my people with the sword. ³Keep just a bit of the hair and tie it up in your robe. ⁴Then take some of these hairs out and throw them into the fire, burning them up. A fire will then spread from this remnant and destroy all of Israel.

The Sign Acts Interpreted

⁵"This is what the Sovereign LORD says: This is an illustration of what will happen to Jerusalem. I placed her at the center of the nations, ⁶but she has rebelled against my regulations and decrees and has been even more wicked than the surrounding nations.

She has refused to obey the regulations and decrees I gave her to follow.

⁷"Therefore, this is what the Sovereign LORD says: You people have behaved worse than your neighbors and have refused to obey my decrees and regulations. You have not even lived up to the standards of the nations around you. ⁸Therefore, I myself, the Sovereign LORD, am now your enemy. I will punish you publicly while all the nations watch. ⁹Because of your detestable idols, I will punish you like I have never punished anyone before or ever will again. ¹⁰Parents will eat their own children, and children will eat their parents. I will punish you and scatter to the winds the few who survive.

¹¹"As surely as I live, says the Sovereign LORD, I will cut you off completely. I will show you no pity at all because you have defiled my Temple with your vile images and detestable sins. ¹²A third of your people will die in the city from disease and famine. A third of them will be slaughtered by the enemy outside the city walls. And I will scatter a third to the winds, chasing them with my sword. ¹³Then at last my anger will be spent, and I will be satisfied. And when my fury against them has subsided, all Israel will know that I, the LORD, have spoken to them in my jealous anger.

¹⁴"So I will turn you into a ruin, a mockery in the eyes of the surrounding nations and to all who pass by. ¹⁵You will become an object of mockery and taunting and horror. You will be a warning to all the nations around you. They will see what happens when the LORD punishes a nation in anger and rebukes it, says the LORD.

¹⁶"I will shower you with the deadly arrows of famine to destroy you. The famine will become more and more severe until

4:14-15 The prophet protested that he had never eaten anything unclean. The Lord relented, allowing Ezekiel to cook his food over cow dung and to follow the law regarding disposal of human excrement (see Deut 23:12-14).

5:1-4 The prophet was required to perform two further sign acts. First, he used a sharp sword . . . as a razor to shave his head and beard, tangibly demonstrating the destruction described in ch 4 (cp. Isa 7:20). Shaving off a man's hair implied the loss of his manhood and was a gesture of dishonor (see 2 Sam 10:4-5). Second, Ezekiel weighed the hair he had shaved off into three equal parts to show that God's measured judgment would take three different forms.

5:2 Ezekiel was to burn one third of the hair to represent those who would die of famine during the siege. He was to chop another third of the hair with a sword to represent those who would die violent deaths. He was to scatter the final third to the wind to represent those who would be sent into exile.

5:3-4 Ezekiel was to tie just a bit of the hair in his robe to show that a remnant would be safe, but even some of them would die in the fire of exile. Few would survive the multiple catastrophes about to befall God's people.

5:5-6 The reason for God's judgment on his people is made abundantly clear: Israel had broken its covenant relationship with God.

5:7-13 The covenant between God and his people underlies Ezekiel's messages (see "The Purpose of God's Covenant" at Exod 19:3-6, p. 157). In stating the charges against his fellow Israelites, Ezekiel explicitly draws from the language of the covenant that was made on Mount Sinai and renewed in Deuteronomy. Israel's refusal to obey God's decrees and regulations, especially in their worship of detestable idols that defiled the Lord's Temple, contravened God's requirements (cp. Lev 26:1-2, 14-15). Consequently, the curses for disobeying the Lord (Lev 26:16-43; Deut 28:15-68) would now come into effect.

5:10 Parents will eat their own children: This horrific prospect was an anticipated consequence of famine (see 2 Kgs 6:26-30), and one of the curses of disobedience (see Lev 26:29).

Judgment against Israel's Mountains

6 Again a message came to me from the LORD: ²"Son of man, turn and face the mountains of Israel and prophesy against them. ³Proclaim this message from the Sovereign LORD against the mountains of Israel. This is what the Sovereign LORD says to the mountains and hills and to the ravines and valleys: I am about to bring war upon you, and I will smash your pagan shrines. ⁴All your altars will be demolished, and your places of worship will be destroyed. I will kill your people in front of your idols. ⁵I will lay your corpses in front of your idols and scatter your bones around your altars. ⁶Wherever you live there will be desolation, and I will destroy your pagan shrines. Your altars will be demolished, your idols will be smashed, your places of worship will be torn down, and all the religious objects you have made will be destroyed. ⁷The place will be littered with corpses, and you will know that I alone am the LORD.

⁸"But I will let a few of my people escape destruction, and they will be scattered among the nations of the world. ⁹Then when they are exiled among the nations, they will remember me. They will recognize how hurt I am by their unfaithful hearts and lustful eyes that long for their idols. Then at last they will hate themselves for all their detestable sins. ¹⁰They will know that I alone am the LORD and that I was serious when I said I would bring this calamity on them.

¹¹"This is what the Sovereign LORD says: Clap your hands in horror, and stamp your feet. Cry out because of all the detestable sins the people of Israel have committed. Now they are going to die from war and famine and disease. ¹²Disease will strike down those who are far away in exile. War will destroy those who are nearby. And anyone who survives will be killed by famine. So at last I will spend my fury on them. ¹³They will know that I am the LORD when their dead lie scattered among their idols and altars on every hill and mountain and under every green tree and every great shade tree—the places where they offered sacrifices to their idols. ¹⁴I will crush them and make their cities desolate from the wilderness in the south to Riblah in the north. Then they will know that I am the LORD."

The Coming of the End

7 Then this message came to me from the LORD: ²"Son of man, this is what the Sovereign LORD says to Israel:

"The end is here!
Wherever you look—

6:1-14 The two oracles of judgment in this chapter (6:2-10 and 6:11-14) present two alternatives—a positive future through repentance, or continued rebellion and a dark future of total annihilation. Either way, the Lord's power and holiness would be manifested.

6:1-3 The circle of judgment broadened out from Jerusalem to include the mountains of Israel, which were Israel's political heartland. This territory had belonged to Israel continuously since the time of Joshua, and it had been infected by idolatry. The hill country had become home to many pagan shrines (literally high places)—raised stone platforms that often housed idols or became the location for sacrifices and pagan festivities. Most predated Israel's entry into the land, and God had commanded Israel to destroy them (Deut 12:2-3). However, in many cases, the Israelites had permitted them to remain in place, and the political and religious leaders had ignored or even encouraged those who worshiped there.

6:4-7 The corpses and bones of the dead worshipers scattered around an altar would defile the altar and make it unfit for use. • idols: The Hebrew term (literally round things) probably alludes to dung; also in 6:5, 6, 9, 13. This word occurs forty-eight times in the OT, and thirty-nine of the occurrences are found in Ezekiel—all of them in reference to idols. When used in this way, it is a term of strong derision.

6:8-10 A remnant would be scattered among the nations of the world to bear witness to God's faithfulness to his covenant. They would recognize the reality of their own unfaithful hearts and hate themselves for all their detestable sins, and they will know that God's threat of calamity on covenant breakers was absolutely serious. Some of those who know that I alone am the Lord might even experience the other side of God's faithfulness: his swiftness to forgive those who repent. In the book of Exodus, Israel came to know that God is the Lord through his mighty acts of rescue (see Exod 6:7). Unfortunately, their behavior showed that they had forgotten. They would come again to that knowledge through God's acts of judgment.

6:11 Ezekiel's message did not end on the encouraging thought of possible repentance. He returned to the theme of judgment with its three-fold calamity of war and famine and disease.

6:12 anyone who survives: See 5:3-4.

6:13-14 Riblah: As in some Hebrew manuscripts; most Hebrew manuscripts read Diblah. The symbols for "r" and "d" are easily confused in Hebrew; Riblah was located on the northern border of Israel and is well known from other biblical books. At Riblah, Nebuchadnezzar set up his tribunal and executed the sons of Zedekiah and many other leading citizens of Judah (2 Kgs 25:6, 21).

7:1-27 Chapter 7 contains three messages of doom (7:3-4, 5-9, 10-27). They reminded Judah that their forthcoming destruction was not a random twist of fate but an act of the Lord's judgment.

7:1-2 As the prophet unfolded his message, the scope of the threatened judgment kept increasing, like ripples spreading outward from a stone dropped into a pond. Now the judgment he announced was not just for Israel, as in ch 6, but against the whole

- east, west, north, or south—your land is finished.
- ³ No hope remains, for I will unleash my anger against
you.
I will call you to account
for all your detestable sins.
- ⁴ I will turn my eyes away and show no pity.
I will repay you for all your detestable
sins.
Then you will know that I am the LORD.
- ⁵ "This is what the Sovereign LORD says:
Disaster after disaster is coming your way!
- ⁶ The end has come.
It has finally arrived.
Your final doom is waiting!
- ⁷ O people of Israel, the day of your destruction is dawning.
The time has come; the day of trouble is near.
Shouts of anguish will be heard on the mountains,
not shouts of joy.
- ⁸ Soon I will pour out my fury on you and unleash my anger against you.
I will call you to account
for all your detestable sins.
- ⁹ I will turn my eyes away and show no pity.
I will repay you for all your detestable
sins.
Then you will know that it is I, the LORD,
who is striking the blow.
- ¹⁰ "The day of judgment is here;
your destruction awaits!
The people's wickedness and ^dpride have blossomed to full flower.
- ¹¹ Their violence has grown into a rod that will beat them for their wickedness.

- None of these proud and wicked people will survive.
All their wealth and prestige will be swept away.
- ¹² Yes, the time has come;
the day is here!
Buyers should not rejoice over bargains,
nor sellers grieve over losses,
for all of them will fall
under my terrible anger.
- ¹³ Even if the merchants survive,
they will never return to their business.
For what God has said applies to everyone—
it will not be changed!
Not one person whose life is twisted by sin
will ever recover.
- ¹⁴ "The trumpet calls Israel's army to mobilize,
but no one listens,
for my fury is against them all.
- ¹⁵ There is war outside the city and disease and famine within.

land, east, west, north, or south. This global judgment upon God's people would be tantamount to the end of the world. Judgment was no longer imminent, as in the previous oracles; it had arrived.

7:3-4 There was no hope that God would change his mind. • Then you will know that I am the LORD: When they received exactly what they deserved, the people would recognize the Lord's power and holiness.

7:5-9 A second message reiterates the personal nature of the coming judgment. The people would not simply know that God is the Lord, as in 7:4. The Lord, who once showed himself to his people as "the Lord who heals you" (Exod 15:26), had now become "the Lord who strikes you." The day of the Lord had come (Joel 1:15; Amos 5:18-20).

7:10 blossomed to full flower: In their wickedness and pride, the people of Israel were ripe to be plucked (cp. Amos 8:1-2).

7:11 Their violence has grown into a rod that will beat them: God would use their own violence to punish them by giving them over to internal strife and conflict (cp. Prov 6:27). Wealth and prestige could not save them against the coming torrent of destruction.

7:12-27 Comprehensive judgment is depicted in two parallel panels, 7:12-18 and 7:19-27. Each begins with the futility of material gain in view of this impending judgment and moves through the arrival of war and its associated horrors to a declaration of universal ineffectiveness, terror, and mourning.

7:12-13 Commercial transactions would lose their meaning. There would be no such thing as a good deal or a bad deal; buyers and sellers alike would face God's terrible anger.

7:14 When Israel sounded the trumpet in holy war, the troops would not rally and the enemy would not be terrified, as in the past (see Num 10:9; Josh 6:4-20; Judg 6:34; 7:16-22; Neh 4:18-20).

7:19 Even silver and gold, the traditional last resorts in times of crisis, would be unable to save or satisfy their owners. They would dispose of them like worthless trash (literally impurity), something hateful and disgusting that they could not wait to be rid of.

The Temple Vision (8:1–11:25)

Idolatry in the Temple: Four Abominations

8 Then on September 17, during the sixth year of King Jehoiachin's captivity, while the leaders of Judah were in my home, the Sovereign LORD took hold of me. ²I saw a figure that appeared to be a man. From what appeared to be his waist down, he looked like a burning flame. From the waist up he looked like gleaming amber. ³He reached out what seemed to be a hand and took me by the hair. Then the Spirit lifted me up into the sky and transported me to Jerusalem in a vision from God. I was taken

7:20–22 Their formerly precious objects were contaminated and contaminating because they were used to make detestable idols and vile images. • God would hand over his treasured land, the home of his sanctuary (Deut 12:5, 11), to brutal and ruthless pagans. Since Israel had continued in pagan worship at the high places and even brought idols into the Temple (8:1–18), God would destroy the pagan centers in the land and even in the Temple in Jerusalem. In the past God had defended Jerusalem (see 2 Kgs 18–19), but now he would abandon her to her well-deserved fate.

7:23–27 Neither religious authorities (prophets and priests) nor civil leaders (king or prince) could bring the peace the people were looking for. High-born and low-born alike would be helpless in facing their judgment. In the complete absence of guidance and direction, no hope would be left for the people.

8:1–11:25 This section depicts the defilement of the Jerusalem Temple (ch 8), which led to its being abandoned by the Lord and its subsequent destruction (9:1–11:13). This abandonment was actually good news for those already in exile, for the Lord was coming to dwell with them, identifying them as the ones who bore hope for the future of God's people.

8:1–18 In visionary form, the prophet Ezekiel was shown four ways in which the people were engaged in practices that defiled their land. This vision explains why the presence of the Lord left his sanctuary.

8:1 on September 17: Literally on the fifth [day] of the sixth month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar. This event occurred on Sept 17, 592 BC; see also note on 1:1. • We are in the sixth year of King Jehoiachin's captivity (see note on 1:2), and fourteen months have elapsed since the opening vision of the book. During most of the intervening time, the prophet had been performing the sign acts of ch 4. Ezekiel 8–9 depicts in visions the same defilement and consequent judgment of Jerusalem that ch 7 lays out in oracles. In this case, the prophet directed the message to the leaders (literally elders) of Judah, who had gathered at Ezekiel's home. They were probably seeking a word of encouragement and comfort from the Lord (see also 14:1; 20:1), but what they received was a denunciation of the sins of the communities they represented.

8:2–3 While the leaders were gathered, Ezekiel saw in a vision what appeared to be a man. The description is similar to the description in 1:26–27. This time, however, Ezekiel was lifted . . .

up into the sky and transported . . . to Jerusalem. • appeared to be . . . looked like . . . seemed to be: What Ezekiel saw defied human description (see note on 1:4–28).

8:2 appeared to be a man: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads appeared to be fire. • like gleaming amber: Or like burnished metal.

8:3–16 God showed Ezekiel four scenes of increasing abomination from the false worship that the people of Israel were performing in the Lord's Temple. The comprehensiveness of Jerusalem's defilement may be seen from the varied locations of their acts of idolatry, the kinds of people involved, the deities worshiped, and the varied cultures from which these deities had been imported. It was the ultimate eclectic worship service, with abomination piled upon abomination.

8:3–6 In the first abomination, the large idol was probably an image of the Canaanite goddess Asherah that had been placed at this gate to guard the city from attack. Most of Jerusalem's historic enemies came against her from the north, which would explain the idol's location at the north gate. This idol had made the LORD very jealous because the Lord deserved all honor and worship as Israel's protector to the north gate of the inner courtyard of the Temple, where there is a large idol that has made the LORD very jealous. ⁴Suddenly, the glory of the God of Israel was there, just as I had seen it before in the valley.

⁵Then the LORD said to me, "Son of man, look toward the north." So I looked, and there to the north, beside the entrance to the gate near the altar, stood the idol that had made the LORD so jealous.

⁶"Son of man," he said, "do you see what they are doing? Do you see the detestable sins the people of Israel are committing to drive me from my Temple? But come, and you will see even more detestable sins than these!" ⁷Then he brought me to the door of the Temple courtyard, where I could see a hole in the wall. ⁸He said to me, "Now, son of man, dig into the wall." So I dug into the wall and found a hidden doorway.

⁹"Go in," he said, "and see the wicked and detestable sins they are committing in there!" ¹⁰So I went in and saw the walls covered with engravings of all kinds of crawling animals and detestable creatures. I also saw the various idols worshiped by the people of Israel. ¹¹Seventy leaders of Israel were standing there with Jaazaniah son of Shaphan in the center. Each of them held an incense burner, from which a cloud of incense rose above their heads.

¹²Then the LORD said to me, "Son of man, have you seen what the leaders of Israel are doing with their idols in dark rooms? They are saying, 'The LORD doesn't see us; he has deserted our land!' " ¹³Then the LORD added, "Come, and I will show you even more detestable sins than these!"

¹⁴He brought me to the north gate of the LORD's Temple, and some women were sitting there, weeping for the god Tammuz. ¹⁵"Have you seen this?" he asked. "But I will show you even more detestable sins than these!"

¹⁶Then he brought me into the inner courtyard of the LORD's Temple. At the entrance to the sanctuary, between the entry room and the bronze altar, there were about twenty-five men with their backs to the sanctuary of the LORD. They were facing east, bowing low to the ground, worshiping the sun!

¹⁷"Have you seen this, son of man?" he asked. "Is it nothing to the people of Judah that they commit these detestable sins, leading the whole nation into violence, thumbing their noses at me, and provoking my anger? ¹⁸Therefore, I will respond in fury. I will neither pity nor spare them. And though they cry for mercy, I will not listen."

The Slaughter of Idolaters

9 Then the LORD thundered, "Bring on the men appointed to punish the city! Tell them to bring their weapons with them!" ²Six men soon appeared from the upper gate that faces north, each carrying a deadly weapon in his hand. With them was a man dressed in linen, who carried a writer's case at his side. They all went into (Ps 121:1-4). The Lord was offended by this idol that purported to protect the Lord's chosen city.

8:7-8 The first abomination was very public, and the second was very private. In order to witness it in his vision, the prophet had to dig into the wall to access a hidden doorway.

8:10 The practice of worshiping deities shaped like crawling animals and detestable creatures most likely came from Egypt. • idols: The Hebrew term (literally round things) probably alludes to dung. See note on 6:4-7.

8:11 These seventy leaders are a shocking contrast to the seventy leaders of Moses' day who were given the unique privilege of seeing God (Exod 24:1-11) and were given the same Spirit as Moses (Num 11:16-30). Jaazaniah, the leader of this group, was, ironically, the son of Shaphan, a godly leader who was prominently involved in Josiah's reforms (2 Kgs 22:3-14). • The incense, intended to ward off dangers from demonic spirits, helped instead to bring God's judgment upon the land.

8:12-13 The Lord could see what the leaders of Israel were doing, and he revealed these things to his prophet (cp. Luke 12:3). See note on 10:12.

8:14-15 The third abomination was that women were . . . weeping for the god Tammuz at the north gate of the LORD's Temple. This Babylonian ritual marked the death and descent into the underworld of the god Dumuzi (Tammuz). Every year, this deity was thought to lose his power and then regain it in a cycle that paralleled the annual rhythms of nature. Ritual mourning for Tammuz was intended to hasten the return of fertility to the natural order. Ritual lamentation for a false, dead god had thus been substituted for praise and worship of the true and living God.

8:16 The fourth and crowning act of idolatry took place in the very heart of the Temple complex, in the inner courtyard of the LORD's Temple, as close as anyone could approach to the Temple building without actually entering it. • The twenty-five men . . . worshiping

the sun were possibly priests, as none but priests should have had access to this area, though they might have been non-priests flaunting the rules of access. Though physically closer than anyone else to the Lord's presence, they had turned their backs to the sanctuary of their Creator. Instead of worshiping him, they worshiped what he had created (cp. Rom 1:25).

8:17-18 The abominations that the Israelites were committing in the Temple complex were tantamount to thumbing (literally putting the twig [or branch] to) their noses at the Lord. This gesture was at least defiant, and possibly vulgar.

9:1-2 The prophet did not have to wait long for judgment to come. The Lord summoned his angelic warriors to punish the city, and seven men appeared in response. Six men each carried a deadly weapon, while the seventh was dressed in linen and carried a writer's case. They stood ready for action in the Temple courtyard, next to the bronze altar where sacrifices were normally offered.

the Temple courtyard and stood beside the bronze altar.

³Then the glory of the God of Israel rose up from between the cherubim, where it had rested, and moved to the entrance of the Temple. And the LORD called to the man dressed in linen who was carrying the writer's case. ⁴He said to him, "Walk through the streets of Jerusalem and put a mark on the foreheads of all who weep and sigh because of the detestable sins being committed in their city."

⁵Then I heard the LORD say to the other men, "Follow him through the city and kill everyone whose forehead is not marked. Show no mercy; have no pity! ⁶Kill them all—old and young, girls and women and little children. But do not touch anyone with the mark. Begin right here at the Temple." So they began by killing the seventy leaders.

⁷"Defile the Temple!" the LORD commanded. "Fill its courtyards with corpses. Go!" So they went and began killing throughout the city.

⁸While they were out killing, I was all alone. I fell face down on the ground and cried out, "O Sovereign LORD! Will your fury against Jerusalem wipe out everyone left in Israel?"

⁹Then he said to me, "The sins of the people of Israel and Judah are very, very great. The entire land is full of murder; the city is filled with injustice. They are saying, 'The LORD doesn't see it! The LORD has abandoned the land!'" ¹⁰So I will not spare them or have any pity on them. I will fully repay them for all they have done."

¹¹Then the man in linen clothing, who carried the writer's case, reported back and said, "I have done as you commanded."

The Lord's Glory Leaves the Temple

10 In my vision I saw what appeared to be a throne of blue lapis lazuli above the crystal surface over the heads of the cherubim. ²Then the LORD spoke to the man in linen clothing and said, "Go between the whirling wheels beneath the cherubim, and take a handful of burning coals and scatter them over the city." He did this as I watched.

³The cherubim were standing at the south end of the Temple when the man went in, and the cloud of glory filled the inner courtyard. ⁴Then the glory of the LORD rose up from above the cherubim and went over to the entrance of the Temple. The Temple was filled with this cloud of glory, and the courtyard glowed brightly with the glory of the LORD. ⁵The moving wings of the cherubim sounded like the voice of God Almighty and could be heard even in the outer courtyard.

⁶The LORD said to the man in linen clothing, "Go between the cherubim and take some burning coals from between the wheels." So the man went in and stood beside one of the wheels. ⁷Then one of the 9:3 The glory of the God of Israel, the visible manifestation of his presence, now began to depart from the defiled Temple. First, it rose up from between the cherubim, that is, from above the Ark in the Most Holy Place, where it normally rested. From there, it moved to the entrance of the Temple, ready to leave its former throne.

9:4-6 Just as the man dressed in linen (9:2-3) reenacted the marking of those kept safe at the first Passover (Exod 12:7-13), the angels of destruction reenacted comprehensive judgment (Exod 12:28-30), this time on old and young, girls and women and little children. Not just the firstborn males, as in Egypt, but everyone who did not have the mark that identified them as those who mourned over the sins of the city (cp. Rev 7:1-8) were destroyed.

9:7 Defile the Temple! Unlike Queen Athaliah, who was dragged out of the Temple before she was executed so that her blood would not defile the holy site (2 Kgs 11:15-16), these idolaters were to be killed in the Temple, which was already so defiled by their idolatry that nothing sacred was left there. Without God's holy presence, concern for the sanctity of the building was an empty gesture.

9:8 Ezekiel feared that he might be the only person left after the Lord expressed his fury.

9:9-10 The Lord replied that he would fully repay Israel's sins (but see 9:3-4, 11).

9:11 I have done as you commanded: The remnant had been successfully marked to save them from the wrath to come (9:3-4).

10:1-22 The Temple provided an earthly residence where the Lord's glory could dwell among his people. This central blessing of the covenant could only be maintained if the people were holy. In the face of their defilement, the Lord abandoned his house, leaving it and the surrounding city vulnerable to the impending assault of the Babylonians.

10:1-2 Almost the same vision of fear-some glory that Ezekiel had seen earlier in Babylonia (ch 1) now appeared to him in the Jerusalem Temple. In a building filled with heavenly symbols, Ezekiel clearly perceived that the living creatures he had seen earlier were cherubim, the enforcers of divine judgment (Gen 3:24). • The burning coals that the priestly figure was instructed to gather showed that the defiled Jerusalem was to be burned by fire, as the city of Sodom had been (see 16:46-50). The implication of the Lord's abandoning his city was later worked out in history: Several years after this vision, Nebuchadnezzar burned the city of Jerusalem and filled it with corpses.

10:3-22 As if reluctant to leave, the glory of the LORD (10:4) moved slowly and haltingly, by stages. From above the cherubim in the Most Holy Place, it moved to the entrance of the Temple, paused, then hovered above the cherubim (10:18) and moved to the east gate of the courtyard (10:19), where it again paused. The glory of the Lord later left the city altogether (11:23; see note on 11:22-23).

cherubim reached out his hand and took some live coals from the fire burning among them. He put the coals into the hands of the man in linen clothing, and the man took them and went out. ⁸(All the cherubim had what looked like human hands under their wings.)

⁹I looked, and each of the four cherubim had a wheel beside him, and the wheels sparkled like beryl. ¹⁰All four wheels looked alike and were made the same; each wheel had a second wheel turning crosswise within it. ¹¹The cherubim could move in any of the four directions they faced, without turning as they moved. They went straight in the direction they faced, never turning aside. ¹²Both the cherubim and the wheels were covered with eyes. The cherubim had eyes all over their bodies, including their hands, their backs, and their wings. ¹³I heard someone refer to the wheels as “the whirling wheels.” ¹⁴Each of the four cherubim had four faces: the first was the face of an ox, the second was a human face, the third was the face of a lion, and the fourth was the face of an eagle.

¹⁵Then the ⁸cherubim rose upward. These were the same living beings I had seen beside the Kebar River. ¹⁶When the cherubim moved, the wheels moved with them. When they lifted their wings to fly, the wheels stayed beside them. ¹⁷When the cherubim stopped, the wheels stopped. When they flew upward, the wheels rose up, for the spirit of the living beings was in the wheels.

¹⁸Then the ⁹glory of the LORD moved out from the entrance of the Temple and hovered above the cherubim. ¹⁹And as I watched, the cherubim flew with their wheels to the east gate of the LORD’s Temple. And the glory of the God of Israel hovered above them.

²⁰These were the same living beings I had seen beneath the God of Israel when I was by the Kebar River. I knew they were cherubim, ²¹for each had four faces and four wings and what looked like human hands under their wings. ²²And their faces were just like the faces of the beings I had seen at the Kebar, and they traveled straight ahead, just as the others had.

Judgment on Israel’s Leaders

11 Then the Spirit lifted me and brought me to the east gateway of the LORD’s Temple, where I saw twenty-five prominent men of the city. Among them were Jaazaniah son of Azzur and Pelatiah son of Benaiah, who were leaders among the people.

²The Spirit said to me, “Son of man, these are the men who are planning evil and giving wicked counsel in this city. ³They say to the people, ‘Is it not a good time to build houses? This city is like an iron pot. We are safe inside it like meat in a pot.’ ⁴Therefore, son of man, prophesy against them loudly and clearly.”

⁵Then the Spirit of the LORD came upon me, and he told me to say, “This is what the LORD says to the people of Israel: I know what you are saying, for I know every thought that comes into your minds. ⁶You have murdered many in this city and filled its streets with the dead.

⁷“Therefore, this is what the Sovereign LORD says: This city is an iron pot all right, but the pieces of meat are the victims of your injustice. As for you, I will soon drag you from this pot. ⁸I will bring on you the sword of war you so greatly fear, says the Sovereign LORD. ⁹I will drive you out of Jerusalem and hand you over to foreigners, who will carry out my judgments against you. ¹⁰You will be slaughtered all the way to the borders of Israel. I will execute judgment on you, and you will know that I am the LORD. ¹¹No, this city will not be an iron pot for you, and you will not be like meat safe inside it. I will judge you even to the borders of Israel, ¹²and you will know that I am the LORD. For you have refused to obey my decrees and regulations; instead, you have copied the standards of the nations around you.”

¹³While I was still prophesying, Pelatiah son of Benaiah suddenly died. Then I fell

10:19-22 From this point on, the city was doomed; God, whose threatening judgment appeared in such fearsome majesty in the opening chapter of Ezekiel, had abandoned it.

11:1-11 Having given Ezekiel a glimpse of the divine perspective on Jerusalem, the Spirit brought him back to overhear the words of the city’s inhabitants. The wicked counselors asserted that though the assault by the Babylonians (the fire) was troublesome (hot), the defenses of the city (the iron pot) were sufficient to protect them (the meat). These counselors were telling people to build houses—on stolen land (see 11:15, 17 and notes)—in which they could live safely. God, however, was determined to judge the wicked.

face down on the ground and cried out, "O Sovereign LORD, are you going to kill everyone in Israel?"

Hope for Exiled Israel

¹⁴Then this message came to me from the LORD: ¹⁵"Son of man, the people still left in Jerusalem are talking about you and your relatives and all the people of Israel who are in exile. They are saying, 'Those people are far away from the LORD, so now he has given their land to us!'

¹⁶"Therefore, tell the exiles, 'This is what the Sovereign LORD says: Although I have scattered you in the countries of the world, I will be a sanctuary to you during your time in exile. ¹⁷I, the Sovereign LORD, will gather you back from the nations where you have been scattered, and I will give you the land of Israel once again.'

¹⁸"When the people return to their homeland, they will remove every trace of their vile images and detestable idols. ¹⁹And I will give them singleness of heart and put a new spirit within them. I will take away their stony, stubborn heart and give them a tender, responsive heart, ²⁰so they will obey my decrees and regulations. Then they will truly be my people, and I will be their God. ²¹But as for those who long for vile images and detestable idols, I will repay them fully for their sins. I, the Sovereign LORD, have spoken!"

The LORD's Glory Leaves Jerusalem

²²Then the cherubim lifted their wings and rose into the air with their wheels beside them, and the glory of the God of Israel hovered above them. ²³Then the glory of the LORD went up from the city and stopped above the mountain to the east.

²⁴Afterward the Spirit of God carried me back again to Babylonia, to the people in exile there. And so ended the vision of my visit to Jerusalem. ²⁵And I told the exiles everything the LORD had shown me.

More Oracles of Judgment (12:1–24:27)

Signs of the Coming Exile

12 Again a message came to me from the LORD: ²"Son of man, you live among rebels who have eyes but refuse to see. They have ears but refuse to hear. For they are a rebellious people.

³"So now, son of man, pretend you are being sent into exile. Pack the few items an exile could carry, and leave your home to go somewhere else. Do this right in front of the people so they can see you. For perhaps they will pay attention to this, even though they are such rebels. ⁴Bring your baggage outside during the day so they can watch you. Then in the evening, as they are watching, leave your house as captives do when they begin a long march to distant lands. ⁵Dig a hole through the wall while they are remained in the land were destined for such comprehensive destruction, who would be God's people?

11:15-16 Those who remained in the land regarded the exiles as far away from the LORD, with no one to protect their interests in their family land holdings. Relatives (literally men of your redemption) would normally have redeemed Ezekiel's family property if he fell into debt or other trouble. Since the exiles had been transported as family groups, there was no one left in Judah to guard their inherited properties.

• he has given their land to us! Those remaining in the land considered the exiles to be under God's judgment and their ancestral lands to have been forfeited. The very opposite was true. The future of Israel lay with the far-off exiles, as the LORD had gone into exile with them and would be a sanctuary to them during their time in exile (see 11:22-23).

11:17 The exile in Babylon would last only until God had exercised his judgment. After this, there would be a new exodus of God's people from the nations where they had been scattered back to the land of Israel. Their land, which was currently being stolen from them by those who remained in Judah, would be restored to them.

11:19 The external change in the fortunes of God's people would be matched by an internal change; their singleness of heart would mark undivided loyalty to the LORD and replace their wayward affections of the past. A tender, responsive heart (literally a heart of flesh) would replace their stony, stubborn heart (literally the heart of stone), and in place of the old idolatrous spirit they would receive a new spirit (see 36:26-27).

11:20 Their changed hearts and spirits would enable the LORD's people to obey his decrees and regulations so that the goal of the covenant relationship—people living with their God in their midst—might at last be achieved. The new heart and new spirit promised here to God's people has become a reality (Heb 8:8-13). Through the outpouring of the Spirit at Pentecost, God's people have become a new creation (2 Cor 5:17).

11:21 Those who remained in the land would reap what they had sown. God would repay them fully for their sins, especially those involving vile images and detestable idols.

11:22-23 Ezekiel's vision of the Temple (chs 8–11) concludes with the chariot bearing the glory of . . . God away from the Temple. The glory of the LORD would depart from defiled Jerusalem, go east to Babylon with the exiles, and identify with their suffering (11:16). God's glory halted temporarily above the mountain to the east of Jerusalem, the Mount of Olives, as if waiting to see the judgment descend upon the rebellious city. Having departed to the east, it would also return from the east to the renewed Temple (ch 43).

11:24 Babylonia: Or Chaldaea.

12:1–24:27 This section collects diverse prophecies and sign acts that are united in their condemnation of Jerusalem and its leaders.

12:1-2 The inhabitants of Judah were not the only ones who had stony, stubborn hearts that were reluctant to hear the prophet's message (11:19). The exiles among whom Ezekiel lived were also rebellious people who would refuse to see that their ways were evil and decline to hear his message, just like those left behind in Judah.

12:5-7 Ezekiel was to dig a hole through the wall as though sneaking out of a watching and go out through it. ⁶As they watch, lift your pack to your shoulders and walk away into the night. Cover your face so you cannot see the land you are leaving. For I have made you a sign for the people of Israel."

⁷So I did as I was told. In broad daylight I brought my pack outside, filled with the things I might carry into exile. Then in the evening while the people looked on, I dug through the wall with my hands and went out into the night with my pack on my shoulder.

⁸The next morning this message came to me from the LORD: ⁹"Son of man, these rebels, the people of Israel, have asked you what all this means. ¹⁰Say to them, 'This is what the Sovereign LORD says: These actions contain a message for King Zedekiah in Jerusalem and for all the people of Israel.' ¹¹Explain that your actions are a sign to show what will soon happen to them, for they will be driven into exile as captives.

¹²"Even Zedekiah will leave Jerusalem at night through a hole in the wall, taking only what he can carry with him. He will cover his face, and his eyes will not see the land he is leaving. ¹³Then I will throw my net over him and capture him in my snare. I will bring him to Babylon, the land of the Babylonians, though he will never see it, and he will die there. ¹⁴I will scatter his servants and warriors to the four winds and send the sword after them. ¹⁵And when I scatter them among the nations, they will know that I am the LORD. ¹⁶But I will spare a few of them from death by war, famine, or disease, so they can confess all their detestable sins to their captors. Then they will know that I am the LORD."

¹⁷Then this message came to me from the LORD: ¹⁸"Son of man, tremble as you eat your food. Shake with fear as you drink your water. ¹⁹Tell the people, 'This is what the Sovereign LORD says concerning those living in Israel and Jerusalem: They will eat their food with trembling and sip their water in despair, for their land will be stripped bare because of their violence. ²⁰The cities will be destroyed and the farmland made desolate. Then you will know that I am the LORD.'"

A New Proverb: No Further Delay

²¹Again a message came to me from the LORD: ²²"Son of man, you've heard that proverb they quote in Israel: 'Time passes, and prophecies come to nothing.' ²³Tell the people, 'This is what the Sovereign LORD says: I will put an end to this proverb, and you will soon stop quoting it.' Now give them this new proverb to replace the old one: 'The time has come for every prophecy to be fulfilled!'

²⁴"There will be no more false visions and flattering predictions in Israel. ²⁵For I am the LORD! If I say it, it will happen. There will be no more delays, you rebels of Israel. I will fulfill my threat of destruction in your own lifetime. I, the Sovereign LORD, have spoken!"

²⁶Then this message came to me from the LORD: ²⁷"Son of man, the people of Israel are saying, 'He's talking about the distant future. His visions won't come true for a long, long time.' ²⁸Therefore, tell them, 'This is what the Sovereign LORD says: No more delay! I will now do everything I have threatened. I, the Sovereign LORD, have spoken!'" besieged city without being noticed, as Zedekiah later attempted to do (2 Kgs 25:4).

12:10 King Zedekiah in Jerusalem: Literally the prince in Jerusalem; similarly in 12:12.

12:12-13 King Zedekiah was unable to see the coming judgment, so he would be unable to see either the land he is leaving or the land of the Babylonians (or Chaldeans). This prophecy was fulfilled when the Babylonians captured Zedekiah as he fled from besieged Jerusalem. After making him watch while his sons were tortured to death, the Babylonians gouged out his eyes (2 Kgs 25:1-7). This terrible fate for Judah's last king was not simply due to the Babylonians' imperial expansionist ambitions.

More fundamentally, the Lord wanted to capture him in his snare.

12:16 The unhappy few survivors would confess all their detestable sins to their captors, not necessarily in repentance, but in recognition that the Lord had acted justly in judgment against them.

12:17-20 For Ezekiel to tremble and shake while eating and drinking was a sign act that reflected the terrible anxiety of the inhabitants of Jerusalem and Judah as they saw their inevitable doom approaching. When the exiles learned that their former homeland had been destroyed, they would realize that they were not cast-offs from God's plan, but rather the fortunate ones who had escaped his comprehensive judgment (see Jer 24:1-8).

12:21-14:11 The messages in this section address the issue of true and false prophecy.

12:22 Ezekiel's hearers were so reluctant to open their ears to the message of the prophets that they had coined a proverb to express their skepticism.

12:23-25 In response to the people's unbelief (12:22), the Lord framed a new proverb for the people, using similar words but with an opposite meaning.

12:26-28 The people responded with a second proverb, and again the Lord refuted them. What the Lord had threatened, he would do.

13:1-3 The fundamental difference between true and false prophets was that false prophets were inventing their own are inventing their own prophecies. Say to them, 'Listen to the word of the LORD. ³This is what the Sovereign LORD says: What sorrow awaits the false prophets who are following their own imaginations and have seen nothing at all!'

⁴"O people of Israel, these prophets of yours are like jackals digging in the ruins. ⁵They have done nothing to repair the breaks in the walls around the nation. They have not helped it to stand firm in battle on the day of the LORD. ⁶Instead, they have told lies and made false predictions. They say, 'This message is from the LORD,' even though the LORD never sent them. And yet they expect him to fulfill their prophecies! ⁷Can your visions be anything but false if you claim, 'This message is from the LORD,' when I have not even spoken to you?

Because of this difficulty, and the Lord's merciful delay in bringing judgment upon his rebellious people, many people doubted that God's word through the prophets would ever be fulfilled (Isa 5:19). Others denied that anything would happen within their lifetimes. Might not the punishment that had so often been delayed be delayed a little longer?

Ezekiel prophesied that in the coming judgment upon Jerusalem, false prophets would be cut off so that people would no longer be confused about who the true prophets were (13:8-9). There would also be no more delay to God's judgment—the Lord was coming very soon to fulfill the words he had spoken (13:11). Everyone would see which words God had really spoken and which words the false prophets had conjured out of their own imaginations.

prophecies, while true prophets spoke the word of the LORD. Now these false prophets would receive a word from the Lord about their own destruction. Sorrow awaited these deceived and deceiving messengers.

13:4-5 The false prophets are compared to jackals digging in the ruins to prey on the small animals living there. The false prophets did not repair the breaks in the walls by calling the people who were suffering at the hands of the Babylonians to repent, live holy lives, and fight evil. Instead, they gained prestige—and perhaps money—by telling lies that encouraged the people to continue to rebel. Like jackals, these false prophets were actually breaking the walls down, not building them up (cp. Neh 4:3).

13:6-7 Although the false prophets knew that their words were lies and false predictions, they confidently expected God to fulfill their prophecies. These false hopes gave God's people a false sense of security that would prove empty and destructive on the coming day of judgment (cp. Jer 6:14).

13:8-9 The false prophets' desire for personal safety would be counterproductive. They would be banished from the community and would never again set foot in their own land.

13:10-16 The people's "righteousness" was a flimsy wall in danger of collapse.

Rather than doing the hard work of constructing their wall properly by calling the people to repentance, the false prophets were content to give it a coat of whitewash by telling the people that peace would come to Jerusalem. This external touch-up made the wall appear more solid than it was. Its true weakness would be exposed by a heavy rainstorm. Water would flow into the unsealed cracks, wash away the mortar, and allow the stones to fall away. In this case, the storm would be the great flood of God's anger, which would destroy the people's pretense to righteousness and the false prophets who had encouraged it. Meanwhile, they would have no peace.

wall and those who covered it with white-wash will be satisfied. Then I will say to you: 'The wall and those who whitewashed it are both gone. ¹⁶They were lying prophets who claimed peace would come to Jerusalem when there was no peace. I, the Sovereign LORD, have spoken!'

Judgment against False Women Prophets

¹⁷"Now, son of man, speak out against the women who prophesy from their own imaginations. ¹⁸This is what the Sovereign LORD says: What sorrow awaits you women who are ensnaring the souls of my people, young and old alike. You tie magic charms on their wrists and furnish them with magic veils. Do you think you can trap others without bringing destruction on yourselves? ¹⁹You bring shame on me among my people for a few handfuls of barley or a piece of bread. By lying to my people who love to listen to lies, you kill those who should not die, and you promise life to those who should not live.

²⁰"This is what the Sovereign LORD says: I am against all your magic charms, which you use to ensnare my people like birds. I will tear them from your arms, setting my people free like birds set free from a cage. ²¹I will tear off the magic veils and save my people from your grasp. They will no longer be your victims. Then you will know that I am the LORD. ²²You have discouraged the righteous with your lies, but I didn't want them to be sad. And you have encouraged the wicked by promising them life, even though they continue in their sins. ²³Because of all this, you will no longer talk of seeing visions that you never saw, nor will you make predictions. For I will rescue my people from your grasp. Then you will know that I am the LORD."

The Idolatry of Divided Hearts

14 Then some of the leaders of Israel visited me, and while they were sitting with me, ²this message came to me from the LORD: ³"Son of man, these leaders have set up idols in their hearts. They have embraced things that will make them fall into sin. Why should I listen to their requests? ⁴Tell them, 'This is what the Sovereign LORD says: The people of Israel have set up idols in their hearts and fallen into sin, and then they go to a prophet asking for a message. So I, the LORD, will give them the kind of answer their great idolatry deserves. ⁵I will do this to capture the minds and hearts of all my people who have turned from me to worship their detestable idols.'

⁶"Therefore, tell the people of Israel, 'This is what the Sovereign LORD says: Repent and turn away from your idols, and stop all your detestable sins. ⁷I, the LORD, will answer all those, both Israelites and foreigners, who reject me and set up idols in their hearts and so fall into sin, and who then come to a prophet asking for my advice. ⁸I will turn against such people and make a terrible example of them, eliminating them from among my people. Then you will know that I am the LORD.

⁹"'And if a prophet is deceived into giving a message, it is because I, the LORD, have deceived that prophet. I will lift my fist against such prophets and cut them off from the community of Israel. ¹⁰False prophets and those who seek their guidance will all be 13:17-19 Like the false male prophets (13:1-16), some women prophets proclaimed words that came only from their own imaginations. The false male prophets had been using conventional forms of prophecy, but the women used magical techniques involving charms and veils. Motivated by personal gain (a few handfuls of barley or a piece of bread), they promised life and death (cp. 3:17-21; 33:1-9), but to the wrong people.

13:20-23 The false women prophets did not define who qualified for life or death in the way that God did, so their ministry discouraged the righteous by making them feel that their obedience was in vain. It also encouraged the wicked to believe that they could continue in their sins without penalty. The result of this misdirection was to ensnare both the righteous and the wicked, giving both groups false ideas about God.

14:1-3 The leaders of the exiled community of Israel came to visit Ezekiel again, probably seeking encouragement (see note on 8:1). The people were tainted with the same kinds of sin, such as idolatry, that affected the people in Judah (cp. 8:10-12).

14:3 idols: The Hebrew term (literally round things) probably alludes to dung; also in 14:4, 5, 6, 7. See note on 6:4-7.

14:4-5 Though the exiles were going through the motions of seeking the Lord, their hearts had turned from the Lord to worship their detestable idols. It was tempting for the exiles to think that the Babylonians' many military successes demonstrated that true power lay with the Babylonian gods rather than with the Lord.

14:6-7 When asking for God's advice, rebels should only expect the response to be, Repent.

14:8 Instead of answering these people through a false prophet with a word of divine guidance, the Lord would answer them directly with a terrible act of judgment, thus eliminating them from among his people. Whether this indicates death or excommunication, these half-hearted leaders would be removed from the covenant community, the only place where true life is to be found.

14:9-10 False prophets, who sought to counteract God's will by prophesying what God had not spoken, would do God's will unwittingly—they and other rebels would be deceived and confirmed in their rebellion. False prophets and rebellious people alike were thus punished for their sins (see also Deut 13; 1 Kgs 22:6-23).

The Certainty of the Lord's Judgment

¹²Then this message came to me from the LORD: ¹³"Son of man, suppose the people of a country were to sin against me, and I lifted my fist to crush them, cutting off their food supply and sending a famine to destroy both people and animals. ¹⁴Even if Noah, Daniel, and Job were there, their righteousness would save no one but themselves, says the Sovereign LORD.

¹⁵"Or suppose I were to send wild animals to invade the country, kill the people, and make the land too desolate and dangerous to pass through. ¹⁶As surely as I live, says the Sovereign LORD, even if those three men were there, they wouldn't be able to save their own sons or daughters. They alone would be saved, but the land would be made desolate.

¹⁷"Or suppose I were to bring war against the land, and I sent enemy armies to destroy both people and animals. ¹⁸As surely as I live, says the Sovereign LORD, even if those three men were there, they wouldn't be able to save their own sons or daughters. They alone would be saved.

¹⁹"Or suppose I were to pour out my fury by sending an epidemic into the land, and the disease killed people and animals alike. ²⁰As surely as I live, says the Sovereign LORD, even if Noah, Daniel, and Job were there, they wouldn't be able to save their own sons or daughters. They alone would be saved by their righteousness.

²¹"Now this is what the Sovereign LORD says: How terrible it will be when all four

Divine Sovereignty and Human Responsibility (14:9-11)

How can God deceive a prophet and still hold him accountable for his actions? Ezekiel 14 raises this question in many people's minds. How can we reconcile God's sovereign control over all things with the personal choices and decisions for which we will be called to account?

The Bible traces all things back to God's sovereignty. That the rain falls on the just and unjust alike is part of God's sovereign plan (Matt 5:45). Even a false prophet could give a prophecy that led people astray only with the Lord's permission or direction.

At the same time, God is in no way responsible for our sin; it is our responsibility because it comes from our own sinful desires. In giving deceitful messages to false prophets, God was simply giving them and their hearers exactly what they wanted (cp. 2 Thes 2:11). Unless God restrained them from their sin, they would naturally choose lies instead of the truth and worship creation in place of the Creator (Rom 1:18-25). God simply gave them permission to enact their hearts' sinful desires.

The remarkable fact is not that God allows some sinners to persist in their chosen delusions, but that he saves sinners, changes our natures, and gives us the desire to do good for the glory of God (see 36:25-26; Rom 8:1-11; Eph 2:10).

14:11 The goal of God's judgment was not the total destruction of the exiles but their salvation, so that the people of Israel would learn not to stray from the Lord.

14:12-20 Israel had not been unjustly singled out for judgment. If any country were to sin against the Lord, the result would be the same. It is clear that Israel is in view here, however, because the language used to describe their sin is used elsewhere to describe a breach in Israel's covenant relationship with the Lord. The covenant was broken, so the nation would inevitably and justly experience the covenant curses that they had ratified at the time the covenant was first made (Lev 26). • The covenant curses are itemized in four test cases.

Each case envisions one of the curses listed in Lev 26: famine (14:13-14; see Lev 26:26), wild animals (14:15-16; see Lev 26:22), war (14:17-18; see Lev 26:25), and disease (14:19-20; see Lev 26:25).

14:14, 20 Noah, Daniel, and Job: Each of these men was famous for standing firm in the midst of a wicked generation. If anyone could merit a stay of judgment from God, they could. However, even if a land contained these three outstanding men of God, their righteousness would not suffice to save even their closest relatives from the coming disaster (14:20). How much less would it save a rebellious country! • Since the Hebrew spelling of the name Daniel (Hebrew Dani'el; also in 28:3) is slightly different from that of the biblical prophet Daniel (Hebrew Daniyye'l), who was Ezekiel's younger contemporary in Babylon, some have proposed that Ezekiel was referring to a legendary pagan hero named Danel. However, minor variations in the spelling of names are common in the Hebrew OT. Ezekiel and his hearers would certainly have known of the biblical prophet Daniel as a model of righteousness and wisdom. It is unlikely that a prophet as radically outspoken against idolatry as Ezekiel would have picked a pagan figure like Danel to represent unparalleled righteousness and wisdom. So Ezekiel is most likely referring to the prophet Daniel.

14:21 Jerusalem was worse off than the hypothetical country of 14:12-20 in two of these dreadful punishments fall upon Jerusalem—war, famine, wild animals, and disease—destroying all her people and animals.²² Yet there will be survivors, and they will come here to join you as exiles in Babylon. You will see with your own eyes how wicked they are, and then you will feel better about what I have done to Jerusalem.²³ When you meet them and see their behavior, you will understand that these things are not being done to Israel without cause. I, the Sovereign LORD, have spoken!”

The Parable of the Worthless Vine

15 Then this message came to me from the LORD: ²“Son of man, how does a grapevine compare to a tree? Is a vine’s wood as useful as the wood of a tree? ³Can its wood be used for making things, like pegs to hang up pots and pans? ⁴No, it can only be used for fuel, and even as fuel, it burns too quickly. ⁵Vines are useless both before and after being put into the fire!

⁶“And this is what the Sovereign LORD says: The people of Jerusalem are like grapevines growing among the trees of the forest. Since they are useless, I have thrown them on the fire to be burned. ⁷And I will see to it that if they escape from one fire, they will fall into another. When I turn against them, you will know that I am the LORD. ⁸And I will make the land desolate because my people have been unfaithful to me. I, the Sovereign LORD, have spoken!”

The Parable of the Unfaithful Wife

16 Then another message came to me from the LORD: ²“Son of man, confront Jerusalem with her detestable sins. ³Give her this message from the Sovereign LORD: You are nothing but a Canaanite! Your father was an Amorite and your mother a Hittite. ⁴On the day you were born, no one cared about you. Your umbilical cord was not cut, and you were never washed, rubbed with salt, and wrapped in cloth. ⁵No one had the slightest interest in you; no one pitied you or cared for you. On the day you were born, you were unwanted, dumped in a field and left to die.

⁶“But I came by and saw you there, helplessly kicking about in your own blood. As you lay there, I said, ‘Live!’ ⁷And I helped you to thrive like a plant in the field. You grew up and became a beautiful jewel. Your breasts became full, and your body hair grew, but respects. First, Jerusalem did not have Noah, Daniel, and Job; instead, the city was filled with unrighteous people. Second, it would not be hit with one single judgment plague but with all four of these dreadful punishments at once. It is therefore not surprising that all her people and animals would be destroyed.

14:22-23 Some survivors would emerge from the devastating judgment (14:21) and join those already in exile. They would not survive because of their righteousness or that of their relatives, but simply as an object lesson for those in exile. As the exiles saw the depravity of this remnant, they would feel better about what God had done to Jerusalem. The exiles would know that God had not acted without cause but had acted with justice in his judgment upon Jerusalem.

15:1-24:14 This section contains a series of eight metaphors, each reiterating from a different angle the certainty of Jerusalem’s forthcoming judgment. The images are of a worthless vine (ch 15); a faithless wife (ch 16); a vine and two eagles (ch 17); sour grapes (ch 18); a lion and her cubs (ch 19); a sword (ch 21); two degenerate sisters (ch 23); and a cooking pot (ch 24).

15:1-5 The wood of a tree can be used to make all kinds of useful objects, pegs being the simplest and most basic. A vine’s wood, however, has no strength, size, or beauty, so it is useless for pegs and it is not even good as fuel because it burns too quickly. It is completely useless.

15:6 The people of Jerusalem are like grapevines: Cp. Ps 80:8-9; Isa 5:1-7; Jer 2:21; John 15:1-6. • If grapevines grow among the trees of the forest, they do not bear fruit because they lack sufficient sunlight.

15:7 Anyone who escaped from one fire of God’s judgment (probably a reference to the defeat of Judah by Nebuchadnezzar in 597 BC; 2 Kgs 21:1-4) would simply fall into another (the destruction of Jerusalem in 586 BC).

15:8 unfaithful: See 6:9; 16:17; Hos 2. Jerusalem had gone after idols instead of faithfully serving the true God. Such behavior broke the covenant between the Lord and his people, with the inevitable result that the land would become desolate.

16:1-63 Jerusalem is exposed as a wanton prostitute. Even in the relatively mild form of the English translation, ch 16 is hard to read, and it was at least as shocking in the ancient context. Ezekiel was graphically communicating the full ugliness and offensiveness of Judah’s sin. He refused to be polite when discussing his people’s depravity. In fact, his refusal to tone down the offensiveness of Jerusalem’s sin is precisely the point of the passage. The offensive nature of the portrayal was critical to its effectiveness because Ezekiel’s hearers could understand that God’s awful judgment upon them was justified only if they first understood the magnitude of their sin in his sight. A less graphic presentation would not have adequately communicated this message.

16:1-3 Ezekiel begins with Jerusalem’s unpromising origins; it came from Canaanite roots and was the offspring of an Amorite and . . . a Hittite. The city of Jerusalem predated the conquest under Joshua and was never captured during that campaign. Instead, it retained its native Canaanite population even after David conquered it.

16:4-5 Jerusalem’s parents were heartless and did not perform the usual obstetrical practices. Ordinarily, someone cut the umbilical cord, washed the infant, smeared salt and oil over her body, and swaddled her tightly in cloth. Instead, as was common with baby girls in the ancient world, Jerusalem was abandoned: dumped in a field and left to die.

16:6-7 While Jerusalem was in a helpless and hopeless condition, the Lord intervened with his life-giving word. Without that, she would certainly have died. The Lord had no obligation to rescue this abandoned child, for she would simply have been one among you were still naked. ⁸And when I passed by again, I saw that you were old enough for love. So I wrapped my cloak around you to cover your nakedness and declared my marriage vows. I made a covenant with you, says the Sovereign LORD, and you became mine.

⁹Then I bathed you and washed off your blood, and I rubbed fragrant oils into your skin. ¹⁰I gave you expensive clothing of fine linen and silk, beautifully embroidered, and sandals made of fine goatskin leather. ¹¹I gave you lovely jewelry, bracelets, beautiful necklaces, ¹²a ring for your nose, earrings for your ears, and a lovely crown for your head. ¹³And so you were adorned with gold and silver. Your clothes were made of fine linen and costly fabric and were beautifully embroidered. You ate the finest foods—choice flour, honey, and olive oil—and became more beautiful than ever. You looked like a queen, and so you were! ¹⁴Your fame soon spread throughout the world because of your beauty. I dressed you in my splendor and perfected your beauty, says the Sovereign LORD.

¹⁵But you thought your fame and beauty were your own. So you gave yourself as a prostitute to every man who came along. Your beauty was theirs for the asking. ¹⁶You used the lovely things I gave you to make shrines for idols, where you played the prostitute. Unbelievable! How could such a thing ever happen? ¹⁷You took the very jewels and gold and silver ornaments I had given you and made statues of men and worshipped them. This is adultery against me! ¹⁸You used the beautifully embroidered clothes I gave you to dress your idols. Then you used my special oil and my incense to worship them. ¹⁹Imagine it! You set before them as a sacrifice the choice flour, olive oil, and honey I had given you, says the Sovereign LORD.

²⁰Then you took your sons and daughters—the children you had borne to me—and sacrificed them to your gods. Was your prostitution not enough? ²¹Must you also slaughter my children by sacrificing them to idols? ²²In all your years of adultery and detestable sin, you have not once remembered the days long ago when you lay naked in a field, kicking about in your own blood.

²³What sorrow awaits you, says the Sovereign LORD. In addition to all your other wickedness, ²⁴you built a pagan shrine and put altars to idols in every town square. ²⁵On every street corner you defiled your beauty, offering your body to every passerby in an endless stream of prostitution. ²⁶Then you added lustful Egypt to your lovers, provoking my anger with your increasing promiscuity. ²⁷That is why I struck you with my fist and reduced your boundaries. I handed you over to your enemies, the Philistines, and even they were shocked by your lewd conduct. ²⁸You have prostituted yourself with the Assyrians, too. It seems you can never find enough new lovers! And after your prostitution there, you still were not satisfied. ²⁹You added to your lovers by embracing Babylonia, the land of merchants, but you still weren't satisfied.

³⁰What a sick heart you have, says the Sovereign LORD, to do such things as these, acting like a shameless prostitute. ³¹You build your pagan shrines on every street

many facing such a fate. Yet out of his grace and mercy, the Lord enabled her not merely to survive but to thrive. Instead of dying in the field, she grew up like a plant into maturity and beauty. The city of Jerusalem prospered before becoming an Israelite city, and it was the Lord's doing.

16:8 At this time, the Lord wrapped his cloak around her, an act that represented a commitment to marriage (cp. Ruth 3:9). The Lord made a covenant with Jerusalem, and in the terms of the metaphor, he married her. When the Lord entered into a covenant with David and his descendants, he also chose Jerusalem as the place for his name to be honored (see 1 Kgs 9:3-4; Ps 132).

16:9-10 The Lord did for Jerusalem what her parents had never done: he washed, anointed, and clothed her, thus reversing the circumstances of her birth.

• The Lord provided Jerusalem with adornments fit for a queen, including materials elsewhere associated with the Tabernacle (see Exod 25:3-5; 26:1-14). This reminded her people that she was chosen as the home of God's sanctuary and the king's palace.

16:11-14 She was adorned with jewelry and fed with the very finest foods. She was known throughout the world for her beauty and splendor—both gifts from the Lord.

16:15-19 Instead of appreciating the good things God had given her, Jerusalem prostituted her fame and beauty to false gods and offered to idols the clothes, jewels, food, and oil that the Lord had given her.

16:20-22 Jerusalem even gave her sons and daughters as sacrifices to false gods. Child sacrifice was practiced among the nations around Israel as a sign of total commitment to a deity, especially in the worship of the gods Molech and Chemosh (see Deut 12:31; 2 Kgs 3:27). Israel sometimes participated in this detestable sin.

16:23-25 Prophets commonly described idolatry in terms of adultery (see Hos 2), but Ezekiel goes into much more detail than any other prophet. He depicts Jerusalem as not just foolish or misguided, but rotten to the core. Her adultery had taken place on every street corner, and she had an inexhaustible appetite for increasingly depraved entertainments.

16:26-29 Jerusalem actively promoted promiscuity in pursuing Egypt, the Assyrians, and Babylonia (or Chaldea) in alliances that were financially costly and that rarely delivered the expected benefits. These alliances would have been just as reprehensible if they had delivered tangible political benefits, because they demonstrated lack of trust in the Lord. Inevitably, they also led Israel into worship of the allied nations' gods.

corner and your altars to idols in every square. In fact, you have been worse than a prostitute, so eager for sin that you have not even demanded payment. ³²Yes, you are an adulterous wife who takes in strangers instead of her own husband. ³³Prostitutes charge for their services—but not you! You give gifts to your lovers, bribing them to come and have sex with you. ³⁴So you are the opposite of other prostitutes. You pay your lovers instead of their paying you!

Judgment Against the Unfaithful Wife

³⁵“Therefore, you prostitute, listen to this message from the LORD! ³⁶This is what the Sovereign LORD says: Because you have poured out your lust and exposed yourself in prostitution to all your lovers, and because you have worshiped detestable idols, and because you have slaughtered your children as sacrifices to your gods, ³⁷this is what I am going to do. I will gather together all your allies—the lovers with whom you have sinned, both those you loved and those you hated—and I will strip you naked in front of them so they can stare at you. ³⁸I will punish you for your murder and adultery. I will cover you with blood in my jealous fury. ³⁹Then I will give you to these many nations who are your lovers, and they will destroy you. They will knock down your pagan shrines and the altars to your idols. They will strip you and take your beautiful jewels, leaving you stark naked. ⁴⁰They will band together in a mob to stone you and cut you up with swords. ⁴¹They will burn your homes and punish you in front of many women. I will stop your prostitution and end your payments to your many lovers.

remembered your youth but have angered me by doing all these evil things, I will fully repay you for all of your sins, says the Sovereign LORD. For you have added lewd acts to all your detestable sins. ⁴⁴Everyone who makes up proverbs will say of you, ‘Like mother, like daughter.’ ⁴⁵For your mother loathed her husband and her children, and so do you. And you are exactly like your sisters, for they despised their husbands and their children. Truly your mother was a Hittite and your father an Amorite.

⁵¹“Even Samaria did not commit half your sins. You have done far more detestable things than your sisters ever did. They seem righteous compared to you. ⁵²Shame on you! Your sins are so terrible that you make your sisters seem righteous, even virtuous.

⁵³“But someday I will restore the fortunes of Sodom and Samaria, and I will restore you, too. ⁵⁴Then you will be truly ashamed of everything you have done, for your sins make them feel good in comparison. ⁵⁵Yes, your sisters, Sodom and Samaria, and all their people will be restored, and at that time you also will be restored. ⁵⁶In your proud days you held Sodom in contempt. ⁵⁷But now your greater wickedness has been exposed to all the world, and you

16:35-38 Since Jerusalem behaved like an adulteress, it was fitting that she should face an adulteress’s death sentence. God would strip her naked in a symbolic act of divorce, thus reversing the clothing metaphor of marriage (see 16:8; Hos 2:2-3). Then the people would stone her (Lev 20:10; Deut 22:22). Since this would cover her naked body with blood, she would leave the world just as she came into it. This metaphor was fulfilled when the Babylonians destroyed the city in 586 BC.

16:36 idols: The Hebrew term (literally round things) probably alludes to dung. See note on 6:4-7.

16:39-43 Ironically, Jerusalem’s lovers would turn against her and destroy her.

The Lord’s fury would not be requited until the city had paid for all its former sins.

16:44-45 Jerusalem’s “parents” were a Hittite and an Amorite. Hittites and Amorites were previous occupants of Canaan who were cut off from the land because of their sins (cp. Gen 15:16). The pagan city of Jerusalem was captured and incorporated into Israel in David’s time (2 Sam 5:6-10). Jerusalem’s subsequent behavior was in keeping with her heredity.

16:46-50 Samaria, Jerusalem’s older (or larger) sister, had practiced deviant worship ever since Jeroboam introduced golden calves into his national shrines at Dan and Bethel (1 Kgs 12:28-33). • Sodom, Jerusalem’s younger (or smaller) sister, was a byword for sexual sin (Gen 19:4-9) and for pride, gluttony, laziness, and neglect of the poor and needy.

16:50 as you have seen: As in a few Hebrew manuscripts and Greek version; Masoretic Text reads as I have seen.

16:51-52 In comparison to Jerusalem, Samaria and Sodom seemed virtuous. If God had justly destroyed both of Jerusalem’s sisters for their sins, how would Jerusalem escape God’s coming wrath?

16:53-54 The power of God’s grace, even more than his judgment, would make Jerusalem feel ashamed of her association with such “parents” and “sisters” (16:44-52).

16:57 Edom: As in many Hebrew manuscripts and Syriac version; Masoretic Text reads Aram.

The Parable of the Vine and Two Eagles

17 Then this message came to me from the LORD: ²"Son of man, give this riddle, and tell this story to the people of Israel. ³Give them this message from the Sovereign LORD:

"A great eagle with broad wings and long feathers, covered with many-colored plumage, came to Lebanon.

He seized the top of a cedar tree

⁴ and plucked off its highest branch.

He carried it away to a city filled with merchants.

He planted it in a city of traders.

⁵ He also took a seedling from the land and planted it in fertile soil.

He placed it beside a broad river, where it could grow like a willow tree.

⁶ It took root there and grew into a low, spreading vine. Its branches turned up toward the eagle, and its roots grew down into the ground.

It produced strong branches and put out shoots.

⁷ But then another great eagle came with broad wings and full plumage. So the vine now sent its roots and branches toward him for water,

⁸ even though it was already planted in good soil and had plenty of water so it could grow into a splendid vine and produce rich leaves and luscious fruit.

⁹ "So now the Sovereign LORD asks: Will this vine grow and prosper?

No! I will pull it up, roots and all!

I will cut off its fruit and let its leaves wither and die.

I will pull it up easily without a strong arm or a large army.

¹⁰ But when the vine is transplanted, will it thrive?

No, it will wither away when the east wind blows against it.

It will die in the same good soil where it had grown so well."

The Parable Explained

¹¹Then this message came to me from the LORD: ¹²"Say to these rebels of Israel: Don't you understand the meaning of this riddle of the eagles? The king of Babylon came to Jerusalem, took away her king and princes, and brought them to Babylon. ¹³He made

16:59-63 Jerusalem's sins were serious and had to be judged, but judgment was not God's last word on Jerusalem. She had been comprehensively breaking God's covenant and deserved the consequence of death, but God would remember the covenant he had made with her in the beginning. God's purposes for his people cannot be derailed even by their sin, for his covenant commitment is everlasting (Ps 136). God's forgiveness of her sins would finally bring Jerusalem to repentance.

17:1-24 This chapter uses a riddle, a form of metaphorical speech that both conceals and reveals. It is also a fable, a story that communicates a moral message about humans by transposing it into the world of plants and animals. The imaginative context creates a distance between the story and the reality and thus disarms the hearer's defenses against an unpalatable message.

17:3-6 Babylonia was the city filled with merchants (see 16:29).

17:7-9 There was a second great eagle like the first, although not quite so glorious. • The fate of the vine was predictable. In seeking to gain more, it would lose what it already had. The second eagle would not do anything for it, and the anger of the first eagle would be justly aroused.

17:10 In Judah, the east wind blows from the desert and is therefore hot and dry.

17:11-18 The first eagle was Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon. The cedar sprig was Jehoiachin, who was carried off to Babylon by Nebuchadnezzar.

The replacement that grew into a low vine was Zedekiah, and the second eagle was Egypt, from whom Zedekiah was seeking help in his bid to break free of the Babylonians. The hot east wind of judgment blew from Babylon, uprooting and withering Jerusalem.

• The image of the eagle that spared no effort in providing for the vine seems to describe God's care for Israel more than Nebuchadnezzar's concern for Zedekiah. These connections point us to a fundamental analogy between Zedekiah's rebellion against his overlord, Nebuchadnezzar, and Israel's rebellion against the Lord. Zedekiah's rebellion against the might of the Babylonians was foolish to the point of being suicidal. Even more foolish was Israel's rebellion against the Lord, the God of heaven and earth.

a treaty with a member of the royal family and forced him to take an oath of loyalty. He also exiled Israel's most influential leaders, ¹⁴so Israel would not become strong again and revolt. Only by keeping her treaty with Babylon could Israel survive.

¹⁵"Nevertheless, this man of Israel's royal family rebelled against Babylon, sending ambassadors to Egypt to request a great army and many horses. Can Israel break her sworn treaties like that and get away with it? ¹⁶No! For as surely as I live, says the Sovereign LORD, the king of Israel will die in Babylon, the land of the king who put him in power and whose treaty he disregarded and broke. ¹⁷Pharaoh and all his mighty army will fail to help Israel when the king of Babylon lays siege to Jerusalem again and destroys many lives. ¹⁸For the king of Israel disregarded his treaty and broke it after swearing to obey; therefore, he will not escape.

¹⁹"So this is what the Sovereign LORD says: As surely as I live, I will punish him for breaking my covenant and disregarding the solemn oath he made in my name. ²⁰I will throw my net over him and capture him in my snare. I will bring him to Babylon and put him on trial for this treason against me. ²¹And all his best warriors will be killed in battle, and those who survive will be scattered to the four winds. Then you will know that I, the LORD, have spoken.

²²"This is what the Sovereign LORD says: I will take a branch from the top of a tall cedar, and I will plant it on the top of Israel's highest mountain. ²³It will become a majestic cedar, sending forth its branches and producing seed. Birds of every sort will nest in it, finding shelter in the shade of its branches. ²⁴And all the trees will know that it is I, the LORD, who cuts the tall tree down and makes the short tree grow tall. It is I who makes the green tree wither and gives the dead tree new life. I, the LORD, have spoken, and I will do what I said!"

The Proverb of Sour Grapes

18 Then another message came to me from the LORD: ²"Why do you quote this proverb concerning the land of Israel: 'The parents have eaten sour grapes, but their children's mouths pucker at the taste'? ³As surely as I live, says the Sovereign LORD, you will not quote this proverb anymore in Israel. ⁴For all people are mine to judge—both parents and children alike. And this is my rule: The person who sins is the one who will die.

⁵"Suppose a certain man is righteous and does what is just and right. ⁶He does not feast in the mountains before Israel's idols or worship them. He does not commit adultery or have intercourse with a woman during her menstrual period. ⁷He is a merciful creditor, not keeping the items given as security by poor debtors. He does not rob the poor but instead gives food to the hungry and provides clothes for the needy. ⁸He grants loans without interest, stays away

17:19-21 God would punish Israel's king for breaking his covenant with treason against the Lord who had planted him in the land of promise. • I will bring him to Babylon and put him on trial: See 2 Kgs 25:5-7.

17:21 his best warriors: As in many Hebrew manuscripts; Masoretic Text reads his fleeing warriors. The meaning is uncertain.

17:22-24 The last part of the chapter turns the fable around. Now the Lord would take a branch from the . . . cedar tree and plant it on . . . Israel's highest mountain. As elsewhere in the OT, tree imagery stands for the royal line, with a new shoot representing a fresh start (cp. Isa 11:1). The judgment upon the vine would not end the monarchy after all. God would plant a fresh branch that would grow into a more majestic cedar than the first cedar had ever been. Although the present dynasty of kings had reached a dead end in Zedekiah, a new beginning was not only possible but inevitable in God's time (see Hag 2:21-23; Matt 1:11-16; 2:1-11). • God cuts the tall tree down, makes the short tree grow tall, and gives the dead tree new life, enabling birds of every sort (representing the nations) to find shelter and shade under its branches. God's promise of an eternal throne for David would not ultimately be thwarted by the failures of David's descendants, the kings of Judah. One day, the dynasty of David—in the person of Jesus—would once again be raised up as the source of blessing for all nations.

18:1-2 The people had been quoting an aphorism, The parents have eaten sour grapes, but their children's mouths pucker at the taste, meaning that innocent children sometimes suffer because of their parents' actions. In Ezekiel's context, people were using this proverb to imply that the sins that had brought about the Exile had been committed by their forefathers, while they were paying the price (cp. Lam 5:7).

18:3-4 The Lord's response to the proverb of 18:1-2 was to categorically deny that it fit the situation. To the contrary, the Lord consistently punishes only those who are guilty (Deut 24:16).

18:5-9 God's justice is worked out in a case study by following three hypothetical generations. In the first generation, a righteous . . . man was faithful in worshiping the Lord, sexually pure, and fair in dealing with others. A person who lives like that has no need to fear God's judgment.

18:6 idols: The Hebrew term (literally round things) probably alludes to dung; also in 18:12, 15. See note on 6:4-7. • does not . . . have intercourse with a woman during her menstrual period: See note on 36:17; see also Lev 15.

18:7 Borrowers might be required to give objects as security to ensure that the loan would be repaid. However, if the object was an outer garment (which might be a poor man's only valuable possession), it had to be returned before nightfall so that he could remain warm at night (see Exod 22:26-27).

18:8 Lending money with interest to those in need was outlawed because of the temptation it presented to abuse the borrower (see Exod 22:25).

from injustice, is honest and fair when judging others,⁹ and faithfully obeys my decrees and regulations. Anyone who does these things is just and will surely live, says the Sovereign LORD.

¹⁰“But suppose that man has a son who grows up to be a robber or murderer and refuses to do what is right. ¹¹And that son does all the evil things his father would never do—he worships idols on the mountains, commits adultery, ¹²oppresses the poor and helpless, steals from debtors by refusing to let them redeem their security, worships idols, commits detestable sins, ¹³and lends money at excessive interest. Should such a sinful person live? No! He must die and must take full blame.

¹⁴“But suppose that sinful son, in turn, has a son who sees his father’s wickedness and decides against that kind of life. ¹⁵This son refuses to worship idols on the mountains and does not commit adultery. ¹⁶He does not exploit the poor, but instead is fair to debtors and does not rob them. He gives food to the hungry and provides clothes for the needy. ¹⁷He helps the poor, does not lend money at interest, and obeys all my regulations and decrees. Such a person will not die because of his father’s sins; he will surely live. ¹⁸But the father will die for his many sins—for being cruel, robbing people, and doing what was clearly wrong among his people.

¹⁹“‘What?’ you ask. ‘Doesn’t the child pay for the parent’s sins?’ No! For if the child does what is just and right and keeps my decrees, that child will surely live. ²⁰The person who sins is the one who will die. The child will not be punished for the parent’s sins, and the parent will not be punished for the child’s sins. Righteous people will be rewarded for their own righteous behavior, and wicked people will be punished for their own wickedness. ²¹But if wicked people turn away from all their sins and begin to obey my decrees and do what is just and right, they will surely live and not die. ²²All their past sins will be forgotten, and they will live because of the righteous things they have done.

²³“Do you think that I like to see wicked people die? says the Sovereign LORD. Of course not! I want them to turn from their wicked ways and live. ²⁴However, if righteous people turn from their righteous behavior and start doing sinful things and act like other sinners, should they be allowed to live? No, of course not! All their righteous acts will be forgotten, and they will die for their sins.

³⁰“Therefore, I will judge each of you, O people of Israel, according to your actions, says the Sovereign LORD. ³¹Repent, and ³²turn from your sins. Don’t let them destroy you! ³³Put all your rebellion behind you, and find yourselves a new heart and a new spirit. For why should you die, O people of Israel? ³⁴I don’t want you to die, says the Sovereign LORD. ³⁵Turn back and live!

A Funeral Song for Israel’s Kings

19“Sing this funeral song for the princes of Israel:

²“What is your mother?

A lioness among lions!

18:10-13 If the son of a righteous man does not walk in the ways of God or of his father, and his life is the opposite of everything the father stood for, he will be responsible for his own guilt and suffer God’s judgment.

18:14-18 The righteous son of an evil man will surely live. God will judge each person individually.

18:17 He helps the poor: Greek version reads He refuses to do evil.

18:21-24 Ezekiel introduces two more case studies. Wicked people who turn away from their sins can experience God’s forgiveness, and righteous people who begin sinning will be judged.

18:23-24 God does not like to see wicked people die, so he appointed Ezekiel as a watchman, whose role was to turn the wicked toward godly life while warning the righteous against falling away (3:16-19; 33:1-9).

18:25-29 Israel’s problem was not that the Lord wasn’t doing what’s right but that they were persistently doing what was wrong. They thoroughly deserved God’s judgment.

18:30-32 This chapter concludes with a passionate appeal to the people of Israel to turn back and live. It was not too late for them to repent, turn from their sins, and be forgiven. God promised a new heart and a new spirit (11:19; 36:26) to all who would turn from their rebellion and humbly come to him.

19:1-14 An ancient Near Eastern funeral song had a distinctive rhythm and style and usually extolled the virtues of the person who had died, contrasting past glory with the current loss. In this case, those being lamented were

She lay down among the young lions and reared her cubs.
³ She raised one of her cubs to become a strong young lion.
He learned to hunt and devour prey,
and he became a man-eater.
⁴ Then the nations heard about him, and he was trapped in their pit.
They led him away with hooks to the land of Egypt.
⁵ "When the lioness saw that her hopes for him were gone, she took another of her cubs and taught him to be a strong young lion.
⁶ He prowled among the other lions and stood out among them in his strength.
He learned to hunt and devour prey,
and he, too, became a man-eater.
⁷ He demolished fortresses and destroyed their towns and cities.
Their farms were desolated,
and their crops were destroyed.
The land and its people trembled in fear
when they heard him roar.
⁸ Then the armies of the nations attacked
him, surrounding him from every direction.
They threw a net over him
and captured him in their pit.
⁹ With hooks, they dragged him into a cage and brought him before the king of Babylon.

They held him in captivity, so his voice could never again be heard on the mountains of Israel.
¹⁰ "Your mother was like a vine planted by the water's edge.
It had lush, green foliage because of the abundant water.
¹¹ Its branches became strong—strong enough to be a ruler's scepter.
It grew very tall,
towering above all others.
It stood out because of its height and its many lush branches.
¹² But the vine was uprooted in fury and thrown down to the ground.
The desert wind dried up its fruit and tore off its strong branches, so that it withered
and was destroyed by fire.
¹³ Now the vine is transplanted to the wilderness,
where the ground is hard and dry.
¹⁴ A fire has burst out from its branches and devoured its fruit.
Its remaining limbs are not strong enough to be a ruler's scepter.
 "This is a funeral song, and it will be used in a funeral."

Israel's Past Rebellion

20 On August 14, during the seventh year of King Jehoiachin's captivity, some of the leaders of Israel came to request a message from the LORD. They sat down in front of me to wait for his reply. ²Then this message came to me from the not yet dead, and the dirge contained a catalogue of their faults. This dirge profoundly communicated the certainty of their fate and the reasons for it. • The lion (19:2-9) and the vine (19:10-14) were familiar images for the princes of Israel, the royal dynasty of Judah.

19:2-4 The first picture is of a lioness and one of her cubs, whom she chose as the leader of her pack. This cub represented Jehoahaz, who reigned for a mere three months before being carried to Egypt by Pharaoh Neco (2 Kgs 23:33-34). • hunt . . . devour prey . . . man-eater: The prophet characterizes Jehoahaz's brief reign in entirely negative terms. • Lions were traditionally hunted with a net and a pit, here a metaphor for the violent way that Jehoahaz would be carried away to Egypt.

19:5-7 The behavior of the second cub was similar to that of the first but even more violent, as he destroyed their towns and cities. This cub could represent Jehoiakim, Jehoiachin, or Zedekiah. It is not clear which towns and cities the king of Judah destroyed—the prophet might have been thinking of the negative effect that foolish foreign policy had on the cities and towns of Judah.

19:7 He demolished fortresses: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads He knew widows.

19:8-9 Jehoiakim (see note on 19:5-7) was captured and killed by the Babylonians in Judah. Jehoiachin was exiled to Babylon along with Ezekiel. Zedekiah's reign ended with the destruction of Jerusalem in 586 BC.

19:10 The vine is evidently Judah, whom the Lord had planted under optimum conditions.

19:11-12 Judah's pride led to its downfall as the Lord uprooted it in his wrath (cp. 17:1-10). He then replanted Judah in the desert of exile.

19:13-14 The fire (probably Zedekiah)

that came from the vine's own branches consumed the fruit (the land and people). After this destruction, there was no branch left that was strong enough to be a ruler's scepter. Zedekiah would have no immediate successor.

20:1-3 On August 14: Literally in the fifth month, on the tenth day of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar. This day was August 14, 591 BC; see also note on 1:1. Five more years would pass before the destruction of Jerusalem. • The leaders (literally elders) of Israel—the leaders of the community in exile—came to Ezekiel once again, looking for a word from the Lord (see note on 8:1). Normally, seeking a message from the LORD is a good thing. But these leaders had already been condemned for their mixed motives (see ch 14), and the Lord would not receive their request. The question they asked Ezekiel is not recorded—perhaps they never had the opportunity to ask it.

LORD: ³"Son of man, tell the leaders of Israel, 'This is what the Sovereign LORD says: How dare you come to ask me for a message? As surely as I live, says the Sovereign LORD, I will tell you nothing!'

⁴"Son of man, bring charges against them and condemn them. Make them realize how detestable the sins of their ancestors really were. ⁵Give them this message from the Sovereign LORD: When I chose Israel—when I revealed myself to the descendants of Jacob in Egypt—I took a solemn oath that I, the LORD, would be their God. ⁶I took a solemn oath that day that I would bring them out of Egypt to a land I had discovered and explored for them—a good land, a land flowing with milk and honey, the best of all lands anywhere. ⁷Then I said to them, 'Each of you, get rid of the vile images you are so obsessed with. Do not defile yourselves with the idols of Egypt, for I am the LORD your God.'

⁸"But they rebelled against me and would not listen. They did not get rid of the vile images they were obsessed with, or forsake the idols of Egypt. Then I threatened to pour out my fury on them to satisfy my anger while they were still in Egypt. ⁹But I didn't do it, for I acted to protect the honor of my name. I would not allow shame to be brought on my name among the surrounding nations who saw me reveal myself by bringing the Israelites out of Egypt. ¹⁰So I brought them out of Egypt and led them into the wilderness. ¹¹There I gave them my decrees and regulations so they could find life by keeping them. ¹²And I gave them my Sabbath days of rest as a sign between them and me. It was to remind them that I am the LORD, who had set them apart to be holy.

¹³"But the people of Israel rebelled against me, and they refused to obey my decrees there in the wilderness. They wouldn't obey my regulations even though obedience would have given them life. They also violated my Sabbath days. So I threatened to pour out my fury on them, and I made plans to utterly consume them in the wilderness. ¹⁴But again I held back in order to protect the honor of my name before the nations who had seen my power in bringing Israel out of Egypt. ¹⁵But I took a solemn oath against them in the wilderness. I swore I would not bring them into the land I had given them, a land flowing with milk and honey, the most beautiful place on earth. ¹⁶For they had rejected my regulations, refused to follow my decrees, and violated my Sabbath days. Their hearts were given to their idols. ¹⁷Nevertheless, I took pity on them and held back from destroying them in the wilderness.

¹⁸"Then I warned their children not to follow in their parents' footsteps, defiling themselves with their idols. ¹⁹I am the LORD your God,' I told them. 'Follow my decrees, pay attention to my regulations, ²⁰and keep my ^bSabbath days holy, for they are a sign to remind you that I am the LORD your God.'

²¹"But their children, too, rebelled against me. They refused to keep my decrees and follow my regulations, even though obedience would have given them life. And they also violated my Sabbath days. So again I threatened to pour out my fury on them in the wilderness. ²²Nevertheless, I withdrew my judgment against them to protect the honor of my name before the nations that had seen my power in bringing them out of Egypt. ²³But I took a solemn oath against them in the wilderness. I swore I would scatter them among all the nations ²⁴because they did not obey my regulations. They scorned my decrees by violating my Sabbath days and longing for the idols of their ancestors. ²⁵I gave them over to worthless decrees and regulations that would not lead to life. ²⁶I let them pollute themselves with the very gifts I had given them, and I allowed them to give their firstborn children as offerings to their gods—so I might devastate them and remind them that I alone am the LORD.

20:4-26 That the Lord would not answer their inquiry did not mean that he had nothing to say to them. Ezekiel would parade the detestable character of their ancestors before their eyes.

20:7 idols: The Hebrew term (literally round things) probably alludes to dung; also in 20:8, 16, 18, 24, 31, 39. See note on 6:4-7.

20:8-21 Each generation of Israelites rebelled against the Lord and refused to obey the commandments he gave them (20:8, 13, 21). Each time, the Lord threatened to pour out his fury upon them (20:8, 13, 21), but he relented for the honor of his name, lest the nations around them should think the Lord's power insufficient to bring his people into the Promised Land.

20:23 Because of their history of refusing to keep the Lord's decrees or obey his regulations, God determined to scatter them among all the nations.

20:25-26 I gave them over to worthless decrees and regulations . . . I let them pollute themselves: Or I gave them worthless decrees and regulations . . .

I polluted them. The Lord allowed the people of Israel to exercise their depravity in the complex and corrupting rituals of paganism and to suffer all of its terrible consequences (see Rom 1:18-25).

20:26 The Israelites even gave their firstborn children as offerings to the god Molech. This exactly reversed the Exodus, which freed the Israelites, the Lord's "firstborn son" (Exod 4:22), to offer pure worship in the Promised Land.

Judgment and Restoration

²⁷"Therefore, son of man, give the people of Israel this message from the Sovereign LORD: Your ancestors continued to blaspheme and betray me, ²⁸for when I brought them into the land I had promised them, they offered sacrifices on every high hill and under every green tree they saw! They roused my fury as they offered up sacrifices to their gods. They brought their perfumes and incense and poured out their liquid offerings to them. ²⁹I said to them, 'What is this high place where you are going?' (This kind of pagan shrine has been called Bama—"high place"—ever since.)

³²"You say, 'We want to be like the nations all around us, who serve idols of wood and stone.' But what you have in mind will never happen. ³³As surely as I live, says the Sovereign LORD, I will rule over you with an iron fist in great anger and with awesome power. ³⁴And in anger I will reach out with my strong hand and powerful arm, and I will bring you back from the lands where you are scattered. ³⁵I will bring you into the wilderness of the nations, and there I will judge you face to face. ³⁶I will judge you there just as I did your ancestors in the wilderness after bringing them out of Egypt, says the Sovereign LORD. ³⁷I will examine you carefully and hold you to the terms of the covenant. ³⁸I will purge you of all those who rebel and revolt against me. I will bring them out of the countries where they are in exile, but they will never enter the land of Israel. Then you will know that I am the LORD.

³⁹"As for you, O people of Israel, this is what the Sovereign LORD says: Go right ahead and worship your idols, but sooner or later you will obey me and will stop bringing shame on my holy name by worshiping idols. ⁴⁰For on my holy mountain, the great mountain of Israel, says the Sovereign LORD, the people of Israel will someday worship me, and I will accept them. There I will require that you bring me all your offerings and choice gifts and sacrifices. ⁴¹When I bring you home from exile, you will be like a pleasing sacrifice to me. And I will display my holiness through you as all the nations watch. ⁴²Then when I have brought you home to the land I promised with a solemn oath to give to your ancestors, you will know that I am the LORD. ⁴³You will look back on all the ways you defiled yourselves and will hate yourselves because of the evil you have done. ⁴⁴You will know that I am the LORD, O people of Israel, when I have honored my name by treating you mercifully in spite of your wickedness. I, the Sovereign LORD, have spoken!"

20:31 and give your little children to be burned as sacrifices: Or and make your little children pass through the fire.

20:32-38 As in the past, Israel's current rebellion had led to God's limited judgment, so that they were once again scattered among the nations. Earlier history made it clear that judgment would not be the end of the story, as the honor of God's name required that he fulfill his promises despite his people's sin. • Israel could never be like the nations all around . . . who serve idols of wood and stone (20:32). God had chosen them to be his and he would bring them back into the wilderness in a new exodus. It was not unmitigated good news, for a whole generation died in the wilderness after the first Exodus because of their sin. God would also judge and purge this generation in the wilderness, and those who were rebels, refusing to obey the Lord, would never enter the land of Israel. The wilderness of the nations would be their final resting place.

20:34 I will bring you back: Greek version reads I will welcome you. Cp. 2 Cor 6:17.

20:39-44 The people of Israel might continue to worship . . . idols, but in the end, they would worship God in spirit and in truth on his holy mountain (see chs 40-48, in which the purified worship of God is restored in the Temple; cp. John 4:21-24). God's purpose in choosing Israel to be a holy nation would ultimately stand. The people would be a pleasing sacrifice to him and would display God's holiness. The result of this new exodus would be pure worship, offered by a purified people who were saved by sovereign grace.

20:45-49 Verses 20:45-49 are numbered 21:1-5 in Hebrew text. • Like a parable, this prophecy both reveals and conceals its message, leading the people to complain that the prophet only talks in riddles (see Matt 13:10-17). It reveals the coming of an all-consuming judgment (a fire that will burn up every tree), but conceals who is being judged.

Sovereign LORD says: Hear the word of the LORD! I will set you on fire, and every tree, both green and dry, will be burned. The terrible flames will not be quenched and will scorch everything from south to north. ⁴⁸And everyone in the world will see that I, the LORD, have set this fire. It will not be put out.' "

⁴⁹Then I said, "O Sovereign LORD, they are saying of me, 'He only talks in riddles!' "

The Song of the LORD's Sword

21 Then this message came to me from the LORD: ²"Son of man, turn and face Jerusalem and prophesy against Israel and her sanctuaries. ³Tell her, 'This is what the LORD says: I am your enemy, O Israel, and I am about to unsheath my sword to destroy your people—the righteous and the wicked alike. ⁴Yes, I will cut off both the righteous and the wicked! I will draw my sword against everyone in the land from south to north. ⁵Everyone in the world will know that I am the LORD. My sword is in my hand, and it will not return to its sheath until its work is finished.'

⁶"Son of man, groan before the people! Groan before them with bitter anguish and a broken heart. ⁷When they ask why you are groaning, tell them, 'I groan because of the terrifying news I have heard. When it comes true, the boldest heart will melt with fear; all strength will disappear. Every spirit will faint; strong knees will become as weak as water. And the Sovereign LORD says: It is coming! It's on its way!'

⁸Then the LORD said to me, ⁹"Son of man, give the people this message from the LORD:

"A sword, a sword
is being sharpened and polished.

¹⁰ It is sharpened for terrible slaughter and polished to flash like lightning! Now will you laugh?

Those far stronger than you have fallen beneath its power!

¹¹ Yes, the sword is now being sharpened and polished;
it is being prepared for the executioner.

¹² "Son of man, cry out and wail;
pound your thighs in anguish, for that sword will slaughter my people and their leaders—
everyone will die!

¹³ It will put them all to the test.
What chance do they have?
says the Sovereign LORD.

¹⁴ "Son of man, prophesy to them and clap your hands.
Then take the sword and brandish it twice,
even three times,
to symbolize the great massacre, the great massacre facing them on every side.

¹⁵ Let their hearts melt with terror,
for the sword glitters at every gate.
It flashes like lightning and is polished for slaughter!

¹⁶ O sword, slash to the right, then slash to the left,
wherever you will,
wherever you want.

¹⁷ I, too, will clap my hands, and I will satisfy my fury.
I, the LORD, have spoken!"

Omens for Babylon's King

¹⁸Then this message came to me from the LORD: ¹⁹"Son of man, make a map and trace

20:47 A green tree does not normally burn easily, whereas a dry tree provides easy kindling. This fire of judgment would be so intense that it would burn all kinds of trees.

21:1-32 Verses 21:1-32 are numbered 21:6-37 in Hebrew text. • This chapter is unified by references to a sword (21:3-5, 9, 11-12, 14-16, 19, 28-30), which in each case depicts God's judgment.

21:3-5 The Lord was the fundamental enemy whom Israel had to fear, for he was about to unleash an all-encompassing judgment against it. • One would expect the righteous to avoid judgment and the wicked to receive it. This pairing parallels the green tree and the dry tree of the parable (20:47-48). The judgment of sin would be like a very hot fire burning all it touched.

21:6-7 Ezekiel's groaning showed that in the coming judgment, the boldest heart would melt and the strong knees would become . . . weak. The judgment that had previously been announced had now become a bitter reality (cp. 7:1-4).

21:8-11 a sword is being sharpened and polished: These processes prepared a weapon for deadly effectiveness; once it was prepared, it would be handed over to the executioner, who would use it against God's people.

21:10 Now will you laugh? Those far stronger than you have fallen beneath its power! The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

21:12 cry out and wail: Ezekiel would represent the people's response to the judgment.

21:13 The meaning of the Hebrew in the first two lines is uncertain.

21:14-17 As the representative of the Lord, Ezekiel was to clap his hands in a threatening gesture and take the sword and brandish it . . . three times to represent the completeness of the coming massacre. There would be nowhere to run and nowhere to hide from the slashing sword of judgment when the Lord was ready to satisfy his fury by destroying his people. Their hearts would melt with terror at the awful massacre.

21:18-20 The sword of the Lord was not an abstract metaphor; it would take shape as the sword of Babylon's king. Nebuchadnezzar's preparation for this campaign was depicted when Ezekiel drew a map showing Nebuchadnezzar's two possible campaign objectives—

two routes on it for the sword of Babylon's king to follow. Put a signpost on the road that comes out of Babylon where the road forks into two—²⁰one road going to Ammon and its capital, Rabbah, and the other to Judah and fortified Jerusalem. ²¹The king of Babylon now stands at the fork, uncertain whether to attack Jerusalem or Rabbah. He calls his magicians to look for omens. They cast lots by shaking arrows from the quiver. They inspect the livers of animal sacrifices. ²²The omen in his right hand says, 'Jerusalem!' With battering rams his soldiers will go against the gates, shouting for the kill. They will put up siege towers and build ramps against the walls. ²³The people of Jerusalem will think it is a false omen, because of their treaty with the Babylonians. But the king of Babylon will remind the people of their rebellion. Then he will attack and capture them.

²⁴Therefore, this is what the Sovereign LORD says: Again and again you remind me of your sin and your guilt. You don't even try to hide it! In everything you do, your sins are obvious for all to see. So now the time of your punishment has come!

²⁵O you corrupt and wicked prince of Israel, your final day of reckoning is here! ²⁶This is what the Sovereign LORD says:

"Take off your jeweled crown,
for the old order changes.
Now the lowly will be exalted,
and the mighty will be brought down.

²⁷ Destruction! Destruction!
I will surely destroy the kingdom.
And it will not be restored until the one appears

who has the right to judge it.
Then I will hand it over to him.

A Message for the Ammonites

²⁸"And now, son of man, prophesy concerning the Ammonites and their mockery. Give them this message from the Sovereign LORD:

"A sword, a sword
is drawn for your slaughter.
It is polished to destroy,
flashing like lightning!

²⁹ Your prophets have given false visions, and your fortune-tellers have told lies.
The sword will fall on the necks of the wicked
for whom the day of final reckoning has come.

³⁰ "Now return the sword to its sheath,
for in your own country,
the land of your birth,
I will pass judgment upon you.

³¹ I will pour out my fury on you and blow on you with the fire of my anger.

I will hand you over to cruel men who are skilled in destruction.

³² You will be fuel for the fire, and your blood will be spilled in your own land.

You will be utterly wiped out,
your memory lost to history,
for I, the LORD, have spoken!"

from the LORD: ²"Son of man, are 21:21 Omens were supposedly signs from the gods that were obtained through divination. • cast lots by shaking arrows . . . inspect the livers: These were common methods of seeking omens from the gods.

21:23-24 A treaty with the Babylonians would not save the people of Jerusalem because they had been unfaithful to the terms of that treaty. The king of Babylon would remind the people of their rebellion by publicly demonstrating that rebellion against a covenant overlord had consequences. If this was true of rebellion against their Babylonian master, how much more when they rebelled against the LORD?

21:25-27 This judgment would extend against Zedekiah, the corrupt and wicked prince of Israel, as well as against the people. Ezekiel identifies Zedekiah by title rather than by name, indicating that his office was also under judgment. He would be stripped of the emblems of royalty and brought low, while the LORD exalted the lowly. The old order would experience destruction.

• the one appears who has the right to judge it: This coming judge is often understood to be the Messiah (cp. Gen 49:10). In this context, however, the LORD was handing Judah over to the Babylonians for judgment (see 23:24).
Ezekiel was probably reshaping the traditional messianic oracle of Gen 49:10 into a message of imminent judgment by the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, acting as an agent of God. God temporarily took away the scepter from Judah because Israel's rulers had sinned, but he would eventually give it back.

21:28-29 The Ammonites had no cause to rejoice in the reprieve that came when Nebuchadnezzar went toward Jerusalem rather than Rabbah (21:18-20)—they, too, were among the wicked for whom the day of final reckoning had come.

21:30-32 The sword would return . . . to its sheath, not to rest there, but to accomplish the LORD's judgment against its own country, Babylon. God would also pour out . . . fury and the fire of his anger on Babylon. It had no special protection simply because God had used it as his tool in judging others.
Judgment may have begun with God's household (1 Pet 4:17), but it did not end there. God's judgment included the pagan nations around Judah.

22:1-31 Jerusalem, the holy city where God had placed his name, was the spiritual heart of Judah. It had been corrupted and defiled; instead of being filled with God, Jerusalem was filled with bloodshed. As a result, God's wrath would certainly fall on the city.

ready to judge this city of murderers? Publicly denounce her detestable sins,³ and give her this message from the Sovereign LORD: O city of murderers, doomed and damned—city of idols, filthy and foul—you are guilty because of the blood you have shed. You are defiled because of the idols you have made. Your day of destruction has come! You have reached the end of your years. I will make you an object of mockery throughout the world.⁵ O infamous city, filled with confusion, you will be mocked by people far and near.

⁶Every leader in Israel who lives within your walls is bent on murder. ⁷Fathers and mothers are treated with contempt. Foreigners are forced to pay for protection. Orphans and widows are wronged and oppressed among you. ⁸You despise my holy things and violate my Sabbath days of rest. ⁹People accuse others falsely and send them to their death. You are filled with idol worshipers and people who do obscene things. ¹⁰Men sleep with their fathers' wives and force themselves on women who are menstruating. ¹¹Within your walls live men who commit adultery with their neighbors' wives, who defile their daughters-in-law, or who rape their own sisters. ¹²There are hired murderers, loan racketeers, and extortioners everywhere. They never even think of me and my commands, says the Sovereign LORD.

¹³But now I clap my hands in indignation over your dishonest gain and bloodshed. ¹⁴How strong and courageous will you be in my day of reckoning? I, the LORD, have spoken, and I will do what I said. ¹⁵I will scatter you among the nations and purge you of your wickedness. ¹⁶And when I have been dishonored among the nations because of you, you will know that I am the LORD."

The LORD's Refining Furnace

¹⁷Then this message came to me from the LORD: ¹⁸"Son of man, the people of Israel are the worthless slag that remains after silver is smelted. They are the dross that is left over—a useless mixture of copper, tin, iron, and lead. ¹⁹So tell them, 'This is what the Sovereign LORD says: Because you are all worthless slag, I will bring you to my crucible in Jerusalem. ²⁰Just as silver, copper, iron, lead, and tin are melted down in a furnace, I will melt you down in the heat of my fury. ²¹I will gather you together and blow the fire of my anger upon you, ²²and you will melt like silver in fierce heat. Then you will know that I, the LORD, have poured out my fury on you.'"

The Sins of Israel's Leaders

²³Again a message came to me from the LORD: ²⁴"Son of man, give the people of Israel this message: In the day of my indignation, you will be like a polluted land, a land without rain. ²⁵Your princes plot conspiracies just as lions stalk their prey. They devour innocent people, seizing treasures and extorting wealth. They make many widows in the land. ²⁶Your priests have violated my instructions and defiled my holy things. They make no distinction between what is holy and what is not. And they do not teach my people the difference between what

22:1-5 Now Ezekiel was called upon to act as a prosecutor by detailing the indictment against Jerusalem that would bring about its judgment. The city was guilty of sins against fellow human beings, including the blood they had shed (see Gen 9:5-6), and of sins against God, such as making idols (see Exod 20:4-6). These two classes of sin defiled the city and made it guilty, liable to judgment and unfit to appear in the presence of the holy God. As a result, Jerusalem faced guaranteed destruction and scorn. • idols: The Hebrew term (literally round things) probably alludes to dung; also in 22:4. See note on 6:4-7.

22:6-12 These charges against the people of Judah and their leaders were all drawn from God's law, especially from Lev 18–20, 25. Such unfaithfulness to their covenant with the Lord could have only one result: The people of Israel would experience the covenant curses (Deut 8:19-20; 28:15-68).

22:7 Foreigners are forced to pay for protection: Cp. Exod 22:21; 23:9; Lev 19:33-34; Deut 10:18-19.

22:10 fathers' wives: See Lev 18:7-8. • force themselves on women who are menstruating: See Lev 15:19-24.

22:13-16 God expressed his wrath first in the angry gesture of clapping his hands and then by pouring out judgment. The first judgment was that God would scatter the people of Judah among the nations to purge them of their wickedness.

22:16 when I have been dishonored among the nations because of you: As in one Hebrew manuscript and Greek and Syriac versions; Masoretic Text reads when you have been dishonored among the nations. Having his people scattered among the nations instead of dwelling in the land of promise inevitably dishonored the Lord, since it appeared that he was unable to give them what he had promised.

However, the Lord was willing to endure that dishonor so that his forgetful people could learn to remember him.

22:17-22 Scattering was not the only aspect of judgment. God would also gather Judah into Jerusalem for judgment as metal is gathered into a smelter's furnace. This refining fire would not yield a purified remnant. Since only worthless slag would go in, only worthless molten slag would come out. The judgment would not cleanse the people but would destroy everything in its path.

22:23-24 The previous judgments on Jerusalem had not had a cleansing effect; Jerusalem remained polluted.

22:25-29 This list of Jerusalem's sins focuses on the sins of the leaders in Judah (cp. Zeph 3:3-4). • princes (as in Greek version; Hebrew reads prophets): The princes and other leaders had abused their power by killing innocent people is ceremonially clean and unclean. They disregard my Sabbath days so that I am dishonored among them. ²⁷Your leaders are like wolves who tear apart their victims. They actually destroy people's lives for money! ²⁸And your prophets cover up for them by announcing false visions and making lying predictions. They say, 'My message is from the Sovereign LORD,' when the LORD hasn't spoken a single word to them. ²⁹Even common people oppress the poor, rob the needy, and deprive foreigners of justice.

³⁰"I looked for someone who might rebuild the wall of righteousness that guards the land. I searched for someone to stand in the gap in the wall so I wouldn't have to destroy the land, but I found no one. ³¹So now I will pour out my fury on them, consuming them with the fire of my anger. I will heap on their heads the full penalty for all their sins. I, the Sovereign LORD, have spoken!"

The Parable of Two Degenerate Sisters

23 This message came to me from the LORD: ²⁴"Son of man, once there were two sisters who were daughters of the same mother. ²⁵They became prostitutes in Egypt. Even as young girls, they allowed men to fondle their breasts. ²⁶The older girl was named Oholah, and her sister was Oholibah. I married them, and they bore me sons and daughters. I am speaking of Samaria and Jerusalem, for Oholah is Samaria and Oholibah is Jerusalem.

²⁷"Then Oholah lusted after other lovers instead of me, and she gave her love to the Assyrian officers. ²⁸They were all attractive young men, captains and commanders dressed in handsome blue, charioteers driving their horses. ²⁹And so she prostituted herself with the most desirable men of Assyria, worshiping their idols and defiling herself. ³⁰For when she left Egypt, she did not leave her spirit of prostitution behind. She was still as lewd as in her youth, when the Egyptians slept with her, fondled her breasts, and used her as a prostitute.

³¹"And so I handed her over to her Assyrian lovers, whom she desired so much. ³²They stripped her, took away her children as their slaves, and then killed her. After she received her punishment, her reputation was known to every woman in the land.

³⁶"Then she carried her prostitution even further. She fell in love with pictures that were painted on a wall—pictures of Babylonian military officers, outfitted in striking red uniforms. ³⁷Handsomeness encircled their waists, and flowing turbans crowned their heads. They were dressed like chariot officers from the land of Babylon. ³⁸When she saw these paintings, she longed to give herself to them, so she sent and seizing their wealth. The priests had sinned by not teaching people the law so that they could distinguish between holy and profane, clean and unclean. The prophets announced false visions instead of a true word from God. As a result, the people went astray for lack of guidance.

22:30-31 In response to the sins of these former community leaders, the Lord sought someone who would rebuild the wall and stand in the gap as a true prophet (see 13:5), someone who would intercede for the people, as Moses did after the people sinned with the gold calf (Exod 32). The Lord found no one to deflect his wrath, so his fury would now be poured out upon them in full measure (cp. 11:21).

23:1-49 This chapter, like ch 16, gives the history of the northern and southern kingdoms of Israel and Judah in the form of an extended metaphor. It graphically depicts Samaria and Jerusa- lem, the capital cities, as two immoral women. The metaphor emphasizes that their judgment was inevitable and well-deserved.

23:2 sisters . . . daughters of the same mother: They were descendants of the same nation, and their lives were essentially parallel. Even their names, Oholah and Oholibah, sound similar.

23:3 They became prostitutes by worshipping false gods.

23:4 Marriage is commonly used in the Bible as a symbol for the covenant relationship between God and his people (e.g., Isa 54:1-8; Eph 5:22-33). Adultery symbolizes Israel's spiritual unfaithfulness (e.g., Hos 1-3). God makes his covenants in spite of, not because of, his people's character (Rom 5:6-11).

23:5-8 Oholah: The northern kingdom, far from being converted by God's covenant of grace, was fascinated with the power and prestige of Assyria. Alliances with Assyria were part of Israel's political strategy from the 800s BC, but in the end, such alliances did not keep Israel safe.

23:7 idols: The Hebrew term (literally round things) probably alludes to dung; also in 23:30, 37, 39, 49. See note on 6:4-7.

23:9-10 The northern kingdom was overrun by the Assyrian army in 722 BC, and its people were dispersed throughout the Assyrian empire.

23:11-18 Samaria's reputation and punishment were known to everyone in Ezekiel's time. Her sister, Oholibah (Jerusalem), followed the same pattern of life and was even worse than her sister. What a succession of Judah's kings regarded as wise political maneuvering—seeking alliances with Babylon as well as with Assyria—the prophet presents as a pattern of consistent, ever-deepening spiritual adultery.

23:14-16 Babylonian . . . Babylon: Or Chaldean . . . Chaldaea.

messengers to Babylonia to invite them to come to her. ¹⁷So they came and committed adultery with her, defiling her in the bed of love. After being defiled, however, she rejected them in disgust.

¹⁸In the same way, I became disgusted with Oholibah and rejected her, just as I had rejected her sister, because she flaunted herself before them and gave herself to satisfy their lusts. ¹⁹Yet she turned to even greater prostitution, remembering her youth when she was a prostitute in Egypt. ²⁰She lusted after lovers with genitals as large as a donkey's and emissions like those of a horse. ²¹And so, Oholibah, you relived your former days as a young girl in Egypt, when you first allowed your breasts to be fondled.

The Lord's Judgment on Oholibah

²²Therefore, Oholibah, this is what the Sovereign LORD says: I will send your lovers against you from every direction—those very nations from which you turned away in disgust. ²³For the Babylonians will come with all the Chaldeans from Pekod and Shoa and Koa. And all the Assyrians will come with them—handsome young captains, commanders, chariot officers, and other high-ranking officers, all riding their horses. ²⁴They will all come against you from the north with chariots, wagons, and a great army prepared for attack. They will take up positions on every side, surrounding you with men armed with shields and helmets. And I will hand you over to them for punishment so they can do with you as they please. ²⁵I will turn my jealous anger against you, and they will deal harshly with you. They will cut off your nose and ears, and any survivors will then be slaughtered by the sword. Your children will be taken away as captives, and everything that is left will be burned. ²⁶They will strip you of your beautiful clothes and jewels. ²⁷In this way, I will put a stop to the lewdness and prostitution you brought from Egypt. You will never again cast longing eyes on those things or fondly remember your time in Egypt.

²⁸For this is what the Sovereign LORD says: I will surely hand you over to your enemies, to those you loathe, those you rejected. ²⁹They will treat you with hatred and rob you of all you own, leaving you stark naked. The shame of your prostitution will be exposed to all the world. ³⁰You brought all this on yourself by prostituting yourself to other nations, defiling yourself with all their idols. ³¹Because you have followed in your sister's footsteps, I will force you to drink the same cup of terror she drank.

³²Yes, this is what the Sovereign LORD says:

"You will drink from your sister's cup of terror,
a cup that is large and deep.
It is filled to the brim with scorn and derision.

³³Drunkenness and anguish will fill you, for your cup is filled to the brim with distress and desolation, the same cup your sister Samaria drank.

³⁴You will drain that cup of terror to the very bottom.
Then you will smash it to pieces and beat your breast in anguish.
I, the Sovereign LORD, have spoken!

³⁵And because you have forgotten me and turned your back on me, this is what the Sovereign LORD says: You must bear the consequences of all your lewdness and prostitution."

The Lord's Judgment on Both Sisters

³⁶The LORD said to me, "Son of man, you must accuse Oholah and Oholibah of all their detestable sins. ³⁷They have committed both adultery and murder—adultery by worshiping idols and murder by burning as sacrifices the children they bore to me. ³⁸Furthermore, they have defiled my Temple and violated my Sabbath day! ³⁹On the 23:19-20 When the people of Jerusalem thought of Egypt, they did not remember the Lord's deliverance through the Exodus, but the forbidden pleasures they had enjoyed there.

23:22-24 Jerusalem's depravity made God's judgment inevitable. The very nations that she courted as her lovers would abuse her. Babylon would bring its allies, Pekod, Shoa, and Koa. The names of these obscure tribes rhyme and sound like Hebrew words meaning "Punishment," "War cry," and "Shriek." Judah's sins were greater than her sister's, and her judgment would also be worse.

23:24 from the north: As in the Greek version; the meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

23:25-29 Stripping an adulterous wife naked—to expose in public what she had done in private—was a punishment for adultery (see note on 16:35-38). The Babylonians similarly stripped Jerusalem and Judah of everything valuable and exposed them to their own shame.

23:31-34 your sister's cup of terror: Jerusalem would have to drink from this bitter cup of judgment, as Samaria had. The pain of that judgment would cause her to beat (or tear at) her breast in anguish.

23:36-43 The prophet again adopted the role of prosecuting attorney, whose task was to confront Jerusalem with her sins (described in detail in ch 22). Far from being holy cities, Jerusalem and Samaria had become worn-out prostitutes whose only attractiveness was in their availability.

very day that they sacrificed their children to their idols, they boldly came into my Temple to worship! They came in and defiled my house.

⁴⁰You sisters sent messengers to distant lands to get men. Then when they arrived, you bathed yourselves, painted your eyelids, and put on your finest jewels for them.

⁴¹You sat with them on a beautifully embroidered couch and put my incense and my special oil on a table that was spread before you. ⁴²From your room came the sound of many men carousing. They were lustful men and drunkards from the wilderness, who put bracelets on your wrists and beautiful crowns on your heads. ⁴³Then I said, 'If they really want to have sex with old worn-out prostitutes like these, let them!' ⁴⁴And that is what they did. They had sex with Oholah and Oholibah, these shameless prostitutes. ⁴⁵But righteous people will judge these sister cities for what they really are—adulterers and murderers.

⁴⁶"Now this is what the Sovereign LORD says: Bring an army against them and hand them over to be terrorized and plundered. ⁴⁷For their enemies will stone them and kill them with swords. They will butcher their sons and daughters and burn their homes. ⁴⁸In this way, I will put an end to lewdness and idolatry in the land, and my judgment will be a warning to all women not to follow your wicked example. ⁴⁹You will be fully repaid for all your prostitution—your worship of idols. Yes, you will suffer the full penalty. Then you will know that I am the Sovereign LORD."

The Parable of the Cooking Pot

24 On January 15, during the ninth year of King Jehoiachin's captivity, this message came to me from the LORD: ²"Son of man, write down today's date, because on this very day the king of Babylon is beginning his attack against Jerusalem. ³Then give these rebels an 'illustration with this message from the Sovereign LORD:

"Put a pot on the fire,
and pour in some water.

⁴ Fill it with choice pieces of meat—the rump and the shoulder and all the most tender cuts.

⁵ Use only the best sheep from the flock, and heap fuel on the fire beneath the pot.

Bring the pot to a boil,
and cook the bones along with the meat.

⁶ "Now this is what the Sovereign LORD says:

What sorrow awaits Jerusalem,
the city of murderers!

She is a cooking pot whose corruption can't be cleaned out.
Take the meat out in random order,
for no piece is better than another.

⁷ For the blood of her murders is splashed on the rocks.

It isn't even spilled on the ground,
where the dust could cover it!

⁸ So I will splash her blood on a rock for all to see, an expression of my anger and vengeance against her.

⁹ "This is what the Sovereign LORD says:
What sorrow awaits Jerusalem,
the city of murderers!
I myself will pile up the fuel beneath her.

¹⁰ Yes, heap on the wood!
Let the fire roar to make the pot boil.
Cook the meat with many spices,
and afterward burn the bones.

23:42 drunkards: An alternate reading in the Masoretic Text reads Sabeans.

23:44-49 The sisters' enemies would stone them like adulteresses and kill them with swords as an invading army would do. In the typical pattern of invasion, not only the prostitutes but also their sons and daughters would die, and the enemy would burn their homes. Those who rebelled against the Lord and pursued idolatry would suffer the full penalty, which is nothing short of death.

24:1-14 At first sight, the picture of a cooking pot is positive, conjuring expectations of good food and fellowship. Various choice pieces of a sacrificial animal had been gathered, a fire was kindled underneath the pot, and the contents were brought to a simmer. However, as in many parables, there is a sting in the tail of the story. What ought to have been a tasty meal had become a foul, profane mess. The choice pieces of meat that had gone in were uniformly corrupt when they came out. The pot represented Jerusalem (24:9); its contents would be burned and destroyed.

24:1 On January 15: Literally On the tenth day of the tenth month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar. This event occurred on Jan 15, 588 BC; see also note on 1:1. Ezekiel had been warning the people of this event, and it had now finally arrived (see also 2 Kgs 25:1-2).

24:2 is beginning his attack against (literally is leaning on): The same terminology was used when a worshiper pressed his hands on the animal he had brought to be sacrificed (Lev 1:4; 3:2). Jerusalem was thus identified as the sacrificial lamb to be slaughtered to the glory of God.

24:3 The people of Jerusalem were rebels against their treaty with Babylon and against their covenant with the Lord.

24:6-8 The cooking pot was beyond cleansing. Jerusalem was full of blood that she had shed and left exposed. The OT required that the blood of animals shed for meat be covered with earth (Lev 17:13). By leaving the blood of her innocent victims exposed, Jerusalem was doubly guilty. Her own blood would justly be splashed on the rocks (cp. Ps 137:8-9).

24:9-12 God declared that he would now make the cooking pot, Jerusalem.

14 "I, the LORD, have spoken! The time has come, and I won't hold back. I will not change my mind, and I will have no pity on you. You will be judged on the basis of all your wicked actions, says the Sovereign LORD."

The Death of Ezekiel's Wife

15 Then this message came to me from the LORD: 16 "Son of man, with one blow I will take away your dearest treasure. Yet you must not show any sorrow at her death. Do not weep; let there be no tears. 17 Groan silently, but let there be no wailing at her grave. Do not uncover your head or take off your sandals. Do not perform the usual rituals of mourning or accept any food brought to you by consoling friends."

18 So I proclaimed this to the people the next morning, and in the evening my wife died. The next morning I did everything I had been told to do. 19 Then the people asked, "What does all this mean? What are you trying to tell us?"

20 So I said to them, "A message came to me from the LORD, 21 and I was told to give this message to the people of Israel. This is what the Sovereign LORD says: I will defile my Temple, the source of your security and pride, the place your heart delights in. Your sons and daughters whom you left behind in Judah will be slaughtered by the sword. 22 Then you will do as Ezekiel has done. You will not mourn in public or console yourselves by eating the food brought by friends. 23 Your heads will remain covered, and your sandals will not be taken off. You will not mourn or weep, but you will waste away because of your sins. You will groan among yourselves for all the evil you have done. 24 Ezekiel is an example for you; you will do just as he has done. And when that time comes, you will know that I am the Sovereign LORD."

25 Then the LORD said to me, "Son of man, on the day I take away their stronghold—their joy and glory, their heart's desire, their dearest treasure—I will also take away their sons and daughters. 26 And on that day a survivor from Jerusalem will come to you in Babylon and tell you what has happened. 27 And when he arrives, your voice will suddenly return so you can talk to him, and you will be a symbol for these people. Then they will know that I am the LORD."

3. ORACLES AGAINST THE NATIONS (25:1–32:32)

A Message against Ammon (25:1-7)

25 Then this message came to me from the LORD: 2 "Son of man, turn and face the land of Ammon and prophesy as red hot as if it were in a refiner's furnace. Even this fire would not purge its corruption, however, for Jerusalem's impurity was indelible.

24:13-14 All that remained for Jerusalem was judgment without pity because of her wicked deeds and her refusal to turn back to the Lord.

24:15-17 Nowhere is a prophet's total involvement in his message demonstrated more vividly than when God took the life of Ezekiel's wife, and Ezekiel was not allowed to mourn his dearest treasure openly. Ezekiel was a priest (1:3), and all priests had restrictions placed on their mourning. The public rituals of torn clothes and an unkempt appearance would make one unclean, and priests were not permitted to make themselves unclean for any but the closest blood relatives (Lev 21:1-4). Ezekiel's lack of mourning was also a sign act that showed what was about to happen to Israel (24:20-24; see "Prophetic Sign Acts" at 4:1-17, p. 1319).

24:20-24 Ezekiel's lack of mourning (24:15-17) was a sign to Israel of what lay ahead for them. The Lord was about to take away the place your heart delights in—the Temple of Jerusalem. God was going to desecrate it and destroy the sons and daughters they had left behind in Jerusalem. On that day, the people would behave as Ezekiel had done; they would not mourn in public or carry out the associated rituals. Though they would feel the loss deeply in their hearts, the scale of the devastation would be so overwhelming that there would be no opportunity for normal mourning rites. In the context of such terrible and complete desolation, only internal grief could be observed.

24:25-27 In the midst of this deep gloom and woe, on the very day when a survivor would arrive to confirm the fall of Jerusalem, there would also be a sign of hope for the people. On that day, Ezekiel's voice would suddenly return (see 3:26), and he would once again be able to pray to God for the people and intercede on their behalf. The final destruction of Jerusalem would complete the full outpouring of God's wrath and fury. On that day, Ezekiel would finally be able to speak words of hope to the shattered remnant of the exiles, so that they might know the Lord.

25:1–32:32 This section contains a series of oracles against surrounding nations. There are six shorter oracles against Judah's immediate neighbors, in clockwise geographical order, followed by a climactic seventh oracle against Egypt (chs 30–32). Through their experience of God's judgment, the nations would recognize God's sovereignty over all things. The nations might be used to bring about God's judgment of his people, but that would not exempt them from judgment. • One of the key purposes of these oracles against the nations was to affirm that the negative side of God's covenant with Abraham ("I will . . . curse those who treat you with against its people. ³Give the Ammonites this message from the Sovereign LORD: Hear the word of the Sovereign LORD! Because you cheered when my Temple was defiled, mocked Israel in her desolation, and laughed at Judah as she went away into exile, ⁴I will allow nomads from the eastern deserts to overrun your country. They will set up their camps among you and pitch their tents on your land. They will harvest all your fruit and drink the milk from your livestock. ⁵And I will turn the city of Rabbah into a pasture for camels, and all the land of the Ammonites into a resting place for sheep and goats. Then you will know that I am the LORD.

⁶"This is what the Sovereign LORD says: Because you clapped and danced and cheered with glee at the destruction of my people, ⁷I will raise my fist of judgment against you. I will give you as plunder to many nations. I will cut you off from being a nation and destroy you completely. Then you will know that I am the LORD.

A Message against Moab (25:8-11)

⁸"This is what the Sovereign LORD says: Because the people of Moab have said that Judah is just like all the other nations, ⁹I will open up their eastern flank and wipe out their glorious frontier towns—Beth-jeshimoth, Baal-meon, and Kiriathaim. ¹⁰And I will hand Moab over to nomads from the eastern deserts, just as I handed over Ammon. Yes, the Ammonites will no longer be counted among the nations. ¹¹In the same way, I will bring my judgment down on the Moabites. Then they will know that I am the LORD.

A Message against Edom (25:12-14)

¹²"This is what the Sovereign LORD says: The people of Edom have sinned greatly by avenging themselves against the people of Judah. ¹³Therefore, says the Sovereign LORD, I will raise my fist of judgment against Edom. I will wipe out its people and animals with the sword. I will make a wasteland of everything from Teman to Dedan. ¹⁴I will accomplish this by the hand of my people of Israel. They will carry out my vengeance with anger, and Edom will know that this vengeance is from me. I, the Sovereign LORD, have spoken!

A Message against Philistia (25:15-17)

¹⁵"This is what the Sovereign LORD says: The people of Philistia have acted against Judah out of bitter revenge and long-standing contempt. ¹⁶Therefore, this is what the Sovereign LORD says: I will raise my fist of judgment against the land of the Philistines. I will wipe out the Kerethites and utterly destroy the people who live by the sea. ¹⁷I will execute terrible vengeance against them to punish them for what they have done. And when I have inflicted my revenge, they will know that I am the LORD."

Coming Judgment: A Barren Rock

contempt," Gen 12:3) was in force. No one can assault God's people and escape unscathed, even when God's people are themselves under his judgment.

25:3-7 Because the Ammonites rejoiced over Judah's downfall and celebrated the destruction of Israel's Temple, they would experience invasion and destruction, as the prophet had already warned (21:28-32). Others would eat the Ammonites' produce and their people would be exterminated, just as had happened to Judah. The Ammonites' gods would be unable to save them from the Lord's wrath, and they would know that the Lord is the true God.

25:8-11 The people of Moab thought that they could attack Judah with impunity, as though it were just like all the other nations. This was not true—even though Judah had been acting as though it were (see 20:32)—because Judah had a covenant with God, and God would not ultimately reject Judah.

Instead, like Ammon, Moab would be removed from the register of the nations and left perpetually desolate.

25:12-14 Ammon and Moab gloated at Judah's downfall, but Edom actively participated in it (see 35:5; Obad 1:1-21).

• avenging: The people of Edom cut down fugitives and handed over survivors in aid of the Babylonians (Obad 1:11-14). They were opportunists, settling old scores that dated back to the ancient conflict between Jacob and Esau (Gen 27:41); they gained what they could for themselves out of Judah's difficulties. In return, the Lord would desolate their land.

25:15-17 The Philistines also had a long-standing contempt for Judah. Their crimes are not specified, but they did not escape the Lord's notice, and he would return vengeance for vengeance. Then they, too, would recognize the Lord's sovereign power. • The Kerethites were a Philistine tribe (see 1 Sam 30:14).

26:1-28:19 The message against Tyre, Israel's northwestern neighbor, is much more substantial than the short oracles preceding it. It takes the form of three nearly parallel panels (26:2-21; 27:1-36; and 28:1-19), each presenting a variation on the same message—that Tyre would come to a horrible end and exist no more (27:36).

26:1 On February 3, during the twelfth year of King Jehoiachin's captivity: Literally In the eleventh year, on the first day of the month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar year. Since an element is missing in the date formula here, scholars have reconstructed this probable reading: In the eleventh [month of the twelfth] year, on the first day of the month. This reading would put this message on February 3, 585 BC—about seven months after the fall of Jerusalem. Also see note on 1:1.

26:2 Like its neighbors, Tyre rejoiced over the fall of Jerusalem, which she has been made desolate, I will become wealthy!

³"Therefore, this is what the Sovereign LORD says: I am your enemy, O Tyre, and I will bring many nations against you, like the waves of the sea crashing against your shoreline. ⁴They will destroy the walls of Tyre and tear down its towers. I will scrape away its soil and make it a bare rock! ⁵It will be just a rock in the sea, a place for fishermen to spread their nets, for I have spoken, says the Sovereign LORD. Tyre will become the prey of many nations, ⁶and its mainland villages will be destroyed by the sword. Then they will know that I am the LORD.

oteers, and great army. ⁸First he will destroy your mainland villages. Then he will attack you by building a siege wall, constructing a ramp, and raising a roof of shields against you. ⁹He will pound your walls with battering rams and demolish your towers with sledgehammers. ¹⁰The hooves of his horses will choke the city with dust, and the noise of the charioteers and chariot wheels will shake your walls as they storm through your broken gates. ¹¹His horsemen will trample through every street in the city. They will butcher your people, and your strong pillars will topple.

¹²"They will plunder all your riches and merchandise and break down your walls. They will destroy your lovely homes and dump your stones and timbers and even your dust into the sea. ¹³I will stop the music

Why would a prophet from Judah address a prolonged discourse, such as chs 25–32, to nations that he had probably never visited and who would in all likelihood never hear the messages uttered against them? Why was he concerned about what these nations thought and did? It was because the real audience was the people of Judah.

These messages reminded God's people that God does not operate on a double standard, judging the sins of his own people while the nations around them were free to act as they wished. In many cases, God had used these wicked nations to punish his people. Though judgment begins with God's own household (1 Pet 4:17), it certainly does not end there. God will judge all, both inside and outside Israel, who rebel against him and his reign. All must come to acknowledge the Lord as the one true and sovereign God. The people of Judah had also been inclined to trust some of these nations (such as Egypt) to rescue them from God's judgment. The prophets reminded the people that no nation on earth can be trusted in place of God. In the end, all of them will bow before him.

The messages against the foreign nations also reminded the covenant community that in spite of God's judgment on them because of their sin, they were still his precious people. The foreign nations were not accused of sin in general or of crimes against humanity in general. They had all persecuted or insulted God's chosen people and had thereby affronted God. The negative side of God's covenant with Abraham was still in force: "I will . . . curse those who treat you with contempt" (Gen 12:3).

God's consistent purpose in history was to bring glory to himself. He did this by exiling his sinful people and by judging their arrogant oppressors. In this way, all would recognize God's power and holiness. Because God was still acting according to this consistent purpose, and the negative side of the covenant with Abraham was still in effect, there was still hope for the positive side of the covenant: "All the families on earth will be blessed through you" (Gen 12:3). God's purposes for his people were not exhausted; he would ultimately bring glory to himself by bringing them back from the distant lands to which they had been scattered (cp. Rom 11:1-27).

eliminated a rival trading center and potentially opened up new trade routes and markets for Tyre.

26:3-6 The many nations with which Tyre wanted to trade would instead come against her equipped for war, and like Jerusalem, she would become plunder for their armies. • waves of the sea crashing against your shoreline: This is a particularly apt metaphor for an assault on Tyre, which lay on a small coastal island.

26:7-11 Tyre's projected destruction is described in great detail, conveying certainty as to the conflict's outcome.

26:7 Nebuchadnezzar: Hebrew Nebuchadrezzar, a variant spelling of Nebuchadnezzar.

26:12-14 The end result was exactly as the prophet had described earlier in metaphorical language. Tyre would become a bare rock, a desolate haunt for local fishermen to spread their nets to dry, instead of a bustling center for long-distance trading vessels and caravans from the east (26:2). According to Josephus, Tyre was subsequently besieged by Nebuchadnezzar for thirteen years, although it was not finally destroyed until the time of Alexander the Great (332 BC).

of your songs. No more will the sound of harps be heard among your people. ¹⁴I will make your island a bare rock, a place for fishermen to spread their nets. You will never be rebuilt, for I, the LORD, have spoken. Yes, the Sovereign LORD has spoken!

Mourning for Tyre: An Uninhabitable Ruin

¹⁵"This is what the Sovereign LORD says to Tyre: The whole coastline will tremble at the sound of your fall, as the screams of the wounded echo in the continuing slaughter. ¹⁶All the seaport rulers will step down from their thrones and take off their royal robes and beautiful clothing. They will sit on the ground trembling with horror at your destruction. ¹⁷Then they will wail for you, singing this funeral song:

"O famous island city,
once ruler of the sea,
how you have been destroyed!
Your people, with their naval power,
once spread fear around the world.
¹⁸ Now the coastlands tremble at your fall.
The islands are dismayed as you disappear.

¹⁹"This is what the Sovereign LORD says: I will make Tyre an uninhabited ruin, like many others. I will bury you beneath the terrible waves of enemy attack. Great seas will swallow you. ²⁰I will send you to the pit to join those who descended there long ago. Your city will lie in ruins, buried beneath the earth, like those in the pit who have entered the world of the dead. You will have no place of respect here in the land of the living. ²¹I will bring you to a terrible end, and you will exist no more. You will be looked for, but you will never again be found. I, the Sovereign LORD, have spoken!"

Tyre's Former Glory: An Elegy

27 Then this message came to me from the LORD: ²"Son of man, sing a funeral song for Tyre, ³that mighty gateway to the sea, the trading center of the world. Give Tyre this message from the Sovereign LORD:

"You boasted, O Tyre,
'My beauty is perfect!'

⁴ You extended your boundaries into the sea.

Your builders made your beauty perfect.

⁵ You were like a great ship built of the finest cypress from Senir.
They took a cedar from Lebanon to make a mast for you.

⁶ They carved your oars from the oaks of Bashan.

Your deck of pine from the coasts of Cyprus was inlaid with ivory.

⁷ Your sails were made of Egypt's finest linen,
and they flew as a banner above you.
You stood beneath blue and purple awnings made bright with dyes from the coasts of Elishah.

⁸ Your oarsmen came from Sidon and Arvad;
your helmsmen were skilled men from Tyre itself.

⁹ Wise old craftsmen from Gebal did the caulking.
Ships from every land came with goods to barter for your trade.

¹⁰ Men from distant Persia, Lydia, and Libya served in your great army. They hung their shields and helmets on your walls, giving you great honor. ¹¹ Men from Arvad and Helech stood on your walls. Your towers were manned by men from Gammad. Their 26:15-16 The economic impact of Tyre's fall would spread out to her trading partners along the whole coastline, causing their rulers to abdicate.

26:17-18 The funeral song (see note on 19:1-14) for Tyre would be taken up and repeated from place to place. • naval power . . . spread fear: Tyre's trading practices were apparently based on conquest, subjugation, and exploitation (see 28:16, 18).

26:19-21 God would demonstrate his sovereign power by utterly destroying Tyre. It would be as though that great city had sunk into the depths of the chaotic ocean waves, with its inhabitants condemned to the pit where the unrighteous dead reside, never to return.

27:1-36 The second panel of the prophet's address to Tyre (see note on 26:1-28:19) is a funeral song that contrasts past glory with present loss. It is connected with the previous chapter by being addressed to Tyre, by its imagery of a gateway and a trading center (see 26:1-2), and by the common conclusion you have come to a horrible end and will exist no more (cp. 26:21).

27:4-7 Tyre's past greatness is described in great detail under the metaphor of a mighty sailing ship created out of the very best resources from the surrounding nations.

27:5 Senir: Or Herman.

27:6 Cyprus: Hebrew Kittim.

27:7 Elishah is the name for another part of Cyprus.

27:8-11 The ship of Tyre was manned by a crew gathered from the most famously skilled men in the world. • The locations described in this account cover most of the known world at the time. Tyre's influence was vast.

27:8-9 Sidon, Arvad, and Gebal were Mediterranean coastal towns.

27:10 Persia, Lydia, and Libya: Hebrew Paras, Lud, and Put. Persia was far to the east over land, while Lydia was northwest in what is now Turkey. Libya was southwest on the shore of the Mediterranean.

shields hung on your walls, completing your beauty.

¹²"Tarshish sent merchants to buy your wares in exchange for silver, iron, tin, and lead. ¹³Merchants from Greece, Tubal, and Meshech brought slaves and articles of bronze to trade with you.

²³"Haran, Canneh, Eden, Sheba, Asshur, and Kilmad came with their merchandise, too. ²⁴They brought choice fabrics to trade—blue cloth, embroidery, and multi-colored carpets rolled up and bound with cords. ²⁵The ships of Tarshish were your ocean caravans. Your island warehouse was filled to the brim!

The End of Tyre's Glory: The Sunken Ship

²⁶"But look! Your oarsmen have taken you into stormy seas! A mighty eastern gale has wrecked you in the heart of the sea!

²⁷ Everything is lost—your riches and wares, your sailors and pilots, your ship builders, merchants, and warriors.

On the day of your ruin, everyone on board sinks into the depths of the sea.

²⁸ Your cities by the sea tremble as your pilots cry out in terror.

²⁹ All the oarsmen abandon their ships; the sailors and pilots stand on the shore.

³⁰ They cry aloud over you and weep bitterly. They throw dust on their heads and roll in ashes.

³¹ They shave their heads in grief for you and dress themselves in burlap. They weep for you with bitter anguish and deep mourning.

³² As they wail and mourn over you, they sing this sad funeral song: 'Was there ever such a city as Tyre, now silent at the bottom of the sea?

³³ The merchandise you traded satisfied the desires of many nations. Kings at the ends of the earth were enriched by your trade.

Tarsus on the northeast shore of the Mediterranean. • The location of Gammad is less certain, but it may have been in northern Syria.

27:12-25 The vast system of transport was all at the service of Tyre's insatiable appetite for trade. The list of Tyre's trading partners goes on and on; Tyre was the source of a wide variety of commodities from slaves to horses, saddle blankets to silver, dyes to figs (cp. Rev 18:11-13). The cargo list for the ship is organized according to the different geographic regions with which she conducted trade, covering all points of the compass and including every trading center, major and minor. Virtually every precious object that could be bought or sold found a place somewhere on the list of Tyre's goods.

27:12 Tarshish was in the distant west, possibly in Spain.

27:13-14 Greece: Hebrew Javan.

• Tubal, Meshech, and neighboring Beth-togarmah were regions in Anatolia (modern Turkey).

27:15 Dedan was a central Arabian oasis (see also 27:20), but it might also refer to a coastal region north of Tyre. Greek version reads Rhodes, an island southwest of modern Turkey.

27:16 Syria: Hebrew Aram; some manuscripts read Edom.

27:17 Minnith, located in Transjordan (the area east of the Jordan River), was a well-known source of wheat. • figs: The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

27:18 Helbon was a town ten miles north of Damascus. Zahar may have been nearby, although its exact location is unknown.

27:19 Greeks from Uzal: Hebrew Vedan

and Javan from Uzal. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. Uzal may have been a town in the foothills of Anatolia. • Cassia and calamus were expensive perfumes.

27:20-21 Dedan: See note on 27:15.

• Kedar was a region of Arabia named for a son of Ishmael (Gen 25:13).

27:22 Sheba was a kingdom in southwest Arabia. The location of Raamah is uncertain, but it was always associated with Sheba.

27:23 Haran, Canneh, Eden, and Asshur were all located in Mesopotamia (modern Iraq). Kilmad is otherwise unattested in ancient sources and may be a scribal error for "all Media" (the region northeast of Mesopotamia).

27:26 Though apparently unsinkable, this rich and heavily laden merchant ship was no match for the mighty eastern gale, the army of Babylon.

³⁴ Now you are a wrecked ship, broken at the bottom of the sea.
All your merchandise and crew have gone down with you.

³⁵ All who live along the coastlands are appalled at your terrible fate.
Their kings are filled with horror and look on with twisted faces.

³⁶ The merchants among the nations shake their heads at the sight of you, for you have come to a horrible end and will exist no more. "

A Message for Tyre's King: The Fallen Angel

28 Then this message came to me from the LORD: ²"Son of man, give the prince of Tyre this message from the Sovereign LORD:

"In your great pride you claim, 'I am a god!
I sit on a divine throne in the heart of the sea.'

But you are only a man and not a god, though you boast that you are a god.

³ You regard yourself as wiser than Daniel and think no secret is hidden from
you.

⁴ With your wisdom and understanding you have amassed great wealth—gold and silver for your treasures.

⁵ Yes, your wisdom has made you very rich, and your riches have made you very proud.

⁶ "Therefore, this is what the Sovereign
LORD says:

Because you think you are as wise as a
god,

⁷ I will now bring against you a foreign army,
the terror of the nations.
They will draw their swords against your marvelous wisdom and defile your splendor!

⁸ They will bring you down to the pit, and you will die in the heart of the sea,
pierced with many wounds.

⁹ Will you then boast, 'I am a god!'
to those who kill you?
To them you will be no god
but merely a man!

¹⁰ You will die like an outcast at the hands of foreigners.
I, the Sovereign LORD, have spoken!"

¹¹ Then this further message came to me from the LORD: ¹²"Son of man, sing this funeral song for the king of Tyre. Give him this message from the Sovereign LORD:

"You were the model of perfection, full of wisdom and exquisite in beauty.

¹³ You were in Eden,
the garden of God.

Your clothing was adorned with every precious stone—
red carnelian, pale-green peridot, white moonstone,
blue-green beryl, onyx, green jasper, blue lapis lazuli, turquoise, and emerald—

all beautifully crafted for you and set in the finest gold.

They were given to you on the day you were created.

27:36 shake their heads at the sight of you: Literally hiss at you. • Tyre's former occupants and her former trading partners join the lament for her lost way of life. This panel, like the previous one, ends with the statement that Tyre has come to a horrible end and will exist no more (cp. 26:21).

28:1-19 The third panel against Tyre (see note on 26:1-28:19) addresses and condemns its ruler, the prince of Tyre, for his pride. He personifies the city of Tyre, so his fate represents Tyre's fate. In his arrogance, the prince of Tyre laid claim to divinity and the power that goes with it, asserting that he sat on a divine throne, ruling the chaotic, untamable seas. The reality, however, was otherwise; he was only a man. • This chapter and Isa 14 (about the king of Babylon) have often been interpreted as referring to the heavenly conflict between God and Satan, "the prince of demons" (Matt 12:24). However, this view ignores the historical nature of both passages. Tyre and Babylon were real places and their kings were real men whose great power was matched by great pride. The king of Tyre's claim to be a god proved hollow. The political powers that oppose God and his people may be agents of Satan in his struggle against God. The sure demise of such human rulers foreshadows God's ultimate triumph over all the forces of darkness. Every power that sets itself up against the living God will be brought to destruction.

28:3-5 The prince of Tyre's claim to divine status was based on his wisdom and his wealth. His wisdom had made him very rich, and those riches had made him inordinately proud.

28:6-7 The prince of Tyre's pride was the precursor to his fall (Prov 16:18). His claim to wisdom and power would be empty when the Lord brought the Babylonian army against him; they would draw their swords and cut him down to size.

28:8 The clearest demonstration that the prince of Tyre was a mortal man and not a divine being came when he was put to death by the Babylonians. His final resting place would not be in the heights with the gods, but in the pit, the residence of the dead. Like the city of Tyre, the prince of Tyre would die in the heart of the sea (cp. 27:26-27).

28:10 will die like an outcast: Literally will die the death of the uncircumcised. He would perish apart from a covenant relationship with God (cp. Gen 17:10-14).

28:12-19 This eulogy at first appears to take the prince of Tyre's aspirations to divinity seriously. He was the very model of perfection, full of wisdom and . . . beauty. It turns out to be a sarcastic lament.

28:12 funeral song: see note on 19:1-14.

28:13-14 Mocking Tyre's claim to antiquity and pre-eminence. Ezekiel describes its king as being present in Eden at the beginning of the world, as

A Message against Sidon (28:20-24)

20 Then another message came to me from the LORD: 21 "Son of man, turn and face the city of Sidon and prophesy against it. 22 Give the people of Sidon this message from the Sovereign LORD:

"I am your enemy, O Sidon, and I will reveal my glory by what I do
to you.

When I bring judgment against you and reveal my holiness among you, everyone watching will know that I am the LORD.

23 I will send a plague against you, and blood will be spilled in your streets.

The attack will come from every direction,
and your people will lie slaughtered within your walls.

Then everyone will know that I am the LORD.

24 No longer will Israel's scornful neighbors prick and tear at her like briars and thorns.

For then they will know that I am the Sovereign LORD.

Restoration for Israel (28:25-26)

25 "This is what the Sovereign LORD says: The people of Israel will again live in their own land, the land I gave my servant Jacob. For I will gather them from the distant lands where I have scattered them. I will reveal to the nations of the world my holiness among my people. 26 They will live safely in Israel and build homes and plant vineyards. And when I punish the neighboring nations that treated them with contempt, they will know that I am the LORD their God."

the mighty angelic guardian—that is, as one of the heavenly beings that carried the Lord's throne in ch 1 and guarded the Garden in Gen 3. There in Eden, he had access to the holy mountain of God (mountains are often associated with God's presence in the Bible). • every precious stone: The identification of some of these gemstones is uncertain. The stones of fire may be an obscure reference to a hedge of sparkling gemstones around the Garden of Eden. The list of jewels that the prince of Tyre supposedly wore in his original glory adds to this image of his divine election since it includes nine of the twelve jewels found on the high priest's breastplate in Exod 28. This description satirizes the prince of Tyre's claim to a place among the divine beings, even higher than Adam's (see note on 28:12-19). • mighty angelic guardian: Literally guardian cherub; similarly in 28:16.

28:15-18 This sarcastic description of the prince of Tyre's greatness and pride sets him up for his coming fall, which is cast in terms reminiscent of the fall of humanity (Gen 3). As with Adam, the king of Tyre's supposedly blameless condition was not permanent, but came to an abrupt end when evil was found in him. His rich commerce and dishonest trade led him to violence (see note on 26:17-18). One who claimed to be greater than Adam could experience a fall from favor similar to Adam's and be banished . . . from the mountain of God, the place of God's favor. The prince of Tyre's God-given beauty and wisdom were corrupted by his pride, which inevitably led to disaster and exposed his true nature.

28:18-19 Far from being a deity who could sanctify a piece of ground by his presence, the prince of Tyre had the opposite effect. He defiled the holy ground of his sanctuaries. Judgment was pronounced on his city in the previous two panels, and it was the prince of Tyre's fate to come to a terrible end, and . . . exist no more (cp. 26:21; 27:36).

The exalted captain would go down with his glorious ship and be brought to nothing by the Lord's act. • dishonest trade: See note on 26:17-18.

28:20-24 No specific charges are made against Sidon, Tyre's close neighbor to the north, though presumably it was guilty of similar offenses. Its rejoicing at Judah's destruction would not last.

28:22-23 The Lord planned to reveal his glory and holiness by bringing upon Sidon the threefold judgment of plague, blood, and attack (or the sword) on every side.

28:25-26 The Lord would not reveal his holiness simply by judging the nations for their pride, arrogance, and enmity toward his chosen people. He would also gather his people back to the land of Israel. There they would live safely and be able to build homes and plant vineyards, which were typical signs of covenantal blessing in the OT (see

A Message against Egypt (29:1–32:32)Egypt, the Captured Sea Monster

29 On January 7, during the tenth year of King Jehoiachin's captivity, this message came to me from the LORD: ²"Son of man, turn and face Egypt and prophesy against Pharaoh the king and all the people of Egypt. ³Give them this message from the Sovereign LORD:

"I am your enemy, O Pharaoh, king of Egypt—

you great monster, lurking in the streams of the Nile.

For you have said, 'The Nile River is mine; I made it for myself.'

⁴ I will put hooks in your jaws and drag you out on the land with fish sticking to your scales.

⁵ I will leave you and all your fish stranded in the wilderness to die.

You will lie unburied on the open ground, for I have given you as food to the wild animals and birds.

⁶ All the people of Egypt will know that I am the LORD, for to Israel you were just a staff made of reeds.

⁷ When Israel leaned on you, you splintered and broke and stabbed her in the armpit.

When she put her weight on you, you collapsed, and her legs gave way.

⁸"Therefore, this is what the Sovereign LORD says: I will bring an army against you, O Egypt, and destroy both people and animals. ⁹The land of Egypt will become a desolate wasteland, and the Egyptians will know that I am the LORD.

"Because you said, 'The Nile River is mine; I made it,' ¹⁰I am now the enemy of both you and your river. I will make the land of Egypt a totally desolate wasteland, from Migdol to Aswan, as far south as the border of Ethiopia. ¹¹For forty years not a soul will pass that way, neither people nor animals. It will be completely uninhabited. ¹²I will make Egypt desolate, and it will be surrounded by other desolate nations. Its cities will be empty and desolate for forty years, surrounded by other ruined cities. I will scatter the Egyptians to distant lands.

¹³"But this is what the Sovereign LORD also says: At the end of the forty years I will bring the Egyptians home again from the nations to which they have been scattered. ¹⁴I will restore the prosperity of Egypt and bring its people back to the land of Pathros in southern Egypt from which they came. But Egypt will remain an unimportant, Mic 4:4; Zech 3:10). After God acted to punish the neighboring nations and restore his people, they would be at rest. The nations would know that God is the Sovereign LORD through his powerful acts of judgment, and Israel would know that he was the LORD their God, a title that speaks of God's covenant relationship of worship and fellowship with them.

29:1–32:32 The climactic seventh oracle against the nations is against Egypt, Israel's old enemy and ally. This is the longest of the oracles and, like the oracle against Tyre, addresses both the land of Egypt and its ruler. • Egypt played a central role through the centuries in tempting Israel and Judah away from their allegiance to the Lord. Israel had no sooner departed from Egypt than Egypt's idolatry became a snare for them. Egypt caused Judah to trust in chariots and horses instead of in the Lord, but Egypt proved unreliable when the moment of truth arrived. The Lord judged Egypt because it tempted Judah away from loyalty to him (cp. Luke 17:1-2).

29:1 On January 7: Literally On the twelfth day of the tenth month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar. This event occurred on January 7, 587 BC; see also note on 1:1. • This day in the tenth year since the exile of Jehoiachin was approximately one year after the beginning of the siege of Jerusalem (see note on 24:1).

29:3-16 The opening section of the oracle is a word of judgment against Pharaoh, who is addressed as a great sea monster. These creatures were a familiar part of ancient Near Eastern mythology as a manifestation of chaos that had to be tamed by the gods. Strikingly, these same sea monsters appear in demythologized form as part of God's good creation (Gen 1:21). In this chapter, however, the mythical image blends with the image of Pharaoh as a great crocodile, resting comfortably in the streams that laced the delta of the Nile.

29:4-5 The picture of the mighty crocodile anticipates the arrival of the Lord as a great hunter. As with Tyre, a watery fortress would once again prove vulnerable to assault. The outwardly fearsome king of Egypt would be captured like any ordinary crocodile and brought out into the wilderness, the place of judgment, along with his allies, the fish. There he would die, and his body would be left dishonorably exposed for the wild animals and birds to eat.

29:6-7 Egypt's sin is once again associated with Israel. Egypt was a staff made of reeds that repeatedly pretended to support Israel, while lacking the will and the substance to deliver the promised aid. Egypt constantly incited rebellion in Israel against Assyria and Babylonia without ever really providing help (cp. 2 Kgs 18:21). Although trusting in this cracked staff was Israel's sin, Egypt was also guilty and would face God's wrath for raising false hopes.

29:8-13 God's solution was to devastate the land of Egypt, making it into a desolate wasteland. The threatened destruction would stretch from Migdol in the northeast down to Aswan in the south, leaving the whole of Egypt uninhabited for an entire generation of forty years (cp. 4:6). Egypt's fate would be like Judah's, as God would first scatter the Egyptians to distant lands and then bring the Egyptians home. The Babylonians seem to have invaded Egypt successfully in 568 or 567 BC and carried off Egyptian prisoners of war who remained in exile until the time of Cyrus, a generation later.

29:10 from Migdol to Aswan, as far south as the border of Ethiopia: Hebrew from Migdol to Syene as far as the border of Cush.

29:14-16 Judah would ultimately be fully restored, but Egypt would remain

Babylon's Reward: To Conquer Egypt

¹⁷On April 26, the first day of the new year, during the twenty-seventh year of King Jehoiachin's captivity, this message came to me from the LORD: ¹⁸"Son of man, the army of King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon fought so hard against Tyre that the warriors' heads were rubbed bare and their shoulders were raw and blistered. Yet Nebuchadnezzar and his army won no plunder to compensate them for all their work. ¹⁹Therefore, this is what the Sovereign LORD says: I will give the land of Egypt to Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon. He will carry off its wealth, plundering everything it has so he can pay his army. ²⁰Yes, I have given him the land of Egypt as a reward for his work, says the Sovereign LORD, because he was working for me when he destroyed Tyre.

²¹"And the day will come when I will cause the ancient glory of Israel to revive, and then, Ezekiel, your words will be respected. Then they will know that I am the LORD."

The Lament for Egypt

30 This is another message that came to me from the LORD: ²²"Son of man, prophesy and give this message from the Sovereign LORD:

"Weep and wail
for that day,

³ for the terrible day is almost here—
the day of the LORD!

It is a day of clouds and gloom,
a day of despair for the nations.

⁴ A sword will come against Egypt, and those who are slaughtered will cover the ground.

Its wealth will be carried away and its foundations destroyed.
The land of Ethiopia will be ravished.

⁵ Ethiopia, Libya, Lydia, all Arabia, and all their other allies will be destroyed in that war.

⁶ "For this is what the LORD says:
All of Egypt's allies will fall, and the pride of her power will end.

◀ Egypt's Coming Destruction, 587–567 BC (29:1–32:32). Ezekiel's messages concerning Egypt's destruction were given between 587 and 571 BC. The Babylonians invaded Egypt, brought destruction, and exiled some of its people in 568–567 BC, but did not retain lasting control.

of the new year: Literally on the first day of the first month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar. This event occurred on April 26, 571 BC; see also note on 1:1. This message, delivered in the twenty-seventh year of Jehoiachin's captivity, has the latest recorded date of any of Ezekiel's messages, later even than his vision of the Temple in chs 40–48.

29:18–20 Nebuchadnezzar's campaign against Tyre (chs 26–28) had required a great deal of effort on the Babylonians' part for very little return in plunder. But the Lord considers his workers worthy of their hire, so to compensate them for all their work, he would reward them with the land of Egypt.

29:18 Nebuchadnezzar: Hebrew Nebuchadrezzar, a variant spelling of Nebuchadnezzar; also in 29:19.

29:21 Even in these oracles against the nations, God's primary interest was in his own people. He would match the downward turn in Egypt's fortunes by commensurately reviving Israel. • I will cause the ancient glory of Israel to revive: Literally I will cause a horn to sprout for the house of Israel. A horn was a common symbol of strength and dignity (see Ps 132:17, where "power" represents the same Hebrew word; cp. Dan 7:7-8; 8:3). This restoration of Israel's glory would in turn validate Ezekiel's status as a true prophet, and he would be respected as he deserved. As a prophet, Ezekiel had fought a hard campaign in the Lord's service and had seen little public reward or recognition from his hearers. In the end, people would see that Ezekiel was indeed a true prophet, something that Nebuchadnezzar's failure to conquer Tyre may have called into question.

30:1–19 This third message against Egypt, using the form of a lament, essentially repeats the content of the first message (29:1–16). Judgment was to be poured out on Egypt and her allies.

30:4 Ethiopia: Hebrew Cush; similarly in 30:9.

30:5 Ethiopia, Libya, Lydia, all Arabia: Hebrew Cush, Put, Lud, all Arabia, Cub. Cub is otherwise unknown and may be another spelling for Lub (Libya).

an unimportant . . . kingdom. Israel would never again be tempted to call on Egypt for help instead of calling on the Lord. Egypt's restored but reduced position would make it a constant reminder of Israel's past folly in trusting it.

I will destroy the hordes of Egypt.
- ¹¹ He and his armies—the most ruthless of all—will be sent to demolish the land.
They will make war against Egypt until slaughtered Egyptians cover the ground.
- ¹² I will dry up the Nile River and sell the land to wicked men.
I will destroy the land of Egypt and everything in it
by the hands of foreigners.
I, the LORD, have spoken!
- ¹³ "This is what the Sovereign LORD says:
I will smash the idols of Egypt and the images at Memphis.

- There will be no rulers left in Egypt;
terror will sweep the land.
- ¹⁴ I will destroy southern Egypt, set fire to Zoan,
and bring judgment against Thebes.
- ¹⁵ I will pour out my fury on Pelusium, the strongest fortress of Egypt, and I will stamp out
the hordes of Thebes.
- ¹⁶ Yes, I will set fire to all Egypt!
Pelusium will be racked with pain;
Thebes will be torn apart;
Memphis will live in constant terror.
- ¹⁷ The young men of Heliopolis and Bubastis will die in battle, and the women will be taken away as slaves.
- ¹⁸ When I come to break the proud strength of Egypt,
it will be a dark day for Tahpanhes,
too.
A dark cloud will cover Tahpanhes, and its daughters will be led away as captives.
- ¹⁹ And so I will greatly punish Egypt, and they will know that I am the LORD."

The Broken Arms of Pharaoh

²⁰ On April 29, during the eleventh year of King Jehoiachin's captivity, this message came to me from the LORD: ²¹ "Son of man, I have broken the arm of Pharaoh, the king of Egypt. His arm has not been put in a cast so that it may heal. Neither has it been bound up with a splint to make it strong enough to hold a sword. ²² Therefore, this is what the Sovereign LORD says: I am the enemy of Pharaoh, the king of Egypt!
I will break both of his arms—the good

30:12 I will dry up the Nile River: Egypt was completely dependent on the Nile for its prosperity, so having the Nile dry up would threaten the Egyptians' livelihoods.

30:13-14 idols: The Hebrew term (literally round things) probably alludes to dung. See note on 6:4-7. • From Memphis (Hebrew Noph; also in 30:16), the most important city in the north, to Thebes, the most important city in the south, all of the cities of Egypt would be destroyed.

30:18 Tahpanhes was a fortress town on the northeastern frontier of Egypt.

• dark day: Egypt would see its light turned to darkness when God came to judge it, as in the Exodus plague (Exod 10:21-23).

30:19 At the end of this terrible judgment, the Egyptians would once again recognize God's existence and power, just as they had experienced in the Exodus. God's strength and reality are ultimately undeniable, even by those who do not bow before him.

The Fallen Tree: Egypt Compared to Assyria

31 On June 21, during the eleventh year of King Jehoiachin's captivity, this message came to me from the LORD: ²"Son of man, give this message to Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and all his hordes:

"To whom would you compare your greatness?

³ You are like mighty Assyria, which was once like a cedar of Lebanon, with beautiful branches that cast deep forest shade and with its top high among the clouds.

⁴ Deep springs watered it and helped it to grow tall and luxuriant. The water flowed around it like a river, streaming to all the trees nearby.

tians' strength in the defeat of Pharaoh Hophra by Nebuchadnezzar (see Jer 37:5-11). Had Hophra succeeded in his mission, the pressure on Jerusalem would have been relieved, at least temporarily; now all hope of help from Egypt was gone. There was no prospect that the broken arm would heal or even be temporarily bound up so that Pharaoh could protect Jerusalem. Egypt would be totally helpless, unable even to hold a sword as it awaited the final death thrust.

30:24-26 While disabling Pharaoh (30:22), the Lord would strengthen the arms of Babylon's king, increasing the already uneven nature of the contest. The fate of the forthcoming battle of the superpowers rested entirely in the Lord's hands, and he had already determined its outcome. Nebuchadnezzar clashed with the Egyptians on a number of occasions, ending with victory in 567 BC.

31:1-18 Ezekiel called on the Egyptians to compare themselves to Assyria, which was like a great tree in Eden (31:9). If that tree was felled and sent down to the underworld, how did Egypt, whose glory could never compare to Assyria's, think it could stand?

31:1 On June 21: Literally On the first day of the third month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar. This event occurred on June 21, 587 BC; see also note on 1:1.

31:2-4 The cedar of Lebanon is a tree that was known for its visual splendor and commercial and military value. • Like a tree whose crown was among the clouds, Assyria's military had once been strong beyond comparison to any other army.

31:6 Like a great tree, Assyria provided shelter for all of the birds and wild animals of the earth. This tree was more splendid than all the trees in the garden of God (that is, the garden of Eden), with a God-given beauty and stature reminiscent of the prince of Tyre in ch 28. Assyria's power was once so great that all the great nations of the world lived in its shadow. Egypt's power was comparable.

31:10-11 Egypt (literally you) forgot that God had created her beauty, and she became proud and arrogant. As with Tyre, such pride would inevitably lead to a fall. The God who set Egypt in such an exalted position would send a divine lumberjack, a mighty nation that would destroy it as its wickedness deserved. • I have already discarded it: The human agent would simply be carrying out God's decree.

31:12-14 Egypt's fate would teach the other nations that however high they set themselves, eventually they were all doomed to die and go down to the pit (see note on 26:17-18).

¹³ "The birds roost on its fallen trunk, and the wild animals lie among its branches.
¹⁴ Let the tree of no other nation proudly exult in its own prosperity, though it be higher than the clouds and it be watered from the depths. For all are doomed to die, to go down to the depths of the earth. They will land in the pit along with everyone else on earth.

¹⁸ "O Egypt, to which of the trees of Eden will you compare your strength and glory? You, too, will be brought down to the depths with all these other nations. You will lie there among the outcasts who have died by the sword. This will be the fate of Pharaoh and all his hordes. I, the Sovereign LORD, have spoken!"

The Hunted Lion: A Warning for Pharaoh

32 On March 3, during the twelfth year of King Jehoiachin's captivity, this message came to me from the LORD: ² "Son of man, mourn for Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and give him this message:

"You think of yourself as a strong young lion among the nations, but you are really just a sea monster, heaving around in your own rivers, stirring up mud with your feet.

³ Therefore, this is what the Sovereign LORD says:

I will send many people to catch you in my net and haul you out of the water.

⁴ I will leave you stranded on the land to die.

All the birds of the heavens will land on you, and the wild animals of the whole earth will gorge themselves on you.

⁵ I will scatter your flesh on the hills and fill the valleys with your bones.

⁶ I will drench the earth with your gushing blood all the way to the mountains, filling the ravines to the brim.

⁷ When I blot you out, I will veil the heavens and darken the stars.

I will cover the sun with a cloud, and the moon will not give you its light.

⁸ I will darken the bright stars overhead and cover your land in darkness. I, the Sovereign LORD, have spoken!

⁹ "I will disturb many hearts when I bring news of your downfall to distant nations you have never seen. ¹⁰ Yes, I will shock many lands, and their kings will be terrified at your fate. They will shudder in fear for their lives as I brandish my sword before them on the day of your fall. ¹¹ For this is what the Sovereign LORD says:

themselves and in their own greatness.
 • among the outcasts: Literally among the uncircumcised (see note on 28:10).

32:1 On March 3: Literally On the first day of the twelfth month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar. This event occurred on March 3, 585 BC; see also note on 1:1. This date was two months after the exiles in Babylon received word of Jerusalem's fall (see 33:21).

32:2-3 Ezekiel returns to the image of Pharaoh as a mighty beast (29:3).
 • Egypt's pharaohs used the lion and the sea monster (or crocodile) as images of strength, yet both creatures could be hunted and killed, and that is what would happen to Pharaoh. God, through his agents (32:11-12), would hunt Pharaoh, catch him, and haul him in.

32:4-6 hills . . . valleys . . . mountains . . . ravines: In Hebrew, this literary device (merism) indicates both the boundaries and everything within them; here, it portrays the totality of God's judgment. The carnage is described using hyperbole to communicate the complete destruction of Egypt.

32:7-8 As in the previous chapter, Pharaoh's downfall would be accompanied by global darkness and widespread mourning. These images were commonly associated with the day of the Lord (cp. Joel 2:30). In this case, the darkness would also remind the Egyptians of the plague on Egypt at the time of the Exodus (Exod 10:21-22).

32:9-10 The surrounding nations and their kings would all be terrified at Egypt's downfall, fearing for their own future.

"The sword of the king of Babylon will come against you.

- 12 I will destroy your hordes with the swords of mighty warriors—
the terror of the nations.
They will shatter the pride of Egypt,
and all its hordes will be destroyed.
- 13 I will destroy all your flocks and herds that graze beside the streams.
Never again will people or animals muddy those waters with their feet.
- 14 Then I will let the waters of Egypt become calm again,
and they will flow as smoothly as olive oil,
says the Sovereign LORD.
- 15 And when I destroy Egypt and strip you of everything you own and strike down all your people,
then you will know that I am the LORD.
- 16 Yes, this is the funeral song
they will sing for Egypt.
Let all the nations mourn.
Let them mourn for Egypt and its hordes.
I, the Sovereign LORD, have spoken!"

Egypt Falls into the Pit

- 17 On March 17, during the twelfth year, another message came to me from the LORD:
18 "Son of man, weep for the hordes of Egypt and for the other mighty nations. For I will send them down to the world below in company with those who descend to the pit.
19 Say to them,

'O Egypt, are you lovelier than the other
nations?
No! So go down to the pit and lie there among the outcasts.'

20 The Egyptians will fall with the many who have died by the sword, for the sword is drawn against them. Egypt and its hordes will be dragged away to their judgment. 21 Down in the grave mighty leaders will mockingly welcome Egypt and its allies, saying, 'They have come down; they lie among the outcasts, hordes slaughtered by the sword.'

22 "Assyria lies there surrounded by the graves of its army, those who were slaughtered by the sword. 23 Their graves are in the depths of the pit, and they are surrounded by their allies. They struck terror in the hearts of people everywhere, but now they have been slaughtered by the sword.

24 "Elam lies there surrounded by the graves of all its hordes, those who were slaughtered by the sword. They struck terror in the hearts of people everywhere, but now they have descended as outcasts to the world below. Now they lie in the pit and share the shame of those who have gone before them. 25 They have a resting place among the slaughtered, surrounded by the graves of all their hordes. Yes, they terrorized the nations while they lived, but now they lie in shame with others in the pit, all of them outcasts, slaughtered by the sword.

26 "Meshech and Tubal are there, surrounded by the graves of all their hordes.
They once struck terror in the hearts of people everywhere. But now they are outcasts, all slaughtered by the sword. 27 They are not buried in honor like their fallen heroes, who went down to the grave with their weapons—their shields covering their bodies and their swords beneath their heads.
Their guilt rests upon them because they brought terror to everyone while they were still alive.

32:11-12 The human agent of God's wrath, the sword of the king of Babylon, was coming to shatter the power of Egypt once and for all. This would be an even greater destruction than at the time of the first Passover, when only the firstborn humans and animals of Egypt died (Exod 12:29).

32:14 The great sea monster (32:2) would no longer thrash around in the stream, stirring up mud like an irate crocodile. After Pharaoh's demise, the waters of Egypt would flow again as smoothly as olive oil, with the untroubled serenity of death.

32:15-16 This total and final devastation of Egypt would result in their recognizing the power of the Lord, just as they did at the time of the Exodus.

32:17-32 This last, climactic message against Egypt sums up the whole series of messages against all of the nations.

32:17 On March 17: Literally On the fifteenth day of the month presumably in the twelfth month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar (see 32:1). This would put this message at the end of King Jehoiachin's twelfth year of captivity, on Mar 17, 585 BC; see also note on 1:1. Greek version reads On the fifteenth day of the first month, which would put this message on Apr 27, 586 BC, at the beginning of Jehoiachin's twelfth year.

32:18-20 In an earlier message (31:17-18), God had declared that Egypt would go down to join the other nations in the underworld. Here that idea is expanded. Egypt's destination was with the outcasts (literally the uncircumcised; also in 32:21, 24-26, 28-30, 32; see note on 28:10), along with those who fell by the sword. This place of horror, the pit (see note on 26:19-21), was already peopled by many nations that once wielded power but had now gone down to destruction (cp. Isa 14:9-11).

32:18 for the other mighty nations: The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

32:21-30 Assyria . . . Elam . . . Meshech and Tubal . . . Edom . . . the princes of the north and the Sidonians: These nations that once struck terror in the hearts of people everywhere were now shadowy figures, spent forces in a world without meaning or joy. Assyria had been conquered by the Babylonians and Medes between 627 and 609 BC and had been removed from its previous status as a superpower.

32:21 in the grave: Hebrew in Sheol.

32:27 to the grave: Hebrew to Sheol.
• their shields covering their bodies: The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

²⁸"You too, Egypt, will lie crushed and broken among the outcasts, all slaughtered by the sword.

²⁹"Edom is there with its kings and princes. Mighty as they were, they also lie among those slaughtered by the sword, with the outcasts who have gone down to the pit.

³⁰"All the princes of the north and the Sidonians are there with others who have died. Once a terror, they have been put to shame. They lie there as outcasts with others who were slaughtered by the sword. They share the shame of all who have descended to the pit.

³¹"When Pharaoh and his entire army arrive, he will take comfort that he is not alone in having his hordes killed, says the Sovereign LORD. ³²Although I have caused his terror to fall upon all the living, Pharaoh and his hordes will lie there among the outcasts who were slaughtered by the sword. I, the Sovereign LORD, have spoken!"

4. ORACLES OF GOOD NEWS (33:1–48:35)

The Turning Point (33:1–33)

Ezekiel as Israel's Watchman

33 Once again a message came to me from the LORD: ²"Son of man, give your people this message: 'When I bring an army against a country, the people of that land choose one of their own to be a watchman. ³When the watchman sees the enemy coming, he sounds the alarm to warn the people. ⁴Then if those who hear the alarm refuse to take action, it is their own fault if they ⁵die. ⁵They heard the alarm but ignored it, so the responsibility is theirs. If they had listened to the warning, they could have saved their lives. ⁶But if the watchman sees the enemy coming and doesn't sound the alarm to warn the people, he is responsible for their captivity. They will die in their sins, but I will hold the watchman responsible for their deaths.'

⁷"Now, son of man, I am making you a watchman for the people of Israel. Therefore, listen to what I say and warn them for me. ⁸If I announce that some wicked people are sure to die and you fail to tell them to change their ways, then they will die in their sins, and I will hold you responsible for their deaths. ⁹But if you warn them to repent and they don't repent, they will die in their sins, but you will have saved yourself.

The Watchman's Message

¹⁰"Son of man, give the people of Israel this message: You are saying, 'Our sins are heavy upon us; we are wasting away! How can we survive?' ¹¹As surely as I live, says the Sovereign LORD, I take no pleasure in the death of wicked people. I only want them to turn from their wicked ways so they can live. Turn! Turn from your wickedness, O people of Israel! Why should you die?

¹²"Son of man, give your people this message: The righteous behavior of righteous people will not save them if they turn to sin, nor will the wicked behavior of wicked people destroy them if they repent and turn from their sins. ¹³When I tell righteous people that they will live, but then they sin, expecting their past righteousness to save them, then none of their righteous acts will be remembered. I will destroy them for their sins. ¹⁴And suppose I tell some wicked people that they will surely die, but then they turn from their sins and do what is just and right. ¹⁵For instance, they might give back a debtor's security, return what they have

32:31-32 Pharaoh and all the power of Egypt will share a similar fate. For the time appointed by God, Pharaoh caused his terror to fall upon all the living, yet when God decided to act, Egypt's power would be broken once and for all.

33:1-48:35 After the oracles of judgment in chs 1-24 and the oracles against the nations in chs 25-32, Ezekiel here describes the future renewal of the land, the covenant, the people, and the unity of Israel and Judah under new leadership.

33:2-4 watchman: See note on 3:16-19. Here the message about the watchman is part of Ezekiel's public proclamation, not a private commission. It puts more emphasis on the people who hear the watchman's message; they are responsible to take action in response to it. Just as the people before the destruction of Jerusalem were unwilling to hear the message of destruction, so the people after the Exile could not believe the message of hope. In both cases, in having to face the rejection of what he was saying, Ezekiel was tempted to keep quiet. God warned him again that he could not.

33:5-9 Ezekiel's message encouraged the people of Israel even now to repent so that they might live and not die. The Lord had said that he would bring an army against their country, and this was evidently what was now happening. Ezekiel had been faithful to his calling as a watchman; no one who had heard his prophecy thus far could say that he did not warn the people of the coming judgment. However, the people had not heeded the warning; without a change of heart they would die in their sins.

33:10-11 Our sins are heavy upon us! . . . How can we survive? Now that the people of Israel were finally taking the prophet's warnings seriously, there was danger of despair rather than a response of repentance and faith. Unlike deterministic fate, God's judgment leaves room for forgiveness. The sovereign Lord takes no pleasure in the death of wicked people. Even wicked people . . . can live if they repent and turn from their wickedness.

33:12-16 The principle stated in 33:10-11 is worked out in two case studies. The first involves righteous people who trust in their past righteousness to save them, even though they turn to sin. God will destroy these people in their sins, notwithstanding their earlier righteous behavior. The second case study involves wicked people who repent stolen, and obey my life-giving laws, no longer doing what is evil. If they do this, then they will surely live and not die. ¹⁶None of their past sins will be brought up again, for they have done what is just and right, and they will surely live.

¹⁷"Your people are saying, 'The Lord isn't doing what's right,' but it is they who are not doing what's right. ¹⁸For again I say, when righteous people turn away from their righteous behavior and turn to evil, they will die. ¹⁹But if wicked people turn from their wickedness and do what is just and right, they will live. ²⁰O people of Israel, you are saying, 'The Lord isn't doing what's right.' But I judge each of you according to your deeds."

Explanation of Jerusalem's Fall

²¹On January 8, during the twelfth year of our captivity, a survivor from Jerusalem came to me and said, "The city has fallen!" ²²The previous evening the LORD had taken hold of me and given me back my voice. So I was able to speak when this man arrived the next morning.

²³Then this message came to me from the LORD: ²⁴"Son of man, the scattered remnants of Israel living among the ruined cities keep saying, 'Abraham was only one man, yet he gained possession of the entire land. We are many; surely the land has been given to us as a possession.' ²⁵So tell these people, 'This is what the Sovereign LORD says: You eat meat with blood in it, you worship idols, and you murder the innocent. Do you really think the land should be yours? ²⁶Murderers! Idolaters! Adulterers! Should the land belong to you?"

²⁷"Say to them, 'This is what the Sovereign LORD says: As surely as I live, those living in the ruins will die by the sword. And I will send wild animals to eat those living in the open fields. Those hiding in the forts and caves will die of disease. ²⁸I will completely destroy the land and demolish her pride. Her arrogant power will come to an end. The mountains of Israel will be so desolate that no one will even travel through them. ²⁹When I have completely destroyed the land because of their detestable sins, then they will know that I am the LORD.'

³⁰"Son of man, your people talk about you in their houses and whisper about you at the doors. They say to each other, 'Come on, let's go hear the prophet tell us what the LORD is saying!' ³¹So my people come pretending to be sincere and sit before you. They listen to your words, but they have no intention of doing what you say. Their mouths are full of lustful words, and their hearts seek only after money. ³²You are very entertaining to them, like someone who sings love songs with a beautiful voice or plays fine music on an instrument. They hear what you say, but they don't act on it! ³³But when all these terrible things happen to them—as they certainly will—then they will know a prophet has been among them."

of wickedness. Complete forgiveness is available from the Lord. Whatever their past, those who turn from their sins and do what is just and right will live. As with the word concerning the watchman, what had been said earlier is revisited. In ch 18, the people said that they were being punished for their parents' sins. Here they were apparently saying that their parents' sins had put the nation under an endless curse, so repentance was useless.

33:17-20 The Lord isn't doing what's right: The perception was that God's bringing Babylon to destroy Jerusalem was inappropriate. The Lord immediately refuted this argument (33:18). • they . . . are not doing what's right: The people's fault was in refusing to repent and in accusing God of injustice. • I judge each of you according to your deeds: The Lord's judgment upon his people is never arbitrary but is a fitting response to their sins. If they repent, trust the Lord for salvation, and do what is just and right, they have hope for the future (cp. Eph 2:8-10).

33:21 On January 8: Literally On the fifth day of the tenth month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar. This event occurred on Jan 8, 585 BC; see also note on 1:1. • A survivor arrived from Jerusalem, bringing eyewitness testimony of the city's fall. This news took more than five months to reach the exiles.

33:22 The news of Jerusalem's fall was a turning point for Ezekiel. His voice returned (see 3:26; 24:25-27), and he was finally able to speak freely. There was new hope for God's people.

33:23-33 Both those in Judah (33:23-29) and those in exile (33:30-33) continued to act as they had before Jerusalem fell.

33:23-26 Those who remained in the ruined cities of Israel hoped to turn the disaster of the Exile into an opportunity for personal profit rather than repentance. Claiming to be the sole remaining heirs of the promise to Abraham, they sought possession of the entire land. By their behavior, they proved that they were not really Abraham's children. They did not follow the laws prohibiting eating meat still containing blood (see Deut 12:23), they worshiped idols (the Hebrew term [literally round things] probably alludes to dung; see note on 6:4-7), and they murdered the innocent. The lives of such people were a denial of Abraham's faith, and they would not inherit the promise given him.

33:27-29 The rebels in Jerusalem would continue to inherit the curses of the Mosaic covenant—the sword, wild animals, and disease (see Lev 26:22-25)—until the mountains of Israel were desolate and these sinners were utterly destroyed.

33:30-33 The situation was not significantly better among the exiles in Babylon. Ezekiel's presentations were now the topic of widespread discussion among the exiles, yet their hearts remained as untouched as the hearts of those in Judah. They would sit before Ezekiel pretending to be sincere, but with no intention of doing what the Lord told them. They found his messages entertaining, but the Lord warned them that time would demonstrate the power behind the words of a true prophet.

Oracles of Restoration (34:1–37:28)The Shepherds of Israel

34 Then this message came to me from the LORD: ²"Son of man, prophesy against the ³shepherds, the leaders of Israel. Give them this message from the Sovereign LORD: What sorrow awaits you ⁴shepherds who feed yourselves instead of your flocks. Shouldn't ⁵shepherds feed their sheep? ⁶You drink the milk, wear the wool, and butcher the best animals, but you let your flocks starve. ⁷You have not taken care of the weak. You have not tended the sick or bound up the injured. You have not gone looking for those who have wandered away and are lost. Instead, you have ruled them with harshness and cruelty. ⁸So my sheep have been scattered without a shepherd, and they are easy prey for any wild animal. ⁹They have wandered through all the mountains and all the hills, across the face of the earth, yet no one has gone to search for them.

⁷"Therefore, you shepherds, hear the word of the LORD: ⁸As surely as I live, says the Sovereign LORD, you abandoned my flock and left them to be attacked by every wild animal. And though you were my shepherds, you didn't search for my sheep when they were lost. You took care of yourselves and left the sheep to starve. ⁹Therefore, you shepherds, hear the word of the LORD. ¹⁰This is what the Sovereign LORD says: I now consider these shepherds my enemies, and I will hold them responsible for what has happened to my flock. I will take away their right to feed the flock, and I will stop them from feeding themselves. I will rescue my flock from their mouths; the sheep will no longer be their prey.

The Good Shepherd

¹¹"For this is what the Sovereign LORD says: I myself will search and find my sheep. ¹²I will be like a shepherd looking for his scattered flock. I will find my sheep and rescue them from all the places where they were scattered on that dark and cloudy day. ¹³I will bring them back home to their own land of Israel from among the peoples and nations. I will feed them on the mountains of Israel and by the rivers and in all the places where people live. ¹⁴Yes, I will give them good pastureland on the high hills of Israel. There they will lie down in pleasant places and feed in the lush pastures of the hills. ¹⁵I myself will tend my sheep and give them a place to lie down in peace, says the Sovereign LORD. ¹⁶I will search for my lost ones who strayed away, and I will bring them safely home again. I will bandage the injured and strengthen the weak. But I will destroy those who are fat and powerful. I will feed them, yes—feed them justice!

¹⁷"And as for you, my flock, this is what the Sovereign LORD says to his people: I will judge between one animal of the flock and another, separating the sheep from the goats. ¹⁸Isn't it enough for you to keep the best of the pastures for yourselves? Must you also trample down the rest? Isn't it enough for you to drink clear water for yourselves? Must you also muddy the rest with your feet? ¹⁹Why must my flock eat what you have trampled down and drink water you have fouled?

34:1–37:28 These chapters show us the blessings that will flow from the Lord's return to his people. He will be their shepherd and provide them with better leadership (ch 34); he will restore the fruitfulness of the land and thus vindicate his own honor (chs 35–36); he will restore his people to life and unity (ch 37).

34:1–24 This chapter contains declarations of judgment and salvation. There will be judgment on the shepherds (the former kings of Judah) because they failed to care for their flocks (the people of Judah). The Lord will also judge the fat sheep, but he will intervene as a good shepherd to feed the remainder of the flock. The image of the shepherd perfectly conveys the toughness and tenderness of God's dealings with his people. The shepherd was also a common metaphor for a king in the ancient Near East. The earthly king was understood to represent the divine shepherd who had set him over his people. Shepherds had to protect their flocks against beasts, including lions and bears, while also knowing their sheep by name and tenderly leading them to good pasture and quiet waters. They had to endure cold, heat, wind, rain, and snow out on the hills with their charges. Good kings who led their people strongly and wisely resembled shepherds. The same image is used in the NT to describe pastors and elders, who are to oversee the flock assigned to their care without lording it over them (1 Pet 5:2–4). Jesus perfectly combines toughness and tenderness as the "great Shepherd of the sheep" (Heb 13:20).

34:2–6 What sorrow awaits you shepherds: Israel's leaders had not taken care of the weak or gone looking for those who had wandered away and were lost. They had pursued their own interests, feeding themselves at their flock's expense. They ruled the sheep with harshness and cruelty, recalling how the Egyptians treated the Israelites in Moses' time (Exod 1:13–14). The neglect and abuse of these cruel shepherds had scattered the Lord's flock across the face of the earth.

34:7–11 The Lord vowed to hold the self-serving shepherds responsible for the consequences of their actions. He would remove them from their pastoral office and rescue his flock from their clutches so that they were no longer their prey. The Lord would go looking for his scattered flock (34:12) and bring them home.

34:12–16 The dark and cloudy day, the day of judgment (cp. note on 32:7–8), was completed. Now God would bring his people back to the mountains of Israel, the center of the land promised to the Patriarchs, and tend his sheep (see Ps 23).

34:17–19 The goats were the powerful, unrighteous members of the community.

20^aTherefore, this is what the Sovereign LORD says: I will surely judge between the fat sheep and the scrawny sheep. 21For you fat sheep pushed and butted and crowded my sick and hungry flock until you scattered them to distant lands. 22So I will rescue my flock, and they will no longer be abused. I will judge between one animal of the flock and another. 23And I will set over them one shepherd, my servant David. He will feed them and be a shepherd to them. 24And I, the LORD, will be their God, and my servant David will be a prince among my people. I, the LORD, have spoken!

The LORD's Covenant of Peace

25^a"I will make a covenant of peace with my people and drive away the dangerous animals from the land. Then they will be able to camp safely in the wildest places and sleep in the woods without fear. 26I will 'bless my people and their homes around my holy hill. And in the proper season I will send the showers they need. There will be showers of 'blessing. 27The orchards and fields of my people will yield bumper crops, and everyone will live in safety. When I have broken their chains of slavery and rescued them from those who enslaved them, then they will know that I am the LORD. 28They will no longer be prey for other nations, and wild animals will no longer devour them. They will live in safety, and no one will frighten them.

29^a"And I will make their land famous for its crops, so my people will never again suffer from famines or the insults of foreign nations. 30In this way, they will know that I, the LORD their God, am with them. And they will know that they, the people of Israel, are my people, says the Sovereign LORD. 31You are my flock, the sheep of my pasture. You are my people, and I am your God. I, the Sovereign LORD, have spoken!"

A Message against Edom

35 Again a message came to me from the LORD: 2^a"Son of man, turn and face Mount Seir, and prophesy against its people. 3Give them this message from the Sovereign LORD:

"I am your enemy, O Mount Seir, and I will raise my fist against you to destroy you completely.

4 I will demolish your cities and make you desolate.

Then you will know that I am the LORD.

5^aYour eternal hatred for the people of Israel led you to butcher them when they were helpless, when I had already punished them for all their sins. 6As surely as I live, says the Sovereign LORD, since you show no distaste for blood, I will give you a bloodbath of your own. Your turn has come! 7I will make Mount Seir utterly desolate, killing off all who try to escape and any who return. 8I will fill your mountains with the dead. Your hills, your valleys, and your ravines will be filled with people slaughtered by the sword. 9I will make you desolate forever. Your cities will never be rebuilt. Then you will know that I am the LORD.

10^aFor you said, 'The lands of Israel and 34:20-22 the fat sheep and the scrawny sheep: Those with power and influence in society had taken all the good things for themselves and had left others without resources. God would judge between them and set things right.

34:23-24 one shepherd, my servant David: God planned to raise up David's offspring to succeed him (2 Sam 7:12-16). This "new David," like the first one, would be the Lord's servant, a man after God's own heart, and a good shepherd of his people.

34:25-26 God planned to provide his people with a new and better ruler and to make a covenant of peace with them. Their present experience of dangerous animals, drought, famine, and sword was the outworking of the curses of the covenant made at Sinai (see Lev 26:14-35). From now on, they would camp safely, experiencing the blessings of that covenant; God would send the showers they needed for fruitfulness and peace (see Lev 26:4-13).

34:27-31 In this covenant of peace, God's people experience the blessings that flow from wholeness of relationship with God. This covenant was not essentially different from the original covenant concluded at Sinai. It offered the experience of genuine, lasting peace that the Sinai covenant offered but never delivered because of the sin of God's people. In place of the failed kings of the past, they would receive a new and perfect king. In place of the relationship with God that had been repeatedly broken by sin, they would once again be God's people, the sheep of his pasture. Then they would achieve the goal of the covenant in that the Sovereign LORD would be their God and once again dwell in their midst.

35:1-15 This oracle is addressed to Edom, Israel's neighbor to the south-east, here personified by its central mountain, Mount Seir. Edom was emblematic of all Israel's enemies (e.g., in their rejoicing at Israel's fall, 36:2; see also 25:12-14). The demise of Judah at the hands of the Babylonians might have given Edom room to thrive, but the Lord declared that this prosperity would be short-lived.

35:5-10 The eternal [or ancient] hatred of Edom for Israel went all the way back to their respective ancestors, Esau and Jacob (see Gen 25:19-34; 27:1-46; Num 20:14-21; 24:18; 2 Sam 8:13-14; 1 Kgs 11:14). Because of that enmity, the Edomites took advantage of the Babylonian destruction to butcher the Israelites when they were helpless. They wanted to wipe out the descendants of Jacob and seize the lands of Israel and Judah. The bloodbath they delighted to inflict on Israel would return on their own heads, as their people would be slaughtered by the sword. Their everlasting hatred would be punished: Their land would become desolate forever. This prophecy was fulfilled when the Edomites were displaced by a coalition of Arab tribes sometime during the 400s bc.

Judah will be ours. We will take possession of them. What do we care that the LORD is there! ¹¹Therefore, as surely as I live, says the Sovereign LORD, I will pay back your angry deeds with my own. I will punish you for all your acts of anger, envy, and hatred. And I will make myself known to Israel by what I do to you. ¹²Then you will know that I, the LORD, have heard every contemptuous word you spoke against the mountains of Israel. For you said, 'They are desolate; they have been given to us as food to eat!' ¹³In saying that, you boasted proudly against me, and I have heard it all!

¹⁴"This is what the Sovereign LORD says: The whole world will rejoice when I make you desolate. ¹⁵You rejoiced at the desolation of Israel's territory. Now I will rejoice at yours! You will be wiped out, you people of Mount Seir and all who live in Edom! Then you will know that I am the LORD.

Restoration for Israel: A Renewed Land

36"Son of man, prophesy to Israel's mountains. Give them this message: O mountains of Israel, hear the word of the LORD! ²This is what the Sovereign LORD says: Your enemies have taunted you, saying, 'Aha! Now the ancient heights belong to us!' ³Therefore, son of man, give the mountains of Israel this message from the Sovereign LORD: Your enemies have attacked you from all directions, making you the property of many nations and the object of much mocking and slander. ⁴Therefore, O mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Sovereign LORD. He speaks to the hills and mountains, ravines and valleys, and to ruined wastes and long-deserted cities that have been destroyed and mocked by the surrounding nations. ⁵This is what the Sovereign LORD says: My jealous anger burns against these nations, especially Edom, because they have shown utter contempt for me by gleefully taking my land for themselves as plunder.

⁶"Therefore, prophesy to the hills and mountains, the ravines and valleys of Israel. This is what the Sovereign LORD says: I am furious that you have suffered shame before the surrounding nations. ⁷Therefore, this is what the Sovereign LORD says: I have taken a solemn oath that those nations will soon have their own shame to endure.

⁸"But the mountains of Israel will produce heavy crops of fruit for my people—for they will be coming home again soon! ⁹See, I care about you, and I will pay attention to you. Your ground will be plowed and your crops planted. ¹⁰I will greatly increase the population of Israel, and the ruined cities will be rebuilt and filled with people. ¹¹I will increase not only the people, but also your animals. O mountains of Israel, I will bring people to live on you once again. I will make you even more prosperous than you were before. Then you will know that I am the LORD. ¹²I will cause my people to walk on you once again, and you will be their territory. You will never again rob them of their children.

¹³"This is what the Sovereign LORD says: The other nations taunt you, saying, 'Israel is a land that devours its own people and robs them of their children!' ¹⁴But you will never again devour your people or rob them of their children, says the Sovereign LORD. ¹⁵I will not let you hear those other nations insult you, and you will no longer be mocked by them. You will not be a land that causes its nation to fall, says the Sovereign LORD."

35:11 to Israel: Literally to them; Greek version reads to you.

35:13-15 The Edomites mistakenly assumed that God's judgment of his people and his abandonment of the Temple meant that his covenant with Israel was no longer in effect. The Edomites had boasted and elevated themselves against both Israel and the Lord. The God of Israel would not tolerate such boasting, for he is the sovereign Lord of all. His choice of Israel and his giving them the land would not be revoked.

36:1-15 The destruction of Edom (ch 35) would prepare the way for the restoration of the mountains of Israel, reversing the devastation threatened in ch 6.

36:2 The ancient heights of Israel could not be stolen by their enemies because the Lord had given them to his people.

36:6-7 The period of enduring the shame of mockery and plundering would now be over for Israel, and Israel's enemies would soon endure their own shame by being mocked and plundered.

36:8-11 When God's people returned, Israel would experience an increase in population and fruitfulness, fulfilling the creation mandate of Gen 1:28.

36:12-13 God had intended for the land to provide abundantly for his people and their offspring; instead, it had robbed them of their children and devoured its own people. This was the direct result of Israel's failure to keep the terms of the covenant, which led to the Lord's judgment being imposed upon them with catastrophic results for them and their children (see 5:17). Now that the people were being transformed, they would receive the covenant blessing of a fruitful land.

36:16-38 Ezekiel reminded his hearers of their guilt and their need for God to change their hearts. In the future, God planned to cleanse his people. • Objects and people are divided in the OT into land, they defiled it by the evil way they lived. To me their conduct was as unclean as a woman's menstrual cloth. ¹⁸They polluted the land with murder and the worship of idols, so I poured out my fury on them. ¹⁹I scattered them to many lands to punish them for the evil way they had lived. ²⁰But when they were scattered among the nations, they brought shame on my holy name. For the nations said, 'These are the people of the LORD, but he couldn't keep them safe in his own land!' ²¹Then I was concerned for my holy name, on which my people brought shame among the nations.

²²"Therefore, give the people of Israel this message from the Sovereign LORD: I am bringing you back, but not because you deserve it. I am doing it to protect my holy name, on which you brought shame while you were scattered among the nations. ²³I will show how holy my great name is—the name on which you brought shame among the nations. And when I reveal my holiness through you before their very eyes, says the Sovereign LORD, then the nations will know that I am the LORD. ²⁴For I will gather you up from all the nations and bring you home again to your land.

²⁵"Then I will sprinkle clean water on you, and you will be clean. Your filth will be washed away, and you will no longer worship idols. ²⁶And I will give you a new heart, and I will put a new spirit in you. I will take out your stony, stubborn heart and give you a tender, responsive heart. ²⁷And I will put my Spirit in you so that you will follow my decrees and be careful to obey my regulations.

²⁸"And you will live in Israel, the land I gave your ancestors long ago. You will be my people, and I will be your God. ²⁹I will cleanse you of your filthy behavior. I will give you good crops of grain, and I will send no more famines on the land. ³⁰I will give you great harvests from your fruit trees and fields, and never again will the surrounding nations be able to scoff at your land for its famines. ³¹Then you will remember your past sins and despise yourselves for all the detestable things you did. ³²But remember, says the Sovereign LORD, I am not doing this because you deserve it. O my people of the categories of "clean" and "unclean," "sacred" and "profane" (see "Clean and Unclean" at Lev 11:1-15:33, p. 213). God had made Israel clean, while the Gentile nations had remained unclean. Then Israel as a nation became unclean because of their bloodshed and idolatry, which defiled the land. Because they behaved like the unclean nations, Israel's punishment of being scattered among the nations was fitting. In the future, God would make them clean so that he could dwell among them again. The other nations, seeing his holiness in his people, would once again know that he is the Holy One. In the NT, God's redemption through Christ redraws the lines between clean and unclean (see Acts 10:15). The Gentiles are no longer outside of God's grace; they too can receive the Holy Spirit and become clean. Jews and Gentiles together now make up the one people of God in Christ. Those who are in Christ Jesus are not only clean, but also holy by virtue of his priesthood. Therefore, they are able to come boldly into God's presence and experience his grace (Heb 12:18-29).

36:17 Covenant curses had come to Israel because God's people had defiled . . . their own land by their sinful behavior. • A menstrual cloth became polluted by contact with a woman's monthly flow of blood. This natural process was not sinful, but it was defiling in the same way that any loss of bodily life-fluids such as blood, sweat (see note on 44:17-19), or semen made people ceremonially unclean (see Lev 15).

36:18 Israel had made the land unfit for God's presence through murder and the worship of idols. As a result of their covenant breaking, they were expelled from the land and scattered among the nations (see Deut 29:22-28). • idols: The Hebrew term (literally round things) probably alludes to dung; also in 36:25. See note on 6:4-7.

36:20 This scattering also brought shame on the Lord's holy name. It was not so much the behavior of the exiles that robbed the Lord of his glory, but the very fact that they were in exile, insofar as it made the surrounding nations conclude that Israel's God had been unable to keep them safe in his own land.

36:21-24 Out of concern for his own holiness, God sent Israel into exile. Concern for the honor of his holy name would lead him to gather them again to the land. Israel did not deserve this return from exile; it was simply a manifestation of the Lord's holiness and power in the sight of the nations. Israel could not remain forever outside the land that God had sworn to give to Abraham and his descendants.

36:25 It was not enough to bring Israel back to the land; they would also become a new, transformed Israel. God would sprinkle them with clean water to cleanse them from all of the impurities that had defiled the land. Such sprinkling with water was a routine part of Jewish purification ceremonies (see Num 19); it symbolized a fresh start, with their old sins washed away.

36:26 The Lord's renewal of his people was not merely an outward cleansing; the Lord would give Israel a new heart and a new spirit (11:19; 18:31). The heart and spirit are the sources of the thoughts and will that underlie action. Their stony, stubborn heart would now become a tender, responsive heart (literally a heart of flesh), ready to serve the Lord. The spirit of rebellion would be replaced with a spirit of obedience.

36:27-28 The Spirit of God would create life and light out of darkness and chaos (cp. Gen 1:2), producing an entirely new ability to follow God's decrees and . . . regulations. In the past, the Spirit of God had empowered people for specific tasks of service to the Lord (see Judg 3:10; 1 Sam 16:13). In the future, a more widespread empowerment by God's Spirit would enable his people to lead holy lives (see Joel 2:28-29). This renewed people would again live in Israel and make it fit for God's presence to dwell among them once again.

36:29-32 This transformation would bring the blessings of the covenant made with Moses, not its curses, and a new glory among the surrounding nations. This blessing would cause God's people to be profoundly ashamed of their past and to appreciate both their lack of merit and God's overwhelming grace.

Israel, you should be utterly ashamed of all you have done!

³³"This is what the Sovereign LORD says: When I cleanse you from your sins, I will repopulate your cities, and the ruins will be rebuilt. ³⁴The fields that used to lie empty and desolate in plain view of everyone will again be farmed. ³⁵And when I bring you back, people will say, 'This former wasteland is now like the Garden of Eden! The abandoned and ruined cities now have strong walls and are filled with people!' ³⁶Then the surrounding nations that survive will know that I, the LORD, have rebuilt the ruins and replanted the wasteland. For I, the LORD, have spoken, and I will do what I say.

³⁷"This is what the Sovereign LORD says: I am ready to hear Israel's prayers and to increase their numbers like a flock. ³⁸They will be as numerous as the sacred flocks that fill Jerusalem's streets at the time of her festivals. The ruined cities will be crowded with people once more, and everyone will know that I am the LORD."

A Valley of Dry Bones: A Renewed People

37 The LORD took hold of me, and I was carried away by the Spirit of the LORD to a valley filled with bones. ²He led me all around among the bones that covered the valley floor. They were scattered everywhere across the ground and were completely dried out. ³Then he asked me, "Son of man, can these bones become living people again?"

"O Sovereign LORD," I replied, "you alone know the answer to that."

⁴Then he said to me, "Speak a prophetic message to these bones and say, 'Dry bones, listen to the word of the LORD! ⁵This is what the Sovereign LORD says: Look! I am going to put breath into you and make you live again! ⁶I will put flesh and muscles on you and cover you with skin. I will put breath into you, and you will come to life. Then you will know that I am the LORD.'"

⁷So I spoke this message, just as he told me. Suddenly as I spoke, there was a rattling noise all across the valley. The bones of each body came together and attached themselves as complete skeletons. ⁸Then as I watched, muscles and flesh formed over the bones. Then skin formed to cover their bodies, but they still had no breath in them.

⁹Then he said to me, "Speak a prophetic message to the winds, son of man. Speak a prophetic message and say, 'This is what the Sovereign LORD says: Come, O breath, from the four winds! Breathe into these dead bodies so they may live again.'"

¹⁰So I spoke the message as he commanded me, and breath came into their bodies. They all came to life and stood up on their feet—a great army.

¹¹Then he said to me, "Son of man, these bones represent the people of Israel. They are saying, 'We have become old, dry bones—all hope is gone. Our nation is finished.' ¹²Therefore, prophesy to them and say, 'This is what the Sovereign LORD says: O my people, I will open your graves of exile and cause you to rise again. Then I will bring you back to the land of Israel. ¹³When this happens, O my people, you will know that I am the LORD. ¹⁴I will put my Spirit in you, and you will live again and return home to your own land. Then you will know that I, the LORD, have spoken, and I have done what I said. Yes, the LORD has spoken!'"

36:35-38 The restored land would become like the Garden of Eden, the ultimate symbol of fertility and fruitfulness. The original garden would be enhanced by restored cities, overflowing with renewed humanity like Jerusalem's streets at the time of her festivals. The greatest blessing, however, would be God's willingness to hear Israel's prayers once more. He had once refused to listen to his rebellious people (14:3; 20:3), but now the Lord would turn his face toward them and hear their cries. The proof of this would be the number of people in the rebuilt cities who would acknowledge that the Lord is God.

37:1-14 From the promise of a vibrant city overflowing with life (36:38), the prophet was transported into a valley of death, surrounded on all sides by bones. It was a symbolic restatement of the promises that the Spirit of the Lord gives life (36:16-38).

37:2 This death scene seemed hopeless; these were not recently expired corpses but miscellaneous bones, scattered everywhere across the ground and . . . completely dried out. This scene symbolized the attitude of the people. Their hopes for themselves were not merely dead; they were dismembered and desiccated.

37:3 Son of man, can these bones become living people again? The expected answer was no, but Ezekiel knew that God's power is unlimited, so he turned the question back to God. The real issue was not whether the Lord was able to make these bones live, but whether it was his will to do so.

37:4-6 It was God's will that these bones should live. His will was mediated through the prophetic message that Ezekiel was to speak . . . to these bones, declaring that they should be restored into living, breathing bodies again, complete with flesh and muscles and breath. • The word translated breath can also be translated "spirit" or "wind," a play on words that continues throughout this chapter.

37:7-8 Ezekiel obediently fulfilled his commission to prophesy to the bones, and in response, they came together into whole bodies. Yet a body of bones, muscles and flesh, and skin is still a corpse. These people still had to be filled with breath if they were to live (as in Gen 2:7).

37:9-10 When Ezekiel prophesied to the four winds, . . . breath came into the re-formed bodies and they stood up on their feet as a great army prepared for

Reunion of Israel and Judah: A Renewed Unity

¹⁵Again a message came to me from the LORD: ¹⁶"Son of man, take a piece of wood and carve on it these words: 'This represents Judah and its allied tribes.' Then take another piece and carve these words on it: 'This represents Ephraim and the northern tribes of Israel.' ¹⁷Now hold them together in your hand as if they were one piece of wood. ¹⁸When your people ask you what your actions mean, ¹⁹say to them, 'This is what the Sovereign LORD says: I will take Ephraim and the northern tribes and join them to Judah. I will make them one piece of wood in my hand.'

²⁰"Then hold out the pieces of wood

you have inscribed, so the people can see them. ²¹And give them this message from the Sovereign LORD: I will gather the people of Israel from among the nations. I will bring them home to their own land from the places where they have been scattered. ²²I will unify them into one nation on the mountains of Israel. One king will rule them all; no longer will they be divided into two nations or into two kingdoms. ²³They will never again pollute themselves with their idols and vile images and rebellion, for I will save them from their sinful apostasy. I will cleanse them. Then they will truly be my people, and I will be their God.

Ezekiel 37 might at first appear to teach that all people will be resurrected from the dead, living again in new bodies after their present bodies die. However, Ezekiel's description here is not the universal resurrection of all flesh. He is not dealing with the general question, "Can human bones return to life?" Ezekiel and his audience were already familiar, from the miracles of Elijah and Elisha, with the possibility of dead people being raised to life (1 Kgs 17:17-24; 2 Kgs 4:31-37; 13:20-21). Instead, Ezekiel is addressing the particular question, "Can these bones live?"—that is, could a denuded, dismembered, and desiccated Judah be restored?

At that time, the Babylonians had devastated Judea in 586 BC, the Temple had been destroyed, and most of the people had been exiled to Babylon. The people still in Judah were a mere remnant, only the poorest of the poor (see 2 Kgs 25:8-12). Many concluded that there was no future for God's people. They said, "We have become old, dry bones—all hope is gone. Our nation is finished" (37:11). The question was not whether God could raise them to new life, but whether he would perform such a miracle for the dry bones that represented Israel.

The prophet answered this question with a resounding Yes! God would return his people to life through an outpouring of his Spirit in response to the prophet's word. Their death because of their sins was real, but God would not leave them in the grave (cp. Ps 16:10). Rather, he promised that in the future he would give his people life by his Spirit and would transform them into a new creation, a new Spirit-filled Israel. This new people of God would be raised to their feet as a mighty army that would serve the Lord.

God is capable of raising to life those who are physically dead, and he can restore to life a destroyed community. Similarly, he chooses to give the miracle of new birth to undeserving sinners (see John 3:5-7; Eph 2:1-7). He makes those whom the world would write off as irredeemable acceptable to himself in Christ (1 Cor 6:9-11), and he equips them for fruitful work in his service (Eph 4:12-13; 6:11-18).

action. This breath, emblematic of being filled with the Spirit, gave them life and empowered them for action, precisely as had happened to the prophet on two earlier occasions (1:28–2:2 and 3:23–24).

37:11–14 The oracle that follows explains this vision. The people in exile felt that they were as dead as old, dry bones. As a result, they felt that all hope was gone, but the Lord could and would restore them to life. God would once again call them my people, and he promised that he would open their graves of exile and bring them back to the land of Israel.

37:14 As well as breath, the Lord would put his life-giving Spirit within his people. If the sovereign Lord had determined to raise them, no dryness on their part would hold him back.

37:15–28 The prophet then performed a sign act (see "Prophetic Sign Acts" at 4:1–17, p. 1319) that demonstrated the future reunification of God's people and the healing of the schism between the northern and southern tribes (see 1 Kgs 12).

37:16 This represents Ephraim and the northern tribes of Israel: Literally This is Ephraim's wood, representing Joseph and all the house of Israel; similarly in 37:19.

37:19 The sovereign Lord would accomplish the reunification of Israel by his own hand.

37:20–25 When the kingdoms were reunited, the problems that had led to the schism would also be resolved. In place of the abusive and unfaithful leadership of Rehoboam that had split the nation in two (1 Kgs 12), God would supply a single servant leader, a shepherd king. Like David, he would unite the tribes. This restored people would also be renewed and cleansed from their idols and vile images so that the Lord might once again be their God. Thus purified, they would keep the Lord's decrees and live there forever.

37:23 idols: The Hebrew term (literally round things) probably alludes to dung. See note on 6:4–7.

²⁴"My servant David will be their king, and they will have only one shepherd. They will obey my regulations and be careful to keep my decrees. ²⁵They will live in the land I gave my servant Jacob, the land where their ancestors lived. They and their children and their grandchildren after them will live there forever, generation after generation. And my servant David will be their prince forever. ²⁶And I will make a ^acovenant of peace with them, an everlasting ^acovenant. I will give them their land and increase their numbers, and I will put my Temple among them forever. ²⁷I will make my home among them. I will be their God, and they will be my people. ²⁸And when my Temple is among them forever, the nations will know that I am the LORD, who makes Israel holy."

The Final Test (38:1–39:29)

A Message against Gog

38 This is another message that came to me from the LORD: ²⁴"Son of man, turn and face Gog of the land of Magog, the prince who rules over the nations of Meshech and Tubal, and prophesy against him. ³Give him this message from the Sovereign LORD: Gog, I am your enemy! ⁴I will turn you around and put hooks in your jaws to lead you out with your whole army—your horses and charioteers in full armor and a great horde armed with shields and swords. ⁵Persia, Ethiopia, and Libya will join you, too, with all their weapons. ⁶Gomer and all its armies will also join you, along with the armies of Beth-togarmah from the distant north, and many others.

⁷"Get ready; be prepared! Keep all the armies around you mobilized, and take command of them. ⁸A long time from now you will be called into action. In the distant future you will swoop down on the land of Israel, which will be enjoying peace after recovering from war and after its people have returned from many lands to the mountains of Israel. ⁹You and all your allies—a vast and awesome army—will roll down on them like a storm and cover the land like a cloud.

37:25-28 The covenant of peace, which is the blessing of covenant obedience, will be everlasting. The people's earlier defilement had led to the Lord's destruction of the Temple; now, their new purity would be matched by a renewed sanctuary, a Temple in which God could dwell in their midst forever. This final Temple will be the culmination of the success of God's sanctifying program and demonstrate that the Lord is the one who makes Israel holy. Cp. chs 40–48; see "Temple Architecture as Theology" at 40:1–43:27, p. 1373.

37:26 I will give them their land and increase their numbers: Hebrew reads I will give them and increase their numbers; Greek version lacks the entire phrase.

38:1–39:29 The idyllic scene in ch 37 of the reunited nation living at peace in its own land gives way to gathering storm clouds in chs 38–39, a two-panel depiction of the assault, defeat, and disposal of the last enemy, Gog. Readers have long sought to identify Gog, who has sometimes been identified with Gyges, king of Lydia (about 680–644 BC). The biblical Gog, however, transcends historical categories; the text is less concerned with Gog's identity than with the universal threat caused by the nations of the world. Yet even such an overwhelming force would be no serious threat to the restored people of God, for God was now dwelling in their midst. The symbolism of these chapters has much in common with psalms of Zion's security (see, e.g., Pss 2, 46). If even a fearsome foe such as Gog could not separate God's people from his protection, then surely nothing in all creation could do so. • Ezekiel's account of Gog belongs to the genre of apocalyptic literature (see also Daniel Introduction, "Daniel as Apocalyptic Literature," p. 1391; Zechariah Introduction, "Literary Genre," p. 1526). Apocalyptic is different in style and focus from other types of prophetic literature. For the prophetic oracle, the words are the central focus, while for apocalyptic literature the vision is the key. Whereas the prophet delivering an oracle is like the prosecuting counsel, the writer of apocalyptic is acting as a witness, describing the heavenly realities that he has seen. Prophecy frequently looks toward salvation or judgment within the boundaries of this present world. Apocalyptic, by contrast, looks for a fulfillment that transcends space and time. The good news of apocalyptic is that in spite of present depressing appearances, the decisive battle has already taken place in heaven, and the forces of light have won—God reigns, and his kingdom will ultimately triumph. This news comforts the faithful during the present times of suffering and difficulty, but also exhorts them to continue being faithful, no matter what the opposition. Whatever the cost in terms of suffering, obedience is the only way to live while we look forward with hope to our final vindication when God acts decisively to bring in his new age of salvation.

38:1-6 Gog would lead a coalition of seven nations from the four corners of the world. The numbers seven and four both symbolize completeness (see note on 1:5-9); here, they indicate an invincible alliance coming from far and near in all directions, from which there would be no escape. Magog, Meshech and Tubal, Gomer, and Beth-togarmah were located in the north, in Anatolia and the region beyond the Black Sea. Persia was to the east, Ethiopia to the south, and Libya to the west.

38:4 Gog's rebellion would be under God's complete control. Though they would regard themselves as free-willed aggressors, they would actually be prisoners with hooks in their jaws (cp. 29:4).

38:5 Persia, Ethiopia, and Libya: Hebrew Paras, Cush, and Put.

38:8 A long time from now (literally after many days) . . . In the distant future (literally in the end of the years): This encounter is described as a climactic final battle that will precede a final state of peace. There are a variety of views as to whether this final battle is a literal event at the end of history or a literary depiction of the Lord's protection of his permanently embattled people. Either way, the point remains that when the Lord's favor rests upon his people, no one and nothing can separate them from that protection, even the most all-out assault of evil.

38:9 roll down on them like a storm: This is reminiscent of the threatening imagery of ch 1, when God was Israel's enemy. At that time, Israel looked to the surrounding rebellious nations for protection; this time, Israel would look to God for protection from the nations.

¹⁰"This is what the Sovereign LORD says: At that time evil thoughts will come to your mind, and you will devise a wicked scheme. ¹¹You will say, 'Israel is an unprotected land filled with unwalled villages! I will march against her and destroy these people who live in such confidence! ¹²I will go to those formerly desolate cities that are now filled with people who have returned from exile in many nations. I will capture vast amounts of plunder, for the people are rich with livestock and other possessions now. They think the whole world revolves around them!' ¹³But Sheba and Dedan and the merchants of Tarshish will ask, 'Do you really think the armies you have gathered can rob them of silver and gold? Do you think you can drive away their livestock and seize their goods and carry off plunder?'

¹⁴Therefore, son of man, prophesy against Gog. Give him this message from the Sovereign LORD: When my people are living in peace in their land, then you will rouse yourself. ¹⁵You will come from your homeland in the distant north with your vast cavalry and your mighty army, ¹⁶and you will attack my people Israel, covering their land like a cloud. At that time in the distant future, I will bring you against my land as everyone watches, and my holiness will be displayed by what happens to you, Gog. Then all the nations will know that I am the LORD.

¹⁷"This is what the Sovereign LORD asks: Are you the one I was talking about long ago, when I announced through Israel's prophets that in the future I would bring you against my people? ¹⁸But this is what the Sovereign LORD says: When Gog invades the land of Israel, my fury will boil over! ¹⁹In my jealousy and blazing anger, I promise a mighty shaking in the land of Israel on that day. ²⁰All living things—the fish in the sea, the birds of the sky, the animals of the field, the small animals that scurry along the ground, and all the people on earth—will quake in terror at my presence. Mountains will be thrown down; cliffs will crumble; walls will fall to the earth. ²¹I will summon the sword against you on all the hills of Israel, says the Sovereign LORD. Your men will turn their swords against each other. ²²I will punish you and your armies with disease and bloodshed; I will send torrential rain, hailstones, fire, and burning sulfur! ²³In this way, I will show my greatness and holiness, and I will make myself known to all the nations of the world. Then they will know that I am the LORD.

The Slaughter of Gog's Hordes

39"Son of man, prophesy against Gog. Give him this message from the Sovereign LORD: I am your enemy, O Gog, ruler of the nations of Meshech and Tubal. ²I will turn you around and drive you toward the mountains of Israel, bringing you from the distant north. ³I will knock the bow from your left hand and the arrows from your right hand, and I will leave you helpless. ⁴You and your army and your allies will all die on the mountains. I will feed you to the vultures and wild animals. ⁵You will fall in the open fields, for I have spoken, says the Sovereign LORD. ⁶And I will rain down fire on Magog and on all your allies who live safely on the coasts. Then they will know that I am the LORD.

38:10 The Lord's "hook" in Gog's "jaw" (38:4) would consist of Gog's own wicked scheme to destroy the defenseless and unsuspecting Israelites and capture their plunder (cp. Ps 76:10).

38:13 The merchant nations of the world, from Sheba and Dedan in the east to Tarshish in the west, would line up to market the booty from the apparently sure victory of Gog and his allies.

38:14-16 Israel would be rich, living in peace and experiencing the fruit of obedient trust in the Lord. However, such obedience does not eliminate the possibility of threatening circumstances (cp. John 16:33). The odds might have seemed stacked against Israel, but Gog had failed to reckon with the LORD. The Lord would use Gog and his allies as a tool for displaying his holiness in the sight of all the nations.

38:14 then you will rouse yourself: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads then you will know.

38:17 Gog was not the prophesied "enemy from the north" of Jer 4–6 that God was talking about long ago. Those prophecies had already found their fulfillment in the devastation that King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon had wreaked on Judah.

38:18-20 Instead of being the agent of divine wrath, Gog would be subject to it. The Lord would vent on Gog the jealousy and blazing anger he had earlier visited on Israel. The scene would be so frightening that even innocent bystanders would quake in terror. The earth would also tremble, destroying mountains, cliffs, and walls.

38:21-23 The sword . . . disease and bloodshed . . . torrential rain, hailstones, fire, and burning sulfur! Israel had experienced similar punishments before (see 13:13); now they were executed on Israel's enemies. The Divine Warrior was once again defending his people.

39:2 I will turn you around and drive you: The Lord would be bringing Gog against Israel in order to break him (see note on 38:4). • distant north: See note on 1:4.

39:3-4 This fearsome foe, Gog, would be left helpless; his corpse would be food for the vultures and wild animals, like another Goliath (cp. 1 Sam 17:44-46).

39:5-6 Gog's homeland would be devastated, and the destruction they had planned for the people who live safely would return upon their own heads.

⁷"In this way, I will make known my holy name among my people of Israel. I will not let anyone bring shame on it. And the nations, too, will know that I am the LORD, the Holy One of Israel. ⁸That day of judgment will come, says the Sovereign LORD. Everything will happen just as I have declared it.

⁹"Then the people in the towns of Israel will go out and pick up your small and large shields, bows and arrows, javelins and spears, and they will use them for fuel. There will be enough to last them seven years! ¹⁰They won't need to cut wood from the fields or forests, for these weapons will give them all the fuel they need. They will plunder those who planned to plunder them, and they will rob those who planned to rob them, says the Sovereign LORD.

¹¹"And I will make a vast graveyard for Gog and his hordes in the Valley of the Travelers, east of the Dead Sea. It will block the way of those who travel there, and they will change the name of the place to the Valley of Gog's Hordes. ¹²It will take seven months for the people of Israel to bury the bodies and cleanse the land. ¹³Everyone in Israel will help, for it will be a glorious victory for Israel when I demonstrate my glory on that day, says the Sovereign LORD.

¹⁴"After seven months, teams of men will be appointed to search the land for skeletons to bury, so the land will be made clean again. ¹⁵Whenever bones are found, a marker will be set up so the burial crews will take them to be buried in the Valley of Gog's Hordes. ¹⁶(There will be a town there named Hamonah, which means 'horde.') And so the land will finally be cleansed.

¹⁷"And now, son of man, this is what the Sovereign LORD says: Call all the birds and wild animals. Say to them: Gather together for my great sacrificial feast. Come from far and near to the mountains of Israel, and there eat flesh and drink blood! ¹⁸Eat the flesh of mighty men and drink the blood of princes as though they were rams, lambs, goats, and bulls—all fattened animals from Bashan! ¹⁹Gorge yourselves with flesh until you are glutted; drink blood until you are drunk. This is the sacrificial feast I have prepared for you. ²⁰Feast at my banquet table—feast on horses and charioteers, on mighty men and all kinds of valiant warriors, says the Sovereign LORD.

²¹"In this way, I will demonstrate my glory to the nations. Everyone will see the punishment I have inflicted on them and the power of my fist when I strike. ²²And from that time on the people of Israel will know that I am the LORD their God. ²³The nations will then know why Israel was sent away to exile—it was punishment for sin, for they were unfaithful to their God. Therefore, I turned away from them and let their enemies destroy them. ²⁴I turned my face away and punished them because of their defilement and their sins.

Restoration for God's People

²⁵"So now, this is what the Sovereign LORD says: I will end the captivity of my people; I will have mercy on all Israel, for I jealously guard my holy reputation! ²⁶They will

39:7-8 God's judgment on Gog would make known his holy name. Just as he once judged his own people for their sins for the sake of his reputation (36:16-20), now he would defend his restored people and judge their enemies.

39:9-10 Israel would be called upon to act only after Gog had been completely defeated and destroyed. As in some of their great battles in the past, Israel would be able to watch the Lord act and then pick up the spoils (e.g., 2 Kgs 6-7; 2 Chr 20). Ironically, the only items to survive the fire from heaven that destroyed Gog's army would be wooden weaponry that would now be fuel for Israel's fires for seven years, a number that often represents completeness in the OT. Those who came to plunder would become plunder. Their weapons would be unnecessary now that Israel's last enemy had been destroyed.

39:11 The people would need to gather the plunder and bury the bodies of the slain soldiers. These corpses would otherwise defile the holy land, for contact with a corpse made a person ritually unclean. There were so many of these corpses that a vast graveyard would be required, big enough to fill an entire valley that would now be known as the Valley of Gog's Hordes. • the Dead Sea: Literally the sea.

39:12-16 The body count would be so large that everyone in Israel would be involved in the clean-up process for seven months. Even after that initial period, there would be a continuing need for teams of professional morticians to go through the land, tagging remains so that they could be properly disposed of.

39:17 God would also provide his own disposal team of birds and wild animals, which he would gather for his great sacrificial feast.

39:18-20 In most sacrificial feasts, humans dined on slaughtered animals. This feast would allow animals to dine on slaughtered humans as though they were rams, lambs, goats, and bulls. This reversal of the great messianic banquet

(Isa 25:6) features the enemies of God as the menu rather than as the invited guests.

39:21-24 The Lord will demonstrate his glory in all of history. He did so through the punishment of Israel during their exile because of their defilement and their sins.

39:25-29 God would also demonstrate his glory through his people's return home from exile in the lands of their enemies. Once God had exhausted his wrath upon them for their sins, he would bring them home again and leave none of them behind. He would pour out his Spirit upon the people of Israel, transforming them in order to prevent a recurrence of their former situation. He would never again turn his face from them. His future favor on his people was assured (cp. Rom 8:31-39).

The Renewed Temple and Land (40:1–48:35) The New Temple Area

40 On April 28, during the twenty-fifth year of our captivity—fourteen years after the fall of Jerusalem—the LORD took hold of me. ²In a vision from God he took me to the land of Israel and set me down on a very high mountain. From there I could see toward the south what appeared to be a city. ³As he brought me nearer, I saw a man whose face shone like bronze standing beside a gateway entrance. He was holding in his hand a linen measuring cord and a measuring rod.

⁴He said to me, "Son of man, watch and listen. Pay close attention to everything I show you. You have been brought here so I can show you many things. Then you will return to the people of Israel and tell them everything you have seen."

The East Gateway

⁵I could see a wall completely surrounding the Temple area. The man took a measuring rod that was 10½ feet long and measured the wall, and the wall was 10½ feet thick and 10½ feet high.

⁶Then he went over to the eastern gateway. He climbed the steps and measured the threshold of the gateway; it was 10½ feet front to back. ⁷There were guard alcoves on each side built into the gateway passage. Each of these alcoves was 10½ feet square, with a distance between them of 8¾ feet along the passage wall. The gateway's inner threshold, which led to the entry room at the inner end of the gateway passage, was 10½ feet front to back. ⁸He also measured the entry room of the gateway. ⁹It was 14 feet across, with supporting columns 3½ feet

40:1–48:35 The final section of Ezekiel focuses on the new Temple (40:1–47:12; see "Temple Architecture as Theology" at 40:1–43:27, p. 1373; "Temple Legislation as Theology" at 44:1–46:18, p. 1379) and on allotment of the land (47:13–48:35; see "Israel's Geography as Theology" at 47:13–48:35, p. 1386). The Temple at the center of the land was the capstone of God's program of restoring and sanctifying his people so that he could once again dwell in their midst (see 37:28). This Temple, which Ezekiel saw in a vision, was never actually constructed.

40:1–46:24 The prophet's tour of the new Temple proceeded from the outside of the Temple into its center. From the inside, he then returned outwards, ending up at the kitchens in the corners of the outer courtyard (46:19–24).

40:1 On April 28: Literally At the beginning of the year, on the tenth day of the month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar. This event occurred on April 28, 573 BC; see also note on 1:1. • twenty-fifth year: On the tenth day of the seventh month in a jubilee year (the fiftieth year), trumpets were sounded to announce liberty throughout the land (Lev 25:8–13). This vision of a liberated future therefore took place halfway to the jubilee, a natural time for looking ahead to the release already announced by the Lord through his prophet.

40:2 a very high mountain: Revelations from God often took place on mountaintops in the OT. Moses received

God's law and the design for the Tabernacle at Mount Sinai (Exod 19–40), and he viewed the Promised Land that he would never enter from Pisgah Peak (Deut 34:1–4). So also on this mountaintop, Ezekiel met with God and saw the wonderful future that God had prepared for his people, even though he would not live to experience it.

40:3 a man whose face shone like bronze: An angelic guide would host Ezekiel's tour of the Temple. The bronze color is reminiscent of the heavenly creatures described in the opening vision (see 1:7). Unlike the guide for his previous visionary tour of the earthly Temple in chs 8–11, this guide was armed only with a linen measuring cord and a measuring rod, implements of construction rather than destruction. Measurement is a key theme in the chapters that follow, enabling the prophet to highlight the importance of certain parts of the Temple by making them larger and more precisely determined than other parts.

40:5–16 The exact architectural details of the Temple are difficult to translate, but the overall impression of these gates was unmistakable. They were fortress-like constructions, designed to keep out unauthorized intruders. The eastern gateway is described first since it was the most important. It lay on the sacred east–west axis of the Temple along which the entire construction was oriented, and it was the gate through which the glory of the Lord would finally return (43:1–5).

40:5 a wall completely surrounding the Temple area: Walls regulate and define space, marking an "inside" and an "outside." This wall was substantial; its function was to separate the "profane" area outside the Temple from the holy area inside so that this crucial distinction would never again be blurred (see 22:26). • 10½ feet: Hebrew 6 long cubits [3.2 meters], each being a cubit [18 inches or 45 centimeters] and a handbreadth [3 inches or 8 centimeters] in length. • 10½ feet: Hebrew 1 rod [3.2 meters]; also in 40:7.

40:6 10½ feet front to back: As in Greek version, which reads 1 rod [3.2 meters] deep; Hebrew reads 1 rod deep, and 1 threshold, 1 rod deep.

40:7 Six guard alcoves lined the inside of the gates, three on each side, confirming their defensive significance. These gates were similar in layout to those excavated at Hazor, Megiddo, and Gezer, but substantially larger in size. • 8¾ feet: Hebrew 5 cubits [2.7 meters]; also in 40:48.

40:8–9 At the end of 40:8, many Hebrew manuscripts add which faced inward toward the Temple; it was 1 rod [10.5 feet or 3.2 meters] deep. ⁹Then he measured the entry room of the gateway.

40:9 14 feet: Hebrew 8 cubits [4.2 meters]. • 3½ feet: Hebrew 2 cubits [1.1 meters].

thick. This entry room was at the inner end of the gateway structure, facing toward the Temple.

¹⁰There were three guard alcoves on each side of the gateway passage. Each had the same measurements, and the dividing walls separating them were also identical. ¹¹The man measured the gateway entrance, which was 17½ feet wide at the opening and 22¾ feet wide in the gateway passage. ¹²In front of each of the guard alcoves was a 21-inch curb. The alcoves themselves were 10½ feet on each side.

¹³Then he measured the entire width of the gateway, measuring the distance between the back walls of facing guard alcoves; this distance was 43¾ feet. ¹⁴He measured the dividing walls all along the inside of the gateway up to the entry room of the gateway; this distance was 105 feet. ¹⁵The full length of the gateway passage was 87½ feet from one end to the other. ¹⁶There were recessed windows that narrowed inward through the walls of the guard alcoves and their dividing walls. There were also windows in the entry room. The surfaces of the dividing walls were decorated with carved palm trees.

The Outer Courtyard

¹⁷Then the man brought me through the gateway into the outer courtyard of the Temple. A stone pavement ran along the walls of the courtyard, and thirty rooms were built against the walls, opening onto the pavement. ¹⁸This pavement flanked the gates and extended out from the walls into the courtyard the same distance as the gateway entrance. This was the lower pavement. ¹⁹Then the man measured across the Temple's outer courtyard between the outer and inner gateways; the distance was 175 feet.

The North Gateway

²⁰The man measured the gateway on the north just like the one on the east. ²¹Here, too, there were three guard alcoves on each side, with dividing walls and an entry room. All the measurements matched those of the east gateway. The gateway passage was 87½ feet long and 43¾ feet wide between the back walls of facing guard alcoves. ²²The windows, the entry room, and the palm tree decorations were identical to those in the east gateway. There were seven steps leading up to the gateway entrance, and the entry room was at the inner end of the gateway passage. ²³Here on the north side, just as on the east, there was another gateway leading to the Temple's inner courtyard directly opposite this outer gateway. The distance between the two gateways was 175 feet.

The South Gateway

²⁴Then the man took me around to the south gateway and measured its various parts, and they were exactly the same as in the others. ²⁵It had windows along the walls as the others did, and there was an entry room where the gateway passage opened into the outer courtyard. And like the others, the gateway passage was 87½ feet long and 43¾ feet wide between the back walls of facing guard alcoves. ²⁶This gateway also had a stairway of seven steps leading up to it, and an entry room at the inner end, and palm tree decorations along the dividing walls. ²⁷And here again, directly opposite the outer gateway, was another gateway that led into the inner courtyard. The distance between the two gateways was 175 feet.

40:17-19 The outer courtyard provided a buffer zone around the holy things in the inner courtyard, and thirty rooms were built around the walls. The purpose of these rooms is not stated, nor are their dimensions precisely given, which heightens the contrast between the relatively less significant outer area of the Temple and the crucially important central holy space. These rooms were most likely to be used by the Levites for a variety of activities.

than the east gateway. They were also a formidable defensive barrier against the intrusion of any defilement. There is no west gateway to the outer or the inner court because the area behind the Temple proper was blocked off to prevent access from the rear.

40:22 The steps that led up to each gate heightened the sense of their inaccessibility. The inner, more sacred areas of the Temple were significantly higher in elevation than the outer parts, which provided another dimension of separation.

40:28-34 The inner courtyard was separated from the outer courtyard by another series of substantial gateways, similar in scale and function to the gateways of the outer courtyard. These gateways had entry rooms facing out-

The Temple plan given in this passage does not seem physically buildable, nor was it intended to be. The details given in the plan are not sufficient to guide construction, as may be seen from varying diagrams created by scholars. The materials to be used are not specified, as they were in great detail for the Tabernacle (Exod 25:10–40:33). Neither is there evidence that any attempt was later made to build the Second Temple according to this plan. Ezekiel's plan for the Temple is evidently not a blueprint for future construction.

Instead, Ezekiel's Temple vision is a theological statement in the form of an architectural plan. Its message is intended to shame Ezekiel's generation for their past and motivate them to be faithful in the future (43:10–11). The vision describes a new world in which boundaries between the holy and the unholy are established and standards are raised, so that God may return to his Temple to dwell among his people once again (see 10:3–4, 18; 11:22–23). Access to the realm of the holy is considerably restricted. Those who were faithful in the past are granted renewed access, while those who had been unfaithful are marginalized. There is a deepened interest in the sacrifices of atonement and purification for the people.

This new Temple finds its fulfillment in Jesus, in whom God's glory is revealed. His body was the temple that was to be torn down in a final cataclysmic cleansing (John 2:19), and then he was raised from the dead. In Jesus, the light of God's holiness shone out clearly in the darkness, and the darkness was not able to extinguish it (John 1:5). His body was the perfect, once-for-all sacrifice that purified his people (Heb 10:12). Those who are in Christ now have the privilege of access through him to the heavenly Most Holy Place, the new Jerusalem. Its doors stand permanently open to those who have washed their robes and made them clean in the blood of the Lamb (see Rev 21).

Since we have been united to Christ and have become part of his body, the new temple, how can we live any longer as we once did? The Holy Spirit dwells in us, and our bodies no longer belong to ourselves but to him as parts of his new temple (1 Cor 6:15–20). A holy life is the mark of God's children (1 Pet 1:13–16).

40:30 14 feet: As in 40:9, which reads 8 cubits [14 feet or 4.2 meters]; here the Hebrew reads 5 cubits [8½ feet or 2.7 meters]. Some Hebrew manuscripts and the Greek version lack this entire verse.

40:35–37 There is no mention of a wall around the inner courtyard, perhaps because it was elevated from the outer court by another eight steps, perhaps a total of eight feet. If there were no wall around the inner court, there would be a free-standing archway that provided a clear view of activities in the inner area without any likelihood of accidental trespass into the realm of the sacred. Alternatively, reference to a wall around the inner court may simply have been omitted.

40:38–43 The sacrificial animals were slaughtered and prepared in rooms the meat for sacrifices was washed. ³⁹On each side of this entry room were two tables, where the sacrificial animals were slaughtered for the burnt offerings, sin offerings, and guilt offerings. ⁴⁰Outside the entry room, on each side of the stairs going up to the north entrance, were two more tables. ⁴¹So there were eight tables in all—four inside and four outside—where the sacrifices were cut up and prepared. ⁴²There were also four tables of finished stone for preparation of the burnt offerings, each 31½ inches square and 21 inches high. On these tables were placed the butchering knives and other implements for slaughtering the sacrificial animals. ⁴³There were hooks, each 3 inches long, fastened all around the foyer walls. The sacrificial meat was laid on the tables.

Rooms for the Priests

⁴⁴Inside the inner courtyard were two rooms, one beside the north gateway, facing south, and the other beside the south gateway, facing north. ⁴⁵And the man said to me, “The room beside the north inner gate is for the priests who supervise the Temple maintenance. ⁴⁶The room beside the south inner gate is for the priests in charge of the altar—the descendants of Zadok—for they alone of all the Levites may approach the LORD to minister to him.”

The Inner Courtyard and Temple

⁴⁷Then the man measured the inner courtyard, and it was a square, 175 feet wide and 175 feet across. The altar stood in the courtyard in front of the Temple. ⁴⁸Then he brought me to the entry room of the Temple. He measured the walls on either side of the opening to the entry room, and they were 8¾ feet thick. The entrance itself was 24½ feet wide, and the walls on each side of the entrance were an additional 5¼ feet long. ⁴⁹The entry room was 35 feet wide and 21 feet deep. There were ten steps leading up to it, with a column on each side.

41 After that, the man brought me into the sanctuary of the Temple. He measured the walls on either side of its doorway, and they were 10½ feet thick. ²The doorway was 17½ feet wide, and the walls on each side of it were 8¾ feet long. The sanctuary itself was 70 feet long and 35 feet wide.

³Then he went beyond the sanctuary into the inner room. He measured the walls on either side of its entrance, and they were 3½ feet thick. The entrance was 10½ feet beside the gateways into the inner courtyards. This detail highlights the primary function of this new Temple as a place of sacrifice. The animals had to be washed and cut into pieces before they could be offered on the altar.

• This new Temple in Ezekiel's vision was radically focused on sacrifices that atoned for sin. By contrast, the Temple in Jerusalem was both a center for sacrifice and a house for prayer (see 1 Kgs 8:27-30, 52-53; Isa 56:6-8; Matt 21:13).

40:42 31½ inches square and 21 inches high: Hebrew 1½ cubits [80 centimeters] long and 1½ cubits wide and 1 cubit [53 centimeters] high.

40:43 The hooks might be used to store the knives and implements mentioned in 40:42. • 3 inches: Hebrew a hand-breadth [8 centimeters].

40:44 rooms: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads rooms for singers. • south: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads east.

40:46 The Lord at last rewarded the loyalty of Zadok (see 44:15) by decreeing that his descendants were the only ones permitted to approach the LORD to minister to him. Access to God in this Temple was restricted to those whom the Lord had chosen and who were fit to enter the holy space.

40:47 The themes of sacrifice and restricted access coalesce in the summary of the dimensions of the inner courtyard. It was a perfect square, the shape of holy spaces throughout the OT (see Exod 26:1-35; 1 Kgs 6:20), 175 feet (100 cubits; see note on 40:19) on each side. Meanwhile, at its geometric center stood the altar of sacrifice, the only piece of furniture located in that space (the position of the altar is implied by the positions of the other items). Holy sacrifices had to be offered without threat of defilement to ensure the continuing presence of the Lord once he returned to fill the Temple with his glory.

40:48–41:3 The Temple was at the protected center of the Temple complex, adjacent to the inner court. It was located at the highest point of the complex, a further ten steps up from the inner court, which was itself eight steps above the outer court. Like Solomon's Temple before it, the Temple was made up of three areas: the entry room, the sanctuary, and the Most Holy Place.

40:48 The entrance itself . . . 5¼ feet long: As in Greek version, which reads The entrance was 14 cubits [7.4 meters] wide, and the walls of the entrance were 3 cubits [1.6 meters] on each side; Hebrew lacks 14 cubits wide, and the walls of the entrance were.

40:49 Outside the entry room were square (see 41:21) columns of unspecified function, just as in Solomon's Temple (1 Kgs 7:15-22). • 35 feet: Hebrew 20 cubits [10.6 meters]. • 21 feet: As in Greek version, which reads 12 cubits [21 feet or 6.4 meters]; Hebrew reads 11 cubits [19½ feet or 5.8 meters]. • There were ten steps: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads There were steps that were.

41:1-2 The Temple walls were 10½ feet thick, but here the gates could be replaced by a doorway because only the priests would have access to the surrounding inner court. The sanctuary was the most important space in the new Temple, so it is described in the most detail and with the most precise measurements. • on either side of its doorway: As in Greek version; the meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. • 10½ feet: Hebrew 6 cubits [3.2 meters]; also in 41:3, 5.

41:2 17½ feet: Hebrew 10 cubits [5.3 meters]. • 8¼ feet: Hebrew 5 cubits [2.7 meters]; also in 41:9, 11. • 70 feet long and 35 feet wide: Hebrew 40 cubits [21.2 meters] long and 20 cubits [10.6 meters] wide.

41:3-4 The inner room was the Most Holy Place, the only square space within the Temple. It was reached by passing through three openings of decreasing width—access was increasingly restricted as one approached God. The entrance to the entry room was 24½ wide, and the walls on each side of the entrance were 12¼ feet long. ⁴The inner room of the sanctuary was 35 feet long and 35 feet wide. "This," he told me, "is the Most Holy Place."

⁵Then he measured the wall of the Temple, and it was 10½ feet thick. There was a row of rooms along the outside wall; each room was 7 feet wide. ⁶These side rooms were built in three levels, one above the other, with thirty rooms on each level. The supports for these side rooms rested on exterior ledges on the Temple wall; they did not extend into the wall. ⁷Each level was wider than the one below it, corresponding to the narrowing of the Temple wall as it rose higher. A stairway led up from the bottom level through the middle level to the top level.

⁸I saw that the Temple was built on a terrace, which provided a foundation for the side rooms. This terrace was 10½ feet high. ⁹The outer wall of the Temple's side rooms was 8¾ feet thick. This left an open area between these side rooms ¹⁰and the row of rooms along the outer wall of the inner courtyard. This open area was 35 feet wide, and it went all the way around the Temple. ¹¹Two doors opened from the side rooms into the terrace yard, which was 8¾ feet wide. One door faced north and the other south.

¹²A large building stood on the west, facing the Temple courtyard. It was 122½ feet wide and 157½ feet long, and its walls were 8¾ feet thick. ¹³Then the man measured the Temple, and it was 175 feet long. The courtyard around the building, including its walls, was an additional 175 feet in length. ¹⁴The inner courtyard to the east of the Temple was also 175 feet wide. ¹⁵The building to the west, including its two walls was also 175 feet wide.

The sanctuary, the inner room, and the entry room of the Temple ¹⁶were all paneled with wood, as were the frames of the recessed windows. The inner walls of the Temple were paneled with wood above and below the windows. ¹⁷The space above the door leading into the inner room, and its walls inside and out, were also paneled. ¹⁸All the walls were decorated with carvings of cherubim, each with two faces, and there was a carving of a palm tree between each of the cherubim. ¹⁹One face—that of a man—looked toward the palm tree on one side. The other face—that of a young lion—looked toward the palm tree on the other side. The figures were carved all along the inside of the Temple, ²⁰from the floor to the top of the walls, including the outer wall of the sanctuary.

²¹There were square columns at the entrance to the sanctuary, and the ones at the entrance of the Most Holy Place were similar. ²²There was an altar made of wood, 5¼ feet high and 3½ feet across. Its corners, base, and sides were all made of wood. "This," the man told me, "is the table that stands in the Lord's presence."

²³Both the sanctuary and the Most Holy Place had double doorways, ²⁴each with two swinging doors. ²⁵The doors leading into the sanctuary were decorated with carved cherubim and palm trees, just as on the walls. And there was a wooden roof at the front of the entry room to the Temple. ²⁶On both sides of the entry room were recessed windows decorated with carved palm trees. The side rooms along the outside wall also had roofs.

feet wide (40:48), and the doorway into the sanctuary was 17½ feet wide (41:2), but the entrance to the Most Holy Place was only 10½ feet wide. Ezekiel did not enter the Most Holy Place, but waited outside while the angel went in alone and measured it.

41:3 3½ feet: Hebrew 2 cubits [1.1 meters]. • 12¼ feet: Hebrew 7 cubits [3.7 meters].

41:4 35 feet: Hebrew 20 cubits [10.6 meters]; also in 41:4b, 10.

41:5-26 Around the Temple building were ninety side rooms on three levels. To the rear was a large building of unspecified purpose that might have protected the back of the Temple from unauthorized access. No one was permitted to approach God's presence from behind. The side rooms might have been designed to store priestly clothing and equipment.

41:5 7 feet: Hebrew 4 cubits [2.1 meters].

41:8 10½ feet: Hebrew 1 rod, 6 cubits [3.2 meters].

41:12 122½ feet wide and 157½ feet long . . . 8¾ feet thick: Hebrew 70 cubits [37.1 meters] wide and 90 cubits [47.7 meters] long, and its walls were 5 cubits [2.7 meters] thick.

41:13 175 feet: Hebrew 100 cubits [53 meters]; also in 41:13b, 14, 15.

41:15-20 The Temple building was all paneled with wood and decorated with palm trees and cherubim. The cherubim were like those described in Ezekiel's earlier visions of judgment (see 1:5-12; 10:2-14). But where those real-life cherubim had four faces, the carved two-dimensional models are depicted with only two faces—that of a lion, the highest of the wild animals, and a human, the pinnacle of the created order. Cherubim also adorned Solomon's Temple (1 Kgs 6:32); they were traditional symbols of judgment that complemented the palm trees, traditional symbols of blessing.

41:22 The only piece of furniture was an altar made of wood, the table that stands in the Lord's presence. This is presumably where the bread of the presence was daily laid out by the priests before the Lord (Exod 25:30). The description of this table as an altar highlights the focus on sacrifice in Ezekiel's Temple (see note on 40:38-43). • 5¼ feet high and 3½ feet across: Hebrew 3 cubits [1.6 meters] high and 2 cubits [1.1 meters] across.

42 Then the man led me out of the Temple courtyard by way of the north gateway. We entered the outer courtyard and came to a group of rooms against the north wall of the inner courtyard. ²This structure, whose entrance opened toward the north, was 175 feet long and 87½ feet wide. ³One block of rooms overlooked the 35-foot width of the inner courtyard. Another block of rooms looked out onto the pavement of the outer courtyard. The two blocks were built three levels high and stood across from each other. ⁴Between the two blocks of rooms ran a walkway 17½ feet wide. It extended the entire 175 feet of the complex, and all the doors faced north. ⁵Each of the two upper levels of rooms was narrower than the one beneath it because the upper levels had to allow space for walkways in front of them. ⁶Since there were three levels and they did not have supporting columns as in the courtyards, each of the upper levels was set back from the level beneath it. ⁷There was an outer wall that separated the rooms from the outer courtyard; it was 87½ feet long. ⁸This wall added length to the outer block of rooms, which extended for only 87½ feet, while the inner block—the rooms toward the Temple—extended for 175 feet. ⁹There was an eastern entrance from the outer courtyard to these rooms.

¹⁰On the south side of the Temple there were two blocks of rooms just south of the inner courtyard between the Temple and the outer courtyard. These rooms were arranged just like the rooms on the north. ¹¹There was a walkway between the two blocks of rooms just like the complex on the north side of the Temple. This complex of rooms was the same length and width as the other one, and it had the same entrances and doors. The dimensions of each were identical. ¹²So there was an entrance in the wall facing the doors of the inner block of rooms, and another on the east at the end of the interior walkway.

¹³Then the man told me, "These rooms that overlook the Temple from the north and south are holy. Here the priests who offer sacrifices to the LORD will eat the most holy offerings. And because these rooms are holy, they will be used to store the sacred offerings—the grain offerings, sin offerings, and guilt offerings. ¹⁴When the priests leave the sanctuary, they must not go directly to the outer courtyard. They must first take off the clothes they wore while ministering, because these clothes are holy. They must put on other clothes before entering the parts of the building complex open to the public."

¹⁵When the man had finished measuring the inside of the Temple area, he led me out through the east gateway to measure the entire perimeter. ¹⁶He measured the east side with his measuring rod, and it was 875 feet long. ¹⁷Then he measured the north side, and it was also 875 feet. ¹⁸The south side was also 875 feet, ¹⁹and the west side was also 875 feet. ²⁰So the area was 875 feet on each side with a wall all around it to separate what was holy from what was common.

The LORD's Glory Returns

43 After this, the man brought me back around to the east gateway. ²Suddenly, the glory of the God of Israel appeared from the east. The sound of his coming was like the roar of rushing waters, 42:1 Having reached the center of the Temple complex, Ezekiel began traveling outward again.

42:2 175 feet: Hebrew 100 cubits [53 meters]; also in 42:8. • 87½ feet: Hebrew 50 cubits [26.5 meters]; also in 42:7, 8.

42:3-12 The rooms for the priests at the sides of the building to the rear of the sanctuary were three levels high so that the priests could enter at the top from the inner court (42:12) and emerge at the bottom in the outer court (42:9). These rooms were boundary spaces for activities that the priests had to perform on the way into and out of the inner court.

42:3 35-foot: Hebrew 20[-cubit] [10.6-meter].

42:4 17½ feet: Hebrew 10 cubits

[5.3 meters]. • It extended the entire 175 feet of the complex: As in Greek and Syriac versions, which read its length was 100 cubits [53 meters]; Hebrew reads and a passage 1 cubit [21 inches or 53 centimeters] wide.

42:10 south: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads east.

42:13-14 The priests would store the sacred offerings and eat the most holy offerings in these rooms. The clothes that the priests wore while ministering in the LORD's presence would be stored there, and the priests would put on other clothes . . . because these clothes were holy. All of these regulations represent a significant increase in the care taken to separate the holy from the profane, as compared to the similar laws in Leviticus (cp. Lev 6).

42:16-20 Having finished his tour of the inner courtyard, Ezekiel was shown the overall dimensions of the area. The whole complex was square, which denoted holiness (see note on 40:47) and differentiated it from the less regular design of Solomon's Temple and the Tabernacle before it, in which only the Most Holy Place was square. • The description of the Temple finished where it began, with a mention of a wall all around it (see 40:5); Ezekiel reminds us again that the purpose of that wall was to separate what was holy from what was common.

42:16 875 feet long: As in 45:2 and in Greek version at 42:17, which reads 500 cubits [265 meters]; Hebrew reads 500 rods [5,250 feet or 1,590 meters]; similarly in 42:17, 18, 19, 20.

43:1-4 The sacred spaces described in the previous chapter were of no value and the whole landscape shone with his glory. ³This vision was just like the others I had seen, first by the Kebar River and then when he came to destroy Jerusalem. I fell face down on the ground. ⁴And the glory of the LORD came into the Temple through the east gateway.

⁵Then the Spirit took me up and brought me into the inner courtyard, and the glory of the LORD filled the Temple. ⁶And I heard someone speaking to me from within the Temple, while the man who had been measuring stood beside me. ⁷The LORD said to me, "Son of man, this is the place of my throne and the place where I will rest my feet. I will live here forever among the people of Israel. They and their kings will not defile my holy name any longer by their adulterous worship of other gods or by honoring the relics of their kings who have died. ⁸They put their idol altars right next to mine with only a wall between them and me. They defiled my holy name by such detestable sin, so I consumed them in my anger. ⁹Now let them stop worshipping other gods and honoring the relics of their kings, and I will live among them forever.

¹⁰"Son of man, describe to the people of Israel the Temple I have shown you, so they will be ashamed of all their sins. Let them study its plan, ¹¹and they will be ashamed of what they have done. Describe to them all the specifications of the Temple—including its entrances and exits—and everything else about it. Tell them about its decrees and laws. Write down all these specifications and decrees as they watch so they will be sure to remember and follow them. ¹²And this is the basic law of the Temple: absolute holiness! The entire top of the mountain where the Temple is built is holy. Yes, this is the basic law of the Temple.

The Altar

¹³"These are the measurements of the altar: There is a gutter all around the altar 21 inches deep and 21 inches wide, with a curb 9 inches wide around its edge. And this is the height of the altar: ¹⁴From the gutter the altar rises 3½ feet to a lower ledge that surrounds the altar and is 21 inches wide. From the lower ledge the altar rises 7 feet to the upper ledge that is also 21 inches wide. ¹⁵The top of the altar, the hearth, rises another 7 feet higher, with a horn rising up from each of the four corners. ¹⁶The top of the altar is square, measuring 21 feet by 21 feet. ¹⁷The upper ledge also forms as long as they were empty (cp. 37:7-8). To be effective, the Temple must be occupied by the glory of the God of Israel, which had departed from it in ch 10. Now the glory would return in the same direction from which it had left, from the east. Unlike its slow, almost reluctant, departure, its return would be sudden, accompanied by the terrifying roar of rushing waters (see 1:24; Rev 1:15). As always, the prophet fell face down on the ground in response to this glory.

43:3 he came: As in some Hebrew manuscripts and Latin Vulgate; Masoretic Text reads I came.

43:5-7a The Spirit then carried Ezekiel into the inner courtyard so that he could hear the Lord declare that the restored Temple was the palace in which his throne and his footstool were located, and that he would live . . . forever among the people of Israel. The identification of the Temple as God's dwelling and the seat of his sovereignty was not new (see, e.g., 1 Sam 4:4). The Temple would now be God's throne forever; never again would the sins of his people drive him away from his sanctuary.

43:7b-9 If God were to remain with his people, standards would have to be raised and regulations enforced that would guard against the repetition of past abuses. Israel and their kings would not defile God's holy name by their spiritual adultery with other gods or with relics of their kings who had died—memorial markers to dead kings—within the grounds of the Temple of the living God. There was no place for honoring human kings in the palace of the divine King (see 45:7). Putting the earthly ruler in his proper place was a necessary precondition for God's dwelling perpetually in his rightful place.

43:10-11 At this point, the prophet was given the rationale for the whole Temple vision. He was not the first person to receive the blueprint for a sanctuary from God (see Exod 25-40). This vision was not intended to spark a building project some time in the future when God would return his people to their land, but to convey a message to the people of Ezekiel's generation. As they would study its plan, Ezekiel's hearers should be convicted of their sins and be ashamed of what they have done. The conviction of sin should be induced as they studied its entrances and exits, its decrees and laws, and the overall plan.

43:11 and they will be ashamed: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads if they are ashamed.

43:12 Absolute holiness on Israel's part was required if a holy God were to dwell in their midst forever.

43:13-16 The holiness of the Temple area would be maintained by keeping sinners out and by the sacrificial system. The importance of this aspect of Temple life is made clear by the detailed description of the altar of the inner court, which was located at the geometric center of the entire Temple complex. The altar shown to Ezekiel was almost three times as long and wide as the altar in front of the Tabernacle (see Exod 27:1-8).

43:13 measurements of the altar: Hebrew measurements of the altar in long cubits, each being a cubit [18 inches or 45 centimeters] and a handbreadth [3 inches or 8 centimeters] in length. • 21 inches deep and 21 inches wide: Hebrew a cubit [53 centimeters] deep and a cubit wide. • 9 inches: Hebrew 1 span [23 centimeters]. • height: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads base.

43:14 3½ feet: Hebrew 2 cubits [1.1 meters]. • 21 inches: Hebrew 1 cubit [53 centimeters]; also in 43:14d. • 7 feet: Hebrew 4 cubits [2.1 meters]; also in 43:15.

43:16 21 feet by 21 feet: Hebrew 12 [cubits] [6.4 meters] long and 12 [cubits] wide.

a square, measuring 24½ feet by 24½ feet, with a 21-inch gutter and a 10½-inch curb all around the edge. There are steps going up the east side of the altar."

¹⁸Then he said to me, "Son of man, this is what the Sovereign LORD says: These will be the regulations for the burning of offerings and the sprinkling of blood when the altar is built. ¹⁹At that time, the Levitical priests of the family of Zadok, who minister before me, are to be given a young bull for a sin offering, says the Sovereign LORD. ²⁰You will take some of its blood and smear it on the four horns of the altar, the four corners of the upper ledge, and the curb that runs around that ledge. This will cleanse and make atonement for the altar. ²¹Then take the young bull for the sin offering and burn it at the appointed place outside the Temple area.

²²On the second day, sacrifice as a sin offering a young male goat that has no physical defects. Then cleanse and make atonement for the altar again, just as you did with the young bull. ²³When you have finished the cleansing ceremony, offer another young bull that has no defects and a perfect ram from the flock. ²⁴You are to present them to the LORD, and the priests are to sprinkle salt on them and offer them as a burnt offering to the LORD.

²⁵"Every day for seven days a male goat, a young bull, and a ram from the flock will be sacrificed as a sin offering. None of these animals may have physical defects of any kind. ²⁶Do this each day for seven days to cleanse and make atonement for the altar, thus setting it apart for holy use. ²⁷On the eighth day, and on each day afterward, the priests will sacrifice on the altar the burnt offerings and peace offerings of the people. Then I will accept you. I, the Sovereign LORD, have spoken!"

The Prince, Levites, and Priests

44 Then the man brought me back to the east gateway in the outer wall of the Temple area, but it was closed. ²And the LORD said to me, "This gate must remain closed; it will never again be opened. No one will ever open it and pass through, for the LORD, the God of Israel, has entered here. Therefore, it must always remain shut. ³Only the prince himself may sit inside this gateway to feast in the LORD's presence. But he may come and go only through the entry room of the gateway."

⁴Then the man brought me through the north gateway to the front of the Temple. I looked and saw that the glory of the LORD filled the Temple of the LORD, and I fell face down on the ground.

⁵And the LORD said to me, "Son of man, take careful notice. Use your eyes and ears, and listen to everything I tell you about the regulations concerning the LORD's Temple. Take careful note of the procedures for using the Temple's entrances and exits. ⁶And give these rebels, the people of Israel, this message from the Sovereign LORD: O people of Israel, enough of your detestable sins! ⁷You have brought uncircumcised foreigners into my sanctuary—people who have no heart for God. In this way, you defiled my Temple even as you offered me my food, the fat and blood of sacrifices. In addition to all your other detestable sins, you have broken my covenant. ⁸Instead of safeguarding my sacred rituals, you have hired foreigners to take charge of my sanctuary.

43:17 This altar was approached by steps going up the east side, as was Moses' altar. This reversal of the normal ancient Near Eastern practice of having the steps approach from the west was possibly to avoid any hint of sun worship (see 8:16). • 24½ feet by 24½ feet: Hebrew 14 [cubits] [7.4 meters] long and 14 [cubits] wide. • 21-inch gutter and a 10½-inch curb: Hebrew a gutter of 1 cubit [53 centimeters] and a curb of ½ a cubit [27 centimeters].

43:18-21 The new altar had to be consecrated before it was used. • On the first day, the blood of a young bull was to be applied to the extremities of the altar, the horns and corners, as a sin offering. The body of the sin offering was then burnt outside the sacred area, as with the Tabernacle (cp. Lev 4:11-12).

43:25 The procedure for the second day was repeated for seven more days to complete the eight-day purification cycle. A similar procedure was followed when Solomon's Temple was consecrated (2 Chr 7:8-9).

43:26-27 These sin offerings properly set the Temple apart for holy use, so that the priests could once again sacrifice . . . the burnt offerings and peace offerings of the people. These offerings were necessary if the Lord were to accept his people.

44:1-31 Now that the glory of the Lord had returned to the Temple, questions of access were critical. Who could approach this holy God? Like ch 43, this chapter is concerned with the Temple's entrances and exits, as well as the duties and procedures associated with its use.

44:2 The outer east gate must remain perpetually closed because the Lord had now returned to his Temple and would never again leave it. He had also sanctified this gate by going through it, and no one else was ever to use it.

44:3 Though the prince had the significant privilege of being the only one allowed to feast in the LORD's presence inside the east outer gateway, he was restricted to entering and leaving the portico from the outer court. He was not to enter from outside the Temple complex by going through the gate, as the Lord had; the earthly ruler is a man, not God, and he must submit to God. The prince must also never forget that the Temple is God's palace, not his own private chapel.

44:6-8 The people of Israel were called rebels because they had failed to control access to the sanctuary in the past; they had hired uncircumcised foreigners

⁹So this is what the Sovereign LORD says: No foreigners, including those who live among the people of Israel, will enter my sanctuary if they have not been circumcised and have not surrendered themselves to the LORD. ¹⁰And the men of the tribe of Levi who abandoned me when Israel strayed away from me to worship idols must bear the consequences of their unfaithfulness. ¹¹They may still be Temple guards and gatekeepers, and they may slaughter the animals brought for burnt offerings and be present to help the people. ¹²But they encouraged my people to worship idols, causing Israel to fall into deep sin. Temple Legislation as Theology (44:1–46:18)

Ezek 8:1–11:25;
40:1–43:27
Isa 56:7

The rabbis of Judaism spent a great deal of time seeking to harmonize the laws of chs 44–48 with the laws of the Torah. They were unsuccessful, because the legislation in these chapters was no more intended to match that of Moses than the vision of the Temple building (chs 40–43) was designed to match the design of the Tabernacle or the Temple of Solomon. The description of the Temple regulations conveys a theological message of change, as did the earlier description of the Temple architecture (see “Temple Architecture as Theology” at 40:1–43:27, p. 1373).

These regulations highlighted the need for proper separation between the Temple and the palace, with the prince clearly in subordination to the Lord. The sacrificial rituals would also become more numerous and more focused on purification. Holy offerings would once again be made by holy people to the holy God. The new world was completely devoted to the separation of the holy from the unholy and to the cleansing of God’s people. Since defilement of the Temple and idolatrous worship had driven the Lord out of his house (chs 8–11), an entirely new situation was necessary if God was to dwell once more among his people. The function of this legislation was to convict the prophet’s hearers of their past abuses that had broken down the wall of separation between the holy and the unholy and to reassure them that God would restore his people’s worship to its proper state.

The legislation puts the prince, the king descended from David, in a proper place of submission to the Lord. It finds its fulfillment with the coming of Christ. Jesus comes as a servant King who delights to do the Father’s will (Matt 4:1–11; 20:25–28). He offered the perfect purification offering, cleansing the heavenly sanctuary once for all time (Heb 9:11–12, 23) and ensuring that God can dwell in the midst of his people forever. His blood cleanses us of all sin and enables sinners boldly to enter the heavenly Most Holy Place without fear of rejection.

to come into the sanctuary and probably employed them as Temple guards and gatekeepers. This task should not have been delegated to foreigners; it should have been performed by the Levites whom the Lord would assign to perform it (44:10).

44:9 No foreigners: This was not a blanket prohibition against non-Israelite access to the sanctuary. It only affected those who had not been circumcised and have not surrendered themselves to the Lord. Genuine converts could be part of the new Israel (see 47:22–23).

44:10 when Israel strayed away from me to worship idols: The people had a long history of failing to follow God’s plan for worship, including the specific sin of employing foreigners as temple guards (44:8). • idols: The Hebrew term (literally round things) probably alludes to dung; also in 44:12. See note on 6:4–7.

44:12–14 The Levites had encouraged . . . Israel to fall into deep sin by abandoning the Lord and worshipping idols. One of the consequences of that sin was that they could no longer enter the inner court of the Temple like the priests. However, by God’s grace, they would still have a significant ministry in serving the people and slaughtering their sacrifices. • The people as a whole were placed at a greater distance from God because of their idolatry. Prior to the Exile they would have slaughtered their own sacrifices (see Lev 1:5, 11);

now they must hand them over to the Levites to be slaughtered on their behalf.

44:15–16 In contrast to the Levites and the people who abandoned the Lord for idols, the Levitical priests of the family of Zadok remained faithful to the Lord. Zadok was the high priest of Solomon’s day. His family’s reward was renewed access to the inner courtyard, where they were to perform the crucial sacrificial rituals nearer to the presence of God. A repeated theme in these chapters is that those who were faithful in the past would be rewarded with closer access to God and greater privilege in his presence, while those who were unfaithful would be kept at a greater distance.

enter my sanctuary and approach my table to serve me. They will fulfill all my requirements.

¹⁷When they enter the gateway to the inner courtyard, they must wear only linen clothing. They must wear no wool while on duty in the inner courtyard or in the Temple itself. ¹⁸They must wear linen turbans and linen undergarments. They must not wear anything that would cause them to perspire. ¹⁹When they return to the outer courtyard where the people are, they must take off the clothes they wear while ministering to me. They must leave them in the sacred rooms and put on other clothes so they do not endanger anyone by transmitting holiness to them through this clothing.

²⁰They must neither shave their heads nor let their hair grow too long. Instead, they must trim it regularly. ²¹The priests must not drink wine before entering the inner courtyard. ²²They may choose their wives only from among the virgins of Israel or the widows of the priests. They may not marry other widows or ^bdivorced women. ²³They will teach my people the difference between what is holy and what is common, what is ceremonially clean and unclean.

²⁴They will serve as judges to resolve any disagreements among my people. Their decisions must be based on my regulations. And the priests themselves must obey my instructions and decrees at all the sacred festivals, and see to it that the Sabbaths are set apart as holy days.

²⁵A priest must not defile himself by being in the presence of a dead person unless it is his father, mother, child, brother, or unmarried sister. In such cases it is permitted. ²⁶Even then, he can return to his Temple duties only after being ceremonially cleansed and then waiting for seven days. ²⁷The first day he returns to work and enters the inner courtyard and the sanctuary, he must offer a sin offering for himself, says the Sovereign LORD.

²⁸The priests will not have any property or possession of land, for I alone am their special possession. ²⁹Their food will come from the gifts and sacrifices brought to the Temple by the people—the grain offerings, the sin offerings, and the guilt offerings. Whatever anyone sets apart for the LORD will belong to the priests. ³⁰The first of the ripe fruits and all the gifts brought to the LORD will go to the priests. The first batch of dough must also be given to the priests so the LORD will bless your homes. ³¹The priests may not eat meat from any bird or animal that dies a natural death or that dies after being attacked by another animal.

Division of the Land

45When you divide the land among the tribes of Israel, you must set aside a section for the LORD as his holy portion. This piece of land will be $8\frac{1}{2}$ miles long and $6\frac{1}{2}$ miles wide. The entire area will be holy. ²A section of this land, measuring 44:17-19 The privileged access of the priests carried heightened responsibilities for holiness. Their behavior was far more restricted than that of the people in general. They had to wear linen rather than wool so that their bodies would not be defiled by sweat (see note on 36:17), and they were to maintain a separate wardrobe of sacred garments. • endanger . . . by transmitting holiness to them: Holiness was a contagious quality that could be conveyed to anything with which it came into contact. The problem with this is that if a sacred object transmitted holiness to a profane object or person, there could be fatal consequences (cp. Lev 10:1-3; 1 Sam 6:19; 2 Sam 6:6-7).

44:20-27 The priests were to avoid contact with death, either through being in the presence of a dead person or through the ritual mourning practices in which they would shave their heads or let their hair grow completely free. They must not drink wine before entering the inner courtyard to avoid the risk of potentially fatal alcohol-induced errors (see Lev 10:9). Since only the descendants of Zadok could serve as priests, they were restricted in marriage to virgins of Israel or to widows of the priests to ensure the continuing purity of the priestly line. In all of these ways, the priests were to model the radical distinction between holy and common and between the ceremonially clean and unclean for the people.

44:28-30 Because the priests belonged to the Lord and were provided for through a share of the sacrificial offerings of the Temple, they would not have any property or possession of land. The Lord was their inheritance, and their temporal needs were to be supplied by the first-fruits of the people's harvests and the various offerings made at the Temple.

44:29 sets apart: The Hebrew term used here refers to the complete consecration of things or people to the LORD, either by destroying them or by giving them as an offering.

44:31 In their radical separation from the realm of death, they could not eat any bird or animal that died a natural death or was attacked by another animal.

45:1-8 The division of the restored Promised Land among the tribes is described in detail in chs 47-48, but the central sacred section is described here because it included the area set aside for the priests to live in. Regaining a share in the land was a pressing concern for the exiles at a time when they had none. Ezekiel's interest, however, was not simply in promising that the land would be divided among them in a fair way. He wanted to remind them of what the Promised Land was about in the first place. It was a land in which God would dwell among his people. At the outset, therefore, the central part of the land would be assigned to the Lord as his holy portion. The main purpose of this was to provide a zone of holiness and protection around the Temple.

45:1 8½ miles long and 6½ miles wide: As in Greek version, which reads 25,000 [cubits] [13.3 kilometers] long and 20,000 [cubits] [10.6 kilometers] wide; Hebrew reads 25,000 [cubits] long and 10,000 [cubits] [3½ miles or 5.3 kilometers] wide. Cp. 45:3, 5; 48:9.

875 feet by 875 feet, will be set aside for the Temple. An additional strip of land $87\frac{1}{2}$ feet wide is to be left empty all around it. ³Within the larger sacred area, measure out a portion of land $8\frac{1}{3}$ miles long and $3\frac{1}{3}$ miles wide. Within it the sanctuary of the Most Holy Place will be located. ⁴This area will be holy, set aside for the priests who minister to the LORD in the sanctuary. They will use it for their homes, and my Temple will be located within it. ⁵The strip of sacred land next to it, also $8\frac{1}{3}$ miles long and $3\frac{1}{3}$ miles wide, will be a living area for the Levites who work at the Temple. It will be their possession and a place for their towns.

⁶Adjacent to the larger sacred area will be a section of land $8\frac{1}{3}$ miles long and $1\frac{1}{3}$ miles wide. This will be set aside for a city where anyone in Israel can live.

⁷Two special sections of land will be set apart for the prince. One section will share a border with the east side of the sacred lands and city, and the second section will share a border on the west side. Then the far eastern and western borders of the prince's lands will line up with the eastern and western boundaries of the tribal areas. ⁸These sections of land will be the prince's allotment. Then my princes will no longer oppress and rob my people; they will assign the rest of the land to the people, giving an allotment to each tribe.

Rules for the Princes

⁹For this is what the Sovereign LORD says: Enough, you princes of Israel! Stop your violence and oppression and do what is just and right. Quit robbing and cheating my people out of their land. Stop expelling them from their homes, says the Sovereign LORD. ¹⁰Use only honest weights and scales and honest measures, both dry and liquid. ¹¹The homer will be your standard unit for measuring volume. The ephah and the bath will each measure one-tenth of a homer. ¹²The standard unit for weight will be the silver shekel. One shekel will consist of twenty gerahs, and sixty shekels will be equal to one mina.

◀ The Sacred Precinct (45:1-8; 48:8-22). The Promised Land was meant to be a place where the holy God could live among his people. Ezekiel's vision makes God's presence the central fact of Israel's existence (see "Israel's Geography as Theology" at 47:13-48:35, p. 1386).

sacred east-west axis of the Temple. The city and the prince would still be important in the new economy, but they would no longer be at the center. The Lord was Israel's King, and his dwelling place would be the hub of their existence.

45:8-9 One tangible expression of the Lord's kingly rule was that he distributed the land to the prince as well as to the people. The prince was assigned a large enough piece of his own land to meet his needs and to allow him to support the ministry of the Temple without having to oppress and rob the people.

45:10-12 When the prince gathered the offerings of the people for the Temple (see 45:13-17), he was not to adjust the scales so that he profited from the difference between what he took in from the people and what he gave out for the ministry of the Temple.

45:10 This verse can be translated literally Use honest scales, an honest ephah, and an honest bath.

45:11 The homer measures about 50 gallons or 220 liters. • The ephah is a dry measure; the bath is a liquid measure.

45:12 The shekel weighs about 0.4 ounces or 11 grams. • Elsewhere the mina is equated to 50 shekels.

45:2 875 feet by 875 feet: Hebrew 500 [cubits] [265 meters] by 500 [cubits], a square. • $87\frac{1}{2}$ feet: Hebrew 50 cubits [26.5 meters].

45:3-4 Within this holy portion, the Temple complex would form the Most Holy Place at the heart of a sacred square. Just as the Most Holy Place in the Temple was protected by an inner court that only the priests could enter, the Temple complex was surrounded by a section reserved only for priests.

45:3 $8\frac{1}{3}$ miles long and $3\frac{1}{3}$ miles wide: Hebrew 25,000 [cubits] [13.3 kilometers] long and 10,000 [cubits] [5.3 kilometers] wide; also in 45:5.

45:5-6 To the north of this priestly strip was an area reserved for the Levites; to the south (48:15), the city was located on a half-size strip. The result was a square that was $8\frac{1}{3}$ miles (25,000 cubits) on a side.

45:5 It will be their possession and a place for their towns: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads They will have as their possession 20 rooms.

45:6 $8\frac{1}{3}$ miles long and $1\frac{1}{3}$ miles wide: Hebrew 25,000 [cubits] [13.3 kilometers] long and 5,000 [cubits] [2.65 kilometers] wide.

45:7 On both sides of the larger sacred area (45:1-6), the remainder of the holy portion was assigned to the prince. The same principle of graded access that operated in the Temple was applied more broadly to the surrounding land. The Temple would be the geographical and spiritual heart of the new Israel. The land would be divided into strips running east to west, orienting the whole nation along the

Special Offerings and Celebrations

¹³You must give this tax to the prince: one bushel of wheat or barley for every 60 you harvest, ¹⁴one percent of your olive oil, ¹⁵and one sheep or goat for every 200 in your flocks in Israel. These will be the grain offerings, burnt offerings, and peace offerings that will make atonement for the people who bring them, says the Sovereign LORD. ¹⁶All the people of Israel must join in bringing these offerings to the prince. ¹⁷The prince will be required to provide offerings that are given at the religious festivals, the new moon celebrations, the Sabbath days, and all other similar occasions. He will provide the sin offerings, burnt offerings, grain offerings, liquid offerings, and peace offerings to purify the people of Israel, making them right with the LORD.

²¹On the fourteenth day of the first month, you must celebrate the Passover. This festival will last for seven days. The bread you eat during that time must be made without yeast. ²²On the day of Passover the prince will provide a young bull as a sin offering for himself and the people of Israel. ²³On each of the seven days of the feast he will prepare a burnt offering to the LORD, consisting of seven young bulls and seven rams without defects. A male goat will also be given each day for a sin offering. ²⁴The prince will provide a basket of flour as a grain offering and a gallon of olive oil with each young bull and ram.

²⁵During the seven days of the Festival of Shelters, which occurs every year in early autumn, the prince will provide these same sacrifices for the sin offering, the burnt offering, and the grain offering, along with the required olive oil.

46 This is what the Sovereign LORD says: The east gateway of the inner courtyard will be closed during the six workdays each week, but it will be open on Sabbath days and the days of new moon celebrations. ²The prince will enter the entry room of the gateway from the outside. Then he will stand by the gatepost while the 45:13-17 The people were to provide for the regular daily offerings that will make atonement at the new Temple by means of a tax paid to the prince. The prince was to provide all of the offerings for special occasions, such as the religious festivals, the new moon celebrations, and the Sabbath days. Both the regular daily offerings and the special festival offerings functioned to purify the people of Israel, making them right with the LORD.

45:13 one bushel of wheat or barley for every 60: Hebrew $\frac{1}{60}$ of an ephah from each homer of wheat and $\frac{1}{60}$ of an ephah from each homer of barley.

45:20 will purify: Or will make atonement for.

45:21-25 The annual festivals in the new Temple had a similar purifying purpose. Instead of the three distinctive festivals of the Mosaic order (the feasts of Passover, Harvest, and Shelters), there were now only two virtually identical festivals, Passover and Shelters, spaced six months apart. The Passover feast still took place on the fourteenth day of the first month and resembled the earlier festival in many ways, though the number of sacrificial offerings was significantly higher than those prescribed in Num 28. The Festival of Shelters, however, is not even explicitly named in the Hebrew text and has lost anything distinctive about its celebration except for the provision that the prince will provide the same sacrifices as for the Passover. It still occurs in the seventh month. The land's constant purification from sin emerges as a central theme.

45:21 the fourteenth day of the first month: This day in the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar occurred in late March or in April.

45:24 a basket of flour as a grain offering and a gallon of olive oil: Hebrew an ephah [20 quarts or 22 liters] of flour . . . and a hin [3.8 liters] of olive oil.

45:25 the seven days of the Festival of Shelters, which occurs every year in early autumn: Literally the festival which begins on the fifteenth day of the seventh month (see Lev 23:34). This day in the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar occurred in late September or in October.

46:1-15 Ezekiel continued to outline the responsibilities of the prince at the special celebrations by specifying his duties on Sabbath days and at new moon celebrations. The prince would be the representative worshiper on behalf of the people. He would pass through the Temple in procession with them, and he would also be uniquely able to approach the realm of the sacred on their behalf.

46:1 The east gateway between the inner and outer courtyards would open once a week for the Sabbath, once a month for new moon celebrations, and when the prince offered voluntary burnt offerings or peace offerings (46:12). The east gate between the outer courtyard and the outside world was never to be opened again (44:2-3).

46:2 The prince would have the unique privilege of going through the eastern gateway to the inner courtyard as far as the entry room to worship. This symbolized that God regarded him as more significant than the common people, but that he was still not fit to stand in God's presence apart from mediation by the priests.

priest offers his burnt offering and peace offering. He will bow down in worship inside the gateway passage and then go back out the way he came. The gateway will not be closed until evening. ³The common people will bow down and worship the LORD in front of this gateway on Sabbath days and the days of new moon celebrations.

⁴"Each Sabbath day the prince will present to the LORD a burnt offering of six lambs and one ram, all with no defects. ⁵He will present a grain offering of a basket of choice flour to go with the ram and whatever amount of flour he chooses to go with each lamb, and he is to offer one gallon of olive oil for each basket of flour. ⁶At the new moon celebrations, he will bring one young bull, six lambs, and one ram, all with no defects. ⁷With the young bull he must bring a basket of choice flour for a grain offering. With the ram he must bring another basket of flour. And with each lamb he is to bring whatever amount of flour he chooses to give. With each basket of flour he must offer one gallon of olive oil.

⁸"The prince must enter the gateway through the entry room, and he must leave the same way. ⁹But when the people come in through the north gateway to worship the LORD during the religious festivals, they must leave by the south gateway. And those who entered through the south gateway must leave by the north gateway. They must never leave by the same gateway they came in, but must always use the opposite gateway. ¹⁰The prince will enter and leave with the people on these occasions.

¹¹"So at the special feasts and sacred festivals, the grain offering will be a basket of choice flour with each young bull, another basket of flour with each ram, and as much

flour as the worshiper chooses to give with each lamb. Give one gallon of olive oil with each basket of flour. ¹²When the prince offers a voluntary burnt offering or peace offering to the LORD, the east gateway to the inner courtyard will be opened for him, and he will offer his sacrifices as he does on Sabbath days. Then he will leave, and the gateway will be shut behind him.

¹³"Each morning you must sacrifice a one-year-old lamb with no defects as a burnt offering to the LORD. ¹⁴With the lamb, a grain offering must also be given to the LORD—about three quarts of flour with a third of a gallon of olive oil to moisten the choice flour. This will be a permanent law for you. ¹⁵The lamb, the grain offering, and the olive oil must be given as a daily sacrifice every morning without fail.

¹⁶"This is what the Sovereign LORD says: If the prince gives a gift of land to one of his sons as his inheritance, it will belong to him and his descendants forever. ¹⁷But if the prince gives a gift of land from his inheritance to one of his servants, the servant may keep it only until the Year of Jubilee, which comes every fiftieth year. At that time the land will return to the prince. But when the prince gives gifts to his sons, those gifts will be permanent. ¹⁸And the prince may never take anyone's property by force. If he gives property to his sons, it must be from his own land, for I do not want any of my people unjustly evicted from their property."

The Temple Kitchens

¹⁹In my vision, the man brought me through the entrance beside the gateway and led me to the sacred rooms assigned to the priests, which faced toward the north. He showed me a place at the extreme west end of these

46:3 The ordinary Israelites, the common people, would be allowed to climb the stairs to the threshold to offer their worship when the gate was open on the Sabbath and the first day of the month; only then would they be able to see into the inner court. Otherwise, they were kept away from it.

46:5 a basket of choice flour . . . one gallon of olive oil: Hebrew an ephah [20 quarts or 22 liters] of choice flour . . . a hin [3.8 liters] of olive oil; similarly in 46:7, 11.

46:9-10 During religious festivals, the people were to present themselves before the Lord by proceeding through the Temple from north to south or vice versa, with the prince in their midst. Their motion was to follow the profane north-south axis rather than the sacred east-west axis along which the priest's activities took place.

46:12 The voluntary burnt offering or peace offering was in addition to the regular daily offerings of meat, grain, and oil that symbolized the regular table fellowship and communion that had now been restored between God and his people.

46:14 about three quarts of flour with a third of a gallon of olive oil: Hebrew $\frac{1}{4}$ of an ephah [3.7 liters] of flour with $\frac{1}{3}$ of a hin [1.3 liters] of olive oil.

46:16-18 Because the land assigned to the prince was the Lord's gift to him and to his family, he could not give it permanently to one of his servants. Each Year of Jubilee, the fiftieth year when all land in Israel reverted to its original family owners, this land would revert to the crown. This provision was intended to remove the temptation for the king to acquire more and more land with which to reward his faithful servants, resulting in less land for the ordinary people. The land belonged to the Lord, and he divided it among his people. No one, not even the king, was permitted to tamper with the people's inheritance.

46:17 until the Year of Jubilee, which comes every fiftieth year: Literally until the Year of Release; see Lev 25:8-17.

46:19-24 The vision of the Temple proper (chs 40-46) concludes with a return to the point at which the tour began. The prophet began his tour in the outer court, and having traveled to the center and back out again twice, he completed it at the edges of the outer court, in the kitchens where the various sacrifices rooms. ²⁰He explained, "This is where the priests will cook the meat from the guilt offerings and sin offerings and bake the flour from the grain offerings into bread. They will do it here to avoid carrying the sacrifices through the outer courtyard and endangering the people by transmitting holiness to them."

²¹Then he brought me back to the outer courtyard and led me to each of its four corners. In each corner I saw an enclosure. ²²Each of these enclosures was 70 feet long and 52½ feet wide, surrounded by walls. ²³Along the inside of these walls was a ledge of stone with fireplaces under the ledge all the way around. ²⁴The man said to me, "These are the kitchens to be used by the Temple assistants to boil the sacrifices offered by the people."

The Life-Giving River of Healing

47 In my vision, the man brought me back to the entrance of the Temple. There I saw a stream flowing east from beneath the door of the Temple and passing to the right of the altar on its south side. ²The man brought me outside the wall through the north gateway and led me around to the eastern entrance. There I could see the water flowing out through the south side of the east gateway.

³Measuring as he went, he took me along the stream for 1,750 feet and then led me across. The water was up to my ankles. ⁴He measured off another 1,750 feet and led me across again. This time the water was up to my knees. After another 1,750 feet, it was up to my waist. ⁵Then he measured another 1,750 feet, and the river was too deep to walk across. It was deep enough to swim in, but too deep to walk through.

⁶He asked me, "Have you been watching, son of man?" Then he led me back along the riverbank. ⁷When I returned, I was surprised by the sight of many trees growing on both sides of the river. ⁸Then he said to me, "This river flows east through the desert into the valley of the Dead Sea. The waters of this stream will make the salty waters of the Dead Sea fresh and pure. ⁹There will be swarms of living things wherever the water of this river flows. Fish will abound in the Dead Sea, for its waters will become fresh. Life will flourish wherever this water flows. ¹⁰Fishermen will stand along the shores of the Dead Sea. All the way from En-gedi to En-eglaim, the shores will be covered with nets drying in the sun. Fish of every kind will fill the Dead Sea, just as they fill the Mediterranean. ¹¹But the marshes and swamps will not be purified; they will still be salty. ¹²Fruit trees of all kinds will grow along both sides of the river. The leaves of these trees will never turn brown and fall, and there will always be fruit on their branches. There will be a new crop every month, for they are watered by the river flowing from the Temple. The fruit will be for food and the leaves for healing."

Boundaries for the Land

46:22 70 feet long and 52½ feet wide: Hebrew 40 [cubits] [21.2 meters] long and 30 [cubits] [15.9 meters] wide.

47:1-12 Once the Temple was restored to its central place among God's people, its beneficial influence, pictured here as a river, would spread outward, transforming death to life.

47:1 The source of the stream was within the Temple. • to the right of the altar on its south side: This location in Solomon's Temple was occupied by the Sea, a massive bronze pool that provided the water needed for cleansing (1 Kgs 7:23, 39). It also symbolized the subjugation of the forces of chaos (often represented by the sea) in the ordered cosmos of the Temple. In Ezekiel's vision, the static Sea had been transformed into a dynamic, life-giving river (cp. Gen 2:10-14; Ps 46).

47:3-5 At first, the stream was a mere trickle coming out from the gate of the Temple, but as it flowed out it became deeper and deeper until it was too deep to walk through. God's power and presence grows more and more impressive as its progression is observed throughout the land.

47:3 1,750 feet: Hebrew 1,000 cubits [530 meters]; also in 47:4, 5.

47:6-9 The river grew as it went, bringing life to everything it touched, even the salty waters of the Dead Sea.

47:8 the Dead Sea: Literally the sea.

47:9 of this river flows: As in Greek and Syriac versions; Hebrew reads of these two rivers flow.

47:10 From En-gedi, a town on the west side of the Dead Sea, to En-eglaim, a town on the east side, the Dead Sea would be brought from death to life.

This water, so full of salt and other minerals that it is devoid of life, would teem with enough fish to support a major fishing industry. • the Mediterranean: Literally the Great Sea; also in 47:15, 17, 19, 20.

47:11 The useful salt deposits previously gathered from the Dead Sea area would not be lost—the marshes and swamps would still be salty.

47:12 Alongside this river of life, fruit trees of all kinds will grow. Like the righteous of Ps 1, their leaves will not wither, and they will bear their fruit in season. They will be so full of life that they will bear a new crop every month, and the leaves will be medicinal. The river's fertility brings concrete blessings to all of God's people. Wherever the waters of this river flow, there will be life.

given two shares of land. ¹⁴Otherwise each tribe will receive an equal share. I took a solemn oath and swore that I would give this land to your ancestors, and it will now come to you as your possession.

¹⁵"These are the boundaries of the land: The northern border will run from the Mediterranean toward Hethlon, then on through Lebo-hamath to Zedad; ¹⁶then it will run to Berothah and Sibram, which are on the border between Damascus and Hamath, and finally to Hazer-hatticon, on the border of Hauran. ¹⁷So the northern border will run from the Mediterranean to Hazar-enan, on the border between Hamath to the north and Damascus to the south.

¹⁸"The eastern border starts at a point between Hauran and Damascus and runs south along the Jordan River between Israel and Gilead, past the Dead Sea and as far south as Tamar. This will be the eastern border.

¹⁹"The southern border will go west from Tamar to the waters of Meribah at Kadesh and then follow the course of the Brook of Egypt to the Mediterranean. This will be the southern border.

²⁰"On the west side, the Mediterranean itself will be your border from the southern border to the point where the northern border begins, opposite Lebo-hamath.

²¹"Divide the land within these boundaries

among the tribes of Israel. ²²Distribute the land as an allotment for yourselves and for the foreigners who have joined you and are raising their families among you. They will be like native-born Israelites to you and will receive an allotment among the tribes. ²³These foreigners are to be given land within the territory of the tribe with whom they now live. I, the Sovereign LORD, have spoken!

Allocation of the Land

48"Here is the list of the tribes of Israel and the territory each is to receive. The territory of Dan is in the extreme north. Its boundary line follows the Hethlon road to Lebo-hamath and then runs on to Hazar-enan on the border of Damascus, with Hamath to the north. Dan's territory extends all the way across the land of Israel from east to west.

²Asher's territory lies south of Dan's and also extends from east to west. ³Naphtali's land lies south of Asher's, also extending from east to west. ⁴Then comes Manasseh south of Naphtali, and its territory also extends from east to west. ⁵South of Manasseh is Ephraim, ⁶and then Reuben, ⁷and then Judah, all of whose boundaries extend from east to west.

⁸"South of Judah is the land set aside for a special purpose. It will be $8\frac{1}{2}$ miles wide and will extend as far east and west as the tribal territories, with the Temple at the center.

⁹"The area set aside for the LORD's Temple will be $8\frac{1}{2}$ miles long and $6\frac{1}{2}$ miles of space, access, and position relative to the Temple are of crucial significance.

47:13 The descendants of Joseph will be given two shares of land: It was important to retain twelve portions of land. Since Levi had no portion, the descendants of Joseph's sons, Ephraim and Manasseh, received land as two tribes.

47:15-20 The boundaries of the new Promised Land were approximately those assigned in Num 34:1-12, from Lebo-hamath in the north to the Brook of Egypt in the south, and from the Mediterranean in the west to the Jordan River in the east. This promised land would now be possessed by the people, something they had never before done. Absent from this land was Transjordan, the area east of the Jordan River, which was the historic home of Reuben, Gad, and half of the tribe of Manasseh.

47:18 the Dead Sea: Literally the eastern sea. • Tamar: As in the Greek version; Hebrew reads you will measure.

47:19 waters of Meribah at Kadesh:

Hebrew waters of Meribath-kadesh.

47:21-23 The land within these boundaries was to be divided among the tribes of Israel. Instead of the divided preexilic kingdoms, the future would see a single kingdom formed from the diverse unity of the twelve tribes and incorporating even resident foreigners and their families, provided that they had joined Israel as converts. These people were to receive an allotment, just like the native-born Israelites, and they could pass this inheritance on to their children. In view of the significance of the land to Ezekiel, this was a high privilege.

48:1-8 The land assigned to the tribes was arranged in strips running east to west through the land, rather than piecemeal as it was before the Exile. This was more than simply a way of ensuring that each tribe received equal access to the various resources of the land. It aligned the land with the sacred east-west axis that was so prominent in the Temple. As in the Temple, the size and shape of the central areas were clearly defined, while those on the margins were less closely determined (see note on 40:17-19): The four tribes most distant from the central sacred section (Dan, Asher, Naphtali, and Gad), and therefore in the least privileged position, were descended from the four sons of Jacob by Zilpah and Bilhah, the maidservants of his wives, Leah and Rachel. The eight sons from Leah and Rachel would receive the strips immediately north and south of the holy portion that contained the Temple. Immediately next to the holy portion were the tribes of Benjamin and Judah, which historically surrounded Jerusalem. Judah received the strip immediately to the north of the holy portion, as if to stress that whereas in the past the land had been divided into north and south—Israel and Judah—now Judah would be in the north.

48:8 $8\frac{1}{2}$ miles: Hebrew 25,000 [cubits] [13.3 kilometers].

48:9-14 The holy portion was not quite wide. ¹⁰For the priests there will be a strip of land measuring $8\frac{1}{2}$ miles long by $3\frac{1}{2}$ miles wide, with the LORD's Temple at the center. ¹¹This area is set aside for the ordained priests, the descendants of Zadok who served me faithfully and did not go astray with the people of Israel and the rest of the Levites. ¹²It will be their special portion when the land is distributed, the most sacred land of all. Next to the priests' territory will lie the land where the other Levites will live.

¹³"The land allotted to the Levites will be the same size and shape as that belonging to the priests— $8\frac{1}{2}$ miles long and $3\frac{1}{2}$ miles wide. Together these portions of land will measure $8\frac{1}{2}$ miles long by $6\frac{1}{2}$ miles wide.

¹⁴None of this special land may ever be sold or traded or used by others, for it belongs to the LORD; it is set apart as holy.

¹⁵"An additional strip of land $8\frac{1}{2}$ miles long by $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles wide, south of the sacred Temple area, will be allotted for public use—homes, pasturelands, and common lands, with a city at the center. ¹⁶The city will measure $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles on each side—north, south, east, and west. ¹⁷Open lands will surround the city for 150 yards in every direction. ¹⁸Outside the city there will be a farming area that stretches $3\frac{1}{2}$ miles to the east and $3\frac{1}{2}$ miles to the west along the border of the sacred area. This farmland will produce food for the people working in the city. ¹⁹Those who come from the various tribes to work in the city may farm it. ²⁰This entire area—including the sacred lands and

Israel's Geography as Theology (47:13–48:35)

Ezek 40:1–46:24
Rev 22:1-2

The prophet Ezekiel saw a future with strong links to the past, for the land of Israel was still the Promised Land that had been promised to the patriarchs. The division of the land in 47:13–48:35 combines spiritual ideals with a practical message that reinforces themes from earlier sections of the vision (chs 40–46).

The map in this vision does not resemble the earlier tribal patchwork established in Joshua's time (see map on p. 397). Here, each tribe was to receive an equal portion of the land, arranged in east-to-west strips that oriented the whole land on the same axis as the Temple at its center. These strips of land bear no connection to the actual geographic features of the land. The point seems to be that the old tribal jealousies and hatreds will be gone, as each tribe is on exactly the same footing as the others.

The monarchy is not abolished in this vision, but it is reformed, transformed, and given a place among the twelve tribes. The defiled city that was destroyed in the earlier chapters of Ezekiel gives way to a new holy city of unity and harmony for the tribes. The transforming river does its work of life-giving restoration, bringing the blessing that flows from God's Temple to bear on every aspect of the people's lives.

The whole vision of chs 40–48 encourages Ezekiel's hearers to repent of their past sins, to be faithful in the often-difficult present, and to hope for a brighter future through God's power and grace. The closing chapters of the book of Revelation present the same message as fulfilled in Christ (Rev 21–22). Jesus inaugurated the spiritual reality that Ezekiel described—the heavenly city "designed and built by God" (Heb 11:10).

at the exact center of the land; there were seven tribal strips to the north and only five to the south of it. While it was still not exactly central geographically, the spiritual center had apparently moved a significant distance north from where it used to be in Jerusalem. • The importance of the holy portion set aside for the LORD's Temple is underlined by the detailed description of its dimensions and makeup, in contrast with the brevity of the descriptions of the tribal allocations. This special portion was devoted to God and was never to be sold or traded or used by others. It was made up of strips that ran from east to west and were allocated to the Levites, the priests, and the city. The area for the ordained priests immediately surrounded the Temple and protected it from anything unholy. It was flanked by an area to the north for the Levites.

48:9 8½ miles long and 6½ miles wide: As in one Greek manuscript and the Greek reading in 45:1: 25,000 [cubits] [13.3 kilometers] long and 20,000 [cubits] [10.6 kilometers] wide; Hebrew reads 25,000 [cubits] long and 10,000 [cubits] [3½ miles or 5.3 kilometers] wide. Similarly in 48:13. Cp. 45:1-5; 48:10-13.

48:10 8½ miles long by 3½ miles wide: Hebrew 25,000 [cubits] [13.3 kilometers] long by 10,000 [cubits] [5.3 kilometers] wide; also in 48:13.

48:13 8½ miles long by 3½ miles wide . . . 8½ miles long and 6½ miles wide: See notes on 48:9, 10.

48:15-20 To the south was a narrower strip for public use where the city was located. The overall shape of the central area was thus a square. The city was a visible symbol and focus of unity for the twelve tribes, and home to residents from the various tribes.

48:15 8½ miles long by 1½ miles wide: Hebrew 25,000 [cubits] [13.3 kilometers] long by 5,000 [cubits] [2.65 kilometers] wide.

48:16 1½ miles: Hebrew 4,500 [cubits] [2.4 kilometers]; also in 48:30, 32, 33, 34.

48:17 150 yards: Hebrew 250 [cubits] [133 meters].

Each of these areas will be $8\frac{1}{2}$ miles wide, extending in opposite directions to the eastern and western borders of Israel, with the sacred lands and the sanctuary of the Temple in the center. ²²So the prince's land will include everything between the territories allotted to Judah and Benjamin, except for the areas set aside for the sacred lands and the city.

The first will be named for Reuben, the second for Judah, and the third for Levi. ³²On the east wall, also $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles long, the gates will be named for Joseph, Benjamin, and Dan. ³³The south wall, also $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles long, will have gates named for Simeon, Issachar, and Zebulun. ³⁴And on the west wall, also $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles long, the gates will be named for Gad, Asher, and Naphtali.

³⁵"The distance around the entire city will be 6 miles. And from that day the name of the city will be 'The LORD Is There.'" than the rest of the laity, but he was below the priests and Levites. The same message was delivered by the architecture of the Temple complex.

◀ Ezekiel's Vision of Israel's New Boundaries (47:13–48:29). The boundaries of Israel in Ezekiel's vision correspond to the ideal boundaries that Moses gave in Num 34:1-10; Ezekiel's boundaries thus encompass the ideal Israel and communicate a promise to Israel in exile that God would fully restore his people. Ezekiel's vision, in keeping with its theological character, does not give specific boundaries for each tribe, only the order of tribes from north to south (48:1-7, 23-29) and a notation that "each tribe will receive an equal share" (47:14).

48:28 waters of Meribah at Kadesh: Hebrew waters of Meribath-kadesh. • the Mediterranean: Literally the Great Sea.

48:30-31 At the end of the book, Ezekiel focuses attention on the exits to the city, highlighting once again the theme of access that runs throughout chs 40–48. Like the Temple, the city was a measured square with twelve gates, one for each of the tribes, which established a focus of tribal unity. Unusually, the three most important gates, named for Reuben (the oldest of the sons of Israel), Judah (the royal tribe), and Levi (the priestly tribe), faced north rather than east. This is because the most important direction was northward toward the Temple, the center of the renewed land. South was the second most important side because it was on the axis that pointed toward the Temple.

48:32-34 The east-facing gates were assigned to the children of Rachel—Joseph, Benjamin, and (through her maid-servant) Dan. The south . . . gates were assigned to Simeon, Issachar, and Zebulun, Leah's sons, whose lands would be south of the holy square. The least favored west . . . gates were assigned to the descendants of the concubines, Gad, Asher, and Naphtali.

48:35 6 miles: Hebrew 18,000 [cubits] [9.6 kilometers]. • To cap off the whole vision, the city was given a new name, The LORD Is There (Hebrew Yahweh Shammah). Although the Lord had once departed from Jerusalem and ordered its destruction because of its gross idolatry and bloodshed, the new city was so much a part of the new order of things that it could receive that name. This also implied that the bloody city condemned in earlier chapters had now been replaced by a holy city, fit for God to dwell in among representatives of all twelve of Israel's tribes (cp. Isa 4:2-6; Zech 14:20-21). Thus the prophecy of 37:26-27 finally reached its conclusion and its fulfillment, as God established his sanctuary in the midst of his people forever, just as he promised.

[5.3 kilometers] to the east and 10,000 [cubits] to the west.

48:20 $8\frac{1}{2}$ miles: Hebrew 25,000 [cubits] [13.3 kilometers]; also in 48:21.

48:21-29 The area filling out the rest of the central portion to the east and west of the holy square was assigned to the prince. The prince was more important

THE BOOK OF Daniel

When Daniel came of age in Babylon, Jerusalem, the holy city, lay in ruins. Babylon was flourishing, but it would also soon wither and die. God's people, the children of Israel, were living as exiles in Babylonia. Could they hope to enjoy life as the Lord's chosen nation again? Through Daniel's experiences as a captive and as a government official, and through special messages, God revealed his power and his plan for history to Daniel, showing that he would rescue his people from exile and even from death (12:1-3).

SETTING

In 605 BC, Nebuchadnezzar attacked Jerusalem and captured some Israelites, including some of the young men of Judah's royal family (1:1-4). In this historical event, God began sending his people into exile as he had warned long ago. The Israelites had broken faith with God by breaking his covenant (Deut 28:36, 64; Jer 11:1-17; 25:11-12; 29:10-11). The mighty king Nebuchadnezzar II of Babylon (605–562 BC) was God's instrument and servant to punish his people Israel (Jer 25:9). Daniel and his friends began a process of enculturation ordered by Nebuchadnezzar that threatened to absorb them into a pagan way of life while effectively neutralizing their identity as the Lord's holy people (Exod 19:5-6).

▲ The Babylonian Empire, 605–539 BC. When Daniel and his friends were taken captive to BABYLON in 605 BC, Babylon was quickly becoming the dominant power in the region under the rule of Nebuchadnezzar II (605–562 BC). Meanwhile, the Medes and the Persians to the east were growing stronger and, in 549 BC, became a single kingdom under Persian king Cyrus II (559–530 BC).

Meanwhile, the Babylonians continued to devastate Judah and Jerusalem. In 597 BC, more Israelites were taken to Babylon, and in 586 BC, Jerusalem was destroyed and additional captives were taken. After 586 BC, Israel was no longer a nation and God's people were totally helpless and hopeless. At this low point in their existence, God's people became the tail of the nations, not their head (see Deut 28:13, 44). It seemed that they might simply be absorbed into Babylon and disappear from the stage of history.

OUTLINE

1:1–6:28

Daniel and His Friends

7:1–12:13

Daniel's Visions for the Present and Future

The promises that Abraham's descendants would be a blessing to all nations seemed hopelessly in default (Gen 12:1-3). The great Gentile superpowers of the ancient Near East, first Assyria and then Babylon, ruled the world. What would happen to Israel in exile? What would become of God's promises to Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Moses (Exod 19–20), and David (2 Sam

7)? Would God act on the basis of his words of hope through his prophets (e.g., Gen 12:1-3; Exod 19:5-6; Isa 43:18-21; 44:28; 45:1, 13; Amos 9:11-15)? How would God rescue his people from exile?

Daniel went into exile in 605 BC. He maintained his integrity, honored his people, and glorified his God through the reigns of several Babylonian kings to the end of the Babylonian exile. During that time of shame and oppression, God showed Daniel visions of God's future kingdom, when its King would receive power and reign forever. As Daniel endured the "death of exile" (Ezek 37), he prayed faithfully and earnestly, and God answered his prayer.

In 539 BC, Cyrus of Persia shocked the world by invading Babylon, gaining entrance into the capital city, and subduing it and its blasphemous ruler, Belshazzar, just as the prophet Isaiah had predicted he would (Isa 44:26–45:7). Daniel witnessed the decree of the Persian king Cyrus II the Great that the captive peoples could return to their homes (Ezra 1:2-4). This fulfilled Jeremiah's prophecy that after seventy years of servitude to Babylon, God would restore his people (see Jer 25:11-12; 29:10-11).

The Lord brought his holy people back from exile, and he gave them encouragement for the future through Daniel by painting the canvas of history with visions and dreams. The holy people needed help in the new circumstances of the Exile and the return, and God spoke to give his people new hope as they faced a threatening future.

SUMMARY

The book of Daniel covers the period from about 605 to about 535 BC. Chapters 1–6 feature events and stories that demonstrate God's faithfulness to Daniel and his friends as they remained faithful to God and his law. These stories are in roughly chronological order. Three times, the Hebrew captives were faced with royal decrees that went against God's law (chs 1, 3, 6); all three times, they exhibited wisdom while obeying God, and he saved them from harm. Three times, God spoke through Daniel to interpret revelations he had given to pagan kings (chs 2, 4, 5). Daniel's words and subsequent events showed that God wields ultimate power and authority on earth.

In chs 7–12, the focus shifts to God's sovereignty over the course of history. As in chs 1–6, the visions of these chapters are in roughly chronological order. Chapter 7 uses animal symbolism to tell the same story found in ch 2: World history will culminate in the establishment of God's kingdom, but first there will be fierce opposition to God and his purposes. Chapter 8 highlights the roles of Persia and Greece, culminating in the acts of a wicked ruler who opposes God's people. Chapter 9 features Daniel's marvelous prayer that is inspired by Jeremiah's prophecy of seventy years of servitude (9:1–2). The prayer touched God's heart and helped to end the Exile. As a result of the prayer, the angel Gabriel is sent to Daniel to reveal the coming seventy sets of seven, an overview of God's plan to establish his people and deal with their oppressors (see "The Seventy Sets of Seven" at 9:24–27, p. 1413). In chs 10–12, the book concludes with a final vision that portrays history from the third year of Cyrus (536 BC), to the time of Greece and Rome, and on to the time of the resurrection (see "Resurrection" at 12:1–3, 13, p. 1421). Daniel was faithful to his calling, and he will be raised in the end.

AUTHOR AND DATE

Scholars have endlessly debated the date at which the book of Daniel was put into its final form. Most conservative scholars argue that Daniel wrote the book in the late 500s BC. The book claims to be predictive prophecy (2:29–31; 4:24; 7:1–12:13), and the author places Daniel in the 500s (2:1; 5:1; 10:1). The book displays excellent knowledge of Babylonian history, although some historical issues need to be resolved.

Other scholars argue for dating the book around 164 BC, primarily because Daniel describes events through about that time—the predictions in 11:1–35 are thought to be much too detailed about events that occurred between 190 and 164 BC to have been given 300 years beforehand. There are problems with assigning a late date to the book, however. Above all, the book in its present form is clearly attributed to Daniel alone. One of the major claims of Daniel is that God can predict the future (2:27–29; 10:21). If Daniel himself did not write the predictive prophecies, then the book's claims lack the integrity demanded of one of God's inspired prophets. Without denying the remarkable details, the question of prediction is not conclusive: Who is to say with what detail God may reveal the future to his prophets? Daniel's visions also have characteristics of apocalyptic literature (see facing page), and are models for many later apocalypses. Apocalyptic literature was especially popular among Jewish writings of the intertestamental period (after 400 BC), so it has been said that the book could not have been written prior to that time. However, recent studies have argued that apocalyptic thinking is present in biblical books from the exilic period as well. Therefore it is possible to think of Daniel as serving as a model for the later apocalypses. Viewing the book of Daniel as having been written in the 500s BC by Daniel is less problematic than dating it later to avoid the implication that it contains detailed predictive prophecy.

DANIEL AS LITERATURE

Daniel contains history, but it contains much more. It teaches the theological lessons of history by going behind earthly events to pull out and demonstrate their true meaning and significance. It is concerned mainly to show God's hand and plan by the way it reports its events.

Daniel as Wisdom Literature. Daniel is a book of wisdom intended to make God's people wise in God's ways. The wise person is purified through suffering, seeks the path of righteousness, and leads others into that way (11:33-35; 12:3). The wise person knows that God Most High is the God of gods, that he holds the future in his hands, and that he can rescue his people from any danger (3:16-18; 6:21-22; 12:1-3).

Daniel as Apocalyptic Literature. Certain parts of Daniel belong to a literary genre called apocalyptic ("revelation, unveiling what is hidden"). This genre pulls back the curtain of earthly history and reveals the activity of God, angels, and other spiritual powers behind the scenes. These activities affect historical events on the earth. Apocalyptic literature reveals reality, often by using rich symbolic language so that statues, animals, or horns can represent such things as kings, kingdoms, and persons.

It is important to interpret apocalyptic literature according to what its imagery intends. What is the reality and truth behind the imagery? The literary context and the historical background of a passage must be examined in order to properly interpret its symbolism. Sometimes the insights needed to interpret the imagery are found within the text (7:1-14, 16-17, 23-25). In other cases, a study of the social, political, military, or cultural milieu will yield helpful insights. For instance, studying the history of Babylon can be helpful in understanding why a certain image for Babylon (a golden head or a lion) is fitting. By going behind earthly events to demonstrate their true meaning, the book of Daniel teaches theological lessons.

The ancient Greek version of Daniel and the Latin Vulgate include three passages not found in the Hebrew manuscripts. These passages are included in Roman Catholic and Orthodox editions of the Bible, but not in Protestant editions.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

Daniel's major theological theme is that God's sovereignty is expressed in God's final purpose for humanity and in all of creation. History is on an inexorable march toward the Kingdom of God, in which God's sovereignty will be fully realized. God judges and rescues his people, controls history as he pleases on a universal scale, and raises up or brings down pagan kingdoms and kings. He decided when to conclude the Exile (9:18-19), and he defeats and controls the powers of evil (4:30, 32; 7:8, 20-21; 10:13; 11:28, 30-32). Heavenly powers bow to him (3:28; 4:23, 35; 5:5; 6:21; 8:16; 9:21; 10:5, 13; 12:1), and he has the power to raise the dead (12:1-3). His wisdom controls all things (3:18; 11:35). He is sovereign to choose and approve of those who are beloved and highly esteemed in his eyes (9:23; 10:11, 19). God establishes his kingdom over all the earth forever, and his people will rule over it with their King, the Son of Man (7:13, 22; Ps 110:1; Matt 24:27-44; 25:31; 26:2, 64; Mark 14:62; Rev 1:7).

The fortunes of kings and the affairs of men are subject to God's decrees. . . . he is able to accomplish his will despite the most determined opposition of the mightiest potentates on earth.

1. DANIEL AND HIS FRIENDS (1:1–6:28)
Daniel in Nebuchadnezzar's Court (1:1–21)
Nebuchadnezzar's Victory over Jehoiakim

1 During the third year of King Jehoiakim's reign in Judah, King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon came to Jerusalem and besieged it. ²The Lord gave him victory over King Jehoiakim of Judah and permitted him to take some of the sacred objects from the Temple of God. So Nebuchadnezzar took them back to the land of Babylonia and placed them in the treasure-house of his god.

Nebuchadnezzar Educates Young Hebrew Men

³Then the king ordered Ashpenaz, his chief of staff, to bring to the palace some of the young men of Judah's royal family and other noble families, who had been brought to Babylon as captives. ⁴"Select only strong, healthy, and good-looking young men," he said. "Make sure they are well versed in every branch of learning, are gifted with knowledge and good judgment, and are suited to serve in the royal palace. Train these young men in the language and literature of Babylon."

⁵The king assigned them a daily ration of food and wine from his own kitchens. They were to be trained for three years, and then they would enter the royal service.

⁶Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah were four of the young men chosen, all from the tribe of Judah. ⁷The chief of staff re-named them with these Babylonian names:

Daniel was called Belteshazzar.

Hananiah was called Shadrach.

Mishael was called Meshach.

Azariah was called Abednego.

1:1–6:28 The first half of Daniel, in describing the experiences and wisdom of Daniel and his three Hebrew friends, demonstrates that God is the ruler of the world and that God's people need to be faithful and live and act wisely in every situation in which they find themselves.

1:1–21 God fulfilled his prophetic word by sending his rebellious people into exile (see Jer 25:11–12; 29:10). God also extended his grace to a remnant in exile, and he protected and prospered Daniel and three other young Hebrew captives. These young men received the best training of the time in the Babylonian king's court, and were thus well equipped to be God's witnesses in Babylon. They made the God of Israel known even in exile.

1:1–2 These verses explain how it was that Daniel and his friends were in Babylon and succinctly give the setting in which Daniel lived during the years of exile.

1:1 This event occurred in 605 BC, during the third year of King Jehoiakim's reign (see timeline, p. 677). Prior to this Jehoiakim (609–598 BC) had been a vassal of Egypt; his reign in Judah was exceedingly wicked (Jer 25:1–38; 2 Kgs 23:36–24:6; 2 Chr 36:5–8). The exile and captivity of Daniel and his friends in 605 BC prefigure the exile of the rest of the nation in 597 and 586 BC (see 2 Kgs 24:1–25:21). The Lord employed King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon as his unwitting servant to accomplish his ends (cp. Jer 25:9; 27:6).

1:2 The Lord, who is sovereign over history, gave the victory to Nebuchadnezzar; it was not accomplished by the king's might or the power of his god Marduk, the high god of the Babylonian pantheon. The Lord used the Exile to judge and discipline his people, as had been threatened in the Law (e.g., Deut 28:64) and by the prophets (e.g., Jer 25:8–14). • The sacred objects had been dedicated and set aside for use in the Temple of God built by Solomon. After spending nearly seventy years in the treasure-house of Marduk, these vessels were further defiled by Belshazzar in 539 BC (5:1–4); they were later returned to the rebuilt Temple in Ezra's time (Ezra 1:7–11; 5:13–16). • the land of Babylonia (Hebrew the land of Shinar): Israel's rebellion led them back to where rebellious humanity had constructed the Tower of Babel (Gen 11:2).

1:3–7 The Lord fulfilled his threat to make sons of the royal family serve in Babylon (Isa 39:7) despite their being heirs to the promises of Davidic kingship. Nebuchadnezzar made a powerful attempt to proselytize them by education, social and religious pressure, and name changes. Instead, their impact upon their pagan surroundings became the outstanding feature of their stay at the king's palace and court.

1:3 staff: Though often translated "eunuchs" (cp. Isa 39:7), in this case the Hebrew term (saris) likely means that Ashpenaz and those under his authority were high government officials (see 2 Kgs 8:6).

1:4 strong, healthy: They had no defect or blemish that would disqualify them; the Lord had the same requirements for Israel's priests (Lev 21:16–24; 22:17–25). These youths had the wisdom, knowledge, understanding, and character needed to function at the highest levels of government. • The literature of Babylon (or of the Chaldeans) was immense and included wisdom and esoteric literature, creation stories, magic incantations, theogonies (origins and genealogies of the gods), legal corpora, ancient histories, letters, dream journals, vision manuals, and mathematical and astrological materials. The education of these young men—all in a foreign language—rivalled that of Moses under Pharaoh and Alexander under Aristotle.

1:5 The king attempted to create a bond of dependence, gratitude, and loyalty by giving them food and wine from his own kitchens.

1:6–7 Their new Babylonian names were to help enculturate the Hebrews into the pagan Babylonian society. Daniel ("God is my Judge" or "God has judged") became Belteshazzar ("Bel [a Babylonian god] protects his life"). Hananiah ("the LORD is grace") became Shadrach (possibly meaning "command of Aku," another Babylonian god). Mishael ("who is God?") became Meshach ("who is Aku?"). Azariah ("the LORD helps") became Abednego ("servant of Nego/Nebo," another Babylonian god).

1:8–14 Daniel determined not to defile himself with the king's food and wine or to yield his religious and moral independence to the king. He gave God the opportunity to demonstrate his loving kindness and care toward his trustworthy servants. This strong reliance upon God by Daniel and his friends is a significant motif throughout the book (see also 2:16–23; 3:16–18; 6:16).

1:8 Daniel was determined not to defile himself: The meat and wine from unacceptable foods. ⁹Now God had given the chief of staff both respect and affection for Daniel. ¹⁰But he responded, "I am afraid of my lord the king, who has ordered that you eat this food and wine. If you become pale and thin compared to the other youths your age, I am afraid the king will have me beheaded."

¹¹Daniel spoke with the attendant who had been appointed by the chief of staff to look after Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah. ¹²"Please test us for ten days on a

¹⁵At the end of the ten days, Daniel and his three friends looked healthier and better nourished than the young men who had been eating the food assigned by the king. ¹⁶So after that, the attendant fed them only

Ezek 14:14, 20; 28:3
Matt 24:15

Daniel is a stirring example of faith, wisdom, and endurance under difficulty and oppression. His life and prophecies affirm that God is in control and will have the final victory despite apparently dominant evil forces.

Daniel was a young man of Judah's royal family when the Babylonian army first attacked Jerusalem in 605 BC (1:3). Daniel was deported to Babylon with Azariah, Hananiah, and Mishael. King Nebuchadnezzar trained these young men to serve his growing empire. Daniel and his friends were the brightest and healthiest of the students, so they assumed important positions in Nebuchadnezzar's court.

Daniel's court career lasted nearly seventy years (cp. 1:21). He quickly established a reputation for intelligence and absolute fidelity to God. When Nebuchadnezzar had a troubling dream (ch 2), God revealed its meaning to Daniel, who explained it to the king. Later, Daniel interpreted a second dream about the king's pride (ch 4). Daniel urged Nebuchadnezzar to repent, but he did not. As a result, Nebuchadnezzar became temporarily deranged (4:28-34).

Daniel always treated the Babylonian king respectfully, and Nebuchadnezzar had high regard for Daniel, whose character and behavior led him to worship the Lord (though not exclusively). Daniel's faithfulness and prudence encourage later readers in similarly hostile cultures.

Later, Belshazzar, vice-regent of Babylon, profaned the sacred vessels from the Jerusalem Temple during a banquet (539 BC). A disembodied hand suddenly wrote the words "MENE, MENE, TEKEL, and PARSIN" on the palace wall, which Daniel interpreted as forecasting Babylon's imminent end. That same night, Belshazzar was killed by Persians who captured the capital (5:30).

Under Darius the Mede (539 BC), Daniel became an administrator of the realm (6:2). Daniel's capable management infuriated political enemies, who persuaded Darius to pass a decree forbidding worship of anyone but the king, under penalty of being cast into a lions' den. To preserve his religious integrity, Daniel violated the law, but he was miraculously unscathed by the lions. Thereafter he was restored to his office (6:17-28). Daniel's latest visions date from about this time (10:1, 4).

Daniel's prophecies are difficult to understand in detail, but their message is clear: Evil forces are now in power, but God is in control and will save his people. Jesus and NT authors cited Daniel, often using his imagery when speaking of the end times (e.g., cp. Dan 7:1-9 and Rev 13:1-10; Dan 7:13 and Rev 1:7; Dan 9:27 and Matt 24:15). Daniel had no doubts that God Most High would be victorious.

Nebuchadnezzar's table were probably unclean by Jewish standards. The Babylonians used unclean meats such as pork (see Lev 11:1-23; Deut 14:1-21), and their meat and wine had probably been dedicated to Babylonian gods. The other young Hebrews agreed with Daniel (1:12-16). They trusted God and obeyed his commands, and God blessed them (cp. Deut 28:1-14).

1:9 God worked on Daniel's behalf by influencing Ashpenaz's attitude (cp. Exod 11:3).

1:10 Ashpenaz was understandably afraid of the king.

1:11-13 Daniel found a wise solution that would protect his spiritual integrity and Ashpenaz's head.

1:12 vegetables and water: Such a diet would steer clear of offensive foods (1:8) and, as a kind of fast, would demonstrate mourning over their exile in a foreign land.

1:13-14 make your decision: Daniel's exemplary wisdom, prudence, and courtesy are seen in his respectful stance toward his attendant, who responded favorably.

1:15-21 In their training, Daniel and his friends completed a tough curriculum in the context of the most threatening pagan culture, yet they remained faithful to the Lord. As they mastered language, literature, and science, they pursued excellence and honored God, who added many gifts to their skills and learning.

vegetables instead of the food and wine provided for the others.

¹⁷God gave these four young men an unusual aptitude for understanding every aspect of literature and wisdom. And God gave Daniel the special ability to interpret the meanings of ^avisions and dreams.

¹⁸When the training period ordered by the king was completed, the chief of staff brought all the young men to King Nebuchadnezzar. ¹⁹The king talked with them, and no one impressed him as much as Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah. So they entered the royal service. ²⁰Whenever the king consulted them in any matter requiring wisdom and balanced judgment, he found them ten times more capable than any of the magicians and enchanters in his entire kingdom.

²¹Daniel remained in the royal service until the first year of the reign of King Cyrus.

Nebuchadnezzar's Dream (2:1-49) A Dream Troubles Nebuchadnezzar

2 One night during the second year of his reign, Nebuchadnezzar had such disturbing dreams that he couldn't sleep. ²He called in his magicians, enchanters, sorcerers, and astrologers, and he demanded that they tell him what he had dreamed. As they stood before the king, ³he said, "I have had a dream that deeply troubles me, and I must know what it means."

⁴Then the astrologers answered the king in Aramaic, "Long live the king! Tell us the dream, and we will tell you what it means."

⁵But the king said to the astrologers, "I am serious about this. If you don't tell me what my dream was and what it means, you will be torn limb from limb, and your houses will be turned into heaps of rubble! ⁶But if you tell me what I dreamed and what the dream means, I will give you many wonderful gifts and honors. Just tell me the dream and what it means!"

⁷They said again, "Please, Your Majesty. Tell us the dream, and we will tell you what it means."

⁸The king replied, "I know what you are doing! You're stalling for time because you know I am serious when I say, ⁹If you don't tell me the dream, you are doomed.' So you have conspired to tell me lies, hoping I will

1:17 All four young men were outstanding students. God gave Daniel the special ability to interpret . . . visions and dreams, which were often prophetic (cp. Joseph, Gen 37:5-11).

1:19 The king talked with all the young men who were trained, not just Daniel and his three friends. This was a thorough oral examination and discussion of things that were most important to the king. God arranged for the four young men to be his witnesses among the nations, and they were greatly honored by being appointed to positions of power, responsibility, and opportunity (cp. Gen 41:37-40; 45:5; Exod 2:1-10).

1:20 The magicians were a class of soothsayer priests who could also interpret dreams (cp. Gen 44:1-15) and do wonders (cp. Exod 7:11). The term enchanters (Hebrew ashap), found only in Daniel, comes from an Akkadian term for people who uttered spells.

1:21 the first year of the reign of King Cyrus: Cyrus the Great ruled over Persia (559–530 BC), Media (from 549 BC), and Babylon (from 539 BC). He thus created the Persian empire (539–331 BC; see notes on 5:30, 31; cp. Isa 45:1-2).

2:1–6:28 This section contains stories and dreams from the experiences of Daniel and his friends in Babylon. Daniel exercised his special gift of understanding the meaning of dreams and his mastery of literature and science (1:17). God's kingdom (2:44–49). Chapters 3–6 portray the demise of Babylon and the rise of Persia. History moves toward its inexorable goal—the everlasting Kingdom of God (2:44; 4:2-3, 34; 6:26).

2:1–49 God gave a dream that encompassed the flow of world history over the centuries, and Daniel interpreted the enigmatic imagery of this revelation. This dream and its interpretation reflect a key theme of the book—the assured final establishment of the Kingdom of God as the ultimate goal of history (2:44–45; 7:9-14, 26-27). These verses also demonstrate the inability of paganism to discern the activity and plans of Israel's God.

2:1–3 Nebuchadnezzar's dream disturbed him so much that he called on his specially trained advisers to help him.

2:1 The second year of Nebuchadnezzar's reign was 603 BC (see timeline, p. 1389). If the three-year training period for Daniel and his friends is understood as having occurred in parts of three calendar years, it could have been completed by this time (cp. 2:48).

2:2 magicians, enchanters: See note on 1:20. • Sorcerers were incantation priests or ritual technicians. • Astrologers (or Chaldeans; also in 2:4, 5, 10) studied the heavenly bodies to discern the times and seasons of major events.

2:3 a dream that deeply troubles me: The king had reason to fear that his throne might be in danger from other groups.

2:4 in Aramaic: The original text from this point through chapter 7 is in Aramaic. This change to Aramaic is also found in the Dead Sea Scrolls. Aramaic had been established by the Assyrians as the lingua franca of international communication. The practice was continued by the Babylonians. • Tell us the dream: The Babylonian wise men needed to know the contents of the dream in order to look them up in reference books. They did not depend on divine revelation.

2:9 Only someone with supernatural insight could tell Nebuchadnezzar the contents of his dream (cp. Mark 2:9-12).

¹⁰The astrologers replied to the king, "No one on earth can tell the king his dream! And no king, however great and powerful, has ever asked such a thing of any magician, enchanter, or astrologer! ¹¹The king's demand is impossible. No one except the gods can tell you your dream, and they do not live here among people."

The King's Lethal Decree

¹²The king was furious when he heard this, and he ordered that all the wise men of Babylon be executed. ¹³And because of the king's decree, men were sent to find and kill Daniel and his friends.

¹⁴When Arioch, the commander of the king's guard, came to kill them, Daniel handled the situation with wisdom and discretion. ¹⁵He asked Arioch, "Why has the king issued such a harsh decree?" So Arioch told him all that had happened. ¹⁶Daniel went at once to see the king and requested more time to tell the king what the dream meant.

Prayer and Praise for Divine Help

¹⁷Then Daniel went home and told his friends Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah what had happened. ¹⁸He urged them to ask the God of heaven to show them his mercy by telling them the secret, so they would not be executed along with the other wise men of Babylon. ¹⁹That night the secret was revealed to Daniel in a vision. Then Daniel praised the God of heaven. ²⁰He said,

"Praise the name of God forever and ever, for he has all wisdom and power.

Four World Empires (2:1-45; 7:1-28)

Two panoramic visions in Daniel present God's sovereignty over history. Nebuchadnezzar had the first vision (ch 2), and Daniel had another like it (ch 7). In each of these visions, four of the kingdoms of the world are presented.

There have always been questions about the identities of the four empires, but historically there has also been consensus. Hippolytus (AD 170–236), one of the early church fathers, identified the four kingdoms as Babylonia, Media-Persia, Greece, and Rome. The church father and historian Eusebius of Caesarea (AD 260–340) initially identified the first kingdom as Assyria (which once also controlled Babylon), but he later agreed with Hippolytus, as did most of the church fathers. Later, Jerome and Augustine accepted this same understanding, and conservative interpreters largely still agree.

In antiquity and in our era, some interpreters have argued that Greece is the fourth empire, and they treat the Medes as a separate kingdom. This interpretation is due in part to denying the possibility of prediction and assuming that the book was written about 164 BC, when the Roman empire had not yet arisen. But Media and Persia are usually regarded as one empire, and the Median kingdom had been mostly assimilated by the Persians by the time Cyrus II conquered Babylon in 539 BC.

Rome is then seen as the fourth kingdom, but the bestial, demonic, and inhumane characteristics of the vision extend beyond the historical Rome. The visions represent a panorama of the whole world and its governments; all will be destroyed and replaced by the Kingdom of God, the "rock . . . cut from a mountain" (2:34). The metals of the statue become progressively less valuable in ch 2, while the animal imagery of ch 7 becomes more menacingly fierce, violent, and inhumane. These features represent a deterioration of human civilization across the centuries, even as the Kingdom of God grows in power and stature (2:35).

could possibly interpret dreams, but they could not retell them without being told, and they recognized that such a thing was only possible for divinity (cp. 2:17-23, 27-28).

2:12 The king was furious because contradicting or refusing the king's command was an offense punishable by death. The king was supposed to be treated as divine, so they were violating protocol in saying that he was not. The king's sages were also supposed to have a connection with the divine, but they admitted that they did not. The offense to the king was so severe that he ordered that all the wise men of Babylon be executed. The king's rage foreshadows 11:11-35.

2:16 The fact that Daniel could go at once to see the king shows his authority and influence. Daniel demonstrated his wisdom and excellent protocol at the royal court by using gentle words to turn away anger (cp. Prov 15:1).

2:17-23 With faith and wisdom, Daniel prayed for God's intervention (cp. Phil 4:6). When God answered his prayer,

Daniel praised God for giving him wisdom and knowledge (2:20-21). The God of heaven produced the dream and its meaning, demonstrating his supremacy over all other gods, including the gods of Babylon.

2:18 Daniel appealed to God's mercy (see Exod 34:6-7). God was not obligated to answer Daniel's prayer, but doing so would accord with his character.

2:20-23 Daniel acknowledged and praised Israel's God (God of my ancestors, 2:23) as the source of the dream and its interpretation.

- ²¹ He controls the course of world events; he removes kings and sets up other kings.
He gives wisdom to the wise and knowledge to the scholars.
- ²² He reveals deep and mysterious things and knows what lies hidden in darkness, though he is surrounded by light.
- ²³ I thank and praise you, God of my ancestors, for you have given me wisdom and strength.
You have told me what we asked of you and revealed to us what the king demanded."

Daniel Interprets the Dream

²⁴Then Daniel went in to see Arioch, whom the king had ordered to execute the wise men of Babylon. Daniel said to him, "Don't kill the wise men. Take me to the king, and I will tell him the meaning of his dream."

²⁵Arioch quickly took Daniel to the king and said, "I have found one of the captives from Judah who will tell the king the meaning of his dream!"

²⁶The king said to Daniel (also known as Belteshazzar), "Is this true? Can you tell me what my dream was and what it means?"

²⁷Daniel replied, "There are no wise men, enchanters, magicians, or fortune-tellers who can reveal the king's secret. ²⁸But there is a God in heaven who reveals secrets, and he has shown King Nebuchadnezzar what will happen in the future. Now I will tell you your dream and the visions you saw as you lay on your bed.

²⁹"While Your Majesty was sleeping, you dreamed about coming events. He who reveals secrets has shown you what is going to happen. ³⁰And it is not because I am wiser than anyone else that I know the secret of your dream, but because God wants you to understand what was in your heart.

³¹"In your vision, Your Majesty, you saw standing before you a huge, shining statue of a man. It was a frightening sight. ³²The head of the statue was made of fine gold. Its chest and arms were silver, its belly and thighs were bronze, ³³its legs were iron, and its feet were a combination of iron and baked clay. ³⁴As you watched, a rock was cut from a mountain, but not by human hands. It struck the feet of iron and clay, smashing them to bits. ³⁵The whole statue was crushed into small pieces of iron, clay, bronze, silver, and gold. Then the wind blew them away without a trace, like chaff on a threshing floor. But the rock that knocked the statue down became a great mountain that covered the whole earth.

³⁶"That was the dream. Now we will tell the king what it means. ³⁷Your Majesty, you are the greatest of kings. The God of heaven has given you sovereignty, power, strength, and honor. ³⁸He has made you the ruler over all the inhabited world and has put even the wild animals and birds under your control. You are the head of gold.

³⁹"But after your kingdom comes to an end, another kingdom, inferior to yours, will rise to take your place. After that kingdom has fallen, yet a third kingdom, represented by bronze, will rise to rule the world.

2:21 The dream revealed the Lord as the sovereign king of history (see 2:29-45).

2:24 Daniel's influence with Arioch indicates Daniel's wisdom and stature in the royal service.

2:25 There were captives in Babylon from other nations besides Judah.
• Daniel, one of Abraham's offspring, brought the blessing of God's revelation to the Babylonian king (see Gen 12:3).

2:26 Is this true? Nebuchadnezzar was surprised that a non-Babylonian could have this ability since the Babylonian religion and culture strongly emphasized their own wise men as "purveyors of the heavens."

2:27-28 Daniel made it clear that no human could do what was required (cp. 2:10-11; see also Gen 41:16).

2:28 a God in heaven: Daniel proclaimed one true God who rules all things (2:20-21), not a limited local deity such as the ones the Babylonians worshiped. The God of Daniel's ancestors (2:23) is the God in heaven who reveals secrets. The Babylonian gods could not do this. • what will happen: In the ancient world, dreams were often understood as revealing the future.

2:29-30 God had shown the king the long march of future history. Nebuchadnezzar was keenly interested in history, pursuing knowledge of the past and seeking to make a place for himself as history went forward. God wanted Nebuchadnezzar to understand the course of history, perhaps to impress upon him that Israel's God, the God of heaven, is the God of all history.

2:31-33 The progression downward is one of value: from the most valuable, gold (2:32), to the least valuable, iron and baked clay (2:33).

2:32 There were gradations of gold; fine gold was the highest quality.

• thighs: Above the knees.

2:33 legs: Below the knees.

2:34 The phrase from a mountain is implied (cp. 2:35, 45) but is not in the Aramaic text.

2:35 covered (literally filled) the whole earth: Cp. Gen 1:28; Exod 1:7; Matt 28:18-20. This new kingdom would replace all other kingdoms.

2:36-38 you are the greatest of kings (literally king of kings): Nebuchadnezzar had attained kingship over all other empires and their kings. He was the appointed ruler for that time in history (Jer 25:8-9).

2:39 inferior to yours: Silver was inferior in value to gold, as the chest is lower than the head. Nebuchadnezzar was an enormously stable ruler who held the Neo-Babylonian empire together. Persia, by contrast, was often threatened with internal divisions and instability around the periphery.

40Following that kingdom, there will be a fourth one, as strong as iron. That kingdom will smash and crush all previous empires, just as iron smashes and crushes everything it strikes. 41The feet and toes you saw were a combination of iron and baked clay, showing that this kingdom will be divided. Like iron mixed with clay, it will have some of the strength of iron. 42But while some parts of it will be as strong as iron, other parts will be as weak as clay. 43This mixture of iron and clay also shows that these kingdoms will try to strengthen themselves by forming alliances with each other through intermarriage. But they will not hold together, just as iron and clay do not mix.

44During the reigns of those kings, the God of heaven will set up a kingdom that will never be destroyed or conquered. It will crush all these kingdoms into nothingness, and it will stand forever. 45That is the meaning of the rock cut from the mountain, though not by human hands, that crushed to pieces the statue of iron, bronze, clay, silver, and gold. The great God was showing the king what will happen in the future. The dream is true, and its meaning is certain."

Nebuchadnezzar Rewards Daniel

46Then King Nebuchadnezzar threw himself down before Daniel and worshiped him, and he commanded his people to offer sacrifices and burn sweet incense before him. 47The king said to Daniel, "Truly, your God is the greatest of gods, the Lord over kings, a revealer of mysteries, for you have been able to reveal this secret."

48Then the king appointed Daniel to a high position and gave him many valuable gifts. He made Daniel ruler over the whole province of Babylon, as well as chief over all his wise men. 49At Daniel's request, the king appointed Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego to be in charge of all the affairs of the province of Babylon, while Daniel remained in the king's court.

Rescue from a Furious King (3:1-30) Nebuchadnezzar Demands Worship

3 King Nebuchadnezzar made a gold statue ninety feet tall and nine feet wide and set it up on the plain of Dura in the province of Babylon. 2Then he sent messages to the high officers, officials, governors, advisers, treasurers, judges, magistrates, and all the provincial officials to come to the dedication of the statue he had set up. 3So all these officials came and stood before the statue King Nebuchadnezzar had set up.

4Then a herald shouted out, "People of all races and nations and languages, listen to the king's command! 5When you hear the sound of the horn, flute, zither, lyre, harp, pipes, and other musical instruments, bow to the ground to worship King Nebuchadnezzar's

2:41-42 as weak as clay: Feet are crucial to stability; the feet were brittle and illustrate how precarious the whole image—that is, earthly kingdoms and their power—would be.

2:43 Just as iron and clay do not mix, . . . intermarriage among different people groups could weaken political alliances rather than produce real or lasting unity. This empire would be fragmented.

2:44 Those kings were probably kings that arose within the fourth kingdom and attempted to strengthen themselves by alliances of intermarriage. However, the phrase might refer to all the kings of the statue as God's kingdom persistently breaks into the flow of history. • it will stand forever: Only a kingdom whose authority and power are from God (see John 18:36) can never be destroyed, for all earthly kingdoms crumble.

2:45 The Babylonians often pictured the earth as a mountain (or ziggurat); hence, the rock would cover or replace the entire earth. • The dream is true: The dream, clearly explained by divine revelation, was truth from God. • its meaning is certain: God guaranteed that what the dream communicated would certainly take place.

2:46 The Aramaic word translated worshiped could also be translated "paid him homage or honor," but not necessarily so. Nebuchadnezzar was a pagan; his religion had many gods, and he thought that the spirit of the gods was in Daniel (4:8; cp. 5:11). Nevertheless, he was recognizing that what Daniel had done was not the result of the ordinary human spirit (cp. Gen 41:38).

2:47 greatest of gods . . . Lord over kings: Nebuchadnezzar repaid the compliment (2:37-38), acknowledging by his words and actions (2:46) that God is supreme over all, even over Nebuchadnezzar himself.

2:48 Daniel was made ruler over Babylon as the king's deputy (cp. Gen 41:37-46).

2:49 Daniel delegated the administration of the province to his three friends so that he could remain in the king's court as his counselor.

3:1-30 Nebuchadnezzar's megalomania, perhaps encouraged by the vision of ch 2, inspired him to construct a gilded statue and demand that everyone in his empire worship it. He had not learned the lesson that God cannot be captured in any created thing. The three young Hebrews refused to worship it as a god. They were faithful to the Lord, and the Lord rescued them from the king's wrath.

3:1 ninety feet tall and nine feet wide: Aramaic 60 cubits [27 meters] tall and 6 cubits [2.7 meters] wide. • The plain of Dura might be the plain adjacent to the city of Babylon, or the Aramaic term might refer to the magnificent outer wall of Babylon described by the Greek historian Herodotus. • statue: Literally image.

3:2 The various classes of people were all governmental officials.

3:3 all these officials: Literally the high officers, officials, governors, advisers, treasurers, judges, magistrates, and all the provincial officials.

3:5 The identification of some of these musical instruments is uncertain. Pipes could be rendered "drums," or possibly this was a word of musical direction that indicated being "in harmony" with the other instruments.

gold statue. ⁶Anyone who refuses to obey will immediately be thrown into a blazing furnace."

⁷So at the sound of the musical instruments, all the people, whatever their race or nation or language, bowed to the ground and worshiped the gold statue that King Nebuchadnezzar had set up.

¹³Then Nebuchadnezzar flew into a rage and ordered that Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego be brought before him. When they were brought in, ¹⁴Nebuchadnezzar said to them, "Is it true, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, that you refuse to serve my gods or to worship the gold statue I have set up? ¹⁵I will give you one more chance to bow down and worship the statue I have made when you hear the sound of the musical instruments. But if you refuse, you will be thrown immediately into the blazing furnace. And then what god will be able to rescue you from my power?"

¹⁶Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego replied, "O Nebuchadnezzar, we do not need to defend ourselves before you. ¹⁷If we are thrown into the blazing furnace, the God whom we serve is able to save us. He will rescue us from your power, Your Majesty. ¹⁸But even if he doesn't, we want to make it clear to you, Your Majesty, that we will never serve your gods or worship the gold statue you have set up."

The Blazing Furnace

¹⁹Nebuchadnezzar was so furious with Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego that his face became distorted with rage. He commanded that the furnace be heated seven times hotter than usual. ²⁰Then he ordered some of the strongest men of his army to bind Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego and throw them into the blazing furnace. ²¹So they tied them up and threw them into the furnace, fully dressed in their pants, turbans, robes, and other garments. ²²And because the king, in his anger, had demanded such a hot fire in the furnace, the flames killed the soldiers as they threw the three men in. ²³So Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, securely tied, fell into the roaring flames.

²⁴But suddenly, Nebuchadnezzar jumped up in amazement and exclaimed to his advisers, "Didn't we tie up three men and throw them into the furnace?"

"Yes, Your Majesty, we certainly did," they replied.

²⁵"Look!" Nebuchadnezzar shouted. "I see four men, unbound, walking around in the fire unharmed! And the fourth looks like a god!"

²⁶Then Nebuchadnezzar came as close as he could to the door of the flaming furnace and shouted: "Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, servants of the Most High God, come out! Come here!"

So Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego stepped out of the fire. ²⁷Then the high officers, officials, governors, and advisers crowded around them and saw that the fire had not touched them. Not a hair on

Nebuchadnezzar Praises God

²⁸Then Nebuchadnezzar said, "Praise to the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego! He sent his angel to rescue his servants who trusted in him. They defied the king's command and were willing to die rather than serve or worship any god except their own God. ²⁹Therefore, I make this decree: If any people, whatever their race or nation or language, speak a word against the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, they will be torn limb from limb, and their houses will be turned into heaps of rubble. There is no other god who can rescue like this!"

³⁰Then the king promoted Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego to even higher positions in the province of Babylon.

Nebuchadnezzar's Dream about a Tree

4 King Nebuchadnezzar sent this message to the people of every race and nation and language throughout the world:

"Peace and prosperity to you!

²"I want you all to know about the miraculous signs and wonders the Most High God has performed for me.

³ How great are his signs, how powerful his wonders!
His kingdom will last forever, his rule through all generations.

⁴"I, Nebuchadnezzar, was living in my palace in comfort and prosperity. ⁵But one night I had a dream that frightened me; I saw visions that terrified me as I lay in my bed. ⁶So I issued an order calling in all the wise men of Babylon, so they could tell me what my dream meant.

King Nebuchadnezzar II reigned over Babylon from 605 to 562 BC. He extended and secured the empire of his father, Nabopolassar (626-605 BC). Beyond the scriptural record, many ancient Babylonian documents report Nebuchadnezzar's accomplishments.

In 626 BC, Babylon, like Judah, was under the domination of Assyria, but in that year Nabopolassar began a revolt that would change the world. In 612 BC, the Babylonians captured Nineveh, Assyria's capital, and again defeated the Assyrians at Haran in 609 BC. By the time of this battle, Nabopolassar's son Nebuchadnezzar played a leading role in the army. In 605 BC, Nebuchadnezzar defeated the remnant of the Assyrian army at Carchemish; this victory also pushed the Egyptians back within their borders. In the same year, Nabopolassar died and his son became king.

Following his victory at Carchemish in 605 BC, Nebuchadnezzar conquered Syria and surrounding areas, including Judah. In that year, Nebuchadnezzar besieged Jerusalem for the first time (1:1-2; 2 Kgs 24:1). He took away a number of the Temple vessels and some of the leading young citizens of Judah, including Daniel and his three friends. Nebuchadnezzar captured Jerusalem again in 597 BC (2 Kgs 24:10-17). He later besieged Jerusalem in 588 BC and destroyed the city and Temple in 586 BC, exiling most of the remaining people (2 Kgs 25:1-21).

The most detailed and interesting description of Nebuchadnezzar is found in Daniel. He brought Daniel and his friends to Babylon in order to educate them in the ways of Babylonia, but God used Daniel to teach Nebuchadnezzar about himself. Nebuchadnezzar recognized the Lord's great power and wisdom, though he probably never worshiped the true God exclusively. After being humbled for his great pride (4:28-33), Nebuchadnezzar acknowledged the Lord's exclusive sovereignty and power (4:34-37).

3:28 The king was surprised that God could rescue his people, but the three Hebrew men knew that their God could deliver them (3:17).

3:30 promoted: A related word is used in Gen 39:2. The men were rewarded for their righteousness and their faithfulness to the Lord.

4:1-37 In his pride, King Nebuchadnezzar convinced himself that he had built Babylon (4:30; cp. Gen 11:1-9). He disregarded the warning of the Most High God (4:24-27). He had still not learned the lesson God was teaching him through these experiences, that the God of Daniel stands outside the world of time and space, and no human is equal to him. So God's decree of judgment fell upon Nebuchadnezzar (4:17, 25-26; see Prov 16:18).

4:1-3 Verses 4:1-3 are numbered 3:31-33 in the Aramaic text.

4:4-37 Verses 4:4-37 are numbered 4:1-34 in the Aramaic text.

4:4 God did not allow the king to remain in the comfort and prosperity of his palace; injustice and oppression were in the city (4:27), and the king was full of pride (4:30).

4:5 Nebuchadnezzar's dream disrupted the false peace and serenity of the king's misguided life.

⁷When all the magicians, enchanters, astrologers, and fortune-tellers came in, I told them the dream, but they could not tell me what it meant. ⁸At last Daniel came in before me, and I told him the dream. (He was named Belteshazzar after my god, and the spirit of the holy gods is in him.)

⁹"I said to him, 'Belteshazzar, chief of the magicians, I know that the spirit of the holy gods is in you and that no mystery is too great for you to solve. Now tell me what my dream means.

¹⁰" 'While I was lying in my bed, this is what I dreamed. I saw a large tree in the middle of the earth. ¹¹The tree grew very tall and strong, reaching high into the heavens for all the world to see. ¹²It had fresh green leaves, and it was loaded with fruit for all to eat. Wild animals lived in its shade, and birds nested in its branches. All the world was fed from this tree.

¹³" 'Then as I lay there dreaming, I saw a messenger, a holy one, coming down from heaven. ¹⁴The messenger shouted,

"Cut down the tree and lop off its branches!

Shake off its leaves and scatter its fruit!

Chase the wild animals from its shade and the birds from its branches.

¹⁵ But leave the stump and the roots in the ground, bound with a band of iron and bronze and surrounded by tender grass.

Now let him be drenched with the dew of heaven, and let him live with the wild animals among the plants of the field.

¹⁶ For seven periods of time, let him have the mind of a wild animal instead of the mind of a human.

¹⁷ For this has been decreed by the messengers; it is commanded by the holy ones, so that everyone may know that the Most High rules over the kingdoms of the world. He gives them to anyone he chooses—even to the lowliest of people."

¹⁸" 'Belteshazzar, that was the dream that I, King Nebuchadnezzar, had. Now tell me what it means, for none of the wise men of my kingdom can do so. But you can tell me because the spirit of the holy gods is in you.'

Daniel Explains the Dream

¹⁹"Upon hearing this, Daniel (also known as Belteshazzar) was overcome for a time, frightened by the meaning of the dream. Then the king said to him, 'Belteshazzar, don't be alarmed by the dream and what it means.'

"Belteshazzar replied, 'I wish the events foreshadowed in this dream would happen to your enemies, my lord, and not to you! ²⁰The tree you saw was growing very tall and strong, reaching high into the heavens for all the world to see. ²¹It had fresh green leaves and was loaded with fruit for all to eat. Wild animals lived in its shade, and birds nested in its branches. ²²That tree, Your Majesty, is you. For you have grown strong and great; your greatness reaches up to heaven, and your rule to the ends of the earth.

²³" 'Then you saw a messenger, a holy one, coming down from heaven and

Their dream manuals failed them (see note on 2:4). • For the list of state advisers see also note on 2:2. There was some overlap in these vocations. • astrologers: Or Chaldeans (see also 2:5, 10; 3:8; 5:7, 11, 30).

4:8-9 At last: Nebuchadnezzar appealed first to his Babylonian advisers; in spite of his high position, Daniel, an exiled Jew, was a last resort. • spirit of the holy gods is in him: See 2:47; cp. 5:11. Despite his previous experience of the Most High God, Nebuchadnezzar still believed in many gods. In Egypt, Pharaoh had asserted the same thing of Joseph (Gen 41:37-38). It was the Most High God who assisted Daniel (4:24). Nevertheless, for the great king to say that Daniel had the spirit of the holy gods in him showed great respect and helps to explain Daniel's immunity from harassment (see ch 3).

4:11 The tree . . . reaching high into the heavens possibly alludes to the Tower of Babel (Gen 11:1-9).

4:13 a messenger: Literally a watcher; also in 4:23. • a holy one: The term "holy" is not widely used in the Semitic languages outside of the Bible. It simply refers to that which is out of the ordinary or non-human. Nebuchadnezzar was most probably using it that way here.

4:14-17 The messenger had full authority as the representative of the Most High to announce God's decrees and demand that they be fulfilled.

4:16 Seven periods of time may refer to a seven-year period (cp. 7:25; 9:24-25). • mind of a wild animal: See 4:31-33.

4:17 the messengers: Literally the watchers. • the Most High rules: God distributes kingship and kingdoms to whomever he will, even to the lowliest (e.g., Joseph, Gen 41:41-57; David, 1 Sam 16—2 Sam 5).

4:22 The tree is a haven of sustenance, rest, and safety for the world (cp. Gen 2:15-17; Rev 22:14). • your greatness reaches up to heaven: Cp. Gen 11:1-9.

4:23 Cut down the tree: The tree must be cut down because of Nebuchadnezzar's pride (4:27-30).

saying, "Cut down the tree and destroy it. But leave the stump and the roots in the ground, bound with a band of iron and bronze and surrounded by tender grass. Let him be drenched with the dew of heaven. Let him live with the animals of the field for seven periods of time."

24" "This is what the dream means, Your Majesty, and what the Most High has declared will happen to my lord the king. 25You will be driven from human society, and you will live in the fields with the wild animals. You will eat grass like a cow, and you will be drenched with the dew of heaven. Seven periods of time will pass while you live this way, until you learn that the Most High rules over the kingdoms of the world and gives them to anyone he chooses. 26But the stump and roots of the tree were left in the ground. This means that you will receive your kingdom back again when you have learned that heaven rules.

27" "King Nebuchadnezzar, please accept my advice. Stop sinning and do what is right. Break from your wicked past and be merciful to the poor. Perhaps then you will continue to prosper."

The Dream's Fulfillment

28" But all these things did happen to King Nebuchadnezzar. 29Twelve months later he was taking a walk on the flat roof of the royal palace in Babylon. 30As he looked out across the city, he said, 'Look at this great city of Babylon! By my own mighty power, I have built this beautiful city as my royal residence to display my majestic splendor.'

31" While these words were still in his mouth, a voice called down from heaven, 'O King Nebuchadnezzar, this message is for you! You are no longer ruler of this kingdom. 32You will be driven from human society. You will live in the fields with the wild animals, and you will eat grass like a cow. Seven periods of time will pass while you live this way, until you learn that the Most High rules over the kingdoms of the world and gives them to anyone he chooses.'

33" That same hour the judgment was fulfilled, and Nebuchadnezzar was driven from human society. He ate grass like a cow, and he was drenched with the dew of heaven. He lived this way until his hair was as long as eagles' feathers and his nails were like birds' claws.

Nebuchadnezzar Praises God

34" After this time had passed, I, Nebuchadnezzar, looked up to heaven. My sanity returned, and I praised and worshiped the Most High and honored the one who lives forever.

His rule is everlasting, and his kingdom is eternal.

35 All the people of the earth are nothing compared to him.

He does as he pleases among the angels of heaven and among the people of the earth.
No one can stop him or say to him,
'What do you mean by doing these things?'

36" When my sanity returned to me, so did my honor and glory and kingdom. My advisers and nobles sought me out, and I was restored as head of my kingdom, with even greater honor than before.

37" Now I, Nebuchadnezzar, praise and glorify and honor the King of heaven. All his acts are just and true, and he is able to humble the proud."

4:25-26 until you learn that the Most High rules: God's goal was proper recognition of God's rule.

4:27 Stop sinning and do what is right: Righteousness and justice exalt a nation and extend the reign of a king; the lack of it dooms a people. Daniel humbly pled with the king to change his ways. • be merciful to the poor: This was a requirement of God's law (Exod 23:6-11; Deut 15:10-11; Prov 29:14; 31:9) as well as Babylon's. A former great king of Babylon, Hammurabi (about 1792–1750 bc), claimed to have been charged by his god Marduk to shepherd and protect the orphaned, the widowed, and the oppressed. • Perhaps then: Daniel recognized that God was free to act or not act (cp. 3:16-18); because he is a merciful God, he might take pity on the condemned king (cp. Exod 32:30; 1 Sam 14:6; 2 Sam 12:22; Joel 2:14; Amos 5:15; Zeph 2:3; 2 Tim 2:25).

4:28-33 Because Daniel's warning went unheeded, the dream became reality.

4:30 The city of Babylon had magnificent walls covered with royal blue ceramic tile and gold-colored lions and dragons. The Hanging Gardens of Babylon were also part of the city's splendor, as was the dazzling Ishtar Gate. The king recognized all this as a reflection of his own glory and power, not as a gift of the Most High God.

4:32 The king who took Israel into exile for seventy years experienced his own exile for seven periods of time until he was purified of his pride.

4:33 This disease, called boanthropy, causes a person to behave like an ox. Several ancient sources lend support to this account, and the king's annals are notably empty from 582 to 575 bc.

4:34-37 Nebuchadnezzar now acknowledged and submitted to the higher authority of the Most High, the King of heaven (see note on 4:25-26).

4:35 He does as he pleases: God has absolute power in heaven and on earth.

4:37 The Most High God is the King of heaven as well as of earth. Human pride has no place before him, even that of the greatest of human kings.

Demise of the Head of Gold (5:1-30)Belshazzar's Sacrilegious Debauchery

5 Many years later King Belshazzar gave a great feast for 1,000 of his nobles, and he drank wine with them. ²While Belshazzar was drinking the wine, he gave orders to bring in the gold and silver cups that his predecessor, Nebuchadnezzar, had taken from the Temple in Jerusalem. He wanted to drink from them with his nobles, his wives, and his concubines. ³So they brought these gold cups taken from the Temple, the house of God in Jerusalem, and the king and his nobles, his wives, and his concubines drank from them. ⁴While they drank from them they praised their idols made of gold, silver, bronze, iron, wood, and stone.

The Writing on the Wall

⁵Suddenly, they saw the fingers of a human hand writing on the plaster wall of the king's palace, near the lampstand. The king himself saw the hand as it wrote, ⁶and his face turned pale with fright. His knees knocked together in fear and his legs gave way beneath him.

⁷The king shouted for the enchanters, astrologers, and fortune-tellers to be brought before him. He said to these wise men of Babylon, "Whoever can read this writing and tell me what it means will be dressed in purple robes of royal honor and will have a gold chain placed around his neck. He will become the third highest ruler in the kingdom!"

⁸But when all the king's wise men had come in, none of them could read the writing or tell him what it meant. ⁹So the king grew even more alarmed, and his face turned pale. His nobles, too, were shaken.

¹⁰But when the queen mother heard what was happening, she hurried to the banquet hall. She said to Belshazzar, "Long live the king! Don't be so pale and frightened. ¹¹There is a man in your kingdom who has within him the spirit of the holy gods. During Nebuchadnezzar's reign, this man was found to have insight, understanding, and wisdom like that of the gods. Your predecessor, the king—your predecessor King Nebuchadnezzar—made him chief over all the magicians, enchanters, astrologers, and fortune-tellers of Babylon. ¹²This man Daniel, whom the king named Belteshazzar, has exceptional ability and is filled with divine knowledge and understanding. He can interpret dreams, explain riddles, and solve difficult problems. Call for Daniel, and he will tell you what the writing means."

Daniel Explains the Writing

¹³So Daniel was brought in before the king. The king asked him, "Are you Daniel, one of the exiles brought from Judah by my predecessor, King Nebuchadnezzar? ¹⁴I have heard that you have the spirit of the gods within you and that you are filled with insight, understanding, and wisdom. ¹⁵My wise men and enchanters have tried to read the words on the wall and tell me their

5:1-30 Earthly kingdoms all pass away. As Nebuchadnezzar's dream implied, Babylon would pass away and a new sovereign kingdom would take its place (2:39). After Nebuchadnezzar's death in 562 BC, violence and debauchery increased in the palaces of Babylon until, during Belshazzar's feast in 539 BC, even God's holy vessels were polluted and defiled. God's judgment came with lightning swiftness that night (5:30), and the next kingdom took over (see 2:32, 39; 5:31).

5:1 Many years later: This chapter opens in October 539 BC (see note on 5:30). • The name Belshazzar means "Bel Protects [the King]" (Bel was a Babylonian god). Nabonidus (556–539 BC) placed his son Belshazzar on the Babylonian throne around 553 BC as ruler in his stead. Then, taking the idols of Babylon with him, Nabonidus moved to Teima in northwest Arabia, where he stayed for ten years. He returned to Babylon only in the unsuccessful attempt to oppose the Persians.

5:2-4 The gold and silver cups from the Temple in Jerusalem had been taken into captivity along with the people (1:2), but previous Babylonian kings had not defiled them. They were eventually returned to Jerusalem (Ezra 1:7-11). • predecessor (literally father; also in 5:11, 13, 18): Belshazzar was the oldest son of Nabonidus; his relationship with Nebuchadnezzar is uncertain. • While they drank from them they praised their idols: If Belshazzar had ever known of the honor Nebuchadnezzar had shown toward the Most High God decades earlier (4:34-37), he had long forgotten it. Two ancient Greek historians, Herodotus and Xenophon, record the all-night festivities, dancing, and excessive drinking that took place as the city was taken by Persia.

5:5-6 The supernatural hand shocked and terrified the carousers. Yet Belshazzar remained unrepentant (5:29; cp. Jer 38:19-24; Acts 24:25).

5:7 astrologers: Or Chaldeans; also in 5:11. • Purple robes and a gold chain are associated with royalty and power.

• third highest: After Nabonidus and Belshazzar himself (see note on 5:1). For many years the existence of Nabonidus was unknown from non-biblical sources, and scholars puzzled over why Belshazzar did not offer Daniel the second highest position. This provides further evidence of Daniel's historical authenticity.

5:8 As before, the Babylonian wise men were unable to interpret the omen (cp. 2:4-11; 4:7; 5:15).

5:10 the queen mother (literally the queen): She was probably Belshazzar's mother, not his wife. • Long live the king! was the standard greeting (also in 2:4); ironically, Belshazzar would die that night (5:30). • Don't be so pale and frightened: Cp. 1 Sam 28:20-25.

5:11-12 The queen mother reasoned that someone who had the spirit of the holy gods and could interpret dreams (see 1:17) should also be able to interpret the writing.

5:15 None of the Babylonian wise men could break the heavenly code meaning, but they cannot do it. ¹⁶I am told that you can give interpretations and solve difficult problems. If you can read these words and tell me their meaning, you will be clothed in purple robes of royal honor, and you will have a gold chain placed around your neck. You will become the third highest ruler in the kingdom."

¹⁷Daniel answered the king, "Keep your gifts or give them to someone else, but I will tell you what the writing means. ¹⁸Your Majesty, the Most High God gave sovereignty, majesty, glory, and honor to your predecessor, Nebuchadnezzar. ¹⁹He made him so great that people of all races and nations and languages trembled before him in fear. He killed those he wanted to kill and spared those he wanted to spare. He honored those he wanted to honor and disgraced those he wanted to disgrace. ²⁰But when his heart and mind were puffed up with arrogance, he was brought down from his royal throne and stripped of his glory. ²¹He was driven from human society. He was given the mind of a wild animal, and he lived among the wild donkeys. He ate grass like a cow, and he was drenched with the dew of heaven, until he learned that the Most High God rules over the kingdoms of the world and appoints anyone he desires to rule over them.

²²"You are his successor, O Belshazzar, and you knew all this, yet you have not humbled yourself. ²³For you have proudly defied the Lord of heaven and have had these cups from his Temple brought before you. You and your nobles and your wives and concubines have been drinking wine from them while praising gods of silver, gold, bronze, iron, wood, and stone—gods that neither see nor hear nor know anything at all. But you have not honored the God who gives you the breath of life and controls your destiny! ²⁴So God has sent this hand to write this message.

▲ The Persian Empire, 539–331 BC (5:30–6:1; 8:3–4). Cyrus II seized BABYLON and annexed the Babylonian empire in 539 BC, creating the greatest empire history had ever seen (see 1 Chr 36:23; Ezra 1:2). Areas brought into the empire after the time of Daniel include THRACE and EGYPT. The Persian empire lasted, though not in its full extent, until Alexander defeated the Persian army in 331 BC. • During the Persian period, Israel was called the land BEYOND THE RIVER (see notes on Ezra 4:10; Neh 2:7).

(cp. 2:27; 4:7). Only true wise men or prophets can interpret God's messages. Daniel knew that it was the Spirit of God who enabled him to do so (cp. 2:28; 5:24).

5:17 Daniel interpreted the writing, but required no pay from the wicked king (cp. Gen 14:21–24; 2 Kgs 5:15–16).

5:18–21 Daniel presented Nebuchadnezzar as an object lesson that should have guided his successors. Instead, Belshazzar had made the same mistake of exalting himself and dishonoring the Most High God.

5:20 A rebel against God characteristically has a heart and mind that are puffed up (or hardened) with arrogance (see Exod 7:13; Josh 11:20; Isa 14:3–5). Nebuchadnezzar was brought down when he became puffed up with arrogance, and Belshazzar would be as well.

5:21 the Most High God rules . . . and appoints anyone he desires: God had taught Nebuchadnezzar this lesson, and it was the heart of God's message to Belshazzar. God would appoint a new ruler that very night (5:30–31).

5:22 successor (literally son): See note on 5:24.

²⁵"This is the message that was written: MENE, MENE, TEKEL, and PARSIN. ²⁶This is what these words mean:

Mene means 'numbered'—God has numbered the days of your reign and has brought it to an end.

²⁷*Tekel* means 'weighed'—you have been weighed on the balances and have not measured up.

²⁸*Parsin* means 'divided'—your kingdom has been divided and given to the Medes and Persians."

²⁹Then at Belshazzar's command, Daniel was dressed in purple robes, a gold chain was hung around his neck, and he was proclaimed the third highest ruler in the kingdom.

³⁰That very night Belshazzar, the Babylonian king, was killed.

³¹And Darius the Mede took over the kingdom at the age of sixty-two.

Daniel in the Lions' Den (6:1-28)

Daniel's Integrity and Success

6 Darius the Mede decided to divide the kingdom into 120 provinces, and he appointed a high officer to rule over each province. ²The king also chose Daniel and two others as administrators to supervise the high officers and protect the king's interests. ³Daniel soon proved himself more capable than all the other administrators and high officers. Because of Daniel's great ability, the king made plans to place him over the entire empire.

⁴Then the other administrators and high officers began searching for some fault in the way Daniel was handling government affairs, but they couldn't find anything to criticize or condemn. He was faithful, always responsible, and completely trustworthy. ⁵So they concluded, "Our only chance of finding grounds for accusing Daniel will be in connection with the rules of his religion."

The King Falls into a Trap

⁶So the administrators and high officers went to the king and said, "Long live King Darius! ⁷We are all in agreement—we administrators, officials, high officers, advisers, and governors—that the king should make a law that will be strictly enforced. Give orders that for the next thirty days any person who prays to anyone, divine or human—except to you, Your Majesty—will be thrown into the den of lions. ⁸And now, Your Majesty, issue and sign this law so it cannot be changed, an official law of the Medes and Persians that cannot be revoked." ⁹So King Darius signed the law.

¹⁰But when Daniel learned that the law had been signed, he went home and knelt

5:25-28 MENE, MENE, TEKEL, and PARSIN: These Aramaic units of measure are used on a balance to weigh quantities of goods being bought and sold. Belshazzar knew the words, but Daniel explained what they meant in this context. The God of Israel measures kings and kingdoms in the balances of justice and righteousness (cp. 4:27).

5:26 Mene means 'numbered': In this context, it means "reckoned, scrutinized."

5:27 Tekel means 'weighed'—you . . . have not measured up: Babylon's king would be destroyed because he did not measure up to God's demand for righteousness and mercy (see 4:27; 5:22-24).

5:28 Parsin (Aramaic Peres, the singular of Parsin) means 'divided' (or halved): The Babylonian empire would be divided and given to two peoples, the Medes and the Persians.

5:29 Instead of responding to the message, Belshazzar honored Daniel. • proclaimed the third highest ruler: Daniel did not desire the honor, and in a few hours it would be meaningless. God would reward Daniel in due time (12:13).

5:30 Babylonian: Or Chaldean. • was killed: The Persians and Medes conquered Babylon in October 539 BC. The event ushered in a new era of Persian dominance.

5:31 Verse 5:31 is numbered 6:1 in the Aramaic text. • Darius the Mede is distinct from later Persian kings named Darius (see chart, p. 797). Cyrus the Great conquered Babylon in 539 BC, and there is no mention of a Darius the Mede in other sources. Two solutions are possible: (1) Cyrus the Great might have appointed Darius the Mede to rule as "King of Babylon" in his place for a little over a year (cp. 6:28; 9:1; 11:1); or (2) Darius and Cyrus might have been the same man bearing two throne names—one name from the Medes, the other from the Persians (see also note on 6:28). The portrayal of Darius in ch 6 suggests that he was in fact Cyrus, the ruler of all Media, Persia, and Babylonia.

6:1-28 God rescued and delivered his faithful servant Daniel (5:23; 6:20), whereas Belshazzar's dead gods could not save him. • Verses 6:1-28 are numbered 6:2-29 in the Aramaic text.

6:2 The three administrators placed over the whole territory reported directly to the king. • and protect the king's interests: Rebels could bring down the empire, so these administrators had to be absolutely trustworthy.

6:3-5 Daniel's integrity was unassailable and his abilities unmatched, so the envious administrators found fault with Daniel's strongest point, his faithful worship of God. Daniel was about 80-85 years old at this time. He had led an exemplary life in Babylon.

6:3 the king made plans to place him over the entire empire: Cp. 2:48-49; 3:30; Gen 41:40-43.

6:5 rules of his religion: Literally law [or requirements] of his God (cp. 6:8, 12, 15; Ezra 7:12, 14, 25).

6:7 the king should make a law: The request was couched as an appeal to truth and justice, but it was really an appeal to the king's pride, with ulterior motives (6:4-5). • We already know that Daniel would not break God's law to obey a human order (cp. 1:5-8; 3:4-12).

6:8 cannot be changed . . . cannot be revoked: Cp. Esth 1:19. Human laws all pass away, but God's law lasts forever (Ps 93:5; 119:152). This devotion to established laws was one of the special features of the Persian empire. Finally, the profusion of laws so swamped them in bureaucracy that they could not function efficiently.

6:10-11 as usual: Daniel's regular prayer time established him in the daily down as usual in his upstairs room, with its windows open toward Jerusalem. He prayed three times a day, just as he had always done, giving thanks to his God. ¹¹Then the officials went together to Daniel's house and found him praying and asking for God's help. ¹²So they went straight to the king and reminded him about his law. "Did you not sign a law that for the next thirty days any person who prays to anyone, divine or human—except to you, Your Majesty—will be thrown into the den of lions?"

"Yes," the king replied, "that decision stands; it is an official law of the Medes and Persians that cannot be revoked."

¹³Then they told the king, "That man Daniel, one of the captives from Judah, is ignoring you and your law. He still prays to his God three times a day."

God Rescues Daniel

¹⁴Hearing this, the king was deeply troubled, and he tried to think of a way to save Daniel. He spent the rest of the day looking for a way to get Daniel out of this predicament.

¹⁵In the evening the men went together to the king and said, "Your Majesty, you know that according to the law of the Medes and the Persians, no law that the king signs can be changed."

¹⁶So at last the king gave orders for Daniel to be arrested and thrown into the den of lions. The king said to him, "May your God, whom you serve so faithfully, rescue you."

¹⁷A stone was brought and placed over the mouth of the den. The king sealed the stone with his own royal seal and the seals of his nobles, so that no one could rescue Daniel. ¹⁸Then the king returned to his palace and spent the night fasting. He refused his usual entertainment and couldn't sleep at all that night.

¹⁹Very early the next morning, the king got up and hurried out to the lions' den. ²⁰When he got there, he called out in anguish, "Daniel, servant of the living God! Was your God, whom you serve so faithfully, able to rescue you from the lions?"

²¹Daniel answered, "Long live the king! ²²My God sent his angel to shut the lions' mouths so that they would not hurt me, for I have been found innocent in his sight. And I have not wronged you, Your Majesty."

²³The king was overjoyed and ordered that Daniel be lifted from the den. Not a scratch was found on him, for he had trusted in his God.

²⁴Then the king gave orders to arrest the men who had maliciously accused Daniel. He had them thrown into the lions' den, along with their wives and children. The lions leaped on them and tore them apart before they even hit the floor of the den.

Darius Praises God

²⁵Then King Darius sent this message to the people of every race and nation and language throughout the world:

"Peace and prosperity to you!

²⁶"I decree that everyone throughout my kingdom should tremble with fear before the God of Daniel.

For he is the living God,
and he will endure forever.

His kingdom will never be destroyed, and his rule will never end.

²⁷ He rescues and saves his people;
he performs miraculous signs and wonders in the heavens and on earth.
He has rescued Daniel from the power of the lions."

worship of God. • Jerusalem was God's chosen city (1 Kgs 11:36). Though the Temple was gone, it was unthinkable to forget Jerusalem (Ps 137:5-6). Some day, the Temple would be rebuilt (Isa 2:2-4; 44:28).

6:14 The king had not thought through all the consequences of signing the law. • deeply troubled: Or very angry for being tricked. He did not want to execute his best servant.

6:16 Caught in the officials' trap, the king had to carry out the law, but he respected Daniel's integrity in worshipping his God (cp. 3:15; 6:20).

6:17 his own royal seal and the seals of his nobles: The multiple sealing of the lions' den made a covert rescue impossible. Neither the king nor the officials could open the den without breaking the other seals so that the other parties would know about it.

6:18 The king spent the night fasting because he mourned over what he had done and hoped that Daniel's God would rescue him. The king couldn't sleep at all because he knew that Daniel was an innocent and noble man.

6:19 Very early: Literally at dawn, the earliest possible hour.

6:20 Was your God . . . able? There was no question about whether Daniel had served God faithfully, so if God didn't rescue him it would have told the king that God was not able to do so.

• living God: The king probably knew what Daniel's God had done during the reigns of Nebuchadnezzar and Belshazzar. The term living God is particularly used in the Bible to contrast the Lord with lifeless idols (see, e.g., Deut 5:26; Josh 3:10; Isa 37:17-18).

6:21-22 My God sent his angel: The law of the Medes and Persians proved impotent. God has the power to defend his faithful servant and his own reputation.

6:25-27 King Darius sent this message: As Nebuchadnezzar had done previously (cp. 3:28-29; 4:34-37), the current ruler of the civilized world testified to all his subjects that the God of Daniel is the living God with real power and a kingdom that will never be destroyed.

6:27 He rescues and saves. . . . He has rescued Daniel: This proclamation moves from the general to the specific. Daniel was a specific example of God's rescuing power. God continues to act on behalf of his people, just as he has always done.

²⁸So Daniel prospered during the reign of Darius and the reign of Cyrus the Persian.

2. DANIEL'S VISIONS FOR THE PRESENT AND FUTURE (7:1–12:13)

Israel and the Nations (7:1-28)

Daniel's Vision of Four Beasts

7 Earlier, during the first year of King Belshazzar's reign in Babylon, Daniel had a dream and saw visions as he lay in his bed. He wrote down the dream, and this is what he saw.

²In my vision that night, I, Daniel, saw a great storm churning the surface of a great sea, with strong winds blowing from every direction. ³Then four huge beasts came up out of the water, each different from the others.

⁴The first beast was like a lion with eagles' wings. As I watched, its wings were pulled off, and it was left standing with its two hind feet on the ground, like a human being. And it was given a human mind.

⁵Then I saw a second beast, and it looked like a bear. It was rearing up on one side, and it had three ribs in its mouth between its teeth. And I heard a voice saying to it, "Get up! Devour the flesh of many people!"

⁶Then the third of these strange beasts

appeared, and it looked like a leopard. It had four bird's wings on its back, and it had four heads. Great authority was given to this beast.

⁷Then in my vision that night, I saw a fourth beast—terrifying, dreadful, and very strong. It devoured and crushed its victims with huge iron teeth and trampled their remains beneath its feet. It was different from any of the other beasts, and it had ten horns.

⁸As I was looking at the horns, suddenly another small horn appeared among them. Three of the first horns were torn out by the roots to make room for it. This little horn had eyes like human eyes and a mouth that was boasting arrogantly.

⁹I watched as thrones were put in place and the Ancient One sat down to judge.

His clothing was as white as snow,
his hair like purest wool.

He sat on a fiery throne with wheels of blazing fire,

¹⁰and a river of fire was pouring out, flowing from his presence.

Millions of angels ministered to him;
many millions stood to attend him.

6:28 the reign of Darius and the reign of Cyrus the Persian: Or the reign of Darius, that is, the reign of Cyrus the Persian. Such usage of "and" is common in Aramaic; many believe that Cyrus and Darius were one man (see note on 5:31).

7:1–12:13 The second half of the book features visions given to Daniel. These visions showed Daniel and his people, both those in exile and those who had returned to Judea, that the future is securely in God's hands. All empires will ultimately fall before the Kingdom of Heaven. Daniel's people will be rescued from all their troubles (12:1-3), and God will resurrect and judge all humankind (12:13). Daniel interpreted these visions with help from divine messengers (7:10; 8:15; 9:22; 10:14; 12:7).

7:1-28 This chapter contains a terrifying vision (7:2-14) and its interpretation (7:17-27). The sequence of kingdoms recalls Nebuchadnezzar's dream some forty-five years earlier (2:1-45).

7:1 Earlier: This vision occurred before the events in ch 6; the first year of King Belshazzar's reign was 556 bc (or perhaps as late as 553 bc). Belshazzar was co-regent with his father, Nabonidus. • Daniel wrote down this vision.

7:2 The sea is also an image of evil or chaos in the OT (see Ps 89:10; Isa 5:30; 57:20), as it was throughout the ancient Near East.

7:3-7 The kingdoms of the world are represented as four huge beasts (7:17; cp. Rev 13:1-2).

7:4 The lion and eagle are dignified rulers in their realms. Lions featured prominently in ancient art and architecture. Nebuchadnezzar and Babylon are represented as a lion and an eagle attacking Edom (Jer 49:19, 22). • This beast became like a human being and was given a human mind: Nebuchadnezzar had taken on the mind of a beast (4:16, 32, 33), but then was restored and learned to acknowledge the Most High God (4:34-37).

7:5 The second beast probably represents Persia (2:34-40; 6:9, 12, 15; 8:20). • The bear was known for its vicious attacks (Prov 28:15). Three ribs may refer to Babylon, Media, and Lydia, all of whom Cyrus conquered. • many people: God called Cyrus and Persia to conquer many nations (Isa 41:2-3; 44:28; 45:1, 13; 46:11).

7:6 The leopard was known for its speed and agility (Hab 1:8). Four bird's wings and four heads indicate the worldwide lightning thrusts of this fierce nation. Greece conformed to this symbolism well, especially under Alexander the Great, whose kingdom was divided into four parts following his death (about 323 bc).

7:7 The fourth beast was different in kind, not just degree. It was made of non-living metal. It was hardly animal; it was impersonal, utterly violent, and merciless, and even its iron teeth were a perfect killing machine. Most commentators, both ancient and modern, find this fourth beast best embodied in the Roman empire and its kings. • ten horns: In this kind of apocalyptic literature, horns can stand for kings, power, and strength.

7:8 Many believe that the fourth kingdom was only partially and preliminarily represented in Rome. Another more brutal kingdom beyond Rome, but like it, would come through the dominion of a final little horn, a human being with great power and arrogance (cp. 8:9-12, 23-25; 9:25-27; 11:36-45; 12:1-7).

7:9-10 The kingdoms of the world are represented by fierce animals; the Kingdom of God is represented by a divine-human figure (also in 7:13-14) and by holy people. • the Ancient One (literally an Ancient of Days; also in 7:13, 22): This name is a circumlocution for God, whose existence preceded all the nations and peoples of the earth. • White . . . hair and clothing represent wisdom and purity. The river of fire speaks of God's purifying presence.

7:10 Taken together, the millions and many millions indicate numbers beyond calculation. • the books: God keeps records and uses them as the basis for his judgment (cp. 10:21; 12:1;

 and the books were opened.

¹¹I continued to watch because I could hear the little horn's boastful speech. I kept watching until the fourth beast was killed and its body was destroyed by fire. ¹²The other three beasts had their authority taken from them, but they were allowed to live a while longer.

The Vision Is Explained

¹⁵I, Daniel, was troubled by all I had seen, and my visions terrified me. ¹⁶So I approached one of those standing beside the throne and asked him what it all meant. He explained it to me like this: ¹⁷"These four huge beasts represent four kingdoms that

The Little Horn (7:8, 11, 20-21, 24-26)

Dan 8:9-12; 9:26-27
 Mark 13:14
 2 Thes 2:5-12
 2 Jn 1:7
 Rev 13:1-10; 20:10

The little horn in Daniel's vision stands for a king, and it has personal features such as human eyes and a mouth. This imagery is characteristic of apocalyptic literature (see Daniel Introduction, "Daniel as Literature," p. 1391). The little horn captures Daniel's attention because of its "boastful speech" and its violent actions against other kings, God's people, and the Most High.

What or who is the little horn? The little horn of 7:8 is closely tied to the figures of evil in 9:27 and 11:40-45. Antiochus IV Epiphanes (8:9-14, 23-25; 11:21-39) has characteristics similar to the little horn of 7:8, but they do not appear to be identical. Ancient and modern interpreters have held that the little horn is the antichrist to come. Some maintain that certain historical persons of the Greek and Roman empires have preliminarily fulfilled the vision (e.g., Antiochus IV Epiphanes, Nero, Caligula, Domitian). According to this view, this being yet to come will be a man, not a demon or Satan.

It is also helpful to see the little horn as representing the embodiment of evil that is directed against God and his people. Some interpreters believe that no single man will fulfill this vision, but that the vision represents the evil forces at work in the world. Others hold that the antichrist has already come. The little horn and the idea of the antichrist do have an ultimate fulfillment, but that is better revealed in the NT (cp. Matt 24:15; Mark 13:14; 2 Thes 2:5-12; 1 John 2:18-22; 4:3; 2 Jn 1:7; Rev 13:1, 5; 16:13-14; 17:11; 19:20-21; 20:10).

This little horn reminds God's people that evil is embodied in an arrogant king and a royal system that violently oppose God and his people. This king usurps the kingdoms of this world (7:8), but his demonic system will not prevail because evil will be destroyed. God's people can take comfort in knowing that this final onslaught and manifestation of evil will be short lived (Rev 12:12) and the works of this hellish kingdom will be demolished (7:11-12). God's chosen leader, the Son of Man installed by the Ancient One (7:9-10, 13-14), will rule by God's divine approval and power, and his reign will prevail in an indestructible kingdom. God's people are encouraged to endure and be faithful. They live in hope of a righteous kingdom in which God will live among his people (Exod 19:5-6; 25:8; Rev 21:3). "The passionate commitment of the LORD of Heaven's Armies will make this happen!" (Isa 9:7).

Exod 32:32; Ps 69:28; 139:16; Mal 3:16;
 Phil 4:3; Rev 20:12, 15; 21:27).

7:11 God's judgment brought about the destruction of the fourth beast . . . by fire.

7:12 a while longer (literally for a season and a time): God, the Judge of the nations, can extend the lives of nations and individuals (cp. 4:27). Defeated nations who have lost their political and military hegemony can continue to live on culturally and ethnically, and can retain their national identities. This happened with the Assyrians, the Babylonians, the Persians, and the Greeks.

7:13-14 This being like a son of man, unlike the arrogant little horn, did not boast and was not violent. He did not violently overthrow other kings, and he received God's favor and blessing. He was led into God's presence and was presented to him. God gave him kingship and a kingdom. This figure is the Messiah, God's chosen and anointed King.

7:13 like a son of man (or like a Son of Man): He was like a human being (cp. 3:25 and note). • His coming with the clouds of heaven suggests that he was a divine being (cp. Ps 68:4; 97:2; Matt 24:30; 26:64; Mark 13:26; 14:62; Luke 21:27; Rev 1:7; 1 Thes 4:17).

7:14 Unlike the rulers and kingdoms of the earth which pass away, his rule is eternal and will never be destroyed. His kingdom is given to the holy people of the Most High (7:27), and it "fills" the earth (2:35, 44-45).

7:15-16 Daniel dared to approach the beings standing beside the throne of God, and he was helped, not harmed.

7:17 beasts represent . . . kingdoms: God gave Daniel a vision of the course of history, a feat no human could accomplish. These kingdoms from the earth (cp. 7:2) are not heavenly kingdoms but human kingdoms of this world.

will arise from the earth. ¹⁸But in the end, the holy people of the Most High will be given the kingdom, and they will rule forever and ever.”

¹⁹Then I wanted to know the true meaning of the fourth beast, the one so different from the others and so terrifying. It had devoured and crushed its victims with iron teeth and bronze claws, trampling their remains beneath its feet. ²⁰I also asked about the ten horns on the fourth beast’s head and the little horn that came up afterward and destroyed three of the other horns. This horn had seemed greater than the others, and it had human eyes and a mouth that was boasting arrogantly. ²¹As I watched, this horn was waging war against God’s holy people and was defeating them, ²²until the Ancient One—the Most High—came and judged in favor of his holy people. Then the time arrived for the holy people to take over the kingdom.

²³Then he said to me, “This fourth beast is the fourth world power that will rule the earth. It will be different from all the others. It will devour the whole world, trampling and crushing everything in its path. ²⁴Its ten horns are ten kings who will rule that empire. Then another king will arise, different from the other ten, who will subdue three of them. ²⁵He will defy the Most High and oppress the holy people of the Most High. He will try to change their sacred festivals and laws, and they will be placed under his control for a time, times, and half a time.

²⁶But then the court will pass judgment, and all his power will be taken away and completely destroyed. ²⁷Then the sovereignty, power, and greatness of all the

The Son of Man (7:13-14)

Matt 24:30; 26:24
Mark 13:26
Luke 21:27
John 12:34
Rev 1:13; 14:14

The Hebrew and Aramaic idiom “son of man” means “human being.” The majestic yet humble figure in 7:13-14 is “like a son of man,” meaning that he looked like a man, but he also appears to be more than merely human. His exact identity is not specified, but his role is clear: The Most High has appointed him to rule an eternal, universal kingdom that will be over all other nations. He also represents his own people, the holy people of the Most High. They will also share in this son of man’s kingdom over all peoples and nations (7:22).

The scene surrounding this son of man indicates his divine characteristics. That he comes “with the clouds of heaven” (7:13) indicates his heavenly origin (cp. Ps 68:4; 97:2; Nah 1:3). The Lord God covered himself with a cloud in the book of Exodus (Exod 13:21-22; 19:9). God’s people will be caught up into the clouds (1 Thes 4:17) at the resurrection as Jesus was received into a cloud at his ascension (Acts 1:9). This son of man receives his kingdom with humility and holiness without arrogantly grasping after it. He is opposite in character to the “little horn” (7:8).

Jesus identifies himself with this Son of Man (Matt 24:30; 25:11; 26:24; Mark 13:26; Luke 21:27; John 12:34; see also Acts 7:56; Heb 2:6; Rev 1:13; 14:14). Revelation 1:7 likewise yokes this figure with Jesus Christ, the one who was pierced for our sins. God the Father has given Jesus all authority and power to rule over all things (7:14; Matt 28:18) and to win people from all the nations and kingdoms of the world (Matt 28:19-20). God’s purpose in calling Abraham was to make a great nation through his people (Gen 12:1-3; cp. Dan 2:44-45), and Jesus fulfilled it.

7:18 The holy people (also in 7:21, 22, 25, 27) are people who belong exclusively to God and share his character. In Daniel’s era it referred to the people of Israel. • Only the Most High God can declare what the end of history will be. Other ancient writers spoke of the ages or eras of earthly history, but none knew how it would all end.

7:19-28 Daniel requested and received more information about the fourth beast, the ten horns, and the little horn.

7:21 The object of the little horn’s hatred and arrogance was God’s holy people. In this, the little horn was like Pharaoh and Haman (see Exod 1:22; Esth 3:8-9; cp. Dan 11:36-40).

7:22 The Ancient One turned the tide of the battle when he judged in favor of his holy people. In God’s time, his people would take over the kingdom with their King (7:13-14).

7:24-25 Its ten horns are ten kings: This number might refer to ten specific individuals, or it might be a symbolic number meaning that this kingdom lasted through the reigns of many kings (cp. Rev 13:1). • Then another king, who corresponds to the “little horn” (7:21), will defy the Most High and oppress the holy people by blaspheming the Lord, trying to interfere with worship of the Lord, trying to make the holy people follow his religion, and subjecting them to constant threats. • a time, times, and half a time: The text is not explicit as to the length of time. Nonetheless, the period of oppression for the holy people would be limited and would end suddenly and unexpectedly.

7:26 God’s court has the authority to pass judgment and the power to remove and destroy this arrogant king.

7:27 When this arrogant king has been destroyed, God’s kingdom will be established forever over all the kingdoms under heaven (cp. Ps 2; Isa 9:6-7). The holy people of the Most High will be officers of God’s kingdom (cp. Luke 22:29-30; 1 Cor 6:2-3; Rev 3:21; 20:4).

²⁸That was the end of the vision. I, Daniel, was terrified by my thoughts and my face was pale with fear, but I kept these things to myself.

Israel's Rescue from a Furious King (8:1-27)
Daniel's Vision of a Ram, a Goat, and a Small Horn

8 During the third year of King Belshazzar's reign, I, Daniel, saw another vision, following the one that had already appeared to me. ²In this vision I was at the fortress of Susa, in the province of Elam, standing beside the Ulai River.

³As I looked up, I saw a ram with two long horns standing beside the river. One of the horns was longer than the other, even though it had grown later than the other one. ⁴The ram butted everything out of his way to the west, to the north, and to the south, and no one could stand against him or help his victims. He did as he pleased and became very great.

⁵While I was watching, suddenly a male goat appeared from the west, crossing the land so swiftly that he didn't even touch the ground. This goat, which had one very large horn between its eyes, ⁶headed toward the two-horned ram that I had seen standing beside the river, rushing at him in a rage. ⁷The goat charged furiously at the ram and struck him, breaking off both his horns. Now the ram was helpless, and the goat knocked him down and trampled him. No one could rescue the ram from the goat's power.

⁸The goat became very powerful. But at

▲ The Greek Empire, 331–323 BC (8:5-8). Alexander the Great ruled Macedonia beginning in 336 BC. He defeated the Persian army at Issus in 333 BC and at Gaugamela in 331 BC, and annexed the area controlled by the Persian Empire. Following Alexander's death in 323 BC, his empire was divided among his generals, among whom were Cassander in Macedonia, Lysimachus near the Black Sea, Antigonos in Asia and Syria, Ptolemy in Egypt, and Seleucus in Babylonia and Persia. The successors of Antigonos gained control of Macedonia, bringing the number of major kingdoms from five to four. These generals and their descendants, particularly the Ptolemies and the Seleucids, were the key powers surrounding Judea from 323 BC down to the Roman period.

8:1-27 This vision expands the vision of ch 7, developing additional symbolism regarding the second and third beasts (7:5-6). Its report about a small horn that arises from the goat has similarities with the "little horn" of 7:8, 20-25; the "ruler" of 9:26-27; and the "despicable man" of 11:21-45.

8:1 The original text from this point through ch 12 is in Hebrew. See note on 2:4. The author probably changes back to Hebrew because he now focuses again (as with 1:1-2:4a) on the holy people, Israel, and their vicissitudes to the end. • The third year of King Belshazzar's reign was around 554–551 BC. It was about two years after the vision of ch 7 and over a decade before the fall of Babylon in 539 BC (5:31).

8:2 Susa, located in the lowlands of the Zagros Mountains, was one of Persia's capital cities (cp. Ezra 4:9; Neh 1:1; Esth 1:2). It was a fortified capital whose architecture was decorated with glazed griffins, winged bulls, and lions. • The Ulai River (or Ulai Gate; also in 8:16) was probably a man-made canal.

8:3-4 the river: Or the gate; also in 8:6. • Two long horns implies that there were two major nations in this kingdom represented by a ram (see 8:20-21).

• God allowed the nation to do as it pleased; God was still in control (cp. Isa 45:1-4).

8:5-12 The symbolism is explained in 8:21-25.

the height of his power, his large horn was broken off. In the large horn's place grew four prominent horns pointing in the four directions of the earth. ⁹Then from one of the prominent horns came a small horn whose power grew very great. It extended toward the south and the east and toward the glorious land of Israel. ¹⁰Its power reached to the heavens, where it attacked the heavenly army, throwing some of the heavenly beings and some of the stars to the ground and trampling them. ¹¹It even challenged the Commander of heaven's army by canceling the daily sacrifices offered to him and by destroying his Temple. ¹²The army of heaven was restrained from responding to this rebellion. So the daily sacrifice was halted, and truth was overthrown. The horn succeeded in everything it did.

¹³Then I heard two holy ones talking to each other. One of them asked, "How long will the events of this vision last? How long will the rebellion that causes desecration stop the daily sacrifices? How long will the Temple and heaven's army be trampled on?"

¹⁴The other replied, "It will take 2,300 evenings and mornings; then the Temple will be made right again."

Gabriel Explains the Vision

¹⁵As I, Daniel, was trying to understand the meaning of this vision, someone who looked like a man stood in front of me.

¹⁶And I heard a human voice calling out from the Ulai River, "Gabriel, tell this man the meaning of his vision."

¹⁷As Gabriel approached the place where I was standing, I became so terrified that I fell with my face to the ground. ¹⁸"Son of man," he said, "you must understand that the events you have seen in your vision relate to the time of the end."

¹⁹While he was speaking, I fainted and lay there with my face to the ground. But Gabriel roused me with a touch and helped me to my feet.

²⁰Then he said, "I am here to tell you what will happen later in the time of wrath. What you have seen pertains to the very end of time. ²¹The two-horned ram represents the kings of Media and Persia. ²²The shaggy male goat represents the king of Greece, and the large horn between his eyes represents the first king of the Greek Empire. ²³The four prominent horns that replaced the one large horn show that the Greek Empire will break into four kingdoms, but none as great as the first.

²⁴"At the end of their rule, when their sin is at its height, a fierce king, a master of intrigue, will rise to power. ²⁵He will become very strong, but not by his own power. He will cause a shocking amount of destruction and succeed in everything he does. He will destroy powerful leaders and devastate

8:10 The heavenly army could refer to (1) actual divine beings, since the "small horn" attempted to destroy Israel's divinely given religion and Israel was protected by God's watchful eye and his armies; and/or (2) the human defenders of Israel that were fighting for God's holy people and the Temple. Both the physical and the spiritual realms were affected by these events.

8:11-12 The meaning of the Hebrew for these verses is uncertain.

8:11 God is the Commander of heaven's army (cp. Josh 5:13-15; 1 Sam 4:4; 1 Kgs 22:19) to whom the daily sacrifices were offered in his Temple, where God's name resided and Israel worshiped its King (Isa 18:7; Ezek 43:6-7). • destroying (literally casting down): The religious function of the Temple was disabled.

8:12 God restrained the heavenly army for reasons known only to him. • The truth of God's law, embodied in true worship, was also overthrown (literally cast down; see note on 8:11).

8:13-14 How long: God's people were called en masse to endure this period to the end. • The Temple would then be made right for its proper religious functions, not rebuilt physically (see 8:11-12; note on 8:26).

8:15-16 The name Gabriel means "man of God"; he appeared like a man to Daniel (see also 9:21; Luke 1:19, 26).

8:17 Son of man means "human being," as opposed to a divine being, "a son of the gods" (cp. 7:13; see, e.g., Ezek 2:1, 3, 6, 8).

8:19-26 These verses provide the interpretation of the vision of 8:3-14.

8:19 the very end of time: There is an appointed time for the end of history.

8:20 The smaller horn represents Media, which began as an independent kingdom in 670 bc. The larger horn represents Persia, which dominated Media during Cyrus's reign (see 7:5).

8:21 of Greece: Hebrew of Javan.

• The large horn represents Alexander the Great, the mighty first king who forged the Greek Empire. Two centuries after Daniel, Alexander would swiftly conquer the world (8:5); he overcame Persia in 331 bc. Alexander died in 323 bc at the age of thirty-three, but not before he arrogantly allowed himself to be called a god. • Josephus records that some Jewish priests showed the book of Daniel to Alexander, but Alexander treated Homer's Iliad as his Bible and relied on it for guidance.

8:22 After Alexander's death in 323 bc, his kingdom was divided into four major kingdoms, ruled by his generals (see map, p. 1409).

8:23-25 The small horn (8:9) was a fierce king. The description matches Antiochus IV (175–163 bc), one of the Seleucids (cp. 11:21-45). He bore the name "Epiphanes" ("The Manifest Presence [of God]"), but many, including Jews, mockingly called him "Epimanes" ("Mad Man"). By desolating the Temple and Jewish worship (8:11-12), Antiochus tried to destroy Judaism and unify his kingdom under the cult of Hellenistic culture. Some Jews were swept up in the program of Hellenism and adopted Greek ways.

8:24 not by his own power: Secretive and deceptive spiritual maneuvers and seemingly fortuitous events of history—all under God's sovereign control—brought Antiochus IV to power.

• a shocking amount of destruction: See 1 Maccabees 1:10-63, which describes many of the evils that Antiochus IV instigated.

the holy people. ²⁵He will be a master of deception and will become arrogant; he will destroy many without warning. He will even take on the Prince of princes in battle, but he will be broken, though not by human power.

²⁶"This vision about the 2,300 evenings and mornings is true. But none of these things will happen for a long time, so keep this vision a secret."

Daniel's Prayer, Gabriel's Response (9:1-27) Daniel's Prayer for His People

9 It was the first year of the reign of Darius the Mede, the son of Ahasuerus, who became king of the Babylonians. ²During the first year of his reign, I, Daniel, learned from reading the word of the LORD, as revealed to Jeremiah the prophet, that Jerusalem must lie desolate for seventy years. ³So I turned to the Lord God and pleaded with him in prayer and fasting. I also wore rough burlap and sprinkled myself with ashes.

⁴I prayed to the LORD my God and "confessed:

"O Lord, you are a great and awesome God! You always fulfill your covenant and keep your promises of unfailing love to those who love you and obey your commands. ⁵But we have 'sinned and done wrong. We have rebelled against you and scorned your commands and regulations. ⁶We have refused to listen to your servants the prophets, who spoke on your authority to our kings and princes and ancestors and to all the people of the land.

8:25 The Prince of princes is the King of Israel, the ruler of heaven and earth (7:9-10, 13-14). Antiochus, at the time of his death, exalted himself as God and intended to destroy Jerusalem. • he will be broken: Just as Antiochus IV came to power by supernatural means (8:24), so he was destroyed by God's hand rather than by human power. His end was to be eaten by worms (1 Maccabees 6:7-16 and 2 Maccabees 9:4-28; cp. Herod Agrippa, Acts 12:20-23).

8:26 about the 2,300 evenings and mornings (literally about the evenings and mornings; cp. 8:14): This could refer to a period of 1,150 days (1,150 evenings + 1,150 mornings, about 3½ years) or 2,300 days (about 7 years). Antiochus IV deposed high priest Onias III in 171 bc. He desecrated the Temple in December 167 bc and offered unclean sacrifices. The Temple and the altar were cleansed and used again in December 164 bc, seven years after Onias was deposed and just over three years after the Temple was desecrated (see 1 Maccabees 1:54; 4:52-53; 2 Maccabees 10:5). • keep this vision a secret: It would have been unwise for Daniel to share this vision at that time during Belshazzar's reign, when it would have smelled of insurrection or treason.

9:1-19 Daniel prayed for his people, realizing that Jerusalem's seventy years of desolation were due to end. His prayer is comparable to prayers of Solomon (1 Kgs 8:14-61), Ezra (Ezra 9), and Nehemiah (Neh 9). God answered Daniel's prayer very quickly (see notes on 9:1, 19; see also 9:20-27).

9:1 Darius the Mede: See note on 5:31. • Ahasuerus is the Hebrew rendering of a Persian word taken into Greek as "Xerxes." The father of Darius the Mede must have been a different Xerxes from the later Xerxes I, who reigned from 486 to 465 bc (see Esth 1:1); the time of this vision was 539 bc. It has been argued that the name Xerxes/Ahasuerus is an ancient throne name for Persian kings. • of the Babylonians: Or of the Chaldeans.

9:2 reading . . . Jeremiah: Daniel apparently had a copy of Jeremiah's prophecies. • Jerusalem must lie desolate for seventy years: See Jer 25:11-12; 29:10. Jerusalem was destroyed in 586 bc (see 2 Kgs 25:8), and the first return occurred in 538 bc—about 48 years later. The rebuilding of the city began almost at once (see Ezra 3; Isa 44:28), and the rebuilt Temple was completed in 515 bc—about seventy-one years after it was destroyed (Ezra 6:15). Daniel might have thought of Jerusalem's "destruction" as having begun with his own exile in 605 bc (see Jer 25:11-12), with sixty-seven years between 605 and 538 bc.

9:3 Daniel realized that the seventy years were nearly at an end, so he turned to the Lord God seeking restoration for his people and the city of Jerusalem. • People in mourning often wore burlap and ashes (cp. Neh 9:1; Esth 4:1; Lam 2:10; Luke 10:13). • Focused prayer was often accompanied by fasting to put spiritual concerns ahead of physical needs.

9:4-11a God's faithfulness contrasted sharply with his people's unfaithfulness and rebellion. When Daniel confessed the sins of his people, he included himself among them (9:5), though he had lived a laudatory life (see "Community Identity" at Lev 4:3; 13-21, p. 199). Daniel prayed the equivalent of a high priestly prayer on behalf of his people, using many quotations from and allusions to the Torah, prophets, and psalms.

9:4 the LORD (Hebrew Yahweh): The covenant name of God (Exod 6:2-3; 20:2) is found in Daniel only in this chapter. • God is faithful to his covenant with his people who love . . . and obey him (cp. Exod 34:6-7; Deut 7:9; Rom 8:28). God's unfailing love (Hebrew khesed, elsewhere translated "grace," "mercy," "kindness") is his fundamental nature that is the cause of faith, hope, and worship throughout the Bible (see Num 14:18; Neh 9:17; Ps 108:4; 136:1-26; Jon 2:4; 1 Jn 4:7-8).

9:5 Daniel used four different words meaning sin: The people had sinned (literally missed the mark), done wrong (i.e., committed a bent or twisted act), rebelled against the covenant, and scorned (literally turned away from) the Lord's instructions.

9:6 God's servants the prophets were his specially called and inspired spokesmen (9:10; Deut 18:15-22; 2 Kgs 17:23; 21:10-15; Jer 7:25; 25:4).

9:7-14 Lord, you are in the right: God orchestrated the Exile as a judgment on unfaithful Israel (9:11b-14). God had given ample warning that it would happen (see Deut 28:36-37, 49-68).

Israel, scattered near and far, wherever you have driven us because of our disloyalty to you. ⁸O LORD, we and our kings, princes, and ancestors are covered with shame because we have sinned against you. ⁹But the Lord our God is merciful and forgiving, even though we have rebelled against him. ¹⁰We have not ⁸obeyed the LORD our God, for we have not followed the instructions he gave us through his servants the prophets. ¹¹All Israel has disobeyed your instruction and turned away, refusing to listen to your voice.

"So now the solemn curses and judgments written in the Law of Moses, the servant of God, have been poured down on us because of our sin. ¹²You have kept your word and done to us and our rulers exactly as you warned. Never has there been such a disaster as happened in Jerusalem. ¹³Every curse written against us in the Law of Moses has come true. Yet we have refused to seek mercy from the LORD our God by turning from our sins and recognizing his truth. ¹⁴Therefore, the LORD has brought upon us the disaster he prepared. The LORD our God was right to do all of these things, for we did not obey him.

¹⁵"O Lord our God, you brought lasting honor to your name by rescuing your people from Egypt in a great display of power. But we have sinned and are full of wickedness. ¹⁶In view of all your faithful mercies, Lord, please turn your furious anger away from your city Jerusalem, your holy mountain. All the neighboring nations mock Jerusalem and your people because of our sins and the sins of our ancestors.

¹⁷"O our God, hear your servant's prayer! Listen as I plead. For your own sake, Lord, smile again on your desolate sanctuary.

¹⁸"O my God, lean down and listen to me. Open your eyes and see our despair. See how your city—the city that bears your name—lies in ruins. We make this plea, not because we deserve help, but because of your mercy.

¹⁹"O Lord, hear. O Lord, forgive. O Lord, listen and act! For your own sake, do not delay, O my God, for your people and your city bear your name."

Gabriel's Message about the Anointed One

²⁰I went on praying and confessing my sin and the sin of my people, ¹⁶pleading with the LORD my God for Jerusalem, his holy mountain. ²¹As I was praying, Gabriel, whom I had seen in the earlier vision, came swiftly to me at the time of the evening sacrifice. ²²He explained to me, "Daniel, I have come here to give you insight and understanding. ²³The moment you began praying, a command was given. And now I am here to tell you what it was, for you are very precious to 9:12 God's act of driving Israel into exile for breaking his covenant was unique in all of history. Israel's exodus from Egypt, their exile, and their return from Babylon are still unequalled (see also Isa 23:14-21; Jer 29:10).

9:13 Every curse written against us in the Law of Moses is summarized in Lev 26 and Deut 27-28. When the people entered into the covenant they swore to be obedient, calling down curses on themselves if they failed (see Exod 24:7-8; Josh 8:34-35).

9:15-19 Daniel cried out for God to rescue his people and end the Exile, relying on God's mercy and God's desire to honor his own name. Daniel's prayer is among the great intercessory prayers of God's OT people (see also Exod 32:11-14; Ezra 9:1-15; Neh 9:1-37).

9:15 God could bring lasting honor to his name by rescuing his people from exile in Babylonia, just as he did when he rescued them from Egypt (cp. Ezek 36:19-24).

9:16 mock Jerusalem and your people: God's name was dishonored when his chosen city and his chosen people were ridiculed because of their helplessness before their enemies, making it appear that their God was helpless (9:19; cp. Ezek 36:19-20).

9:17 For your own sake: That is, for God's own honor (9:19).

9:18 because of your mercy: God's compassionate and merciful character gave Daniel hope (cp. Exod 34:6; Jon 4:1-3; Mic 6:8).

9:19 listen and act! . . . do not delay: Daniel prayed this prayer in 539 BC (see 9:1). Shortly thereafter (in 538 BC), King Cyrus gave his decree allowing the Jewish people to return to Judea (Ezra 1:1-4). The new Temple in Jerusalem was completed in 515 BC (Ezra 6:15). God returned the Israelites from exile in response to their prayers and repentance, just as the Exile had been his response to his people's sins and rebellion. • your people and your city bear your name: God's reputation was associated with Jerusalem (Neh 1:9) and his people, Israel (Exod 5:22-6:1).

9:20-27 God's immediate answer to Daniel's prayer was to send his messenger Gabriel to explain Daniel's vision (see note on 9:23). Gabriel's explanation covered the near and distant future of Daniel's people.

9:20 my sin and the sin of my people: See note on 9:4-11a.

9:21 Gabriel . . . earlier vision: See 8:15-16. • evening sacrifice: Before the destruction of the Temple, Israel had offered two sacrificial lambs daily, one in the morning and one in the evening (Exod 29:41). Daniel apparently observed these times daily with prayer (6:10, 13; cp. Ps 55:17).

9:22 In the book of Daniel, insight and understanding are key words that often refer to the meaning of God's revelation (cp. 1:4; 9:13, 25; 11:33, 35). God did not promise Daniel the answers to all of his questions, but rather, a basic grasp of the issues. God is in charge of history.

9:23 a command was given (literally a word went forth): This command might have been God's decree to end the Exile and return his people to Jerusalem and Judea, or it might have been the

The Seventy Sets of Seven (9:24-27)

"I shall simply repeat the view of each . . . and leave it to the reader's judgment as to whose explanation ought to be followed." Jerome, Commentary on Daniel

Dan 7:8, 11, 20-21,
24-27; 8:9-14;
11:29-31, 40-45;
12:7, 11

The seventy sevens (or weeks) of Dan 9:24-27 have always puzzled students of the Bible. The two main interpretations are as follows.

SCENARIO A: THE REIGN OF ANTIOCHUS IV (175–163 BC). The seventy sets of seven refer to history from Cyrus II of Persia (539 BC; see 9:25; Ezra 1:2-4) to Antiochus IV (175–163 BC; see 8:23-25; 11:21-39). In this scenario, the "Anointed One" was high priest Onias III (see note on 9:26), and the "ruler" (9:26-27) was Antiochus IV, whose treaty with the people of Judea in 174 BC was supposed to allow them to practice their faith peacefully. But in 170 BC, Antiochus attacked Jerusalem, killed many, and looted the Temple. Then in 167 BC he put an end to the sacrifices and offerings, forced the Jews to stop practicing their faith on pain of death, and desecrated the Temple with a "sacrilegious object": He placed a statue of Zeus on the altar of burnt offering, where he sacrificed pigs and other unclean animals (cp. 11:21-35). Antiochus was struck with a painful disease, and he died in 163 BC—"the fate decreed for this defiler" was "finally poured out on him" (9:27; see 8:25; cp. 1 Maccabees 1:10-64; 6:7-16; 2 Maccabees 9:4-28). In Scenario A, when Jesus spoke of the "sacrilegious object that causes desecration," he was referring to the Jews' experience in the time of Antiochus as a paradigm of the things that would happen in the future (see note on 9:27; Matt 24:15; cp. Luke 21:20; 2 Thes 2:3-4).

SCENARIO B: THE DEATH OF CHRIST (AD 30 or 33). The seventy weeks are a prophecy concerning Jesus Christ, the Anointed Messiah. In this scenario, the "seventy sets of seven" began either with the decree of Cyrus (538 BC; Ezra 1:1-4) or with one of the decrees of Artaxerxes (458 or 445 BC; Ezra 7:8-26; Neh 2:1-10). The death of Christ then occurred either at the end of sixty-nine sets of seven (seven plus sixty-two, 9:25-26), or at the midpoint of the seventieth (9:27). These two options have implications for how the seventy sets of seven are brought to completion. In the first option, the seventieth set of seven is seen as a future time not yet fulfilled. In the second option, the seventieth set of seven is seen as having been completed when the Romans destroyed Jerusalem and the Temple in AD 70. If the decree of Cyrus is seen as the starting point, the 490 years are symbolic. However, if the decree given to Nehemiah to rebuild the city (445 BC; Neh 2:1) is taken as the starting point (9:25), then there were very nearly 483 years (69 x 7 years) between that date and the death of Christ in AD 30 or 33.

Option 1: The Seventieth Set of Seven Remains to Be Fulfilled in the Future. Many interpreters have argued that Christ's death occurred at the end of the sixty-ninth set of seven, and the seventieth set of seven is yet to be fulfilled. In that case, there is now a long gap from the sixty-ninth set of seven to the seventieth. The seventieth still lies in the future and corresponds to the reign of the antichrist during the Tribulation at the end of history (cp. 2 Thes 2:5-12; 1 Jn 2:18-22; 4:3; 2 Jn 1:7; Rev 13:1, 5; 16:13-14; 17:11; 19:20-21; 20:10).

Option 2: The Seventieth Set of Seven Was Completed When Rome Destroyed Jerusalem and the Temple in AD 70. Other interpreters have held that the seventy weeks were fulfilled with the coming of Christ, his death and resurrection, and the destruction of Jerusalem and its Temple in AD 70. In this case, Christ began his ministry at the end of the sixty-ninth set of seven, about AD 28. He ministered for approximately three and one-half years, then was killed in the middle of the seventieth seven. The remaining half-seven ended when the "ruler"—one or more of the Roman rulers—destroyed Jerusalem and its Temple in AD 70. The war and its miseries now continue between God's people and the kingdom of this world to the very end, when Christ will return, judge the wicked, and establish his kingdom.

Although difficult to assign to a definite period of history, the seventy sets of seven are significant: They demonstrate God's sovereignty over history and emphasize his ability to bring his plans for his people to completion. The number seventy (seven times ten) represents completeness. God's seventy years of exile for his people (9:2) were enough to chastise them; those years are more than matched by the time period to reclaim them (see note on 9:24).

God. Listen carefully so that you can understand the meaning of your vision.

²⁴A period of seventy sets of seven has been decreed for your people and your holy city to finish their rebellion, to put an end to their sin, to atone for their guilt, to bring in everlasting righteousness, to confirm the prophetic vision, and to anoint the Most Holy Place. ²⁵Now listen and understand! Seven sets of seven plus sixty-two sets of seven will pass from the time the command is given to rebuild Jerusalem until a ruler—the Anointed One—comes. Jerusalem will be rebuilt with streets and strong defenses, despite the perilous times.

²⁶After this period of sixty-two sets of seven, the Anointed One will be killed, appearing to have accomplished nothing, and a ruler will arise whose armies will destroy the city and the Temple. The end will come with a flood, and war and its miseries are decreed from that time to the very end. ²⁷The ruler will make a treaty with the people for a period of one set of seven, but after half this time, he will put an end to the sacrifices and offerings. And as a climax to command to explain the future to Daniel (9:24-27). • you are very precious to God: Also in 10:11, 19. • It is unclear what your vision refers to: It could be the restoration of Jerusalem and God's people that Daniel read about in Jeremiah and envisioned in his prayer (9:2-20), or one of the earlier visions (e.g., ch 8; cp. 8:27).

9:24-27 Gabriel further explained the meaning of Daniel's vision (9:22-23). Because the vision of ch 8 culminated with Antiochus IV (see 8:23-25; cp. 11:21-39), many interpreters understand this explanation as also pointing to Antiochus. Others understand it as culminating in the death of Christ, followed by the destruction of Jerusalem in AD 70 and the coming of the antichrist.

9:24 Many understand the period of seventy sets of seven (literally seventy sevens, or seventy weeks) as seventy "weeks of years"—i.e., 490 years. However, they are not called "years" in the Hebrew text, and it has proven difficult to assign this period to an actual historical period of 490 years. Therefore, many interpreters believe that the numbers are not intended as calendar years but as symbolic periods of time to fulfill the visions. Just as Jerusalem suffered a lifetime of desolation (9:2; see note on Jer 25:11), the city would experience many lifetimes of restoration. • The period of time was for your people (the Jews) and your holy city (Jerusalem). The six purposes listed here appear to refer to the restoration of the Jews and the city of Jerusalem. Other interpreters see these six purposes as representing God's universal work of redemption in the world. • God would finish the rebellion of the Israelites, and he would also finish the rebellions of human rulers who defy the Lord and attack the holy people (7:8, 22, 25-26; 8:13-14; 11:29-45). • To confirm the prophetic vision means to fulfill the content of the visionary answer to Daniel's prayer. • the Most Holy Place (Or the Most Holy One; literally a most holy): Some interpreters see this as referring to the restored Most Holy Place in the Temple in 164 bc. Others see it as referring to the anointing of Christ and his church as God's own temple (Matt 12:6; Eph 2:19-22).

9:25 Seven sets of seven plus sixty-two sets of seven: Literally Seven sevens plus sixty-two sevens. • The command . . . to rebuild Jerusalem and its Temple marks the beginning of the seventy sets of seven. The event that best fits this description is the decree of Cyrus the Great in 538 bc that allowed the Jews to return to Jerusalem and begin rebuilding (see 5:31; 9:1; Ezra 1:2-4). Less likely are the decrees of Artaxerxes I in 458 bc (see Ezra 7:12-26) and 445 bc (see Neh 2:5-8). • a ruler—the Anointed One: Or an anointed one, a prince; similarly in 9:26. Literally a messiah, a prince. Many interpreters see Christ as fulfilling this prophecy, so they understand this passage as describing history from the time of Daniel to the time of Christ. However, an "anointed one" can refer to any of Israel's kings or priests, who were ordained by anointing with oil. If the passage was fulfilled in the time of Antiochus IV, then the anointed one was probably the high priest at the time, Onias III (cp. 11:22). • and strong defenses (Or and a moat, or and trenches): The vision refers to Jerusalem as being physically rebuilt. The rebuilding of the Temple was completed in 515 bc (Ezra 3-6); in 445 bc, Nehemiah completed the wall of Jerusalem (Neh 2-6). • The perilous times can refer to the history of Jerusalem and its Temple from the time the decree was published until the end of the seventy sets of seven (see 11:2-45).

9:26 After this period of sixty-two sets of seven: Literally After sixty-two sevens. • the Anointed One (literally an anointed): Those who see the fulfillment of this passage in the time of Antiochus IV point to the murder of the high priest Onias III in 171 bc as the fulfillment of this prophecy (see note on 11:22). Those who see the fulfillment of this passage in the time of Christ will refer this prophecy to the crucifixion of the Messiah in AD 30 or 33. • The ruler who will arise could refer to Antiochus IV, who attempted to destroy the Jewish people and their worship in the Temple between 171 and 164 bc (see 1 Maccabees 1:20-40). Many believe, however, that the destruction of the city and the Temple refers to the destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans in AD 66-70. • The end refers to the completion of the seventy sets of seven. The text implies that the very end is a later time, and that the war would continue into the future (cp. Matt 24:4-8; Mark 13:5-8). • The image of a flood often represents an invading army (cp. 11:10, 22, 40; Nah 1:8) or devastating destruction.

9:27 The ruler (literally he): Most interpreters understand this pronoun as referring to the ruler of 9:26. Some think that it refers back to the anointed one of 9:25-26 and is thus a prophecy about Christ, meaning that Christ caused a covenant to prevail and removed the need for sacrifices and offerings by his death. However, the word behind make a treaty has the sense of imposing a covenant, evidently by the use of force or intimidation. Antiochus IV imposed a covenant with the people of Judea following the beginning of his rule in 175 bc (cp. 11:23; see 1 Maccabees 1:10-15). Other interpreters believe that this prophecy was fulfilled in the events of AD 66-70. For still others, it refers to a future ruler. • for a period of one set of seven: Literally for one seven. • The phrase put an end refers to a destructive action, not an act of God's salvation such as the Messiah would accomplish by his death. In 167 bc, Antiochus IV ordered the people of Judea to cease all practice of Jewish worship in the Temple and instead practice pagan worship, on pain of death (see 1 Maccabees 1:41-63). Similarly, the Roman general Titus put an end to the sacrifices and offerings in the Temple when he destroyed it in AD 70. • And as a climax to all his terrible deeds: Literally And on the wing; the meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. • a sacrilegious object that causes desecration (literally an abomination of desolation): Cp. 8:13; 11:31; 12:11. This term (Hebrew shiqquts meshomem) is possibly a mocking play

Israel's Rescue from Destruction (10:1-12:13) Daniel's Vision of a Messenger

10 In the third year of the reign of King Cyrus of Persia, Daniel (also known as Belteshazzar) had another vision. He understood that the vision concerned events certain to happen in the future—times of war and great hardship.

²When this vision came to me, I, Daniel, had been in ^amourning for three whole weeks. ³All that time I had eaten no rich food. No meat or wine crossed my lips, and I used no fragrant lotions until those three weeks had passed.

⁴On April 23, as I was standing on the bank of the great Tigris River, ⁵I looked up and saw a man dressed in linen clothing, with a belt of pure gold around his waist. ⁶His body looked like a precious gem. His face flashed like lightning, and his eyes flamed like torches. His arms and feet shone like polished bronze, and his voice roared like a vast multitude of people.

⁷Only I, Daniel, saw this vision. The men with me saw nothing, but they were suddenly terrified and ran away to hide. ⁸So I was left there all alone to see this amazing vision. My strength left me, my face grew deathly pale, and I felt very weak. ⁹Then I heard the man speak, and when I heard the sound of his voice, I fainted and lay there with my face to the ground.

¹⁰Just then a hand touched me and lifted me, still trembling, to my hands and knees. ¹¹And the man said to me, "Daniel, you are very precious to God, so listen carefully to what I have to say to you. Stand up, for I have been sent to you." When he said this to me, I stood up, still trembling.

¹²Then he said, "Don't be afraid, Daniel. Since the first day you began to pray for understanding and to humble yourself before your God, your request has been heard in heaven. I have come in answer to your prayer. ¹³But for twenty-one days the spirit prince of the kingdom of Persia blocked my way. Then Michael, one of the archangels, came to help me, and I left him there with the spirit prince of the kingdom of Persia. ¹⁴Now I am here to explain what will happen to your people in the future, for this vision concerns a time yet to come."

on the Semitic name for Zeus (Ba'al Shamayim, "Lord of the Heavens"). Idols are often referred to as shiqqs, "abomination," "desolation," elsewhere in the Bible (see Deut 29:17; 2 Chr 15:8; Isa 66:3; Jer 32:34; Ezek 20:7), and the similarity between the sounds of shomem, "devastation, destruction, desolation" and shamayim is clear. In December 167 BC, Antiochus IV erected an image of Zeus atop the altar of burnt offering in the Temple court and sacrificed unclean animals there. The same phrase (abomination of desolation) is used in 1 Maccabees 1:54 to describe that altar and its sacrifices. Jesus and other NT authors anticipated a desolating sacrilege in the future (Matt 24:15; Mark 13:14; Luke 21:20; 2 Thes 2:3-4). After Titus destroyed the Temple in Jerusalem in AD 70, the Romans set up their idols in the Temple precinct and made sacrifices to their gods (see Josephus, War 6.6.1). The apostle John later observed that many antichrists had appeared (1 Jn 2:18-23) and that the spirit of the antichrist was at work in the world (1 Jn 4:3). • The time of destruction is under God's control, and the fate decreed for this defiler is certain to come (cp. 7:11; 8:25; 11:45). So it is with every ruler who exalts himself against God and seeks to destroy God's people.

10:1-12:13 This final vision reaches historically from 536 BC to a distant future when Daniel would be raised from the dead and receive his inheritance. All earthly kingdoms would be destroyed, the eternal kingdom of the Son of Man would arise, God's people would finally be rescued, and death—the ultimate enemy—would be defeated.

10:1 The third year of the reign of King Cyrus was 536 BC, not long after Cyrus issued his decree for the peoples and nations to return to their ancestral homes (2 Chr 36:22-23; Ezra 1:1-2). Daniel's prayer (9:4-19) had been answered—the Exile had ended. • Belteshazzar: See 1:7.

10:2-3 Daniel was apparently in mourning because of his previous visions (10:14, 16).

10:4 On April 23: Literally On the twenty-fourth day of the first month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar. This date in the book of Daniel can be cross-checked with dates in surviving Persian records and can be related accurately to our modern calendar. This event occurred on April 23, 536 BC.

10:5-6 The man dressed in linen clothing is an unidentified messenger of the Lord (cp. 10:16, 18; 12:6-7; see also Ezek 9:3).

10:7-9 Daniel's response was typical for humans in the presence of heavenly beings (cp. Josh 5:14; Isa 6:5; Acts 9:7-9; Rev 1:17).

10:11 very precious to God: See also 9:23; 10:19.

10:13 the spirit prince: Literally the prince; also in 10:20. • The spiritual forces behind the various nations, such as the spirit prince of Persia or the spirit prince of Greece, blocked the way of God's messenger who responded to the prayers of God's people (see 10:20-11:1). • one of the archangels (literally one of the chief princes): An archangel was a chief among God's heavenly messengers. • and I left him there with the spirit prince of the kingdom of Persia: As in one Greek version; Hebrew reads and I was left there with the kings of Persia. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. • Daniel's world, and ours, is populated by more than meets the human eye. Daniel is shown the great events of history enacted against a background of a real spiritual world where spiritual beings support or hinder God's people, where the conflicts of the ages are also carried out. Behind all of this, the Ancient of Days sovereignly guides all things and sits in judgment upon the process and its conclusion. God's covenant with his people, and their relationship with him through prayer, are central to this process—the world is not ultimately governed by angels and spirit princes, but by the Ancient of Days, who hears the prayers of his people.

¹⁵While he was speaking to me, I looked down at the ground, unable to say a word. ¹⁶Then the one who looked like a man touched my lips, and I opened my mouth and began to speak. I said to the one standing in front of me, "I am filled with anguish because of the vision I have seen, my lord, and I am very weak. ¹⁷How can someone like me, your servant, talk to you, my lord? My strength is gone, and I can hardly breathe."

¹⁸Then the one who looked like a man touched me again, and I felt my strength returning. ¹⁹"Don't be afraid," he said, "for you are very precious to God. Peace! Be encouraged! Be strong!"

As he spoke these words to me, I suddenly felt stronger and said to him, "Please speak to me, my lord, for you have strengthened me."

²⁰He replied, "Do you know why I have come? Soon I must return to fight against the spirit prince of the kingdom of Persia, and after that the spirit prince of the kingdom of Greece will come. ²¹Meanwhile, I will tell you what is written in the Book of Truth. (No one helps me against these spirit princes except Michael, your spirit prince. ^{11:1}I have been standing beside Michael to support and strengthen him since the first year of the reign of Darius the Mede.)

▲ The Ptolemies and the Seleucids, 323–198 bc (11:4-12). While the Ptolemies ruled in Egypt, the Seleucids gained control of most of the area previously held by the Persian Empire. Control over Israel and southern Syria was contested (11:4-12). The struggles of the great powers became a source of persecution and hardship for the Jews living in Judea. In 198 bc, Antiochus III (223–187 bc) secured control of Israel and southern Syria.

10:16 Then the one who looked like a man: As in most manuscripts of the Masoretic Text; one manuscript of the Masoretic Text and one Greek version read Then something that looked like a human hand. • touched my lips: Cp. Exod 4:11-12; Isa 6:5-7.

10:19 God's word gives strength to his servants (cp. Ps 29:11; 68:35).

10:20 The messenger described empires in terms of the spirit prince representing each of them. The Persian empire had just begun and would later be replaced by the Greek empire (cp. 8:3-7, 19-21). • of Greece: Hebrew of Javan.

10:21 Book of Truth (literally writing of truth): The messenger was not speaking of himself, but from what was written in God's Book of Truth. Compare God's book in 7:9-10; Exod 32:32-33. See also 12:1; Ps 139:16. The Book of Truth contains what is revealed in 11:2-12:7. • against these spirit princes except Michael, your spirit prince (literally against these except Michael, your prince): God divided up the nations, partitioning out the nations and their princes (Deut 32:8). God was over Israel, and Michael was Israel's spirit prince.

11:1 beside Michael: Literally beside him. • Darius the Mede: See note on 5:31; the first year was probably 539 bc.

11:2-12:7 The messenger provided a grand sweep of history, from the time of Persia, through the break-up of Greece, the rise and defeat of a wicked king or series of kings (11:21-45), and the final resurrection and triumph of God's people.

11:2 Three more Persian kings: These Persian kings who followed Cyrus II were most likely Cambyses (530–522 bc), Gaumata (522 bc, a usurper), and Darius I (521–486 bc). The fourth was probably Xerxes I (486–465 bc; see note on Esth 1:1), whose riches were legendary, as were his army of 1,700,000 soldiers and his huge navy (see Herodotus, Histories 7.6), which he used to fight against the kingdom of Greece (Hebrew of Javan). He was unsuccessful, as the Persians failed to defeat the growing power of Greece. God's sovereign hand

³"Then a mighty king will rise to power who will rule with great authority and accomplish everything he sets out to do. ⁴But at the height of his power, his kingdom will be broken apart and divided into four parts. It will not be ruled by the king's descendants, nor will the kingdom hold the authority it once had. For his empire will be uprooted and given to others.

She will be abandoned along with her supporters. ⁷But when one of her relatives becomes king of the south, he will raise an army and enter

▲ The Ptolemies and the Seleucids, 198–139 BC (11:13-45). The SELEUCIDS maintained control of Israel from 198 to 143 BC; the events of this period are described in 11:13-39. Seleucid domination of Judea reached its climax under Antiochus IV Epiphanes (175–163 BC), who attempted to stamp out the Jewish religion, and in 167 BC desecrated the Temple with offerings of swine and a statue of Zeus. Judas Maccabeus then led a revolt; Maccabean resistance to the Seleucid kings continued until 143 BC. Then, in 142 BC, Judea officially gained independence under the MACCABEES through the leadership of Simon Maccabeus, Judas's brother. The Seleucids were overcome by the PARTHIANS in 139 BC. Meanwhile the ROMAN EMPIRE was growing in the west. Judea remained independent until 63 BC, when Jerusalem surrendered to the Roman army.

was at work behind the historical events of this chapter.

11:3 The mighty king was Alexander the Great (see note on 8:21, 336–323 BC), who conquered much of the known world in thirteen years, from Greece to India and from far into the north to Egypt in the south. His tutor had been Aristotle.

11:4 Alexander died on June 10, 323 BC in Babylon at the age of thirty-three. He was at the height of his power and willing to be worshiped as a god. • Alexander's descendants were not capable of governing, and his brother Philip was incompetent. • For his empire will be . . . given to others: Several of Alexander's generals divided his empire; by 301 BC, their conflicts had resulted in four parts (see 7:4-7; 8:8-12 and notes).

God orchestrates history, and its end belongs to him.

11:5-45 Throughout this passage, the king of the south describes Alexander's general Ptolemy and his descendants, who ruled Egypt; the king of the north describes Alexander's general Seleucus and his descendants, who ruled Syria and Mesopotamia. In the period following Alexander's death, the kings of Egypt and Syria vied for control of the strategically located land of Palestine. The holy city and the holy people lay between these two powers. These battles continued until their appointed end (11:27, 35, 40, 45; 12:1, 7). These events are described historically in 1, 2, and 3 Maccabees and by Herodotus, Livy, Polybius, Porphyry, and Josephus.

11:5 The first king of the south was

Ptolemy I Soter (323–285 BC). One of his own officials was Seleucus I Nicator (321–281 BC), who took over the rule of Syria. Both men were military commanders under Alexander the Great. Initially (320–198 BC), Palestine was under the control of the Ptolemies.

11:6 An alliance was formed between Antiochus II Theos, the king of the north (261–246 BC), and Ptolemy II Philadelphus, the king of the south (284–246 BC). Antiochus married Ptolemy's daughter Berenice Syra in 250 BC, then abandoned her in 246 BC. She and Antiochus were then murdered.

11:7-8 One of her relatives (literally a branch from her roots): Berenice's brother, Ptolemy III Euergetes, became king of the south (246–221 BC), invaded Syria with his army, defeated the king

the fortress of the king of the north and defeat him. ⁸When he returns to Egypt, he will carry back their idols with him, along with priceless articles of gold and silver. For some years afterward he will leave the king of the north alone.

⁹Later the king of the north will invade the realm of the king of the south but will soon return to his own land. ¹⁰However, the sons of the king of the north will assemble a mighty army that will advance like a flood and carry the battle as far as the enemy's fortress.

¹¹"Then, in a rage, the king of the south will rally against the vast forces assembled by the king of the north and will defeat them. ¹²After the enemy army is swept away, the king of the south will be filled with pride and will execute many thousands of his enemies. But his success will be short lived.

¹³"A few years later the king of the north will return with a fully equipped army far greater than before. ¹⁴At that time there will be a general uprising against the king of the south. Violent men among your own people will join them in fulfillment of this vision, but they will not succeed. ¹⁵Then the king of the north will come and lay siege to a fortified city and capture it. The best troops of the south will not be able to stand in the face of the onslaught.

¹⁶"The king of the north will march onward unopposed; none will be able to stop him. He will pause in the glorious land of Israel, intent on destroying it. ¹⁷He will make plans to come with the might of his entire kingdom and will form an alliance with the king of the south. He will give him a daughter in marriage in order to overthrow the kingdom from within, but his plan will fail.

²⁰"His successor will send out a tax collector to maintain the royal splendor. But after a very brief reign, he will die, though not from anger or in battle.

²¹"The next to come to power will be

11:9 Seleucus II, still the king of the north, tried to invade Egypt in 242 BC but was defeated by Ptolemy III.

11:10-12 The sons of Seleucus II were Seleucus III Ceraunus (226–223 BC) and Antiochus III the Great (223–187 BC). • a mighty army that will advance like a flood: Antiochus III aggressively sought to regain lost territory, including Palestine. • as far as the enemy's fortress: Antiochus III advanced to Raphia on the border of Egypt in 217 BC. (221–203 BC)—defeated Antiochus III and retained control of Palestine.

11:12-13 Ptolemy IV's success was short lived. In 198 BC, the king of the north—Antiochus III—returned. • Antiochus III had been conquering lands to the north and east, from which he raised a fully equipped army far greater than before (cp. 3 Maccabees 1:1-5).

11:14 A general uprising of Jews and rebel Egyptians who favored Antiochus III arose. The king of the south was Ptolemy V Epiphanes (203–181 BC). • they will not succeed: The Egyptian commander, Scopas, quelled the rebellion (200 BC).

11:15 At Paneas in 198 BC, the king of the north (Antiochus III) defeated the Egyptian general Scopas, besieged and captured Sidon, a fortified city, and took control of Palestine.

11:16 the glorious land of Israel: Literally the glorious land; cp. 8:9. • intent on destroying it: Antiochus III sought to hellenize the Jews and destroy their ancient customs, but he was flattered by Jews who received him well, and he granted them special privileges. They were allowed to live according to their own laws. His son Antiochus IV was not so accommodating (11:21-39).

11:17 Antiochus III formed an alliance with Ptolemy V by giving his daughter, Cleopatra I, to Ptolemy V in marriage. Antiochus hoped to overthrow Egypt from within, but his plan failed when his daughter became loyal to Egypt, and Egypt formed an alliance with Rome.

11:18 Antiochus III extended his holdings into the coastland—including Anatolia, Macedonia, and Greece—but he was defeated by the Romans in 191 and 190 BC. The commander from another land was the famous Roman general Scipio, who put a stop to Antiochus III's expansionist policies and caused him to retreat in shame from his western acquisitions.

11:19 Antiochus III thereafter remained within his own fortresses, where he was assassinated in 187 BC.

11:20 Antiochus III's successor was his son Seleucus IV Philopator (187–175 BC), who was known for his infamous act of sending Heliodorus, a tax collector, to exact large sums of money to maintain the royal splendor (but also to pay the ruinous tribute imposed on the Seleucids by Rome). Heliodorus attempted to plunder the Temple in Jerusalem but was divinely thwarted (see 2 Maccabees 3:1-40). Seleucus was murdered by Heliodorus after a very brief reign of seven years.

11:21-39 The next to come to power was Antiochus IV Epiphanes (175–163 BC;

a despicable man who is not in line for royal succession. He will slip in when least expected and take over the kingdom by flattery and intrigue. ²²Before him great armies will be swept away, including a covenant prince. ²³With deceitful promises, he will make various alliances. He will become strong despite having only a handful of followers. ²⁴Without warning he will enter the richest areas of the land. Then he will distribute among his followers the plunder and wealth of the rich—something his predecessors had never done. He will plot the overthrow of strongholds, but this will last for only a short while.

²⁵Then he will stir up his courage and raise a great army against the king of the south. The king of the south will go to battle with a mighty army, but to no avail, for there will be plots against him. ²⁶His own household will cause his downfall. His army will be swept away, and many will be killed. ²⁷Seeking nothing but each other's harm, these kings will plot against each other at the conference table, attempting to deceive each other. But it will make no difference, for the end will come at the appointed time.

²⁸"The king of the north will then return home with great riches. On the way he will set ^bhimself against the people of the holy covenant, doing much damage before continuing his journey.

²⁹Then at the appointed time he will once again invade the south, but this time the result will be different. ³⁰For warships from western coastlands will scare him off, and he will withdraw and return home. But he will vent his anger against the people of the holy covenant and reward those who ^cforsake the covenant.

³¹"His army will take over the Temple fortress, pollute the sanctuary, put a stop to the daily sacrifices, and set up the sacrilegious object that causes desecration. ³²He will flatter and win over those who have violated the covenant. But the people who

◀ The Seleucids, 321–150 BC (11:5-39). Seleucus I, a Macedonian commander in Alexander's army, took control of the province of Babylon in 321 BC; his dynasty ruled until 60 BC. The diagram includes those Seleucids who correspond to the king of the north in 11:5-39.

11:28 Antiochus IV plundered Jerusalem and the Temple in 170 BC, killing thousands and enslaving others (1 Maccabees 1:20-42; 2 Maccabees 5:1-23). His arrogance was unbounded (1 Maccabees 1:24-25; cp. Dan 7:28; 8:9).

11:29-35 Antiochus IV invaded the south [Egypt]. . . once again (see Polybius, Histories 29.1). • The warships from western coastlands (Hebrew from Kittim) refers to the Romans. The Roman general Popilius Laenas drew a circle in the sand, forced Antiochus to stand inside it, and made him decide whether to return home or prepare for war with Rome before exiting the circle. Fearing the Roman fleet, Antiochus chose to withdraw and return home. He then vented his anger and humiliation against the Jews, the people of the holy covenant. He took Jerusalem in 167 BC and rewarded those who would come over to him. He polluted the altar (see 8:9-14, 23-26), stopped the sacrifices, set up a statue of the Greek god Zeus in the Temple, and harassed and killed whoever refused to forsake the covenant (cp. 9:27; see 1 Maccabees 1:62-64; cp. Matt 24:15).

11:31 the sacrilegious object that causes desecration: Literally the abomination of desolation. See note on 9:27.

11:32-35 The wise are those who know their God and his laws and follow them, even in a hostile and deceptive environment. Many were martyred for their faithfulness to God and his laws during this time (1 Maccabees 1:11; 7:19; 2 Maccabees 6-7).

see note at 8:23-25). He is also the "small horn" of 8:9-14, 23-26. He is described vividly in 1 Maccabees 1:7-6:16; 2 Maccabees 1:1-10:5; 4 Maccabees 4:15-18:5. Antiochus was despicable both because he had usurped the kingship and for his deeds as king. He was not in line for royal succession, but usurped the throne from his brother's son.

11:22 The covenant prince was Onias III, the high priest (cp. notes on 9:25-26). He was removed by Antiochus IV in 175 BC and replaced by his brother Jason (2 Maccabees 4:7-10). In 171 BC, Onias was murdered by Menelaus, who then became high priest (171-162 BC). Menelaus supported Antiochus IV's program of hellenization (see notes on 9:26-27).

11:23 deceitful promises: Antiochus IV introduced Greek religion into Judea, helped by lawless followers who supported his policies (see 1 Maccabees 1:11-15).

11:24 richest areas of the land: Antiochus IV seized the riches of the Temple, took large tributes from Jerusalem, and stationed troops there (1 Maccabees 1:29-40).

11:25-27 The king of the south was Ptolemy VI Philometor (181-146 BC). Antiochus IV attacked Egypt twice between 170 and 168 BC (1 Maccabees 1:17-19).

³³“Wise leaders will give instruction to many, but these teachers will die by fire and sword, or they will be jailed and robbed. ³⁴During these persecutions, little help will arrive, and many who join them will not be sincere. ³⁵And some of the wise will fall victim to persecution. In this way, they will be refined and cleansed and made pure until the time of the end, for the appointed time is still to come.

³⁶“The king will do as he pleases, exalting himself and claiming to be greater than every god, even blaspheming the God of gods. He will succeed, but only until the time of wrath is completed. For what has been determined will surely take place. ³⁷He will have no respect for the gods of his ancestors, or for the god loved by women, or for any other god, for he will boast that he is greater than them all. ³⁸Instead of these, he will worship the god of fortresses—a god his ancestors never knew—and lavish on him gold, silver, precious stones, and expensive gifts. ³⁹Claiming this foreign god’s help, he will attack the strongest fortresses. He will honor those who submit to him, appointing them to positions of authority and dividing the land among them as their reward.

⁴⁰“Then at the time of the end, the king of the south will attack the king of the north.

The king of the north will storm out with chariots, charioteers, and a vast navy. He will invade various lands and sweep through them like a flood. ⁴¹He will enter the glorious land of Israel, and many nations will fall, but Moab, Edom, and the best part of Ammon will escape. ⁴²He will conquer many countries, and even Egypt will not escape. ⁴³He will gain control over the gold, silver, and treasures of Egypt, and the Libyans and Ethiopians will be his servants.

⁴⁴“But then news from the east and the north will alarm him, and he will set out in great anger to destroy and obliterate many. ⁴⁵He will stop between the glorious holy mountain and the sea and will pitch his royal tents. But while he is there, his time will suddenly run out, and no one will help him.

The Time of the End

11:34 A little help came when the family of Mattathias and those around them, who were called Maccabees, instigated a national revolt which Antiochus, occupied elsewhere, could not put down. In 164 BC, three years after the Temple had been desecrated, the Maccabees recaptured Jerusalem, removed the sacrilegious object (the statue of Zeus), cleansed the altar, and restored the daily sacrifices (8:11-14, 26; 1 Maccabees 1:59). This event is commemorated in Hanukkah (see John 10:22).

11:36-40 Some interpreters see these verses as a transition from the earthly Antiochus IV to a character larger than history (7:8).

11:36 Antiochus IV thought himself equal to God (2 Maccabees 9:1-10:12), but God would hem him in until the time of wrath was completed. • what has been determined will surely take place: Antiochus suddenly contracted a painful disease and died in 163 BC in the mountains of Persia (see 8:25; 1 Maccabees 4:52-53; 6:16; 2 Maccabees 9:4, 28; 10:5).

11:37-38 no respect for the gods of his ancestors: Antiochus IV forsook the Syrian gods in order to worship Greek gods.

• The god loved by women might be one of the Canaanite or Egyptian fertility deities. • No god of fortresses is known from history, but this description might be fulfilled by the lavish gifts that Antiochus gave to cities and to Greek temples, perhaps to increase his reputation and power (see Livy, History 41.20).

11:39 as their reward: Or at a price.

11:40-45 Most commentators believe these verses describe the time of the end of history (cp. Mark 13:14; 2 Thes 2:3-12; Rev 19:19-21). These verses echo the career of Antiochus IV, but we have no historical record of the events described here. Antiochus was a paradigm for future rulers who set themselves against the God of gods.

11:40 No known king of the south or king of the north did these things.

11:41 the glorious land of Israel (literally the glorious land): Israel (cp. 8:9; 11:16) is again the center of attack by an evil king. • Moab, Edom, and Ammon were nations surrounding ancient Israel and Judea.

11:43 Ethiopians: Hebrew Cushites.

11:45 The glorious holy mountain includes Zion, Jerusalem, and the Temple—the place God chose for his name to dwell. • The sea probably refers to the Mediterranean Sea.

12:1-7 At that time, the time of the end. God will rescue his people and defeat every enemy—even death.

12:1 Michael was Israel’s patron angel (cp. 10:13, 21; Rev 2:1, 8, 12). • the archangel: Literally the great prince. • the book: This is possibly the Book of Truth (10:21; cp. 7:10). • will be rescued: All previous “rescues” of God’s people in Daniel (e.g., 3:28; 6:27) had foreshadowed, and now culminated in, the resurrection from the dead (12:2-3).

12:2 Everlasting life is completely without shame or disgrace (cp. Gen 2:25; 3:7).

12:3 Those who are wise know their God (cp. 1:4, 17; 8:25; 9:22, 25; 11:32-35; 12:10). • To shine is a familiar metaphor for life, purity, righteousness, and glory.

12:4 Daniel was to keep the prophecy a secret (cp. 7:28; 8:26); it would be unveiled at God’s proper time. the time of the end.

12:5 The river was the Tigris River (10:4). • The two others witnessed to God’s promises (see Num 35:30; Deut 19:15).

will shine like the stars forever. ⁴But you, Daniel, keep this prophecy a secret; seal up the book until the time of the end, when many will rush here and there, and knowledge will increase."

⁵Then I, Daniel, looked and saw two others standing on opposite banks of the river. ⁶One of them asked the man dressed in linen, who was now standing above the river, "How long will it be until these shocking events are over?"

⁷The man dressed in linen, who was standing above the river, raised both his hands toward heaven and took a solemn oath by the One who lives forever, saying, "It will go on for a time, times, and half a time. When the shattering of the holy people has finally come to an end, all these things will have happened."

⁸I heard what he said, but I did not understand what he meant. So I asked, "How will all this finally end, my lord?"

⁹But he said, "Go now, Daniel, for what I have said is kept secret and sealed until the time of the end. ¹⁰Many will be purified, cleansed, and refined by these trials. But the wicked will continue in their wickedness, and none of them will understand. Only those who are wise will know what it means.

¹³"As for you, go your way until the end. You will rest, and then at the end of the days, you will rise again to receive the inheritance set aside for you."

Resurrection (12:1-3, 13)

Daniel 12:1-3 clearly teaches that the dead will be resurrected, as Daniel was told that he would be raised in this resurrection (12:13).

The resurrection will not be the same for all people. Two distinct groups of people will be raised: (1) those resurrected to experience new life, and (2) those resurrected to experience shame. These two groups are distinguished by moral, ethical, and spiritual characteristics. The resurrection will unveil the true nature of a person, and there will be an ethical and spiritual accounting to God Most High.

The first group will experience a new existence called "everlasting life." The expression is found only here in the OT. Everlasting life refers more to the quality of life than to its length. Those who are truly wise know, relate to, and experience God, and they teach others this righteousness and wisdom (11:33). They are refined, cleansed, and made pure before their God. The moral and ethical glory of those resurrected in Daniel's first group is indicated by the metaphors "shine as bright as the sky" and "shine like the stars forever" (12:3).

The second group experiences everlasting shame and disgrace instead of everlasting life because they are not morally, ethically, or spiritually renewed. The NT book of Revelation expands upon these two groups of Daniel's vision (see Rev 20:4-6, 11-15).

God's people will finally be rescued from death, not just from human kings, fire, or lions. Everlasting life destroys death. Those who are raised have had their names inscribed in the Book of Truth (cp. 10:21; Rev 20:12), and the Judge—the Ancient of Days—approves of them (7:9-10, 26-27; cp. Rev 20:6).

12:7 time, times, and half a time: God appoints times for all things as he rules the flow of earthly and heavenly events (see note on 7:24-25). • The shattering of the holy people was part of God's purpose to purify them (12:10).

12:8-10 God withheld exactly how and when all this would finally end. Daniel would not see the end (12:13); his job was to finish out his life in faith. • purified, cleansed, and refined: God would use violent and terrifying times to improve the moral and religious character of his people (cp. 11:35). • Being wise includes having insight into God's ways and walking accordingly. The wicked will not understand or change their wickedness even if the vision is explained to them.

12:11-12 the sacrilegious object that causes desecration: Literally the abomination of desolation. See 8:13-14, 23-26; 11:29-35. See note on 9:27. • God's people must wait and remain faithful when the events of the end come. • 1,290 days . . . 1,335 days: Some interpreters see these numbers as relating to specific events in the reign of Antiochus IV Epiphanes. Others see them as purely symbolic. The number 1,290 equals 43

lunar months of 30 days each, which is approximately 3½ years in the solar calendar. This might represent the final half of the final "set of seven" (9:27). The number 1,335 might represent simply an extra 45 days of waiting until the end. Those who endure the whole time, and then some, will see God act on behalf of his people (12:11).

12:13 Daniel died before the final end, but he knew that he would rise again! Here, the end refers to that time when even the dead will rise (12:1-3) and the everlasting Kingdom of God Most High is established.

THE BOOK OF Hosea

Hosea the prophet experienced betrayal and anguish because of his wife's adultery. Yet the book of Hosea has more to do with divine brokenness than with a broken human relationship. Hosea's experiences reveal God's agony over his people's sins. God's justice requires judgment, but in his love, God promises to redeem his chosen people. Hosea opens a window for us into the very heart of God.

SETTING

Throughout the history of ancient Israel, few eras were more confused or turbulent than the mid-700s BC, when Hosea prophesied.

Hosea began his ministry toward the end of the long and stable reign of Jeroboam II (793–753 BC). Despite being an evil king (2 Kgs 14:24), Jeroboam was a strong and capable leader who expanded the boundaries of Israel to an extent not seen since the glorious days of David and Solomon (2 Kgs 14:25–28). Jeroboam's territorial expansion brought great wealth to some Israelites, but left many others poor and destitute. Hosea's predecessor, Amos, repeatedly denounced the social injustices that produced such a gap between rich and poor in Israel.

Jeroboam II died early in Hosea's ministry, and with his death the comfortable, prosperous world of the Israelites changed forever. Three decades later, in 722 BC, the northern kingdom of Israel was destroyed by the relentless onslaught of the Assyrian empire. During this time, six different kings sat on Israel's throne. Only one died a natural death—usurpers assassinated four of these kings, and Hoshea, the final king, died in Assyrian captivity.

◀ Israel and Judah in Hosea's Early Ministry, about 760–750 BC. When Hosea began his ministry, Jeroboam II was king of ISRAEL. His long reign (793–753 BC) brought to the northern kingdom a period of great prosperity, stability, and peace. However, Hosea warned that judgment was soon to come, as it did following Jeroboam's death.

From its founding, the northern kingdom had worshiped pagan gods. Now they turned even more fully to these deities. In their desperate political situation, the Israelites grasped at any straw that might save them from the coming destruction, but they refused to turn to the Lord.

Hosea was God's messenger to this confused, frantic nation in its final days. The prophet proclaimed God's coming judgment, but he also offered the Israelites a message of hope, imploring them to return to the Lord their God, who alone could heal and restore them.

Warning*

SUMMARY

Hosea 1–3 describes a small segment of the prophet's life, focusing on his unhappy marriage to an unfaithful wife. The purpose of this section is not to present a biography but to illuminate God's painful relationship with Israel, his chosen people. Just as Hosea's wife, Gomer, was unfaithful, Israel acted like a prostitute by worshipping Canaanite gods. Hosea proclaimed

God's judgment, but he also announced God's desire to reclaim his wayward bride and restore her relationship with him.

Hosea 4–14 contains a diverse collection of Hosea's prophecies, from early in his ministry until just before the destruction of Israel in 722 BC. They are presented in roughly chronological order, from the reign of Jeroboam through the reign of Hoshea. In these chapters, the prophet Hosea presents God's charges against the people of Israel and especially against their leaders. The consequences for their sin will be severe—the nation will be destroyed. However, God would not give up his chosen people, and the book concludes with a divine promise of future restoration.

AUTHOR AND DATE

We know nothing about the prophet Hosea apart from this book. We know his father's name (1:1), that he was married to a woman named Gomer, and that he had children with her.

Hosea prophesied to the northern kingdom of Israel from around 760 BC until just before the fall of Israel in 722 BC (see 1:1). Hosea would have memorized his oral prophecies, and eventually he or his followers would have written them down in several collections that were later gathered into a single anthology. This work might have been done in the southern kingdom of Judah sometime after the fall of Israel in 722 BC.

LITERARY CHARACTERISTICS

Hosea was very literate and intimately acquainted with Israel's history and faith. His prophecies rely on figurative language and other literary devices such as proverbs and folk sayings. These literary and rhetorical techniques made God's message more intelligible and compelling to the Israelites.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

God's covenant with Israel stands at the center of Hosea's prophecy. When God entered into covenant with Israel at Mount Sinai, he offered the Israelites the incredible opportunity of living in intimate relationship with the Creator and sustainer of the universe. The covenant promised spiritual and material blessings to his people, while obligating them to live rightly before him. He had faithfully kept his covenant with the Israelites and they had enjoyed his blessings, but they had chosen to rebel against him and disregard his plan and purpose.

Marriage is the most powerful and memorable symbol of the covenant relationship between the Lord and Israel. As Israel's loving husband, the Lord provided her with everything she needed: land, food, drink, clothing, and security. Yet like an adulterous spouse, Israel sought fulfillment through the idolatrous worship of the Canaanite gods. These deities became Israel's lovers, and she attributed all of God's blessings to them. The personal life of the prophet Hosea with his wife Gomer played out in miniature this same drama of the wife's unfaithfulness and the husband's anguish over his wayward bride.

Through idolatry, Israel rejected her covenant with the Lord. In response, Hosea proclaimed God's judgment on sinful Israel. Judgment is the inevitable consequence of sin under the covenant. Yet even as the covenant was the foundation for divine judgment, it was also the basis for God's mercy. God did not judge Israel simply to punish her; his desire was to redeem her. Divine judgment was intended to turn Israel back to God, her true husband, so that in his mercy, he might restore her and reestablish his covenant with her.

God's mercy is not in opposition to his judgment. Hosea shows that God's mercy is extended to Israel through judgment, not instead of judgment; the Lord's promises of hope always follow his judgment. God has done the same thing for us through the cross of Christ.

Hosea—Jonah (1987)

1. SUPERScription: INTRODUCING THE PROPHET (1:1)

1 The LORD gave this message to Hosea son of Beeri during the years when Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah were kings of Judah, and Jeroboam son of Jehoash was king of Israel.

2. THE UNFAITHFUL WIFE (1:2–3:5)

Hosea's Wife and Children

²When the LORD first began speaking to Israel through Hosea, he said to him, "Go and marry a prostitute, so that some of her children will be conceived in prostitution. This will illustrate how Israel has acted like a prostitute by turning against the LORD and worshipping other gods."

³So Hosea married Gomer, the daughter of Diblaim, and she became pregnant and gave Hosea a son. ⁴And the LORD said, "Name the child Jezreel, for I am about to punish King Jehu's dynasty to avenge the

1:1 The LORD gave this message: The book of Hosea begins by declaring that these are not merely human words but a message from the only true God (cp. Joel 1:1; Mic 1:1; Zeph 1:1). • Hosea son of Beeri: Several other important people in the OT are also named Hosea (or Hoshea; both are spelled the same in Hebrew; Num 13:8; 2 Kgs 17:1). Hosea means "the Lord saves," an appropriate name for this prophet. • Jeroboam . . . king of Israel: Hosea prophesied to the northern kingdom of Israel during the reigns of its last seven kings, though only one of them, Jeroboam II, is listed here (see the Introduction and Timeline for details). • Hebrew Joash, a variant spelling of Jehoash.

1:2–3:5 This section describes a small segment of the prophet's life, focusing on his unhappy marriage and illuminating God's painful relationship with Israel, his chosen people.

1:2-3 a prostitute (Or a promiscuous woman): Some have found it impossible to believe that God would command a prophet to marry a prostitute. As a result, there is a long tradition of interpreting this passage symbolically. Many in the early church believed that the marriage did not actually take place. They thought that this passage was an allegory in which Hosea represented the Lord and Gomer represented Israel. Today, most interpreters regard the marriage as a real one, but they differ in their ideas about Gomer's occupation prior to the marriage. Some suggest that Gomer was an ordinary prostitute, while others suggest that she was one of the sacred prostitutes involved in Canaanite fertility worship. Another possibility is that Gomer was a young woman who had not previously participated in illicit sexual activity, but whom God knew to be predisposed toward adultery and prostitution.

murders he committed at Jezreel. In fact, I will bring an end to Israel's independence. ⁵I will break its military power in the Jezreel Valley."

⁶Soon Gomer became pregnant again and gave birth to a daughter. And the LORD said to Hosea, "Name your daughter Lo-ruhamah—'Not loved'—for I will no longer show love to the people of Israel or forgive them. ⁷But I will show love to the people of Judah. I will free them from their enemies—not with weapons and armies or horses and charioteers, but by my power as the LORD their God."

⁸After Gomer had weaned Lo-ruhamah, she again became pregnant and gave birth to a second son. ⁹And the LORD said, "Name him Lo-ammi—'Not my people'—for Israel is not my people, and I am not their God.

¹⁰"Yet the time will come when Israel's people will be like the sands of the sea-shore—too many to count! Then, at the place where they were told, 'You are not my people,' it will be said, 'You are ^achildren of the living God.' ¹¹Then the people of Judah and Israel will unite together. They will choose one leader for themselves, and they will return from exile together. What a day that will be—the day of Jezreel—when God will again plant his people in his land.

^{2:1}"In that day you will call your brothers Ammi—'My people.' And you will call your sisters Ruhamah—"The ones I love."

Charges against an Unfaithful Wife

2 ² "But now bring charges against Israel—your mother—for she is no longer my wife, and I am no longer her husband. Tell her to remove the prostitute's makeup from her face and the clothing that exposes her breasts.

³ Otherwise, I will strip her as naked as she was on the day she was born. I will leave her to die of thirst, as in a dry and barren wilderness.

⁴ And I will not love her children, for they were conceived in prostitution.

⁵ Their mother is a shameless prostitute and became pregnant in a shameful way.

She said, 'I'll run after other lovers central Israel. • The murders Jehu committed at Jezreel are described in 2 Kgs 9–10.

1:5 King Tiglath-pileser III of Assyria fulfilled this prophecy in 733 BC when he defeated Israelite forces and captured the Valley of Jezreel.

1:6 Lo-ruhamah: The names of Hosea's children were part of his prophetic message (cp. Isa 7:10–8:8).

1:7 For many years, the kingdom of Israel had depended upon its armies and horses and charioteers for security, but its confidence was completely misplaced. Safety and security are only to be found in God's power as the LORD.

1:9 The name Lo-ammi carries the harshest judgment of all, because it seems to announce the end of Israel's covenant relationship with the Lord. The cherished title my people—bestowed upon Israel when they lived obediently in covenant with the Lord their God (Lev 26:12; see also Exod 6:7)—was now withdrawn due to their blatant unfaithfulness. • I am not their God: The Hebrew behind this declaration can be translated I am not 'I AM' for you (cp. Exod 3:14). The third child's name prophetically announces that the Israelites stand outside the covenant and are no longer privileged to call upon the I AM.

1:10–11 Verses 1:10–11 are numbered 2:1–2 in the Hebrew text, and they mark an abrupt shift in Hosea's prophecy from judgment to hope. In the next three verses, Hosea transforms the names of Gomer's three children from names of divine punishment on Israel into names of blessing and hope. This dramatically demonstrates God's sovereign power of reversal from darkness to light, judgment to hope, and even death to life.

1:10 sands of the seashore: This promise of future population growth for God's people echoes the promise given to the patriarchs Abraham and Jacob (Gen 22:17; 32:12). • You are children of the living God: This expression is found nowhere else in the OT, but Paul quoted this verse (Rom 9:26) to establish that God had also called the Gentiles to salvation.

1:11 Judah and Israel will unite together: For almost 200 years, Israel and Judah had been divided into separate kingdoms by political rivalry. When God restores his people, he will reunite the divided kingdoms under a single leader as in the time of David, and he will reverse the curse of exile (see also Ezek 37:15–28). • The day of Jezreel (Jezreel means "God plants"): Hosea announced that in a coming time, God would restore the original meaning of Jezreel. It would signify blessing and growth rather than judgment.

2:1–23 Verses 2:1–23 are numbered 2:3–25 in the Hebrew text.

2:1 Ammi—'My people': God will also restore the name of the third child to its covenantal meaning. • Ruhamah—'The ones I love': Israel will once again be the object of God's love and compassion.

2:2–23 bring charges against Israel: At first glance, the Lord, as the aggrieved husband, appears to be issuing a bill of divorce against his unfaithful spouse, Israel (see Deut 24:1). As the passage continues, however, it becomes clear that God's purpose in this lawsuit is not divorce, but reconciliation (2:14–23). God's case against Israel is intended to awaken Israel to her sin and offer her a chance to return to her true husband. The Lord's desire for reconciliation with Israel is all the more surprising inasmuch as the law stipulated the death penalty for an adulterous spouse (Deut 22:22; see also Gen 38:24; Lev 21:9).

2:3 The Lord warns unfaithful Israel that unless she repents and returns to her covenant partner, he will strip her . . . naked (see also 2:10). Ezekiel also employs this image of judgment and shame (Ezek 16:36–37).

2:5 The only evidence needed to prove Israel's unfaithfulness comes from her own words: I'll run after other lovers. Israel's lovers were the Canaanite fertility deities, especially the baals (local representations of Baal). The Israelites worshiped them because they believed that these gods controlled the reproductive forces in nature. The Israelites attributed to them the basic necessities of life, food and water, their clothing of wool and linen, and oil, used for both sacred and secular purposes.

- and sell myself to them for food and water, for clothing of wool and linen,
and for olive oil and drinks.'
- ⁶ "For this reason I will fence her in with thornbushes.
I will block her path with a wall to make her lose her way.
- ⁷ When she runs after her lovers,
she won't be able to catch them.
She will search for them
but not find them.
Then she will think,
'I might as well return to my husband, for I was better off with him than I am now.'
- ⁸ She doesn't realize it was I who gave her everything she has—the grain, the new wine, the olive oil;
I even gave her silver and gold.
But she gave all my gifts to ^bBaal.
- ⁹ "But now I will take back the ripened grain and new wine
I generously provided each harvest season.
I will take away the wool and linen clothing
I gave her to cover her nakedness.
- ¹⁰ I will strip her naked in public, while all her lovers look on.
No one will be able to rescue her from my hands.
- ¹¹ I will put an end to her annual festivals, her new moon celebrations, and her Sabbath days—
all her appointed festivals.
- ¹² I will destroy her grapevines and fig trees, things she claims her lovers gave her.
I will let them grow into tangled thickets,
where only wild animals will eat the fruit.
- ¹³ I will punish her for all those times when she burned incense to her images of ^cBaal, when she put on her earrings and jewels and went out to look for her lovers but forgot all about me,"
says the LORD.
- The LORD's Love for Unfaithful Israel*
- ¹⁴ "But then I will win her back once again.
I will lead her into the desert and speak tenderly to her there.
- ¹⁵ I will return her vineyards to her and transform the Valley of Trouble into a gateway of hope.
She will give herself to me there,
as she did long ago when she was young,
when I freed her from her captivity in Egypt.
- ¹⁶ When that day comes," says the LORD,
"you will call me 'my husband'
instead of 'my ^dmaster'.
- ¹⁷ O Israel, I will wipe the many names of Baal from your lips, and you will never mention them again.

2:6-7 For this reason (literally Therefore): The initial Hebrew word of 2:6 (also of 2:9 and 2:14) introduces God's judgment on Israel. Because of her idolatry, the Lord would restrict Israel's access to the Canaanite fertility gods. Like an aggressive prostitute, she will pursue her lovers; but she will not find them. In the end, Israel will conclude that it is better to return to her rightful husband.

2:8 She doesn't realize (literally she doesn't know): Israel needs to know God personally and experientially (see "Knowing God" at 6:3, 6, p. 1431). Had the Israelites known the Lord in this way, they would have realized that every good thing in their lives came from him, not from the baals.

2:9-13 God's first judgment (2:6-7) was to restrict the Israelites; this second judgment would be to remove and destroy what he alone had given them.

2:11 From the context (2:13, 16-17), as well as from similar passages in Isa 1:12-17 and Amos 5:21-24, it seems clear that the Israelites had defiled the legitimate festivals, new moon celebrations, and Sabbath days by combining worship of the Lord with worship of the Canaanite fertility god, Baal. God rejects such syncretism (mixing of different faiths) and declared that he would remove these unholy days from Israel's calendar.

2:13 While the Israelites were worshipping Canaanite gods, they forgot the Lord. For Hosea, to forget is not a lapse of memory, but the opposite of knowing the Lord (see 8:14; 13:6; Job 8:12-13; see also "Knowing God" at 6:3, 6, p. 1431). Had Israel truly known the Lord, they would never have indulged in Baal worship.

2:14-15 The third judgment (see note on 2:6-7) is completely unexpected. The Lord, who had innocently suffered Israel's repeated unfaithfulness, announces that he will take the initiative in wooing Israel in order to win her back once again. He will lead her into the desert where he first entered into covenant with her, away from the seductive influences of Canaanite religion.
• The Valley of Trouble (Hebrew valley of Achor) was the scene of Israel's first act of disobedience after they entered the Promised Land (Josh 7:24-26). The Lord had both the will and the power to grant Israel a new beginning after their sin and trouble (Josh 8:1-22), so Israel would again be offered a gateway of hope.

2:16 that day: This seemingly unremarkable phrase is actually quite important in the prophets. It refers to the coming day of the Lord (see Joel 1:15; 2:1; Amos 5:18), when the Lord will act decisively in human history on behalf of his people. • 'my husband' instead of 'my master' (Hebrew 'my baal'): In this coming day, Israel will enter into a new relationship with her God. No longer will Israel call God "master" (Hebrew ba'al), which connotes subservience and was also the name of the chief Canaanite fertility god. Instead, she will address the Lord as "husband," implying partnership and companionship (Gen 2:23-24).

2:17 To avoid any possible syncretism (see note on 2:11) between the Lord and Baal, God would wipe the many names of Baal from Israel's lips.

Hosea's Wife Is Redeemed

3 Then the LORD said to me, "Go and love your wife again, even though she commits adultery with another lover. This will illustrate that the LORD still loves Israel, even though the people have turned to other gods and love to worship them."

2 So I bought her back for fifteen pieces of silver and five bushels of barley and a measure of wine. 3 Then I said to her, "You must live in my house for many days and stop your prostitution. During this time, you will not have sexual relations with anyone, not even with me."

4 This shows that Israel will go a long time without a king or prince, and without sacrifices, sacred pillars, priests, or even idols!
5 But afterward the people will return and devote themselves to the LORD their God and to David's descendant, their king. In the last days, they will tremble in awe of the LORD and of his goodness.

3. HOSEA'S MESSAGES OF WARNING (4:1-14:9)

The Lord's Case against Israel

4 Hear the word of the LORD, O people of Israel!

2:18 On that day the Lord would make a covenant with his creation and his people, a covenant of peace and safety.

2:19-20 I will make you my wife: This Hebrew verb, used three times in these verses, can be translated with our seldom-used word betroth. In the ancient world, betrothal entailed all the legal steps of a marriage, including the payment of a bride price by the groom. The only thing missing was the marriage ceremony and sexual consummation. The Lord vowed to betroth Israel to himself forever. To ensure the eternal nature of this new marriage, God provided a bride price that included five priceless qualities:
righteousness and justice, unfailing love and compassion, and faithfulness. As a result, the Lord said, Israel will finally know me (cp. 2:13).

2:21-22 Unfaithful Israel thought her food and clothing were gifts from her lovers, the baals (2:5), but in that day they will know that the Lord alone is the source of all fertility and blessing.
He will answer the sky, the clouds, and the earth, initiating the true cycle of fertility for the land. When the Lord is recognized as the only source of life, then the name Jezreel will regain its true meaning: God plants!

2:23 As God has promised (2:1), on the coming day of the Lord he will reverse the names of Gomer's children. He will show love to 'Not loved' (Hebrew Loruhamah; see 1:6). To 'Not my people' (Hebrew Lo-ammi; see 1:9), he will say,
'Now you are my people.' The only fitting response from God's people is "You are our God!"

3:1 Go and love your wife again, even though she (Or Go and love a woman who): The Lord commanded Hosea to restore his marriage as testimony that the Lord had promised to restore wayward Israel. • love to worship them: Literally love their raisin cakes. The worship of Asherah, a Canaanite fertility goddess, often included offerings of raisin cakes.

3:2 So I bought her back: The biblical text does not indicate why the prophet needed to purchase his wife. Most interpreters have assumed that the unfaithful Gomer had fallen into debt and become a slave. The meager price Hosea paid for her may indicate that Gomer was considered a slave of little value (see Exod 21:32; Lev 27:4). • fifteen pieces of silver: Hebrew 15 [shekels] of silver, about 6 ounces or 171 grams in weight.

• five bushels of barley and a measure of wine: As in Greek version, which reads
a homer of barley and a wineskin full of wine; Hebrew reads a homer [5 bushels or 220 liters] of barley and a letheq
[2.5 bushels or 110 liters] of barley.

3:3-4 Just as Hosea's wife was required to live many days without sexual relations, Israel would be deprived of the institutions (king or prince), practices (sacrifices), and objects (sacred pillars . . . or even idols) that had been foundational to its life and worship.

3:3 not even with me: Or and I will live with you.

3:4 priests: Hebrew ephod, the vest worn by the priest.

3:5 The Lord's purpose for depriving the Israelites of these things was to get them to return to him in reverential awe and recognize him alone as the source of all goodness. • David's descendant, their king: Literally to David their king.

4:1-14:9 This diverse collection of Hosea's prophecies is presented in

- The LORD has brought charges against you, saying:
 "There is no faithfulness, no kindness, no knowledge of God in your land.
 2 You make vows and break them; you kill and steal and commit adultery.
 There is violence everywhere—one murder after another.
 3 That is why your land is in mourning, and everyone is wasting away. Even the wild animals, the birds of the sky, and the fish of the sea are disappearing.
 4 "Don't point your finger at someone else and try to pass the blame! My complaint, you priests, is with you.
 5 So you will stumble in broad daylight, and your false prophets will fall with you in the night.
 And I will destroy Israel, your mother.
 6 My people are being destroyed because they don't know me. Since you priests refuse to know me, I refuse to recognize you as my priests. Since you have forgotten the laws of your God, I will forget to bless your children.
 7 The more priests there are, the more they ^ssin against me.
- They have exchanged the glory of God for the shame of idols.
 8 "When the people bring their sin offerings, the priests get fed. So the priests are glad when the people sin!
 9 'And what the priests do, the people also do.'
 So now I will punish both priests and people for their wicked deeds.
 10 They will eat and still be hungry. They will play the prostitute and gain nothing from it, for they have deserted the LORD 11 to worship other gods.
 "Wine has robbed my people of their understanding.
 12 They ask a piece of wood for advice! They think a stick can tell them the future!
 Longing after idols has made them foolish. They have played the prostitute, serving other gods and deserting their God.
 13 They offer sacrifices to idols on the mountaintops. They go up into the hills to burn incense in the pleasant shade of oaks, poplars, and terebinth trees.

roughly chronological order, from early in his ministry during the reign of Jeroboam II until just before the destruction of Israel in 722 bc. Hosea presents God's charges against Israel, tells them of the severe consequences for their sin, and concludes with a divine promise of future restoration.

4:1 The LORD has brought charges against you: Hosea issued a divine indictment against Israel for breaking their covenant with the Lord (see also Isa 3:13; Mic 6:2). The charges first focus on sins of omission, the qualities that should characterize the people of Israel but were absent. In Israel there is no faithfulness, no kindness, no knowledge of God. These theologically rich words describe the inward trust and devotion from which godly lives should spring.

4:2 The prophet also charged the Israelites for their sins of commission. The crimes listed here are all prohibited in the Ten Commandments (Exod 20:3-17; Deut 5:7-21), the fundamental list of covenant responsibilities. Because the Israelites did not know the Lord, they did not practice even the most basic standards of covenant life.

4:3 God's judgment inevitably falls upon sinful people. Because of the Israelites' sin, their land and all of nature would suffer.

4:4-5 When we are accused of a crime, our human inclination is to blame someone else, but God makes it clear that the blame for Israel's apostasy lay with her religious leaders, priests, and false prophets. • God's judgment on the priests and prophets was that they would stumble and fall (the same word in Hebrew), both professionally and personally.

4:4 My complaint, you priests, is with you: Literally Your people are like those with a complaint against the priests.

4:6 Because the priests refused to know the Lord, neither did the people know their God. As a result, the people were being destroyed. • A primary function of the priests of Israel was to know, practice, and teach the laws of . . . God. Ironically, these guardians of the law had forgotten it.

4:7 The last sentence is translated from the Syriac version and an ancient Hebrew tradition; Masoretic Text reads I will turn their glory into shame.

4:9 The people followed the evil example of their religious leaders; as a result, God would punish both priests and people for their wicked deeds.

4:10 God's judgment matches the punishment to the crime. The Israelites worshiped Canaanite fertility deities with the expectation of bountiful crops and herds, but God's judgment was that they would still be hungry and their religious prostitution would gain them nothing.

4:12 They ask a piece of wood for advice! For millennia, people have worshiped natural objects such as wood and stones that they believed embodied spirits and gods (Jer 2:27). Biblical religion completely rejects such practices and beliefs (Exod 20:4-5; Isa 44:19).

4:13 Many Canaanite religious rites were practiced on the mountaintops and hills. On these pagan "high places," sacred trees were usually used in fertility worship (1 Kgs 14:23; Jer 2:20). • Israelite daughters and brides also committed sexual acts in the worship of Baal; they were possibly forced to do so by their fathers and husbands.

"That is why your daughters turn to prostitution,
and your daughters-in-law commit

14 But why should I punish them for their prostitution and adultery?
For your men are doing the same thing, sinning with whores and shrine
prostitutes.
O foolish people! You refuse to understand,
so you will be destroyed.

15 "Though you, Israel, are a prostitute, may Judah not be guilty of such things.
Do not join the false worship at Gilgal or Beth-aven, and do not take oaths there in the LORD's name.

16 Israel is stubborn,
like a stubborn heifer.
So should the LORD feed her like a lamb in a lush pasture?

17 Leave Israel alone, because she is married to idolatry.

18 When the rulers of Israel finish their drinking,
off they go to find some prostitutes.
They love shame more than honor.

19 So a mighty wind will sweep them away.
Their sacrifices to idols will bring them shame.

The Failure of Israel's Leaders

5 "Hear this, you priests.
Pay attention, you leaders of Israel.
Listen, you members of the royal family.
Judgment has been handed down against you.

For you have led the people into a snare by worshipping the idols at Mizpah and Tabor.

² You have dug a deep pit to trap them at Acacia Grove.
But I will settle with you for what you have done.

³ I know what you are like, O Ephraim.
You cannot hide yourself from me,
O Israel.

You have left me as a prostitute leaves her husband;
you are utterly defiled.

⁴ Your deeds won't let you return to your God.

You are a prostitute through and through,
and you do not know the LORD.

⁵ "The arrogance of Israel testifies against her;
Israel and Ephraim will stumble under their load of guilt.
Judah, too, will fall with them.

⁶ When they come with their flocks and herds to offer sacrifices to the LORD,
they will not find him,
because he has withdrawn from them.

⁷ They have betrayed the honor of the LORD,
bearing children that are not his.
Now their false religion will devour
them
along with their wealth.

⁸ "Sound the alarm in Gibeah!
Blow the trumpet in Ramah!
Raise the battle cry in Beth-aven!

4:14 God declared that he would not single out the young women for their prostitution. This declaration contrasts with double standards that were common in ancient cultures. • shrine prostitutes: The Hebrew word refers to female prostitutes who were dedicated to the service of Baal and Asherah in the temples of Baal (Deut 23:18).

4:15 Beth-aven means "house of wickedness"; it is being used as another name for Bethel, which means "house of God" (see also 5:8; 10:5). Bethel was the most important worship center in the northern kingdom of Israel (see Amos 7:13).

4:17 Israel: Hebrew Ephraim, referring to the northern kingdom of Israel.

4:18 The last sentence is translated from the Greek version; the meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

5:1 Hosea again condemns the religious and political leaders of Israel. They have led the people into idolatry as hunters trap wild animals in a snare. • The specific sins at Mizpah and Tabor are not known.

5:2 at Acacia Grove: Hebrew at Shittim. The meaning of the Hebrew for this sentence is uncertain. • I will settle with you: God's judgment (Hebrew musar, "discipline") would inevitably fall upon Israel's leaders. God did not judge Israel simply to punish them, but to correct them so that his people would return to him.

5:3 you are utterly defiled: The word translated defiled is used frequently in the Pentateuch to describe ritual uncleanness, a physical condition that disqualified a person from worshipping God in the Temple (Lev 11–15). The prophets used the concept as a metaphor for Israel's moral uncleanness as the result of her idolatry (Isa 6:5; Mic 2:10).

5:4 Israel's idolatrous practices were so ingrained that they were apparently powerless to return to the Lord. • You are a prostitute through and through (literally the spirit of prostitution is within them): Israel's sin was not simply a behavior; it was the nation's essential nature. They instinctively preferred the corrupt to the pure. Only through God's work of salvation could Israel escape.

5:6-7 The people might think that they could win God's favor with their sacrifices, but Hosea warned them that they would not find him; God had left them to the consequences of their sin.

5:7 their false religion . . . their wealth: The meaning of this sentence in Hebrew is uncertain.

5:8-9 Hosea sounded the alarm to warn the Israelites of God's coming judgment. Because of their sins, the Lord had become Israel's enemy and would punish them. • Gibeah, Ramah, and Beth-aven (Beth-aven means "house of wickedness"; it is being used as another name for Bethel, which means "house of God") are all cities in the tribal territory of Benjamin.

5:9 Israel: Hebrew Ephraim, referring to the northern kingdom of Israel; also in 5:11, 12, 13, 14.

5:10 thieves (literally those who move a boundary marker): The Lord was the owner of the land, which he entrusted to the tribes following the conquest (see Josh 13:8-19:51). To move a boundary marker and change God's allotted boundaries was to steal from God (Deut 19:14). Such an act rightly invoked divine punishment (Deut 27:17).

5:11 determined to worship idols: Or determined to follow human commands. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

5:12 as a moth . . . rotten wood: Sin can destroy the very fabric and foundation of a people while leaving them unaware that the destruction has taken place.

5:13 In a final effort to avoid complete destruction, the Israelites overthrew King Pekah and placed a new king, Hoshea, on the throne. Hoshea then appealed to the Assyrian king Shalmaneser for peace (2 Kgs 15:29-30; 17:3), but these diplomatic maneuvers could neither help nor cure Israel—they would soon be destroyed by Assyria.

5:15 Hosea again reminded Israel that divine judgment was not merely punitive. God's purpose was to convince Israel to admit their guilt and return to the Lord (see 2:2, 14).

6:1-3 In response to God's acts of judgment on Israel, the religious leaders called the people to return to the Lord in repentance and urged everyone to know the Lord. • The rains in early spring were essential to the agricultural cycle of the land.

6:4 The response of Israel (Hebrew Ephraim, referring to the northern kingdom of Israel) was inadequate; God lamented that their love disappeared like morning mist and dew.

6:6 In one of Hosea's key verses, God names the most important qualities that should characterize the Israelites' covenant lives with him. First, the Lord wants his people to show love (Greek version translates this Hebrew term as show mercy; cp. Matt 9:13; 12:7) more than he wants sacrifices. Love (Hebrew khesed) includes faithfulness (see 4:1; 6:4; see also "God's Covenant Love" at Deut 33:3, p. 365). God is always faithful (Ps 136), and he requires the same of his people. Second, the Lord wants Israel to know him (literally to know God) more than he wants burnt offerings. Knowing God is much more than simply knowing facts about God (see "Knowing God," facing page). An intimate personal relationship with God is characterized by complete trust and integrity. Sacrifice still had a proper place in Israelite religion, but only when it was offered by a people who truly knew and loved God (see Isa 1:10-17; Amos 5:21-24; Mic 6:6-8).

6:7-11 Hosea traces the way that human rebellion against God began with Adam and spread through the cities of Israel to the land of Judah.

6:7 But like Adam: Or But at Adam.

More than any other prophet, Hosea emphasizes the importance of knowing God. Israel would ultimately be destroyed (4:6) because they did not know God (4:1).

For us, knowledge means information, facts, and concepts. But in biblical times, knowledge was centered in personal relationships. To know someone is to enter into a close relationship with that person. Knowing God involves much more than simply mastering facts and information about him. It even transcends discussions about the nature and character of God, as important as those are. Knowing God means entering into an intimate relationship with him. It means identifying with God and learning to view everything as God does. Knowing God will transform our thoughts and actions, our priorities and values, and our relationships with fellow human beings. It is far more important than religious rites, sacrifices and burnt offerings, or any other religious activities (see Jer 9:23-24; 31:34).

6:9 Priests form bands of robbers:

Hosea again condemns the religious leaders for their crimes (see 4:4-8).

6:10 something horrible: The prophet uses this rare word (also in Jer 18:13) to describe the depth of Israel's sin in breaking God's covenant and betraying his trust.

7:1-2 I want to heal Israel, but its (Hebrew Ephraim's, referring to the northern kingdom of Israel; similarly in 7:8, 11): God's overwhelming desire was to heal Israel's harlotry (see 14:4) and restore her to right relationship with him, but she was filled with liars, thieves, and bandits. • The Israelites might have thought that the Lord was unaware of their sins, but he was watching them, and he saw everything they did.

7:3-7 The northern kingdom of Israel saw a succession of seven different kings during the final twenty-five years of its existence, four of whom were assassinated by usurpers. This passage refers to the vicious and bloody political intrigue that characterized these years.

7:3 The prophet did not record the name of this king, but many believe he was Hoshea, the northern kingdom's last monarch.

7:4 adulterers: Hosea used this term earlier to describe spiritual apostasy (3:1); it refers here to those who were disloyal to the king.

7:6 A simile aptly compares the plots and political intrigue during this turbulent time to a red-hot oven that breaks out to ignite the entire land. • Their plot smolders: Literally their baker sleeps.

7:7 They kill their kings: The people of Israel assassinated one king after another as they desperately attempted to save their nation and their lives from the invading Assyrian army. Throughout these last years, they relied upon their own plans and plots and never thought to cry out to the Lord, their only true source of help.

7:8-12 Israel ignored the Lord in their international politics as well as in their domestic policies. Like silly, witless doves, they had flown in a frenzy between Assyria and Egypt, the major powers of their day, vainly trying to make treaties and alliances that would save their land.

7:8 The people of Israel mingle with godless foreigners: By relying upon foreign nations rather than God for security, the Israelites were no longer a pure, holy nation, set apart for the Lord. • Flatbread must be turned over at the proper time to ensure that it is baked on both sides rather than burned on one side and raw on the other. Israel was a half-baked cake and was therefore worthless.

- ⁹ Worshipping foreign gods has sapped their strength, but they don't even know it.
Their hair is gray,
but they don't realize they're old and weak.
- ¹⁰ Their arrogance testifies against them, yet they don't return to the LORD their God or even try to find him.
- ¹¹ "The people of Israel have become like silly, witless doves, first calling to Egypt, then flying to Assyria for help.
- ¹² But as they fly about,
I will throw my net over them and bring them down like a bird from the sky.
I will punish them for all the evil they do.
- ¹³ "What sorrow awaits those who have deserted me!
Let them die, for they have rebelled against me.
I wanted to redeem them,
but they have told lies about me.
- ¹⁴ They do not cry out to me with sincere hearts.
Instead, they sit on their couches and wail.
They cut themselves, begging foreign gods for grain and new wine, and they turn away from me.
- ¹⁵ I trained them and made them strong,
yet now they plot evil against me.
- ¹⁶ They look everywhere except to the Most High.
They are as useless as a crooked bow.
Their leaders will be killed by their enemies because of their insolence toward me.
Then the people of Egypt will laugh at them.
- Israel Harvests the Whirlwind*
- 8 "Sound the alarm!
The enemy descends like an eagle on the people of the LORD, for they have broken my covenant and revolted against my law.
- ² Now Israel pleads with me,
'Help us, for you are our God!'
- ³ But it is too late.
The people of Israel have rejected what is good,
and now their enemies will chase after them.
- ⁴ The people have appointed kings without my consent, and princes without my approval.
By making idols for themselves from their silver and gold,
they have brought about their own destruction.
- ⁵ "O Samaria, I reject this calf—
this idol you have made.
My fury burns against you.

7:9 foreign gods (literally foreigners): Israel's political involvement with foreign nations had harmed their spiritual well-being.

7:11 When invaded by Assyria, Israel turned to Egypt for help. When Egypt proved powerless, Israel tried to appease Assyria by becoming its vassal (a subservient kingdom).

7:12 Like a fowler hunting birds, the Lord would throw his net over silly, witless Israel to punish them. • I will punish them for all the evil they do: Literally I will punish them because of what was reported against them in the assembly.

7:13 What sorrow: This word (Hebrew oy) was used at funerals to mourn the dead. In God's eyes, Israel was as good as dead because they had rebelled against him. Rebellion against a human king was a capital crime; how much more serious it was for God's people to rebel against their heavenly king. • I wanted to redeem them: This Hebrew word means paying a fee to repatriate someone who has been enslaved. It is often associated with the exodus from Egypt. The Lord desired to do for the Israelites what he did when he brought their ancestors out of their slavery to pagan gods, but they . . . told lies about him.

7:14 They cut themselves (As in Greek version; Hebrew reads They gather together): Self-mutilation was characteristic of Canaanite worship (see 1 Kgs 18:28); it was prohibited in Israel (Deut 14:1).

7:16 A crooked (literally loose) bow cannot propel its arrow to the target; it depicts Israel's futility apart from God (see 7:8, 11).

8:1 Sound the alarm: The ram's horn trumpet (shofar) called the people to worship (Ps 98:6); it was also (as here) the signal for battle (2 Sam 20:1). God was sending an enemy, the Assyrians, to execute his judgment on Israel. • revolted against my law: God's law (Hebrew torah) is much more than the sum of the individual laws in the Pentateuch. It represents the totality of God's instruction to his people through his words and his deeds. Loving fulfillment of the Torah was Israel's part of the covenant. They had broken God's commandments, and they had turned aside from their covenant relationship with the Lord.

8:3 Jesus tells us that God alone is good (Mark 10:18). God is the source of every good thing, yet Israel rejected him.

8:4 appointed kings without my consent: The Israelites quickly disposed of one king and appointed another if they thought it might save their nation (see 7:7). They did all of this without consulting their true king, the Lord.

8:5-6 this calf: When Jeroboam I (931–910 BC), the first king of the northern kingdom of Israel, ascended the throne, he established places of worship in the cities of Dan and Bethel so that the people would not travel to the Temple in Jerusalem, the capital of the southern kingdom. At each site, he erected a gold calf for the people to worship (1 Kgs 12:26-30).

Hosea Announces Israel's Punishment

9 O people of Israel,
do not rejoice as other nations do.

For you have been unfaithful to your God,

hiring yourselves out like prostitutes, worshiping other gods on every threshing floor.

2 So now your harvests will be too small to feed you.

There will be no grapes for making
new wine.

3 You may no longer stay here in the LORD's land.

Instead, you will return to Egypt, and in Assyria you will eat food that is ceremonially unclean.

4 There you will make no offerings of wine to the LORD.

None of your sacrifices there will please him.

They will be unclean, like food touched by a person in mourning.

All who present such sacrifices will be defiled.

They may eat this food themselves,
but they may not offer it to the LORD.

5 What then will you do on festival days?
How will you observe the LORD's festivals?

8:7 When Hosea proclaimed divine judgment, the punishment fit the crime (see note on 4:10). Through their idolatry and political intrigue, the Israelites had planted the seeds of their own destruction (see Gal 6:7).

8:9 Like a wild donkey: Hosea compared Israel's worship of the Canaanite fertility gods to an animal in heat that was desperate to mate (see Jer 2:23-24). • Israel: (Hebrew Ephraim, referring to the northern kingdom of Israel; also in 8:11.)

8:10 I will now gather them together: Although God sometimes promises to gather his people for deliverance (Zech 10:8-10), here the Lord would gather them for judgment (Joel 3:11).

8:11 Israel has built many altars: As Israel's idolatry increased, her religious activities increased in an attempt to take away sin; instead, these rites only increased her sin.

8:13 I do not accept their sacrifices: See 6:6; Isa 1:10-17; Amos 5:21-24; Mic 6:6-8. • They will return to Egypt, the place of slavery (Deut 28:68). God's dealings with Israel did not end with judgment. The divine purpose of judgment was to restore Israel to the status they had when they came out of Egypt, so that they could experience a new beginning (see 2:14-15).

8:14 Israel has forgotten its Maker: See 2:13. • God's judgment is often described as fire sent upon the royal palaces and fortresses (see Amos 1:4, 7).

9:1 do not rejoice: This is probably a reference to the Festival of Shelters, when Israel celebrated the final harvest of the year. This festival was ordained by God (Deut 16:13-15), but the Israelites had turned it into a wild pagan festival, just as other na- tions had. • hiring yourselves out like prostitutes (literally you have loved a prostitute's pay): The Israelites ignorantly believed that their grain and wine were payment for their worship of the Canaanite fertility god.

9:2 As punishment for their prostitution, the Lord would so reduce the Israelites' harvests that they would go hungry (cp. Hag 1:3-11).

9:3 God would exile the Israelites to Assyria in 722 BC. There, in an unclean land, they would eat ceremonially unclean food, further separating themselves from their covenant with the Lord.

9:4 In exile, the Israelites could not offer legitimate sacrifices because any sacrifice in a foreign land was unclean and defiled.

6 Even if you escape destruction from Assyria, Egypt will conquer you, and Memphis will bury you.
Nettles will take over your treasures of silver;
thistles will invade your ruined homes.

7 The time of Israel's punishment has come;
the day of payment is here.
Soon Israel will know this all too well.
Because of your great sin and hostility,
you say, "The prophets are crazy and the inspired men are fools!"

8 The prophet is a watchman over Israel for my God, yet traps are laid for him wherever he goes.
He faces hostility even in the house of God.

9 The things my people do are as depraved as what they did in Gibeah long ago.
God will not forget.
He will surely punish them for their
sins.

10 The LORD says, "O Israel, when I first found you, it was like finding fresh grapes in the desert.
When I saw your ancestors, it was like seeing the first ripe figs of the season.
But then they deserted me for Baal-peor, giving themselves to that shameful idol.

Soon they became vile,
as vile as the god they worshiped.

11 The glory of Israel will fly away like a bird, for your children will not be born or grow in the womb or even be conceived.

12 Even if you do have children who grow up,
I will take them from you.
It will be a terrible day when I turn away and leave you alone.

13 I have watched Israel become as beautiful as Tyre.
But now Israel will bring out her children for slaughter."

14 O LORD, what should I request for your people?
I will ask for wombs that don't give birth
and breasts that give no milk.

15 The LORD says, "All their wickedness began at Gilgal;
there I began to hate them.
I will drive them from my land because of their evil actions.
I will love them no more because all their leaders are rebels.

16 The people of Israel are struck down.
Their roots are dried up,
and they will bear no more fruit.
And if they give birth,
I will slaughter their beloved children."

17 My God will reject the people of Israel because they will not listen or obey.
They will be wanderers, homeless among the nations.

The Lord's Judgment against Israel

9:6 Even if some Israelites were to escape Assyrian exile by fleeing to Egypt, God's relentless judgment would reach them there. • Memphis was the capital of northern Egypt.

9:7 Apostate Israelites refused to believe God's words of judgment as delivered by the prophets and mockingly cried that the prophets were crazy.

9:8 The watchman stood guard on the wall of the city to warn of any threat (1 Sam 14:16). In the same way, a prophet was God's watchman, stationed to warn Israel of her sin and of the judgment that sin would inevitably bring (see Jer 6:17; Ezek 3:17). Despite his service to the people, all the prophet received was hostility. • Israel: Hebrew Ephraim, referring to the northern kingdom of Israel; also in 9:11, 13, 16.

9:9 what they did in Gibeah long ago: See Judg 19–21.

9:10 when I first found you: Hosea, like Ezekiel (Ezek 16), speaks of the Lord's finding and adopting chaste, innocent Israel in the desert. But Israel soon deserted God for idols at Baal-peor (Num 25:1–4). Participation in idolatry had made the Israelites vile. This strong word can also be translated "detestable" (Deut 29:17) or "abominable" (Jer 7:30). They inevitably resembled what they worshiped.

9:11 Israel worshiped the baals to ensure that they would have many children, but God would punish them by preventing birth, pregnancy, and even conception.

9:13 for slaughter: Rather than gaining them more children, the Israelites' idolatry would backfire, resulting in their children's deaths.

9:15 All their wickedness began at Gilgal: Gilgal was the base camp for Joshua's army (Josh 5:10; 10:6, 43) and the place where Saul was made king (1 Sam 11:15). Saul also disobeyed God and was rejected as king at Gilgal (1 Sam 13:8–15; 15:10–23). Israel's leaders, including its first king, had led the nation away from their true king, the Lord. • I will love them no more: Although a different Hebrew word is used here, the prophetic judgment reflects the name of Hosea's daughter (1:6).

9:17 wanderers: God's judgment on the Israelites would cut them off from the land, leaving them with no home.

10:1 Although Israel was God's luxuriant, fruitful vine (see Isa 5:1–7; Jer 2:21; Ezek 17:6), she falsely attributed her prosperity to the Canaanite fertility gods, rather than to the Lord, and she spent the riches God had given her to enhance her worship of idols. • sacred pillars: Stone pillars could be

- The more bountiful their harvests, the more beautiful their sacred pillars.
- ² The hearts of the people are fickle;
they are guilty and must be punished.
The LORD will break down their altars and smash their sacred pillars.
- ³ Then they will say, "We have no king because we didn't fear the LORD.
But even if we had a king,

Ephraim will be ridiculed and Israel will be shamed,

this idol.
- ⁷ Samaria and its king will be cut off;
they will float away like driftwood on an ocean wave.
- ⁸ And the pagan shrines of Aven, the place of Israel's sin, will crumble.
Thorns and thistles will grow up around their altars.
They will beg the mountains, "Bury us!"
and plead with the hills, "Fall on us!"
- ⁹ The LORD says, "O Israel, ever since Gibeah, there has been only sin and more sin!
You have made no progress whatsoever.
Was it not right that the wicked men of Gibeah were attacked?"

I will attack you, too.
I will call out the armies of the nations to punish you for your multiplied sins.

But I will put a heavy yoke on her

◀ The Near East in Hosea's Time (9:1-17).
At the beginning of Hosea's ministry, ISRAEL and JUDAH were independent kingdoms, but the powers of ASSYRIA and EGYPT were a concern (9:6). After Jeroboam II died in 753 BC, the kingdom of Israel lost its security and independence and was finally destroyed by the Assyrians in 722 BC.

10:8 Aven is a reference to Beth-aven; see 10:5a and the note there. • The only response of Israelites who survived the coming catastrophe would be to implore the mountains and hills, "Bury us! . . . Fall on us!" See Luke 23:30.

10:9-10 The horrible events at Gibeah (Judg 19-21) set the pattern of sin for the people of the northern kingdom of Israel (see 9:9). God's punishment was that they would be overwhelmingly defeated in war, just as in the time of the Judges (see Judg 2:10-15).

10:11 Because Israel (Hebrew Ephraim, referring to the northern kingdom of Israel) was not faithful to the covenant, the Lord placed on her a heavy yoke—the divine correction required to bring her back to him. • and Israel: Literally and Jacob. The names "Jacob" and "Israel" are often interchanged throughout the Old Testament, referring sometimes to the individual patriarch and sometimes to the nation.

acceptable memorials (Gen 35:20; Josh 24:26-27), but God prohibited the Israelites from using them in worship as the Canaanites did (Exod 23:24; Deut 16:22).

10:3 We have no king: Some interpreters see these words as an acknowledgment, after the destruction of Israel, that they had been punished and the monarchy had come to an end because they didn't fear the Lord (see "Fear of the Lord" at Prov 1:7, p. 1030). Others regard this as the Israelites' arrogant rejection of the Lord's kingship.

10:4 The perversion of justice is like bitter, poisonous weeds (Amos 6:12).

10:5-6 Israel's gold calf idol (see 8:5-6) would become a prize of war for the invading Assyrians. • Beth-aven means "house of wickedness"; it is being used as another name for Bethel, which means "house of God." • will be stripped away: Or will be taken away into exile.

I will force Judah to pull the plow and Israel to break up the hard ground.

¹² I said, 'Plant the good seeds of righteousness,
and you will harvest a crop of love.
Plow up the hard ground of your hearts,
for now is the time to seek the LORD, that he may come and shower righteousness upon you.'

¹³ "But you have cultivated wickedness and harvested a thriving crop of
sins.

You have eaten the fruit of lies—trusting in your military might, believing that great armies could make your nation safe.

¹⁴ Now the terrors of war will rise among your people.
All your fortifications will fall,
just as when Shalman destroyed Beth-arbel.

Even mothers and children were dashed to death there.

¹⁵ You will share that fate, Bethel, because of your great wickedness.
When the day of judgment dawns, the king of Israel will be completely destroyed.

The LORD's Love for Israel

11 "When Israel was a child, I loved
him,
and I called my son out of Egypt.

² But the more I called to him,
the farther he moved from me, offering sacrifices to the images of Baal
and burning incense to idols.

³ I myself taught Israel how to walk, leading him along by the hand.

But he doesn't know or even care that it was I who took care of him.

⁴ I led Israel along with my ropes of kindness and love.
I lifted the yoke from his neck,
and I myself stooped to feed him.

⁵ "But since my people refuse to return
to me,
they will return to Egypt and will be forced to serve Assyria.

⁶ War will swirl through their cities; their enemies will crash through their gates.

They will destroy them, trapping them in their own evil
plans.

⁷ For my people are determined to desert me.

They call me the Most High,
but they don't truly honor me.

⁸ "Oh, how can I give you up, Israel?
How can I let you go?

How can I destroy you like Admah or demolish you like Zeboiim?
My heart is torn within me,
and my compassion overflows.

⁹ No, I will not unleash my fierce anger.
I will not completely destroy Israel,
for I am God and not a mere mortal.

I am the Holy One living among you, and I will not come to destroy.

¹⁰ For someday the people will follow me.

I, the LORD, will roar like a lion.

And when I roar,
my people will return trembling from the west.

10:12 Using metaphors from agriculture, God set forth his requirements for his people and a promise of blessing if they did what he commanded (see 6:6; 8:7). Even as Hosea announced God's judgment, he offered Israel the chance to repent and receive God's blessing.

10:14 When Shalman destroyed Beth-arbel: This event is not mentioned elsewhere in the Bible or in other available sources, but it was evidently well known to Hosea's audience.

11:1-11 God agonized over Israel's unfaithfulness. Despite all he had done, Israel had become a rebel. Justice required severe punishment, but the final sentence for Israel would be determined by God's tender compassion for his people, not by an abstract principle.

11:1 my son: The Lord adopted Israel when he delivered him out of Egypt. This verse is quoted in reference to Jesus in Matt 2:15 (see note on Matt 4:1-11).

11:2 In spite of God's love, Israel had become a rebellious child, offering sacrifices to . . . Baal. The penalty for a rebellious son was death (Deut 21:18-21). • the more I called: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads the more they called.

11:3-4 God's nurture of the infant Israel was marked by kindness and love.

11:3 Israel: Hebrew Ephraim, referring to the northern kingdom of Israel; also in 11:8, 9, 12.

11:5-7 Because the Israelites had refused to return to the Lord, they would return to Egypt and . . . serve Assyria. Their past bondage in Egypt was a symbol for their coming exile in Assyria.

11:8 Though justice demanded Israel's death, the Lord recoiled at the thought of giving Israel up, of letting them go, of destroying his son. • Admah and Zeboiim were cities near Sodom and Gomorrah that God totally destroyed (Deut 29:23). • In Hebrew thought, the heart is the center of the intellect and the will.

11:9 No: The Lord alone would determine Israel's fate. God repeated the words I will not three times, emphasizing his decision not to completely destroy his people. • The reason for the divine decision is, I am the Holy One living among you. God's holiness distinguishes him from every created thing (see "God's Absolute Holiness" at Lev 10:3, p. 210). An offended mortal might very well destroy a rebel out of pique and spite. The Holy One does not operate out of those motives.

11:10-11 Israel's sin would not have the final word; God, in his holy love, would roar like a lion (see Amos 1:2; 3:8) to call his people home from exile.

Charges against Israel and Judah

¹² Israel surrounds me with lies and deceit,
but Judah still obeys God and is faithful to the Holy One.

12 The people of Israel feed on the wind;
they chase after the east wind all day
long.
They pile up lies and violence;
they are making an alliance with Assyria
while sending olive oil to buy support from Egypt.

² Now the LORD is bringing charges against Judah.
He is about to punish Jacob for all his deceitful ways,
and pay him back for all he has done.

³ Even in the womb,
Jacob struggled with his brother;
when he became a man,
he even fought with God.

⁴ Yes, he wrestled with the angel and won.
He wept and pleaded for a blessing from him.
There at Bethel he met God face to face,
and God spoke to him—

⁵ the LORD God of Heaven's Armies,
the LORD is his name!

⁶ So now, come back to your God.
Act with love and justice,
and always depend on him.

⁷ But no, the people are like crafty merchants selling from dishonest scales—
they love to cheat.

⁸ Israel boasts, "I am rich!
I've made a fortune all by myself!
No one has caught me cheating!
My record is spotless!"

⁹ "But I am the LORD your God, who rescued you from slavery in Egypt.
And I will make you live in tents again, as you do each year at the Festival of Shelters.

¹⁰ I sent my prophets to warn you with many ¹visions and parables."

¹¹ But the people of Gilead are worthless
because of their idol worship.
And in Gilgal, too, they sacrifice bulls; their altars are lined up like the heaps of stone
along the edges of a plowed field.

¹² Jacob fled to the land of Aram, and there he earned a wife by tending sheep.

¹³ Then by a prophet the LORD brought Jacob's descendants out of Egypt;
and by that prophet
they were protected.

11:12–12:14 Israel had perpetrated lies and deceit since the time of Jacob.

11:12 Verse 11:12 is numbered 12:1 in Hebrew text. • but Judah still obeys God and is faithful to the Holy One: Or and Judah is unruly against God, the faithful Holy One. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

12:1–14 Verses 12:1–14 are numbered 12:2–15 in Hebrew text.

12:1 Israel: Hebrew Ephraim, referring to the northern kingdom of Israel; also in 12:8, 14. • alliance with Assyria: In order to save his land, Hoshea became a vassal of King Shalmaneser of Assyria (2 Kgs 17:3). Hoshea soon rebelled against Shalmaneser by withholding tribute and turned to King So of Egypt for support (2 Kgs 17:4). • east wind: See note on Job 38:24–27.

12:2 Jacob sounds like the Hebrew word for "deceiver."

12:3 Jacob struggled with his brother (literally he supplanted his brother): This verb (Hebrew aqab) forms the root of Jacob's name. Even before he was born, Jacob acted out the meaning of his name by supplanting his brother Esau (Gen 25:26). • As an adult, Jacob even fought with God (see Gen 32:22–30) and was renamed "Israel," meaning "God fights."

12:4 at Bethel he met God: See Gen 28:11–22. • to him: As in Greek and Syriac versions; Hebrew reads to us.

12:6 The Lord admonished Israel to live no longer as Jacob did, but to return to God and act with love and justice.

12:7–8 During the reign of Jeroboam II (793–753 BC), Israelite merchants became fabulously wealthy, often by using deceitful business practices like dishonest scales (see Amos 8:5–6). • The Hebrew term translated merchants is kena'an ("Canaan"). Canaanite traders were notorious in the ancient world for their crafty dealings. The Israelites had imitated their pagan neighbors not only in religion, but also in commerce.

12:9 I will make you live in tents again: God's judgment on the wealthy Israelite merchants was for them to return to the humble dwellings of the Exodus. There is also a word of hope here: God's plan of salvation for Israel would begin anew in the wilderness (see 2:14–15). • as you do each year at the Festival of Shelters: Literally as in the days of your appointed feast.

12:11 Gilead and Gilgal were Israelite cities in which Baal was worshiped instead of the Lord (see 4:15; 6:8; 9:15).

12:12 he: Literally Israel. See note on 10:11.

12:13 by a prophet: Moses' faithful obedience to God contrasts with Israel's disobedience. • brought Jacob's descendants: Literally brought Israel. See note on 10:11.

¹⁴ But the people of Israel have bitterly provoked the LORD, so their Lord will now sentence them to death
in payment for their sins.

The LORD's Anger against Israel

13 When the tribe of Ephraim spoke, the people shook with fear, for that tribe was important in Israel.

But the people of Ephraim sinned by worshipping Baal
and thus sealed their destruction.

² Now they continue to sin by making silver idols, images shaped skillfully with human hands.

"^kSacrifice to these," they cry,
"and kiss the calf idols!"

³ Therefore, they will disappear like the morning mist,
like dew in the morning sun,
like chaff blown by the wind,
like smoke from a chimney.

⁴ "I have been the LORD your God ever since I brought you out of Egypt.

You must acknowledge no God but me,
for there is no other savior.

⁵ I took care of you in the wilderness,
in that dry and thirsty land.

⁶ But when you had eaten and were satisfied,
you became proud and forgot me.

⁷ So now I will attack you like a lion, like a leopard that lurks along the road.

⁸ Like a bear whose cubs have been taken away,
I will tear out your heart.
I will devour you like a hungry lioness and mangle you like a wild animal.

⁹ "You are about to be destroyed, O Israel—
yes, by me, your only helper.

¹⁰ Now where is your king?
Let him save you!

Where are all the leaders of the land,
the king and the officials you demanded of me?

¹¹ In my anger I gave you kings, and in my fury I took them away.

¹² "Ephraim's guilt has been collected, and his sin has been stored up for punishment.

¹³ Pain has come to the people like the pain of childbirth, but they are like a child who resists being born.
The moment of birth has arrived,
but they stay in the womb!

¹⁴ "Should I ransom them from the ^agrave?
Should I ^bredeem them from death?
O death, bring on your terrors!
O ^agrave, bring on your plagues!
For I will not take pity on them.

¹⁵ Ephraim was the most fruitful of all his brothers,
but the east wind—a blast from the LORD—
will arise in the desert.

All their flowing springs will run dry,
and all their wells will disappear.

Every precious thing they own will be plundered and carried away.

13:1 At the height of its power, the tribe of Ephraim evoked terror among other Israelites (see Isa 7:2). • and thus sealed their destruction (literally and he [Ephraim] died): Because of their idolatry, they had cut themselves off from the Lord, the only true source of life.

13:2 The Hebrew word translated idols is the same one used of the gold calf (Exod 32:4, 8; see also 10:5-6; Amos 5:5-6). • kiss the calf idols: The Canaanite religious rituals included kissing images of Baal (1 Kgs 19:18).

13:3 God's judgment on idolatrous Ephraim was that they would disappear (cp. note on 6:4). • Mist . . . dew . . . chaff and smoke signify impermanence.

13:4-5 there is no other savior: The Lord had proved this to Israel during the Exodus and the wilderness wandering.

13:6 you became proud and forgot me: They did not rely on the Lord for security, but on their kings, armies, and economic prosperity (see 2:13).

13:7-8 God had executed judgment on Israel through the Assyrian army, his instrument of punishment. The description of God's attack speaks of the Assyrians' cruelty to those they conquered.

13:9 me, your only helper: See Ps 70:5; 115:9; 121:2; 124:8. Israel's sin had turned their helper into their destroyer.

13:10 where is (as in Greek and Syriac versions and Latin Vulgate; Hebrew reads I will be) your king? When Hoshea's alliance with Egypt failed (see 12:1), he tried to make peace with Assyria, but he was captured and imprisoned (2 Kgs 17:4). The Israelites had relied on their armies and kings to save them rather than on the Lord, and now there was no one to save them.

13:11 Israel had crowned her kings without consulting the Lord, so now he would take them away in fury.

13:12 God had carefully stored up the record of Israel's sin and guilt. She could not escape her punishment.

13:13 Israel was like a child in the womb who resists being born (literally an unwise son). Incredibly, Israel would rather stay in the womb than receive life from the Lord.

13:14 The term here translated the grave (Hebrew Sheol) refers to the realm of the dead (see Job 3:11-19; note on Job 7:9). The Lord is sovereign even over Sheol, and he could redeem Israel if he chose to. But he will not take pity on the Israelites, and he calls upon death to punish them. • Greek version of this couplet reads O death, where is your punishment? / O grave [Hades], where is your sting? Cp. 1 Cor 15:55.

Healing for the Repentant

14 Return, O Israel, to the LORD your God,
for your sins have brought you down.
² Bring your confessions, and return to the LORD.
Say to him,
"Forgive all our sins and graciously receive us,
so that we may offer you our praises.
³ Assyria cannot save us,
nor can our warhorses.
Never again will we say to the idols we have made,
'You are our gods.'
No, in you alone
do the orphans find mercy."
⁴ The LORD says,
"Then I will heal you of your faithlessness;

my love will know no bounds,
for my anger will be gone forever.
⁵ I will be to Israel like a refreshing dew from heaven.
Israel will blossom like the lily;
it will send roots deep into the soil
like the cedars in Lebanon.
⁶ Its branches will spread out like beautiful olive trees,
as fragrant as the cedars of Lebanon.
⁷ My people will again live under my shade.
They will flourish like grain and blossom like grapevines.
They will be as fragrant as the wines of Lebanon.
⁸ "O Israel, stay away from idols!
I am the one who answers your prayers and cares for you.
I am like a tree that is always green;
all your fruit comes from me."
⁹ Let those who are wise understand these things.
Let those with discernment listen carefully.
The paths of the LORD are true and right,
and righteous people live by walking in them.
But in those paths sinners stumble
and fall.

13:16 In 722 BC, Assyria captured Samaria, the capital of the northern kingdom (2 Kgs 17:5-6). Thousands died during the three-year siege, and thousands more were sent into exile. This was because they rebelled against their God. • The horrible practice of killing pregnant women is also mentioned in Amos 1:13 and 2 Kgs 15:16. • This verse is numbered 14:1 in the Hebrew text.

14:1-9 Destruction was not God's last word to his covenant people. Although judgment must come, God's healing, restoring grace is always more powerful than human sin. • These verses are numbered 14:2-10 in the Hebrew text.

14:2-3 Hosea composed a model prayer of confession to help his people return to the Lord. God's prophets not only identified with God in his outrage over Israel's rebellion; they also identified with the people in their broken condition (see also Dan 9:4-19). • Forgive all our sins: The Israelites should throw themselves upon God's mercy and grace, freely acknowledging their many sins. • so that we may offer you our praises (as in Greek and Syriac versions, which read may repay the fruit of our lips; Hebrew reads may repay the bulls of our lips): Israel's inclination was to offer animal sacrifices for sin, but the Lord had made it clear that sacrifices were not the solution (see 6:6). Israel should offer God genuine repentance.

14:3 The Israelites must renounce their dependence upon idols, foreign alliances, and their own military strength. Although they were God's own children (11:1), they made themselves orphans through their rebellion. When they sincerely and completely repented, they could again find mercy.

14:4 Then I will heal you: Healing by God is the only solution for the disease of sin. The Lord heals all our diseases, both physical and spiritual (Ps 103:3).

14:5-7 Hosea describes the effect of God's healing love on repentant Israel. God promises to provide the fertility that Israel had sought from the baals.

14:5 like a refreshing dew: In the semi-desert climate of Israel, dew was an important source of life-giving moisture (Gen 27:28; Deut 33:28). • it will send roots deep: When Israel lived in faithfulness to their covenant with the Lord, they would be solid and stable like the majestic cedars in Lebanon (Ps 92:12).

14:7 under my shade: A place of safety and relief (Ps 91:1; Isa 25:4).

14:8 Hosea exhorts Israel (Hebrew Ephraim, referring to the northern kingdom of Israel) one final time to stay away from idols. Their life comes only from the Lord; he is an evergreen tree that always bears fruit.

14:9 This final verse commends Hosea's words to wise and discerning believers of all generations.

THE BOOK OF Joel

When disaster strikes, we usually respond in one of two ways. We either turn to God and enter a new relationship with him shaped by a fuller understanding of his nature and character, or we turn away from God and blame him or others for our troubles. Some even deny God's existence. The people of ancient Israel experienced disaster and were faced with this same decision. Would they turn away from God in their time of trouble or turn to him and seek his blessings?

SETTING

Joel prophesied to the people of Judah and Jerusalem in the midst of a catastrophe that threatened their very existence. A locust plague of unprecedented proportions had struck the land. Millions of voracious insects arrived in wave after wave to consume every green plant—vegetable gardens, grain crops, grapevines, fruit trees, and even the grass upon which their sheep and goats grazed. In the face of such a disaster, all human and animal life was at risk. In the ancient world, there were no insecticides to kill the locusts, no stocks of non-perishable food for emergencies, and no relief agencies to bring in food supplies. Such a plague brought with it the specter of death for thousands upon thousands, especially the very young and the very old.

During such a perilous time, it was only natural that the people of Judah and Jerusalem would ask hard questions about the justice and mercy of God. Is God truly in charge of heaven and earth? Is he sovereign? Is he good? They also looked inward at their own sin and moral responsibility for the plague. Has God sent the locust plague to punish us for our failure to live in right relationship with him? Will God be merciful to us? Do we have a future? In response to such questions, the prophet Joel delivered the word of the Lord to his people.

◀ Setting of Joel. Joel might have prophesied during the reign of Jeroboam II (793–753 BC) or following the Exile (after 538 BC). The area around JUDAH is shown, along with places mentioned in 3:4-8.

SUMMARY

The book of Joel consists of two nearly equal parts. In the first section (1:1–2:17), the prophet describes the devastating locust plague that afflicted Judah and Jerusalem. The plague was so severe that it laid waste the entire land, destroying grains, vines, and trees. The effects of the plague were further compounded by a drought that left the land parched and burned. As a result, both humans and animals groaned with hunger, and the people had nothing left to bring to the Temple as an offering to the Lord. Therefore, in 2:12–17, Joel calls on the people to repent and throw themselves on the mercy of their compassionate God. (Other commentators have understood this passage as an apocalyptic description of the coming day of the Lord, using the language of a locust plague to describe an invading human army.)

In the second part of the book (2:18–3:21), the Lord promises to take pity on his people and restore their land following the locust plague. In 2:18–27, Joel describes how God will restore their material lives in the immediate future, replenishing their fields, orchards, vineyards, and flocks. In 2:28–3:21, Joel turns his attention to the more distant future when God will restore their spiritual lives. At that time, God will pour out his Spirit on all people who respond to him in faith. God will also render judgment on the peoples and nations that refuse to acknowledge his lordship.

DATE OF WRITING

Not to know the time of Hosea would be to readers a great loss, for there are many parts which would not be explained without a knowledge of history; but as to Joel there is . . . less need of this; for the importance of his doctrine is evident, though his time be obscure and uncertain.

JOHN CALVIN, Joel, Amos & Obadiah: A Commentary on the Minor Prophets, vol. 2, p. xv

We do not know when the prophet Joel lived and prophesied. Unlike most of the prophetic books, his book does not list the kings under whom he ministered (see, e.g., Amos 1:1; Mic 1:1), nor does it provide any other clear historical information. For this reason, scholars have proposed many different dates for Joel.

In the Hebrew and English Bibles, Joel is placed between Hosea and Amos, who prophesied during the 700s BC. This has led some to propose that Joel was an early prophet who may have lived even before Amos and Hosea. Because the book makes no mention of a king and regards the priesthood favorably, these interpreters believe that Joel prophesied while Joash (835–796 BC) was still a child, when the kingdom was under the oversight of Jehoiada the priest (see 2:17; 2 Kgs 12).

On the other hand, when these considerations are coupled with others,

The two great themes of Joel encompass the two major poles of the gospel. First, Joel announces God's very real judgment on human sin, a judgment that concerns the whole world of nature and nations. Second, however, Joel proclaims the merciful grace of God, who will not give over his covenant people and his creation to final destruction. In proclaiming this message, the prophecies of Joel are never out-of-date.

they seem to point to a much later date for Joel. Joel never refers to the northern kingdom of Israel or to its capital city, Samaria, suggesting that the prophet lived after their destruction in 722 BC. Likewise, Joel never mentions Assyria or Babylon, Israel's great enemies from the 700s to 500s BC, leading many to argue that these two empires were already long past for Joel. Because the monarchy ended with the Exile in 586 BC, many scholars see this as an indication that Joel lived after the Jewish people began returning to their own land in 538 BC.

Finally, there are numerous passages in which Joel could be seen as drawing upon or directly quoting the words and ideas of prophets such as Amos, Zephaniah, Obadiah, and Ezekiel. Although it is possible that Joel ministered before these prophets and that they were the ones who borrowed from him (see notes on Amos 1:2; 9:13), it is also possible that Joel adapted the earlier prophetic words to speak God's word to people who faced an entirely new situation.

These observations do not prove that Joel lived and prophesied after the Exile, but they are convincing enough that the majority of biblical scholars accept a postexilic date. Fortunately, knowing the exact time in history that Joel prophesied is less important in his case than it is for other prophets. Joel's message concerns issues that are relevant to every age.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

Throughout the book of Joel, we clearly see God's sovereignty over all creation. He is Lord of both the natural world and human civilization. The locust plague was not merely a natural event; the army of insects came at God's command (2:11). The Lord controls rain and drought, fertility and famine, blessing and destruction. All peoples, both Israelites and non-Israelites, are subject to his sovereign judgment, but divine sovereignty does not negate human responsibility. Because human sin has so negatively affected the natural world, Joel calls the people of Judah and Jerusalem to repentance.

Joel can offer the Israelites the opportunity to repent because he knows that God is merciful and compassionate. It is God's nature to forgive those who repent rather than to judge them, to restore rather than to destroy. Quoting an ancient text (Exod 34:6-7), Joel extends God's gracious invitation to the Israelites: "Return to the LORD your God, for he is merciful and compassionate, slow to get angry and filled with unfailing love" (2:13).

For Joel, the proper way to express repentance was through the official Temple worship presided over by the priests. This may seem surprising because several earlier prophets had denounced the official worship because of widespread corruption among the priests and leaders (see Amos 5:21-24; Isa 1:10-18), but Joel recognized the value in worship when it is performed with a sincere heart that is fully open to God (an attitude characteristic of postexilic prophets—see Haggai, Zechariah, and Malachi). In worship, invisible eternal realities are represented by physical objects and actions. However, the prophet reminds the Israelites that religion is much more than outward display; true worship is founded on inward transformation (2:13). The solution to corrupt worship is not to abandon worship, but to worship God in spirit and in truth (John 4:23-24).

To a people who faced disaster, Joel brought the message that their God was fully in control of the future. He assured them that on the day of the Lord (1:15; 2:1; see "The Day of the LORD" at 2:1-32, p. 1445), God would intervene in the world to judge the wicked and to establish peace and justice. Then he will pour out his Spirit on every class, gender, and age, making it possible for his people to live in accord with his law. The wrongs that all too often dominate our fallen world will only be righted when God fully and finally comes into his creation (2:28-3:21; see Matt 16:27; Acts 2:16-40; Col 2:13-22; Rev 21:1-22:21).

Mourning over the Locust Plague

² Hear this, you leaders of the people.

Listen, all who live in the land.

In all your history, has anything like this happened
before?

³ Tell your children about it in the years to come,
and let your children tell their children.

Pass the story down from generation to generation.

⁴ After the cutting locusts finished eating the crops,
the swarming ^alocusts took what was left!

After ^athem came the hopping locusts,
and then the stripping locusts, too!

⁵ Wake up, you drunkards, and weep!
Wail, all you wine-drinkers!

All the grapes are ruined,
and all your sweet wine is gone.

⁶ A vast army of locusts has invaded my land,
a terrible army too numerous to count.
Its teeth are like lions' teeth,
its fangs like those of a lioness.

⁷ It has destroyed my grapevines and ruined my fig trees, stripping their bark and destroying it, leaving the branches white and bare.

⁸ Weep like a bride dressed in black, mourning the death of her husband.

⁹ For there is no grain or wine to offer at the Temple of the LORD.
So the priests are in mourning.
The ministers of the LORD are weeping.

¹⁰ The fields are ruined,
the land is stripped bare.
The grain is destroyed,
the grapes have shriveled,
and the olive oil is gone.

¹¹ Despair, all you farmers!
Wail, all you vine growers!
Weep, because the wheat and barley—all the crops of the field—are ruined.

1:1-2:17 Joel describes the devastating locust plague that afflicted Judah and Jerusalem.

1:1 The LORD gave this message (literally The word of the LORD came): The LORD, not the human prophet, was the ultimate source of these words. • The name Joel means "the LORD (Yahweh) is God." Joel's father, Pethuel, is unknown apart from this verse.

1:2 Hear this: Joel summoned the inhabitants of the land to pay close attention to the prophetic word. • Leaders (literally elders): The prophet asked the community elders, has anything like this happened before? It hadn't—this disaster was unique in the history of God's people.

1:3 God's people would tell future generations about what was taking place so that their descendants would benefit from the lessons they had learned (cp. Deut 4:9; 6:20-25).

1:4 The disaster that had befallen Judah was a catastrophic plague of locusts. The precise identification of the four kinds of locusts mentioned here is uncertain. Some commentators have understood the words to represent four ancient empires that conquered Israel. Others have suggested that the words indicate four stages in the development of locusts. Most likely, the prophet was using multiple terms to emphasize the extent of the destruction wrought by wave after wave of the voracious insects.

1:5 Wake up . . . Wail: The prophet sought to arouse the people and alert them to the gravity of the locust plague.

1:6 A vast army of locusts: Literally A nation.

1:7 The destructive power of locusts is well documented in both ancient and modern times. The insatiable insects consume annual crops such as grains and vegetables, and they destroy perennial fruit-bearing trees and vines, leaving the branches white and bare.

1:8 Weep like a bride (literally a virgin): Judah is compared to a young betrothed woman whose marriage is never consummated due to the death of her husband.

1:9 The locust plague threatened the people of Judah with starvation and brought the regular daily animal sacrifices and offerings of grain and wine at the Temple in Jerusalem to a halt (cp. Exod 29:38-41; Num 28:2-8).

1:10 The locusts destroyed the three essential staple crops of ancient Israel: grain, grapes, and olive oil.

¹² The grapevines have dried up, and the fig trees have withered.
The pomegranate trees, palm trees, and apple trees—
all the fruit trees—have dried up.
And the people's joy has dried up with
them.

¹³ Dress yourselves in burlap and weep, you priests!
Wail, you who serve before the altar!
Come, spend the night in burlap,
you ministers of my God.
For there is no grain or wine to offer at the Temple of your God.

¹⁴ Announce a time of fasting; call the people together for a solemn meeting.
Bring the leaders and all the people of the land into the Temple of the LORD your God, and cry out to him there.

¹⁵ The day of the LORD is near, the day when destruction comes from the ^bAlmighty.
How terrible that day will be!

¹⁶ Our food disappears before our very eyes.
No joyful celebrations are held in the house of our God.

¹⁷ The seeds die in the parched ground,
and the grain crops fail.
The barns stand empty,
and granaries are abandoned.

¹⁸ How the animals moan with hunger!

The herds of cattle wander about confused,
because they have no pasture.
The flocks of sheep and goats bleat in misery.

¹⁹ LORD, help us!
The fire has consumed the wilderness
pastures,
and flames have burned up all the trees.

²⁰ Even the wild animals cry out to you because the streams have dried up, and fire has consumed the wilderness
pastures.

Locusts Invade like an Army

2 ¹ Sound the trumpet in Jerusalem!
Raise the alarm on my holy mountain!

Let everyone tremble in fear because the day of the LORD is upon us.

² It is a day of darkness and gloom, a day of thick clouds and deep blackness.

Suddenly, like dawn spreading across the mountains,
a great and mighty army appears.
Nothing like it has been seen before or will ever be seen again.

³ Fire burns in front of them, and flames follow after them.
Ahead of them the land lies as beautiful as the Garden of Eden.

1:12 Drought had intensified the devastation of the locust plague; everything had withered and dried up (see also 1:19-20). Spiritually, the people's joy had dried up along with the fruit trees.

1:13-14 The priests were to lead all the people in public rites of mourning at the Temple. Their outward actions must be matched by authentic inward change (see 2:13).

1:15 The locust plague was not simply a natural event, but a sign that the day of the LORD was near. Beginning with Amos in the 700s BC (Amos 5:18), the prophets had spoken of a future time when God would intervene in human history to judge the wicked and vindicate the righteous. • destruction . . . from the Almighty: The Hebrew text highlights the similar sounds of the word destruction (shod) and the title the Almighty (shadday).

1:17 Plague and drought had so reduced the food supply that the barns stood empty.

1:18 The inhabitants of Judah were hard pressed by the famine; even sheep and goats, animals that can live on very meager forage, bleat in misery for lack of food.

1:19 LORD, help us! (literally to you, LORD, I cry): Joel responded to the plague with an earnest prayer. The people's only recourse was to turn to the sovereign Lord of heaven and earth and appeal to his goodness; he alone could reverse their desperate situation.

1:20 All creation suffers because of human sin (Gen 3:17-18; 9:2; Rom 8:20-21)—even the wild animals cry out to God. The Hebrew word translated “cry out” is the same word used in Ps 42:1 of the deer that “longs” for streams of water. The beasts, urgently requiring their food and drink, set an example of how the people of Judah and Jerusalem should seek their Lord (cp. Isa 1:3).

2:1-11 Some regard this section as a second account of the locust plague described in ch 1, but in ch 1, the plague is in the past, whereas in this section, the verb tenses seem to depict it as a future event. Thus, others see it as a warning of yet another locust plague. Still other commentators have understood this passage as an apocalyptic description of the coming day of the LORD, using the language of a locust plague to describe an invading human army.

2:1 When an ancient city was attacked, the watchmen on the city wall would sound the trumpet by blowing on a ram's horn, the shofar (see also 2:15), to call all the defenders to repel the enemy. • Jerusalem: Hebrew Zion; also in 2:15, 23.

2:2 Some religious leaders had taught the people of Jerusalem and Judah that the day of the Lord would be a time of blessing for God's people. Echoing the prophet Zephaniah (Zeph 1:15), Joel proclaimed that it would instead be a day of darkness and gloom (see also Amos 5:18-20).

2:3 The destruction wrought by the invading army would be like a raging wildfire. Before the attack, the land looked like the Garden of Eden, but afterwards, it would be nothing but desolation (a reversal of Isa 51:3 and Ezek 36:35).

2 Pet 3:3-14

The day of the Lord is a central concept in the book of Joel. The term day of the LORD first appeared in the prophecy of Amos (Amos 5:18), but it did not originate with him. Amos was correcting a popular misunderstanding that the Israelites already held. They believed that the day of the Lord would be a joyous day of salvation when God would intervene in the world to judge Israel's enemies and reestablish Israelite rule over all of greater Canaan. Amos warned them that the day of the Lord would not be light for them, but darkness, for they were in rebellion against the Lord (e.g., Amos 5:10-12, 21-27). Self-confident Israelites assumed that God was always on their side, but their sins had, in fact, made them God's enemies, and they deserved his full punishment. A little over a century after Amos, Zephaniah said very similar things to the Judeans about the day of the Lord (e.g., Zeph 1:7-18). The theme became part of the standard vocabulary of the prophets, often being referred to simply as “that day” (Isa 2:11; 27:1; Jer 31:1; Hos 2:18; Mic 7:11; Zech 3:10).

Joel interpreted the locust plague much as Amos or Zephaniah would have done (see 1:7-9, 14-18). Joel saw the plague as a sign that the day of the Lord was near, and that God was judging the people of Judah and Jerusalem for their sins. Their only proper response was to gather in the Temple and repent. In the second half of the book, however, Joel foretold a day of the Lord yet to come. At that time, God would pour out his Spirit on Israel (2:28-32); he would restore his repentant people, vindicate them, and punish the nations that had oppressed them. In this way, Joel combines both understandings of the day of the Lord. It is a day of judgment for all who rebel against God, including sinful Israelites. But it is also a day of salvation for those who have listened to the words of the prophets and have turned to the Lord.

2:4-5 They look like horses: The resemblance between locusts and horses (see also Rev 9:7) heightens the image of the locusts as an army (see note on 2:1-11). • Listen to the noise they make: The noise made by a locust swarm can be deafening. • like warhorses: Or like charioteers.

2:6 Fear grips all the people: Anticipating the invasion prepared the people for the call to repentance in 2:12-14.

2:7-9 The locusts would invade urban as well as agricultural areas, advancing like a disciplined, well-trained army to scale city walls and swarm over the city. Finding every means of entrance, they would even climb like thieves through the windows.

2:10 The quaking of the earth and the heavens is a typical sign of theophany, an appearance of God (see Exod 19:16-19; Isa 13:13; Nah 1:5-6). The darkening of the sun and moon symbolizes divine judgment (Isa 13:9-11).

2:11 The LORD is at the head of the column (literally the LORD utters his voice before his army): The coming destruction was not simply an act of nature or the result of human activity, but an act of God. • This is his mighty army: God executed this judgment. • Who can possibly survive? Apart from God's grace and mercy, no one can.

2:12-17 Joel calls on the people to repent and throw themselves on the mercy of their compassionate God.

2:12 This verse begins with the words the LORD says, a phrase that frequently accompanies divine speeches in the

- Come with fasting, weeping, and mourning.
- ¹³ Don't tear your clothing in your grief, but tear your hearts instead." Return to the LORD your God, for he is merciful and compassionate, "slow to get angry and filled with unfailing love. He is eager to relent and not punish.
- ¹⁴ Who knows? Perhaps he will give you a reprieve, sending you a blessing instead of this curse. Perhaps you will be able to offer grain and wine to the LORD your God as before.
- ¹⁵ Blow the ram's horn in Jerusalem! Announce a time of fasting; call the people together for a solemn meeting.
- ¹⁶ Gather all the "people—the elders, the children, and even the babies. Call the bridegroom from his quarters and the bride from her private room.
- ¹⁷ Let the "priests, who minister in the LORD's presence, stand and weep between the entry room to the Temple and the altar. Let them pray, "Spare your people, LORD! Don't let your special possession become an object of mockery.

Don't let them become a joke for unbelieving foreigners who say, 'Has the God of Israel left them?' "

3. FUTURE RESTORATION AND HOPE (2:18–3:21)

The LORD's Promise of Restoration

¹⁸ Then the LORD will pity his people and "jealously guard the honor of his land.

¹⁹ The LORD will reply, "Look! I am sending you grain and new wine and olive oil, enough to satisfy your needs. You will no longer be an object of mockery among the surrounding nations.

²⁰ I will drive away these armies from the north.

I will send them into the parched wastelands.

Those in the front will be driven into the Dead Sea, and those at the rear into the Mediterranean.

The stench of their rotting bodies will rise over the land."

Surely the LORD has done great things!

²¹ Don't be afraid, O land.

Be glad now and rejoice, for the LORD has done great things.

²² Don't be afraid, you animals of the field, for the wilderness pastures will soon be green.

prophets. This is the only time that it occurs in Joel ("says the LORD" in 3:1 is supplied by the translators), and it indicates that this gracious invitation came directly from God. • Turn to me now, while there is time: The Lord implored his people to repent because the day of judgment was near. There was still opportunity to avoid the coming destruction if they returned to the Lord their God with true repentance. • Unlike other prophets, Joel never catalogs the sins committed by the people of Judah and Jerusalem. Perhaps they were so obvious that he did not feel the need to list them.

2:13 One means of showing grief in the ancient world was to tear one's clothing (Gen 37:34; 2 Sam 3:31; 2 Kgs 19:1). • tear your hearts: In Hebrew, the heart is the center of thought, faith, and will. God's people were to go beyond external demonstrations of repentance to repent inwardly—to change their orientation, priorities, and attitudes. This could only happen if they would return to the LORD. • for he is merciful and compassionate . . . and filled with unfailing love: The people's only hope was in the merciful character of the Lord (see also Exod 34:6-7; Num 14:18; Neh 9:17; Ps 86:15; 103:8; 145:8; Jon 4:2). God's desire is not to punish, but to forgive and restore his people.

2:14 Who knows? Joel's simple question acknowledges God's absolute sovereignty (see also Jon 3:9). God is not obligated to restore us merely because we perform certain rituals. Forgiveness comes only through divine grace, but Joel knew that God was inclined to forgive (2:13).

2:15 Joel called for a time of fasting and a solemn meeting for the purpose of seeking God.

2:16 bridegroom . . . and the bride: Newlyweds were exempt from most civic duties in ancient Israel (Deut 24:5; Luke 14:20), but in this emergency, everyone would be summoned to the Temple to cry out to God.

2:17 Spare your people, LORD! Assembled at the Temple, the religious leaders and all the people were to do the only thing possible in their desperate situation: seek the mercy and compassion of God.

2:18–3:21 Up to this point, the book of Joel has focused on God's judgment upon Judah and Jerusalem, but from here on, it describes God's promise of restoration. If the people sincerely repent, God will respond graciously.

2:18–27 God promised to restore his people's material lives in the immediate future, replenishing their fields, orchards, vineyards, and flocks.

2:18 Since both people and land suffered from God's judgment, both would be the objects of his zealous compassion.

2:19–20 grain and new wine and olive oil: God would restore the fruits of the land. This would again make available the elements necessary for sacrifice and worship (see 1:10, 13). God would also eradicate the invading armies from the north.

2:20 into the Dead Sea . . . into the Mediterranean: Literally into the eastern sea, . . . into the western sea.

2:21–22 Don't be afraid: God's great deliverance would be full and complete.

Judgment against Enemy Nations

There I will judge them for harming my people, my special

2:23 autumn rains . . . rains of spring: God would once again restore the regular pattern of rainfall, and the drought (1:12, 20) would be reversed.

2:25 The Lord promised restitution for the terrible damage done by the locusts (see 1:4, 10, and notes). • The precise identification of the four kinds of locusts mentioned here is uncertain.

2:26-27 and you will praise the LORD your God: God's promised restoration of their crops and food supply should lead the people of Judah and Jerusalem to praise and adoration, acknowledging that the Lord was in their midst and that he alone is God.

2:28-3:21 In the more distant future, God would restore his people's spiritual lives, pour out his Spirit on all people who respond to him in faith, and render judgment on the peoples and nations that refuse to acknowledge his lordship.

2:28-32 The prophet looked beyond his time to the future day of the Lord, when God would pour out his Spirit in ways never before seen and would perform signs and wonders for all humanity to see. The apostle Peter quoted this passage as being fulfilled on the day of Pentecost (Acts 2:16-21). • Verses 2:28-32 are numbered 3:1-5 in the Hebrew text.

2:28-29 I will pour out my Spirit upon all people: In Israel, the empowering gift of God's Spirit had previously been given only to select individuals such as judges (Judg 3:10; 15:14), priests (2 Chr 24:20), kings (1 Sam 10:10), and prophets (Isa 61:1). A time was coming when the Spirit would be given to every one of God's people, regardless of gender, age, or social position. In fulfillment of Moses' wish that every Israelite might be a prophet (Num 11:29), all would prophesy and see visions. In Acts 2, Peter expanded this promise to include people from all over the known world who were gathered in Jerusalem, regardless of their ethnicity (Acts 2:39; see also Gal 3:28).

2:30-31 The future outpouring of God's Spirit would be accompanied by signs and wonders. Blood and fire and . . . smoke, together with the darkening of the sun and the moon, are indications of God's coming in judgment (see 2:10; Mark 13:24; Rev 6:12).

2:31 terrible: Greek version reads glorious.

2:32 everyone who calls on the name of the LORD will be saved: Calling on the name of God should not be a final act of desperation; it accompanies a lifelong commitment of worship, service, and fellowship with the Lord (see Gen 12:8; Ps 105:1; Isa 12:4; Rom 10:13; 12:1-2). • Those whom the LORD has called are his chosen remnant, the survivors of judgment who worship him (see 2 Kgs 19:31; Ezra 9:8-15; Isa 10:20-22).

3:1-21 Verses 3:1-21 are numbered 4:1-21 in the Hebrew text.

3:1-16 Joel here foretold divine judgment on the nations, particularly those that had oppressed God's people.

3:2-3 The Lord would assemble the armies of the world (literally all the

would be their slaves.
They traded boys to obtain prostitutes and sold girls for enough wine to get drunk.

4 "What do you have against me, Tyre and Sidon and you cities of Philistia? Are you trying to take revenge on me? If you are, then watch out! I will strike swiftly and pay you back for everything you have done. 5 You have taken my silver and gold and all my precious treasures, and have carried them off to your pagan temples. 6 You have sold the people of Judah and Jerusalem to the Greeks, so they could take them far from their homeland.

7 "But I will bring them back from all the places to which you sold them, and I will pay you back for everything you have done. 8 I will sell your sons and daughters to the people of Judah, and they will sell them to the people of Arabia, a nation far away. I, the LORD, have spoken!"

9 Say to the nations far and wide:

"Get ready for war!

Call out your best warriors.

Let all your fighting men advance for the attack.

10 Hammer your plowshares into swords and your pruning hooks into spears.
Train even your weaklings to be warriors.

11 Come quickly, all you nations everywhere.
Gather together in the valley."

And now, O LORD, call out your warriors!

12 "Let the nations be called to arms.

Let them march to the valley of Jehoshaphat.

There I, the LORD, will sit to pronounce judgment on them all.

13 Swing the sickle,
for the harvest is ripe.

Come, tread the grapes,
for the winepress is full.

The storage vats are overflowing with the wickedness of these people."

14 Thousands upon thousands are waiting in the valley of decision.

There the day of the LORD will soon arrive.

and the stars will no longer shine.

16 The LORD's voice will roar from Zion
and thunder from Jerusalem,
and the heavens and the earth will shake.

But the LORD will be a refuge for his people,
a strong fortress for the people of Israel.

Blessings for God's People nations) in the valley of Jehoshaphat (Jehoshaphat means "the LORD judges"). This valley was not connected with King Jehoshaphat of Judah (1 Kgs 22:41); rather, the title identifies the site as the place where God would render his decision (see 3:14) regarding the fate of the nations. • threw dice: Literally cast lots. • The sins of the nations include exiling God's covenant people and victimizing helpless boys and girls in an inhuman slave trade (cp. Ezek 27:13; Rev 18:13).

3:4-6 The Phoenician cities of Tyre and Sidon and the cities of Philistia were guilty of looting the precious treasures of Jerusalem and selling its people as slaves to the Greeks (literally to the peoples of Javan; see Amos 1:6, 9).

3:7-8 The people of Tyre, Sidon, and Philistia had enslaved Israelites, so the Lord would punish them by selling their sons and daughters into slavery. • to the people of Arabia: Hebrew to the Sabaeans.

3:9 The nations are mockingly called to a futile war against the Lord that will end in their destruction and judgment.

3:10 Hammer your plowshares into swords: Deliberately reversing an image from Isa 2:4 and Mic 4:3, Joel ordered the nations to mobilize every resource for the forthcoming battle. Even those unfit for war, the weaklings, must become soldiers.

3:12 The battle would take place in the valley of Jehoshaphat (see note on 3:2-3), where the Lord would pronounce judgment on them all.

3:13 God would defeat the nations like a sickle that mows down stalks of grain and like workers who tread grapes in the winepress (see Isa 63:2-3; Rev 14:14-20). • for the harvest is ripe: Greek version reads for the harvest time has come. Cp. Mark 4:29.

3:14 Thousands upon thousands (literally roaring, roaring; or crowds, crowds): The repetition of the Hebrew word captures the chaotic noise made by an immense crowd. • valley of decision: The name of the valley is changed (cp. 3:2-3, 12) because now the Lord's judgment had been decided.

3:16 The LORD's voice, like that of a lion, would roar from Zion, shaking heaven and earth and terrifying sinners (see Amos 1:2). Yet this same ferocious lion is also a refuge for his people.

3:17 Then you will know: God's ultimate purpose is that his people should know him and share his holy character. They must learn that he alone is God and that he reigns over all creation from Zion, his holy mountain (see also 2:27). The only true security in the present, and the only hope for the future, comes from God's presence.

3:20-21 The conclusion of Joel's prophecy is the antithesis of its beginning. In ch 1, Judah's future seemed in grave doubt. Plague and drought, the signs of divine judgment, threatened Judah's existence. Now Joel ends with the divine assurance that Judah . . . and Jerusalem (Hebrew Zion) will endure through all generations. God's people in every generation rest secure in the hope that his kingdom will reign over heaven and earth (see also Isa 9:6-7; Dan 2:44; 7:13-14).

THE BOOK OF Amos

“Prepare to meet your God,” Amos proclaimed to those who worshiped idols (4:12). Let there be “a mighty flood of justice,” Amos admonished the rich who oppressed the poor (5:24). What brought this shepherd from Tekoa to Bethel to pronounce such powerful judgments? Amos did not make his living as a professional prophet (7:14); the “roar” of God (1:2; 3:8) had moved him to make the journey. His message calls for righteousness—right worship that yields right social ethics. God’s people still need the prophet’s help to make that connection.

SETTING

In 931 BC, the kingdom of Israel split into two lesser kingdoms: the northern kingdom (Israel) and the southern kingdom (Judah). The king of the north, Jeroboam I, did not want his subjects to go to Jerusalem (in the south) to worship, so he established shrines at Dan and Bethel. Drawing on an earlier precedent (Exod 32), Jeroboam used images of young bulls to represent the Lord (1 Kgs 12:25-33). This move typified the northern kingdom’s rejection of God’s revelation in defining both their worship and their ethics. Because pagan religions focused on acquiring power, paganized Israel became an abuser of the powerless.

The calf shrines that Jeroboam I established at Dan and Bethel (1 Kgs 12:29), together with the presence of the baals (local representations of the Canaanite storm-god), reduced the worship of Yahweh (the LORD) in the northern kingdom to a pagan religion like that of Israel’s neighbors. The purpose of this worship was only to receive some desired benefit. When Elijah challenged the priests of Baal on Mount Carmel, it was because the people wanted to worship both Yahweh and Baal. However, Elijah left them without that alternative (1 Kgs 18:21, 24). The message of Amos was similar.

◀ Israel and Judah, around 753 BC. At the time of Amos’s ministry, Israel under King Jeroboam II (793–753 BC) was prosperous and proud, but judgment was soon to come.

When Amos arrived in Israel (shortly before 753 BC), the rich were getting richer and the poor were getting poorer. Egypt was also in decline. Around 801 BC, the Assyrians had captured Damascus but were forced to withdraw due to problems elsewhere. In the resulting power vacuum, both Israel (2 Kgs 14:23-29) and Judah (2 Kgs 15:1-7; 2 Chr 26) flourished, recovering some of the territory they had lost to Aram. The two kingdoms increased in prosperity, but the greater prosperity merely increased the power of those who already had it. Those who had no power were even more oppressed.

In response to this situation, Amos traveled from Tekoa (in Judah) to the northern shrine at Bethel, where he called Israel to account for its apostasy and inhumanity.

SUMMARY

Amos delivered his prophetic messages at the Bethel shrine. He confronted Israel with the message that lip service is not enough in worship of the Lord.

After a brief introduction (1:1-2), the first section of Amos (1:3-2:16) is a series of eight indictments. The prophet directs the first seven charges against surrounding nations, with the eighth against Israel itself. By first charging Israel's enemies with war crimes and theological aberrations, Amos wins the sympathy and agreement of his hearers. Then he says, "The people of Israel, too, have sinned."

What follows (3:1-5:17) is framed by three prophetic messages. The first (3:1-2) accuses Israel of abusing its privileged status as God's chosen people. The second (4:1-3) is an indictment of Israel's party crowd. The third (5:1-2) is a funeral song for the predicted death of the nation. Between the prophetic messages Amos includes rhetorical questions (3:3-6), metaphors from his life as a shepherd (3:8, 12), sarcastic irony (4:4-5), historical recitation (4:6-11), hymn fragments (4:13; 5:8-9), puns (5:5), pleas for repentance, and predictions of the doom that awaits the unrepentant.

The third section of Amos (5:18-6:14) contains two prophetic messages of woe: the first is a warning to those who proclaim the day of the Lord as a time when God will reestablish Israel as a leading nation (5:18-27); the second admonishes those who trust in their wealth, houses, or fortifications to save them (6:1-14).

The fourth section (7:1-9:10) contains five prophetic oracles based on visions. Amos first wins over his hearers with visions of two judgments that would be averted (7:1-6), but then drives home his message with two judgments that would not be turned aside (7:7-9; 8:1-3). These visions are interrupted by a brief biographical vignette (7:10-17). The final vision is of the complete destruction of Israel and its religious system (9:1-10).

The dark days in which [Amos] lived called for a man of sturdy moral fiber and fearlessness. Such was Amos. His character, molded in the harsh terrain of the wilderness of Tekoa, enabled him to stand before the priest and the people, proclaiming the word God had given him.

Amos

"Let Justice roll down like waters in a mighty stream," said the Prophet Amos. He was seeking not consensus but the cleansing action of revolutionary change.

Martin Luther King, Jr.,
"Let Justice Roll Down"

Finally (9:11-15), Amos promises better days to come, a time of healing and restoration when Jerusalem would be rebuilt, the dynasty of David would be reestablished in the land, and people would live in the peace of God's kingdom.

DATE AND LOCATION

Amos's ministry was brief, perhaps limited to a single year. Its setting was the royal shrine at Bethel in the northern kingdom (7:13), a short time before the death of Jeroboam II in 753 BC (1:1).

RECIPIENTS

Amos directed his message to all the Israelite people, but especially to the rich, powerful, and self-indulgent (see especially 5:18-6:8). While Amos clearly considered Israel's split from Judah and the Jerusalem sanctuary as the primary cause of its moral and spiritual decline, he was aware that Judah was also slipping away from a pure worship of the Lord (2:4-5). Thus, the book includes condemnation of those "who lounge in luxury in Jerusalem," as well as indictment of the smugly secure in Samaria (see 6:1).

THE PROPHET AMOS

All that is known about the life of Amos comes from the book bearing his name. According to the superscription, he was a shepherd (noqed) from Tekoa (modern Teku'a), a small, fortified town about five miles south of Bethlehem in Judah.

Earlier scholars often characterized the prophet as a poor sheep-herder who represented the marginalized classes in Judah and who was unjustly oppressed by wealthy landowners. More recent studies, however, have taken a different direction. The Hebrew word commonly used for a shepherd is ro'eh (as in Ps 23:1), not noqed. In its only occurrence as a noun outside the book of Amos, the word describes Mesha, king of Moab, as one who regularly delivered a substantial tribute of wool and sheep to Israel (2 Kgs 3:4). The term noqed probably designates someone who owned sheep rather than a shepherd who worked for someone else. A second insight comes from Amos 7:14. Here Amos uses a different word for shepherd (boqer; literally herder), perhaps indicating that he owned cattle, a sign of considerable wealth. Amos further describes himself as one who tends sycamore-fig trees (7:14), the fruit of which was used for animal fodder. The word that is used (boles) does not occur elsewhere, but in the context of boqer, it may mean someone who raised sycamore-figs, rather than a worker who tended the orchards of others.

The emerging picture, then, is not one of a simple herder who tended the sheep and trees of others, but of an owner and manager of livestock and trees. This newer perspective on Amos harmonizes well with the contents of his prophecy. The book is written in excellent Judean Hebrew and shows a keen awareness of Israel's heritage as well as its contemporary political and economic circumstances.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

Moses uniquely depicted God as ethical and as caring deeply for the powerless (see, e.g., Deut 24:10-22). But Israel's apostasy and moral corruption permitted oppression of the poor and powerless. Material prosperity erroneously came to be seen as a sign of God's favor, and the people prized appearances over substance. This violated God's requirements for a holy people.

Proper worship of the true God yields ethical behavior toward others. But corrupt worship and theology will corrupt human relationships. Theology yields morality, right worship yields good works, and faith yields practical change. It is not enough to give lip service to God. Morality cannot be defined simply as personal purity or integrity; it also includes social obligations born of the conviction that all human life is God's creation and bears his image (Gen 1:26-27). Service to God is expressed through service to his creatures.

Because this cry for humane treatment of the downtrodden applies to all people in every generation, Amos has inspired great social reformers. For example, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., used these denunciations and exhortations in his own preaching as a stimulus for the American civil rights movement of the 1950s and 1960s.

1. SUPERScription: INTRODUCING THE PROPHET (1:1-2)

1 This message was given to Amos, a shepherd from the town of Tekoa in Judah. He received this message in visions two years before the earthquake, when Uzziah was king of Judah and Jeroboam II, the son of Jehoash, was king of Israel.

²This is what he saw and heard:

"The LORD's voice will roar from Zion
and thunder from Jerusalem!
The lush pastures of the shepherds will dry up;
the grass on Mount Carmel will wither
and die."

2. EIGHT JUDGMENTS ON ISRAEL AND ITS NEIGHBORS (1:3-2:16)

Judgment on Aram

³This is what the LORD says:

"The people of Damascus have sinned
again and again,
and I will not let them go unpunished!
They beat down my people in Gilead as grain is threshed with iron sledges.

⁴ So I will send down fire on King Hazael's palace,
and the fortresses of King Ben-hadad will be destroyed.

⁵ I will break down the gates of Damascus

1:1 message (literally words): This standard way of introducing a prophetic message (Jer 1:1; see also Hag 1:12) emphasizes its form and content.

• shepherd (Hebrew noqed): This word is used just one other time in the OT, to describe the king of Moab as a "sheep breeder" (2 Kgs 3:4). Amos describes his vocation in 7:14 using a different Hebrew word (boqer, which means "herder"; see Amos Introduction, "The Prophet Amos," facing page). Amos was not a professional prophet serving the court or the Temple. • Amos received this message in visions—that is, by divine revelation (see Isa 1:1). • Amos depicts the earthquake that occurred during the reign of Uzziah (Zech 14:5) as an act of God's judgment (3:14-15; 6:11, 14; 8:8; 9:1, 9). • Uzziah, also called Azariah (792–740 BC), was the most powerful king of Judah after the division of the kingdom. • Jeroboam II (793–753 BC), who descended from the dynasty of Jehu, took advantage of a power vacuum in the region and recovered territory earlier lost to the Arameans. • Jehoash: Hebrew Joash, a variant spelling of Jehoash.

1:2 This quote from Joel 3:16 speaks of judgment at the day of the Lord (see also note on 9:13). • Mount Zion (the Temple in Jerusalem) was the logical source of a message from the LORD. • Mount Carmel rises from the Mediterranean Sea and is well watered even in time of drought. If all the grass on Mount Carmel withered, it would be the sign of a catastrophic drought.

1:3–2:16 The eight judgments of this prophecy proceed from the most obvious enemy, Damascus, to the least obvious, Israel itself. The sequence would have engaged Israel's attention as they heard God's judgment against their enemies, but Amos eventually confronted the people with God's judgment on them.

1:3-5 Damascus, the capital of Aram, was brutal in its treatment of the people of Gilead, Israel's territory east of the Jordan. By the time Ahab died (853 BC), Damascus had captured Ramoth in Gilead (1 Kgs 22:3). Around 801 BC, Assyria captured Damascus, and the city never again held the power it had wielded in its prime.

1:3 have sinned again and again: Literally have committed three sins, even four (also in 1:6, 9, 11, 13). This expression is used for a repeated act of rebellion against the natural order established by God. The Hebrew phrase does not denote a strict count but a pattern of repeated violations. • beat down my people: Threshing grain involved separating the heads of the grain from their hulls by pulling wooden sledges with sharp teeth over the cut grain (Isa 41:15; see Mic 4:13). This description provides a graphic picture of the brutality of the people of Damascus.

1:4 I will send down fire: In ancient times conquered cities were burned by invading armies (see also 1:7, 10, 12, 14; 2:2, 5). The conquest of Damascus would be God's judgment on them. • Hazael reigned as king of Damascus (about 843–802 BC) after he seized the throne by assassination. Ben-hadad was Hazael's son and successor (about 802–792 BC).

1:5 Aven and Beth-eden were both connected with Aram and Damascus. Aven (meaning evil, wickedness) refers to the valley between the Lebanon and and slaughter the people in the valley of Aven.

I will destroy the ruler in Beth-eden, and the people of Aram will go as captives to Kir,"
says the LORD.

Judgment on Philistia

⁶This is what the LORD says:

"The people of Gaza have sinned again
and again,
and I will not let them go unpunished!
They sent whole villages into exile, selling them as slaves to Edom.

⁷ So I will send down fire on the walls of Gaza, and all its fortresses will be destroyed.

⁸ I will slaughter the people of Ashdod and destroy the king of Ashkelon.
Then I will turn to attack Ekron, and the few Philistines still left will be killed,"
says the Sovereign LORD.

Judgment on Tyre

⁹This is what the LORD says:

"The people of Tyre have sinned again
and again,
and I will not let them go unpunished!
They broke their treaty of brotherhood with Israel, selling whole villages as slaves to Edom.

¹⁰ So I will send down fire on the walls of Tyre,
and all its fortresses will be destroyed."

Judgment on Edom

¹¹This is what the LORD says:

"The people of Edom have sinned again
and again,
and I will not let them go unpunished!
They chased down their relatives, the Israelites, with swords, showing them no mercy.
In their rage, they slashed them continually and were unrelenting in their anger.

¹² So I will send down fire on Teman, and the fortresses of Bozrah will be destroyed."

Judgment on Ammon

¹³This is what the LORD says:

"The people of Ammon have sinned
again and again,
and I will not let them go unpunished!
When they attacked Gilead to extend their borders, they ripped open pregnant women with their swords.

¹⁴ So I will send down fire on the walls of Rabbah,
and all its fortresses will be destroyed.
The battle will come upon them with shouts,
like a whirlwind in a mighty storm.

Anti-Lebanon mountains or the plain of Damascus. The city-state Beth-eden was north of Aram, elsewhere simply called Eden (2 Kgs 19:12; Ezek 27:23). • The Arameans originally came from Kir (9:7), probably in southern Babylonia; Kir was where Assyria deported them when Damascus fell (2 Kgs 16:9). Just as Egypt was a symbol of captivity for Israel (see Deut 28:68), Kir represented captivity for Aram.

1:6 The Philistine city of Gaza, on the seacoast at the southwest edge of Palestine, was the gateway for traffic between Africa and Asia. Its sin was slave trading; Philistia had raided Israel or Judah and sold whole villages into slavery to Edom.

1:7 I will send down fire: Uzziah conquered Philistia (2 Chr 26:6); in 701 BC, the Assyrian invasion ended the distinct identity of the Philistines.

1:8 The Philistine cities of Ashdod and Ashkelon were on or near the seacoast, while Ekron lay inland. Gath is not mentioned here, as it had been conquered earlier by Hazael (2 Kgs 12:17) and then Uzziah (2 Chr 26:6). • the few Philistines still left: The Philistines maintained their ethnic identity through the Assyrian period, but this distinction faded by the time of the Persians (Zech 9:5-7).

1:9 Tyre and Sidon were the principal seaports of Phoenicia. • Tyre's crime, like Philistia's (1:6-8), was selling whole villages of Israelite captives to the Edomites as slaves, a captivity made more bitter by a sense of betrayal (see 2 Sam 5:11; 1 Kgs 5:1, 11; 16:30-31). Tyre's reputation was "anything is for sale"; Isaiah portrayed the city as a prostitute peddling her wares (Isa 23:15-17).

1:10 fire on the walls: The main part of Tyre was built on an island, making it almost impossible to capture (see Ezek 26:1-28:19).

1:11 Edom was another betrayer (see 1:9; Gen 36; see also Gen 25:23-30; 27:39-40). • The NLT adds the Israelites to make explicit what relatives (literally brother) means (see Gen 25:25-30). "Brothers" can also refer to parties to a treaty (see 1:9). Apparently Edom exerted constant pressure on the borders of Israel and Judah, raiding and plundering at moments of weakness (Obad 1:1-9; Jer 49:7-22).

1:12 With the destruction of the major cities of Teman and Bozrah, Edom lost its capacity for continual warfare. Babylon destroyed Edom shortly after Judah in 553 BC (see Jer 27:1-22; 49:7-22; note on Obad 1:18).

1:13 Israel regarded the people of Ammon as kin who also betrayed them. The Ammonites (like the Moabites, 2:1) were descendants of Lot, Abraham's nephew (Gen 19:37-38). Ammon had been a constant threat to Gilead (see Judg 10:7-9). • In ancient times, conquering armies commonly ripped open pregnant women (2 Kgs 8:12; 15:16; Hos 13:16); they also raped the women and slaughtered the children of the towns they seized (Isa 13:16, 18; Lam 5:11; Hos 10:14; 13:16; Nah 3:10; Zech 14:2).

1:14 Rabbah was the chief city of the Ammonites (2 Sam 12:26). • Ammon (1:13) was crushed by the Assyrians in the 800s BC, then attacked and depopulated by the Babylonians in the 700s.

In the OT, prophets often confronted evil in society and articulated a demand for social justice. An early example of this is found in Elijah's response to the murder of Naboth, followed by his rebuke of Ahab (1 Kgs 21:16-24, 800s BC). The social aspect of the prophetic message became even more prominent among the prophets of the 700s BC (Hosea and Amos in Israel, Micah and Isaiah in Judah), with Amos as the most articulate spokesman on this issue.

Amos was appalled by Israel's abuse of the powerless (2:6-8; 3:10). Unlike the surrounding nations, Israel had known God in a uniquely personal and intimate manner and then turned away from him (2:9-12; 3:1-2). The people of Israel had refused to worship God appropriately and had oppressed the powerless, so God would meet them in judgment (4:12), not mercy. Because God created the whole world (4:13; 5:8), there was no escape (2:14), no place to hide (9:2-4). God's judgment would seek them out wherever they were.

The theme of God's universal judgment continues in the NT (see Luke 12:48; Heb 9:27). God wants justice to flow like a mighty river (5:24). Those who oppose it will be swept away.

1:15 their king: Hebrew malkam, possibly referring to their god Molech; see also Jer 49:1-3. In ancient times, people believed that a conquered nation's god or gods went into exile together with them (see 5:26-27; 1 Sam 5:1-2; Isa 46:1).

2:1 have sinned again and again: Literally have committed three sins, even four (also in 2:4, 6); see note on 1:3.
• desecrated the bones*: In some past skirmish, the Moabites had captured Edom's king. Cremation was considered a form of desecration; if the ashes (literally lime) of the king were used in plaster, the insult would be compounded.

2:2-3 Kerioth, a major town (Jer 48:20-24), is mentioned on the Moabite Stone as a shrine to Chemosh, Moab's god. Perhaps the Moabites burned the remains of Edom's king or offered him as a human sacrifice at this site. Because of the desecration of the Edomite king's corpse, God would destroy the king of Moab and his officers. This fate probably came upon them through an invasion by Sargon II of Assyria (715/713 BC; cp. Isa 15:1-16:14). Josephus (Antiquities 10.9.7) implies a further destruction in 582 BC (see also Jer 48; Ezek 25:8-11; Zeph 2:8-11).

2:4-5 The southern kingdom of Judah was closest to the northern kingdom of Israel in blood ties and geography, but bitterness existed between the nations. The north regarded the descendants of David in the south as abusive kings who had caused the schism by their forced labor and heavy taxes.

2:4 rejected the instruction (Hebrew torah) of the LORD: The pagan nations listed to this point had committed atrocities that violated a general sense of human decency, but Judah had gone further; they held the word of God and yet had rejected its teachings (see Hos 4:6; 8:1). God holds people responsible in proportion to the privilege they have received (see 3:2). • led astray by the same lies*: Having discarded God's true instruction, Judah turned to a substitute found in pagan syncretism (the combining of elements from different belief systems) and idolatry (see 1 Kgs 14:22-24).

2:5 Judah's paganism brought the same punishment as the sins of its pagan neighbors: fire (1:4, 7, 10, 12, 14; 2:2) that would destroy Jerusalem. The Babylonians burned Jerusalem when they captured it in 586 BC (see 2 Kgs 25:9; Neh 2:17; 4:2).

2:6-16 Israel: After leading the people through a litany of sins committed by Israel's neighbors, Amos arrived at his real point: The Israelites would suffer a similar fate (cp. Nathan's use of prophetic rhetoric to induce self-indictment, 2 Sam 12:1-13).

2:6 Honorable people are the "righteous," those who enjoyed a right relationship with God and other people. The parallel with poor people creates the idea of the "righteous needy." The law of Moses urged those who had much to help those in need by lending freely (Deut 15:7-11). As a last resort, those too poor to pay their debts could become bond servants to repay their debts through labor (Lev 25:39-43). These righteous needy were being sold into bond servitude for a pair of sandals, a hyperbole for the pittance they owed (see 8:6). The sandals were a pledge given for the debt or a token used to seal a bargain (see Ruth 4:7).

2:7 To trample . . . people was to treat them ruthlessly (see also 8:4). • The helpless and oppressed were people exploited by a socio-economic system that denied them the justice guaranteed by law (Exod 23:6-8). • That father and son sleep with the same woman demonstrated the moral destitution of the Israelites; the law of Moses prohibited this practice (Lev 18:7-8, 15; 20:11-12). • corrupting my holy name: In worshiping various fertility gods, Israel and surrounding nations engaged in "sacred prostitution" (see Hos 4:10-14). Sexual relations with a shrine prostitute were thought to ensure plentiful crops and thriving herds of livestock. This verse suggests that these acts were performed in the name of the Lord. When performed as religious rituals, these corrupt actions treat God's name as worthless.

2:8 The irony is that the oppressors of the poor flaunted their sins at religious festivals. • The Torah allowed a lender to take a poor man's cloak as security for a debt, but it was not to be kept overnight, because the nights were cold (Exod 22:26-27; Deut 24:12-13). A widow's clothing was never to be taken as security for a debt (Deut 24:17). • their gods: Or their God. • unjust fines: The wealthy bribed judges and used their influence to keep the poor, who could not defend themselves, from obtaining a fair hearing (5:12).

2:9 Amorites is used here as a general term to denote the inhabitants of Canaan (see Gen 15:16; Judg 6:10).

2:11-12 In addition to priests, God provided prophets to speak his word and will (Deut 18:15-19) and holy men called Nazirites, who were dedicated to the Lord by vows that included abstention from fermented drinks (Num 6:1-21). Israel showed its disregard for God by telling both the Nazirites and the prophets to ignore and violate God's calling (see 7:12-13).

2:14-16 The chapter concludes with a description of the battle in which Israel would be defeated and would flee (see Ps 33:16-17).

2:15 The archers stood in the last ranks. If they fled, it meant the forward ranks had collapsed.

2:16 Amos later calls that day the "day of the Lord" (5:18); both terms indicate the time of judgment on Israel (see also 8:3).

3:1-5:17 Amos directs the three prophetic messages in this section against Israel, indicting them for a false understanding of their status as God's chosen people. The messages show a progression toward judgment.

3:1-2 The first message from the LORD warns Israel that its status as God's elect will not excuse them from God's judgment. Instead, they will be held to a higher standard than the surrounding nations.

3:1 Amos begins with a reference to God's goodness to Israel when he rescued them from Egypt (see 2:10).

3:2 The word translated been intimate indicates personal and experiential knowledge that often extends beyond

That is why I must punish you for all your sins."

³ Can two people walk together without agreeing on the direction?

⁴ Does a lion ever roar in a thicket without first finding a victim?

Does a young lion growl in its den without first catching its prey?

⁵ Does a bird ever get caught in a trap that has no bait?

Does a trap spring shut
when there's nothing to catch?

⁶ When the ram's horn blows a warning, shouldn't the people be alarmed?

Does disaster come to a city unless the LORD has planned it?

⁷ Indeed, the ^aSovereign LORD never does anything until he reveals his plans to his servants the prophets.

⁸ The lion has roared—so who isn't frightened?
The Sovereign LORD has spoken—so who can refuse to proclaim his message?

⁹ Announce this to the leaders of Philistia and to the great ones of Egypt:
"Take your seats now on the hills around Samaria,

and witness the chaos and oppression in Israel."

¹⁰ "My people have forgotten how to do right,"
says the LORD.

"Their fortresses are filled with wealth taken by theft and violence.

¹¹ Therefore," says the Sovereign LORD,
"an enemy is coming!

He will surround them and shatter their defenses.

Then he will plunder all their fortresses."

¹² This is what the LORD says:

"A ^bshepherd who tries to rescue a sheep from a lion's mouth will recover only two legs or a piece of an ear.

So it will be for the Israelites in Samaria lying on luxurious beds, and for the people of Damascus reclining on couches.

¹³ "Now listen to this, and announce it throughout all Israel," says the Lord, the LORD God of Heaven's Armies.

¹⁴ "On the very day I punish Israel for its
sins,
I will destroy the pagan altars at Bethel.

mere intellectual awareness. It can indicate formal recognition and acknowledgment (Exod 1:8; 5:2), personal experience (Gen 2:17), or sexual relations (Gen 4:1). This word is frequently used of God's relationship with Israel (Hos 5:3) and of Israel's ideal relationship with God (Hos 2:20). Because of Israel's privileged status, God would hold them accountable for all their sins, not just some of them. God holds people accountable in terms of what has been given them (Luke 12:47-48).

3:3-6 Amos explains his call to prophesy with a series of rhetorical questions that must be answered in the negative. But the metaphorical language carries deeper meaning than is implied in the questions themselves.

3:3 Amos's walk with God was evidence that his message was in accord with the direction of God's plans for Israel's judgment.

3:4 Amos's messages have God behind them: what he says will, in fact, happen to Israel. God is the lion who roars, and he has already found his victim—the people of Israel who are ready for judgment.

3:5 The trap pictures the consequences of Israel's sin. Israel fully deserved the judgment that Amos proclaimed.

3:6 disaster . . . the LORD has planned: God sends both the good and pleasant, and the harmful and painful (Isa 45:7; Lam 3:38; see Deut 28; Job 2:10).

3:8 God, the lion, has roared from Mount Zion (1:2) and compelled Amos to prophesy (see 7:14-16).

3:9 The prophet now turns to two of Israel's enemies, Philistia (Hebrew Ashdod, one of the key cities of Philistia) and Egypt. He invites them to surround Samaria (the capital of the kingdom of Israel) to see its chaos and oppression. Israel appeared strong from the outside, but it was rotten within, rife with class struggles. The enemies would take advantage of Israel's internal weakness (see 3:11).

3:10 Israel's rich people acquired their wealth through their neglect and brutal treatment of the poor and helpless (see 2:6-8).

3:11 The real enemy was not Egypt or Philistia, but Assyria, the only superpower in the region.

3:12 A shepherd who tries to rescue: The people of both Israel and Judah believed that, because of their chosen status, God would intervene to rescue them and never let them perish. The prophet's words are ironic: their rescue would be like a shepherd who arrives too late to save the sheep, and who can pull only two legs or a piece of an ear from the mouth of the lion. • So it will be . . . reclining on couches: The meaning of the Hebrew in this sentence is uncertain. Some have interpreted this statement to mean that only the fabric of a few couches would survive the Assyrian siege of Samaria. Accordingly, the last two lines of this verse could be translated So it will be when the Israelites in Samaria are rescued / with only a broken bed and a tattered pillow.

3:13 The Lord's message is to go to all Israel (literally the house of Jacob). The names "Jacob" and "Israel" are often interchanged in the OT, referring sometimes to the individual patriarch and sometimes to the nation. Jacob was the ancestor of both Israel and Judah (see 3:1). • The witnesses who are told to listen could be the nations summoned in 3:9, the inhabitants of Samaria, or bands of prophets. • LORD God of Heaven's Armies: This title, traditionally "LORD God of Hosts" (also in 4:13; 5:14-16, 27; 6:8), portrays God as commander of the heavenly armies; this is the true God of the universe, not a local deity (see also Exod 15:3).

3:14 pagan altars at Bethel: The shrine at Bethel, built by Jeroboam I shortly after his inauguration (1 Kgs 12:26-33),

The horns of the altar will be cut off and fall to the ground.

- ¹⁵ And I will destroy the beautiful homes of the wealthy—their winter mansions and their summer houses, too—all their palaces filled with ivory,"
says the LORD.

Punishment for an Abusive People

- 4 ¹ Listen to me, you fat cows living in Samaria, you women who oppress the poor and crush the needy, and who are always calling to your husbands,
"Bring us another drink!"
² The Sovereign LORD has sworn this by his holiness:
"The time will come when you will be led away
with hooks in your noses.
Every last one of you will be dragged away
like a fish on a hook!
³ You will be led out through the ruins of the wall;
you will be thrown from your fortresses,"
says the LORD.

- ⁴ "Go ahead and offer sacrifices to the idols at Bethel.
Keep on disobeying at Gilgal.
Offer sacrifices each morning,
and bring your tithes every three days.
⁵ Present your bread made with yeast
as an offering of thanksgiving.
Then give your extra voluntary offerings
so you can brag about it everywhere!
This is the kind of thing you Israelites love to do,"
says the Sovereign LORD.
⁶ "I brought hunger to every city and famine to every town.
But still you would not return to me,"
says the LORD.
⁷ "I kept the rain from falling when your crops needed it the most.
I sent rain on one town
but withheld it from another.
Rain fell on one field,
while another field withered away.
⁸ People staggered from town to town looking for water,
but there was never enough.
But still you would not return to me,"
says the LORD.
⁹ "I struck your farms and vineyards with blight and mildew.

continued through the dynasty of Jehu (2 Kgs 10:29), from whom Jeroboam II descended. This shrine merged worship of Yahweh (the LORD) with the pagan symbol of a bull. When the altars were destroyed, the Bethel shrine, the king's official sanctuary (7:13), and the northern kingdom would also be ruined.

3:15 Ivory represents the immense, ill-gotten wealth of the rich. Archaeologists have found some of these ivory inlays in the ruins of Samaria.

4:1-3 In this message Amos holds Samaria's wives accountable for urging their husbands to perform ruthless acts in order to provide them with money for their parties.

4:1 you fat cows (literally you cows of Bashan): Bashan was famous for its fierce, fat bulls (Ps 22:12; Ezek 39:18). Amos uses the feminine form (cows) to paint a picture of Israel's upper class wives, who cared little for the poor. Their only concern was to extract enough wealth from the needy to support their own consumption.

4:2 has sworn this by his holiness: Holiness speaks of God as existing outside of and independent of creation; his nature is wholly other than what he has created. The oath is similar to 6:8; 8:7.
• hooks: The Assyrians were known for their inhumane treatment of war captives (see 2 Chr 33:11; cp. 2 Kgs 19:28). A stela (stone pillar with an inscription) discovered in northern Syria shows the Assyrian king Esarhaddon holding cords that pass through the lips of two war captives. A recent scholar has suggested that hooks referred to the rings inserted into the noses of cattle to manage them.

4:3 The wall of Samaria that these women trusted for security could not protect them. • thrown from your fortresses: Or thrown out toward Harmon, possibly a reference to Mount Hermon. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

4:4-5 The prophet's sarcasm shows how far Israel had strayed from God's ways. Israel had plenty of religion but no reverence for God.

4:4 Amos lampoons the Israelites' worthless piety. • Bethel, site of Jacob's famous vision of the ladder with angels descending and ascending (Gen 28:11-22), was the southern seat of the religion established by Jeroboam I (see 3:14; 1 Kgs 12:28-29). Gilgal, Israel's campsite after they crossed the Jordan (Josh 4:19-5:9), had become a popular shrine by the time of Amos and Hosea (Hos 4:15; 9:15; 12:11). • sacrifices each morning . . . tithes every three days: Israelite males were to appear before the Lord at the sanctuary three times each year (Exod 23:14-19; 34:23; Deut 16:16-17). Tithes were typically paid annually (Deut 14:22-29), with a special tithe paid every three years (see Deut 14:28; 26:12). Amos is making the point that the Israelites were religious to the point of absurdity, but they balked at being godly (5:15; Hos 6:6; Mic 6:8; see Luke 11:42).

4:5 Leavened bread (that is, sourdough fermented by wild yeast) was for daily consumption. The more primitive unleavened bread (made without yeast) became a sacred symbol, commemorating Israel's affliction as slaves in Egypt (Deut 16:3), the Passover (Exod 12:17-20), and their hasty departure from that land (Exod 12:34, 39). Unleavened bread thus became altar bread (Lev 6:17; 7:12). However, bread made with yeast could accompany a peace offering of thanksgiving (Lev 7:13).

4:6-11 God sent natural disasters to bring his people to repentance, but each time they failed to respond in any sincere manner. Amos ends the account of each disaster with the refrain, "But still you would not return to me," says the LORD.

A Call to Repentance before Punishment

5 Listen, you people of Israel! Listen to this funeral song I am singing:

² "The virgin Israel has fallen, never to rise again!
She lies abandoned on the ground, with no one to help her up."

³ The Sovereign LORD says:

When a town sends a hundred,
only ten will come back alive."

ily of Israel:

Heb 12:18-29
Rev 21:2, 10; 22:19

The OT prophets realized that genuine worship depends on a proper understanding of God and his requirements. God's authorized worship took place at the Temple in Jerusalem. The Lord roared from Zion and thundered from Jerusalem (1:2). Because the Lord is not part of this world and cannot be manipulated by it, he alone determines how people may come to him. It was unacceptable for the Israelites to worship God in any place other than his sanctioned Temple in Jerusalem. But sacrifice and ritual are not substitutes for genuine piety (4:4; 5:25). The shrines at Bethel, Gilgal, and Beersheba did not suffice; no matter how many sacrifices or how elaborate the rituals (5:4-5), these were not the places for worship God had chosen.

In the NT, worship is no longer tied to a particular location; worship may occur wherever believers choose to gather (Matt 18:20). But it must be conducted as God directs: "in spirit and in truth" (John 4:23-24). Jesus wholeheartedly agreed with the requirement that worship be authentic, not merely formal.

4:10 God had used plagues to convince Egypt to let Israel go (Exod 9:2-3; 7:14-12:30; Ps 91:6; Hab 3:5); he promised to bring the plagues of Egypt on Israel if they continued to turn away from him to worship pagan gods (Deut 28:27, 60). • and led all your horses away: Or and slaughtered your captured horses.

4:11 As with the plagues on Egypt (4:10), the plagues on Israel increased in magnitude and intensity (cp. 4:12). • as I destroyed (literally as when God destroyed): The thought that God would treat his own people in the same way as he had treated Sodom and Gomorrah (Gen 19:24-25) was shocking to their theology (see "God's Sovereignty over All Nations" at 9:7, p. 1465).

4:12 This is one of the two great thematic verses in Amos (the second is 5:24). Since Israel would not repent, it must meet . . . God in judgment.

4:13 This verse appears to be a hymn fragment, possibly sung by the worshipers at Bethel (for other hymn fragments, see 5:8-9; 9:5-6). Israel had been treating God as a baal—a local god with limited power. But the God they professed to worship and whom they would face in judgment is all powerful.

5:1-3 The charges against Israel had been filed (3:1-2; 4:1-3); now it was time for judgment. Amos made this point clear by singing a funeral song for Israel, as though the nation were already dead.

5:1 funeral song: The Hebrew word

(qinah) describes a special rhythm (3+2 beats) used for funeral dirges (most of the book of Lamentations is written in qinah). The ominous significance was clear: Israel had already died and now awaited burial.

5:2 When used to describe political powers, virgin refers to a state of being unconquered by a foreign power (e.g., Babylon, Isa 47:1; Jerusalem, Lam 2:13; cp. Lam 1:1).

5:3 This verse is a reversal of the promises made in Lev 26:8.

5:4 Come back to me and live implies a condition: In order to live, Israel should seek the Lord (also in 5:6). Otherwise, the funeral song (5:1-2) would become Israel's death sentence.

- 5 Don't worship at the pagan altars at Bethel;
don't go to the shrines at Gilgal or Beersheba.
For the people of Gilgal will be dragged off into exile, and the people of Bethel will be reduced to nothing."
- 6 Come back to the LORD and live!
Otherwise, he will roar through Israel like a fire, devouring you completely.
Your gods in Bethel won't be able to quench the flames.
- 7 You twist justice, making it a bitter pill for the oppressed.
You treat the righteous like dirt.
- 8 It is the LORD who created the stars, the Pleiades and Orion.
He turns darkness into morning and day into night.
He draws up water from the oceans and pours it down as rain on the land.
The LORD is his name!
- 9 With blinding speed and power he destroys the strong, crushing all their defenses.
- 10 How you hate honest judges!
How you despise people who tell the truth!
- 11 You trample the poor, stealing their grain through taxes and unfair rent.
Therefore, though you build beautiful stone houses,
you will never live in them.
Though you plant lush vineyards,
you will never drink wine from them.
- 12 For I know the vast number of your "sins and the depth of your rebellions.
You oppress good people by taking bribes and deprive the poor of justice in the courts.
- 13 So those who are smart keep their mouths shut,
for it is an evil time.
- 14 Do what is good and run from evil
so that you may live!
Then the LORD God of Heaven's Armies will be your helper, just as you have claimed.
- 15 Hate evil and love what is good;
turn your courts into true halls of justice.
Perhaps even yet the LORD God of Heaven's Armies will have mercy on the remnant of his people.
- 16 Therefore, this is what the Lord, the LORD God of Heaven's Armies, says:
"There will be crying in all the public squares and mourning in every street.
Call for the farmers to weep with you,
and summon professional mourners to wail.
There will be wailing in every vineyard, for I will destroy them all,"
says the LORD.

5:5 Beersheba was another site (see note on 4:4) with ties to the patriarchal era (e.g., Abraham, Gen 21:33; 22:19) that had been made into a shrine.

• Gilgal . . . exile: A wordplay using alliteration (Hebrew hagilgal galoh yigleh).

5:6 The northern kingdom of Israel (literally the house of Joseph) was dominated by the tribes of Joseph's sons, Ephraim and Manasseh (see note on 5:15; see Hos 5:3, 5).

5:8–9 Amos quotes a second hymn fragment (see 4:13; 9:5–6). Once again, the prophet emphasizes the contrast between the cosmic God and the local gods.

• Stars, celestial bodies, and constellations such as Pleiades and Orion were regarded as deities in the ancient world. Not so, says Amos; the Lord made them and placed them in the sky. • water: The ancients had observed a process that they did not understand (evaporation and condensation). However, the Lord understands and controls natural processes that seem mysterious to humans.

5:10 Amos resumes the thought begun in 5:7. Israel's courts, controlled by the wealthy, depended on corrupt judges and hired witnesses. They had no use for what was true, but only for what was expedient to their own cause (5:12).

5:11 stone houses: Again, Amos targets the rich. The houses of peasants were built of mud brick. Cut stone, the result of laborious handwork, was very expensive.

5:13 Witnesses pleaded that they saw and heard nothing. Truthfulness had become a liability (5:10) and might endanger the one who spoke it.

5:14 Amos makes his earlier hints (5:4, 6)

more explicit: Israel must do what is good and right in order to survive.

5:15 the remnant of his people: The Hebrew text uses the remnant of Joseph to refer to the northern kingdom, who were still God's people despite their rebellion and idolatry.

5:16–17 crying . . . mourning . . . wailing: Grief would result from the widespread and certain destruction that lay ahead (5:1–2).

5:16 farmers . . . professional mourners: This expression is a graphic way of describing that everyone would grieve.

5:18–6:14 The pronouncements of sorrow in this section develop two themes: (1) Israel's apostasy would make the "day of the Lord" a day of judgment, not salvation; and (2) Judah's spiritual complacency would also bring judgment.

²⁴ Instead, I want to see a mighty flood of justice, an endless river of righteous living.

²⁵ "Was it to me you were bringing sacrifices and offerings during the forty years in the wilderness, Israel? ²⁶No, you served

Woe to the People of Judah and Israel

6 ¹ What sorrow awaits you who lounge in luxury in Jerusalem, and you who feel secure in Samaria! You are famous and popular in Israel, and people go to you for help.

² But go over to Calneh and see what happened there. Then go to the great city of Hamath and down to the Philistine city of Gath. You are no better than they were, and look at how they were destroyed.

³ You push away every thought of coming disaster, but your actions only bring the day of judgment closer.

⁴ How terrible for you who sprawl on ivory beds and lounge on your couches, eating the meat of tender lambs from the flock and of choice calves fattened in the stall.

5:18 Amos again confronts the Israelites' distorted view of their chosen status (see 3:2). • The phrase What sorrow awaits you denotes despair brought on by a great tragedy. • The day of the Lord in the OT (see Isa 13:6, 9) was a time when God would intervene in the world to set right those things that had gone wrong. God's intervention would mean vindication for the righteous, but judgment for the wicked. Israel thought that on that day (see also 8:3, 9, 13; 9:11) God would save them. However, because the Israelites had been wicked, the day of the Lord would bring darkness, not light. Assyria conquered the northern kingdom in 722 BC (2 Kgs 17:23), fulfilling this prophecy.

5:21-27 Amos again confronts the religious hypocrisy and spiritual unfaithfulness of the Israelites (see 4:4-5; Isa 1:10-20).

5:22 God would not accept the offerings (see Lev 1-6) of the Israelites because they were attempts to manipulate him magically rather than signs of true repentance and faith.

5:24 This is the second of the great thematic verses in Amos (see 4:12). • endless river: The streams or gullies (wadis) in Israel's dry areas contained water only temporarily during rainy seasons. However, God wanted continual, not just seasonal, justice.

5:25-26 Although the people of Israel claimed that God had to bless them because of the Sinai Covenant, Amos demonstrated that they had been fundamentally pagan from the very earliest days of the covenant.

5:25 Israel's relationship with God was based on true devotion that yielded obedience (1 Sam 15:22-23). Sacrifices representing repentance and faith could repair a breach made by sin, but it was not a substitute for a life lived in accordance with God's word. • Forty years in the wilderness was the duration of Israel's wandering after the rebellion at Kadesh-barnea (see Num 14:32-35).

5:26-27 The names that appear in 5:26 have given rise to several conjectures, but many interpreters consider them to be names of unidentified pagan gods. The king god may well be Molech, god of the Ammonites (see 1:15). The word translated you served may mean you will lift up, in which case the prophet is making a contrast between Israel or Judah, who carried their idols, and God, who carries his people (see Isa 46:1-7). The Greek version of these verses reads No, you carried your pagan gods—the shrine of Molech, the star of your god Rephan, and the images you made for yourselves. So I will send you into exile, to a land east of Damascus. Cp. Acts 7:43.

6:1 Jerusalem . . . Samaria: A message including Jerusalem is unexpected, but it shows that God plays no favorites; whoever rebels against God will experience sorrow. The Hebrew text uses the terms Zion . . . Mount Samaria, indicating the citadels of the two cities. The people of both Judea and Israel were smug and self-important, believing that the fortresses of the cities of Jerusalem and Samaria were impregnable (see also 4:3). Relying on physical power instead of on God is sin.

6:2 Calneh and Hamath were Aramean city-states under Israelite influence (see 2 Kgs 14:28). Calneh fell to Assyria in 738 BC, and Hamath was forced to pay tribute shortly thereafter. Uzziah had broken down the wall of Gath (2 Chr 26:6), but it also fell to Assyria in 711 BC. • You are no better: Israel itself fell in 722 BC (see note on 5:18).

6:3 day of judgment (literally seat of violence): By this term, Amos either meant that Israel's behavior hastened the violence of the Assyrian conquest, or that the people encouraged everyday violence against the poor by pushing the thought of coming disaster from their minds.

6:4 Meat was typically used to honor distinguished guests. The common food was bread, fruit, vegetables, and dairy products. The everyday use of meat shows the opulence of the wealthy classes.

⁵ You sing trivial songs to the sound of the harp and fancy yourselves to be great musicians like David.

⁶ You drink wine by the bowlful and perfume yourselves with fragrant lotions.

You care nothing about the ruin of your nation.

⁷ Therefore, you will be the first to be led away as captives.

Suddenly, all your parties will end.

The LORD Swears by His Own Name

⁸The Sovereign LORD has sworn by his own name, and this is what he, the LORD God of Heaven's Armies, says:

"I despise the arrogance of Israel,
and I hate their fortresses.

I will give this city and everything in it to their enemies."

⁹(If there are ten men left in one house, they will all die. ¹⁰And when a relative who is responsible to dispose of the dead goes into the house to carry out the bodies, he will ask the last survivor, "Is anyone else with you?" When the person begins to swear, "No, by . . .," he will interrupt and say, "Stop! Don't even mention the name of the LORD.")

¹¹ When the LORD gives the command, homes both great and small will be smashed to pieces.

¹² Can horses gallop over boulders?
Can oxen be used to plow them?
But that's how foolish you are when you turn justice into poison and the sweet fruit of righteousness into bitterness.

¹³ And you brag about your conquest of Lo-debar.
You boast, "Didn't we take Karnaim by our own strength?"

¹⁴ "O people of Israel, I am about to bring an enemy nation against you," says the LORD God of Heaven's Armies.

"They will oppress you throughout your land—from Lebo-hamath in the north to the Arabah Valley in the south."

5. FIVE VISIONS: THE SENTENCE ON ISRAEL (7:1-9:10)

Vision 1: A Locust Swarm

7The Sovereign LORD showed me a vision. I saw him preparing to send a vast swarm of locusts over the land. This was after the king's share had been harvested from the fields and as the main crop was 6:5-6 These verses provide a picture of drunken revelry.

6:6 wine by the bowlful: The word translated bowl (Hebrew mizraq) is related to a verb meaning sprinkle or splash (Hebrew zaraq; see Exod 24:6); the same word identified the basins used for sprinkling blood or water in religious ceremonies (see 2 Kgs 12:13; 25:15), adding a sense of sacrilege to this description of their drunkenness.

• of your nation: The Hebrew text reads of Joseph, referring to the northern kingdom of Israel; see notes on 5:6, 15.

6:8 The most solemn oath the Lord could pronounce was by his own name (see also Gen 22:16; Jer 51:14; cp. Amos 4:2; Ps 110:4; Heb 6:13-14). • arrogance of Israel (literally pride of Jacob; see note on 3:13; 8:7): Jacob can mean cheat (Gen 27:36), whereas Israel means he struggles with God (Gen 32:28). Amos uses Jacob to express the obstinate arrogance that so often characterized the people of Israel.

6:9-10 These verses graphically picture the wholesale slaughter by military conquest promised in 6:8.

6:10 to dispose of the dead: Or to burn the dead. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. Cremation was very uncommon in the ancient Near East (see note on 2:1), so some interpret this phrase to mean burn a memorial fire (see Jer 34:5). Others take it to mean dispose of the remains, rather than perform a cremation. Yet the context—the need to dispose of multiple bodies to avoid putrefaction and disease (6:9; see 8:3)—supports the idea that it means cremation.

6:12 It would be foolish to run horses . . . over boulders, because unshod horses cannot run on rocks without serious damage to their hooves. It is also obvious that oxen cannot plow rocks. A slight adjustment to the word division of the Hebrew text yields plow the sea with oxen, an equally absurd suggestion.

• that's how foolish you are: The point of the comparisons now becomes obvious, as Israel's own absurdity surfaces in the moral realm. • you turn justice into poison: The people perverted what is just and right, turning it into something toxic and bitter (see also 5:7).

6:13 Lo-debar and Karnaim were part of the territory regained from the Arameans by Jeroboam II (2 Kgs 14:25-28). Amos makes puns on their names: Lo-debar means nothing and Karnaim means horns, a term that symbolizes strength.

6:14 Lebo-hamath marked the northern border of Solomon's influence (1 Kgs 8:65) and of the land recovered by Jeroboam II. The Dead Sea (called the sea of the Arabah; see note on 2 Kgs 14:25) marked the southern border of Jeroboam's recovered territory. The irony was clear: all of this recovered land would be oppressed by the enemy nation (Assyria).

7:1-9:10 This section contains five visions. It is helpful to compare the progression of these five visions with the judgments listed in 4:6-11 (famine, drought, crop devastation, plagues, destruction).

7:1-6 The first two visions set up a mood of hopeful expectancy. God calls for judgment, but then revokes it at the prophet's intercession.

7:1 Locusts (see 4:9) were one of the plagues brought upon Egypt (Exod 10:4). Great swarms of locusts periodically invaded these lands, typically in times of drought. • king's share: The first harvest went to the king as taxes, whereas the later harvest of the main crop fed the farmer and his family. However, if locusts devoured this crop, starvation would follow.

coming up. ²In my vision the locusts ate every green plant in sight. Then I said, "O Sovereign LORD, please forgive us or we will not survive, for Israel is so small."

³So the LORD relented from this plan. "I will not do it," he said.

Vision 2: A Fiery Drought

⁴Then the Sovereign LORD showed me another vision. I saw him preparing to punish his people with a great fire. The fire had burned up the depths of the sea and was devouring the entire land. ⁵Then I said, "O Sovereign LORD, please stop or we will not survive, for Israel is so small."

⁶Then the LORD relented from this plan, too. "I will not do that either," said the Sovereign LORD.

Vision 3: A Plumb Line

⁷Then he showed me another vision. I saw the Lord standing beside a wall that had been built using a plumb line. He was using a plumb line to see if it was still straight. ⁸And the LORD said to me, "Amos, what do you see?"

I answered, "A plumb line."

And the Lord replied, "I will test my people with this plumb line. I will no longer ignore all their sins. ⁹The pagan shrines of your ancestors will be ruined, and the temples of Israel will be destroyed; I will bring the dynasty of King Jeroboam to a sudden end."

Interlude: Challenge and Response

¹⁰Then Amaziah, the priest of Bethel, sent a message to Jeroboam, king of Israel: "Amos is hatching a plot against you right here on your very doorstep! What he is saying is intolerable. ¹¹He is saying, 'Jeroboam will soon be killed, and the people of Israel will be sent away into exile.'"

¹²Then Amaziah sent orders to Amos: "Get out of here, you prophet! Go on back to the land of Judah, and earn your living by prophesying there! ¹³Don't bother us with your prophecies here in Bethel. This is the king's sanctuary and the national place of worship!"

¹⁴But Amos replied, "I'm not a professional prophet, and I was never trained to be one. I'm just a shepherd, and I take care of sycamore-fig trees. ¹⁵But the LORD called me away from my flock and told me, 'Go and prophesy to my people in Israel.' ¹⁶Now then, listen to this message from the LORD:

"You say,
'Don't prophesy against Israel.
Stop preaching against my people.'

¹⁷ But this is what the LORD says:
'Your wife will become a prostitute in this city,
and your sons and daughters will be killed.
Your land will be divided up,
and you yourself will die in a foreign land.

7:2 Israel is so small: The population base of the kingdom was not large enough to survive such radical depletion. • Israel: Literally Jacob; also in 7:5; see note on 3:13.

7:3-6 The LORD relented twice in response to Amos's intercession.

7:4 This fire symbolizes oppressive heat and drought. • depths of the sea: Although the Hebrew word properly indicates the sea, Amos probably did not suppose that the Mediterranean would disappear. More likely, this is a poetic reference to large bodies of fresh water (such as the Kinnereth Sea/Sea of Galilee) that Israel could use to irrigate its fields.

7:7-9 This vision begins like the previous two (7:2-3, 4-6), but this time the Lord allows no intercession. The abrupt shift in outcome contributed to the power of Amos's message.

7:8 The Hebrew word translated plumb line (Hebrew 'anak) is similar to the word for groaning ('anakhah, see Isa 35:10; Lam 1:22), alluding to great suffering when God would hold them accountable.

7:9 pagan shrines . . . temples: Every vestige of the apostate Israelite religion, from the common high places to the royal shrine at Bethel, would be destroyed. • of your ancestors (literally of Isaac): Isaac stands for Israel's ancestors, the fathers of the nation. • dynasty of King Jeroboam: Jeroboam II died of natural causes (2 Kgs 14:29), but the murder of his son and successor, Zechariah, after a reign of less than a year (2 Kgs 15:8-10; see 10:28-31), initiated instability in Israel's government that it never overcame (2 Kgs 15:10-31).

7:10-17 This section graphically depicts the corruption of the priesthood, reinforcing the point of the visions on either side of it, that judgment is inescapable.

7:11 Amaziah misinterpreted Amos's words as a threat on Jeroboam's life. Amos was calling the people to repentance, not sedition.

7:12 Go on back to . . . Judah, and earn your living by prophesying: Amaziah assumed that the supposedly backward Judeans would appreciate Amos's words, and that Amos was looking to be paid for his preaching.

7:13 king's sanctuary: According to Amaziah, the urbane and sophisticated Israelites did not appreciate the prophet. Amaziah's loyalties were clearly to the throne; he wanted to keep the king happy in order to keep his job.

7:14 Amos was not a professional prophet or even a disciple in training (literally I'm not a prophet nor the son of a prophet). He had no financial incentive to leave his livelihood in order to prophesy. • shepherd: The Hebrew word here is not the same as in 1:1, and is not found elsewhere in the OT. It is related to a word for cattle, suggesting that Amos may have raised cattle as a breeder or herder (see Amos Introduction, "The Prophet Amos," p. 1452). • The sycamore-fig was gathered for cattle feed.

7:15 Amos was not motivated by financial gain. Instead, the Lord's voice (see 1:2; 3:8) moved Amos to prophesy.

7:16 against my people (literally against the house of Isaac): Isaac represents all Israel (see also note on 7:9; cp. 5:6, 15; 6:6).

7:17 Because Amaziah had tried to silence Amos (7:12-13), the Lord confronted Amaziah with a grim prophecy of what his life would be like after the Assyrian siege.

And the people of Israel will certainly become captives in exile, far from their homeland.' "

Vision 4: A Basket of Ripe Fruit

8 Then the Sovereign LORD showed me another vision. In it I saw a basket filled with ripe fruit. ²"What do you see, Amos?" he asked.

I replied, "A basket full of ripe fruit."

Then the LORD said, "Like this fruit, Israel is ripe for punishment! I will not delay their punishment again. ³In that day the singing in the temple will turn to wailing. Dead bodies will be scattered everywhere. They will be carried out of the city in silence. I, the Sovereign LORD, have spoken!"

Interlude: Indictments on Israel

⁴ Listen to this, you who rob the poor and trample down the needy!

⁵ You can't wait for the Sabbath day to be over and the religious festivals to end so you can get back to cheating the helpless.

You measure out grain with dishonest measures and cheat the buyer with dishonest scales.

⁶ And you mix the grain you sell with chaff swept from the floor.
Then you enslave poor people for one piece of silver or a pair of sandals.

⁷ Now the LORD has sworn this oath by his own name, the Pride of Israel:

"I will never forget the wicked things you have done!

⁸ The earth will tremble for your deeds, and everyone will mourn.
The ground will rise like the Nile River at floodtime;
it will heave up, then sink again.

⁹ "In that day," says the Sovereign LORD,
"I will make the sun go down at noon and darken the earth while it is still day.

¹⁰ I will turn your 'celebrations into times of mourning
and your singing into weeping.
You will wear funeral clothes and shave your heads to show your sorrow—
as if your only son had died.
How very bitter that day will be!

¹¹ "The time is surely coming," says the Sovereign LORD,
"when I will send a famine on the land—
not a famine of bread or water but of hearing the words of the LORD.

¹² People will stagger from sea to sea and wander from border to border searching for the word of the LORD,
but they will not find it.

¹³ Beautiful girls and strong young men will grow faint in that day, thirsting for the LORD's word.

idols of Samaria—
who take oaths in the name of the god

8:1 This vision resumes the prophetic sermon begun in 7:1 and interrupted by the dialogue with Amaziah.

8:2 ripe for punishment (literally the end has come): Amos makes a play on words between ripe fruit (Hebrew qayits) and the end has come (Hebrew ba' haqqets). The end had come for God's people, Israel, because they were ripe fruit, ready to be harvested in judgment.

8:4-14 This section expands the indictments and judgments listed earlier (read with 2:6-6:14).

8:5 Work was explicitly forbidden on the Sabbath day (Exod 20:9-10); Amos implies that shops were closed during pagan new-moon religious festivals as well. • You measure out . . . with dishonest scales: Literally You make the ephah small and the shekel great, and you deal falsely by using deceitful balances. The ephah was a unit for measuring grain, and the shekel was a unit of weight. In this way merchants were cheating the helpless: They cheated their customers by measuring grain with small ephahs, and they cheated their suppliers by using heavy shekels on the scales. This practice was forbidden by God's law (Lev 19:35-36; Deut 25:13-16; see Prov 11:1; 16:11; 20:10, 23).

8:7 the Pride of Israel (literally the pride of Jacob; see note on 3:13): The same phrase alludes in 6:8 to Israel's arrogance. Here, the phrase is probably a name for God, who is the legitimate object of Israel's pride. Elsewhere (Ps 47:4; Nah 2:2), this phrase refers to the Promised Land under a king from David's line (cp. Jer 13:9; Ezek 32:12). If the phrase here means the land, it would spotlight Israel's perverse pride in its national and geographic identity.

8:9 The day of the Lord would invert the cosmos. Jeremiah used similar imagery to describe the desecration of Judah as the Babylonian armies approached (Jer 4:23; see also Isa 13:10; 34:4; 50:3; Ezek 32:7-8; Joel 2:10, 31; Mic 3:6).

8:11-14 famine . . . of hearing the words of the LORD: God sent prophets to Israel to speak his words directly to them, but Israel commanded the prophets not to prophesy (2:11-12). Now they had what they wanted, but it was a silence more terrible than his roar and thunder: God became distant (see Ezek 7:26; 20:3; Mic 3:4, 7). The time for speaking was over; the time of judgment had come.

8:12 from border to border (literally from north to east): The natural boundaries of Israel were from sea to sea: the Mediterranean Sea on the west and the Dead Sea on the south. The other borders are simply called the north and the east.

8:14 The god of Dan refers to the northern shrine of the gold calf established by Jeroboam I (see 1 Kgs 12:28-29; 2 Kgs 10:29). • the god of Beersheba (literally the way of Beersheba): Evidently Beersheba had become a center of worship in the southern kingdom. Vision 5: God Stands at the Altar

9 Then I saw a vision of the Lord standing beside the altar. He said, “Strike the tops of the Temple columns,

so that the foundation will shake.
Bring down the roof
on the heads of the people below.
I will kill with the sword those who survive.
No one will escape!

² “Even if they dig down to the place of the dead,
I will reach down and pull them up.
Even if they climb up into the heavens,
I will bring them down.

³ Even if they hide at the very top of Mount Carmel,
I will search them out and capture them.

Even if they hide at the bottom of the

I will send the sea serpent after them to bite them.

⁴ Even if their enemies drive them into exile,
I will command the sword to kill them
there.
I am determined to bring disaster upon

In the ancient world, nations often considered religion in terms of a national god or gods. The king of Aram, for example, believed Israel’s “gods” were tied to the hills and would not be able to act elsewhere (1 Kgs 20:23). Jephthah demonstrated a pagan heritage (see Judg 11:1-3) by saying that the god Chemosh had given the Ammonites their land (Judg 11:24). The prophet Amos, by contrast, knew that God alone had brought the Philistines from Crete and the Arameans from Kir (9:7). God had created the entire cosmos, not just Israel (4:13; 5:8), so he was perfectly justified in requiring that nations conduct their affairs with justice and mercy (1:3–2:3).

One heresy prevalent among the people of Judah and Israel was that, in spite of their sinfulness, God would eventually vindicate them because of his covenant with them (Jer 7:4; cp. Amos 3:1-2; 9:10). They developed a false theology of the day of the Lord: They thought that God’s intervention in history meant deliverance for them and destruction for their enemies. Amos directly confronted this false notion of privilege (9:7; see also 5:18-20). The day of the Lord would not absolve sinful Israel; rather, God would use it to punish them.

Israel’s position of privilege among the nations made them more responsible, not less. While the surrounding nations would be punished for their particularly grievous sins, Israel would be punished for all their sins (3:2). The NT further develops the theme of the greater responsibility of God’s people: Those who receive much are responsible for much (Luke 12:48; Jas 3:1).

a horned altar (cp. illustrations, pp. 91, 173, 176) in the ruins of Beersheba.

9:1 I saw . . . the LORD (see 7:1): God ceased to reveal how or why he would punish Israel; he was now poised to act.
• beside the altar: Judgment must begin with the center of worship (cp. 1 Pet 4:17). This altar probably refers to the Bethel shrine, although it could refer to the Temple in Jerusalem.

9:2-4 God is inescapable (cp. Ps 139:7-12). When people trust, believe, and obey God, his inescapability is a great blessing. But because Israel rejected God’s revelation, his presence would mean judgment, not comfort.

9:2 to the place of the dead (literally to Sheol): In the OT, Sheol is a place beneath the earth where the dead have their abode.

9:3 Though Mount Carmel is not the highest mountain in the region, its lofty grandeur often represents the beauty and richness of the land. • sea serpent:

In the ancient Near East, the sea was a symbol of chaos, often pitted against the national god (cp. Ps 74:14; 89:10; 104:26). However, the biblical text does not grant divine status to the sea monster (“Leviathan,” also called “Rahab”; Ps 89:9-10), but sees it as subject to the Lord’s command and judgment (Isa 27:1). Here, Amos portrays God’s sovereign power to summon the sea serpent to his service.

9:5-6 Amos uses a third hymn fragment (also 4:13; 5:8-9) to remind Israel that God’s domain is universal.

⁷ "Are you Israelites more important to me than the Ethiopians?" asks the LORD. "I brought Israel out of Egypt, but I also brought the Philistines from Crete and led the Arameans out of Kir.

⁸ "I, the Sovereign LORD, am watching this sinful nation of Israel. I will destroy it from the face of the earth. But I will never completely destroy the family of Israel," says the LORD.

⁹ "For I will give the command and will shake Israel along with the other nations as grain is shaken in a sieve, yet not one true kernel will be lost.

¹⁰ But all the sinners will die by the sword—all those who say, 'Nothing bad will happen to us.'

6. PROMISE: THE LORD WILL RESTORE ISRAEL (9:11-15)

Restoration of David's Kingdom

¹¹ "In that day I will restore the fallen house of David.

I will repair its damaged walls. From the ruins I will rebuild it and restore its former glory.

¹² And Israel will possess what is left of Edom and all the nations I have called to be mine."

The LORD has spoken, and he will do these things.

Restoration of the People and the Land

¹³ "The time will come," says the LORD, "when the grain and grapes will grow faster than they can be harvested.

Then the terraced vineyards on the hills of Israel will drip with sweet wine!

¹⁴ I will bring my exiled people of Israel back from distant lands, united kingdom including both Israel and Judah (cp. 9:12 Edom (see 1:11) represents the enemies of God and of Israel (see Isa 34:5-6, 11; 63:1). In the time of restoration, God's enemies are to be subject to his people and to God himself. • the nations I have called: God promised Abraham that he would be a blessing to all the people of the earth (Gen 12:2-3). God's kingdom would embrace the outcasts and foreigners previously excluded (Isa 56; see Acts 8:27-39).

9:13-15 The coming age would restore the natural harmony lost in Eden (Gen 3) and would bring a new era of prosperity.

9:13 the hills . . . will drip with sweet wine: Amos began (1:2) with a quote from Joel 3:16. He now closes with an allusion to Joel 3:18, pointing poetically to a future time when humans will

9:7 the Ethiopians (literally the Cushites): Cush (see Gen 10:6-7) was south of the Second Cataract of the Nile (cp. Isa 18:1) and was often linked with Egypt, its neighbor to the north. • Israel's exodus out of Egypt is compared to two other ancient migrations: the Philistines from Crete (literally from Caphtor; see also Jer 47:4) and the Arameans out of Kir (cp. 1:5; 2 Kgs 16:9).

9:8 Although God would severely punish Israel by uprooting and scattering them, he would never completely destroy them. A remnant would always exist. • the family of Israel: Literally the house of Jacob; see note on 3:13.

9:9-10 Even the Lord's most severe judgment is just. Only the sinners are destroyed, but not one true kernel will be lost; God will save the righteous, who are faithful to him.

9:11-15 As the prophets often did, Amos closes his litany of judgments with a message of hope and restoration. Though Jerusalem and its Temple would be destroyed, David's line of kings cut off (Ps 89:38-51), and its people taken into captivity, God would restore a remnant of Israel (see also Isa 2:2-4; 4:2; 11:1-5).

9:11-12 house of David (or kingdom of David; literally tent of David): Amos portrays true worship of God as built around the Jerusalem Temple, with a descendant of David ruling over a

THE BOOK OF Obadiah

"Am I my brother's keeper?" This ancient question, posed by Cain when the Lord inquired about his missing brother Abel, has become a metaphor for sidestepping responsibility. But Cain was in fact guilty of murdering his brother. Even to stand aloof when innocent people are violated is to share in the crime. Edom, a neighbor and relative of Judah, watched in delight and participated as Babylon destroyed Jerusalem. Now the prophet Obadiah would hold Edom accountable. God's retribution always follows such injustice.

Obadiah is a prophecy against Edom, a people that descended from Jacob's brother, Esau (see Gen 25:30), and mostly inhabited the highlands east of the Arabah and south of the Dead Sea. The country of Edom was also known as Seir (Gen 32:3; 36:20-21, 30).

Edom existed throughout most of Israel's monarchy (about 1050–586 BC) and was often a vassal to the southern kingdom of Judah (2 Sam 8:14; 1 Kgs 11:14-16; 2 Kgs 8:20-22; cp. 2 Kgs 3:9-14). Edom was probably infiltrated and supplanted by Arab kingdoms in 600~400 BC. In postexilic and NT times, Edom resurfaced in southern Judah under the Greek name Idumea, whose most infamous citizen was Herod the Great, the self-styled "King of the Jews."

As a nation, Edom replayed Esau's original animosity toward Jacob. Edom was, for example, one of the nations that opposed Israel's exodus from Egypt (Num 20:14-21; 21:4). Much later, when the kingdom of Judah was attacked and taken into exile by the Babylonians, Edom not only rejoiced in the event, but also sided with the Babylonians against Israel, seeking to ◀ Key Places in Obadiah, about 586 BC. The Babylonians destroyed JERUSALEM in 586 BC and took most of the people of JUDAH into exile. The surrounding peoples helped the Babylonians and rejoiced over Judah's destruction. None helped or rejoiced more than the people of EDM, so Obadiah announced their judgment by God. • EDM was noted for its rocky strongholds (v 3), its pride and self-sufficiency (vv 2-4), and its wisdom tradition (v 8).

enrich themselves. This infidelity toward their "brother" Israel (see note on v 10) prompted Obadiah's prophecy.

SUMMARY

Obadiah is built around two related themes: the destruction of Edom, and the vindication and restoration of Judah. In Obadiah's introduction (vv 1-9), a messenger is sent to call the nations to battle against Edom (v 1), and the forthcoming reality of Edom's judgment is announced (vv 2-9). The overthrow of Edom would completely destroy the pride of this nation that was secure in its physical location and its intellectual achievements.

The second section (vv 10-14) gives the reasons for Edom's humiliation in a series of taunts. The errant nation had a duty to its brother Jacob (v 10) that they not only ignored but actively repudiated.

In the third and final section (vv 15-21), Obadiah envisions a coming day of the Lord (v 15) that will culminate in a universal Kingdom belonging to the Lord (v 21). Those who do evil will suffer evil consequences (vv 15-16), and those who have suffered unjustly will be restored (vv 17-21). The people of Jerusalem will repossess the land inherited from their forefathers and will spill over their borders in every direction. Their nemesis, Edom, will be subjugated as an example of what happens to those who oppose the Lord's rule, and the whole world will recognize the Lord as King.

AUTHOR AND DATE

Obadiah's name means "servant of the LORD." He is known only from his prophecy and from clues that the text provides as to his time and place. Several individuals in OT Israel were named Obadiah, including King Ahab's palace supervisor at an earlier time (1 Kgs 18:3-16).

Obadiah's prophecy was motivated by the invasion and at least partial destruction of the kingdom of Judah, which had its capital in Jerusalem. In 586 BC, the Babylonian king Nebuchadnezzar terminated Judah's independence and exiled its last king, Zedekiah (2 Kgs 25). Outside of the book of Obadiah, there is little reference to Edom's specific response to this event (see also Isa 34:5-10). Obadiah probably wrote his prophecy shortly after Jerusalem was destroyed in 586 BC.

LITERARY FEATURES

Beginning with a standard prophetic message form, the prophecy divides into three sections that set forth the contrasting fates of Edom, Israel, and the nations in light of the retributive justice and coming triumph of the Kingdom of the Lord.

Obadiah's message about Edom echoes many of the classical prophets, and parts of it closely follow Jer 49:9, 14-16. It should probably be read in conjunction with other prophecies regarding Edom's future role, and may even function as an expansion of such passages as Joel 3:19 and Amos 9:12.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

On first reading, it is easy to regard Obadiah's prophecy as little more than a prophetic tirade in which the Lord's wrath is directed toward Israel's enemies. The Lord's wrath is real, and evil does not go unpunished, but the book has far more to say than this.

Nations, like individuals, should attend carefully to what they plant, because the time of harvest will quickly come. God is offended by wrongdoing, and he brings justice for the oppressed. What Edom did to Judah, whether actively or passively, would rebound on them (vv 2-9) according to the ancient law of retribution (lex talionis), which states, "As you have done . . . so it will be done to you" (v 15).

In the concluding section (vv 15-21), the day of the Lord breaks in on the world, bringing full justice to the oppressed, punishment to the oppressors, and the onset of a universal kingdom in which the Lord rules over all nations. On a local and historical level, this meant that Israel would be restored to her land and given sovereignty over the lands of Edom. On a universal level, Edom's submission was part of a larger historical movement. Not just Edom, but "all . . . nations" (v 16) will drink the cup of the Lord's wrath. When the Lord returns as King to a restored Jerusalem, Mount Zion will be at the very center of the new order.

This picture of God dominates Obadiah's theology and forces modern readers to face an unpopular decision. Whom will we serve—a god who is indifferent to evil, or the God of justice that we find in Obadiah? Those who share the contemporary disposition to be offended by a "God who would condemn anyone to hell" may shrink from Obadiah's unambiguous condemnation of Edom's perfidy. But only a God who judges can reassure us that evil will not ultimately triumph.

Obadiah looks forward at the conclusion of his prophecy (v 21) to that new day when "the LORD himself will be king." This hope of Israel becomes the hope of the whole world in Christ's announcement that "the Kingdom of God is near" (Mark 1:15; Luke 10:9-12; 21:31-33).

The Message from the Lord (v 1)

This is the vision that the Sovereign LORD revealed to Obadiah concerning the land of Edom.

We have heard a message from the LORD that an ambassador was sent to the nations to say,

"Get ready, everyone!

Let's assemble our armies and attack Edom!"

Edom's Judgment Announced (vv 2-9)

² The LORD says to Edom,

"I will cut you down to size among the nations;
you will be greatly despised.

³ You have been deceived by your own ^apride because you live in a rock fortress and make your home high in the mountains.

'Who can ever reach us way up here?'
you ask boastfully.

⁴ But even if you soar as high as eagles and build your nest among the stars,
I will bring you crashing down,"
says the LORD.

⁵ "If thieves came at night and robbed you (what a disaster awaits you!),
they would not take everything.

Those who harvest grapes
always leave a few for the poor.
But your enemies will wipe you out completely!

⁶ Every nook and cranny of Edom will be searched and looted.
Every treasure will be found and taken.

⁷ "All your allies will turn against you.
They will help to chase you from your land.
They will promise you peace while plotting to deceive and destroy
you.

Your trusted friends will set traps for
you,
and you won't even know about it.

⁸ At that time not a single wise person will be left in the whole land of Edom,"
says the LORD.

"For on the mountains of Edom I will destroy everyone who has understanding.

⁹ The mightiest warriors of Teman will be terrified, and everyone on the mountains of Edom will be cut down in the slaughter.

Reasons for Edom's Punishment (vv 10-14)

¹⁰ "Because of the violence you did to your close relatives in Israel, v 1 The word vision introduces a prophetic book (Isa 1:1; Nah 1:1); it also defines what a prophet saw or sensed as a divine word (Ezek 12:26-27; Dan 8:1). A vision that did not come from the Lord was false (Jer 14:14; 23:16), the ultimate proof being its lack of fulfillment (Ezek 12:22-24). By contrast, true visions of near or distant events do come to fruition (Ezek 12:25; Hab 2:3). Prophetic visions came in various forms (dreams, extrasensory experiences; e.g., Dan 8:2). The absence of visions is a mark of divine abandonment (Lam 2:9; Ezek 7:26; Mic 3:6). • Sovereign LORD is one of several names for the God of Israel. • Obadiah was a common Hebrew name that meant "servant of the LORD." The prophet Obadiah is unknown apart from this book. • an ambassador was sent to the nations: In ancient warfare, allies would be contacted about joining a military coalition to punish an enemy or defend against attack. Here the Sovereign Lord calls the nations to redress Edom's evil pride. • Let's assemble: This is a willing coalition, though ironically, they will be punished later for their own evil deeds (vv 15-16).

vv 2-4 I will cut you down: Several messages of judgment rehearse Edom's specific sins against Israel (vv 10-14; Ezek 25:12-14; 36:5; Jer 49:7-22). Edom frequently appears among the nations that opposed Israel and the Lord (Isa 34; Ezek 35-36; Amos 9). • down to size among the nations . . . your own pride: Edom's rocky topography mimicked Edom's pride. The height of the mountain fortress that provided their security only emphasizes the height from which Edom would fall. Edomite princes were among the arrogant rulers of the nations (Ezek 32:29; cp. Gen 36; 1 Chr 1:43-54).

vv 5-7 The Babylonians completely destroyed Jerusalem. By sharing in the plunder, Edom deserved equal retribution (see note on vv 15-18).

v 5 Edom's destroyers would take everything, unlike thieves and harvesters. Thieves would leave anything that would hinder an immediate, successful escape; harvesters would always leave gleanings for the poor (Deut 24:19, cp. Ruth 2; Matt 12:1).

v 6 Edom (Hebrew Esau; also in vv 8-9, 18-19, 21): The Hebrew text uses the name of Esau, Jacob's brother, indicating Edom's violation of a fraternal relationship (vv 10-14).

v 7 allies (literally men of the covenant): Edom should have been the ally of its brother Israel, but instead, Edom had made a covenant with Babylon. • promise you peace (literally men of peace, paralleling men of the covenant): It was poetic justice that Edom's treachery with Babylon was rewarded by Babylon's treachery against Edom.

v 8 At that time (literally in that day): The Hebrew word yom, "day," occurs twelve times in vv 8-15, often translated "when" or "at that time." The time referred to in v 8 is the beginning of the end, when God steps in to reverse the fortunes of his people. • wise person . . . everyone who has understanding: Edom took pride in its wisdom tradition (cp. Jer 49:7). For example, the book of Job is set in Edomite territory.

vv 10-14 Because of the violence you did . . . in Israel: The basis for Esau's condemnation is stated in v 10 (cp. Isa 34; Jer 49:7-22; Joel 3:19; Amos 1:11-12) and amplified in vv 11-14, where Edom's treachery is described. In legal terms, the evidence of these verses supports the charge of covenant breaking.

v 10 your close relatives in Israel: Literally your brother Jacob. The names "Jacob" and "Israel" are often interchanged throughout the OT, referring sometimes to the individual patriarch and sometimes to the nation.

- you will be filled with shame and destroyed forever.
- ¹¹ When they were invaded,
you stood aloof, refusing to help them.
Foreign invaders carried off their wealth and cast lots to divide up Jerusalem, but you acted like one of Israel's enemies.
- ¹² "You should not have gloated when they exiled your relatives to distant lands.
You should not have rejoiced when the people of Judah suffered such misfortune.
You should not have spoken arrogantly in that terrible time of trouble.
- ¹³ You should not have plundered the land
of Israel
when they were suffering such calamity.
You should not have gloated over their destruction
when they were suffering such calamity.
You should not have seized their wealth when they were suffering such calamity.
- ¹⁴ You should not have stood at the crossroads,
killing those who tried to escape.
You should not have captured the survivors and handed them over in their terrible time of trouble.

Edom Destroyed, Israel Restored (vv 15-21)

- ¹⁵ "The day is near when I, the LORD, will judge all godless nations!
As you have done to Israel,
so it will be done to you.
All your evil deeds will fall back on your own heads.
- ¹⁶ Just as you swallowed up my people on my holy mountain, so you and the surrounding nations will swallow the punishment I pour out on you.
Yes, all you nations will drink and stagger
and disappear from history.
- ¹⁷ "But Jerusalem will become a refuge for those who escape;
it will be a holy place.
And the people of Israel will come back to reclaim their inheritance.
- ¹⁸ The people of Israel will be a raging fire, and Edom a field of dry stubble.
The descendants of Joseph will be a flame roaring across the field, devouring everything.
There will be no survivors in Edom.
I, the LORD, have spoken!
- ¹⁹ "Then my people living in the Negev will occupy the mountains of Edom.

v 11 Outside of this book, nothing specific is known of Edom's role during the various Babylonian invasions of Judah (in 605, 597, and 586 BC). Responsibility toward one's neighbor is a specific requirement of God's law (e.g., Deut 22:1-4; cp. Matt 25:41-46), especially when there is either a specific "treaty of brotherhood" (Amos 1:9) or a historical relationship that is regarded as fraternal (see notes on vv 6, 10, 12).

vv 12-14 All societies are held accountable for sins such as those of Edom (see, e.g., the oracles against Israel's neighbors in Amos 1:3-2:3). Among the sins that the Edomites committed against Judah were sharing with the Babylonians in plundering the land (v 13) and either killing or repatriating Judean fugitives (v 14).

v 12 The tribes of Israel were Edom's relatives (literally brother; see notes on vv 6, 10; cp. Num 20:14). • Edom and other local nations had apparently deceived themselves into thinking that rapprochement with Nebuchadnezzar in 586 BC would bring them respite. Their time of judgment would come.

vv 15-18 The law of retribution (lex talionis) is that we harvest what we plant. Edom's treachery, compounded by her pride, is more than returned when the cup of vengeance comes around to her lips. Justice would bring deliverance for Israel and punishment for Edom (see also Jer 49:7-22; Ezek 32:29; Mal 1:2-5).

v 15 The day is near when I, the LORD, will judge (literally the day of the LORD is near): Although the day of the Lord was sometimes a temporal event (e.g., the forthcoming destruction of Edom; Joel's locust plague, Joel 1:15), in its final form that day encompasses God's final retribution on all godless nations.

• As you have done: For those who experience judgment, their evil deeds will shape their punishment.

v 17 Jerusalem (literally Mount Zion) would become a refuge for those who escape. A remnant of Judah remained in Jerusalem (see Jer 40:11-12). The Lord's mountain of refuge sharply contrasts with Edom's failed cliff fortresses.

• their inheritance: The land God gave to Abraham (Gen 12:1-7) would be returned to his descendants in perpetuity. • the people of Israel: Literally house of Jacob; also in v 18. See note on v 10. This promise of a return for the Judeans but not for the Edomites is picked up by the prophet Malachi (Mal 1:4-5).

v 18 The principle of retribution is expressed in the vivid image of a raging fire burning Edom to extinction. Edomite cities were burned by Babylonian king Nabonidus in 553 BC.

vv 19-21 History yields to the day when the entire world will belong to the Lord as his kingdom. This message encourages God's people and warns the nations that forget God.

vv 19-20 God's people living in the Negev, the foothills of Judah, and Benjamin (three regions of Judah) would possess territories of their neighbors (Edom, the Philistine plains, Gilead). Restored Israel would recover Ephraim and Samaria (territory lost in 722-721 BC to Assyria) and expand its borders to those lands promised in the conquest (the Philistine plains, the land of Gilead, the Phoenician coast). See also Ezek 47:13-23.

THE BOOK OF Jonah

Jonah is well-known and loved for the amazing and ironic events it recounts. Although Jonah is the main character, the book's main purpose is not to teach us about him but to teach us about God. Through Jonah's experience, God, the all-powerful Creator, reveals that though he is a God who will pour out his wrath on the wicked, he is also one who eagerly pours out his mercy on those who repent—including those we would too quickly deem to be beyond mercy.

SETTING

Jonah was a prophet in the northern kingdom of Israel during the politically prosperous but spiritually dark reign of Jeroboam II (793–753 BC). Despite Jeroboam's spiritual failures (see 2 Kgs 14:23–24), God allowed him to continue the expansion of territory begun under his father, King Jehoash. This expansion, predicted by God through Jonah (2 Kgs 14:25, 28), eventually brought Israel's territory back to approximately what it had been in the glory days of David and Solomon (see 1 Kgs 8:65). When Jonah prophesied, nationalistic zeal was running high.

The book of Jonah records the prophet's visit to Nineveh, a key city in the Assyrian empire. Assyria's power had swelled in previous decades. During that time, Shalmaneser III of Assyria (858–824 BC) extended the influence of the empire well into Palestine. Assyrian annals from that period record Shalmaneser confronting the Israelite king Ahab (1 Kgs 17–22), among others, at the famous battle of Qarqar (853 BC). But during the reigns of Jehoash (798–782 BC) and Jeroboam II (793–753 BC) in Israel, Assyria's dominance in the region waned because of failed leadership and continued resistance on the frontiers. Jonah preached in Nineveh when the Assyrian empire was at this low point, probably around 755 BC.

Some years following Jonah's visit to Nineveh, Assyria began reassert-ing itself throughout the Near East during the reign of Tiglath-pileser III (744–727 BC). In 722 BC, a few decades after Jonah, Assyria ◀ Setting of Jonah, about 755 BC. When God called Jonah to prophesy judgment in NINEVEH, ASSYRIAN power was at a low point, but the Assyrians had already proven to be brutal enemies. When God's call came, Jonah fled the other direction—he took a ship from JOPPA toward TARSHISH, which was probably located at the far end of the MEDITERRANEAN SEA. Jonah later obeyed God's call and preached to the people of NINEVEH. Assyria thus incurred no judgment in the time of Jonah.

sacked Samaria and brought the northern kingdom of Israel to an end. A century later, the prophet Nahum of Judah announced the imminent destruction of Nineveh and the Assyrian empire for its pervasive wickedness. Nineveh was destroyed by the Babylonians in 612 BC. The repentance brought about through Jonah's preaching evidently took no lasting root.

SUMMARY

The book of Jonah falls naturally into two parts. Chapters 1–2 recount Jonah's initial rejection of the Lord's commission to warn Nineveh of the judgment it had incurred because of its wickedness. Instead of heading for Nineveh, Jonah set out by ship in the opposite direction (1:3). The Lord and Admonishment*

sent a raging storm to chasten the prophet. After a frantic attempt by the pagan sailors to appease whatever god had been offended, Jonah was "discovered" and was cast overboard. God showed his power by calming the storm, and in a twist of irony, the pagan sailors worshiped God while his prophet presumably plunged to a shameful death. But God had other plans and showed his power to save Jonah. Jonah was swallowed by a "great fish," within which he apparently repented (ch 2). After three days and nights, the fish spit Jonah out onto dry land.

In chs 3–4, God renews his commission of the prophet to preach to Nineveh. This time Jonah obeys, leading to yet another irony. Nineveh repented en masse upon hearing Jonah's warnings (ch 3), and God refrained from executing the judgment that Jonah had warned was coming (3:10). Jonah, not able to accept God's outpouring of mercy toward Israel's pagan enemies, moved from selfish anger to suicidal despair (ch 4). God once more deployed his power over nature to chasten Jonah, this time through the rapid growth and demise of a plant that shaded the pouting prophet from the sun. The book ends rather abruptly, leaving Jonah and the reader pondering God's final question to the prophet: Should God (and his people) not desire sinners to receive God's mercy rather than his wrath?

AUTHOR AND DATE

The book of Jonah does not identify its author. The title derives from the name of the main character. Jonah may have written the book, though whether he wrote it or not does not affect its integrity as Scripture. If someone other than Jonah wrote the book, it was probably a prophetic associate of his.

GENRE

Unlike other prophetic books, Jonah is almost entirely narrative rather than a collection of prophetic messages. But is it a historical narrative? Many have insisted that the book is fictional because it describes miraculous events, and diverse attempts have been made to classify the book according to some non-historical literary genre, the most popular choices being parable and "didactic story." Although the author of Jonah did utilize certain literary devices to make his point (the use of poetry, irony, and language common to parables is clear), the book presents itself as a historical account (see 1:1), and it is best understood as a historical narrative whose purpose includes communicating the theological and moral significance of the events that occurred.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

Jonah is unique among the prophetic books. It narrates God's sending of a prophet to Assyria, an enemy of Israel, and the widespread repentance that resulted. The lesson Jonah learned was evidently one that the entire nation of Israel needed. That lesson may be summed up in the last line of Jonah's psalm-prayer, "my salvation comes from the LORD alone" (2:9, literally salvation belongs to the LORD). Salvation is the Lord's to give to whomever he pleases, and those who have received God's mercy must not try to restrict the flow of God's mercy to others, even their enemies (see 4:1-11).

Salvation, then, whether from the threat of physical harm or from judgment, is directly related to God's sovereignty. The sailors were saved after God calmed the storm. Jonah was saved from drowning when God sent the fish to swallow him. There is no domain, even in the depths of the ocean, from which God cannot deliver and protect human life. Likewise, there is no nation that God cannot judge (3:4, 9) or save from judgment (3:10; see Jer 18:7-10).

The book of Jonah reveals that even in the OT God was eager to bring salvation beyond the borders of Israel. Israel was his covenant people, and from the beginning his desire was to bless the nations through Israel (see Gen 12:3). Jonah fled because he was well aware of God's desire to see wicked Gentiles repent and be saved from judgment (4:2; cp. Exod 34:6-7). Jonah did not have God's heart for the nations, or he would have eagerly desired that they turn from idols to know the God of heaven, who created the world (1:9; see 2 Pet 3:9).

1. JONAH'S DISOBEDIENCE, DISCIPLINE, AND DELIVERANCE (1:1-2:10)

Jonah Runs from the Lord

1 The LORD gave this message to Jonah son of Amittai: ²"Get up and go to the great city of Nineveh. Announce my judgment against it because I have seen how wicked its people are."

³But Jonah got up and went in the opposite direction to get away from the LORD. He went down to the port of Joppa, where he found a ship leaving for Tarshish. He bought a ticket and went on board, hoping to escape from the LORD by sailing to Tarshish.

⁴But the LORD hurled a powerful wind over the sea, causing a violent storm that

1:1-2:10 Jonah initially rejected the Lord's commission to warn Nineveh of the judgment it had incurred because of its wickedness.

1:1 Jonah son of Amittai was from Gath-hepher, a town located on the border of the tribal areas of Naphtali and Zebulun. He ministered to the northern kingdom of Israel during the reign of Jeroboam II (793-753 BC; see 2 Kgs 14:25).

1:2 By Jonah's day, Nineveh already had quite a long history (see Gen 10:12). It was a key city in the Assyrian empire until its destruction in 612 BC (see Nah

1-3). Nineveh's ruins are located across the Tigris River from the modern city of Mosul, Iraq. • great city: See note on 3:3.

1:3 Jonah's attempt to get away from the LORD was futile. One cannot escape God (Ps 139:7-10) or disobey his will without consequence (Deut 8:5). Jonah's reluctance to go to Nineveh is understandable, however. Assyria was an enemy of Israel known for its violence (3:8; see also Nah 3:1-4). Jonah did not want these non-Israelites to have the opportunity to repent and be saved (4:2). • Joppa was a key port city on the Mediterranean coast (2 Chr 2:16; Ezra 3:7); it is now a suburb of modern Tel-Aviv. • Tarshish was possibly the port city of Tartessos in Spain, in which case Jonah was attempting to flee as far as imaginable in the opposite direction from Nineveh. Tarsus in Asia Minor is another possibility. Some think Tarshish is a general reference to the sea or to any destination accessible by sea.

1:4 God's power over nature is a prominent theme throughout Jonah (see 1:4, 9, 13-16, 17; 2:3, 10; 4:6-7; see note on 1:16).

threatened to break the ship apart. ⁵Fearing for their lives, the desperate sailors shouted to their gods for help and threw the cargo overboard to lighten the ship.

But all this time Jonah was sound asleep down in the hold. ⁶So the captain went down after him. "How can you sleep at a time like this?" he shouted. "Get up and pray to your god! Maybe he will pay attention to us and spare our lives."

Sailors Throw Jonah into the Sea

⁷Then the crew cast lots to see which of them had offended the gods and caused the terrible storm. When they did this, the lots identified Jonah as the culprit. ⁸"Why has this awful storm come down on us?" they demanded. "Who are you? What is your line of work? What country are you from? What is your nationality?"

⁹Jonah answered, "I am a Hebrew, and I worship the LORD, the God of heaven, who made the sea and the land."

¹⁰The sailors were terrified when they heard this, for he had already told them he was running away from the LORD. "Oh, why did you do it?" they groaned. ¹¹And since the storm was getting worse all the time, they asked him, "What should we do to you to stop this storm?"

¹²"Throw me into the sea," Jonah said, "and it will become calm again. I know that this terrible storm is all my fault."

¹³Instead, the sailors rowed even harder to get the ship to the land. But the stormy sea was too violent for them, and they couldn't make it. ¹⁴Then they cried out to the LORD, Jonah's God. "O LORD," they pleaded, "don't make us die for this man's sin. And don't hold us responsible for his death. O LORD, you have sent this storm upon him for your own good reasons."

¹⁵Then the sailors picked Jonah up and threw him into the raging sea, and the storm stopped at once! ¹⁶The sailors were awestruck by the LORD's great power, and they offered him a sacrifice and vowed to serve him.

¹⁷Now the LORD had arranged for a great fish to swallow Jonah. And Jonah was inside the fish for three days and three nights.

Jonah's Prayer and Deliverance

2 Then Jonah ^bprayed to the LORD his God from inside the fish. ²He said,

"I cried out to the LORD in my great trouble, and he answered me.

1:5-6 Jonah's ongoing sleep was perhaps induced by God to advance the crisis to a point where it was clear that the sailors' gods could not help (1:6).

1:7-8 Use of lots was permitted by God for certain purposes (see Lev 16:8; Josh 18:6; 1 Chr 26:12-16; Acts 1:26); however, divination in general, as practiced in the wider ancient world, was displeasing to the Lord (Deut 18:9-13). * to see who had offended the gods: It was fairly common in the ancient Near East to assume that bad fortune was the result of a god's taking offense.

1:9 a Hebrew: See also Gen 41:12; Exod 1:15; 2:11. * Jonah worshiped the LORD, who in contrast to the sailors' false gods made the sea and the land, and thus controlled them. Many gods were believed to have jurisdiction over specific realms and functions. The designation God of heaven likely conveyed the superiority of that deity over all others, as heaven is the highest realm. The OT consistently proclaims that the Lord alone is the one true God (see, e.g., Deut 6:4), while at times adopting language that reflects his superiority to the false gods that occupied the imaginations of pagan peoples (see Ps 95:3-5).

1:12 Throw me: Jonah's calmness in giving this direction is surprising. But he was willing to face death with equanimity rather than give the hated Assyrians a chance to repent.

1:13-14 Instead, the sailors rowed even harder: It was now clear that Jonah was the one who had offended the Lord, but the sailors were apparently concerned that the LORD would be more offended if they killed one of his prophets.

1:16 awestruck: God's display of power over the storm-tossed sea moved the sailors to worship. Although sacrifices and vows were aspects of Israelite worship (e.g., Ps 116:17-18), it is unlikely that the sailors were completely converted from the worship of false gods; they probably added Israel's god to their list. It is ironic that pagan sailors honored the LORD while the Lord's prophet, having dishonored him, apparently plunged to his death (see also note on 2:8-9).

1:17 Verse 1:17 is numbered 2:1 in the Hebrew text. * Some critics consider it impossible that Jonah could be delivered from death in the belly of a great fish. In making this judgment, they oppose themselves to one of the book's main theological themes—that God is supremely sovereign over nature (see note on 1:4). If God exists, and he created and controls nature (1:9, 16; see also Gen 1:21), a miraculous event of this magnitude is not unfathomable. The book presents the fish episode as a historical event. * No indication is given as to the species of the fish, nor is identifying a species crucial to validating the significance of the account. Granted God's creative power, the fish that swallowed Jonah might well have been specially formed and appointed by the Lord for this particular event. If God exists and can work miracles, Jonah's need for oxygen and protection from digestive processes poses no problem (cp. Dan 3:14-27). On the other hand, certain species are large enough to have served the purpose (e.g., the whale shark), and similar incidents have been recorded in modern times. * Jesus later referred to Jonah's stay in the belly of the fish for three days and three nights in predicting the duration of his time in the grave (Matt 12:39-41). * Arranged for is the first of four occurrences of the same Hebrew word in the book (see 4:6, 7, 8). All four occurrences speak of God's effortless control over all the forces of nature.

2:1-10 Verses 2:1-10 are numbered 2:2-11 in the Hebrew text.

2:1-9 Realizing that the Lord had graciously delivered him by sending the fish, Jonah composed this psalm-like prayer. Its careful structure, conforming to the pattern of an individual song of thanksgiving, suggests that it may have been composed after the event, as Jonah recalled his emotions and concerns.

2:2 Jonah's psalm-prayer opens by

I called to you from the land of the ^cdead, and LORD, you heard me!

³ You threw me into the ocean depths, and I sank down to the heart of the sea.

The mighty waters engulfed me;
I was buried beneath your wild and stormy waves.

⁴ Then I said, 'O LORD, you have driven me from your presence.

Yet I will look once more toward your holy Temple.'

⁵ "I sank beneath the waves, and the waters closed over me.
Seaweed wrapped itself around my head.

⁶ I sank down to the very roots of the mountains.

I was imprisoned in the earth, whose gates lock shut forever.

But you, O LORD my God, snatched me from the jaws of death!

⁷ As my life was slipping away,
I remembered the LORD.

And my earnest prayer went out to you in your holy Temple.

⁸ Those who worship ^dfalse gods turn their backs on all God's mercies.

⁹ But I will offer sacrifices to you with songs of ^epraise,
and I will fulfill all my vows.
For my salvation comes from the LORD alone."

¹⁰ Then the LORD ordered the fish to spit
Jonah out onto the beach.

2. JONAH'S OBEDIENCE, ANGER, AND ADMONISHMENT (3:1–4:11)

Jonah Goes to Nineveh and Preaches

3 Then the LORD spoke to Jonah a second time: ²"Get up and go to the great city of Nineveh, and deliver the message I have given you."

³This time Jonah obeyed the LORD's command and went to Nineveh, a city so large that it took three days to see it all. ⁴On the day Jonah entered the city, he shouted to the crowds: "Forty days from now Nineveh will be destroyed!" ⁵The people of Nineveh ^fbe-lieved God's message, and from the greatest to the least, they declared a fast and put on burlap to show their sorrow.

The People of Nineveh Repent

Jonah was saying, he stepped down from recalling a previous prayer that was not so polished yet was all the more fervent—his cry for help while on the verge of drowning. • from the land of the dead (literally from the belly of Sheol): Sheol was thought to be the abode of the dead (see Isa 14:15; Ezek 31:15-17). The belly metaphor for Sheol is found nowhere else in the OT; it pictures Jonah's experience of being delivered from Sheol through the belly of a fish.

2:4 On the brink of drowning, Jonah called out for help, for life, and for God's renewed presence. It is ironic that Jonah spoke of God as driving Jonah from his presence, for that was Jonah's own aim in fleeing to Tarshish (1:3).
• I will once more: Either Jonah was confident that he would be rescued and thus worship again in the Temple in Jerusalem, or he was calling to the Lord in his Temple from the sea (cp. 2:7).

2:6 Jonah's metaphors (roots of the mountains; imprisoned in the earth) reflect ancient concepts of the underworld, with the dead being deep within the earth (see also 2:2). At one point Jonah felt hopelessly doomed to death's prison. • But: The transition is powerful.
Jonah, though certain of his own death,
was not beyond God's gracious reach.
• the jaws of death (literally the pit):
The Hebrew term normally denotes the habitat of the dead. Jonah's language again makes it clear that at this point he considered himself as good as dead.

2:7 I remembered the LORD: In this context, Jonah's statement means "I turned my thoughts to the Lord in prayer."
• earnest prayer . . . holy Temple: The Temple was God's special dwelling place in Israel's worship, even though God is present everywhere at all times (Ps 139:7-10; Jer 23:23-24).

2:8-9 The conclusion to Jonah's psalm-prayer bears similarity to 1:16: The sailors also responded to the Lord's power to save and acts of mercy with sacrifices and vows.

3:1-4:11 God again commands Jonah to preach to Nineveh. This time Jonah obeys, leading to an irony: The city repents, as Jonah had feared, and he is angry at God.

3:1-2 The second part of the book opens as the first part did (see 1:1-2).

3:3 a city so large that it took three days to see it all: Literally a great city to God, of three days' journey. God desired to save rather than destroy such a vast city, one teeming with human and natural resources (4:11). This desire on God's part was precisely what Jonah fought against (see 4:2, 10-11). • The city's circumference was roughly three miles, and it would not have taken three days to walk around it. This description possibly indicates how long it took Jonah to spread his message throughout the city. It might also include the surrounding villages along with the city.

3:4 Forty days from now Nineveh will be destroyed! Jonah's message apparently did not include a contingency clause—e.g., "But if you repent, God will not destroy you" (note the king's uncertainty in 3:9). Jonah knew, however, of God's desire for people to repent rather than be destroyed (3:10; 4:2).

3:5-6 For the second time in this short book, pagans respond favorably to the Lord (cp. 1:16). • In ancient Israel, fasting would often accompany prayer and repentance in times of distress (see 2 Sam 1:12; Neh 1:4). Wearing burlap and sitting on a heap of ashes would often accompany mourning and sorrowful repentance (see Gen 37:34; Job 16:15; Lam 2:10). The Assyrians apparently had similar customs. These activities allowed the participants to express their grief in a tangible way for all, including God, to see. • The repentance of the Ninevites was an indictment against the hard-hearted in Jesus' day (Matt 12:41).

3:6 The king of Nineveh was either an unknown governor of the city or perhaps the king of Assyria, who might have used Nineveh as a regular seat of government (cp. 2 Kgs 19:9-13).

his throne and took off his royal robes. He dressed himself in burlap and sat on a heap of ashes. ⁷Then the king and his nobles sent this decree throughout the city:

"No one, not even the animals from your herds and flocks, may eat or drink anything at all. ⁸People and animals alike must wear garments of mourning, and everyone must pray earnestly to God. They must turn from their evil ways and stop all their violence. ⁹Who can tell? Perhaps even yet God will change his mind and hold back his fierce anger from destroying us."

¹⁰When God saw what they had done and how they had put a stop to their evil ways, he changed his mind and did not carry out the destruction he had threatened.

Jonah's Anger at the LORD's Mercy

4 This change of plans greatly upset Jonah, and he became very angry. ²So he complained to the LORD about it: "Didn't I say before I left home that you would do this, LORD? That is why I ran away to Tarshish! I knew that you are a merciful and compassionate God, ⁸slow to get angry and filled with unfailing love. You are eager to turn back from destroying people. ³Just kill me now, LORD! I'd rather be dead than alive if what I predicted will not happen."

⁴The LORD replied, "Is it right for you to be angry about this?"

An Object Lesson in God's Mercy

⁵Then Jonah went out to the east side of the city and made a shelter to sit under as he waited to see what would happen to the city. ⁶And the LORD God arranged for a leafy plant to grow there, and soon it spread its broad leaves over Jonah's head, shading him from the sun. This eased his discomfort, and Jonah was very grateful for the plant.

⁷But God also arranged for a worm! The next morning at dawn the worm ate through the stem of the plant so that it withered away. ⁸And as the sun grew hot, God arranged for a scorching east wind to blow on Jonah. The sun beat down on his head until he grew faint and wished to die. "Death is certainly better than living like this!" he exclaimed.

⁹Then God said to Jonah, "Is it right for you to be angry because the plant died?"

"Yes," Jonah retorted, "even angry enough to die!"

¹⁰Then the LORD said, "You feel sorry about the plant, though you did nothing to put it there. It came quickly and died quickly. ¹¹But Nineveh has more than 120,000 people living in spiritual darkness, not to mention all the animals. Shouldn't I feel sorry for such a great city?"

mourning rituals to animals, the king communicated that this dire emergency required all normal operations to cease so that everyone might pray earnestly and repent of their evil ways. The violence that had come to permeate their society topped the list.

3:10 he changed his mind: Had the people of Nineveh not repented, God would have destroyed them (3:4). But God was ready to meet their repentance with mercy (see 4:2, 11). In God's mind, the change did not reverse his original intention, because his disposition always included the possibility of mercy. Nor does this change in God's mind say anything about God's foreknowledge. Historically, the church has believed that God knows the future fully (see Ps 139:4; Isa 46:10; Dan 2:28-29; Matt 24:36). Nothing in this account contradicts that belief.

4:1-7 The account takes an unexpected turn. Jonah, himself a recipient of God's mercy, complains about the mercy that the Lord has dispensed to the Assyrians. The prophet's insolence only magnifies God's grace (see 4:8-11 for God's response).

4:1 This change of plans (literally it): See note on 3:10.

4:2 Jonah expresses his motive in originally fleeing from the Lord (1:3): He knew that the Lord would not destroy the wicked Ninevites if they repented. • I knew: Jonah practically quotes Exod 34:6-7, a passage set in the context of Israel's covenant relationship with the Lord. Even in the OT, God was concerned to spread salvation to the nations (cp. Matt 28:18-20).

4:3-5 Jonah's desire to die rather than embrace God's will (see also 4:8-9), and his willingness to wait in hope that the city would be destroyed (4:5), are signs of his hard-heartedness and his hatred for the Assyrians.

4:4 The Lord's reply is a rhetorical question. The implied answer is "No, of course not!" The object lesson that follows (4:6-11) reveals why Jonah ought not to be angry.

4:6 The LORD is God's covenant name in relation to Israel (see, e.g., Ps 72:18). God did these things to show his covenant love toward Jonah and to those in Israel who had the same attitude. • arranged for: see note on 1:17.

4:11 people living in spiritual darkness (literally people who don't know their right hand from their left): God graciously sent the light of his prophetic word into a wicked city. Not all who encounter God's light respond favorably (cp. John 3:19-21), but God is eager to save those who receive his word in genuine repentance and faith. • The book closes abruptly, leaving the reader to ponder God's final question to Jonah. God would rather save than destroy. Those who have received his mercy must be glad for that same mercy to be shown to others, even to their enemies.

THE BOOK OF Micah

Micah announced devastation for both Jerusalem and Samaria. God's judgment was coming against false prophets, against Israel's wayward leaders, and against the rich who oppressed the poor. God's indictment against his people resulted in their ruin, but after ruin would come restoration. Through Micah, God's Spirit provided a strong word of hope for Israel's future. The Lord promised to rescue the remnant of Israel—they would return to their land as God's renewed people. God promised to subdue their enemies and send his ruler from Bethlehem. Micah exclaims simply but powerfully that there is no God like the Lord.

SETTING

Micah delivered his prophecies during the reigns of the southern kings Jotham (750–732 BC), Ahaz (743–715 BC), and Hezekiah (728–686 BC), all of whom had relatively long reigns. At that time, both Israel and Judah were characterized by moral and religious corruption, social oppression, political intrigue, economic injustice, personal vice, deception, and treachery.

Jotham was a moderately good king, but he did not remove the high places where illicit worship of idols competed with proper worship of God at the Temple in Jerusalem. Since the Lord was not entirely pleased with Jotham's reign, he raised up King Rezin of Aram (whose capital was Damascus) and King Pekah of Israel to oppress Judah (2 Kgs 15:32–38).

Ahaz, Jotham's son, followed the evil ways of the northern kings of Israel. He engaged in forbidden practices, including child sacrifice, pagan incense burning, and fertility worship (2 Kgs 16:1–4). When the Edomites and Philistines moved into the areas of southern Palestine conquered by Rezin and Pekah (2 Kgs 16:5–6; 2 Chr 28:18), Ahaz

◀ The Near East in the Time of Micah, about 735–725 BC. Micah warned that SAMARIA and the kingdom of ISRAEL would be destroyed (1:2–7), and so it happened in 722 BC at the hands of the Assyrians. Micah also prophesied the destruction of Jerusalem and the kingdom of Judah (1:9, 12; 3:10–12; 4:10–5:1); it finally happened at the hands of the Babylonians much later, in 605–586 BC.

made an alliance with Assyrian king Tiglath-pileser III (744–727 BC) by paying gold from the Temple and the royal treasuries as tribute money to the Assyrians (2 Kgs 16:7-9). Ahaz corrupted Judah's worship by bringing pagan altars into Jerusalem (2 Kgs 16:10-13), and he inhibited worship of the Lord (2 Kgs 16:14-20).

In contrast to his father Ahaz, Hezekiah was an outstanding king. Hezekiah witnessed the fall of Samaria (722 BC) to the Assyrians under Shalmaneser V (726–722 BC) and Sargon II (721–705 BC). During his reign, in 701 BC, God delivered Jerusalem from destruction at the hands of King Sennacherib of Assyria (704–681 BC), but Sennacherib still devastated some forty-six cities in Israel and Judah (2 Kgs 18:1–19:37). God also healed Hezekiah from a serious disease. But then Hezekiah arrogantly received envoys from the Babylonian king Merodach-baladan, who sought an alliance with Hezekiah against Assyria (2 Kgs 20:12-21).

Indictment and Renewal

During the early years of this period, before the destruction of Samaria, the northern kings of Israel were Pekah (752–732 BC) and Hoshea (732–722 BC). Under both kings, Israel strayed further in the ways of Jereboam I, who had caused Israel to turn from God (2 Kgs 15:28). During Pekah's reign, parts of northern Israel were taken into captivity (2 Kgs 15:29). Pekah was assassinated by Hoshea, who reigned until the fall of Samaria in 722 BC (2 Kgs 15:30-31; 17:6).

As Micah had warned, the northern kingdom of Israel was destroyed and its people were taken into exile. Hoshea had revolted against Assyria and had appealed to Egypt for help, but when Shalmaneser V heard of Hoshea's treachery, he besieged Samaria, captured it, and destroyed it in 722 BC after a three-year siege. Hoshea was imprisoned, the Israelites were dispersed among Assyrian provinces and vassal kingdoms (2 Kgs 17:5-6), and people from various nations were brought into the devastated land of Israel to live (2 Kgs 17:24-41). Israel's false worship led to its destruction and rejection by the Lord.

SUMMARY

Following the superscription (1:1), each of three sections begins by calling Israel to "listen" (1:2–2:13; 3:1–5:15; 6:1–7:6). Judgment poured from the Lord through Micah's prophecies against Samaria, Jerusalem, the wealthy, the corrupt, the false prophets, the oppressive leaders, and other nations. The people of Israel failed to follow God's ways and did not respond to the benefits he had given them. The Lord's indictment was ironclad: Israel would be ruined and go into exile.

Micah's message of judgment is interspersed with words of hope, however (see 2:12-13; 4:1-8, 13; 5:2-15; 7:7-20). In the end, judgment would be replaced by the Lord's grace, unfailing love, faithfulness, forgiveness, pardon, and compassion. Israel would be restored and renewed, and God would fulfill his promises to Abraham and Isaac.

AUTHORSHIP AND DATE

Micah was the primary author and editor of this book. He was a native of Moresheth, a town about twenty-one miles (thirty-five kilometers) southwest of Jerusalem. Passages such as 4:6-8 and 7:8-20 suggest to some that a later editor completed the present form of the book in the early postexilic era (538–458 BC). This conclusion is not necessary, however. The prophet Micah is not the only preexilic prophet to prophesy a return (e.g., Isa 52:4-12; Hos 11:10-11; Amos 9:11-15).

Micah used figurative language to describe events. This makes it hard to determine the exact circumstances taking place when Micah prophesied and wrote. Some of Micah's prophecies were probably given before the destruction of Samaria in 722 BC (see 1:1, 6; 6:16). Later, the Assyrian march into Israel and Judah in 701 BC is reflected in 1:10-15. Micah's prediction concerning the fall of Jerusalem (3:12) was given in the reign of Hezekiah (728–686 BC) and is referred to much later by Jeremiah (Jer 26:16-19). Micah's ministry thus seems to have coincided almost exactly with that of Isaiah; the similarity of Isa 2:2-5 and Mic 4:1-4 supports this conclusion.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

Micah's message is clear in 4:1-5; 5:1-4; and 7:20: God's plans for his people will prevail, and the nations will come to know God through his people Israel and his chosen ruler (5:2). The Lord's faithful promises to Abraham and Jacob would be realized.

Much like Isaiah, Micah insisted that Israel's hope would not be in escaping judgment, but it would be mediated to them through judgment. The people had become so corrupt that their only hope for an extended future was through the fires of judgment. That was a very hard concept for the people of Israel to grasp.

God's goal is to have a special people (7:14) of unparalleled moral and spiritual integrity and excellence. God will accept nothing less, but only his actions on behalf of his remnant people can create righteousness in them (see 2 Pet 3:13). God's word stands forever. His prophetic word through Micah, empowered by his Spirit (3:8), will be fulfilled, because the words of the true prophet always come to pass (cp. Deut 18; Jer 26:17-18).

1:1 Micah is presumably a short form of Micaiah, which means "Who is like the Lord?" • Moresheth was a fortress city located a short distance south-east of Gath in the low-lying hills of southwestern Judah. • Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah (see Micah Introduction, "Setting," p. 1480): The reigns of these three kings covered about 65 years total (about 750–686 BC). • God's message came to Micah in visions. • Samaria and Jerusalem were the capitals of northern Israel and Judah. Sometimes these city names refer to their entire countries.

1:2–2:13 This message of judgment introduces some of the major concerns of Micah's prophecies and asserts God's determination to judge his people and put them into exile (1:16; 2:4-5), but it concludes with the Lord's assurance that he will rescue a the Lord speaks from his holy Temple.

³ Look! The LORD is coming!
He leaves his throne in heaven and tramples the heights of the earth.

⁴ The mountains melt beneath his feet and flow into the valleys like wax in a fire, like water pouring down a hill.

⁵ And why is this happening?
Because of the rebellion of Israel—
yes, the sins of the whole nation.
Who is to blame for Israel's rebellion?
Samaria, its capital city!
Where is the center of idolatry in Judah?
In Jerusalem, its capital!

⁶ "So I, the LORD, will make the city of Samaria
a heap of ruins.
Her streets will be plowed up for planting vineyards.
I will roll the stones of her walls into the valley below, exposing her foundations.

⁷ All her carved images will be smashed.
All her sacred treasures will be burned.

These things were bought with the money earned by her prostitution, and they will now be carried away to pay prostitutes elsewhere."

The Prophet Mourns His People

⁸ Therefore, I will mourn and lament.
I will walk around barefoot and naked.
I will howl like a jackal and moan like an owl.
⁹ For my people's wound is too deep to heal.
It has reached into Judah,
even to the gates of Jerusalem.

¹⁰ Don't tell our enemies in Gath;
don't weep at all.
You people in Beth-leaphrah, roll in the dust to show your despair.

¹¹ You people in Shaphir, go as captives into exile—naked and ashamed.
The people of Zaanan dare not come outside their walls.
The people of Beth-ezel mourn,
for their house has no support.

¹² The people of Maroth anxiously wait for relief,
but only bitterness awaits them remnant from exile (2:12-13).

1:2-7 This oracle concerns Samaria prior to 722 BC, when Samaria was destroyed and its people were deported. The Sovereign LORD was coming to judge his people.

1:2 Attention! translates the same word that introduces the Shema ("Listen!") in Deut 6:4. • The holy Temple is the Lord's heavenly abode, not the corrupt Temple in Jerusalem (1:2-3).

1:3 Tramples the heights implies a theophany, an appearance of the God who is behind the historical convulsions about to afflict Samaria (cp. Deut 33:29; Ps 108:13; Amos 4:13). God is sovereign over nations and nature. The Canaanite god Baal was also thought to be active in this manner—descriptions of God like this one emphasize that the Lord, not Baal, is truly sovereign.

1:4 The strong and apparently immovable mountains will melt at the Lord's presence (see Ps 97:5). Nothing can stand against him.

1:5 Rebellion is parallel to sins; these two key words describe Israel's failure in the OT. • Israel: Literally Jacob. The names "Jacob" and "Israel" are often interchanged throughout the OT, referring sometimes to the individual patriarch and sometimes to the nation. • Who? . . . Where? The capital cities of God's people should have been holy places, but they were sources of corruption instead. Samaria, capital of the northern kingdom of Israel, was built by Omri (885–874 BC) as a political, military, and economic crossroads of the ancient Near East. Omri was an evil king, and so his city was evil (cp. 6:16). • Jerusalem: The prophet would not allow the people of Judah to be smug about the northern kingdom's imminent destruction. Judah's beautiful Temple was no different from a Canaanite center of idolatry (literally high place).

1:6-7 a heap of ruins: The Lord threatened to devastate his treasured cities. Assyria virtually annihilated Samaria in 724–722 BC in a horrendous three-year siege. • Samaria, like most cities, was built on a hill. Here, the stones of her walls crash into the valley below as they are violently dismantled. Ancient armies would systematically shatter city walls down to their foundation stones. • Samaria and Jerusalem were filled with carved images and sacred treasures put there by worshipers or taken as war booty. • Prostitution pictures Israel's persistent spiritual and physical waywardness. This metaphor was regularly used by the Israelite prophets to express Israel's abandonment of the Lord, her true husband, in order to obtain the blessings promised by the pagan gods. In addition, the worship of those gods often in fact involved sexual activity. • Elsewhere refers to the exile of Samaria into Assyria and its various provinces and conquered vassal states (722 BC). The same outcome was forecast for Jerusalem (3:12; Jer 26:18).

1:8-16 In response to the Lord's predicted judgment, Micah walked around barefoot and naked to express mourning (cp. Lam 2:10; Isa 20:2; Ezek 24:17), vividly depicting what would happen to Samaria (Israel) and Jerusalem (Judah). They would be stripped of their wealth, power, and population. • A jackal and an owl make forlorn sounds and live in forsaken wilderness areas (Isa 34:13; Jer 50:39).

1:9 into Judah . . . Jerusalem: The corruption now permeated the entire nation, north to south.

1:10-15 The cities listed were in the lowlands of southwestern Judah's coastal areas. The sequence may represent the Assyrian army's march down the coastal plain and from there into Judah's heartland in 703–701 BC.

1:10 Gath sounds like the Hebrew term for "tell." • Beth-leaphrah means "house of dust."

1:11 Shaphir means "pleasant." • Exile was the ultimate, most devastating curse (Deut 4:29; 28:37, 48; Jer 25:7-11). • Zaanan sounds like the Hebrew term for "come out." • Beth-ezel means "adjoining house."

1:12 Maroth sounds like the Hebrew term for "bitter." • even to . . . Jerusalem: God's judgment reaches wherever corruption has taken hold (cp. 1:9).

as the LORD's judgment reaches
even to the gates of Jerusalem.

¹³ Harness your chariot horses and flee,
you people of Lachish.

You were the first city in Judah to follow Israel in her rebellion, and you led Jerusalem into sin.

¹⁴ Send farewell gifts to Moresheth-gath;
there is no hope of saving it.

The town of Aczib has deceived the kings of Israel.

¹⁵ O people of Mareshah,
I will bring a conqueror to capture your town.

And the leaders of Israel will go to Adullam.

¹⁶ Oh, people of Judah, shave your heads in sorrow,
for the children you love will be snatched away.

Make yourselves as bald as a vulture, for your little ones will be exiled to distant lands.

Judgment against Wealthy Oppressors

2 ¹ What sorrow awaits you who lie awake at night,
thinking up evil plans.
You rise at dawn and hurry to carry them out, simply because you have the power to do so.

² When you want a piece of land,
you find a way to seize it.

When you want someone's house,
you take it by fraud and violence.
You cheat a man of his property, stealing his family's inheritance.

³ But this is what the LORD says:
"I will reward your evil with evil;
you won't be able to pull your neck out of the noose.

You will no longer walk around proudly, for it will be a terrible time."

⁴ In that day your enemies will make fun of you by singing this song of despair about
you:

"We are finished,
completely ruined!
God has confiscated our land,
taking it from us.
He has given our fields
to those who betrayed us."

⁵ Others will set your boundaries then, and the LORD's people will have no say in how the land is divided.

True and False Prophets

⁶ "Don't say such things,"
the people respond.
"Don't prophesy like that.
Such disasters will never come our way!"

⁷ Should you talk that way, O family of Israel?
Will the LORD's ^aSpirit have patience with such behavior?

1:13 Lachish sounds like the Hebrew term for "team of horses." Lachish was the second most important city in Judah, after Jerusalem, and was Judah's main center of defense against their enemies. Even today, a massive tell over 150 feet (46 meters) high remains. Lachish fell in 701 bc, having been besieged, terrified, starved, and demolished by Sennacherib's war engines. Sennacherib celebrated its fall as one of his greatest victories and featured the event in monumental carvings on his palace walls. • Jerusalem: Literally the daughter of Zion.

1:14 Farewell gifts said good-bye to the doomed people of Moresheth-gath as that city also became Assyrian property. • Moresheth sounds like the Hebrew term for "gift" or "dowry." • Aczib means "deception."

1:15 Mareshah sounds like the Hebrew term for "conqueror." • the leaders (literally the glory): The leaders of Israel should have been Israel's "glory" by setting examples of moral excellence and wise, caring leadership. Instead, God's shepherds corrupted their nation (Ezek 11:34). • Adullam was destroyed by Assyria in 701 bc.

1:16 The people of Judah, including Jerusalem, were exiled and deported to distant lands in Babylonia in 605, 597, and 586 bc. Babylon was some 1,000 miles (1,700 kilometers) from Jerusalem. • shave your heads: This act of mourning and despair (see also Jer 41:5) could also signify purification (Lev 14:7-10; Num 6:10-11).

2:1-2 Power had corrupted the wealthy, who should have been ready to help their fellow Israelites (cp. Gen 4:9; Josh 1:14). • Thinking up evil plans . . . because you have the power to do so indicates a corrupt heart, mind, and character (Gen 6:5). • When you want: They possessed the property of others in a way that amounted to stealing, and broke God's law that forbids coveting (Exod 20:17). A family's inheritance was a sacred gift from the Lord, intended as a permanent possession (Lev 25:8-55; cp. 1 Kgs 21; Isa 5:8). God looked for righteousness among his people, but instead he found oppression (1 Kgs 10:9; Isa 5:7; 2 Pet 2:13).

2:3-5 The Lord, the Judge, reads out the sentence. He would pay back his people's evil hearts and actions with evil in kind. The prophet was engaging in wordplay here. The Hebrew word translated "evil" has a wide range of meaning. It can connote moral evil, as in the first instance; it can also connote calamity or disaster as in the second instance. The Lord would bring calamity on them in response to their wickedness.

2:4 The power brokers would be ruined financially as their enemies confiscated their property. The land that they had seized unjustly from fellow Israelites would be violently taken from them (2:5). • those who betrayed us: Or those who took us captive.

2:6 There was a pathetic attempt to stifle the words of a true prophet. • the people respond: Or the prophets respond; Hebrew reads they prophesy. They thought that exile and other such disasters could not happen to them, but they were wrong.

◀ The Assyrian Invasion, 733-732 BC (1:10-15). The Assyrian army invaded the kingdom of ISRAEL in 733-732 BC and conquered many of the northern and eastern areas of the nation, as shown (see 2 Kgs 15:29). The promised judgment of Israel thus began; it was completed in 722 BC when ASSYRIA invaded once again, destroyed SAMARIA, and exiled the people of Israel.

escape from judgment. When judgment came, they had no comfort to give.

2:12-13 God showed his love and care for his rebellious people by giving them a promise of hope even as he spoke of exile and despair. Israel would be scattered, but they would be brought back (cp. Deut 4:26-29; 30:1-6).

2:13 The LORD did lead Israel out of exile, foreshadowing the even greater freedom from slavery that the Messiah, Jesus Christ, would later bring.

3:1-5:15 This message indicts the evil leaders who were destroying God's people and contrasts them with a glorious vision of God's kingdom and the reign of a righteous king. After suffering judgment and exile, a purified people of Israel would return and experience God's blessings.

3:1-4 Micah relentlessly indicted the leaders of Israel because they were responsible for the people's well-being. The horrors here depict the terrors of a people under siege (cp. 2 Kgs 6:29; Deut 28:53).

3:1 The leaders, who were supposed to know true judgment and justice (6:8; Deut 10:12-13), were morally responsible for Israel's guilt.

3:2-3 The leaders, like wild animals, destroyed their own people.

4 Then you beg the LORD for help in times of trouble!
Do you really expect him to answer?
After all the evil you have done,
he won't even look at you!"

5 This is what the LORD says:
"You false prophets are leading my people astray!
You promise peace for those who give you food, but you declare war on those who refuse to feed you.

6 Now the night will close around you, cutting off all your visions.
Darkness will cover you,
putting an end to your predictions.
The sun will set for you prophets,
and your day will come to an end.

and you fortune-tellers will be disgraced.
And you will cover your faces with the Spirit of the LORD.

I am filled with justice and strength to boldly declare Israel's sin and rebellion.

9 Listen to me, you leaders of Israel!
You hate justice and twist all that is right.

10 You are building Jerusalem on a foundation of murder and corruption.

11 You rulers make decisions based on bribes;
you 'priests teach God's laws only for a price;
you prophets won't prophesy unless you are paid.

Yet all of you claim to depend on the LORD.

"No harm can come to us," you say,
"for the LORD is here among us."

Jerusalem will be reduced to ruins!

3:4 Then: Even after oppressing the LORD's people, the leaders would selfishly beg for help from the LORD.

3:5 The false prophets were among the spiritual leaders of Israel, so they fell under Micah's accusations. Prophets were supposed to call Israel to the true way, not to send them astray (see Deut 13, 18). These prophets used their gifts to benefit themselves.

3:6-7 Micah announced God's judgment on the false prophets. Without God's special communications, these seers and fortune tellers were like the pagan court prophets of such nations as Babylon, Mari, and especially Assyria, who were expected to toe the party line but who had no real revelation from the Lord (cp. 1 Sam 28:6; Amos 8:11-12).

3:8 There was a strong contrast between the true prophet and the false prophets (3:5-7). Truth, justice, and power come from God's Spirit, who gave Micah the moral and ethical strength to declare his true message about the sin and rebellion of his people.

3:9-12 The leaders of Israel were building Jerusalem on a foundation of murder and corruption. Because of this, the city would be dismantled; it would be reduced to wilderness and ruins (3:12).

3:11 the LORD is here among us: This expression indicates the Lord's approval (see Exod 3:12, 14; 25:8; Hag 2:5; Zech 2:11) and his dwelling among his people. The false prophets wrongly claimed God's presence.

3:12 Mount Zion, where the Lord once lived, would become a thicket, an uninhabitable wilderness. Utter destruction awaited the fallen Jerusalem. Jeremiah later quoted this passage (Jer 26:18).

* Just as a field needs to be cleared to prepare it for cultivation, Jerusalem had to be reduced to ruins in judgment.

4:1-5 Micah's prophecy moves from utter despair to an eruption of hope as he expresses the future exaltation of Mount Zion in Jerusalem. God's plan to bless all nations (Gen 12:3) through Abraham's descendants will be realized when the nations and the Lord's people stream to the LORD's house . . . to worship. There (1) they will learn to follow

God's law and teachings; (2) the law and teachings will flow out among the nations as they are carried forth from God's house; (3) peace and well-being will grow among the nations as they turn their energies to peaceful purposes and abandon war; and (4) the people will live without fear, having security, prosperity, and blessing (4:4). The idols of the nations fail them, but Israel's faithful God accomplishes all this; the prosperity he brings lasts for endless ages (4:5).

4:1-2 In the last days: God promised to act in history to establish his kingdom. * The mountain of the LORD's house was Mount Zion in Jerusalem, where Solomon's Temple was built (see 2 Sam 24:18-25). It recalls Mount Sinai, the mountain of God (Exod 3:1; Num 10:33), where God appeared. The mountain of the Lord has significance as the place where God makes his identity known and his fellowship available. * teach us his ways . . . his paths: The wisdom of God's laws and the knowledge of his ways will give the nations life (Deut 4:6; 32:47).

- 3 The LORD will mediate between peoples and will settle disputes between strong nations far away.
They will hammer their swords into plowshares
and their spears into pruning hooks.
Nation will no longer fight against nation,
nor train for war anymore.
4 Everyone will live in peace and prosperity, enjoying their own grapevines and fig trees,
for there will be nothing to fear.
The LORD of Heaven's Armies
has made this promise!
5 Though the nations around us follow their idols,
we will follow the LORD our God forever and ever.

Israel's Return from Exile

- 6 "In that coming day," says the LORD,
"I will gather together those who are lame,
those who have been exiles,
and those whom I have filled with grief.
7 Those who are weak will survive as a remnant;
those who were exiles will become a strong nation.
Then I, the LORD, will rule from Jerusalem
as their king forever."

- 8 As for you, Jerusalem,
the citadel of God's people, your royal might and power will come back to you again.
The kingship will be restored to my precious Jerusalem.

- 9 But why are you now screaming in terror?
Have you no king to lead you?
Have your wise people all died?
Pain has gripped you like a woman in childbirth.
10 Writhe and groan like a woman in labor,
you people of Jerusalem,
for now you must leave this city to live in the open country.
You will soon be sent in exile to distant Babylon.
But the LORD will rescue you there;
he will ^dredeem you from the grip of
your enemies.

- 11 Now many nations have gathered against
you.
"Let her be desecrated," they say.
"Let us see the destruction of Jerusalem."
12 But they do not know the LORD's thoughts
or understand his plan.
These nations don't know that he is gathering them together to be beaten and trampled like sheaves of grain on a threshing floor.

4:3 The shalom ("well-being, peace") of the Lord will cover the earth, and instruments of destruction will be used for peaceful pursuits. From its earliest records, ancient history is an account of war, of one people's subjugation of other peoples and nations. Warfare and violence reached a frenzied peak in the Assyrian and Babylonian kingdoms. • swords into plowshares: Implements of war will become tools for production. Alternatively, some scholars believe that this phrase means reducing "swords into metal shards," which would render them useless.

4:4 Everyone will be free of enemies as in Solomon's time (1 Kgs 4:25; cp. Isa 36:16; Zech 3:10). • The prophets frequently described God as the LORD of Heaven's Armies. This military title expresses his control of the universe and his unlimited power. The warrior kings of the ancient Near East were no match for the Lord.

4:6-7 Usually the remnants of destroyed cities in the ancient Near East were lost or assimilated. When Israel's remnant was rescued, it would be the foundation of the Lord's new people (Deut 4:26-31; 30:1-5; 2 Kgs 19:31; Isa 10:21; Jer 29:10-14; Ezra 9:8; Neh 1:2).

4:7 Jerusalem: Literally Mount Zion.

4:8 As for you, Jerusalem, the citadel of God's people: Literally As for you, Migdal-eder, / the Ophel of the daughter of Zion. Jerusalem was a fortified royal capital city with a watchtower for the defense and security of its people. • The kingship will be restored: Cp. Amos 9:11-15; see 2 Sam 7:11-16.

4:9 Israel's king and wise people were supposed to provide leadership and embody the Lord's instructions and covenant in their lives (Deut 17:18-20). Now, however, the people would be without godly leadership (cp. Judg 17:6; 18:1; 21:25).

4:10 you people of Jerusalem: Literally O daughter of Zion. • Distant Babylon lay about 1,000 miles (1,700 kilometers) from Jerusalem; it could not be reached by cutting across the barren eastern desert. • The Lord's rescue of his people from sure death in Babylon would surpass his bringing them out of Egypt. They were formed in the womb of suffering and awaited a promising rebirth (Isa 43:1-5; cp. Ezek 37). • For Micah, Babylon represented the concept of exile. In Micah's time (the late 700s and early 600s BC), there was not even the whisper of a Babylonian empire replacing the Assyrians. But Micah was speaking for God, who knows the future.

4:11-13 gathered against you: While closely tied to the historical assault of Babylon against Jerusalem in 588-586 BC, this oracle also bears on a future in which the idealized and restored Jerusalem of 4:1-5 will be attacked (cp. Rev 20:7-9).

4:11 of Jerusalem: Literally of Zion.

4:12 God reveals his plans to his servants (Amos 3:7; Dan 2:19-23), but the nations don't know—they are not privy to God's great plans or to his behind-the-scenes activity on his people's behalf. The hopes and plans of the nations around Israel were in vain—the Lord's plans for his unique people will

¹³ "Rise up and crush the nations, O Jerusalem!"
says the LORD.
"For I will give you iron horns and bronze hooves,
so you can trample many nations to pieces.
You will present their stolen riches to
the LORD,
their wealth to the Lord of all the earth."

A Ruler from Bethlehem

5 ¹ Mobilize! Marshal your troops!
The enemy is laying siege to Jerusalem.
They will strike Israel's leader in the face with a rod.

² But you, O Bethlehem Ephrathah, are only a small village among all the people of Judah.
Yet a ruler of Israel,
whose origins are in the distant past,
will come from you on my behalf.

³ The people of Israel will be abandoned to their enemies
until the woman in labor gives birth.
Then at last his fellow countrymen will return from exile to their own land.

⁴ And he will stand to lead his flock with the LORD's strength, in the majesty of the name of the LORD his God.
Then his people will live there undisturbed,
for he will be highly honored around the world.

⁵ And he will be the source of peace.
When the Assyrians invade our land and break through our defenses, we will appoint seven rulers to watch over us,
eight princes to lead us.

⁶ They will rule Assyria with drawn swords
and enter the gates of the land of Nimrod.

He will rescue us from the Assyrians when they pour over the borders to invade our land.

The Remnant Purified

⁷ Then the remnant left in Israel will take their place among the nations.

They will be like dew sent by the LORD or like rain falling on the grass, which no one can hold back and no one can restrain.

prevail, and he will rule the nations (Gen 12:1-3; 15:12-21; Exod 19:4-6; Isa 45:23; 66:23). • At the threshing floor, grain was beaten and trampled to separate it from the chaff. So, too, the nations will be crushed (4:13).

4:13 "Rise up and crush the nations, O Jerusalem!" Literally "Rise up and thresh, O daughter of Zion." • The horns and hooves of bulls and horses represent strength, as do both iron and bronze. Metal shoes may have been used on the feet of animals who trod out the grain. God will strengthen his peoples to defeat their enemies. • stolen riches: Many nations had accumulated wealth by unjust means (war, plunder, oppressive tributes, forced labor, and conscripted). The Lord of all the earth owned all of this wealth to begin with (Exod 19:5). • You will present: The Hebrew term (kharam, "dedicate") refers to military spoils of war that were dedicated, or set aside, as holy to the Lord (see Lev 27:28-29).

5:1-15 This section calls Israel to prepare for the vicious onslaught of Israel's enemy, Assyria (5:5b-6). This siege of terror, death, and destruction will not annihilate Israel, for God will bring forth a ruler (5:2-5a) to lead his people back from exile. God's preservation and purification of the remnant (5:7-14) will complete their restoration as God's victorious people.

5:1 Verse 5:1 is numbered 4:14 in the Hebrew text. • Israel's leader was defeated by the Assyrians (cp. 6:9). Striking a person with a rod expressed contempt (cp. 1 Kgs 22:24).

5:2-15 Verses 5:2-15 are numbered 5:1-14 in the Hebrew text.

5:2 Ephrathah was the ancient name of Bethlehem (Gen 35:16; Ruth 4:11), David's birth place. In the future, an even more significant ruler than David would arise from there (Matt 2:5-6; John 7:42). The future king's activities would stretch from the distant past (Hebrew qedem; cp. Deut 33:27; Isa 37:26; Prov 8:22-23) into a still future time, suggesting a divine-human being.

5:4-5 Following the Exile, Prince Zerubbabel, a descendant of David, was among the returned exiles and became the focus of Israel's hopes (see Hag 2:20-23), but he mysteriously disappeared. A greater ruler than Zerubbabel was needed. The leader from Bethlehem would be a source of peace; Isaiah called him the Prince of Peace (Isa 9:6). Only Jesus fits this description.

5:5 The Assyrians destroyed northern

Israel in 722 bc. Sennacherib shut up King Hezekiah of Jerusalem "like a bird in a cage" (Sennacherib's own words) in 701 bc and devastated over forty-six cities in Judah. The hoped-for deliverer-king did not appear in those days. The Assyrians represent all of Israel's enemies. • seven rulers . . .
eight princes: This literary expression indicates that an abundance of leaders will be supplied as needed to lead
Israel.

5:6 the land of Nimrod: Nimrod laid the foundations of the ancient Assyrian and Babylonian civilizations (Gen 10:8-11).

5:7-15 God's purpose was not to create another nation like all the other nations (Exod 19:4-6; Num 23:9; Jer 7:23), but to have his own people who would walk in his ways and be holy as he is holy (Lev 11:45). In that day (5:10), God will rule a redeemed and purified people, healed of violence and the ravages of war.

5:7 in Israel: Literally in Jacob; also in 5:8. See note on 1:5. • The remnant are those whom God's grace preserved to be the foundation of his new people (Ezra 9:8-15; Neh 1:2). • Dew and rain are gifts from the Lord; no person can prevent his sending them.

pouncing and tearing as they go with no rescuer in sight.
9 The people of Israel will stand up to their foes,
and all their enemies will be wiped out.

- 10 "In that day," says the LORD,
"I will slaughter your horses and destroy your chariots.
11 I will tear down your walls and demolish your defenses.
12 I will put an end to all witchcraft, and there will be no more fortune-tellers.

pillars,
so you will never again worship the work of your own hands.
14 I will abolish your idol shrines with their Asherah poles and destroy your pagan cities.
15 I will pour out my vengeance on all the nations that refuse to obey me."

4. INDICTMENT AND RENEWAL (6:1–7:20)

The Lord Defines What Is Good!

- 6 Listen to what the LORD is saying:
"Stand up and state your case against me.

- Let the mountains and hills be called to witness your complaints.
2 And now, O mountains, listen to the LORD's complaint!
He has a case against his people.
He will bring charges against Israel.
3 "O my people, what have I done to you?
What have I done to make you tired of me?
Answer me!
4 For I brought you out of Egypt and redeemed you from slavery.
I sent Moses, Aaron, and Miriam to help you.
5 Don't you remember, my people, how King Balak of Moab tried to have you cursed and how Balaam son of Beor blessed you instead?
And remember your journey from Acacia Grove to Gilgal, when I, the LORD, did everything I could to teach you about my faithfulness." 6 What can we bring to the LORD?
Should we bring him burnt offerings?
Should we bow before God Most High with offerings of yearling calves?
7 Should we offer him thousands of rams and ten thousand rivers of olive oil?
Should we sacrifice our firstborn
children
to pay for our sins?

5:8-9 God's people will have a unique place among the nations of the world (Gen 12:3; Exod 19:4-6). They will be the head and not the tail (Deut 28:13), and invincible as a lion (cp. Esth 6:13) as God gives them hegemony over the nations. • The Lord will judge their foes (see 5:15) if they continue to rebel against him. The Lord's desire, however, is ultimately to bless the nations, not to curse or destroy them (Gen 12:3; Jon 4:11; John 3:16).

5:10-14 The Lord's actions for and against his people purify them. The Lord removed several abominable things imported from the pagan cultures of Mesopotamia and Canaan.

5:13-14 sacred pillars . . . Asherah poles: Stones were set up as places or objects of worship; they could represent pagan deities. The Asherah poles were green poles or trees that represented the goddess Asherah and her powers of fertility. Both the stones and the trees may have had sexual implications—one male, the other female. Asherah was seen as the mother of gods and El's (or Baal's) consort.

6:1-16 The Lord presented, argued, and decided the case against his rebellious people, Israel. This section is formally presented as a legal court case (cp. Isa 1:2-4; Jer 2:4-9; Hos 4:1-19). Using the scenario of the courtroom, the Lord challenged his people to state their case against him, for he had a case against them (6:1-5)—they had not fulfilled his requirements (6:6-8), so they were guilty (6:9-12). The guilty verdict is followed by Israel's sentencing (6:13-16).

6:1-2 mountains and hills: All creation is called as a witness (cp. Josh 24:27); in other ancient Near Eastern treaties, the gods of the respective countries were called as witnesses.

6:3 tired of me: The Lord asks rhetorically if he has done something to turn Israel away from him. But their contempt for God arose from their own ingratitude (6:4-5).

6:4-5 The Lord had brought Israel out of Egypt and had preserved them and blessed them throughout their journey to the Promised Land. God encouraged and warned Israel always to remember what he had done for them from Sinai onward (Exod 3:15; Deut 5:15; Ps 77:11; 111:4; see also Pss 78, 136). • Balak . . . Balaam: (see Num 22-24). • Acacia Grove (Hebrew Shittim), located on the east of the Jordan River, was Israel's base camp before entering the Promised Land (see Num 25:1; Josh 2:1; 3:1). The trip from there to Gilgal (west of the Jordan River) bears witness to God's covenant faithfulness. God's saving acts brought the Israelites into the Promised Land.

6:6-7 Israel's case was hopeless, but they queried the Lord as to how they could placate or please him. The proffered items are listed in a crescendo of significance, from calves to rams and olive oil to firstborn children. None of this was sufficient or acceptable to God, who judges the heart (1 Sam 15:22; 16:7; Jer 17:9).

⁸ No, O people, the LORD has told you what is good,
and this is what he requires of you:
to do what is ^aright, to love mercy,
and to walk humbly with your God.

Israel's Guilt and Punishment

⁹ Fear the LORD if you are wise!
His voice calls to everyone in Jerusalem:
"The armies of destruction are coming;
the LORD is sending them."
¹⁰ What shall I say about the homes of the wicked filled with treasures gained by cheating?
What about the disgusting practice of measuring out grain with dishonest measures?
¹¹ How can I tolerate your merchants who use dishonest scales and weights?
¹² The rich among you have become wealthy through extortion and violence.
Your citizens are so used to lying that their tongues can no longer tell the truth.
¹³ "Therefore, I will wound you!
I will bring you to ruin for all your
sins.
¹⁴ You will eat but never have enough.

Your hunger pangs and emptiness will remain.
And though you try to save your money,
it will come to nothing in the end.
You will save a little,
but I will give it to those who conquer
you.
¹⁵ You will plant crops
but not harvest them.
You will press your olives but not get enough oil to anoint yourselves.
You will trample the grapes
but get no juice to make your wine.
¹⁶ You keep only the laws of evil King Omri;
you follow only the example of wicked
King Ahab!
Therefore, I will make an example of you, bringing you to complete ruin.
You will be treated with contempt, mocked by all who see you."

The Prophet's Misery Turned to Hope

7 ¹ How miserable I am!
I feel like the fruit picker after the harvest
who can find nothing to eat.
Not a cluster of grapes or a single early fig
can be found to satisfy my hunger.

6:8 Good means what is right in God's eyes; God is the source of all goodness (Gen 1; Exod 33:19; 34:6-7; Deut 12:28). • what is right (Hebrew mishpat, often translated "justice"): God's order in the world requires treatment of others in fair, non-manipulative, non-oppressive ways. • mercy (Hebrew khesed): This passionate, undeserved loyalty is the defining quality in God's holy character (see Ps 136). Those who know God will act in the same way toward others (see Gen 21:22-24; Josh 2:12-14; Matt 5:43-48). • walk humbly: Humility must characterize God's people. They must not live in a spirit of arrogance or special privilege. They must be humble and reverently fear God. Mishpat and khesed are incompatible with human arrogance. God desires us to be in an on-going intimate relationship with him (a "walk"; cp. Deut 28:9; Josh 22:5) that transforms the way we relate to other people.

6:9-16 People in Jerusalem were here invited to learn the lesson from Samaria: If you oppress others in order to have an abundance for yourself (6:10-12), you will never have enough however much you get (6:13-15), and eventually you will lose even that (6:16). It is fitting for such people to become an object of scorn, not to receive honor and adulation (6:16).

6:9 Those who are wise fear the LORD; God's voice calls to everyone in Jerusalem to learn wisdom (cp. Prov 1:7, 20, 28). • The armies of destruction . . . sending them: Literally Listen to the rod. / Who appointed it? Assyria would carry out the Lord's plan to destroy Samaria, while Babylon would be the instrument of destruction for Jerusalem (4:10).

6:10-12 The Lord had specific accusations against his people. They had become a community of deceit that was ripe for rejection and destruction. Falsely acquired wealth, unethical business practices, threats, and violence characterized this supposed people of God (see 2 Kgs 6:25; Amos 8:5-6; Hos 12:7-8). They could not change, because lying was their way of life (cp. Prov 6:16-19). Israel was completely corrupt.

6:10 of measuring out grain with dishonest measures? Literally of using the short ephah? The ephah was a unit for measuring grain.

6:13-16 I will wound you! This phrase introduces all of the curses that God had promised to bring upon the disobedient and rebellious people of Israel (see Deut 28:15-68).

6:16 evil King Omri . . . wicked King Ahab: These kings began perhaps the most rebellious dynasty to reign in northern Israel (885–841 bc; 1 Kgs 16:23—2 Kgs 10:17), and Elijah condemned them to annihilation (2 Kgs 10:17). No northern kings of Israel followed the laws of Moses (cp. 1:5-6). Omri and his son Ahab were the epitome of evil kings (e.g., 1 Kgs 18:4; 21:1-26). Omri's dynasty was destroyed in 841 bc (2 Kgs 9:14–10:17), and the people of Israel who followed their evil example would similarly be destroyed.

7:1-20 Hopeless deception and corruption permeated God's people (7:1-6); God's mercy, however, would triumph and Israel would be restored (7:11-13). God's mercy, compassion, and unfailing love would prevail (7:14-20). Micah mourned his people's condition and looked to the Lord for help (7:7-10).

7:1 The fruit picker after the harvest: After the second crop of figs and fruit in August–September, no further yield was produced for several months (cp. Isa 16:9; Jer 48:32). No one could be found to satisfy Micah's hunger for righteousness (7:2-6).

² The godly people have all disappeared; not one honest person is left on the earth.

They are all murderers, setting traps even for their own
brothers.

³ Both their hands are equally skilled at doing evil!

Officials and judges alike demand bribes.

The people with influence get what they want,
and together they scheme to twist justice.

⁴ Even the best of them is like a brier;
the most honest is as dangerous as a hedge of thorns.

But your judgment day is coming swiftly now.

Your time of punishment is here, a time of confusion.

⁵ Don't trust anyone—not your best friend or even your wife!

⁶ For the son despises his father.
The daughter defies her mother.
The daughter-in-law defies her mother-in-law.

Your enemies are right in your own household!

⁷ As for me, I look to the LORD for help.
I ^await confidently for God to save me,
and my God will certainly hear me.

⁸ Do not gloat over me, my enemies!
For though I fall, I will rise again.
Though I sit in darkness,
the LORD will be my light.

⁹ I will be patient as the LORD
punishes me,
for I have sinned against him.

Micah 6:8, a well-known and oft-memorized verse, answers a series of questions put forth by a confused people who had lost their moral and spiritual bearings.

The people of Israel wanted to know what they could do to be acceptable to the Lord. In an oppressive and deceitful society, they had lost a sense of what the Lord regards as good. God gave them a concrete answer: He is not seeking mechanical, ritualistic worship (6:5-6), but that his people do what is right in relationship with him and in their relationships with each other. As they are motivated by love, their actions will be tempered by justice, mercy, and humility (see 7:18-20). God's people are not to oppress others, but to do what is just, righteous, and honest toward one another.

Micah 6:8 summarizes what God had already made known in the past to Israel: Humility, faith, and obedience are pleasing to him. God declared this message to Abraham (Gen 15:6; 17:1, 9), to Moses at Sinai (Exod 20–23), through his prophets (e.g., Deut 6:1-8; Hos 6:6), and through Israel's wise men (Prov 1:7).

It pleases God when his people walk humbly in faith before him, as exemplified by Moses (Num 12:3), Habakkuk (Hab 3:17-19), Daniel (Dan 9:1-19), and Ezra (Ezra 9:5-15). Real spirituality and devotion is in doing good, seeking justice, relieving oppression, defending orphans, and aiding widows (see Exod 22:21-24; 23:2-12; Deut 15:4-11; 24:12-15; Neh 5:1-13; Jer 22:16; Amos 5:7-24; Dan 4:27; Jas 1:27). These acts are marks of God's own character (Ps 146:9; Matt 11:5).

7:2-6 The people of Israel were without law, justice, or righteousness. Everyone took advantage of others for self-aggrandizement; they had created a society in which all forms of oppression were the norm.

7:2 not one honest person is left: This complaint is frequent in the prophets (see Isa 59:16; Jer 5:1; Ezek 22:30). • In the ancient Near East, people fished and hunted by setting traps and using nets (cp. Ps 10:9; Prov 1:17; Isa 51:20). • their own brothers: All fellow Israelites were regarded as brothers.

7:3 Both their hands: That is, they had perfected the skills for doing evil. • Officials and judges alike demand bribes:

Rulers and judges were forbidden to twist justice (Exod 18:19-22; Deut 16:18-20). Israel's judicial system was completely corrupt.

7:4 your judgment day is coming:

The people of Israel would soon be conquered by the Assyrians, the people of Judah would soon face destruction at the hands of the Babylonians, and all the people of the earth will soon face God in judgment.

7:5-6 Don't trust anyone: Bitterness, corruption, and treachery had poisoned the community of the Lord's people (cp. Matt 10:34-36; Luke 12:52-53).

7:7-10 In the midst of despair, Micah prays with a psalm of hope and confidence in the Lord (cp. Hab 2:4; 3:16-18).

7:8 Though I sit in darkness: The prophet confidently trusts in God to be his light (cp. Ps 27:1) even in deep difficulty, knowing that his enemies would not overcome him (cp. Ps 23:4-5). God's Spirit gave him the power and confidence to perform his prophetic task (3:8).

7:9 I have sinned: The prophet and other godly people recognize their own failure and culpability, yet trust in the Lord for redemption. • The Lord's righteousness brings salvation and rescue for his people.

But after that, he will take up my case and give me justice for all I have suffered from my enemies.
The LORD will bring me into the light, and I will see his righteousness.
¹⁰ Then my enemies will see that the LORD is on my side.
They will be ashamed that they taunted me, saying, “So where is the LORD—that God of yours?”
With my own eyes I will see their downfall;
they will be trampled like mud in the streets.
¹¹ In that day, Israel, your cities will be rebuilt,
and your borders will be extended.
¹² People from many lands will come and honor you—from Assyria all the way to the towns of Egypt,
from Egypt all the way to the Euphrates River,
and from distant seas and
mountains.
¹³ But the land will become empty and desolate because of the wickedness of those who live there.
The LORD's Compassion on Israel ¹⁴ O LORD, protect your people with your shepherd's staff;

lead your flock, your special
possession.
Though they live alone in a thicket on the heights of Mount Carmel, let them graze in the fertile pastures of Bashan and Gilead
as they did long ago.
¹⁵ “Yes,” says the LORD,
“I will do mighty miracles for you, like those I did when I rescued you from slavery in Egypt.”
¹⁶ All the nations of the world will stand amazed at what the LORD will do for you.
They will be embarrassed
at their feeble power.
They will cover their mouths in silent awe,
deaf to everything around them.
¹⁷ Like snakes crawling from their holes,
they will come out to meet the LORD
our God.
They will fear him greatly,
trembling in terror at his presence.
¹⁸ Where is another God like you, who ^hpardons the guilt of the remnant,
overlooking the sins of his special
people?
You will not stay angry with your people
forever,

7:10 where is the Lord? This taunt rebuked God and those who trusted him. God had promised always to be with his people and their leaders (Gen 46:3-4; Exod 3:12). God was dishonored by these taunts, and he would act to clear his name (cp. Ezek 20:9; 36:19-26).

7:11-12 That day includes (1) 538 BC, when Israel began to return from exile in Babylon (see Ezra 1-2); and (2) the final restoration of God's people (see Amos 9:11-15). As the nations flow to a renewed Israel, God's purposes through Abraham will be fulfilled (Gen 12:3).

7:12 the Euphrates River: Literally the river.

7:13 land: Or earth. • Before their restoration, Israel must be disciplined (Deut 4:29; 28:37, 48, 63; 30:1-6). • empty and desolate: The people's intransigent wickedness brought on God's judgments.

7:14-20 The Lord promised to completely renew Israel, his special possession (see Exod 19:5; Mal 3:17). Judgment would not mean the destruction of hope, but a cleansing so that true hope could prevail. The restoration would be God's work alone as he restored the remnant of his special people and removed their guilt by his love, compassion, and faithfulness (see Exod 32:12-14).

7:14 • With a shepherd's staff, an ancient Near Eastern shepherd could defend his sheep from wild beasts. Likewise, the prophet prayed that God would protect his people from hostile Gentile nations (cp. Exod 4:1-5). • special possession: Cp. Exod 19:5; Deut 7:6; 14:2; 26:18; Mal 3:17; 1 Pet 2:9. • on the heights of Mount Carmel: Or surrounded by a fruitful land. • Bashan and Gilead, east of the Jordan River, were part of the Lord's earliest gifts to the Israelite tribes of Reuben, Gad, and Manasseh (Josh 13:15-31). Assyria annexed these territories and took these tribes away in the 700s BC. Israel's ownership would be restored and expanded.

7:15 Israel's enslavement to sin and to other nations called for mighty miracles such as those that brought Israel out of Egypt.

7:16 The promise that all the nations would be blessed by the descendants of Abraham (Gen 12:3) would be fulfilled in this restoration of God's special people.

7:17 Like snakes, the nations had struck at the heel of Israel (cp. Gen 3:14-15). The prophets regularly depicted foreign nations as poisonous, deceitful serpents (Isa 14:29; Jer 8:17; Ezek 29:1-3). Now these nations would be humbled (cp. Ps 72:9). Crawling and “eating dust” were metaphors for defeat and humiliation.

7:18-20 These verses provide a fine brief summary of OT theology. God is unique; there is no one and nothing else like him. Because of his unfailing love (Hebrew hesed), he does not destroy his people whom he judges, but instead restores them (see Exod 36:6-7). His faithfulness means that he can be trusted to do good regardless of the cost to himself (see Ps 89:1-2). • Where is another God like you: This question probably plays off of Micah's name (“Who is like the Lord?”). God's character is unequalled among the gods of the nations. His actions and words spring from his character (Exod 34:6-7). God

THE BOOK OF Nahum

No one likes being in the path of imminent disaster, nor is the menacing threat of enemy invasion a pleasant thought. Can God protect in such circumstances? Will God judge wicked aggressors? Nahum's reply is a clear yes. Nahum's prophecy assures us that God still controls earth's history. His messages are a warning to oppressors and a comfort to the oppressed.

SETTING

In Nahum's time, the kingdom of Judah was in danger of being swallowed by a great superpower, the Assyrian empire. From Nineveh, the capital, the great king Ashurbanipal (668–626 BC) brought Assyrian might to its zenith. Its military power and cultural influence spanned the length and breadth of the ancient Near East. Even the age-old city of Thebes had felt the conqueror's heel (3:8-10).

The times were less than encouraging for Nahum and the people of Judah. Israel, their sister kingdom to the north, had already fallen to the Assyrians in 722 BC, and Judah now faced the same imperial enemy. To make matters worse, Ashurbanipal had recently captured Judah's king, the wicked Manasseh (697–642 BC), and taken him to Babylon (2 Chr 33:10-11). Following his release from captivity, a repentant Manasseh (2 Chr 33:12-17) attempted to undo his former wickedness (2 Kgs 21:1-18;

2 Chr 33:1-9). Despite his efforts, his prior evil influence still permeated the land. This, coupled with the long shadow of Assyrian supremacy, cast a cloud of doom over God's people. Thus, Nahum's prophetic messages of Nineveh's fall and of hope for Judah's future were timely.

◀ The Near East during Nahum's Time (about 645–615 BC). The Assyrian empire under King Ashurbanipal (668–626 BC) reached its peak and threatened to engulf Judah. Yet Nahum brought hope and the promise that the Assyrian empire would be destroyed. After Ashurbanipal's death, Assyria quickly lost its strength, and its capital Nineveh was sacked by the Babylonians in 612 BC, marking the end of Assyrian dominance.

ASSYRIA 1:12-14; 3:18

JUDAH 1:15; 2:2

THEBES, EGYPT, LIBYA, PUT, ETHIOPIA 3:8-10

The seeds of Assyria's fall were already being sown in Nahum's day. After King Ashurbanipal repelled a strong coalition of enemies to the west and resisted his brother's challenge to the throne, he busied himself with literary and artistic pursuits. Affairs of state languished, and Assyria grew increasingly weak. After Ashurbanipal's death (626 BC), one after another of the great cities of Assyria began falling to foreign invaders. Then the unthinkable happened—Nineveh itself fell in 612 BC, as Nahum had predicted.

SUMMARY

Nahum opens his prophecy with a consideration of God (1:1-11). The prophet depicts God's power in two striking poetic passages, 1:2-6 and 1:7-11. God is sovereign over all people and over the natural world. Nahum's poems portray God's judgment against wickedness and his goodness toward those who put their trust in him. The opening verses give assurance that God will administer his justice fairly.

Nahum then explains what God's sovereign justice means in the flow of history (1:12-15). No nation is so great that it will not pay for its evil, and God is aware of the plight of those who are oppressed. The prophet assures the people of Judah that they will soon know changed circumstances. Peace and stability will return, and God's people will be able to enjoy the uninterrupted worship of God.

After predicting the siege of Nineveh and the return of normal conditions in Judah (2:1-2), Nahum describes the fall of the Assyrian capital in two vivid portrayals (2:3-10; 3:1-7). Between the two accounts, Nahum contemplates Nineveh's destruction in a brief, taunting song. With biting satire, he declares God's intention of bringing an end to proud Nineveh's greed (2:11-13).

Nahum builds upon his second description of Nineveh's fall through another satire of the city. Nineveh would be no more defensible than Egypt's capital, Thebes (3:8-13), which Assyria had destroyed. He closes his prophecy with yet another piece of satire (3:14-19). Sensing the hopelessness of Nineveh's plight, he taunts the city's citizens by urging them to call upon all their resources in order to defend themselves. Of course, that would do no good. Nineveh would lie fatally wounded with no one to help or even mourn her passing.

AUTHOR

Beyond the little that can be gleaned from his writings, nothing is known of Nahum, the author of this short prophecy. In the Hebrew text, he is identified as "Nahum the Elkoshite" (1:1). Elkosh could be his clan name, but more likely it was his hometown, which was probably located in southwest Judah. The details of the book show that he was well acquainted with the city of Nineveh.

DATE

Nahum mentions the fall of Thebes (663 BC; 3:10), and predicts the fall of Nineveh, which occurred in 612 BC. Therefore, Nahum spoke these prophecies sometime between 663 and 612 BC. Exactly when he did so within this span of years is debatable. It may have been some time late in the reign of Manasseh (about 648~645 BC), perhaps during his attempted reforms after being released from Assyrian captivity (2 Chr 33:12-16); or, it may have been later, during the early or middle part of righteous King Josiah's reign (640-609 BC).

MEANING AND MESSAGE

No empire, however great, is beyond God's scrutiny. Sooner or later, all must give an account of their actions to the Lord. The reality of the sovereign God's righteous justice lies beneath the predicted judgment of Nineveh and Assyria. He is in control of everyone and everything on earth. This assures us of God's concern for all who suffer, whether from the horrors and atrocities of war or from any other oppression. A burdened humankind can be confident that divine justice will ultimately prevail.

God is long-suffering (1:3), and his people must be patient. The assurance that this good and caring Lord (1:7) has a distinct purpose for his people (2:2) encourages them to a life of faith and trust. Beyond the book's menacing tone lies the good news of hope (1:15). The prophet predicts a coming day when God's people will once again worship him in wondrous peace and joy. They will at last be free of those who would take away their freedom. It is no wonder that subsequent writers of Scripture found in Nahum's good news a promise of the gospel message (Rom 10:15; see also Isa 52:7). Jesus Christ provides the opportunity for personal deliverance from sin. Knowing that the unbeliever faces an even greater doom than that of fallen Nineveh motivates a missionary effort to carry the good news of the gospel to a dying world.

1. SUPERScription: INTRODUCING THE PROPHET (1:1)

1 This message concerning Nineveh came as a vision to Nahum, who lived in Elkosh.

2. THE LORD'S ANGER AGAINST NINEVEH (1:2-15)

God's Sovereignty

2 The LORD is a jealous God, filled with vengeance and rage.
He takes revenge on all who oppose him and continues to rage against his enemies!

3 The LORD is ^aslow to get angry, but his power is great,
and he never lets the guilty go unpunished.

He displays his power in the whirlwind and the storm.

The billowing clouds are the dust beneath his feet.

4 At his command the oceans dry up, and the rivers disappear.
The lush pastures of Bashan and Carmel fade,
and the green forests of Lebanon
wither.

5 In his presence the mountains quake,
and the hills melt away;

the earth trembles,
and its people are destroyed.

6 Who can stand before his fierce anger?

Who can survive his burning fury?
His rage blazes forth like fire, and the mountains crumble to dust in his presence.

God's Irresistible Justice

7 The LORD is good,
a strong refuge when trouble
comes.

He is close to those who trust in him.

8 But he will sweep away his enemies in an overwhelming flood.

He will pursue his foes into the darkness of night.

9 Why are you scheming against the
LORD?

He will destroy you with one blow;
he won't need to strike twice!

10 His enemies, tangled like thornbushes and staggering like drunks, will be burned up like dry stubble in a field.

11 Who is this wicked counselor of yours who plots evil against the LORD?

1:1 message . . . vision: This opening, similar to that of other prophetic books (cp. Obad 1:1; Hab 1:1; Mal 1:1), identifies Nahum as a prophet, one who uttered messages from God. • Nineveh became the capital of the Assyrian empire sometime shortly after 705 bc and remained so until its destruction in 612 bc. • The name Nahum means "comfort" or "encouragement." An important theme of his prophecy is that God will bring encouragement to his people through Nineveh's downfall (1:12-15; see Isa 40:1).

1:2-11 This short, two-stanza hymn (1:2-6, 7-11) tells of God's sovereign power.

1:2-6 The hymn's first stanza draws from biblical texts commemorating Israel's exodus from Egypt. The message is that everything in all creation is subject to God's sovereign power, and God will ensure the punishment of those who oppose him.

1:2 jealous (or zealous): God zealously guards the welfare of his people and zealously desires their faithfulness (see Exod 20:4-5; Deut 4:23-24; 6:4; Jer 2:1-3:5). • God's vengeance and rage cannot be confused with the human attitude of "getting even." God's actions emerge from his holiness (Jer 50:28-29), justice (Isa 63:1-9), and faithfulness to the covenant with his people (Lev 26:23-25; Isa 1:24-26). His vengeance is never arbitrary.

1:3 slow to get angry: God's patience with disobedience is linked to his faithful love (Exod 34:6; Num 14:18; Ps 103:8; Joel 2:13). This trait had disappointed Jonah, who wanted Nineveh destroyed immediately (Jon 4:2). Because God is patient, he sometimes delays the deserved punishment of sinners (Neh 9:29-30; Rom 2:4; 2 Pet 3:9), but those guilty of persisting in sin will ultimately face God's judgment (Exod 34:7; Rom 14:10; 2 Cor 5:10; Rev 14:6-7). • the whirlwind and the storm: This imagery describes the fury of God's judgment against the wicked (see also Isa 29:6).

1:4 Like clouds (1:3) and mountains (1:5), oceans and rivers are under God's sovereign control. The OT prophets often recall God's actions against the seas and rivers during the Exodus (Exod 15:8-10; 2 Sam 22:16; Ps 66:6; 77:16; Hab 3:15). God's power over the waters repudiated the mythology of the ancient Canaanites, who believed that the oceans and the rivers were under the control of the sea-god, Yam. • Bashan, situated east of the Sea of Galilee, was known for its rich pastureland, ideal for raising cattle (cp. Mic 7:14). • Carmel, on the Mediterranean coast in central Canaan, was noted for its beauty and fruitfulness (Song 7:5; Jer 50:19). • Lebanon was famed for its great cedars (1 Kgs 5:6-18). Nahum lists these areas to demonstrate that even the most fertile and productive places on earth cannot withstand the power of God's judgment.

1:5 OT poetry often mentions the shaking of the earth to commemorate the Exodus period (e.g., Ps 18:7; Hab 3:6; see Exod 19:18).

1:6 The Hebrew word translated rage is repeated from 1:2. Its repetition brackets 1:2-6 as a single poetic unit.

1:7-11 This second stanza (see note on 1:2-11) concentrates on God's sovereignty, righteousness, and justice in dealing with all people.

1:7 The LORD is good: God acts equitably when he judges the wicked. He also provides refuge for those who trust in him. He accepts them and protects them in the midst of life's trials (Ps 18:2; 62:5-7). God's rich goodness can lead individuals to repentance (Rom 2:2-4).

1:8 overwhelming flood: A metaphor for the powerful nature of God's judgment (see 2:6).

1:9 Why are you scheming: No scheme or human plot against God can succeed. Human plans are worthless if they do not match God's plans (Ps 2; Isa 14:26-27; 23:9).

1:11 The wicked counselor is the Assyrian king. God had also dealt with the arrogant conceit of an Assyrian king in Hezekiah's time (about 701 bc; see 2 Kgs 19:35-36). Assyria's wicked counselor contrasts with the coming Messiah, the King who is a "Wonderful Counselor" (Isa 9:6).

Good News for Judah, Bad News for Nineveh

¹² This is what the LORD says:

"Though the Assyrians have many allies,
they will be destroyed and disappear.
O my people, I have punished you
before,
but I will not punish you again.

¹³ Now I will break the yoke of bondage from your neck and tear off the chains of Assyrian oppression."

¹⁴ And this is what the LORD says concerning the Assyrians in Nineveh:

"You will have no more children to carry on your name.
I will destroy all the idols in the temples of your gods.
I am preparing a grave for you because you are despicable!"

¹⁵ Look! A messenger is coming over the mountains with good news!
He is bringing a message of peace.
Celebrate your festivals, O people of Judah,
and fulfill all your vows, for your wicked enemies will never invade your land again.
They will be completely destroyed!

3. THE FALL OF NINEVEH (2:1-13)

Warning to Nineveh

2 ¹ Your enemy is coming to crush you,
Nineveh.

Man the ramparts! Watch the roads!
Prepare your defenses! Call out your forces!

² Even though the destroyer has destroyed Judah,
the LORD will restore its honor.
Israel's vine has been stripped of branches,
but he will restore its splendor.

³ Shields flash red in the sunlight!
See the scarlet uniforms of the valiant troops!
Watch as their glittering chariots move into position, with a forest of spears waving above
them.

⁴ The chariots race recklessly along the streets
and rush wildly through the squares.
They flash like firelight and move as swiftly as lightning.

⁵ The king shouts to his officers;
they stumble in their haste, rushing to the walls to set up their defenses.

1:12 The Assyrians' allies were vassal or subordinate kingdoms, including once-powerful Egypt. Ironically, a coalition of former allies gradually brought down the great Neo-Assyrian empire between 625 and 605 BC. • O my people refers to Judah, whom God had punished earlier when the Assyrian king Sennacherib (704–681 BC) launched a campaign (701 BC) against the western states of the Near East. While Sennacherib failed to take Jerusalem (2 Kgs 19:32-36), he boasted in his annals of carrying away Jerusalem's tribute and an enormous amount of booty from forty-six cities in Judah. Although Judah was now reduced to vassalage and faced the constant possibility of Assyrian aggression, Assyria did not defeat the southern kingdom. Babylon did so, however, in 586 BC. Sadly, neither Israel nor Judah heeded God's repeated warnings that failure to repent would result in judgment (Hos 11:5; Joel 2:1-27).

1:14 no more children: Nineveh would be completely annihilated. Cutting off a person's name and leaving him without a descendant meant utterly destroying him (1 Sam 24:21; Job 18:17; Isa 14:22). • None of Assyria's venerated gods could deliver Nineveh from God's death sentence. • God was already preparing a grave for Nineveh and directing Assyria's enemies to destroy the city. Assyria's proud cities fell one by one to the combined attacks of the Chaldeans, the Medes, and the Ummanmanda. Nineveh itself fell in 612 BC.

1:15 Verse 1:15 is numbered 2:1 in the Hebrew text. • Nahum supplements his prophecy of Judah's release from bondage (1:13) with a prediction of the arrival of a messenger bringing the good news of restored peace (see also Isa 52:7). The message of peace was that Assyria's hold on Judah would be broken and God's people would be free of its burden. This took place during the reign of Josiah (640–609 BC), after the death of the Assyrian king Ashurbanipal in 626 BC. This political message is a foretaste of God's final triumph over evil, when his people will be released from bondage to sin through the saving work of the Messiah and be given eternal peace (Zeph 3:13; Luke 2:10-14; Acts 10:34-43; Rom 10:15; Eph 2:14-18).

2:1-13 Verses 2:1-13 are numbered 2:2-14 in the Hebrew text.

2:1 Although Nineveh's defenders might fully prepare to protect the city with ramparts . . . roads . . . defenses, and forces, their efforts were doomed to failure (1:1-14).

2:2 The vine symbolizes God's blessing his people (Isa 27:2-6), while the stripped vine reflects God's previous chastisement of them (Isa 5:1-7). The children of Israel were in a sad state compared to the days of the great kings David and Solomon, but God promised to restore the splendor of his people.

2:3 with a forest of spears waving above them: This phrase follows the Hebrew text; the Greek and Syriac versions read the horses whipped into a frenzy.

2:4 Chariots were virtually unstoppable in battle because of their maneuverability and power.

2:5 The Assyrian king overcomes the initial shock of Nineveh's being attacked and shouts to his officers. He and the city have been caught off guard and they rush to the walls to thwart the siege. • to set up their defenses (literally the covering is prepared): The meaning of the Hebrew term here is uncertain. Covering probably refers to something the attackers or the defenders used to protect themselves from armaments hurled through the air.

Jon 3:1-4; 11
Acts 10:34-43;
17:30-31
Rev 20:11-15

Nahum concentrates on Nineveh's judgment because God's justice demands it (1:14; 2:13; 3:4). God is just (Ps 9:7-8); he detests sin and rewards people and nations justly in accord with what they do (Ps 67:4; Isa 1:27; Jer 46:28; Joel 3:1-8; Acts 17:31). God is in sovereign control of the natural world (1:4-6, 8) and of all nations (1:3, 6-10, 15). The world and its inhabitants stand helpless when opposing him (Job 41:10-11; Isa 40:22-24).

God's justice sometimes may seem slow in coming (1:3). If God seems to delay judgment, it is because he is patient and merciful toward people (Jon 3-4; 2 Pet 3:9-15). God does not execute justice with rigid disinterest; he gives justice with love and seeks to bring those who deserve only judgment into a family relationship (see Exod 34:6-7).

Nahum's "good news" (1:15) was that all who trust in God will one day enjoy the peace and well-being that come with the final defeat of evil (see also Isa 11:1-9; Zeph 3:13). The ultimate fulfillment of this promise began in the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus Christ (Acts 10:34-43; Rom 10:9-15). Those who believe in the Lord Jesus experience the blessings of salvation in part now as they await God's final judgment of evil and the coming of his kingdom in its fullness (see Rev 20:7-22:5).

2:6 The rush to defend (2:5) comes too late; the defenses are already breached. • Nineveh was served by a reservoir formed by a double dam on the Khosr River, a tributary of the Tigris that flowed through the city. The reservoir was augmented by a series of flood gates. The Greek historian Diodorus reported that during this time torrential rains had already swelled the city's river system. By first closing, then opening the flood gates, Nineveh's attackers released the pent-up water as a battering ram against the city walls.

2:7 Because Nineveh's exile had been decreed by God, it would certainly happen. • To beat their breasts was a common sign of mourning (see, e.g., Luke 18:13).

2:8 The people will run away as fast as water flows from a breached reservoir (see note on 2:6).

2:9 The vast, uncounted wealth of other nations poured into the Assyrian capital as trade, tribute, and booty, but it was gone in an instant. Ruthless aggression and wickedness may succeed temporarily, but ultimately they will be destroyed (Prov 13:22; Obad 1:15; Luke 12:16-20).

2:10 plundered, empty, and ruined: The Hebrew here is alliterated for effect: buqah umbuqah umbullaqah. The effect might be translated into English as "devastated, despoiled, and destroyed."

2:11-13 Following the description of Nineveh's fall (2:1-10), Nahum inserts

the first of three taunt songs (see also 3:8-13, 14-19; this was a common form in the ancient Near East). In biting satire, he compares Nineveh to a lion's den. King Sennacherib and other Assyrian kings had compared themselves to lions, even decorating their palaces with artistic representations of lions and of themselves on lion hunts. However, with God as its enemy, Nineveh would no longer be the lair of an invincible predator.

2:13 young men: Literally young lions. • Examples of the voices of Assyria's proud messengers are found in 2 Kgs 18:19-19:13.

3:1 city of murder: The Assyrians' graphic cruelty is well documented. Their practices included cutting off external body parts—such as noses, ears, hands, and feet—and execution by impalement on stakes. They heaped up severed heads before the gates of besieged cities. The eyes of victims might also be put out and their skin stripped from their bodies while they were still alive.

3:2-3 These short, staccato phrases dramatize the effects of seeing and hearing the battle. • Assyrian chariots and charioteers were feared far and wide.

3:4 mistress of deadly charms: The Assyrians charmed other nations with wealth and promises of safety and prosperity, but then victimized them through military might and economic exploitation. Therefore, their punishment was a just recompense for their deeds (see Prov 24:12; Joel 3:4-8; Rev 18:6; 20:12).

3:5 Twice God tells Nineveh, I am your enemy (also 2:13). Nineveh's judgment stands as a historical reminder that the Lord abhors sin and will deal with people and nations according to their deeds (Ps 9:7-8; 62:12; Jer 46:28; Acts 17:31). One day, God's justice will fail worldwide on those who have rebelled against him (Rev 17–19).

3:8 Thebes (Hebrew No-amon; also in 3:10), the historic capital of Egypt, was situated on both sides of the Nile in Upper Egypt. It achieved its greatest fame as the political, religious, and cultural center of Egypt's great New Kingdom (1550–1069 BC). Though no longer Egypt's capital in the 600s BC, the city was still a thriving metropolis.

3:9-10 Thebes fell to the Assyrians under King Ashurbanipal in 663 BC. Before Ashurbanipal's victory, Thebes had seemed to have unconquerable defenses, as well as the help of all

Egypt and its allies: Ethiopia (Hebrew Cush), Put (perhaps the fabled land of Punt, located near what is now coastal Somalia), and Libya. None of these, however, had effectively protected Thebes. • babies were dashed to death: Ancient conquerors had the heinous practice of exterminating the infants of their enemies in this way (2 Kgs 8:12; Ps 137:9; Isa 13:16, 18). • Soldiers threw dice (literally They cast lots) for the spoils of war, while the leaders of the conquered people were bound in chains (see 2 Kgs 25:7; Jer 40:1, 4; Joel 3:3; Obad 1:11).

3:12 ripe figs: Cp. Amos 8:1-2; Rev 6:13.

3:14 Get ready . . . Strengthen: Nahum used sarcasm to stress that no amount of preparation would make the Assyrians able to withstand God's wrath (note also the sarcastic tone of 2:11-13).

¹⁹ There is no healing for your wound;
your injury is fatal.
All who hear of your destruction will clap their hands for joy.
Where can anyone be found who has not suffered from your continual cruelty?

3:15 The OT often uses locusts as a metaphor for armies (see Joel 2:1-11).
3:16 Assyrian merchants had spread throughout the Near East like locusts, filling Nineveh with untold wealth. But just as locusts desire only to satisfy their insatiable appetites and then fly off, the merchants will take their goods and go in the time of Nineveh's distress, leaving a needy populace behind.

3:17 guards: Or princes.

3:18 shepherds: With the leaders gone, Nineveh's people would be scattered like sheep. • lie dead (literally sleep; see John 11:11-14): Assyria's leaders, asleep during Nineveh's crisis, would sleep in death. By contrast, Israel's Shepherd does not slumber (Ps 121:3), and he will gather Israel's lost sheep (Jer 23:3; Ezek 36:35).

3:19 Nineveh deserved destruction rather than healing. Although God had been patient with Nineveh in Jonah's day (Jon 3:10), the Assyrians had returned to cruelty and would reap the harvest of their own evil (see Prov 11:16-19; Isa 66:5-6; Hos 8:7). Those who had suffered under Assyria's cruelty would welcome this message with joy.

THE BOOK OF

Habakkuk

"Why do you allow injustice?" Habakkuk asked God. "Why do you tolerate evil?" God did not answer Habakkuk's questions directly. Instead, much as he did with Job, God gave Habakkuk a vision of his deity. Whether or not the prophet understood God's ways, he could safely trust him. Habakkuk's questions echo in the hearts of all God-fearing people. The book of Habakkuk does not offer easy answers to the problem of evil in the world. Instead, it gives sound reasons to exercise faith in the sovereign, holy, and just God, who will ultimately bring justice to his world.

SETTING

Habakkuk lived during a time when Judah had long been under the power of Assyria. The Assyrian empire had engulfed most of the ancient Near East, from Mesopotamia to the Egyptian capital city of Thebes. But by Habakkuk's day (late 600s BC), Assyria was showing signs of the weakness that would ultimately spell its doom. After finishing military campaigns in the mid 640s BC, the Assyrian king Ashurbanipal became preoccupied with literary and artistic pursuits. His growing inattention to the administration of his empire brought weakness abroad and uprisings within.

At Ashurbanipal's death, Assyria was faced with a new threat. In Babylon, King Nabopolassar (626–605 BC) proclaimed his independence from Assyria and laid the foundation for a Neo-Babylonian empire that would last for nearly a century (626–539 BC). Nabopolassar conquered one after another of Assyria's principal cities. The capital city of Nineveh fell in 612 BC, and the remaining Assyrian forces were subsequently defeated at Haran (609 BC) and Carchemish (605 BC).

When Nabopolassar's son Nebuchadnezzar II

◀ The Setting of Habakkuk, 609–605 BC. Habakkuk probably prophesied during the reign of Jehoiakim (609–598 BC), before the Babylonian invasion in 605 BC. When Habakkuk received his messages from the Lord, JUDAH had descended into wickedness. Between 612 and 605 BC, the Babylonians conquered the Assyrians and then, in 605 BC, swept unopposed into Judah. Thus began the process leading to the destruction of Judah and JERUSALEM in 605–586 BC.

(605–562 BC) succeeded him, his empire extended over vast portions of the ancient Near East. Nebuchadnezzar launched a series of campaigns against the kingdom of Judah, successfully attacking Jerusalem on three occasions and carrying many of its people into slavery. The last of these attacks (586 BC) resulted in the final overthrow of the kingdom of Judah.

Except for the final years of the godly king Josiah (640–609 BC), violence and injustice characterized Judean society from the evil reign of Manasseh (697–642 BC) to the fall of Jerusalem (586 BC). In many ways Manasseh was the opposite of his godly father, Hezekiah (see 2 Kgs 21:1-9; 2 Chr 33:2-9). Manasseh actively promoted pagan rites that pre-Israelite settlers of Canaan had practiced. This apostasy doomed Judah.

OUTLINE

1:1

Superscription: Introducing the Prophet

Habakkuk's Perplexity

3:1–19

Habakkuk's Prayer

Manasseh's later repentance and attempts to undo his earlier evils (2 Chr 33:15-19) did not result in lasting change. When his son Amon took the throne, he reintroduced all of the paganism practiced by his father (2 Kgs 21:21-22). The subsequent ministries of prophets such as Zephaniah, Jeremiah, and Ezekiel, and the reform efforts of Josiah (2 Chr 34:1–35:19) failed to produce lasting change. Even during Josiah's reforms, the people of Judah remained entrenched in their apostasy. As a result, Judah's later kings were all condemned for their wickedness (2 Kgs 23:32, 37; 24:19; Jer 22:1-30; 27:1-22; 36:30-31).

Both externally and internally, the nation of Judah was in a precarious state. It was during this last, tragic period of Judah's history as an independent state that Habakkuk saw wickedness and injustice all around him (1:2-4).

SUMMARY

Habakkuk's prophecy is a dialogue between God and the prophet. In the opening verses, Habakkuk contemplates the violent society Judah had become. He cannot understand why God seems to ignore Judah's sin. Habakkuk feels that despite his repeated cries, God simply is not listening to him (1:2-4). God's first answer is that he is about to deal with Judah's violence by bringing an even more violent people, the Babylonians, to judge them (1:5-11).

This answer perplexes Habakkuk even more (1:12–2:1). Judah was indeed wicked, but why would God use people who were even more wicked to chastise his own people? God's answer to this question focuses on his justice in punishing both Judah and the Babylonians (2:2-5). Both failed to maintain God's high standards of faith and morality. Both merited God's judgment. In a series of five taunt songs (2:6-20), God lists his charges against all who are corrupt and do injustice. Undoubtedly, this included the Babylonians; even if God is using people to accomplish his purposes, they are still responsible for living according to God's moral standards. If they do not, they cannot escape punishment.

The final chapter opens with Habakkuk's prayer for God's mercy on Judah, even while he chastens them (3:1-2). Habakkuk then records a psalm of praise that reflects poetically on the account of God's redemption of his people during the Exodus (3:3-15). Habakkuk closes with a declaration of commitment and a note of praise (3:16-19).

AUTHOR

Nothing is known about Habakkuk except that he was a prophet of Judah. One manuscript of the later apocryphal book Bel and the Dragon identifies Habakkuk as a Levite. If accurate, this might help explain the musical notations in the third chapter (3:1, 3, 9, 13, 19), as the Temple music leaders were Levites (see 1 Chr 6:31-47; 25:1-31). Habakkuk's rich use of figurative language and his careful compositional structure indicate his high literary sensitivity. His hatred of the immorality and social breakdown that sin causes also demonstrates his deep spiritual concern that God's people live by God's standards.

The date of Habakkuk's prophecy is uncertain. The circumstances mentioned in the book fit best with a time late in the divided kingdom, but preceding Judah's exile to Babylon; therefore, the prophecy can be dated to 645–586 BC. Habakkuk's complaint about social injustice (1:2-4) and his attention to the Neo-Babylonian empire (1:5-11; 2:6-20) also favor a date during this time frame.

Regarding a more specific date, three general positions have been advanced. (1) Many date the book to the time of King Jehoiakim (609–598 BC), whose evil disposition and wicked actions (2 Kgs 24:1-3) brought both condemning prophecies (Jer 22:18-19; 26:3-6; 36:27-32) and the threat of Babylonian invasion (Jer 25). (2) Others argue for the early days of Josiah (640–609 BC), who, prior to the finding of the Book of the Law in 622 BC, dealt with rampant apostasy (2 Chr 34:1-7). (3) Still others defend the traditional Jewish view that Habakkuk lived during the time of the independent reign of Manasseh (686–642 BC), whose wickedness (2 Kgs 21:16-17) and reinstatement of Canaanite worship and pagan rites (2 Kgs 21:1-11; 2 Chr 33:1-9, 19-20) caused God's pronouncement of Judah's doom (2 Kgs 21:12-15).

MEANING AND MESSAGE

When violence and corruption abound and evil appears to rule, the faithful may be tempted to wonder whether God really cares or is really in control. Habakkuk's dialogue helps us to understand that God does not despise such questions when they are carried to him in prayer from an honest heart.

Habakkuk's prophecy reaffirms that God is in control of history and that his dealings are always just and right. Believers must be willing to accept God's answers and delight in his will, even if those are completely foreign to their own thinking. God does see and care deeply about what happens on earth. Although people may not perceive it, God's sovereign hand is at work, and he will ultimately bring matters to a proper and just conclusion (2:2-3, 14).

Habakkuk in Cornerstone Biblical Commentary, vol. 10 (2008)

The Babylonians worshiped the raw power that brought them bounty. God's charges against the Babylonians remind readers to worship God alone (cp. 1 Jn 5:21).

God's message to Habakkuk emphasizes that the believer's holy life of faith and faithfulness must reproduce God's high moral and ethical qualities (1:12; 2:4). Those who trust and actively serve God will be able to rejoice in the Lord (3:18; Phil 4:4) and live triumphantly under any circumstances (2:20; 3:16-19). NT writers reinforce this message (Rom 1:16-17; Gal 3:11; Heb 10:35-39).

1. SUPERScription: INTRODUCING THE PROPHET (1:1)

1 This is the message that the prophet Habakkuk received in a vision.

2. HABAKKUK'S PERPLEXITY (1:2-2:20)

Habakkuk Questions God's Inactivity

² How long, O LORD, must I call for help?

But you do not listen!

"Violence is everywhere!" I cry,
but you do not come to save.

³ Must I forever see these evil deeds?
Why must I watch all this misery?

Wherever I look,
I see destruction and violence.

I am surrounded by people who love to argue and fight.
⁴ The ^alaw has become paralyzed, and there is no ^bjustice in the courts.
The wicked far outnumber the righteous,
so that ^bjustice has become perverted.

What Lies Ahead for Judah

⁵The LORD replied,
"Look around at the nations;
look and be amazed!
For I am doing something in your own
day,

something you wouldn't believe even if someone told you about it.

⁶ I am raising up the Babylonians,
a cruel and violent people.

They will march across the world and conquer other lands.

⁷ They are notorious for their cruelty and do whatever they like.

⁸ Their horses are swifter than cheetahs and fiercer than wolves at dusk.
Their charioteers charge from far away.
Like eagles, they swoop down to devour their prey.

⁹ "On they come, all bent on violence.
Their hordes advance like a desert
wind, sweeping captives ahead of them like
sand.

¹⁰ They scoff at kings and princes and scorn all their fortresses.
They simply pile ramps of earth against their walls and capture them!

¹¹ They sweep past like the wind and are gone.
But they are deeply guilty,
for their own strength is their god."

1:1 The word message (or oracle) identifies the book as God's revelation through his prophet (cp. Nah 1:1; Mal 1:1).

1:2-4 To Habakkuk, God seemed indifferent to the evil permeating society in Judah (1:3-4) and unresponsive to his complaints about it (1:2).

1:2 call for help? . . . do not listen! The call/answer motif in Scripture often demonstrates the speaker's trust in God as a refuge or guide (see Ps 102:1-2) and indicates intimate communion between the believer and God (Ps 145:18; Isa 65:24).

1:3 In Habakkuk's day, destruction and violence permeated Judean society (see Habakkuk Introduction, "Setting," p. 1502).

1:4 Habakkuk expresses his concern about the injustice and unrighteousness he saw all around him (see 1:12-13; 2:4, 9), even in the courts, where the law was no longer effective in maintaining justice.

1:5-11 God's answer to Habakkuk's question is startling. God would send a violent people—the Babylonians—to deal with the violence in Judah. The Babylonian army, well-trained and battle-hardened, was an unstoppable force.

1:5 Look . . . look: Two different Hebrew verbs, both of which are here translated look, are translated as see and watch in 1:3. This forms a literary link between Habakkuk's questions in 1:3 and God's reply in 1:5-11. • Look around at the nations; look and be amazed: Greek version reads Look, you mockers; / look and be amazed and die. Cp. Acts 13:41.

1:6 Babylonians: Or Chaldeans.

1:7 do whatever they like: No relief from injustice would come from the Babylonians. They were a law unto themselves, which added to the prophet's perplexity at God's decision to use them to punish Judah.

1:8 The vivid images of cheetahs (or leopards), wolves, and eagles depict the speed, ferocity, and predatory nature of the Babylonian attacks against Judah (see Jer 4:13; 48:40; 49:22).

1:9 The Babylonians indeed took many captives from Judah into exile between 605 and 586 bc (Dan 1:1-3).

1:10 The ancient battle tactic of building ramps of earth against the walls of cities under attack is widely attested in the ancient Near East (e.g., 2 Kgs 19:32; Nah 2:1).

1:11 their own strength is their god: The Babylonians worshiped many false gods. The arrogant confidence they placed on their military strength amounted to one more idol in the mix.

Habakkuk Questions God's Use of the Babylonians

¹² O LORD my God, my Holy One, you who are eternal—surely you do not plan to wipe us out?

O LORD, our Rock, you have sent these Babylonians to correct us, to punish us for our many sins.

¹³ But you are pure and cannot stand the sight of evil.

Will you wink at their treachery?

Should you be silent while the wicked swallow up people more righteous than they?

¹⁴ Are we only fish to be caught and killed?
Are we only sea creatures that have no leader?

¹⁵ Must we be strung up on their hooks and caught in their nets while they rejoice and celebrate?

¹⁶ Then they will worship their nets and burn incense in front of them.
“These nets are the gods who have made us rich!”
they will claim.

¹⁷ Will you let them get away with this forever?

Will they succeed forever in their heartless conquests?

2 ¹ I will climb up to my watchtower and stand at my guardpost.

There I will wait to see what the LORD says and how he will answer my complaint.

What Lies Ahead for the Babylonians

² Then the LORD said to me,

“Write my ^canswer plainly on tablets,
so that a runner can carry the correct message to others.

³ This vision is for a future time.

It describes the end, and it will be fulfilled.

If it seems slow in coming, wait patiently, for it will surely take place.

It will not be delayed.

⁴ Look at the proud!
They trust in themselves, and their lives are crooked.
But the righteous will live by their faithfulness to God.

⁵ Wealth is treacherous, and the arrogant are never at rest.
They open their mouths as wide as the grave,
and like death, they are never satisfied.

In their greed they have gathered up many nations and swallowed many peoples.

⁶ But soon their captives will taunt them.
They will mock them, saying,

1:12-2:1 Habakkuk found it difficult to harmonize God's answer (1:5-11) with what he understood about God's character. How could a holy and just God chastise Judah by using a people more unrighteous than they were?

1:12 Despite his perplexity, Habakkuk did not renounce God. With the words my God, my Holy One, he reaffirmed his commitment to the Lord before asking serious questions about what God had revealed to him. • In light of God's character and covenant relationship with Israel, Habakkuk was certain that God would not wipe his people out. • to correct us: Cp. Heb 12:5-11. • our Rock: A common image of God's faithfulness and strength (see Deut 32:15; 1 Sam 2:2; Ps 18:2; 1 Cor 10:4; 1 Pet 2:6-8).

1:14-15 fish . . . hooks . . . nets: Habakkuk portrays the Babylonians as fishermen, drawing in conquered peoples.

1:16 See note on 1:11; cp. 1 Jn 5:21.

2:1 I will . . . stand at my guardpost: Like a sentinel on duty (see also 2 Sam 18:24-28; 2 Kgs 9:17-20; Ezek 33:2-6), Habakkuk waited expectantly to see how God would answer his complaint, even if that meant being reproved by the Lord. • he: As in Syriac version; Hebrew reads I.

2:2-20 God responds to Habakkuk's second complaint (1:12-2:1) without explaining why he chose to use the Babylonians. Rather, he assures Habakkuk that all violence and injustice will be punished.

2:2-5 Habakkuk's mission was to make it clear to people that even if God's justice seems slow in coming, it will come.

2:2 God instructs the prophet to write the message (literally vision) plainly so that it will be understood, preserved, and shared with others.

2:3-4 If it seems slow . . . faithfulness to God: Greek version reads If the vision is delayed, wait patiently, / for it will surely come and not delay. / I will take no pleasure in anyone who turns away. / But the righteous person will live by my faith. Cp. Rom 1:17; Gal 3:11; Heb 10:37-38.

2:3 will surely take place: In a set future time known only to the Lord, he will intervene in earth's history and bring it to a proper culmination, vindicating the righteous and judging the wicked. God's people must wait patiently, knowing that the divine plan is on schedule (see Heb 10:35-38).

2:4 God is aware of the self-centeredness of the proud. Their crooked lives demonstrate their unrighteousness; they refuse God's instruction and gratify their own desires (Prov 12:15; 21:8, 29; 29:27). In contrast, the righteous enjoy proper judicial standing before God. They make God's righteous standards their own and reproduce them in their lives. • faithfulness: Hebrew emunah. In Genesis, the same Hebrew root ('mn) describes Abram's trust in God (Gen 15:6). God transforms the hearts of those who trust him so they can faithfully follow God's holy standards. See also Rom 1:16-17; Gal 3:11; Heb 10:37-39.

2:5 Wealth: As in Dead Sea Scroll 1QpHab; other Hebrew manuscripts read Wine. • the grave: Hebrew Sheol.

2:6-20 Five taunt songs (2:6-8, 9-11, 12-14, 15-17, 18-20) portray God's future judgment of the Babylonians (and others who, like the Babylonians, indulge in violence and injustice). God allows them to seal their own doom. Those who suffer will be able to repeat these taunts when the wicked come

Habakkuk had a candid relationship with God: The prophet felt free to bring his honest concerns to the Lord, and God did not rebuke him for doing so. From Habakkuk's perspective, God seemed inactive in the face of the violence and social injustice plaguing Judah (1:2-4). God then revealed that he would take action: He was going to raise up the Babylonians—a nation even more wicked than Judah—to punish Judah (1:5-11). This perplexed Habakkuk, yet God's assurance that justice would be done and a vision of God's glory brought the prophet to settled faith (cp. 2:4) and praise (3:16-19).

Habakkuk's spiritual journey is similar to that of most believers. When times of doubt and discouragement come, believers need to approach the Lord and share their concerns with him. Like Habakkuk, we need to search God's word for a fresh glimpse of who God is and what he is like in order to renew our trust in the One who alone is truly God.

Habakkuk 2:2-20 reminds us that the Lord is not an absentee god; he acts sovereignly in all that comes to pass so that everything might work toward his purpose (2:3, 14; see also Ps 47:9; Acts 17:24-26; Col 1:15-20). The Lord is a holy and merciful God who acts in history to redeem his people (3:2-15; see also Eph 1:3-10; 2 Pet 3:15) so that all may ultimately see his glory (2:14).

to judgment (see 1:14-17). Each taunt contains a pronouncement of sorrow, a judgment, and the reason for God's judgment.

2:6-8 In the first of Habakkuk's taunt songs, he condemns the Babylonians for despoiling the nations. • thieves . . . extortion: The imagery compares Babylonians to creditors whose oppressive measures cause their debtors to rise up against them. Greed can easily mar an individual's or nation's spiritual fiber (Luke 12:15; Eph 5:3).

2:9-11 In the second taunt song, the Babylonians are condemned for their dishonest dealings. Since the Babylonians obtained the means to build big houses through deceit and dishonesty, they forfeited their lives.

2:12-14 In the third taunt song, the Babylonians are condemned for the murder and corruption of human life and society that brought wealth to build their cities. God would make their apparent gain prove to be a total loss. • earth will be filled: The antithesis of violence and ill-gotten wealth is the awareness of the glory of the Lord, which God promises to make as pervasive as water in the ocean (Isa 11:9).

2:15-17 In the fourth taunt song, the Babylonians are condemned for their disgraceful acts against people, animals, and the environment. They are like a man who seems to be hospitable, but after getting his neighbors drunk, strips them of everything. However, the Babylonians will be disgraced after drinking from the cup of the Lord's judgment (see Jer 25:15-17; cp. John 18:11).

2:16 be exposed: Dead Sea Scrolls and Greek and Syriac versions read stagger.

- and all your glory will be turned to shame.
- ¹⁷ You cut down the forests of Lebanon.
Now you will be cut down.
You destroyed the wild animals,
so now their terror will be yours.
You committed murder throughout the countryside and filled the towns with violence.
- ¹⁸ "What good is an idol carved by man, or a cast image that deceives you?
How foolish to trust in your own creation—
a god that can't even talk!
- ¹⁹ What sorrow awaits you who say to wooden idols,
'Wake up and save us!'
To speechless stone images you say,
'Rise up and teach us!'
Can an idol tell you what to do?
They may be overlaid with gold and silver,
but they are lifeless inside.
- ²⁰ But the LORD is in his holy Temple.
Let all the earth be silent before him."

3. HABAKKUK'S PRAYER (3:1-19)

Plea for Mercy

3 This prayer was sung by the prophet Habakkuk:

² I have heard all about you, LORD.

I am filled with awe by your amazing works.
In this time of our deep need, help us again as you did in years gone by.
And in your anger,
remember your mercy.

Praise for the Mighty God

- ³ I see God moving across the deserts from Edom,
the Holy One coming from Mount Paran.
His brilliant splendor fills the heavens,
and the earth is filled with his praise.
- ⁴ His coming is as brilliant as the sunrise.
Rays of light flash from his hands,
where his awesome power is hidden.
- ⁵ Pestilence marches before him;
plague follows close behind.
- ⁶ When he stops, the earth shakes.
When he looks, the nations tremble.
He shatters the everlasting mountains and levels the eternal hills.
He is the Eternal One!
- ⁷ I see the people of Cushan in distress, and the nation of Midian trembling in terror.

2:18-20 In the fifth taunt song, the Babylonians are condemned for their devotion to idolatry. Whether idols are carved or cast by the hand of man, they can neither save nor teach their worshipers (Isa 42:17). Only the LORD truly deserves our worship (2:20; Exod 20:2-6; cp. Eccl 5:1-2).

2:20 The taunt songs close with a declaration: The one who is sovereign over all nations is not a Babylonian idol (2:18-20) but the Holy God. Unlike the lifeless Babylonian idols, the living God indwells his holy Temple. God's presence fills his heavenly sanctuary (Isa 6:1-5)—and in Habakkuk's time, it filled the Temple in Jerusalem (1 Kgs 8:10-11). God controls all the earth and expects people to worship him in humble submission (Ps 63:1-4; Jer 10:1-10; Mic 7:16; Zech 2:13).

3:1-19 Habakkuk's prophecy concludes with a psalm-like prayer.

3:1 Hebrew adds according to shigionoth, probably indicating the musical setting for the prayer.

3:2 Habakkuk stands in awe before the Sovereign One who sits enthroned in his holy Temple (2:20). • In light of God's message of Judah's coming chastisement, Habakkuk prays that God, who has miraculously intervened on Israel's behalf in the past, will once again make known his work of redemption (see also Ps 77).

3:3-15 The prophet praises God's power to save. These two praise stanzas (3:3-7 and 3:8-15) are a poetic reflection upon Israel's Exodus experience. Although Habakkuk's focus is upon God's redemption of his people, his imagery occasionally reflects ideas found in ancient Near Eastern tales concerning the gods (e.g., pestilence and plague, 3:5; river and sea, 3:8; sun and moon, 3:11). This imagery reminds Habakkuk's original readers that the Lord alone is the one true God who is sovereign over all these things.

3:3 Edom (Hebrew Teman): Teman was one of Edom's chief cities (see also Job 2:11; Jer 49:7); the term could refer to the entire region of Edom where the city was located (cp. Obad 1:9). Habakkuk's use of the term in conjunction with Mount Paran suggests that he had the broader region in mind. • Holy One is a prominent title for God, as holiness is his defining characteristic (1:12; see also Exod 15:11; 2 Kgs 19:22; Ps 77:13; Isa 6:3). • Mount Paran: The region of Paran included the mountain range west and south of Edom and northeast of Mount Sinai, as well as a broad desert area in the Sinai Peninsula. • Hebrew adds selah; also in 3:9, 13.

The meaning of this Hebrew term is uncertain; it is probably a musical or literary term.

3:4 brilliant as the sunrise: The Lord, who once appeared on Mount Sinai and filled the southern land with his glory, fills the heavens with his splendor.

3:5-6 God is the divine warrior who intervenes on behalf of his own (see 3:8-15; see also Isa 63:1-6).

3:5 Habakkuk personifies pestilence (see Deut 32:24) and plague (see Exod 7-12; Amos 4:10) as soldiers in God's army, fulfilling his purposes.

3:6 He is the Eternal One: Or The ancient paths belong to him.

3:7 Midian occupied the southern part of the region just east of the Jordan (see Gen 36:35); the nation was trembling in terror at the earth-shaking power of God's presence (3:6).

3:8-15 The LORD is a Divine Warrior for his people, moving in redemptive power on their behalf. The motif of God as Divine Warrior spans both OT and NT: It is seen in Israel's exodus from Egypt, their movement to Mount Sinai (Exod 15:1-18), their approach to the promised land from the south, and their triumphs in the early conquest period (e.g., Judg 5:4-5; Ps 18:8-16; 77:16-20; a key NT example is Rev 19:11-21).

See Exod 7:19-20; 14:15-31. • chariots of salvation: An ironic echo of the Egyptian chariots, which pursued the Israelites when God led them to escape through the Red Sea (Exod 14:9).

3:16 Although the full realization of God's mighty power sapped Habakkuk's strength to the point that he trembled, he would wait quietly (see 2:3) for God's judgment to descend. • My legs gave way beneath me: Literally Decay entered my bones.

3:17-19 After recounting God's mighty acts of redemption (3:2-15), and pausing to consider them (3:16), Habakkuk now reaffirms his trust in God as he closes his prayer. • Even though . . . yet I will rejoice: Even if God never pours out material blessing on his people again, he is still worthy of all the trust and praise they can give. Come what may, the prophet could rejoice, knowing that the LORD is not only Israel's Redeemer, but also the source of his own salvation.

3:19 Habakkuk owed whatever strength he had to the Sovereign LORD, his Savior (3:18). Habakkuk compared his spiritual climb to a deer swiftly ascending to the mountaintops and gracefully gliding over them (cp. Ps 18:32-33). • He makes me as surefooted as a deer: Or He gives me the speed of a deer.

THE BOOK OF Zephaniah

“That terrible day of the LORD is near. . . . A day of ruin and desolation, a day of darkness and gloom” (1:14-15). Zephaniah’s words send a chill through the soul. Will God’s wrath spell the end to everything? Zephaniah’s prophecy portrays the coming judgment, but it also presents God’s promise that his faithful people will one day enjoy a world of everlasting righteousness and joy.

SETTING

Zephaniah, like Habakkuk, lived in changing times (see Habakkuk Introduction, “Setting,” p. 1502). Toward the end of Assyrian king Ashurbanipal’s last military campaigns, King Amon apparently led Judah to participate in the widespread anti-Assyrian uprising that took place in many of the western countries of the Near East. Since Ashurbanipal moved swiftly to quell defectors, Judah’s leaders assassinated Amon (in about 640 BC) and replaced him with his son Josiah.

Josiah was only eight years old when he became king of Judah. He enjoyed a long reign (640–609 BC) as a righteous king. In the eighteenth year of his reign, while repairs were being made to the Temple, a scroll of the Book of the Law was found (2 Kgs 22:8; 2 Chr 34:14-15). After hearing the law read to him, King Josiah led his people in renewal and reform, reinstating biblical religious observances (2 Kgs 23:1-25; 2 Chr 34:29–35:19).

Before this pivotal event, the kingdom of Judah largely followed the idolatrous practices of Manasseh and Amon. Judah’s people were so devoted to apostasy that it ultimately brought about their doom (2 Kgs 21:10-25; 2 Chr 33:17, 21-24).

Zephaniah prophesied early in Josiah’s reign, after the death of Amon and before the Book of the Law was rediscovered. The time was characterized by religious indifference, social injustice, and economic greed (1:4-13; 3:1-4, 7). A true prophet of God was needed, and Zephaniah was such a man; he may have helped prepare people's hearts for Josiah's sweeping reforms.

◀ The Near East during Zephaniah’s Time (about 635–622 BC). Zephaniah prophesied early in the reign of Josiah (640–609 BC), before Josiah began making reforms (2 Kgs 22:3–23:27). At that time, the ASSYRIAN EMPIRE was at the height of its power under King Ashurbanipal (668–626 BC).

SUMMARY

Zephaniah begins his prophecy by announcing the day of the LORD. This term signified God's coming judgment on the whole sinful earth (1:2-3, 14-18), including his people in Judah and Jerusalem (1:4-13). Much like the people of Israel in the time of Amos some 125 years earlier, the people of Judah looked forward to "that day" as a time when God would vindicate them by destroying their enemies. Like Amos, however, Zephaniah had to tell his people that their covenant relationship with God did not make them immune to judgment. Because the day of the Lord would fall impartially on all wicked people, Zephaniah urged his fellow citizens to repent, to seek the Lord, and to live righteously in all humility (2:1-3). Perhaps then they might experience the Lord's protection in the coming time of wrath.

The implications of Zephaniah's prophecy are clear. The nations neighboring Judah would suffer terrible judgment because of their crimes against God's people, their arrogant pride, and their defiance of the Lord (2:4-15). However, Judah would not escape the Lord's chastening hand, because its spiritual and civil leaders had led society into total corruption despite knowing God's standards. In addition, the people of Judah had not taken proper notice of God's sovereign judgment on other nations for crimes like their own (3:1-7).

These impending judgments were just a precursor to a coming time of judgment that would engulf all nations on earth (3:8). However, judgment would not be the end: The day of judgment would come so that a day of salvation could follow (3:9-20). God promised restoration and blessing for a remnant from Israel and for all people (3:9).

Zephaniah records God's future plan to remove all proud and arrogant people from the earth; only those who "trust in the name of the LORD" will remain (3:12). God will gather his scattered people and restore them to their land, where they will live in righteousness and safety, worshiping the Lord (3:9-12). The "remnant of Israel" will enjoy the outpouring of God's blessings and rejoice in him forever (3:13-19). The judgment and salvation announced in Zephaniah foreshadow God's final act of bringing judgment and salvation at the return of Jesus Christ (see Rev 19:11-22:5).

AUTHOR

Little is known of Zephaniah beyond the lineage in 1:1, which traces his ancestry to Hezekiah. Jewish and Christian expositors traditionally equate this Hezekiah with the king of that name (see 2 Kgs 18:1–20:20), which would mean that Zephaniah was of royal descent and probably a positive influence in the life of young King Josiah. The unusual attention to four generations of family lineage indicates at the very least that Zephaniah came from a distinguished family.

Zephaniah lived in Jerusalem and was aware of conditions there (1:10-13). He was a man of keen spiritual sensitivity and moral perception who decried the apostasy and immorality of the people, especially of those in positions of leadership (1:4-6, 9, 17; 3:1-4, 7, 11). He denounced the materialism and greed that exploited the poor (1:8, 10-13, 18). He was aware of world conditions and announced God's judgment on the nations for their sins (2:4-15). Above all, this prophet had a deep concern for the Lord's reputation (1:6; 3:7) and for all who humbly trust in God (2:3; 3:9, 12-13).

Zephaniah himself recorded that his prophetic ministry was during the time of Josiah (640–609 BC; see 1:1). Several facts suggest that Zephaniah prophesied during the early days of Josiah's reign, before the discovery of the Book of the Law and the reforms that followed. Zephaniah reported that religious practices in Judah were still plagued with Canaanite syncretistic rites such as those that characterized the era of Manasseh (1:4-5, 9); many failed to worship the Lord at all (1:6); royalty were enamored of wearing the clothing of foreign merchants (1:8) who had extensive business enterprises in Jerusalem (1:10-11); and Judah's society was beset by socio-economic ills (1:12-13, 18) and political and religious corruption (3:1-4, 7, 11). Josiah's reforms corrected much of this (about 622 BC; 2 Kgs 23:4-14). Therefore, a date between 635 and 622 BC for Zephaniah's prophecy is likely.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

Like his contemporaries Nahum and Habakkuk, Zephaniah presents God as the sovereign Lord of earth's history. God, the judge of all (1:2-3, 7, 14-18; 3:8), punishes the wickedness of people (1:8-9, 17; 3:7, 11) and nations (2:4-15; 3:6). This sovereign Judge has determined a time when he will intervene in the world's history to subdue wickedness and bring in everlasting righteousness. That day (the day of the LORD) will include all nations (1:2-4; 2:4-15; 3:8). God will pour out his wrath in judgment against humanity's sin and rebellion.

Zephaniah focuses on the basic problem of human pride (2:15), which engenders a spirit of inner wickedness (1:3-6, 17; 3:1, 4) and causes people to reason that God will not intervene in human affairs (1:12). They go on in their violence and deceit (1:9), and their greed oppresses those around them (1:10-11, 13, 18; 3:3). God may rescind the penalty that sinners deserve if they show true repentance (2:1-3), but such spiritual virtues as righteousness, humility, faith, and truth are necessary (3:12-13). God will regather and purify a humble and faithful remnant (3:9-10), restore them to their land (3:20), and give them victory over their enemies (2:7, 9). Jerusalem will be a blissful place (3:11, 18) because God will save and bless his people (3:14-20).

Zephaniah's message of personal accountability for sin is echoed in NT teachings (Rom 2:5-6; 2 Cor 5:10; Rev 6:17; 19:11-21). It remains true that God's rich grace is available to those of humble heart (1 Pet 5:5-6), so that they may find forgiveness of sin (Eph 1:7) and the sure hope of everlasting life and blessedness (Titus 3:4-7; Rev 21:1-22:5).

1. SUPERScription: INTRODUCING THE PROPHET (1:1)

1 The LORD gave this message to Zephaniah when Josiah son of Amon was king of Judah. Zephaniah was the son of Cushi, son of Gedaliah, son of Amariah, son of Hezekiah.

2. PROPHECIES ABOUT THE DAY OF THE LORD (1:2–2:3)

Judgment against the Whole Earth

2 “I will sweep away everything from the face of the earth,” says the LORD.

3 “I will sweep away people and animals alike.

I will sweep away the birds of the sky and the fish in the sea.

I will reduce the wicked to heaps of rubble, and I will wipe humanity from the face of the earth,” says the LORD.

Judgment against Judah and Jerusalem

4 “I will crush Judah and Jerusalem with my fist and destroy every last trace of their Baal worship.

I will put an end to all the idolatrous priests, so that even the memory of them will disappear.

5 For they go up to their roofs and bow down to the sun, moon, and stars.

They claim to follow the LORD, but then they worship Molech, too.

6 And I will destroy those who used to worship me but now no longer do. They no longer ask for the LORD’s guidance or seek my blessings.”

The Day of the LORD for Jerusalem

7 Stand in silence in the presence of the ^aSovereign LORD, for the awesome day of the LORD’s judgment is near.

The LORD has prepared his people for a great slaughter and has chosen their executioners.

8 “On that day of judgment,” says the LORD,

“I will punish the leaders and princes of Judah and all those following pagan customs.

9 Yes, I will punish those who participate in pagan worship ceremonies, and those who fill their masters’ houses with violence and deceit.

10 “On that day,” says the LORD,

“a cry of alarm will come from the Fish Gate and echo throughout the New Quarter of the city.

And a great crash will sound from the hills.

11 Wail in sorrow, all you who live in the market area, for all the merchants and traders will be destroyed.

1:1–2:3 Zephaniah’s message from the Lord warns about worldwide judgment (1:1–6) and exhorts his readers to repent (1:7–13) before the devastation overtakes them (1:14–18) and to seek the Lord and live righteously and humbly before him in the hope that they may be spared his judgment (2:1–3).

1:1 The LORD gave this message: Zephaniah was a prophet, God’s spokesman. • Hezekiah probably indicates the king of that name (see 2 Kgs 18:1–20:20).

1:2–3 The list of the things that God will sweep away in his judgment is in reverse order to their creation (Gen 1:20–26): people and animals . . . birds . . . fish, because judgment is a reversal of creation. • I will reduce the wicked to heaps of rubble: The meaning of this line in Hebrew is uncertain.

1:4–6 Having pronounced judgment on the whole earth (1:2–3), Zephaniah now focuses attention on his own people, Judah and Jerusalem.

1:4 When Zephaniah made this prophecy, before Josiah’s reforms in 622 BC, idolatrous priests rampantly promoted Baal worship and other forms of paganism (2 Kgs 23:5).

1:5 Scripture denounced the practice of worshiping heavenly bodies such as the sun, moon, and stars (see Deut 4:15–19; 2 Kgs 21:3; 23:12). • Molech: Hebrew Malcam, a variant spelling of Molech; or it could possibly mean their king. Here it refers to the Canaanite god Baal, the Ammonite god Milcom, or the pagan deity Molech. Although the law explicitly prohibited Molech worship (Lev 20:1–5), it remained a constant temptation to Israel (2 Kgs 16:3; 21:6).

1:7–18 The entire passage must be seen as one vast event. Some aspects would be fulfilled at Jerusalem’s fall in 586 BC; others would be repeated in various historical epochs (such as the destruction of Jerusalem in AD 70) until the whole prophecy is fulfilled at the end of time (Rev 19:11–22:5).

1:7 has prepared his people for a great slaughter and has chosen their executioners: Literally has prepared a sacrifice and sanctified his guests. Foreigners will slaughter the wicked among the Lord’s people.

1:8 The leaders and princes of Judah were the tribal chieftains of Israel (Num 1:4), court officials (1 Chr 22:17), district supervisors (1 Kgs 20:14–15), city officials (Judg 8:6), military leaders (1 Kgs 2:5; 2 Kgs 1:9–14; 25:23, 26), or even religious leaders (Ezra 8:24). Their influential role put them in a position of heightened responsibility before God (cp. Jas 3:1).

1:9 those who participate in pagan worship ceremonies (literally those who leap over the threshold): The people of Judah perpetuated the pagan custom of leaping over the threshold of a temple to avoid contact with it, in deference to that pagan god (see 1 Sam 5:1–5).

1:10 The Fish Gate was in the northern section of Jerusalem (Neh 12:39). • the New Quarter of the city: Or the Second Quarter, a newer section of Jerusalem. Hebrew reads the Mishneh.

1:11 in the market area: Or in the valley, a lower section of Jerusalem. Hebrew reads the Maktesh.

12 "I will search with lanterns in Jerusalem's darkest corners to punish those who sit complacent in their sins.
They think the LORD will do nothing to
them,
either good or bad.

13 So their property will be plundered, their homes will be ransacked.
They will build new homes
but never live in them.
They will plant vineyards
but never drink wine from them.

The Day of the LORD for the Whole Earth

14 "That terrible day of the LORD is near.

Swiftly it comes—
a day of bitter tears,
a day when even strong men will cry
out.

15 It will be a day when the LORD's anger is poured out—
a day of terrible distress and anguish,
a day of ruin and desolation,
a day of darkness and gloom,
a day of clouds and blackness,

16 a day of trumpet calls and battle cries.

Down go the walled cities and the strongest battlements!

17 "Because you have sinned against the
LORD,
I will make you grope around like the blind.
Your blood will be poured into the dust, and your bodies will lie rotting on the ground."

18 Your silver and gold will not save you on that day of the LORD's anger.
For the whole land will be devoured by the fire of his ^bjealousy.
He will make a terrifying end of all the people on earth.

A Call to Repentance

2 1 Gather together—yes, gather together, you shameless nation.

2 Gather before judgment begins, before your time to repent is blown away like chaff.

Act now, before the fierce fury of the LORD falls and the terrible day of the LORD's anger begins.

Zephaniah paints a graphic word picture of the future day of God's judgment. That day will engulf all nations and cause terrible havoc on the earth. Accordingly, God's people must repent immediately in the hope of finding a place of refuge in that day (2:1-3).

The humble and trusting remnant must patiently await God's day of restoration (3:8). Following God's day of judgment, a purified people will worship and rejoice in the Lord's saving work and enjoy his presence forever (3:9-20). The horrifying spectacle of judgment leads to ultimate blessing.

Disaster beyond any yet seen is coming to the whole world. Zephaniah reveals that the day of the Lord forms a continuum from the time at hand to the distant future (see also Isa 2:1-22; Amos 5:18-20; 9:11-15). For the northern kingdom, the day of the Lord came when Assyria destroyed Samaria as God promised through Amos. The day of the Lord came for the southern kingdom with the invasions of Babylon in 605–586 BC and the destruction of Jerusalem. Zephaniah also speaks of the great and final day of the Lord, when all sin and opposition will be put away forever (3:9-13).

The day of the Lord's judgment can begin at any moment. All people in every age should trust in the Lord (3:12) and wait patiently (3:8) for God to fulfill his will and purposes. Believers must concern themselves with the coming judgment of the world, warning others of the seriousness of unbelief, while living faithfully in the hope of God's promised future.

1:13 God would send an invading force to plunder Jerusalem. The destruction would come so quickly that those with ill-gotten gain would not survive to enjoy their wealth.

1:14-18 The meaning of the day of the LORD broadens to include God's dealings with the whole earth.

1:15 darkness and gloom: See also Isa 13:9-10; Joel 2:1-2; Amos 5:18-20.

1:17 grope around like the blind: An example of God's justice (see also Rom 1:21-32). Because God's people were blind ethically and spiritually (see Exod 23:8; Rom 2:19; 1 Jn 2:11) and had sinned against the LORD and his commandments, they would incur the just penalties specified in God's covenant with them (Deut 28:28-29).

1:18 the people on earth: Or the people living in the land.

2:1-3 In light of the horrifying spectacle he has described, Zephaniah calls on his nation to repent and humble themselves before God.

2:2 Farmers threshed grain on windy hilltops. When they tossed the mixed grain and chaff in the air, the wind blew the chaff away while the heavier grain fell back to the ground. The opportunity to repent was a fleeting one.

3. RESULTS OF THE DAY OF THE LORD (2:4–3:20)

Judgment against Philistia

⁴ Gaza and Ashkelon will be abandoned,
Ashdod and Ekron torn down.

⁵ And what sorrow awaits you Philistines who live along the coast and in the land of Canaan,
for this judgment is against you, too!
The LORD will destroy you until not one of you is left.

⁶ The Philistine coast will become a wilderness pasture,
a place of shepherd camps and enclosures for sheep and goats.

⁷ The remnant of the tribe of Judah will pasture there.

They will rest at night in the abandoned houses in Ashkelon.

For the LORD their God will visit his people in kindness and restore their prosperity again.

Judgment against Moab and Ammon

⁸ "I have heard the taunts of the Moabites
and the insults of the Ammonites, mocking my people
and invading their borders.

⁹ Now, as surely as I live," says the LORD of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel,

"Moab and Ammon will be destroyed—destroyed as completely as Sodom
and Gomorrah.

Their land will become a place of stinging nettles, salt pits, and eternal desolation.
The remnant of my people will plunder
them
and take their land."

¹⁰ They will receive the wages of their pride, for they have scoffed at the people of the LORD of Heaven's Armies.

¹¹ The LORD will terrify them as he destroys all the gods in the land.
Then nations around the world will worship the LORD,
each in their own land.

Judgment against Ethiopia and Assyria

¹² "You Ethiopians will also be slaughtered by my sword," says the LORD.

⁴ Judah's Doomed Neighbors (2:4-11). Zephaniah announced God's judgment against both JUDAH and its long-time foes all around, including PHILISTIA, MOAB, and AMMON.

south (2:12) and Assyria to the north (2:13-15).

2:4 King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon conquered the Philistine cities of Gaza and Ashkelon . . . Ashdod and Ekron. Gaza remained deserted, but the others recovered and continued into later times. Zephaniah does not mention Gath, the fifth major Philistine city (see 1 Sam 6:17), which had either disappeared or become unimportant by Zephaniah's time.

2:5 OT scholars believe the Philistines (Hebrew Kerethites) came from the island of Crete (cp. Ezek 25:16).

2:6 pasture . . . shepherd camps and enclosures for sheep: The destruction of cities and their return to a natural state represents a severe form of punishment from God. See also Isa 7:23-25; 13:19-21; 32:9-15; Ezek 35:9.

2:7 The Baal worshipers (1:4) and the Philistines would never be restored (2:4-6; see also Amos 1:8). By contrast, God promised to return the remnant of his people to their land, care for them, and restore them to prosperity (3:18-20; Isa 11:11-16; Jer 23:1-8; Ezek 34:11-16, 20-31).

2:8 The Moabites and Ammonites were Israel's traditional foes. The Israelites fought with them frequently (see 2 Kgs 3:1-27; 2 Chr 20:1-30) and they remained Israel's enemies to the end (2 Kgs 25:25; Jer 40:11-14). • mocking . . . invading: The Israelites not only suffered repeated attacks by the Moabites and Ammonites (see Amos 1:13) but also endured their insults over their successes.

2:9 The destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah serves as an example of God's severe judgment of sin, both in the OT (Deut 29:23; Isa 1:9; Jer 23:14; Amos 4:11) and in the NT (Luke 10:12; Rom 9:29; 2 Pet 2:6). • salt pits: A ruinous waste (Deut 29:23; Ps 107:34; Jer 17:6). Sowing the earth with salt was a mark of permanent judgment (see Judg 9:45) because it made the ground barren.

2:11 nations . . . will worship the LORD: At the end of history, all people in all places will worship God alone (3:9; Ps 66:4; Zech 14:16; Mic 4:1-2).

2:12 Ethiopians: Hebrew Cushites. While the Hebrew term can refer to any nation or peoples along the southern edge of the known world of that time, here it refers specifically to the Ethiopian dynasty that ruled Egypt.

2:3 all who are humble: True humility involves submission to and dependence on God (Ps 18:25-27; 119:142-144; Prov 15:33; 18:12; 22:4).

2:4-3:20 Zephaniah turns his attention to the judgment of the foreign nations (2:4-15) before returning to the judgment of Judah and Jerusalem (3:1-8). He then outlines God's plans for his purified and obedient people (3:9-20).

2:4-15 Zephaniah began his pronouncements with the Philistines, whose kingdom lay on Judah's west (2:4-7). He moved on to Moab and Ammon in the east (2:8-11), and finally singled out Cush (Ethiopia) to the

- ¹³ And the LORD will strike the lands of the north with his fist, destroying the land of Assyria. He will make its great capital, Nineveh, a desolate wasteland, parched like a desert.
- ¹⁴ The proud city will become a pasture for flocks and herds, and all sorts of wild animals will settle there. The desert owl and screech owl will roost on its ruined columns, their calls echoing through the gaping windows. Rubble will block all the doorways, and the cedar paneling will be exposed to the weather.
- ¹⁵ This is the boisterous city, once so secure. "I am the greatest!" it boasted. "No other city can compare with me!" But now, look how it has become an utter ruin, a haven for wild animals. Everyone passing by will laugh in derision and shake a defiant fist.

Judgment against Jerusalem and the Whole World

- 3 ¹ What sorrow awaits rebellious, polluted Jerusalem, the city of violence and crime!
- ² No one can tell it anything; it refuses all correction. It does not trust in the LORD or draw near to its God.
- ³ Its leaders are like roaring lions hunting for their victims.

Its judges are like ravenous wolves at evening time, who by dawn have left no trace of their prey.

- ⁴ Its prophets are arrogant liars seeking their own gain.

Its priests defile the Temple by disobeying God's instructions.

- ⁵ But the LORD is still there in the city, and he does no wrong.

Day by day he hands down justice, and he does not fail.

But the wicked know no shame.

- ⁶ "I have wiped out many nations, devastating their fortress walls and towers.

Their streets are now deserted; their cities lie in silent ruin.

There are no survivors—none at all.

- ⁷ I thought, 'Surely they will have reverence for me now! Surely they will listen to my warnings.

Then I won't need to strike again, destroying their homes.'

But no, they get up early to continue their evil deeds.

- ⁸ Therefore, be patient," says the LORD. "Soon I will stand and accuse these evil nations.

For I have decided to gather the kingdoms of the earth and pour out my fiercest anger and fury on them.

All the earth will be devoured by the fire of my ^ajealousy.

2:13 Zephaniah turns from the south (2:12) to the north. Like Nahum before him, he announces the imminent demise of Assyria.

2:14 To drive home his point about Nineveh's fate, Zephaniah invokes powerful imagery: Rubble would fill the doorways through which the wealthy and powerful of Nineveh had once walked. The eerie sounds of owls hooting in empty windows would punctuate the city's desolation.

2:15 utter ruin: The doom was so certain and irreversible (see Nah 1:14; 2:13; 3:19) that Zephaniah saw no future for Assyria or its capital. So complete was Nineveh's devastation that the Greek historian Xenophon once passed by its ruins unaware that it was there. • laugh . . . shake a defiant fist: Those who suffered under Assyria's cruel empire would be glad seeing its demise.

3:1-8 Zephaniah pronounces a message of sorrow for Judah and Jerusalem and admonishes them to wait patiently for the results of God's righteous judgment.

3:1 Polluted Jerusalem had wandered far from its call to be a holy city (Isa 52:1).

3:3-4 See also Ezek 22:23-29.

3:5 He does no wrong, unlike those mentioned in 3:3-4.

3:7 get up early: Jerusalem's citizens couldn't wait to jump out of bed in the morning and do more evil deeds (Prov 1:16). They had moved far from the ways of their ancestor Abraham, who arose early to obey God's command (Gen 22:3).

3:8 be patient: See Hab 2:3. • stand and accuse: The prophet portrays a courtroom scene where God rises first as witness (see also Jer 29:23; Mal 3:5) on his own behalf, and then presides as judge (see also Job 9:15; Ps 50:6) to deliver his righteous sentence. • The fire of my jealousy describes the Lord's righteous hatred of sin, as well as his concern for his holy name and for the welfare of his people (see Isa 66:13-16).

3:9-20 God reveals his plans for a humble and purified remnant of his people (3:9-13) and encourages them to rejoice in the coming abundant blessings of their saving Lord (3:14-20).

3:9-13 The glorious future described in these verses provides further reason to wait patiently for the Lord (3:8). Like fellow prophets Isaiah, Nahum, and Habakkuk, Zephaniah uses judgment and hope as twin themes.

3:9 God intends for the blessings promised to the faithful remnant of 3:9-13 to reach people from every nation of the world. Not just Israel, but all people would be transformed, call on the Lord (see Isa 55:5), and serve him (see Isa 59:19-21; Zech 14:16). The spread of the Good News to all nations furthered the fulfillment of this vision (Matt 28:19-20; Rom 10:9-13).

3:10 The rivers of Ethiopia (Hebrew Cush) are the distant headwaters of the Nile River. The ancient world considered the origin of the Nile a great mystery, so the expression speaks of the farthest reaches of the earth.

3:12 Jesus the Messiah perfectly expresses the ethical qualities predicted for the godly remnant of Israel (Isa 42:1-4; 53:3, 7-9; Zech 9:9; see Matt 11:28-30; 12:15-21; Phil 2:1-8; 1 Pet 2:23).

3:14 Sing . . . shout aloud . . . ! Be glad and rejoice: The cumulative effect of these commands emphasizes that God's people will one day experience unsurpassed joy.

3:15 The true King of Israel was always to be the Lord (Num 23:21; 1 Sam 8:7; Isa 44:6). • will live among you: See also Isa 54:4-8; 57:14-19; 62:10-12; Ezek 48:35; Joel 3:17, 21.

3:17 a mighty savior: God was Israel's Divine Warrior and Redeemer (see Ps 24:8-10; Isa 42:13; Hab 3:8-15). One of God's titles is "the Mighty God" (Isa 10:21). This title also applies to the Messiah (Isa 9:6). • With his love, he will calm all your fears: Or He will be silent in his love. Greek and Syriac versions read He will renew you with his love.

• He will rejoice over you: Not only will Jerusalem and all Israel rejoice in God (3:14) but God will also rejoice over them as a purified and faithful people (see 3:12-13).

3:18-20 The repeated use of I will in these verses underscores God's further assurances to his people.

3:18 I will gather you . . . disgraced

no more: The meaning of the Hebrew for this verse is uncertain. The Lord's assurance stands in stark contrast to the pronouncements at the beginning of the book, when God threatened to gather the nations to sweep the people of Judah from the face of the earth (1:2-4). Now he promises to gather up those who have been driven from Jerusalem and lead them safely home.

3:19 God will turn his people's former shame into glory and fame (see Deut 26:19; Isa 62:7; Mic 4:6-8; cp. 1 Pet 5:4).

3:20 On that day: After a time of terrible wrath and judgment, the day of the Lord culminates in everlasting blessings for all who trust in him (3:9, 12; see Ps 2:12; Isa 45:22; see also Rev 19:11-22:5). • I, the LORD, have spoken! Zephaniah's prophecy, entirely from God (see also 1:1-3, 10; 2:9; 3:8), is utterly trustworthy.

THE BOOK OF Haggai

The Jerusalem Temple still lay in ruins nearly twenty years after the Hebrews returned to Judah from exile in Babylon. Surely God's house deserved better! Yet the people of Judah were themselves living in comfortable homes. Haggai pointed out this discrepancy and successfully roused the people to rebuild the Lord's Temple. Haggai gave Israel a renewed vision of how their efforts would serve God's plan for his people.

SETTING

In 538 BC Cyrus the Great, king of Persia, issued a decree permitting conquered peoples who had been deported by the Babylonians to return to their homelands (see Ezra 1). The first emigrants to return to Jerusalem were led by Sheshbazzar, a prince of Judah and the first governor of the restored community (Ezra 1:5-11). In their enthusiasm, the returned exiles soon began to rebuild the altar and the Temple (Ezra 3), but local pagan residents threatened the Israelites and discouraged them from their God-given work (Ezra 4:4-24). The construction site lay neglected for nearly twenty years after their return.

The Hebrew people were gloomy during this period. Selfishness crippled community spirit, and apathy and disillusionment detracted from their worship. Only a small percentage of Hebrew exiles had actually returned to Judah, the city walls still lay in ruins, the Temple of God was a pile of rubble, and drought and blight ravaged the land. Judah languished as a Persian vassal state while the surrounding nations harassed the leadership in Jerusalem and thwarted their timid improvement efforts.

Haggai began preaching in 520 BC. The immediate occasion for Haggai's sermons was a severe drought affecting Judah (1:11). God sent him to motivate the Israelites to rebuild God's Temple and to encourage the spiritual renewal of the people of Jerusalem. In response, Judah resumed the rebuilding (1:14), and the project was completed in March 515 BC (see Ezra 6:15).

SUMMARY

Each of Haggai's four messages highlights a different theological concern. The first sermon

◀ Jerusalem after the Exile, 520 BC. After many of the Jews returned from exile in 538 BC, they inhabited the land of Judea. The Judeans, however, were surrounded by hostile neighbors and had become discouraged by opposition and want. Haggai's preaching encouraged them to finish rebuilding the Temple in Jerusalem, the spiritual center of their nation.

(1:1-15) challenged the Judeans to stop giving their personal comfort first priority and to focus on restoring proper worship of God by rebuilding his Temple.

The second message (2:1-9) assured the community that God had not forgotten the promises of blessing and restoration made by the earlier prophets. The glory of the Lord would once again fill the Temple (2:7). These were not just empty words to bolster a beleaguered remnant, but the sure words of God's promise to his chosen people.

The third message (2:10-19) has ritual purity as its dominant theme. Haggai reminded his audience that the instructions of the law of Moses were still operative. God expects his people to be holy, even as he is holy (see Lev 11:44-45).

Haggai's final and perhaps most important message (2:20-23) reestablished the prominence of King David's descendants in Israel's religious and political life. David's dynasty was crucial to the restoration of the Hebrew people after the Babylonian exile (see Jer 23:5; 33:15; Ezek 37:24). Zerubbabel was a descendant of King David; his commission to serve as the Lord's "signet ring" marked the beginning of God's restoration of Israel (2:23; cp. Jer 22:24) and pointed to Jesus Christ, a descendant of David (Matt 1:1) who would rule in righteousness forever.

A Call to Rebuild the Temple

2:1-23

A Message of Encouragement

AUTHOR

The book of Haggai is silent as to its authorship, but it is probable that Haggai wrote his own sermons (1:1, 3). The Bible records no biographic information about the prophet Haggai, but his ministry is attested by Ezra 6:14. Haggai probably wrote his book some time between delivering his sermons (520 BC) and the completion of the Temple (515 BC), an event that the prophecy does not mention.

DATE

Haggai's speeches occurred within a four-month period in the second year of the rule of Darius I, king of Persia (see notes on 1:1, 15; 2:1, 10). Haggai's ministry in postexilic Judah overlapped that of Zechariah, who began preaching in Jerusalem in November 520 BC (see Zech 1:1).

LITERARY GENRE

While not a magnum opus like the books of Isaiah or Jeremiah, Haggai does have literary polish. Haggai especially uses rhetorical questions to emphasize his thesis in three of the four messages (see 1:4; 2:3, 19). He repeats words or phrases to set the tone for his sermons (e.g., the repeated "look at what's happening," 1:5, 7; 2:15), and he engages in wordplay on occasion (e.g., Hebrew khareb, "ruins" [1:4] and khoreb, "drought" [1:11]).

Haggai's speeches are presumably third person prose summaries of more lengthy sermons. The messages are oracles—authoritative messages inspired by God. Oracles often include formula expressions that use stock words and phrases. Several of these formulas occur in Haggai: the “date” formula (e.g., “the second year of King Darius’s reign,” 1:1; 2:1, 10, 20), the “message” formula (“the LORD gave/sent a message,” 1:1; 2:1, 10, 20), the “God-as-speaker” formula (“says the LORD,” 1:7, 13; 2:4), and the “covenant relationship” formula (“I am with you,” 2:4-5).

MEANING AND MESSAGE

Haggai’s four brief sermons sounded a wake-up call to a community that was spiritually asleep. His message was to “get up and go to work” rebuilding the Jerusalem Temple.

Haggai correlated the community’s lack of agricultural and economic success with their neglect of the Lord’s Temple. He rebuked the people for their disinterest in worshiping God and called them to repentance and spiritual renewal. When the people responded positively and began the work of rebuilding, Haggai encouraged them with the promise of God’s continuing presence and help.

Haggai called the people of Jerusalem to authentic worship, trust in God’s word, personal holiness, and obedience to divinely appointed leadership. Haggai emphasizes the abiding presence of God’s Spirit (1:13-14; 2:4-5), a theme shared with Zechariah (Zech 1:16; 8:23; see Ezek 37:27-28).

1. A CALL TO REBUILD THE TEMPLE (1:1-15) Reflection on Recent Events

1 On August 29 of the second year of King Darius’s reign, the LORD gave a message through the prophet Haggai to Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, and to Jeshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest.

²“This is what the LORD of Heaven’s Armies says: The people are saying, ‘The time has not yet come to rebuild the house of the LORD.’”

³Then the LORD sent this message through the prophet Haggai: ⁴“Why are you living in luxurious houses while my house lies in ruins? ⁵This is what the LORD of Heaven’s Armies says: Look at what’s happening to you! ⁶You have planted much but

1:1-15 The first message calls the people of Jerusalem to focus on restoring proper worship of God.

1:1 This introductory statement (superscription) identifies the author, the audience, the date, and the occasion prompting the prophecy. • On August 29: Literally On the first day of the sixth month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar. A number of dates in Haggai can be cross-checked with dates in surviving Persian records and related accurately to our modern calendar. This event occurred on August 29, 520 BC. • the second year: King Darius I (Hystaspes) ruled Persia 521–486 BC, early in the Persian empire (539–331 BC). The messages of Haggai are among the most precisely dated prophecies in the OT. • Prophet (Hebrew nabi) designates Haggai as a representative of God who speaks with the authority of God who sent him. • Zerubbabel led one group of Hebrews back to Palestine after the Babylonian exile and was the Persian-appointed governor of Judah at the time of Haggai’s ministry (see Ezra 2:1-2; 3:2; Neh 7:7). • Jeshua (Hebrew Joshua, a variant spelling of Jeshua; also in 1:12, 14.) was the high priest at that time. Under his supervision, the altar was rebuilt and the second Temple was dedicated (Ezra 3:2; 5:2; 6:15).

1:2 LORD of Heaven’s Armies: Haggai’s and Zechariah’s favorite expression for God emphasizes the invincible power behind God’s word. The Lord can call on infinite numbers of heavenly troops to carry out his will at a moment’s notice (2 Kgs 6:17; Matt 26:53). This thought was intended to encourage the Judeans, who felt helpless and insignificant. • The time has not yet come: Poor crop yields from drought and pestilence had so weakened Judah’s economy (1:6, 9-11) that the people thought they could not afford to rebuild the Temple. Haggai convinced them they could not afford to leave the Temple in ruins, for God would not bless and prosper them if they did not rebuild the Lord’s house (1:4, 7-8).

1:4 Why are you? Rhetorical questions in prophetic literature call for agreement rather than a reply (see 2:3). The purpose of this question is to remove the listeners’ opportunity to offer excuses in response to the message. • The luxurious (or covered, paneled) houses of the people contrasted with God’s Temple, which was in ruins (or desolate) and thus unusable.

1:5 Look at what’s happening to you (literally Set your heart on these matters): For the Hebrews, the heart is the place where thinking, feeling, and willing all occur. So this command (also 1:5, 7; 2:15, 18) calls upon the people to think carefully and draw the proper conclusions about the connection between what’s happening to them (drought and poverty, 1:6) and their failure to restore proper worship of the Lord (1:8-9).

1:6 eat . . . drink . . . put on clothes: Each of these conveys continuous action (i.e., you keep filling your plates . . . you keep drinking and drinking . . . you put on layer after layer of clothes), heightening the sense of futility.

harvest little. You eat but are not satisfied. You drink but are still thirsty. You put on clothes but cannot keep warm. Your wages disappear as though you were putting them in pockets filled with holes!

Exhortation to Begin Construction

7^a“This is what the LORD of Heaven’s Armies says: Look at what’s happening to you! 8Now go up into the hills, bring down timber, and rebuild my house. Then I will take pleasure in it and be honored, says the LORD. 9You hoped for rich harvests, but they were poor. And when you brought your harvest home, I blew it away. Why? Because my house lies in ruins, says the LORD of Heaven’s Armies, while all of you are busy building your own fine houses. 10It’s because of you that the heavens withhold the dew and the earth produces no crops. 11I have called for a drought on your fields and hills—a drought to wither the grain and grapes and olive trees and all your other crops, a drought to starve you and your livestock and to ruin everything you have worked so hard to get.”

Obedience to God’s Call

12Then Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, and Jeshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest, and the whole remnant of God’s people began to obey the message from the LORD their God. When they heard the words of the prophet Haggai, whom the LORD their God had sent, the people feared the LORD. 13Then Haggai, the LORD’s messenger, gave the people this message from the LORD: “I am with you, says the LORD!”

14So the LORD sparked the enthusiasm of Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, and the enthusiasm of Jeshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest, and the enthusiasm of the whole remnant of God’s people. They began to work on the house of their God, the LORD of Heaven’s Armies, 15on September 21 of the second year of King Darius’s reign.

2. A MESSAGE OF ENCOURAGEMENT (2:1-23) The New Temple’s Diminished Splendor

2 Then on October 17 of that same year, the LORD sent another message through Spiritual Renewal (1:7-15)

Deut 30:2-4
Ps 22:27
Isa 11:9-12:6; 44:22,
26-28; 61:6-7
Jer 24:4-7

Zech 9:9; 14:9
Mal 3:1

Haggai repeatedly charged his audience to reflect on how their current situation resulted from neglecting their relationship with God (1:5-7; 2:15-18). Haggai called the people to lay a spiritual foundation of reverence for God in their hearts before building the Lord’s Temple. God’s chastisement in a series of natural disasters called for repentance (2:17). Spiritual renewal had to accompany the physical reconstruction of the Temple (1:12).

The theme of spiritual renewal helps tie Haggai, Zechariah, and Malachi together. Israel’s failure to obey God highlights the need for the appearance of the Lord’s “servant” (2:23)—the righteous shepherd-king (Zech 9:9), who is Christ the Lord (Mal 3:1). Then God’s presence among his people will return, creation will be restored, and worship of the Lord will be universal.

• pockets filled with holes (literally a pierced bag): The image depicts the loss of wages. Many families faced poverty despite their steady labors.

1:8 Now go up into the hills: The stands of trees around Jerusalem were insufficient to meet the demands of the Temple project. Such supplies would have been imported from Lebanon and Syria to the north. • The challenge to rebuild my house underscores the importance of worship in the life of the community and the need for a proper sanctuary so worship of the Lord might take place according to the law. The land would experience blessing and prosperity when the Lord’s Temple—his dwelling place—was rebuilt (2:4).

1:9 I blew it away: The Lord destroyed the harvest because the people’s priorities were wrong—they thought only of themselves rather than of God. • says the LORD of Heaven’s Armies: The “God-as-speaker formula,” which often closes a prophecy (1:13; 2:8, 17, 23), verified Haggai’s message as the sure word of God.

1:11 I have called for a drought: The people failed to recognize their plight as a divine judgment on their misplaced priorities, so Haggai interpreted the situation in light of the curses attached to the covenant (Deut 28:15-68, especially vv 22-24, 38-40). • Drought (Hebrew khoreb) is a wordplay on “ruins” (1:4, 9; Hebrew khareb)—Judah’s experiences corresponded with the condition in which they had left the Lord’s Temple.

1:12 The whole remnant means the people who returned from Babylon. All of them were united in the rebuilding project. • the people feared the LORD: They responded with reverence and worship, and they reordered their priorities by placing spiritual values above their material prosperity.

1:13 Haggai’s unusual title as the LORD’s messenger (the same Hebrew phrase is often translated angel of the LORD) ascribes distinctive authority to Haggai as the Lord’s agent. • I am with you: This affirmed God’s covenant with them, his personal presence, and his support in the building project (2:4-5; see Gen 26:3; Exod 3:12; Isa 41:10; 43:5; Jer 30:11).

1:14 The LORD sparked the enthusiasm (literally stirred the spirit) of the people to accomplish his purposes (see Ezra 1:1; Isa 13:17; 41:25; Jer 51:1, 11). True worship of God prompts sacrificial service by God’s people.

1:15 on September 21: Literally on the twenty-fourth day of the sixth month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar. This event occurred on September 21, 520 BC; see also note on 1:1.

2:1-9 Haggai’s second message assures the community that God has not forgotten his promises, made by earlier prophets, to bless and restore them the prophet Haggai. ²"Say this to Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, and to Jeshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest, and to the remnant of God's people there in the land: ³"Does anyone remember this house—this Temple—in its former splendor? How, in comparison, does it look to you now? It must seem like nothing at all! ⁴But now the LORD says: Be strong, Zerubbabel. Be strong, Jeshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest. Be strong, all you people still left in the land. And now get to work, for I am with you, says the LORD of Heaven's Armies. ⁵My Spirit remains among you, just as I promised when you came out of Egypt. So do not be afraid.'

The New Temple's Restored Splendor

⁶"For this is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says: In just a little while I will again shake the heavens and the earth, the oceans and the dry land. ⁷I will shake all the nations, and the treasures of all the nations will be brought to this Temple. I will fill this place with glory, says the LORD of Heaven's Armies. ⁸The silver is mine, and the gold is mine, says the LORD of Heaven's Armies. ⁹The future glory of this Temple will be greater than its past glory, says the LORD of Heaven's Armies. And in this place I will bring peace. I, the LORD of Heaven's Armies, have spoken!"

Blessings Promised for Obedience

¹⁰On December 18 of the second year of King Darius's reign, the LORD sent this message to the prophet Haggai: ¹¹"This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says. Ask the priests this question about the law: ¹²If one of you is carrying some meat from a holy sacrifice in his robes and his robe happens to brush against some bread or stew, wine or olive oil, or any other kind of food, will it also become holy?"

The priests replied, "No."

¹³Then Haggai asked, "If someone becomes ceremonially unclean by touching a dead person and then touches any of these foods, will the food be defiled?"

And the priests answered, "Yes."

2:1 on October 17 of that same year: Literally on the twenty-first day of the seventh month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar. This event (in the second year of Darius's reign) occurred on October 17, 520 BC; see also note on 1:1. This was the last day of the Festival of Tabernacles, the celebration of the summer harvest (see Lev 23:34-43). Hundreds of years earlier, Solomon's Temple had been dedicated during this festival (1 Kgs 8:2). Haggai's message was timed to offer the people hope and encouragement in their present distress and discouragement.

2:2 Jeshua: Hebrew Joshua, a variant spelling of Jeshua; also in 2:4.

2:3 The former splendor belonged to Solomon's Temple (1 Kgs 6:38), which some of the older people of Judah had seen in their youth before going into exile in Babylon. They wept when they saw the new foundation laid (Ezra 3:12-13), because it seemed like nothing at all by comparison.

2:4 But now . . . be strong: This marks a shift from rebuke and challenge to encouragement and affirmation (cp. Josh 1:6-7).

2:5 My Spirit remains among you: See Exod 29:46; Isa 63:11; Ezek 36:26-27. * just as I promised (literally the word I cut with you): The phrase "cut a covenant" is the Hebrew idiom for making a covenant (see Gen 15:18; Exod 34:27). Haggai's phrase, "cut a word," is unique in the OT, using language that purposefully creates a connection between his prophecy and God's covenant relationship with his people. By making this connection, Haggai underscored the continuity of God's actions in rescuing his people, first from Egypt and then from Babylon (see Ezek 20:33-38).

2:6-7 God will again shake the heavens and the earth at the coming day of judgment (see Isa 2:19-21; 30:28). The previous shaking was the judgment on Egypt at the time of the Exodus (2:21-22; Exod 14:31). The NT relates in just a little while to the return of Jesus Christ (Heb 12:26-27). Haggai probably saw God's ultimate judgment foreshadowed in events to take place after his time (e.g., the fall of Persia to Greece, the fall of Greece to Rome; see Dan 2:39-45).

2:7 Treasures . . . will be brought to the Temple by all the nations as tribute and homage to the God of Israel.

2:9 future glory: Haggai might have in mind the Messiah's coming to his Temple (see Mal 3:1). Jesus was presented in the Lord's Temple as an infant (Luke 2:22), and he taught there as an adult (Luke 19:45-47). Jesus, the human Word of God, is greater than the Temple (Matt 12:6; see John 2:13-22). Although it was recognized by only a few, Jesus' presence in the Temple far outshone the glory in the Tabernacle at the time of Moses and in Solomon's Temple (cp. Luke 2:29-32). * in this place I will bring peace: The priestly benediction (Num 6:24-26) was pronounced as part of the Temple liturgy. In the last days, God would make a covenant of peace with Israel (Ezek 34:25; 37:26). The good result of rebuilding the Temple was a guarantee on that future peace.

2:10-19 The theme of the third message is the law's instructions about ritual purity. These instructions were still operative. God expects his people to be holy, even as he is holy (Lev 11:44-45).

2:10 On December 18: Literally On the twenty-fourth day of the ninth month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar (similarly in 2:18). This event occurred on December 18, 520 BC; see also note on 1:1.

2:11 Ask the priests: The priests' job was to teach and interpret the law (Deut 33:10; Mal 2:7-9), so the message about ceremonial purity was directed to them.

2:12 will it also become holy? This question refers to meat from a holy sacrifice and the way in which ceremonial purity and impurity could be transferred (see "Clean and Unclean" at Lev 11:1-15:33, p. 213). Carrying the holy sacrifice—the meat set aside and prepared for the offering—rendered one's robe holy (cp. Lev 6:18). This holiness, however, could not be transmitted to a third object.

2:13 Ceremonial uncleanness is transmitted much more easily than ceremonial purity. Anyone touching a corpse became defiled and thus unclean. Anything touched by a ceremonially unclean person was also rendered impure (see Num 19:11-13, 22). Haggai applies this in 2:14.

¹⁴Then Haggai responded, "That is how it is with this people and this nation, says the LORD. Everything they do and everything they offer is defiled by their sin. ¹⁵Look at what was happening to you before you began to lay the foundation of the LORD's Temple. ¹⁶When you hoped for a twenty-bushel crop, you harvested only ten. When you expected to draw fifty gallons from the winepress, you found only twenty. ¹⁷I sent blight and mildew and hail to destroy everything you worked so hard to produce. Even so, you refused to return to me, says the LORD.

¹⁸"Think about this eighteenth day of December, the day when the foundation of the LORD's Temple was laid. Think carefully. ¹⁹I am giving you a promise now while the seed is still in the barn. You have not yet harvested your grain, and your grapevines, fig trees, pomegranates, and olive trees have not yet produced their crops. But from this day onward I will bless you."

Promises for Zerubbabel

²⁰On that same day, December 18, the LORD sent this second message to Haggai: ²¹"Tell Zerubbabel, the governor of Judah, that I am about to shake the heavens and the earth. ²²I will overthrow royal thrones and destroy the power of foreign kingdoms. I will overturn their chariots and riders. The horses will fall, and their riders will kill each other.

²³"But when this happens, says the LORD of Heaven's Armies, I will honor you, Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, my servant. I will make you like a signet ring on my finger, says the LORD, for I have chosen you. I, the LORD of Heaven's Armies, have spoken!"

2:14 That is how it is with this people: Simply returning from exile to the land God promised Israel did not make the people of Judah holy. They were still unclean, since they were not obeying the instructions of God's covenant with them. Their work and even their worship were contaminated by impurity; the ruins of the Lord's Temple had symbolized the people's disobedience. The rebuilding of the Temple was a tangible sign of changed hearts and renewed obedience to God's covenant.

2:15 Look at what was happening (see note on 1:5): Divine blessing, whether spiritual or material, is contingent upon the obedience of God's people (Deut 30:6-10). Haggai called the people to persist in the self-examination that leads to repentance and in the fear of the Lord that his first message initiated (see 1:7, 12).

2:17 Return often signifies repentance. • you refused: The Hebrew people were stubborn and rebellious from the time of Moses (Deut 31:27) to the time of Jesus (Matt 17:17). • blight and mildew: What happened was the result of disobedience to God's covenant (see Deut 28:22).

2:18 Think about this eighteenth day of December, the day: Or On this eighteenth day of December, think about the day; literally Think about this day onward, this twenty-fourth day of the ninth month, according to the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar. This date was December 18, 520 BC; see also note on 1:1. • Some believe that the phrase the day refers to the date of the initial clearing of rubble from the Temple site and the procuring of building materials (September 21, 520 BC; see 1:14-15).

2:19 I am giving you a promise now while the seed is still in the barn (literally Is the seed yet in the barn?): The promise of a bountiful crop calls attention to God's faithfulness to his covenant people. The Temple was not yet complete, but God was promising to extend its blessings at once. • But from this day onward I will bless you: God was gracious in responding immediately to his people's efforts toward spiritual renewal and obedience (see Ps 111:4-5).

2:20-23 Haggai's final message is perhaps the most important; it re-establishes the prominence of David's descendant in Israel's religious and political life. The dynasty of David was key to restoring the Hebrew people after the Babylonian exile (see Jer 23:5; Ezek 37:24). God had cursed David's descendant, King Jehoiachin, at the time of the Exile (Jer 22:24-30), but Haggai's last message overturns that curse and reinstates the covenant with David (see 2 Sam 7:4-17) as the means by which God will carry out his promises to bless and restore Israel.

2:20 On that same day, December 18: Literally On the twenty-fourth day of the [ninth] month; see notes on 2:10, 18.

2:21 Zerubbabel, the governor, was a descendant of David through Jehoiachin (1 Chr 3:19). Haggai's affirmation thus overturns the curse on Jehoiachin (Jer 22:24-30). However, Zerubbabel abruptly disappears from the biblical record. He was possibly deposed as Judean governor or even executed by King Darius, who was attempting to control his newly acquired empire. The expectations here ascribed to Zerubbabel, and his status as a descendant of David, might have made him a political threat to Darius.

2:22 I will overturn their chariots and riders: The prophet's language would remind Israel of their deliverance from the Egyptian army (see Exod 15:1-21). The ambiguity of the threat of God's judgment makes it unclear whether Haggai is referring to events in the distant future or to something more immediate involving the Persian empire (e.g., the Greek-Persian wars during the reigns of Darius I and Xerxes or the later Peloponnesian War).

2:23 The signet ring was a symbol of kingship. An engraved stone set in a gold or silver finger ring was used to seal or endorse official documents. The image here emphasizes the divine authority invested in Zerubbabel and assures the people of God's continuing involvement in the political process (despite the failures of the Hebrew monarchs). The designation of Zerubbabel as the signet of the Lord no doubt rekindled expectations for the Messiah, since Zerubbabel was a descendant of King David. Yet the declaration ultimately points beyond Zerubbabel (see note on 2:21) to one of his descendants (see Matt 1:12; Luke 1:32-33; 3:27).

THE BOOK OF Zechariah

The people of God who had returned to Judea from exile were being oppressed by neighboring nations. As a result, the people were discouraged and they let their Temple lie in ruins. Zechariah encouraged them with a vision of things to come. God continued to love Jerusalem and Judah, and his unwavering plan was to live there again with his people and establish his rule over all the earth. Zechariah warned Israel not to repeat the sins that had led to exile, and he called those who wavered between God's truth and human wisdom to return to God, obey the commands of God's covenant, and practice justice in the land.

SETTING

Cyrus, king of Persia, issued a decree in 538 BC permitting conquered peoples who had been deported by the Babylonians to return to their homelands (see Ezra 1). The first Jewish emigrants to return to Jerusalem were led by Sheshbazzar, the first governor of the restored community (Ezra 1:5-11). During his administration, the returning Jews laid the foundation for a new Temple (538~536 BC; see Ezra 5:16), but soon abandoned the project. The construction site lay neglected for nearly two decades as the people experienced economic hardship, political oppression and harassment, and spiritual barrenness (see Haggai).

In response to their distress, God raised up two prophets to initiate the physical rebuilding and spiritual renewal of Jerusalem. The prophet Haggai, who preached for only four months in late 520 BC, challenged the Hebrew community to rebuild the Jerusalem Temple. The people responded favorably to Haggai's message and began to reconstruct the Lord's Temple that year (Hag 1:12-15). The prophet Zechariah complemented Haggai's message by calling for the spiritual renewal of God's people (1:3-6; 7:8-14). Zechariah's ministry in Jerusalem lasted for at least two years.

The rebuilding of the Temple was completed in March 515 BC during the reign of Persian king Darius I. It was rededicated to the Lord's worship at the Passover celebration that same year (Ezra 5:2; 6:13-22).

SUMMARY

Zechariah's task was to prepare the people for proper worship in the Temple once the building project was completed. He was commissioned to speak "kind and comforting words" from the Lord (1:13), and he did so by rebuking, exhorting, and encouraging God's people.

The people of Judah committed blatant social and moral sins; they were passively rebellious and spiritually apathetic. Zechariah called the people to return to God through genuine repentance (1:3-5). Only spiritual renewal could foster true worship and meaningful service in the Temple, which was under construction at the prompting of the prophet Haggai. Only obedience to the Lord would usher in the long-awaited blessing, prosperity, and righteousness of the messianic age (6:9-15; 8:13).

God's plan to do good to Jerusalem was contingent upon the community's adherence to God's laws, especially those governing their treatment of one another (7:8-12; 8:14-17). Before the nations would seek the Lord in Jerusalem, Israel must seek God's favor, act justly, and show kindness and mercy to widows, orphans, and foreigners (7:9-10; 14:16-21).

AUTHOR

The book of Zechariah is silent about its authorship, but Zechariah probably wrote down his own sermons. The superscription (1:1) identifies Zechariah as the son of Berechiah and the grandson of Iddo, as Ezra confirms (Ezra 5:1; 6:14). Nehemiah informs us that Iddo returned to Jerusalem from exile in Babylon with Zerubbabel and Jeshua (Neh 12:4). Nehemiah also lists Zechariah as the head of the family of priests descended from Iddo (Neh 12:1, 16). This suggests that Zechariah was both a priest and prophet in Jerusalem.

DATE

Zechariah's ministry began just two months after Haggai's, in 520 BC. Zechariah's last dated message was delivered in 518 BC. The first portion of the book (chs 1–8) was probably written down between 520 and 515 BC, since Zechariah makes no reference to the completion and dedication of the Jerusalem Temple in 515 BC (see Ezra 6:13–22). Zechariah's undated messages (chs 9–14) perhaps indicate that his ministry continued well beyond the completion of the Temple.

Some biblical scholars assign chs 9–11 to a "Second Zechariah" and chs 12–14 to a "Third Zechariah." However, the vocabulary and grammar show remarkable literary continuity throughout the entire book, and archaeological discoveries and socio-political considerations support a unified composition. Zechariah probably composed chs 9–14 later in his life, perhaps between 500 and 470 BC.

RECIPIENTS

Zechariah's messages were intended for the people living in and around Jerusalem after their return from exile (1:3). Within Zechariah's sermons and visions are words specifically addressed to the governor Zerubbabel, the high priest Jeshua, and the rest of the priests (see 3:8–9; 4:6–7; 7:4).

LITERARY GENRE

Zechariah is prophetic literature containing messages that call God's people to repentance, to renew corporate worship, and to practice social justice.

In addition, Zechariah contains apocalyptic or vision literature. This genre of writing interprets current events and predicts future events by means of symbolic language, ciphers, and codes. Such writing is usually accompanied by an angelic mediator (see 1:9). The settings, characters, and events of apocalyptic literature tend to go beyond ordinary reality. The visions depict literal events, but the symbolic descriptions do not necessarily represent the events literally. Apocalyptic literature announces an end to the status quo and opens up alternative possibilities as a result of God's impending intervention in human affairs.

Later Jewish apocalyptic literature placed heavy emphasis on the future restoration of Israel in the day of the Lord. Zechariah's prophecy was more concerned with social justice in the present. Three types of messages are usually associated with apocalyptic literature in the Bible: (1) encouragement for the oppressed, (2) warnings to the oppressor, and (3) calls to faith for those wavering between God's truth and human wisdom.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

The book of Zechariah calls for repentance, spiritual renewal, and return to right relationship with God (1:1–6). Zechariah's duty was to comfort and strengthen a small, discouraged remnant of God's people (1:13; 8:6–15). Zechariah also reinforced Haggai's summons to rebuild the Jerusalem Temple (8:9, 13).

Zechariah's messages came to him as visions of the future that promised peace to Israel, judgment of the nations, restoration of Jerusalem, responsible government by God's appointed leadership, and righteousness among God's people (1:7–6:15). Zechariah emphasized that social justice was Israel's right response to God (7:8–12; 8:14–17).

Zechariah's last two messages instill hope in God by focusing on the future restoration of Israel (chs 9–14). The prophet forecasts the Lord's return to his Temple (9:8–10), Israel's rescue from her enemies (12:1–14), and the establishment of God's kingdom in Jerusalem (14:9–11). Zechariah presents the Messiah as a suffering shepherd (13:7) and as a righteous king (9:9) who will bring salvation to Israel and peace to the nations (9:10, 16).

1. PRELUDE: A CALL TO RETURN TO THE LORD (1:1–6)

1 In November of the second year of King Darius's reign, the LORD gave this message to the prophet Zechariah son of Berekiah and grandson of Iddo:

²"I, the LORD, was very angry with your ancestors. ³Therefore, say to the people, 'This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says: Return to me, and I will return to you, says the LORD of Heaven's Armies.' ⁴Don't be like your ancestors who would not listen or pay attention when the earlier prophets said to them, 'This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says: Turn from your evil ways, and stop all your evil practices.'

⁵"Where are your ancestors now? They and the prophets are long dead. ⁶But everything I said through my servants the prophets happened to your ancestors, just as I said. As a result, they ^arepented and said, 'We have received what we deserved from the LORD of Heaven's Armies. He has done what he said he would do.' "

2. ZECHARIAH'S VISIONS (1:7–6:15)

A Man among the Myrtle Trees

⁷Three months later, on February 15, the LORD sent another message to the prophet Zechariah son of Berekiah and grandson of Iddo.

Acts 17:24–31

Zechariah's message to those returning to Jerusalem from exile is found in his opening statement, "Return to me, and I will return to you, says the LORD of Heaven's Armies" (1:3). Zechariah's call to repentance was a call for the people of Israel to be in right relationship with God by renewing their commitment to God's covenant with them. Other OT prophets communicated the same message (see Isa 1:16–20; Hos 6:1–3; Hag 1:12; Mal 3:7). Zechariah warned his audience to learn from the past because violating the covenant had sent an earlier generation into exile (7:11–14).

Zechariah's interest in Israel's relationship with God extended to issues of social justice. Obedience to God's covenant leads naturally to the practice of justice, honesty, fairness, mercy, and kindness (7:9–10; 8:16–17). Zechariah's concern for right relationship with God and others in the covenant community anticipated Jesus' later teaching on the most important OT commandments: to love God above all, and to love one's neighbor as one's self (Matt 22:34–40).

1:1–6 The prelude identifies the book's themes as repentance and spiritual renewal, and establishes a tone of hope and encouragement.

1:1 This superscription, or introductory statement, classifies the book of Zechariah as an oracle, an authoritative message inspired by God. The prophet Zechariah was God's emissary, designated to speak with God's authority. • King Darius's reign (521–486 BC) was in the early years of the Persian empire (539–331 BC). • In November: Literally In the eighth month. A number of dates in Zechariah can be cross-checked with dates in surviving Persian records and related accurately to our modern calendar. This month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar occurred within the months of October and November 520 BC.

1:3 the LORD of Heaven's Armies: God has an infinite number of angelic troops ready to carry out his will (see 2 Kgs 6:17; Matt 26:53). The phrase was probably meant to be an encouragement to the Judeans. • Return to me: A person who repents makes a complete turnaround—a shift away from sin and self toward loyalty to God and his covenant (see Isa 44:22; Mal 3:7; see also Ps 80:3–14; 85:4–8).

1:4 Before the Exile, earlier prophets actively called Judah and Israel to repentance. Zechariah especially reflects the prophetic influence of Jeremiah and Ezekiel. • ancestors who would not listen: The people of Israel (2 Kgs 17:13–14) and Judah (2 Chr 36:15–16) were taken into exile because they stubbornly refused to heed the word of the Lord (cp. 2 Chr 30:7).

1:6 everything . . . happened: The covenant curses (Deut 28:15–68) had overtaken their ancestors who refused to obey God.

1:7–6:15 These eight visions addressed the Judeans' fears that prevented them from responding in faith to God's promises. These visions, which occurred two months after Haggai's final two messages (Hag 2:10–19, 20–23), suggest that Haggai's prophecies were being fulfilled.

1:7–17 Zechariah's first vision depicts God's concern for Jerusalem (1:7–15), followed by a response (1:16–17) that confirmed God's intentions to rebuild his Temple and restore the city's prosperity.

1:7 Three months later, on February 15: Literally On the twenty-fourth day of the eleventh month, the month of Shebat, in the second year of Darius. This event occurred on February 15, 519 BC; see also note on 1:1.

⁸In a vision during the night, I saw a man sitting on a red horse that was standing among some myrtle trees in a small valley. Behind him were riders on red, brown, and white horses. ⁹I asked the angel who was talking with me, "My lord, what do these horses mean?"

"I will show you," the angel replied.

¹⁰The rider standing among the myrtle trees then explained, "They are the ones the LORD has sent out to patrol the earth."

¹¹Then the other riders reported to the angel of the LORD, who was standing among the myrtle trees, "We have been patrolling the earth, and the whole earth is at peace."

¹²Upon hearing this, the angel of the LORD prayed this prayer: "O LORD of Heaven's Armies, for seventy years now you have been angry with Jerusalem and the towns of Judah. How long until you again show mercy to them?" ¹³And the LORD spoke kind and comforting words to the angel who talked with me.

¹⁴Then the angel said to me, "Shout this message for all to hear: 'This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says: My love for Jerusalem and Mount Zion is ^bpassionate and strong. ¹⁵But I am very angry with the other nations that are now enjoying peace and security. I was only a little angry with my people, but the nations inflicted harm on them far beyond my intentions.

¹⁶"Therefore, this is what the LORD says: I have returned to show mercy to Jerusalem. My Temple will be rebuilt, says the LORD of Heaven's Armies, and measurements will be taken for the reconstruction of Jerusalem."

¹⁷"Say this also: 'This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says: The towns of Israel will again overflow with prosperity, and the LORD will again comfort Zion and choose Jerusalem as his own.'"

Four Horns and Four Blacksmiths

¹⁸Then I looked up and saw four animal horns. ¹⁹"What are these?" I asked the angel who was talking with me.

He replied, "These horns represent the nations that scattered Judah, Israel, and Jerusalem."

²⁰Then the LORD showed me four blacksmiths. ²¹"What are these men coming to do?" I asked.

The angel replied, "These four horns—these nations—scattered and humbled Judah. Now these blacksmiths have come to terrify those nations and throw them down and destroy them."

Future Prosperity of Jerusalem

2 When I looked again, I saw a man with a measuring line in his hand. ²"Where are you going?" I asked.

He replied, "I am going to measure Jerusalem, to see how wide and how long it is."

1:8 The vision during the night follows a standard pattern: an introductory statement, a description of the vision, the prophet's request for an interpretation, and an angelic explanation. • The myrtle trees were probably in the wooded Kidron valley outside of Jerusalem. The Lord had symbolically returned to the city's outskirts but had not yet entered Jerusalem because the Temple was still under construction. • The colors of the red, brown, and white horses are not significant to this vision's meaning. These angelic riders patrolled the earth (1:10), showing God's continuing concern over Jerusalem.

1:10 Patrol suggests the angelic riders' ongoing scrutiny of the earth.

1:11 The man sitting on a red horse among the myrtle trees (1:8) is called the angel of the LORD (cp. Gen 16:7-13; Exod 23:23; 32:34; Judg 13:21-22).

1:14 My love . . . is passionate and strong: This phrase, sometimes translated as "I am very jealous," reflects intense, single-minded devotion that could produce hatred and envy or zeal and devotion. God is jealous—as the one true and living God, he has exclusive rights to his creatures' worship (see Exod 20:5; 34:14). • Jerusalem signifies the territories ruled by Judean kings; Mount Zion was the site of the Lord's Temple.

1:16 and measurements will be taken for the reconstruction of Jerusalem: Literally and the measuring line will be stretched out over Jerusalem (cp. Job 38:5; Jer 31:39).

1:17 The repetition of again (four times in Hebrew) emphasizes the certainty of God's intention to restore Jerusalem.

1:18-21 The second vision states God's plan to bring his judgment against the nations who destroyed Jerusalem and exiled Judah. The prophet leaves unspecified the identity of nations represented by the four horns; it is best to view the number four as symbolic of all those nations who will face divine judgment for scattering the people of God. • Verses 1:18-21 are numbered 2:1-4 in the Hebrew text.

1:18-19 Then I looked up suggests that the prophet was interrupted by another vision while still preoccupied with the previous one (also in 2:1; 5:1; 6:1).

• Horns symbolized power and authority in the biblical world and might represent an individual ruler (see Dan 7:8; 8:8), a dynasty (see note on 1 Sam 2:10), or nations.

1:20 The word translated blacksmiths could refer to any sort of craftsmen (mason, carpenter, smith). If the horns representing the nations were metal (see 1 Kgs 22:11), then blacksmiths were appropriate to the task of destroying them (see 2 Chr 24:12; Isa 44:12).

1:21 humbled Judah: They literally lifted up their horns against Judah. • The Lord would cut off those horns, throw them down to the ground, and bring an end to their authority. The Judeans did not need to fear the surrounding nations.

2:1-13 Verses 2:1-13 are numbered 2:5-17 in the Hebrew text.

2:1-5 The scope of the visions narrows from the cosmos (vision 1), to the nations (vision 2), to the city of Jerusalem. The vision itself (2:1-3) is followed by an explanation of its meaning (2:4-5).

2:2 how wide and how long it is (Or how long and wide it is to be): By taking this measurement, God showed that he was planning for Jerusalem's future.

Many will live outside the city walls. ⁵Then I, myself, will be a protective wall of fire around Jerusalem, says the LORD. And I will be the glory inside the city!'"

The Exiles Are Called Home

Zechariah was certain that God would once again live among his people and that the glory of the Lord would rest in Jerusalem (1:16; 2:5, 10-11; 8:3, 23). God's presence would return with the rebuilding of the Temple, and Israel would experience spiritual restoration and renewed agricultural bounty (1:17; 4:8-9; 6:15; Hag 2:19). In the future, God's presence would rescue Jerusalem and the people of Israel from enemy nations; the Lord would be enthroned as King over all the earth, and the whole earth would worship the one true God (9:16; 10:6; 12:9; 14:9). In both the present and the future, the return of the Lord's presence to Jerusalem was connected with the enabling work of God's Spirit (4:6; 12:10; Hag 2:5).

Zechariah's vision of the Lord's return to his people is the same message that was given by other OT prophets (see Isa 52:8; Joel 3:21). Zechariah's promise of the Lord's presence in Jerusalem anticipated the coming of Jesus the Messiah and the awesome mystery of the Word of God becoming human and living on earth among us (John 1:14).

2:5 The wall of fire represents divine protection (cp. 2 Kgs 6:17). • I, myself, will be: The emphatic construction of the verb "to be" might be a direct reference to God's name (Exod 3:14-15). • Fire and glory allude to the Exodus (see Exod 13:22, 14:20; 40:34).

2:6-13 God's call for the exiles' return from Babylon anticipated his people's restoration to the land of Israel (2:6-9) and the restoration of his presence to his people in Jerusalem (2:10-13).

2:6 Come away! The emphatic command carries the force of a promise that the Lord would lead his people out of exile and into a restored Jerusalem (cp. Isa 55:1). • the land of the north: It was necessary to travel north in order to move to the east, so Babylonia was thought of as lying in the north. • four winds: The Hebrew exiles would return to Judah and Jerusalem from all directions (see Ezek 12:14; 37:9).

2:8 After a period of glory, the LORD of Heaven's Armies sent me: The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. Glory possibly refers to God (see 2:5), who sent the prophet. • Anyone who harms you harms my most precious possession (literally Anyone who touches you touches the pupil of his eye): This might refer to Israel as God's elect; it might also mean that those who harmed Israel poked themselves in the eye by bringing God's judgment upon themselves.

2:9 their own slaves will plunder them: At the Exodus, the Egyptians paid the Israelites to leave their land (see Exod 11:2-3; 12:35-36).

2:10 O beautiful Jerusalem: Literally O daughter of Zion.

2:12 Israel is the Lord's inheritance or special possession—the people of Israel belonged to the Lord (Deut 32:9-10). • The land was holy because of God's glorious presence in the Jerusalem Temple (see Ps 11:4; 15:1).

2:13 Be silent: The force of the Hebrew word (has) is similar to our English word "hush" (see Hab 2:20; Zeph 1:7).

3:1-10 The prophet's vision depicts a heavenly courtroom with the prosecuting attorney (Satan) accusing the defendant (Jeshua the high priest) of being unfit for his priestly duties.

3:1 Jeshua (Hebrew Joshua, a variant spelling of Jeshua; also in 3:3, 4, 6, 8, 9) was the high priest, the religious leader among those who returned to Judah from exile in Babylon (Ezra 2:2). Jeshua partnered with Zerubbabel, the governor of the restored community, in rebuilding the Jerusalem Temple (Ezra 5:2; Hag 2:1-5). • The Accuser, Satan (literally The satan; similarly in 3:2) designates a member of the heavenly court whose role is to accuse human beings of wrongdoing, to act against Jeshua. ²And the LORD said to ^cSatan, "I, the LORD, reject your accusations, ^cSatan. Yes, the LORD, who has chosen Jerusalem, rebukes you. This man is like a burning stick that has been snatched from the fire."

³Jeshua's clothing was filthy as he stood there before the angel. ⁴So the angel said to the others standing there, "Take off his filthy clothes." And turning to Jeshua he said, "See, I have taken away your sins, and now I am giving you these fine new clothes."

⁵Then I said, "They should also place a clean turban on his head." So they put a clean priestly turban on his head and dressed him in new clothes while the angel of the LORD stood by.

⁶Then the angel of the LORD spoke very solemnly to Jeshua and said, ⁷"This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says: If you follow my ways and carefully serve me, then you will be given authority over my Temple and its courtyards. I will let you walk among these others standing here."

⁸"Listen to me, O Jeshua the high priest, and all you other priests. You are symbols of things to come. Soon I am going to bring my servant, the ^bBranch. ⁹Now look at the jewel I have set before Jeshua, a single stone with seven facets. I will engrave an inscription on it, says the LORD of Heaven's Armies, and I will remove the sins of this land in a single day.

¹⁰And on that day, says the LORD of Heaven's Armies, each of you will invite your neighbor to sit with you peacefully under your own grapevine and fig tree."

A Lampstand and Two Olive Trees

4 Then the angel who had been talking with me returned and woke me, as though I had been asleep. ²"What do you see now?" he asked.

I answered, "I see a solid gold lampstand with a bowl of oil on top of it. Around the bowl are seven lamps, each having seven spouts with wicks. ³And I see two olive trees, one on each side of the bowl." ⁴Then I asked the angel, "What are these, my lord? What do they mean?"

⁵"Don't you know?" the angel asked.

"No, my lord," I replied.

⁶Then he said to me, "This is what the LORD says to Zerubbabel: It is not by force nor by strength, but by my ^eSpirit, says the LORD of Heaven's Armies. ⁷Nothing, not even a mighty mountain, will stand in as prosecuting attorney (see Job 1:6). The adversarial role may be performed by either human or divine beings (see Num 22:22; 1 Sam 29:4; 1 Chr 21:1). By NT times, Satan was a personal name for the prince of demons (Mark 3:22; 2 Cor 4:4; Eph 6:11; Rev 20:2). • The Accuser's position of authority in the heavenly court is shown by his standing at the angel's right hand.

3:2-3 The LORD is both defense attorney and judge; he censures the prosecution's arguments, dismisses the case, and declares Jeshua innocent because he has been chosen and cleansed by God. • Like a burning stick that has been snatched from the fire, Jeshua and other Hebrew exiles were plucked by God from near destruction in Babylon. • Jeshua's filthy clothes (3:3) symbolize the guilt and pollution of sin that prompted the divine judgment of exile. The accusations of Satan probably implied that just as a polluted priest was unfit for Temple service, the Hebrews were unfit to be God's chosen people.

3:4 Take off his filthy clothes: This action dramatizes the removal of sin and guilt from Jeshua and the Hebrew people, restoring them to their former position through God's cleansing.

3:5 The high priest's turban bore a gold medallion inscribed with the words "HOLY TO THE LORD" (Exod 28:36-38; see also note on 14:20). The clean turban was placed on Jeshua's head as an act of ordination that reinstated him as priest and mediator for the people.

3:6-7 Restoration was contingent upon obedience to God (see also Deut 30:19-20).

3:8 The high priest Jeshua and the other priests were symbols of greater realities. • Servant and Branch are both titles for the Messiah (Isa 42:1; 53:2; Jer 23:5; 33:15). As servant, the Messiah obeys God's will by becoming a sin offering so that many might be made righteous (Isa 53:11; see Acts 3:13; 4:27). The Branch is a metaphor for kingship that identifies the Messiah as David's descendant (Isa 11:1; Jer 23:5).

3:9 The single stone signifies authority. It might refer to the final stone of the Temple laid by Zerubbabel (4:7), the "foundation stone" of the restored Jerusalem (Isa 28:16), or the precious stones on the ephod of the high priests (Exod 25:7; 35:9). • The seven facets (literally seven eyes) of the stone imply perfection and completeness of knowledge and wisdom. They might relate to the seven lamps of the golden lampstand (4:2) or to God's "sevenfold Spirit" (Rev 1:4). • The inscription is reminiscent of the names of the tribes inscribed on the stones of the high priest's shoulder-pieces (Exod 39:6). • The removal of Israel's sin in a single day alludes to the Day of Atonement (Lev 16). It foreshadows Christ's crucifixion, when the Lamb of God would take away the sin of the world (John 1:29).

3:10 That day is shorthand for "the day of the Lord" (see 2:11; Isa 2:11; Joel 2:1; Zeph 1:14), the day of God's intervention in history when God will judge the wicked, deliver the righteous, and restore creation (see 12:8; 14:3-4).

4:1-14 This vision affirms that through his Spirit, God would enable Zerubbabel and Jeshua to rebuild the Temple.

4:1 woke me: The series of visions (1:7-6:8) came to Zechariah in a single night. The prophet slept briefly before this fifth vision.

4:2 gold lampstand: The golden menorah of the Tabernacle (Exod 25:31) was duplicated in the new Temple as a symbol of God's purity and holiness and the light of his revelation. • The two olive trees represent the offices of priest and king in Israel; they are emblems for Jeshua and Zerubbabel. The golden oil (see also 4:12-14) represents God's Holy Spirit.

4:6 Jeshua and Zerubbabel would have success in the rebuilding of the Jerusalem Temple, not by their own force or strength, but because of the presence of God's empowering Spirit (cp. Hag 2:4-5).

Then you will know that the LORD of Heaven's Armies has sent me. ¹⁰Do not despise these small beginnings, for the LORD rejoices to see the work begin, to see the plumb line in Zerubbabel's hand."

(The seven lamps represent the eyes of the LORD that search all around the world.)

One side of the scroll says that those who steal will be banished from the land; the other side says that those who swear falsely will be banished from the land. ⁴And this is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says: I am sending this curse into the house of every thief and into the house of everyone who swears falsely using my name. And my curse will remain in that house and completely destroy it—even its timbers and stones."

Zechariah told Zerubbabel not to "despise . . . small beginnings" (4:10). God had acted in the past for the ultimate good of his people, even in the Babylonian exile (7:12-14; see 14:3). God would accomplish his purposes for Israel's well-being in his own way and time. The people of Israel could take courage in the present and have hope for the future because God keeps his word and fulfills his promises (4:9).

All humanity should be silent before the Lord, "for he is springing into action from his holy dwelling" (2:13). God wants patience and faith from his people, not a strident voice. God kept his word and fulfilled the promises he made through Zechariah by sending Jesus the Messiah into the world to bring salvation for all people. Jesus' word, that he will one day return and fully establish his Kingdom, may also be trusted (Matt 24:27, 30; see Acts 1:6-11).

(see Matt 17:20; 1 Cor 13:2). Faith in God enables his servants to overcome seemingly impossible obstacles. • The capstone or headstone (final stone) completes a stone wall or building (see Ps 118:22). • May God bless it! (literally 'Grace, grace to it'): This prayer seeks God's favor and blessing on the new Temple.

4:10 A plumb line, a cord with a tin or lead weight attached to one end, is used in construction to ensure that a wall is vertical. • The seven lamps (Or The seven facets [see 3:9]; literally These seven): Seven signifies completeness or perfection. God sees all that takes place on earth; he controls the fates of peoples and nations.

4:14 two anointed ones (literally two sons of [olive] oil, who were anointed with oil as part of their commissioning): Under the leadership of Jeshua and Zerubbabel, the religious and civic leaders of Jerusalem after the return from exile (3:1, 7; 4:6-7; Hag 1:14; 2:2-3), the Temple of the Lord was rebuilt and worship was restored in Jerusalem.

5:1-4 Zechariah's vision of the flying scroll reminded the leaders and people of postexilic Judah that they were still obligated to follow God's commands. The blessings and curses of the law (Deut 28) were still in effect.

5:1 looked up again: This is the sixth of eight visions that Zechariah had in the same night. • A scroll, the equivalent of a book in biblical times, was usually made of rolled parchment or leather, but was sometimes of papyrus, tin, or copper. This scroll was flying, unfurled like a banner for all to see.

5:2 30 feet long and 15 feet wide: Hebrew 20 cubits [9.2 meters] long and 10 cubits [4.6 meters] wide.

5:3 curse (or oath): A covenant included curses on violators of the agreement. (see Deut 29:12-21).

5:4 This curse is sent like a law officer to punish violations of God's covenant (see Ps 147:15; Isa 55:11).

5:5-11 The seventh vision continues the theme of cleansing that began with the acquittal of the high priest Jeshua (3:1-10). The removal of Wickedness, much like the removal of Jeshua's filthy garments (3:4), was a gracious act of pardon by the covenant-keeping God.

5:6 The basket (Hebrew ephah) was a standard unit of dry measure, approximately ½ bushel (20 quarts or 22 liters); also in 5:7. The OT prophets' condemnation of unjust ephahs creates a natural association between the ephah basket and evil (see Ezek 45:10; Mic 6:10). • the sins: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads the appearance.

He replied, "It is a basket for measuring grain, and it's filled with the sins of everyone throughout the land."

⁷Then the heavy lead cover was lifted off the basket, and there was a woman sitting inside it. ⁸The angel said, "The woman's name is Wickedness," and he pushed her back into the basket and closed the heavy lid again.

⁹Then I looked up and saw two women flying toward us, gliding on the wind. They had wings like a stork, and they picked up the basket and flew into the sky.

¹⁰"Where are they taking the basket?" I asked the angel.

¹¹He replied, "To the land of Babylonia, where they will build a temple for the basket. And when the temple is ready, they will set the basket there on its pedestal."

Four Chariots

6 Then I looked up again and saw four chariots coming from between two bronze mountains. ²The first chariot was pulled by red horses, the second by black horses, ³the third by white horses, and the fourth by powerful dappled-gray horses. ⁴"And what are these, my lord?" I asked the angel who was talking with me.

⁵The angel replied, "These are the four spirits of heaven who stand before the Lord of all the earth. They are going out to do his work. ⁶The chariot with black horses is going north, the chariot with white horses is going west, and the chariot with dappled-gray horses is going south."

⁷The powerful horses were eager to set out to patrol the earth. And the Lord said, "Go and patrol the earth!" So they left at once on their patrol.

⁸Then the Lord summoned me and said, "Look, those who went north have vented the anger of my Spirit there in the land of the north."

The Crowning of Jeshua

⁹Then I received another message from the Lord: ¹⁰"Heldai, Tobijah, and Jedaiah will bring gifts of silver and gold from the Jews exiled in Babylon. As soon as they arrive, meet them at the home of Josiah son of Zephaniah. ¹¹Accept their gifts, and make a crown from the silver and gold. Then put the crown on the head of Jeshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest. ¹²Tell him, 'This is what the Lord of Heaven's Armies says: Here is the man called the Branch. He will branch out from where he is and build the

5:7-8 The evil woman in a basket represents a seductive and dangerous force that is difficult to contain. The sin of idolatry had previously provoked God's judgment (2 Kgs 17:16-18; 2 Chr 36:14).

5:7 The heavy lead cover (literally a talent [seventy-five pounds] of lead) is not a natural cover for an ephah basket, but shows that extraordinary measures were needed to seal the basket's unholy contents.

5:8 Wickedness refers to evil generally; whether moral or ceremonial, it is opposed to righteousness (see Prov 13:6; Ezek 33:12). The word wickedness (Hebrew rish'ah) is similar in Hebrew to the name Asherah, the fertility goddess of the ancient Near East (see Deut 7:5; 16:21; Jer 44:17-25).

5:9 The depiction of divine or angelic winged creatures as women is unusual in the OT. If the two women are the Lord's servants, they are unique angels. If they are the attendants of Wickedness (a foreign goddess), their submission to God's command demonstrates his power over false gods.

5:11 Idolatry is potently and aggressively evil; it cannot be confined, but must be shipped back to its source (Babylonia) by God's decree. This symbolism indicates that God is able to purge his people of all the various forms of wickedness that separated them from him. • the land of Babylonia

(Hebrew the land of Shinar) was the land of Hebrew captivity (Mic 4:10). The prophets condemn it as wicked and idolatrous (Isa 46-47; Jer 50-51). In the NT, Babylon represents the evil Roman empire (Rev 17:5; 18:2; see 1 Pet 5:13).

6:1-8 In Zechariah's first and last visions, God sends horses to patrol the earth. Both visions show God's sovereignty and his concern for the nations, a vital component of Zechariah's message of comfort and encouragement to postexilic Judah.

6:1 Chariots symbolize the swift and decisive power of God's intervention in human affairs. • The two bronze mountains are enhanced images of the two bronze pillars that once flanked the entrance to Solomon's Temple (1 Kgs 7:13-22). Bronze symbolizes the impregnable strength of God's dwelling.

6:2-3 red . . . black . . . white . . . dappled-gray horses: Zechariah attaches no particular significance to the colors of the horses in his vision (cp. Rev 6:1-8).

6:5 The four spirits (or the four winds) of heaven are divine council members who report to God on their reconnaissance missions to the four compass points (see 2:6). The whole world is under God's dominion. The teams of chariot horses are agents of God's judgment.

6:6 is going west: Literally is going after them.

6:7 The teams of horses are portrayed as powerful and eager to do the Lord's work (6:5). They move only at the Lord's command (6:7).

6:8 the Lord summoned me: The series of visions closes with a direct word from the Lord to Zechariah. In bypassing the interpreting angel, God emphasizes the sure and effective implementation of his word to Israel. • have vented the anger of my Spirit (literally have given my Spirit rest): "Spirit" can mean "anger," as it does here (see Judg 8:3; Isa 33:11).

6:9-15 This authoritative message accompanies Zechariah's eighth vision (6:1-8). Jeshua's symbolic coronation as both king and priest was not an actual political arrangement for Judah; it probably symbolizes the coming of the Messiah, the Branch (6:12; cp. 3:8).

6:10 Heldai, Tobijah, and Jedaiah were apparently couriers designated by Jews in Babylon to carry donations to the Temple building fund.

6:11 This crown was probably made of two bands of metal, one gold and one silver. Each band represented one of the offices (king and priest) to which Jeshua (Hebrew Joshua, a variant spelling of Jeshua) was appointed.

6:12-13 The Branch is a title for the Messiah (see 3:8), whom Jeshua represents. • he will build the Temple of Temple of the LORD. ¹³Yes, he will build the Temple of the LORD. Then he will receive royal honor and will rule as king from his throne. He will also serve as priest from his throne, and there will be perfect harmony between his two roles.

¹⁴"The crown will be a memorial in the Temple of the LORD to honor those who gave it—Heldai, Tobijah, Jedaiah, and Josiah son of Zephaniah."

¹⁵People will come from distant lands to rebuild the Temple of the LORD. And when this happens, you will know that my messages have been from the LORD of Heaven's Armies. All this will happen if you carefully obey what the LORD your God says.

3. ZECHARIAH'S SERMONS (7:1–8:23)

A Call to Justice and Mercy

7 On December 7 of the fourth year of King Darius's reign, another message came to Zechariah from the LORD. ²The people of Bethel had sent Sharezer and Regemmelech, along with their attendants, to seek the LORD's favor. ³They were to ask this question of the prophets and the priests at the Temple of the LORD of Heaven's Armies: "Should we continue to mourn and fast each summer on the anniversary of the Temple's destruction, as we have done for so many years?"

⁴The LORD of Heaven's Armies sent me this message in reply: ⁵"Say to all your people and your priests, 'During these seventy years of exile, when you fasted and mourned in the summer and in early autumn, was it really for me that you were fasting? ⁶And even now in your holy festivals, aren't you eating and drinking just to please yourselves? ⁷Isn't this the same message the LORD proclaimed through the prophets in years past when Jerusalem and the towns of Judah were bustling with people, and the Negev and the foothills of Judah were well populated?'"

⁸Then this message came to Zechariah from the LORD: ⁹"This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says: Judge fairly, and show the LORD: Just as Jeshua the high priest helped to build the Temple in Jerusalem (Ezra 3:1-2, 8-9; 5:2), Jesus the Messiah would build the eternal heavenly Temple through his death, burial, and resurrection (John 2:19-22; 4:23-24; Eph 2:19-22; Heb 8:1-2). • The Messiah would rule as king, a role associated with David and the tribe of Judah (2 Sam 7:12-16). • He will also serve as priest from his throne (or There will be a priest by his throne): The Messiah's priestly role is associated with Aaron and the tribe of Levi (Exod 29:44). • Jeshua's crown or crowns (see note on 6:11) represent his two roles. Melchizedek also fulfilled the double functions of priest and king (Gen 14:17-20), as does the Messiah (Psa 110:4; Heb 7:1-3, 15-17).

6:14 The symbolic crown that united kingship and priesthood was placed in the Temple as a memorial to the donors of gold and silver. It was also a permanent reminder of Jeshua's coronation as priest-king and a visual aid for priests in teaching this new development. • Heldai: As in Syriac version (compare 6:10); Hebrew reads Helem. • Josiah: As in Syriac version (compare 6:10); Hebrew reads Hen. Josiah was honored for his role as broker for the meeting between Zechariah and the three former exiles.

6:15 Exiled Jews in Babylon and other distant lands helped to rebuild the Temple; all Israel could identify with the structure.

7:1–8:23 These sermons provide a transition between the visions of the present (chs 1–6) and those of the near future (chs 9–11) and the more distant future (chs 12–14). Chapter 7 discusses fasting over past disasters; ch 8 focuses on feasting over future blessings.

7:1–14 Zechariah's sermons were prompted by delegates from Bethel who posed a practical question (7:2–3). Although Zechariah answered the question later (8:18–19), he responded first with rhetorical questions that focused on the people's self-centered motives (7:5–6). Zechariah then outlined God's expectations for Israel (7:8–10; see Jer 22:3) and recounted what had happened to those who disobeyed previously (7:11–14).

7:1 On December 7: Literally On the fourth day of the ninth month, the month of Kislev, of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar. This event occurred on December 7, 518 BC; also see note on 1:1. • of the fourth year of King Darius's reign: The two sermons of chs 7–8 came almost two years after the visions of chs 1–6.

7:2 The people of Bethel had sent Sharezer and Regemmelech (Or Bethel-sharezer had sent Regemmelech. Or The people had sent [a man named] Bethel-sharezer): The exact meaning is uncertain. • to seek the LORD's favor (literally to soften the face of the LORD): They were asking God to grant a petition or to rule on a question. Their request was probably accompanied by a sacrifice or offering.

7:3 The delegation from Bethel posed a practical procedural question. • mourn and fast each summer on the anniversary of the Temple's destruction: Literally mourn and fast in the fifth month. The Temple had been destroyed in the fifth month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar (August 586 BC); see 2 Kgs 25:8.

7:4–7 Rather than answering the question right away, Zechariah first confronted his hearers with their selfish motives and hypocrisy. The most important issue was whether or not their heart's desire was really to please God and do his will; if not, it made no difference whether or not they kept a fast.

7:5 According to Jeremiah, seventy years of exile in Babylon (see Jer 25:11–12; 29:10) were to make up the Sabbath years of rest for the land that had gone unobserved for nearly 500 years (2 Chr 36:21; see Exod 23:10–11; Lev 26:34–35).

• fasted and mourned in the summer and in early autumn: Literally fasted and mourned in the fifth and seventh months. The fifth month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar usually occurs within the months of July and August. The seventh month usually occurs within the months of September and October; both the Day of Atonement and the Festival of Shelters were celebrated in the seventh month. While the summer fast lamented the destruction of Solomon's Temple (7:3), the early autumn fast either commemorated the assassination of Gedaliah, governor of Judah (see 2 Kgs 25:22–25; Jer 41:1–3), or it was the Day of Atonement (Lev 23:26–32).

7:7 Isn't this the same message: E.g., see Isa 1:11–20; 58:3–7. • the foothills of Judah: Hebrew the Shephelah.

mercy and ^akindness to one another. ¹⁰Do not oppress widows, orphans, foreigners, and the poor. And do not scheme against each other.

¹¹"Your ancestors refused to listen to this message. They stubbornly turned away and put their fingers in their ears to keep from hearing. ¹²They made their hearts as hard as stone, so they could not hear the instructions or the messages that the LORD of Heaven's Armies had sent them by his Spirit through the earlier prophets. That is why the LORD of Heaven's Armies was so angry with them.

¹³"Since they refused to listen when I called to them, I would not listen when they called to me, says the LORD of Heaven's Armies. ¹⁴As with a whirlwind, I scattered them among the distant nations, where they lived as strangers. Their land became so desolate that no one even traveled through it. They turned their pleasant land into a desert."

Promised Blessings for Jerusalem

8 Then another message came to me from the LORD of Heaven's Armies: ²"This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says: My love for Mount Zion is passionate and strong; I am consumed with passion for Jerusalem!

³"And now the LORD says: I am returning to Mount Zion, and I will live in Jerusalem. Then Jerusalem will be called the Faithful City; the mountain of the LORD of Heaven's Armies will be called the Holy Mountain.

⁶"This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says: All this may seem impossible to you now, a small remnant of God's people. But is it impossible for me? says the LORD of Heaven's Armies.

⁷"This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says: You can be sure that I will ^brescue my people from the east and from the west. ⁸I will bring them home again to live safely in Jerusalem. They will be my people, and I will be faithful and just toward them as their God.

⁹"This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says: Be strong and finish the task! Ever since the laying of the foundation of the Temple of the LORD of Heaven's Armies,

7:10 Widows, orphans, foreigners, and the poor often did not have access to the legal protection afforded the average citizen (cp. Deut 24:14, 17-18). Fast-ing and social justice should go hand in hand (see Isa 58:6-7).

7:11 Your ancestors refused to listen: They ignored God's commands (see Jer 11:10). • stubbornly turned away (or set a defiant shoulder): The idiom signifies haughty stubbornness (see Neh 9:29). • Put their fingers in their ears places full responsibility upon the people for their obstinacy (cp. Isa 6:10). The same expression is used of Pharaoh when he "became stubborn" (or "hardened his heart") against God and refused to release the Hebrews (Exod 8:32).

7:12 To make one's heart as hard as stone is to steel one's will against the will of God (see Jer 17:1; cp. Ezek 3:9). • Instructions (Hebrew torah) refer to God's laws and commands as taught and interpreted by the prophets.

7:14 As with a whirlwind, I scattered them: The scattering of the Hebrews among the nations was one of the curses for violating the Mosaic covenant (Deut 28:36-37, 64). • The pleasant land was the land of God's covenant promise (Ps 106:24; Jer 3:19). • Their land became . . . desolate through divine judgment on their covenant unfaithfulness and idolatry (Jer 12:10).

8:1-23 This section of Zechariah's sermons is connected to the previous one by the topics of fasting (questions posed in 7:2-7 are answered in 8:18-19) and the ethical demands of covenant relationship with the Lord (7:8-10; 8:16-17). The tone and message shift from admonition and judgment to exhortation and restoration. Fasting would change to feasting (8:19).

8:2 Passion (or jealousy, zeal) is a basic element of the OT concept of God (see also 1:14). God's passion identifies him as a personal deity, not an abstract natural force. God is passionate for his word and for the people of his covenant. His passion results in punishment for sin, restoration for repentance, and reward for the pursuit of righteousness.

8:3 I will live in Jerusalem: The great hope of the postexilic community was that the Lord would return to dwell among his people again (see 1:16-17; Hag 2:4-7; Ezek 48:35). • I am returning: God would return to Jerusalem not just because the Temple had been rebuilt but because the Hebrew community had been purified (ch 3). • Isaiah compared Jerusalem to a faithful woman who became a prostitute (Isa 1:21). Zechariah shared Isaiah's vision of Jerusalem's change into a Faithful City (or city of truth) again (Isa 1:26).

8:4-5 The images of old men and women walking and of boys and girls playing in the streets indicate repopulation and resumption of normal family life in the once decimated city of Jerusalem. The return of God's presence to his rebuilt Temple would bring peace and safety to the city's inhabitants (see Jer 33:10-11).

8:6 The OT portrays God as able to do the impossible and the miraculous—nothing is too hard for the God who made the heavens and the earth (Gen 18:14; Jer 32:17, 27; see also Matt 19:26).

8:7 from the east and from the west: This is an idiom meaning from all the regions to which the Hebrews were dispersed (compare Isa 43:5-6).

8:8 They will be my people, and I will be . . . their God: This adoption formula depicts the intimate bond between Israel and God in covenant relationship (see Exod 19:5-6; Jer 30:22; 31:33; Ezek 34:30-31; Hos 2:23).

8:9-13 This section highlights the reversal of Jerusalem's fortunes as the Temple was rebuilt (cp. 2 Chr 15:3-7). The exhortation to be strong (8:9, 13) is an inclusio (a set of rhetorical book-ends) for the section.

8:9 Laying of the foundation refers to Zerubbabel's and Jeshua's initial work of rebuilding the Temple in 536 BC (Ezra

you have heard what the prophets have been saying about completing the building. ¹⁰Before the work on the Temple began, there were no jobs and no money to hire people or animals. No traveler was safe from the enemy, for there were enemies on all sides. I had turned everyone against each other.

¹¹"But now I will not treat the remnant of my people as I treated them before, says the LORD of Heaven's Armies. ¹²For I am planting seeds of peace and prosperity among you. The grapevines will be heavy with fruit. The earth will produce its crops, and the heavens will release the dew. Once more I will cause the remnant in Judah and Israel to inherit these blessings. ¹³Among the other nations, Judah and Israel became symbols of a cursed nation. But no longer! Now I will rescue you and make you both a symbol and a source of blessing. So don't be afraid. Be strong, and get on with rebuilding the Temple!

¹⁴"For this is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says: I was determined to punish you when your ancestors angered me, and I did not change my mind, says the LORD of Heaven's Armies. ¹⁵But now I am determined to bless Jerusalem and the people of Judah. So don't be afraid. ¹⁶But this is what you must do: Tell the truth to each other. Render verdicts in your courts that are just and that lead to peace. ¹⁷Don't scheme against each other. Stop your love of telling lies that you swear are the truth. I hate all these things, says the LORD."

¹⁸Here is another message that came to me from the LORD of Heaven's Armies. ¹⁹"This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says: The traditional fasts and times of mourning you have kept in early summer, midsummer, autumn, and winter are now ended. They will become festivals of joy and celebration for the people of Judah. So love truth and peace.

²⁰"This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says: People from nations and cities around the world will travel to Jerusalem. ²¹The people of one city will say to

14:9, 16, 21

Mal 3:3

Zechariah's emphasis on God's love for Jerusalem shows that God makes covenants and keeps them (1:14; 8:2, 15). God rules over the nations, and his love for the nation of Israel meant that he would save it and destroy its enemies (11:6-12). Our holy God will transform the created order and establish the long-awaited Kingdom of the Lord over all the earth (14:9). All the nations will worship the King, the Lord Almighty (14:9, 16, 21).

Zechariah presents the Messiah as a suffering shepherd (13:7) and a righteous king (9:9). The Messiah's ministry will redeem people who are loyal to God (13:9). This prediction was realized in the life of Jesus the Messiah, who announced that "the Kingdom of God has arrived among you" (Matt 12:28).

3:8-13). The Temple reconstruction project was quickly abandoned and was not resumed until the prophets Haggai and Zechariah prompted it sixteen years later (Ezra 5:1-2; Hag 1:1).

8:10 enemies: The neighboring peoples opposed the rebuilding of the Temple (Ezra 4). Later, enemies opposed Nehemiah's rebuilding of the wall around Jerusalem (Neh 4).

8:12 Peace (Hebrew shalom) is an important theme underlying Zechariah's message (8:10, 12, 16, 19). God's presence in the rebuilt Temple would bring peace to Judah (see Hag 2:6-9). Zechariah uses the agricultural cycle to represent God's blessing (see Hag 2:18-19), which would reverse the drought conditions that Haggai described (Hag 1:10). • The small community that returned to Judah from exile were called the remnant (see Hag 1:12, 14). Theologically, the remnant are a bridge between God's punishment and his promise of restoration (see Hag 1:12, 14).

8:14-15 determined: The repetition of this word emphasizes God's sovereignty in judging Israel's sin and then in blessing them.

8:16 God expects his people to act with integrity and justice (see Eph 4:25).

• The courts (literally the gates): Legal proceedings were conducted at the gates of the city or Temple (see Deut 21:19; 25:7).

8:17 In Zechariah's time, the people of Judah were guilty of the same sins that brought about the Babylonian exile. Such behavior put God's plans for restoration in jeopardy (see 7:8-10; 8:16).

• I hate all these things: God's hatred of evil (Ps 5:5; Prov 6:16-19) stems from his absolute holiness (Ps 5:4; 15:1; 24:3).

8:19 Here the Lord finally answers the question posed by the delegates from Bethel (7:2-3). • in early summer, midsummer, autumn, and winter: Literally in the fourth, fifth, seventh, and tenth months. The fourth month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar usually occurs within the months of June and July. The fifth month usually occurs within the months of July and August. The seventh month usually occurs within the months of September and October. The tenth month usually occurs within the months of December and January. The fast in early summer commemorated the breaching of Jerusalem's walls (2 Kgs 25:3-4; Jer 52:6-7). The midsummer fast lamented the burning of Solomon's Temple (2 Kgs 25:8-10; Jer 52:12-14). The fast in autumn marked the assassination of Gedaliah, governor of Jerusalem (2 Kgs 25:22-25; Jer 41:1-3) or the Day of Atonement (Lev 23:26-32). The fast in winter recalled the beginning of the siege of Jerusalem (2 Kgs 25:1; Jer 52:4). • The fasts will turn to feasts when God restores Israel and sets his glory among the nations (Isa 65:18-19).

the people of another, 'Come with us to Jerusalem to ask the LORD to bless us. Let's worship the LORD of Heaven's Armies. I'm determined to go.' ²²Many peoples and powerful nations will come to Jerusalem to seek the LORD of Heaven's Armies and to ask for his blessing.

²³"This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies says: In those days ten men from different nations and languages of the world will clutch at the sleeve of one Jew. And they will say, 'Please let us walk with you, for we have heard that God is with you.'"

4. ZECHARIAH'S ORACLES (9:1–14:21)

First Oracle (9:1–11:17)

Judgment against Israel's Enemies

9 This is the message from the LORD against the land of Aram and the city of Damascus, for the eyes of humanity, including all the tribes of Israel, are on the LORD.

² Doom is certain for Hamath, near Damascus,
and for the cities of Tyre and Sidon,
though they are so clever.

³ Tyre has built a strong fortress and has made silver and gold as plentiful as dust in the streets!

⁴ But now the Lord will strip away Tyre's possessions
and hurl its fortifications into the sea, and it will be burned to the ground.

⁵ The city of Ashkelon will see Tyre fall and will be filled with fear.

Gaza will shake with terror, as will Ekron, for their hopes will be dashed.

Gaza's king will be killed,
and Ashkelon will be deserted.

⁶ Foreigners will occupy the city of Ashdod.
I will destroy the pride of the Philistines.

⁷ I will grab the bloody meat from their mouths and snatch the detestable sacrifices from their teeth.

Then the surviving Philistines will worship our God and become like a clan in Judah.
The Philistines of Ekron will join my
people,
as the ancient Jebusites once did.

⁸ I will guard my Temple and protect it from invading armies.
I am watching closely to ensure that no more foreign oppressors overrun my people's land.

8:23 God is with you: God's presence restored the ideal of fellowship between God and human beings (Gen 3:8; Exod 24:9-11; 25:8; Isa 7:14; 57:15; Ezek 43:7; John 1:14).

9:1–14:21 The second part of Zechariah stands apart from the first in several ways. Zechariah 9–14 is distinctively apocalyptic, combining cryptic historical allusions with futuristic visions. The messages alternate between threats of judgment for other nations and promises of deliverance for Israel. The section contains no explicit references to Zechariah, but uses God's direct speech. The messages probably date from a later period in Zechariah's ministry.

9:1–11:17 This is the message: Literally An Oracle: The message. This is the superscription (introductory heading) for the entire section; it includes the technical term message (or oracle, burden), a prophetic pronouncement of judgment; the use of this word invests the message with divine authority. These messages can be related to events between Zechariah's time and the coming of Christ.

9:1-8 This encouraging message told the Judeans that they had nothing to fear from their three most prominent neighbors—Syria (Aram), the Phoenicians (Tyre and Sidon), and the Philistines. All three were rivals of Judah; they were always trying to take commercial and territorial advantage. God said that their efforts would be in vain.

9:1 The land of Aram (Hebrew land of Hadrach) was a city-state on the northern boundary of Israel, on the caravan route connecting Mesopotamia to the Mediterranean coast. Aram was sometimes an ally and sometimes an enemy to Israel and Judah. • Damascus, the capital of Aram, was the northern boundary of the ideal Hebrew state (Ezek 47:16-18).

9:2 Hamath, a fortress city on one of the southern trade routes from Asia Minor, was on the northern boundary of Israel (see Num 13:21; Josh 13:5). • The twin port cities of Tyre and Sidon were independent Phoenician kingdoms located on the Mediterranean coast north of Israel (modern-day Lebanon); they are often paired in biblical texts (e.g., Ezra 3:7; Joel 3:4; Luke 10:13-14). The cities were legendary for their maritime trade wealth, but OT prophets condemned their pride and oppressive policies and predicted their destruction (Isa 23; Ezek 26:3-14; Amos 1:9-10).

9:3-4 Strong fortress (Hebrew matsor) is a pun on the name of the city of Tyre (Hebrew tsor). This famed island fortress (Isa 23:4; Ezek 26:5) was captured and destroyed by Alexander the Great in 332 BC.

9:5-6 Ashkelon . . . Gaza . . . Ekron . . .

Ashdod: These Philistine cities, located on the coastal plain of Israel, were defeated by David (2 Sam 5:17-25) but later regained some autonomy. The prophets Amos and Zephaniah pronounced similar judgments against the same four cities (Amos 1:6-8; Zeph 2:4-7).

9:6 foreigners: This Hebrew word occurs elsewhere only in Deut 23:2, where it refers to illegitimate children. Zechariah uses it to signify the Philistines' eventual loss of political and social identity.

9:7 bloody meat: The Philistines ate meat that had not been drained of blood and was therefore unclean (Gen 9:4; Lev 3:17; Acts 15:20). • Detestable sacrifices were despicable practices associated with idolatry. Here they suggest eating unclean foods (see Lev 11:2-23). • the surviving Philistines will worship our God: This anticipates Philip's ministry in the cities of the Philistine coastal plain (Acts 8:40). • a clan in Judah: Literally a leader in Judah. • The Jebusites were a Canaanite group (see Gen 10:16; 1 Chr 1:14) living in and around Jerusalem. The city of Jebus (Jerusalem) was sacked and burned during the days of the judges (Judg 1:8); it was later recaptured by David, who made it the capital of his kingdom (2 Sam 5:6-10). The Jebusites were absorbed by the Israelites through intermarriage during David's reign (see 2 Sam 5:13).

Zion's Coming King

⁹ Rejoice, O people of Zion!

Shout in triumph, O people of Jerusalem!

Look, your king is coming to you.

He is righteous and victorious, yet he is humble, riding on a donkey—riding on a donkey's colt.

¹⁰ I will remove the battle chariots from Israel

and the warhorses from Jerusalem.

I will destroy all the weapons used in battle,
and your king will bring peace to the nations.

His realm will stretch from sea to sea and from the Euphrates River to the ends of the earth.

¹¹ Because of the covenant I made with you, sealed with blood,

I will free your prisoners from death in a waterless dungeon.

¹² Come back to the place of safety,
all you prisoners who still have hope!

I promise this very day that I will repay two blessings for each of your troubles.

¹³ Judah is my bow,
and Israel is my arrow.

Jerusalem is my sword, and like a warrior, I will brandish it against the Greeks.

¹⁴ The LORD will appear above his people;
his arrows will fly like lightning!
The Sovereign LORD will sound the ram's horn and attack like a whirlwind from the southern desert.

¹⁵ The LORD of Heaven's Armies will protect his people, and they will defeat their enemies by hurling great stones.
They will shout in battle as though drunk with wine.
They will be filled with blood like a bowl, drenched with blood like the corners of the altar.

¹⁶ On that day the LORD their God will rescue his people,
just as a shepherd rescues his sheep.
They will sparkle in his land like jewels in a crown.

¹⁷ How wonderful and beautiful they will be!
The young men will thrive on abundant grain, and the young women will flourish on new wine.

9:9-17 The second message of Zechariah's first oracle (chs 9–11) presents the juxtaposition of warfare and peace that has defined human history. Judah's coming deliverer-king will be victorious in battle, yet righteous and humble (9:9), and will bring peace to the nations in his universal reign (9:10).

9:9 O people of Zion! Literally O daughter of Zion! • Your king refers to a future king from David's line, described earlier as the Branch (3:8; 6:12-13). • and victorious: Literally and is being vindicated. • The donkey was a humble animal, and riding on a donkey signaled that its rider came in peace (see Matt 21:5; John 12:15).

9:10 As used here, Israel (literally Ephraim, referring to the northern kingdom of Israel; also in 9:13) stands in contrast to Judah, the southern kingdom. The pairing of Israel and Jerusalem signifies a reunited Israel and the regaining of the covenant land. • The kingdoms of Assyria, Babylonia, Persia, and Israel were established by military conquest. By contrast, the kingdom of the Messiah will dismantle the machinery of war and eradicate all arsenals of weapons (see Isa 2:4; 9:5; Mic 5:10-11; Joel 3:10). • The Euphrates River (literally the river) was the northern boundary of the Promised Land (Gen 15:18). • the ends of the earth (or the end of the land): The righteous king will establish universal peace.

9:11 The covenant . . . sealed with blood probably refers to the blood sacrifice that sealed the Mosaic covenant (Exod 24:8). • The prisoners were Jews still living as exiles in Mesopotamia after the Babylonian exile. The Jews who remained in Persia and Babylon were spiritual exiles because they lived outside the Promised Land of spiritual blessing and rest (see Deut 12:10). One of the Messiah's defining activities would be to free prisoners (Isa 61:1; Luke 4:17-22; Rom 7:6; Eph 4:8).

9:12 Come back to the place of safety: This is a call for the Jews still in Babylon to return to the land of Judah.

9:13 Jerusalem (Hebrew Zion): The Persians and the Greeks (literally the sons of Javan) were engaged in a power struggle in Zechariah's time. In the future, God would judge the Greeks (who could represent all Gentiles). Zechariah is possibly alluding to Daniel's vision (Dan 8:21-22).

9:14 appear above his people: Zechariah borrows the image of a winged sun disk that artists pictured as protectively hovering over the Persian king. The Lord will protect Israel, go before them in battle, and show them his power. • The ram's horn issues a summons (Num 10:2-3, 7-10; Isa 27:13) and declares God's presence and power (Exod 19:19; 20:18).

• The whirlwind depicts God as a warrior of devastating power and unpredictable swiftness (Ps 77:18; Isa 21:1; 29:6; 66:15). References to lightning bring Mount Sinai to mind (Exod 19:16) and with it God's covenant promises to Israel.

9:15 In ancient battles, great stones (literally sling-stones) were hurled at defenders on city walls and catapulted onto the inhabitants inside. The Macabees' triumph over the Hellenistic Greeks in the 100s BC might have partially fulfilled Zechariah's prophecy of Israel's defeat of the Greeks (see 1 Macabees 3:16-24; 4:6-16; 7:40-50). • They will be filled with blood . . . drenched with blood: When the Lord unleashes his armies against the Greeks, the amount of bloodshed will be vast. • like a bowl: Ceremonial sprinkling bowls filled with animal blood were used in the rituals of sacrifice. This image almost suggests that the vanquishing of the Lord's enemies is in some sense an offering to him (see Exod 24:6; Lev 1:5; 16:18).

9:16 On that day: See note on 3:10. • The OT prophets portrayed the Messiah as a king and as a faithful shepherd (see Ezek 34:12, 16, 23; 37:24; John 10:1; Heb 13:20; 1 Pet 5:4).

9:17 abundant grain . . . new wine: Agricultural prosperity was a tangible sign of God's blessing (see Joel 2:19; Amos 9:13; cp. Hag 1:11).

The LORD Will Restore His People

- 10 ¹ Ask the LORD for rain in the spring, for he makes the storm clouds.
And he will send showers of rain so every field becomes a lush pasture.
- ² Household gods give worthless advice, fortune-tellers predict only lies,
and interpreters of dreams pronounce falsehoods that give no comfort.
So my people are wandering like lost
sheep;
they are attacked because they have no shepherd.
- ³ "My anger burns against your shepherds,
and I will punish these leaders.
For the LORD of Heaven's Armies has arrived to look after Judah, his flock.
He will make them strong and glorious,
like a proud warhorse in battle.
- ⁴ From Judah will come the cornerstone,
the tent peg,
the bow for battle,
and all the rulers.
- ⁵ They will be like mighty warriors in battle,
trampling their enemies in the mud
under their feet.
Since the LORD is with them as they fight, they will overthrow even the enemy's horsemen.

- ⁶ "I will strengthen Judah and save Israel;
I will restore them because of my ^dcompassion.
It will be as though I had never rejected
them, for I am the LORD their God, who will hear their cries.
- ⁷ The people of Israel will become like mighty warriors, and their hearts will be made happy
as if by wine.
Their children, too, will see it and be glad;
their hearts will rejoice in the LORD.
- ⁸ When I whistle to them, they will come running,
for I have redeemed them.
From the few who are left, they will grow as numerous as they were before.
- ⁹ Though I have scattered them like seeds
among the nations, they will still remember me in distant
lands.
They and their children will survive and return again to Israel.
- ¹⁰ I will bring them back from Egypt and gather them from Assyria.
I will resettle them in Gilead and Lebanon
until there is no more room for them
all.
- ¹¹ They will pass safely through the sea of distress,

10:1–11:3 God will strengthen his people by his power and restore them because of his compassion (10:6, 12). With its references to shepherds (10:2-3; 11:3), the passage prepares for the following allegory of the good and evil shepherds (11:4-17).

10:1-3 This is a rebuke of false shepherds, human leaders who do not have their people's good at heart.

10:1 Rain was a sign of divine blessing (see Joel 2:23)—the LORD was the source of the rain, but Israel's leaders had led the people to trust in false gods instead.

10:2 Household gods might refer to ancestor statues used in rituals of necromancy (conjuring up the spirits of the dead); consultation with the dead was a widespread practice in the ancient world, but God's law made it taboo for the Hebrews (see Lev 20:27; Deut 18:10-11).

10:3 My anger burns: Israel is often the object of this divine wrath, incited by disobedience to covenant stipulations or by lapses into idolatry (see Exod 22:22-24; Deut 6:14-15; Josh 7:1; Judg

2:20; Heb 10:31). • these leaders (or these male goats): This is a figure of speech for princes, since male goats typically lead goat herds.

10:4-12 A true shepherd is promised.

10:4 A cornerstone is the first-laid foundation stone upon which a building's superstructure rests (see Job 38:6; Ps 118:22; Isa 28:16; Eph 2:20). • Just as a tent peg anchors a tent to the ground, so Judah will provide the future leaders needed to stabilize the Hebrew nation. • Many understand cornerstone, tent peg, and bow for battle as titles for the Messiah (cp. Isa 22:20-23; Zech 9:13).

10:6 save: This Hebrew word is also used for the exodus from Egypt (see Exod 14:30). Salvation and victory come from God (Ps 3:8; Isa 63:1). • Israel: Literally the house of Joseph. • God saves and restores his people Israel because of his compassion (see Exod 33:19; Ps 103:13; 111:4; Lam 3:32).

10:7 of Israel: Literally of Ephraim.

10:8 When I whistle to them: Shepherds in biblical times herded their flocks by whistling or piping to them (see Judg 5:16). • Redeemed can also mean "ransomed"—buying slaves out of their servitude or indentured status (see Deut 15:15; 24:18). • numerous as . . . before: The proliferation of the Hebrew people was one of God's covenant promises to Abraham (Gen 12:1-3; 22:17; 32:12).

10:10 The Lord had previously whistled for the armies of Egypt and Assyria to come against King Ahaz of Judah because of his unbelief (Isa 7:18). The two nations were especially symbolic of the slavery and exile endured by the Hebrews. • Gilead is a fertile region east of the Jordan River and south of the Sea of Galilee that is suitable for grain growing and pasturing; it was settled by the tribes of Manasseh and Gad. • Lebanon sometimes defined the northern edge of the Promised Land (see Deut 11:24; Josh 1:4). God's restoration and resettlement of the Hebrews would be so complete that even the fringe areas of Israelite territory would teem with people.

10:11 the sea of distress (Or the sea of Egypt, referring to the Red Sea): When the Hebrews returned to the land of

The Good and Evil Shepherds

⁴This is what the LORD my God says: "Go and care for the flock that is intended for slaughter. ⁵The buyers slaughter their sheep without remorse. The sellers say, 'Praise the LORD! Now I'm rich!' Even the shepherds have no compassion for them. ⁶Likewise, I will no longer have pity on the people of the land," says the LORD. "I will let them fall into each other's hands and into the hands of their king. They will turn the land into a wilderness, and I will not rescue them."

⁷So I cared for the flock intended for slaughter—the flock that was oppressed.
Then I took two shepherd's staffs and named one Favor and the other Union. ⁸I got rid of their three evil shepherds in a single month.

But I became impatient with these sheep, and they hated me, too. ⁹So I told them, "I won't be your shepherd any longer. If you die, you die. If you are killed, you are killed.
And let those who remain devour each other!"

¹⁰Then I took my staff called Favor and cut it in two, showing that I had revoked the covenant I had made with all the nations.

¹¹That was the end of my covenant with them. The suffering flock was watching me, and they knew that the LORD was speaking through my actions.

Israel from exile in Babylon, they had to ford the Euphrates River; this is likened to a second exodus from Egypt (see Isa 43:2-6, 16-17), which would have included crossing the Nile River.

10:12 This verse repeats the earlier promise that God would strengthen his people (10:6; see Isa 41:8-10; cp.
Ps 18:1; 22:19; 28:8; 29:11). • By my power: Literally In the LORD.

11:1-3 This taunt song against Lebanon and Bashan concludes the preceding message of deliverance and restoration for Israel (10:1-12); it could also introduce the following message about good and evil shepherds (11:4-17).

11:1 Lebanon, boasting snow-covered mountains and fruitful valleys, was a symbol of strength and fertility.

11:2 Like Lebanon, Bashan had superb stands of timber. Lebanon and Bashan are often paired (Isa 2:13; Jer 22:20-22; Ezek 27:5-6) in representing nations that God would judge when he would regather and restore the people of Israel (see 10:11).

11:3 Shepherds and lions figuratively represent the leaders of Lebanon and Bashan, lamenting the destruction of their forested slopes, their pride, and their livelihood (see 11:1-2).

11:4-17 The metaphor of the Hebrew leaders as shepherds binds together the last three messages (9:9-11:17)

of Zechariah's first oracle (chs 9-11).
This message combines allegory with symbolic action on Zechariah's part to dramatize the wickedness of Israel's shepherds. The prophet acts out a parable of a "good shepherd" called by God to lead and unite his people, but the people rejected this shepherd and with it the promise of protection from the nations (11:10) and unity between Judah and Israel (11:14). Zechariah's symbolic actions foreshadow the ministry of Jesus the Messiah as the Good Shepherd (see John 10:1-21).

11:4 The people of Israel are God's flock
(see Isa 40:11; Mic 5:4). The relative helplessness of sheep places a premium on their careful shepherding. • intended for slaughter: Like sheep fattened for butchering, the people are being treated as disposable goods in a corrupt economy.

11:5 The sheep (the Hebrew people) were being sold as slaves to buyers—occupying foreign powers, foreign allies, or domestic slave-traders (see Amos 2:6). • The sellers were the shepherds, leaders of the people who were more concerned with getting rich than with the well-being of the sheep.

11:7 Shepherd's staffs symbolize leadership and authority. • Favor: This staff symbolized God's choice of Israel as his people (see Gen 12:1-3) and the promise of a leader like King David (see 2 Sam 7:12-16). • Union: Ezekiel's staff

(Ezek 37:16-17) represented the unity of the Hebrew tribes as a single nation during King David's reign (2 Sam 5:1-3).

11:8 The enigmatic historical reference to three evil shepherds has prompted more than forty different attempts to identify them. None of these explanations is effective. Three symbolizes completeness. God raises up good shepherds to remove evil shepherds for the well-being of his people.

11:9 devour each other! This might refer literally to the cannibalism that resulted from famine during the siege of Jerusalem in 588-586 bc (see Lam
4:10) and later in AD 70 (see Josephus, War 7.4.4). The expression may also be a metaphor for various forms of exploitation and oppression (see Mic
3:3; Gal 5:15).

11:10 Unlike Ezekiel, who drama-tized the reunification of the Hebrew kingdoms (Ezek 37:15-19), Zechariah dramatized the division by cutting the staffs in two (see also 11:14). The cutting of the staffs indicated the broken covenant bond between God and his people (11:11) and the bond of unity between the kingdoms of Judah and Israel (11:14). • A covenant between the Lord and all the nations is otherwise unknown. Zechariah might actually have been proclaiming the dissolution of the covenant binding Israel to God as his people (see Hos 1:6-9).

¹²And I said to them, "If you like, give me my wages, whatever I am worth; but only if you want to." So they counted out for my wages thirty pieces of silver.

¹³And the LORD said to me, "Throw it to the potter"—this magnificent sum at which they valued me! So I took the thirty coins and threw them to the potter in the Temple of the LORD.

¹⁴Then I took my other staff, Union, and cut it in two, showing that the bond of unity between Judah and Israel was broken.

¹⁵Then the LORD said to me, "Go again and play the part of a worthless shepherd. ¹⁶This illustrates how I will give this nation a shepherd who will not care for those who are dying, nor look after the young, nor heal the injured, nor feed the healthy. Instead, this shepherd will eat the meat of the fattest sheep and tear off their hooves.

¹⁷ "What sorrow awaits this worthless shepherd who abandons the flock!
The sword will cut his arm and pierce his right eye.
His arm will become useless, and his right eye completely
blind."

Second Oracle (12:1–14:21) Future Deliverance for Jerusalem

12 This message concerning the fate of Israel came from the LORD: "This message is from the LORD, who stretched out the heavens, laid the foundations of the earth, and formed the human spirit. ²I will make Jerusalem like an intoxicating drink that makes the nearby nations stagger when they send their armies to besiege Jerusalem and Judah. ³On that day I will make Jerusalem an immovable rock. All the nations will gather against it to try to move it, but they will only hurt themselves.

⁴"On that day," says the LORD, "I will cause every horse to panic and every rider to lose his nerve. I will watch over the people of Judah, but I will blind all the horses of their enemies. ⁵And the clans of Judah will say to themselves, 'The people of Jerusalem have found strength in the LORD of Heaven's Armies, their God.'

⁶"On that day I will make the clans of Judah like a flame that sets a woodpile ablaze or like a burning torch among sheaves of grain. They will burn up all the neighboring nations right and left, while the people living in Jerusalem remain secure.

⁷"The LORD will give victory to the rest of Judah first, before Jerusalem, so that the

11:12 Thirty pieces of silver was the price of a slave (see Exod 21:32). In the allegory, the silver was severance pay for the shepherd (11:9). The Gospel writers find the fulfillment of this passage in the betrayal of Jesus for thirty silver coins by Judas (see Matt 26:15; 27:9-10).

11:13 to the potter (Syriac version reads into the treasury; cp. Matt 27:6-10): Some scholars speculate that a guild of potters might have been minor Temple officials due to the continual need for sacred vessels (see Lev 6:28). Others, noting the similarity between potter (Hebrew yotser) and treasury ('otsar'), follow the Syriac version (see Matt 27:6, 10; Jer 32:6-9). The Greek OT translates this sentence as "throw it into the furnace," suggesting that the silver was melted down and recast into a silver vessel for use in Temple rituals. • Thirty coins (or pieces of silver) was a magnificent sum of money (nearly two years' wages for the average laborer).

11:15 The worthless shepherd represents corrupt leaders, in contrast with the good shepherd (cp. Ezek 34:7-16).

11:16 Tear off their hooves is a Hebrew idiom for a wanton and ravenous search for the last morsel of edible meat on an animal carcass (see Mic 3:3).

11:17 This oracle of woe is a poetic curse against the worthless shepherd for abandoning the flock. The arm and right eye represent the physical and mental abilities of the shepherd. The maimed arm and blind eye make the worthless shepherd powerless and end his selfish, opportunistic rule.

12:1–14:21 The theme of Jerusalem versus the nations binds the four messages of Zechariah's second oracle together; the nations are gathered against Jerusalem at the beginning (12:1-9) and the end (14:1-15) of the oracle. Through the repetition of the phrase on that day, the oracle looks to the future day of the Lord. The picture it presents mixes judgment with blessing for Jerusalem. The oracle's focal point is the cleansing of the people of Israel (13:1); it culminates with God's universal Kingdom (14:16-21). These visions of the future encouraged the Judeans of Zechariah's day to be faithful in spite of their seeming insignificance and helplessness.

12:1 This: Literally An Oracle: This.

12:2 intoxicating drink (literally bowl of reeling or cup of staggering): The cup of alcoholic drink is a metaphor for God's judgment (Isa 51:17; Jer 25:15; Hab 2:16; Matt 26:39, 42; Rev 14:10; 16:1). Jerusalem would be instrumental in God's judgment on the nearby nations.

12:3 Jerusalem will be an immovable rock that cuts and gashes those who attempt to conquer and control it, because the city was founded by the Lord, who loves it more than any other city of Israel (Ps 87:1-2). In Zechariah, imagery involving a stone is associated with the Temple (3:9; 4:7; 10:4).

12:4 Madness, blindness, and panic were among the curses threatened against Israel for covenant disobedience (Deut 28:28). The day of the Lord will witness a reversal as these curses are turned against Israel's enemies (see 2 Kgs 7:6-7). • watch over (literally open my eyes): The open eyes of God represent divine provision for those in desperate need (see Gen 16:13-14; 21:19-21).

12:5 the LORD of Heaven's Armies: This title emphasizes God's irrepressible power (see the note on 1:3). The frequent repetition of this title in Zechariah's second oracle (chs 12–14) assured his audience that the divine promises concerning Judah's victory would certainly be fulfilled (12:7).

12:6 flame (literally fire pan): Bronze or gold fire pans were used to carry hot coals to and from the sacrificial altars of the Tabernacle and the Temple (Exod 27:3; 1 Kgs 7:50). God would set Israel among the nations like a burning firepan to destroy or purify them.

people of Jerusalem and the royal line of David will not have greater honor than the rest of Judah. ⁸On that day the LORD will defend the people of Jerusalem; the weakest among them will be as mighty as King David! And the royal descendants will be like God, like the ⁹angel of the LORD who goes before them! ⁹For on that day I will begin to destroy all the nations that come against Jerusalem.

¹⁰Then I will pour out a spirit of grace and prayer on the family of David and on the people of Jerusalem. They will look on me whom they have pierced and mourn for him as for an only son. They will grieve bitterly for him as for a firstborn son who has died. ¹¹The sorrow and mourning in Jerusalem on that day will be like the great mourning for Hadad-rimmon in the valley of Megiddo.

¹²All Israel will mourn, each clan by itself, and with the husbands separate from their wives. The clan of David will mourn alone, as will the clan of Nathan, ¹³the clan of Levi, and the clan of Shimei. ¹⁴Each of the surviving clans from Judah will mourn separately, and with the husbands separate from their wives.

A Fountain of Cleansing

13 "On that day a fountain will be opened for the dynasty of David and for the people of Jerusalem, a fountain to cleanse them from all their sins and impurity.

²"And on that day," says the LORD of Heaven's Armies, "I will erase idol worship throughout the land, so that even the names of the idols will be forgotten. I will remove from the land both the false prophets and the spirit of impurity that came with them.

³If anyone continues to prophesy, his own father and mother will tell him, 'You must die, for you have prophesied lies in the name of the LORD.' And as he prophesies, his own father and mother will stab him.

⁴"On that day people will be ashamed to claim the prophetic gift. No one will pretend to be a prophet by wearing prophet's

12:8 The angel of the LORD is God, represented as a Divine Warrior, rescuer, and protector (see 1:11; 3:1; Exod 14:19; 15:3; Isa 59:15b-20; 63:1-6). By divine enabling, the weak will be imbued with God's power.

12:10 pour out: This word describes the outpouring of God's spirit of prophecy upon Israel and all people on the day of the Lord (cp. Joel 2:28-29; Ezek 39:28-29) and God's judgment upon the wicked (Lam 2:4; Hos 5:10; Zeph 3:8). • a spirit (Or the Spirit) of grace: God's unmerited and unsought favor persuades God's people to seek him in contrite and repentant prayer (see Ps 86:15-16). • me whom they have pierced: The NT understands the piercing of God as a reference to the piercing of the Messiah, Jesus of Nazareth (John 19:34-37; Rev 1:7).

12:11 The name Hadad-rimmon combines the names of two Syrian deities, the storm-god Hadad and the thunder-god Rimmon. The great mourning for these gods may be similar to the weeping for Tammuz, one of the rituals practiced in the Mesopotamian fertility cults. • Joshua captured Megiddo (Josh 12:21), a major city on the southwest edge of the Jezreel Valley; it was allotted to the tribe of Manasseh (Josh 17:11). Megiddo controlled a key pass on the great highway from Egypt to Mesopotamia, and so was of great strategic importance. It was a district capital during Solomon's reign (1 Kgs 4:12). King Josiah was mortally wounded in a battle against Pharaoh Neco and the Egyptians on the plain of Megiddo (2 Chr 35:22-23), and the mountain of Megiddo is the site of the great battle depicted in Rev 16:16.

12:12-14 The clan of David . . . Nathan . . . Levi, and . . . Shimei: Zechariah might be referring to the royal families (David and his son Nathan; see 1 Chr 14:4) and the priestly families (Levi and his grandson Shimei; see Num 3:16-18; 1 Chr 6:16-17). Alternatively, the four families might represent the four principal classes of leadership in OT times: the king (David, 1 Sam 16:1-13; the prophet (Nathan, 2 Sam 7:2), the priest (Levi, Deut 33:8-11), and the tribal leader (Shimei, 1 Kgs 1:8; 4:18). The first interpretation correlates with Zechariah's emphasis on the Branch that will be both king and priest (see 6:12-13). • each clan by itself: This separation depicts the depth and totality of Israel's mourning.

13:1-6 The second message (13:1-6) of the second oracle (chs 12-14) focuses on cleansing from sin.

13:1 A fountain is a spring of pure, flowing water for cleansing and purification (see 14:8; John 4:14; Rev 22:1-2). • God's cleansing of Israel will include leaders (represented by the dynasty of David) and all the people of Judah and Israel (signified by the people of Jerusalem, the spiritual center of the nation). • to cleanse them: This cleansing, symbolized in the ritual washings of OT worship (see Exod 30:17-21), was provided in the new covenant as promised by Jeremiah (Jer 31:34) and Ezekiel (Ezek 36:25; see Heb 10:1-22). • all their sins and impurity: The Hebrews would experience a complete moral and spiritual cleansing because of their sorrow over their sin (Zech 12:10-14).

13:2 By cleansing Israel, God would erase their former penchant for idol worship, giving them a new heart and enabling them to worship God alone (Jer 31:33; 32:38-40; Ezek 36:25-28). • In the biblical world, one's name embodied one's existence. When the names of the idols are forgotten, they cease to exist. • The false prophets misrepresented God by fabricating divine revelations or by speaking in the name of other gods (Deut 13:5-11; 18:17-22). They led Israel astray by encouraging idol worship (Jer 23:13, 25) and would continue to do so (see Neh 6:12-14; Mark 13:22; 2 Pet 2:1; 1 John 4:1-3) until that day, the day of the Lord.

13:3 You must die: According to God's law, a false prophet must be executed (Deut 13:5, 10; 18:20). The Israelites had tolerated false prophets and killed the Lord's true prophets. In the future, the situation would be reversed.

13:4-6 God's total cleansing of his people from their impurities will strike such fear among the people that false prophets will deny or conceal their identity, even lying about the nature and purpose of their activities that might be associated with the prophets of idolatrous cults.

13:4 ashamed to claim the prophetic gift (literally ashamed of his vision): The OT prophet was sometimes identified as a visionary "seer" (see 1 Sam 9:9-19; 2 Kgs 17:13), since divine revelation often came to them in dreams or night clothes. ⁵He will say, 'I'm no prophet; I'm a farmer. I began working for a farmer as a boy.' ⁶And if someone asks, 'Then what about those wounds on your chest?' he will say, 'I was wounded at my friends' house!'

The Scattering of the Sheep

⁷"Awake, O sword, against my 'shepherd, the man who is my partner," says the LORD of Heaven's Armies.

"Strike down the 'shepherd, and the sheep will be scattered, and I will turn against the lambs.

⁸Two-thirds of the people in the land will be cut off and die," says the LORD.

"But one-third will be left in the land.

⁹I will bring that group through the fire and make them pure.

I will refine them like silver and purify them like gold.

They will call on my name, and I will answer them.

I will say, 'These are my people,' and they will say, 'The LORD is our God.'"

The Lord Will Rule the Earth

14 Watch, for the day of the LORD is coming when your possessions will be plundered right in front of you! ²I will gather all the nations to fight against Jerusalem. The city will be taken, the houses looted, and the women raped. Half the population will be taken into captivity, and the rest will be left among the ruins of the city.

³Then the LORD will go out to fight against those nations, as he has fought in times past. ⁴On that day his feet will stand on the Mount of Olives, east of Jerusalem. And the Mount of Olives will split apart, making a wide valley running from east to west. Half the mountain will move toward the north and half toward the south. ⁵You will flee through this valley, for it will reach across to Azal. Yes, you will flee as you did from the earthquake in the days of King Uzziah of Judah. Then the LORD my God will come, and all his holy ones with him.

⁶On that day the sources of light will no longer shine, ⁷yet there will be continuous visions (e.g., Zech 1:7-6:15). • prophet's clothes: A coarse cloak of camel or goat hair distinctively garbed the OT Hebrew prophets (see 2 Kgs 1:8; Matt 3:4).

13:5 I'm a farmer: This might be a parody of Amos 7:14.

13:6 wounds on your chest? (literally wounds between your hands?): These wounds might be cuts or bruises that ecstatic prophets, especially in Canaanite religious circles, sometimes gave themselves (see 1 Kgs 18:28). False prophets would make excuses for themselves, such as, I was wounded at my friends' house!

13:7-9 This message describes a coming day when God's appointed shepherd of Israel would be struck down, and the sheep (the people of Israel) would be scattered. A portion of the nation would be given over to divine judgment, while part of the nation would experience spiritual renewal, fulfilling Zechariah's vision of God once again among his people (see 1:16; 2:5, 10-11; 8:3, 23). The Gospel writers connect portions of this passage (13:7) to the scattering of Jesus' disciples as a result of the events surrounding his arrest, trial, and execution by the Romans (see Matt 26:31, 56).

13:7 The sword is personified as a warrior being called to awake in battle, heightening its image as God's servant, an instrument of death (see Isa 31:8; 34:6; 66:16). • My shepherd signifies the Messiah, the coming leader of Israel (see Ezek 34:23; 37:24). • My partner conveys the equality of the shepherd with God (see Matt 26:31; Mark 14:27).

13:8 Two-thirds . . . one-third: The divine judgment would be catastrophic, but God would preserve a remnant and forgive their sin (see Isa 65:9; Jer 50:20; Ezek 5:2-12; Rev 9:15-18).

13:9 Fire is a metaphor for God's judgment (see Isa 66:15; Jer 4:4; Ezek 36:5; Amos 5:6). God's fire may either destroy the wicked or, as here, test and purify the righteous. • refine them . . . like gold: God is the divine metallurgist, using fire to burn the dross out of metal (Isa 1:25; Mal 3:2-3). • These are my people . . . The LORD is our God: The declarations of loyalty by God and Israel restore their broken covenant relationship (11:10, 14; see Exod 19:5; Jer 30:22; 31:33; Hos 2:23).

14:1-21 Zechariah closes with visions of judgment, salvation, and God's universal kingdom. In the future, Israel would be besieged, teetering on the verge of total destruction, when the Lord himself would intervene and rescue his people (14:3-4) and punish their enemies with a terrible plague (14:12). Israel would be restored as God's people, and Jerusalem would be exalted as the center of civilization (14:16-17). God's rule would be established over all the earth (14:9), and the created order would be transformed (14:6-10). Fittingly, God's holiness would be the pervasive characteristic of his rule over all the earth (14:20-21).

14:1 The day of the Lord will bring judgment and deliverance and will reverse the fortunes of many (see Amos 5:18; cp. Matt 19:28-30; Luke 13:23-30).

14:2 The rest is the remnant of Israel that survived the sack of Jerusalem (see 13:8).

14:3 fought in times past: An example would be the exodus from Egypt (Exod 14-15; see Isa 42:13).

14:4 Jesus ascended into heaven from the Mount of Olives, and the angels' message to Jesus' disciples (Acts 1:11-12) implied that he would return in a similar fashion. • Zechariah envisions an earthquake that will split apart the Mount of Olives and create a valley running east and west through the fissure. This valley will become an escape route for Hebrews fleeing Jerusalem during the assault by the nations (14:5). This event is probably connected to the return of Jesus at the end of the age (see Matt 24; Rev 6:12; 11:13; 16:18).

14:5 Azal: The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. Some identify Azal (Hebrew atsal) as a district on the northeast side of Jerusalem inhabited by descendants of Azel (1 Chr 8:37-39; 9:43-44; see "Beth-ezel," Mic 1:11). Others emend the Hebrew to 'etsel, "alongside or the side [of it]." • The date of the earthquake in the days of King Uzziah is unknown, but Amos began his ministry two years before it (Amos 1:1). • The holy ones are probably the multitude of angels that worship God and serve as his army (see Ps 89:5, 7). • with him: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads with you.

14:6 the sources of light will no longer shine: Literally the precious ones shall diminish; or the precious ones and frost. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

14:7 continuous day: The day of the Lord will bring fundamental changes to the created order (see Isa 60:19-22; Rev 21:22-25). This promise emphasizes that day! Only the LORD knows how this could happen. There will be no normal day and night, for at evening time it will still be light.

⁸On that day life-giving waters will flow out from Jerusalem, half toward the Dead Sea and half toward the Mediterranean, flowing continuously in both summer and winter.

⁹And the LORD will be king over all the earth. On that day there will be one LORD—his name alone will be worshiped.

¹⁰All the land from Geba, north of Judah, to Rimmon, south of Jerusalem, will become one vast plain. But Jerusalem will be raised up in its original place and will be inhabited all the way from the Benjamin Gate over to the site of the old gate, then to the Corner Gate, and from the Tower of Hananel to the king's winepresses. ¹¹And Jerusalem will be filled, safe at last, never again to be cursed and destroyed.

¹²And the LORD will send a plague on all the nations that fought against Jerusalem. Their people will become like walking corpses, their flesh rotting away. Their eyes will rot in their sockets, and their tongues will rot in their mouths. ¹³On that day they will be terrified, stricken by the LORD with great panic. They will fight their neighbors hand to hand. ¹⁴Judah, too, will be fighting at Jerusalem. The wealth of all the neighboring nations will be captured—great quantities of gold and silver and fine clothing. ¹⁵This same plague will strike the horses, mules, camels, donkeys, and all the other animals in the enemy camps.

¹⁶In the end, the enemies of Jerusalem who survive the plague will go up to Jerusalem each year to worship the King, the LORD of Heaven's Armies, and to celebrate the Festival of Shelters. ¹⁷Any nation in the world that refuses to come to Jerusalem to worship the King, the LORD of Heaven's Armies, will have no rain. ¹⁸If the people of Egypt refuse to attend the festival, the LORD will punish them with the same plague that he sends on the other nations who refuse to go. ¹⁹Egypt and the other nations will all be punished if they don't go to celebrate the Festival of Shelters.

²⁰On that day even the harness bells of the horses will be inscribed with these words: HOLY TO THE LORD. And the cooking pots in the Temple of the LORD will be as sacred as the basins used beside the altar. ²¹In fact, every cooking pot in Jerusalem and Judah will be holy to the LORD of Heaven's Armies. All who come to worship will be free to use any of these pots to boil their sacrifices. And on that day there will no longer be traders in the Temple of the LORD of Heaven's Armies.

the sun and moon are created by God and are not eternal deities—light does not originate with them.

14:8 The life-giving waters . . . from Jerusalem symbolize God's life-giving presence among his people (see Ezek 47:1-12; Joel 3:18; John 7:37-39; Rev 22:1-2). • half toward the Dead Sea and half toward the Mediterranean (literally half toward the eastern sea and half toward the western sea): Divine blessings will extend both east and west, flowing continuously: They will never stop bringing healing (see Isa 30:23-26).

14:9 the LORD will be king: Zechariah envisions the ultimate fulfillment of many Psalms (see Pss 47-48, 93, 97-99). • there will be one LORD: This promise reaffirms Israel's creed (Deut 6:4), and signals a final end of all idolatry.

14:10 The towns Geba and Rimmon represent the north-south extent of the district including Jerusalem.

14:12 As divine Judge, God strikes those who rebel against him with a sudden and deadly plague (see Exod 9:14; Num 14:36-37; 2 Sam 24:10-25; Jer 14:11-12).

14:13 The day of the Lord will bring terror to God's enemies (12:4; see Isa 22:5).

14:14 The day of the Lord is characterized by reversal: The capture of the wealth of the nations overturns the looting of Jerusalem announced earlier (14:1). • great quantities of gold and silver: The Lord's Temple will receive "the treasures of all the nations" (Hag 2:7-8).

14:16 Enemies . . . will . . . worship the King: Another reversal will occur on the day of the Lord (cp. Phil 2:8-11). • The annual Festival of Shelters marked the beginning of the fall harvest season and commemorated Israel's wilderness experience after the exodus from Egypt (see Exod 23:14-19; Lev 23:33-43; Num 29:12-40; Deut 16:13-17). The festival gave the worshiping community an opportunity to thank God for his provision. It encouraged social concern for the disadvantaged and reliance on God as pilgrims in this world. Thanksgiving will characterize worship in the messianic era (see Isa 51:3; Jer 33:11).

14:17 come to Jerusalem to worship: Jerusalem, with God's Temple, is envisioned as the center of God's universal kingdom (8:20-22; see Isa 56:6-7; 66:19-23; Mic 4:1; Hag 2:7; Rev 21:1-2, 10-27). • no rain: This was one of the curses God pronounced against Israel for covenant disobedience (see Deut 28:22-24). That curse extended to all the nations, as God's rule extends over all peoples (cp. 10:1).

14:18 will punish: As in some Hebrew manuscripts and Greek and Syriac versions; Masoretic Text reads will not punish.

14:20 HOLY TO THE LORD: See note on 3:5. The priesthood was set apart for the Lord, as was the nation of Israel (Exod 19:6; Lev 11:44-45). That identity will be fulfilled in the messianic kingdom (Rom 11:16-17; Eph 1:4; 5:27; 1 Pet 1:15-16). The inscription on the harness bells and the cooking pots shows how pervasive holiness will be in that day.

14:21 every cooking pot: The holiness of God's kingdom will transform even mundane utensils into sacred vessels like those used in the sacrificial ritual of the Temple, eliminating all OT distinctions between the sacred and the profane. • traders (literally Canaanites): Commercial activity was associated with the Canaanites (see Hos 12:7; Zeph 1:11). The expression might be a euphemism for idolaters or another way of saying that under God's rule, traditional ethnic boundaries will be dissolved. The passage may anticipate the work of Jesus in cleansing the Jerusalem Temple as a prelude to the greater work of cleansing the heart of those who believe in him by the Holy Spirit (see John 2:13-16; 1 Cor 6:11; Titus 3:5).

THE BOOK OF Malachi

Malachi had a multifaceted ministry. As a sensitive pastor, Malachi offered God's love to a disheartened people. As a wise theologian, he instructed the people of Judah in basic doctrine that emphasized God's nature. As a stern prophet, Malachi rebuked corrupt priests and warned of God's judgment. As a spiritual mentor, he called his people to more sincere worship and challenged them to live by the ethical standards of God's covenant. Malachi conveys God's simple but vital word to Israel: "I have always loved you" (1:2).

SETTING

Malachi wrote to Jews in the Persian province of Judea, probably during the reign of King Darius I of Persia (521–486 BC). Jewish exiles returning from Babylon had recently resettled in Judah, joining others who had not been deported.

At the time when Malachi preached, the Temple had been rebuilt, but it paled in comparison to Solomon's Temple. The priests and the Levites were the power-brokers of Judah, yet Temple worship was in a sorry state. The apathetic priests actually led people into sin, not out of it. Worshipers offered inferior animals as sacrifices and neglected God's requirements for tithes and offerings. The hopes raised by Haggai and Zechariah for a revival of David's dynasty through Zerubbabel seemed to have disappeared.

Malachi confronted a people given to religious cynicism, political skepticism, and spiritual disillusionment. They expected prosperity (Hag 2:7, 18–19), a king from David's line (Ezek 34:13, 23–24), and the new covenant promised through Jeremiah (Jer 31:23, 31–34), but they saw none of these things. In the minds of many, God had failed his people.

SUMMARY

Malachi is a brief theology of God intended to correct the wrong thinking of the people of Judah about their covenant relationship with the Lord. Malachi introduces his thesis—that God loves Israel (1:2)—in his first message (1:2–5). The prophet then debates this thesis with his audience in the five messages that follow. The second message (1:6–2:9), aimed specifically at the priests and Levites serving in the second Temple, affirms that God is the Lord and Father of all Israel and deserves true worship. The third message (2:10-16) extends the implications of God's love to human relationships, especially marriage. The fourth message (2:17-3:5) highlights God's justice, appeals for honesty in speech and in business, and seeks genuine social concern. The fifth message (3:6-12) emphasizes God's faithfulness to his word and calls Israel to a similar faithfulness in worship, especially in the giving of tithes and offerings. The final message (3:13-4:3) reiterates God's desire for Israel to be honest and faithful in worship, in view of the coming day of the Lord.

When God's people in Judea became discouraged and unfaithful in the decades following their return from exile, Malachi spoke words of encouragement and correction.

Malachi's pastoral heart is evident in his preaching: he begins and ends with a message of encouragement (1:2; 4:2).

AUTHOR

The book of Malachi is silent about its authorship, but it is assumed that the prophet Malachi wrote down his own sermons because of the statement in 1:1 ("the message that the LORD gave . . . through the prophet Malachi"). Malachi spoke for God; his title of prophet verifies his commission as a divine messenger.

DATE

Unlike the books of other prophets, Malachi contains no date formula that links the prophet's message to the reign of any particular king (e.g., Zeph 1:1; Hag 1:1; Zech 1:1). Nonetheless, the book may be dated between the completion of the second Temple (515 BC) and the reforms of Ezra the scribe (457 BC; see Ezra 7:8). Malachi's language is similar to that of Haggai and Zechariah, and it seems likely that Malachi was a slightly later contemporary of these two prophets. It is possible (though not certain) that the battle between the Persians and the Greeks at Marathon (about 490 BC) prompted Malachi's message (see Herodotus, The Persian Wars 6.102-117). The prophet may have interpreted the titanic struggle between East and West as a partial fulfillment of Haggai's prediction that God was about "to shake the heavens and the earth" and "overthrow royal thrones" (Hag 2:21-22).

LITERARY GENRE

As with Haggai and Zechariah, Malachi's messages are authoritative proclamations inspired by God. The literary form of Malachi's prophecies is similar to legal procedures (or trial speeches) and disputations. A disputation pits the speaker against his audience in combative dialogue. In Malachi, the disputation typically features (1) a declared truth claim by the prophet, (2) a rebuttal by the audience phrased as a question, (3) the prophet's answer to the audience's rebuttal by restatement of his initial premise, and (4) the presentation of additional supporting evidence. The desired outcome in a covenant lawsuit and in disputation is to leave the opponent speechless by removing all grounds for argument. This rhetorical question-and-argument format gave rise to the dialogue method of exposition peculiar to the later rabbinic schools of Judaism (see, for example, the teaching method of Jesus in Matt 5:21-22, 27-28: "You have heard. . . . But I say, . . .").

MEANING AND MESSAGE

Malachi seeks to motivate people to conform to God's plan. Malachi's preaching has an overarching concern with the covenant that established a relationship between God and Israel, with its attendant obligations and responsibilities.

Three of Malachi's messages deal with right relationships. The prophet's premise is that right knowledge is essential to maintaining right relationships. He addresses right relationships in marriage by decrying divorce and encouraging marital loyalty. He also addresses right relationships in the community at large by focusing on honesty and integrity in the light of God's character.

Malachi calls God's people back to a right understanding of God as Israel's Father, Master, and covenant God. Malachi urges a return to right worship through participation in the Temple sacrifices with integrity. Malachi also encourages appropriate giving to God, because God is gracious and generous in his response to those who are faithful.

2. FIRST MESSAGE: THE LORD'S LOVE FOR ISRAEL (1:2-5)

²"I have always loved you," says the LORD.

But you retort, "Really? How have you loved us?"

And the LORD replies, "This is how I showed my love for you: I loved your ancestor Jacob, ³but I rejected his brother, Esau, and devastated his hill country. I turned Esau's inheritance into a desert for jackals."

⁴Esau's descendants in Edom may say, "We have been shattered, but we will rebuild the ruins."

But the LORD of Heaven's Armies replies, "They may try to rebuild, but I will demolish them again. Their country will be known as 'The Land of Wickedness,' and their people

Ps 35:27; 48:1

1:1 This is the message (literally An Oracle: The message) that the LORD gave to Israel: This superscription classifies the book of Malachi as an authoritative message from God and identifies the author and audience, though not the date or occasion. The word oracle impregnates Malachi's message with authority and urgency. His audience was expected to pay attention and respond. • Malachi means "my messenger."

1:2-5 Malachi's sermons are literary disputations—a format that calls to mind the setting of a courtroom and establishes the tone of a trial for the prophet's message. This first disputation presents the truth that God loves Israel (1:2). The prophet then debates this thesis with his audience in the five messages that follow.

1:2 loved: In portraying a relationship between the Lord and Israel, love has covenant implications. The term may be equated with God's choice, or election, of Israel as his people. Malachi's message indicates that the other dimensions of God's unconditional covenant love for Israel (such as his patient mercy; see 3:6, 17) are also still operative. See also Rom 9:13.

1:3 rejected (literally hated, the antonym of loved in 1:2): Love and hate form a polar word pair in OT legal and prophetic texts (see Deut 7:9-10; Amos 5:15), often used to describe the alienation of a broken covenant relationship. Here, God says that he rejected Esau (and his descendants, the Edomites). Esau had despised and rejected covenant relationship with the Lord (see Gen 25:34; 26:34-35). • Esau was the ancestor of the Edomite nation, and his inheritance, the territory of Edom, was located on the southeastern rim of the Dead Sea. The mention of Jacob and Esau calls to mind the twin brothers' rivalry (Gen 25:23-26).

1:4 the LORD of Heaven's Armies (Hebrew Yahweh tseba'oth): This name for God is prominent in OT prophetic literature. Heaven's Armies are the angelic armies at God's command; the phrase emphasizes the invincible power of God. • The Land of Wickedness: Esau was selfish and contemptuous of the tokens of the Lord's covenant (see Gen 25:34). The nation of Edom came to personify the pride of self-centered

3. SECOND MESSAGE: INDICTMENT OF A CORRUPT PRIESTHOOD (1:6-2:9)

Unworthy Sacrifices

⁶The LORD of Heaven's Armies says to the priests: "A son honors his father, and a servant respects his master. If I am your father and master, where are the honor and respect I deserve? You have shown contempt for my name!

"But you ask, 'How have we ever shown contempt for your name?'

⁷"You have shown contempt by offering defiled sacrifices on my altar.

"Then you ask, 'How have we defiled the sacrifices?'

"You defile them by saying the altar of the LORD deserves no respect. ⁸When you give blind animals as *sacrifices, isn't that wrong? And isn't it wrong to offer animals that are crippled and diseased? Try giving gifts like that to your governor, and see how pleased he is!" says the LORD of Heaven's Armies.

⁹"Go ahead, beg God to be merciful to you! But when you bring that kind of offering, why should he show you any favor at all?" asks the LORD of Heaven's Armies.

¹⁰"How I wish one of you would shut the Temple doors so that these worthless sacrifices could not be offered! I am not pleased with you," says the LORD of Heaven's Armies, "and I will not accept your offerings. ¹¹But my name is honored by people of other nations from morning till night. All around the world they offer sweet incense and pure offerings in honor of my name. For my name is great among the nations," says the LORD of Heaven's Armies.

¹²"But you dishonor my name with your actions. By bringing contemptible food, you are saying it's all right to defile the Lord's table. ¹³You say, 'It's too hard to serve the LORD,' and you turn up your noses at my commands," says the LORD of Heaven's Armies. "Think of it! Animals that are stolen and crippled and sick are being presented as offerings! Should I accept from you such offerings as these?" asks the LORD.

Malachi's message, like those of many of his fellow prophets, was a variation on an old theme—God's covenant love for Israel (1:2). Malachi's call to examine the events of history for evidence of God's love and power connects his book to the larger story of salvation in the Bible. The psalmist, for instance, boldly proclaims the glorious deeds of the Lord to the next generation, so that each generation might "set its hope anew on God, . . . obeying his commands" (Ps 78:2-4, 7). The touchstone for God's activity in OT history was the exodus from Egypt, the redemptive event of the Old Testament (see Ps 78:12-13; 105:26-27, 37; 106:7-8). Israel commemorated that event annually in the Festival of Passover and included a catechism for instructing the next generation in the mighty deeds of God (Exod 12-13).

The touchstone for God's activity in all of history is the event of Christ—the birth, life, death, burial, and resurrection of Jesus the Messiah. These events in history form the Good News (1 Cor 15:1-4). Like the first covenant, it is commemorated with a feast—the Lord's Supper (1 Cor 11:20-34)—and the observance of this meal includes proclaiming that "Christ, our Passover Lamb, has been sacrificed for us" (see 1 Cor 5:7; 11:26).

existence (see Jer 49:16). The Edomites were also allies of Babylon in the destruction of Jerusalem (see Ps 137:7-9; Obad 1:10, 12).

1:6-2:9 Malachi's second message affirms the Lord's role as God and Father of Israel; he alone deserves true worship. The first part (1:6-14) shows how the Israelites had dishonored God in spite of his fatherly care and masterly power. The second part (2:1-9) warns the priests of Judah against sacrificing sick and defective animals and faults them for not teaching God's instructions (2:6-8).

1:6 shown contempt for my name:

God's name is his reputation or character (cp. Ezek 36:19-24). The Judeans were showing how little they thought of God by giving him worthless offerings.

1:7 defiled the sacrifices? As in Greek version; Hebrew reads defiled you? Ritual uncleanness or contamination disqualified an object or person from being in the ceremonies of worship to the Lord. The defilement in this case resulted from ignoring the laws concerning acceptable animal sacrifices (Lev 22:17-25; Deut 15:21).

1:8 The governor was Persia's appointed overseer of the province of Judah. The juxtaposition of my altar (1:7) and your governor (1:8) reveals a confusion of loyalties among the Levitical priests.

* says the LORD of Heaven's Armies: This phrase is known as the messenger formula in prophetic speech and signifies that God's authority stands behind the prophet's message.

1:11 *is honored: Or will be honored. * offer: Or will offer.*

1:12 Dishonor was an ongoing state of affairs. Ironically, the guardians of Israel's covenant relationship with the Lord were habitually profaning his Temple with impure sacrifices.

¹⁴"Cursed is the cheat who promises to give a fine ram from his flock but then ^bsacrifices a defective one to the Lord. For I am a great king," says the LORD of Heaven's Armies, "and my name is feared among the nations!"

A Warning to the Priests

2"Listen, you priests—this command is for you! ²Listen to me and make up your minds to ^chonor my name," says the LORD of Heaven's Armies, "or I will bring a terrible curse against you. I will curse even the blessings you receive. Indeed, I have already cursed them, because you have not taken my warning to heart. ³I will punish your descendants and splatter your faces with the manure from your festival sacrifices, and I will throw you on the manure pile. ⁴Then at last you will know it was I who sent you this warning so that my ^dcovenant with the Levites can continue," says the LORD of Heaven's Armies.

⁵"The purpose of my covenant with the Levites was to bring life and peace, and that is what I gave them. This required reverence from them, and they greatly revered me and stood in awe of my name. ⁶They passed on to the people the truth of the instructions they received from me. They did not lie or cheat; they walked with me, living good and righteous lives, and they turned many from lives of sin.

⁷"The words of a ^epriest's lips should preserve knowledge of God, and people should go to him for instruction, for the priest is the messenger of the LORD of Heaven's Armies. ⁸But you priests have left God's paths. Your instructions have caused many to stumble into sin. You have corrupted the covenant I made with the Levites," says the LORD of Heaven's Armies. ⁹"So I have made you despised and humiliated in the eyes of all the people. For you have not obeyed me but have shown favoritism in the way you carry out my instructions."

4. THIRD MESSAGE: A CALL TO FAITHFULNESS (2:10-16)

¹⁰Are we not all children of the same Father? Are we not all ^fcreated by the same God? Then why do we betray each other, violating the covenant of our ancestors?

¹¹Judah has been unfaithful, and a detestable thing has been done in Israel and in Jerusalem. The men of Judah have defiled the LORD's beloved sanctuary by marrying women who worship idols. ¹²May the LORD cut off from the nation of Israel every last man who has done this and yet brings an offering to the LORD of Heaven's Armies.

1:14 Cursed: To "bind with a curse" was to deliver an individual over to misfortune as punishment for a serious crime against the community (see Deut 27:15-26; Jer 48:10). Malachi spoke for the Lord, so the curse was a pronouncement of doom.

2:2 make up your minds: This was an issue of the will, not the emotions. • terrible curse: Malachi had in mind the utter destruction of those who violated God's covenant (see Deut 28:20).

2:4 my covenant with the Levites: If the Levites would give themselves to serving God and forsake their own glory, God would give them life and peace (2:5; cp. Num 8:5-26; 25:12-13). Their special responsibility was to teach God's instructions (2:7).

2:7 The priests had been entrusted with the sacred knowledge of God as revealed in the law of Moses. Through their role as teachers, they were guardians of God's covenant with Israel (Deut 33:9-10). • messenger (Hebrew mal'ak): This may be a wordplay on the name Malachi (mal'aki). Usually this title was reserved for Hebrew prophets in the OT, but Malachi ascribes prophetic duties to the priest, since the priests were to interpret God's word.

2:9 shown favoritism (literally lifted up the face): The expression is also found in 1:8 ("see how pleased he is"). The priests should have administered the law with kindness and fairness, but they had not done so. It was ridiculous for the priests to suppose that God would show them favor when they had shown partiality in discharging the prescribed duties of their office.

2:10-16 Malachi's third message shows that the failure to keep the covenant extended from the priests to the people as a whole. They did not keep covenant with the Lord or with their fellow countrymen when they married foreign women, and they broke their covenants with their wives when they divorced them. The prophet now speaks to his audience as to fellow citizens, with a striking change in style from adversarial indictment (2:8-9) to inclusive plea (2:10).

2:10 children of the same Father . . . created by the same God (or by one God): These divine titles underscore the Lord's uniqueness as Creator and his exclusive role as Israel's Father. One God echoes the Shema, Israel's creed of monotheism (Deut 6:4-5). • betray: The central thesis of this third message is that divorce is a betrayal. • covenant of our ancestors: The prophet alludes to the covenant formed at Mount Sinai, reminding the people that the law of Moses stipulated responsibility both to God and to one another.

2:11 Judah has been unfaithful (or treacherous), and a detestable thing has been done in Israel and in Jerusalem: Men were divorcing their wives for the economic advantage of intermarriage with non-Israelite women who worshiped idols. Through these marriages, Jewish men gained access to the merchant guilds and trading cartels already in place when the Israelites returned from Babylonia. Malachi equates this adultery with idolatry. Israelite history had shown that intermarriage with foreign women went hand in hand with worship of foreign gods. Loyalty was to be the hallmark of Israel's covenant relationships, whether with God or with a marriage partner. Divorce treats with contempt the oneness of the marriage covenant (2:15; see Gen 2:24).

2:12 cut off: The intent was to blot out or destroy evildoers, in contrast to social banishment or religious excommunication. • from the nation of Israel: Literally from the tents of Jacob. The names "Jacob" and "Israel" are often interchanged throughout the OT, referring sometimes to the individual patriarch and sometimes to the nation.

You cover the LORD's altar with tears, weeping and groaning because he pays no attention to your offerings and doesn't accept them with pleasure. ¹⁴You cry out, "Why doesn't the LORD accept my worship?" I'll tell you why! Because the LORD witnessed the vows you and your wife made when you were young. But you have been unfaithful to her, though she remained your faithful partner, the wife of your marriage vows.

¹⁵Didn't the LORD make you one with your wife? In body and spirit you are his. And what does he want? Godly children from your union. So guard your heart; remain loyal to the wife of your youth. ¹⁶"For I hate divorce!" says the LORD, the God of Israel. "To divorce your wife is to overwhelm her with cruelty," says the LORD of Heaven's Armies. "So guard your heart; do not be unfaithful to your wife."

5. FOURTH MESSAGE: THE COMING DAY OF JUDGMENT (2:17-3:5)

¹⁷You have wearied the LORD with your words.

"How have we wearied him?" you ask.

You have wearied him by saying that all who do evil are good in the LORD's sight, and he is pleased with them. You have wearied him by asking, "Where is the God of justice?"

3"Look! I am sending my messenger, and he will prepare the way before me. Then the LORD you are seeking will suddenly come to his Temple. The messenger of the covenant, whom you look for so eagerly, is surely coming," says the LORD of Heaven's Armies.

²"But who will be able to endure it when he comes? Who will be able to stand and face him when he appears? For he will be like a blazing fire that refines metal, or like a strong soap that bleaches clothes. ³He will sit like a refiner of silver, burning away the dross. He will purify the Levites, refining them like gold and silver, so that they may once again offer acceptable sacrifices to the LORD. ⁴Then once more the LORD will accept the offerings brought to him by the people of Judah and Jerusalem, as he did in the past.

⁵"At that time I will put you on trial. I am eager to witness against all sorcerers and adulterers and liars. I will speak against those who cheat employees of their wages, who oppress widows and orphans, or who deprive the foreigners living among you of justice, for these people do not fear me," says the LORD of Heaven's Armies.

6. FIFTH MESSAGE: A CALL TO REPENTANCE (3:6-12)

⁶"I am the LORD, and I do not change. That is why you descendants of Jacob are not

2:14 The expression faithful partner identifies a marriage companion (Greek OT koinōnos, "joint partner"). The Hebrew word, used for a seam or a joint in construction (e.g., Exod 26:6-11), suggests a permanent bond. • marriage vows (literally covenant): Marriage is a solemn covenant to which God is witness (see Prov 2:17).

2:15 Didn't the LORD make you one with your wife? In body and spirit you are his: Or Didn't the one LORD make us and preserve our life and breath? or Didn't the one LORD make her, both flesh and spirit? The Hebrew can be interpreted in various ways.

2:16 hate: God hates a broken covenant (see 1:3; Hos 9:15). This is appropriate because God's relationship with people is characterized by faithfulness, and he expected no less from Israel (Exod 34:6; Deut 7:9). • To divorce (literally send away) means to expel a marriage partner. Malachi wanted to correct the abuse of the divorce laws (see Deut 24:1-4). • to overwhelm her with cruelty: Literally to cover one's garment with violence. Cruelty entails acts of violence or wrongdoing. The estrangement of divorce is a violent and cruel social crime. To divorce one's wife is treachery against her and against the marriage covenant. It breaks the heart, destroys relationships, violates the integrity of the family, damages the children's well-being, and puts the future in jeopardy.

2:17-3:5 Malachi's fourth message concerns the disparity between God's justice and human justice (2:17). If the book of Malachi were a courtroom drama, the fourth message would be the formal indictment against Judah. Malachi indicts dutiful but heartless religiosity (see 3:14) that acts contrary to God's justice; he appeals for honesty and genuine social concern.

2:17 Malachi's audience had wearied God by questioning his justice.

3:1 my messenger (Hebrew mal'aki): This is a wordplay on Malachi's name. The messenger may be either an angel or a human being functioning as a divine courier. Jesus identified John the Baptist by pointing to this passage (see Matt 11:10; Mark 1:2; Luke 7:27). • Malachi's audience would probably have understood the messenger of the covenant to be a divine being (cp. Exod 23:20-23). The Christian church has understood Jesus Christ to be the messenger of the new covenant.

3:2 blazing fire: The dross of the people's wickedness must be burned away by the fires of divine testing and chastisement (Isa 1:25; Jer 6:29; Ezek 22:22). • strong soap: An alkaline detergent was made from plants (see Jer 2:22). The blazing fire and strong soap signify the testing (by smelting) and cleansing (by laundering) that would restore Israel's faithfulness to its covenant with the Lord.

3:5 The words eager to witness suggest a legal proceeding in which God is both prosecuting attorney (accuser) and key witness (provider of evidence) against postexilic Judah. • Sorcerers practiced witchcraft, black magic, or fortune-telling for personal gain. The coming day of God's judgment would either purify the sinful Judeans (3:3) or destroy them (4:1-2).

3:6-12 Malachi's fifth message echoes the first (1:2-5) by emphasizing God's faithfulness to his promises. He calls Israel to a similar faithfulness in worship, especially in giving their tithes and offerings. If Malachi is a courtroom drama, the fifth message is the judge's verdict. The real message is repentance—God wants honest and sincere worship from his people, of which tithing is a symbol.

already destroyed. ⁷Ever since the days of your ancestors, you have scorned my decrees and failed to obey them. Now return to me, and I will return to you," says the LORD of Heaven's Armies.

"But you ask, 'How can we return when we have never gone away?'"

⁸"Should people cheat God? Yet you have cheated me!"

"But you ask, 'What do you mean? When did we ever cheat you?'"

"You have cheated me of the ⁹tithes and offerings due to me. ⁹You are under a curse, for your whole nation has been cheating me. ¹⁰Bring all the ¹⁰tithes into the storehouse so there will be enough food in my Temple. If you do," says the LORD of Heaven's Armies, "I will open the windows of heaven for you. I will pour out a ¹¹blessing so great you won't have enough room to take it in! Try it! Put me to the test! ¹¹Your crops will be abundant, for I will guard them from insects and disease. Your grapes will not fall from the vine before they are ripe," says the LORD of Heaven's Armies. ¹²"Then all nations will call you blessed, for your land will be such a delight," says the LORD of Heaven's Armies.

7. SIXTH MESSAGE: THE COMING DAY OF JUDGMENT (3:13–4:3)

The People's Arrogance

¹³"You have said terrible things about me," says the LORD.

"But you say, 'What do you mean? What have we said against you?'"

¹⁴"You have said, 'What's the use of serving God? What have we gained by obeying his commands or by trying to show the LORD of Heaven's Armies that we are sorry for our sins?' ¹⁵From now on we will call the arrogant blessed. For those who do evil get rich, and those who dare God to punish them suffer no harm.'"

The LORD's Promise of Mercy

¹⁶Then those who feared the LORD spoke with each other, and the LORD listened to what they said. In his presence, a scroll of remembrance was written to record the names of those who feared him and always thought about the honor of his name.

¹⁷"They will be my people," says the LORD of Heaven's Armies. "On the day when I act in judgment, they will be my own special treasure. I will spare them as a father spares an obedient child. ¹⁸Then you will again see the difference between the righteous and

3:7 In context of covenant relationship, return expresses a change of loyalty on the part of Israel or God. Typically, the term is understood as repentance, a complete change of direction back to God or a total reorientation toward the Lord. The imperative verb conveys urgency and demands an immediate response from the audience. The indictment of insincere worship builds on similar charges in the second disputation (see 1:6-14), just as God's promise to "open the windows of heaven" (3:10) affirms his power as "a great king" (see 1:14).

3:8-9 Malachi appeals to Judah for a comprehensive renewal of their practice of giving to the Lord. • Tithes, a tenth of the produce of the land, were required offerings (see Deut 12:6, 11, 17). Offerings were additional gifts or contributions made to the Lord or his sanctuary that included produce, material goods (such as construction materials or garments), or personal valuables (such as gold, silver, or precious stones). • Judah's recent experience resulted from God's curse (see Deut 28:20, 27). Malachi thus urgently called the community to repent, turn to the Lord, and do what the covenant required.

3:10 Put me to the test! The divine invitation to test the Lord offers the restoration community an opportunity to prove his faithfulness to his covenant promises.

3:11 from insects and disease: Literally from the devourer.

3:12 all nations will call you blessed: Abundant yields of produce would once again show the world the Lord's favor toward Israel.

3:13–4:3 Malachi's final message contains two distinct but related speeches, the first emphasizing service to the Lord (3:13-18) and the second contrasting the fate of the wicked with that of the righteous (4:1-3). Each speech concludes with the messenger formula (see note on 1:8). The prophet revisits themes from the fourth message (3:1-5) as he reiterates God's desire for honesty and faithfulness in worship in view of coming judgment on the day of the Lord. If Malachi is a courtroom drama, this last disputation is the sentencing. While wickedness seems to triumph over righteousness and God seems delinquent in judging sin in the community, the coming day of the Lord will vindicate God's justice as the wicked are separated from the righteous by the fire of God's judgment.

3:13 You have said terrible things about me: The people had accused God of favoring evildoers and had openly questioned his justice (see 2:17), but the Lord loves justice (Ps 9:16; 37:28).

3:14 What have we gained? The people assumed that righteous acts would result in material blessing (Deut 28). • sorry for our sins: The idea was to parade mournfully or walk in funeral garb to demonstrate penitence, as though such acts were righteous in themselves (see Matt 6:1-18).

3:15 To call the arrogant blessed was blasphemy against God's justice (see 3:13).

3:16-18 The prophet here serves as a recorder, reporting the audience's reaction to his final message and God's response to the discussion among those who feared the Lord. Although God listened to their deliberations (see 3:16), there is no evidence that Malachi's message effected any real change in the majority of his listeners.

3:16 A scroll of remembrance—a Persian tradition—was a catalog of names with a record of events associated with those individuals. We are not told how many people signed the scroll. • Those who feared him were people who were loyal to the Lord as God, obedient to God's commands, and righteous in conduct and worship.

3:17 special treasure: Israel had a privileged status as God's people; they were his private property.

The Coming Day of Judgment

4 The LORD of Heaven's Armies says, “The day of judgment is coming, burning like a furnace. On that day the arrogant and the wicked will be burned up like straw. They will be consumed—roots, branches, and all.

²“But for you who fear my name, the Sun of Righteousness will rise with healing in his wings. And you will go free, leaping with joy like calves let out to pasture. ³On the day when I act, you will tread upon the wicked as if they were dust under your feet,” says the LORD of Heaven's Armies.

⁴“Remember to obey the Law of Moses, my servant—all the decrees and regulations that I gave him on Mount Sinai for all Israel.

⁵“Look, I am sending you the ^kprophet Elijah before the great and dreadful day of the LORD arrives. ⁶His preaching will turn the hearts of fathers to their children, and the hearts of children to their fathers. Otherwise I will come and strike the land with a ^acurse.”

Malachi's sermons were directed to a tough audience. Among those in his congregation were the disillusioned (1:3), the cynical (1:7; 2:2), the callous (2:16), the dishonest (3:5), the apathetic (3:14-15), the doubters and skeptics (3:16-18), and the truly wicked (4:1). What does a preacher say to this kind of crowd?

Malachi engaged his audience rhetorically through dialogue in a series of disputations. The prophet's strong rebuke and clever anticipation of his audience's rebuttals hit their mark. “Those who feared the LORD spoke with each other, and the LORD listened” (3:16). Malachi's rhetorical style was a wake-up call that said, “The day of judgment is coming” (4:1).

4:1-3 This message shifts away from the disputation format, directly warning the people that repentance is the only proper response to the Lord's message because God's judgment is inescapable.

4:1 Verses 4:1-6 are numbered 3:19-24 in the Hebrew text.

4:2 the Sun of Righteousness will rise with healing in his wings (Or the sun of righteousness will rise with healing in its wings): The source for the title Sun of Righteousness might have been the winged sun disk that is ubiquitous in ancient Near Eastern iconography. Here it might be a title for the Messiah or a figurative description of a new era of righteousness in which God will overturn the curse of sin. Israel's spiritual restoration, or healing, would be based on God's cleansing the people and forgiving their sins (see Jer 33:6-8; cp. Jer 8:14-15). It would result from a collective confession of sin and their turning back to God (3:7; cp. Jer 14:19-20). • in his wings: Outstretched wings are a symbol of God's protection and rescue (see Exod 19:4; Deut 32:10-11; Ps 17:8; 18:10).

4:4-6 The book concludes with an epilogue containing appeals to Moses and Elijah, two ideal models of faith in the Lord and of the ideals of the Law and Prophets (see Matt 17:1-4). The two are upheld as examples for Malachi's audience to follow. In ancient Hebrew tradition, the two appeals may have served as postscripts for the scroll that contained the twelve Minor (shorter) Prophets. If so, the first postscript (4:4) connects the scroll to the Law of Moses. The second (4:5-6) ties the scroll of the Minor Prophets to the Major (longer) Prophets—Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Ezekiel.

4:4 The first postscript reminds Judah to obey the Law of Moses. Israel's identity was rooted in the Exodus and defined by the Sinai Covenant mediated by Moses (see Deut 34:10-12). • Sinai: Hebrew Horeb, another name for Sinai.

4:5-6 The second postscript warns that divine judgment of the wicked is indeed approaching, and promises divine deliverance and restoration of the righteous. • Elijah is a supreme example of a prophet of God who preached repentance with messages that were authenticated by signs and wonders (see Luke 1:17; Jas 5:17-18). Elijah was a forerunner of the day of the LORD (see 3:1). The NT identifies John the Baptist as the prophet who prepared the way for Jesus the Messiah (see Matt 11:11-15; Luke 1:17).

4:6 His preaching will turn the hearts of fathers to their children: Two key themes prominent in Malachi and the OT prophets in general are the turning of hearts and the ministry of reconciliation. Turn is the OT term for repentance and indicates a complete change of loyalties. Turning toward God results in reconciliation between generations (see 2 Cor 5:18-20). • strike the land with a curse: The word curse implies total destruction (see Deut 7:26; 1 Sam 15:18; Zech 14:11). The people of Israel who did not respond to God's prophet would face utter oblivion, as had been the fate of their Canaanite predecessors (e.g., Josh 6:17).

THE HISTORICAL BACKGROUND OF THE INTERTESTAMENTAL PERIOD

The Old Testament ends with the Jewish people reestablished in their land. During the time from Malachi to Christ, the people of Israel lived under six different governments: the Persian empire, the Greek empire, the Ptolemies of Egypt, the Seleucids of Syria, self-rule under the Maccabees (Hasmoneans), and finally Roman rule.

THE INTER-TESTAMENTAL PERIOD

The Persian Empire (549–331 BC). Cyrus II (559–530 BC) inaugurated the Persian empire with his conquest of Media in 549 BC and Babylonia in 539 BC. Cyrus's policy was to allow peoples exiled by the Babylonians to return to their homelands, rebuild, and reinstitute their forms of worship. From 538 to 430 BC, many Jewish people returned to Judea, restored Jerusalem, rebuilt the Temple, and reestablished their lives in relative peace. Meanwhile, Jews who remained in Mesopotamia enjoyed prosperity. The last historical narratives of the OT recount this period (Ezra, Nehemiah, and Esther; see also Josephus, Antiquities 11).

Greek Rule (331–320 BC). When Alexander the Great of Macedonia (336–323 BC) conquered and annexed the Persian empire, very little changed for the people of Judea. Alexander's rule, though brief, was nevertheless formative for culture: (1) He extended the use of the Greek language around the Mediterranean world and the Near East; (2) he founded the city of Alexandria in Egypt, which became a Greek cultural center for several hundred years; and (3) during his reign, Alexander was recognized as a god, setting a precedent for later rulers. Following Alexander's death, his generals (the Diadochoi) struggled for dominance in their own realms. By 320 BC, the divisions were settled (see map, p. 1409). The two kingdoms that most impacted the Jewish people were Egypt, under the Ptolemies (323–30 BC), and Syria, under the Seleucids (321–64 BC).

Egyptian Rule: Ptolemies (320–198 BC). Judea fell under the control of Ptolemy I of Egypt sporadically between 320 and 301 BC; then Egyptian control was settled for a century. The Ptolemies had a generally peaceable relationship with Judea. Ptolemaic rule brought Greek people and culture into Judea. This hellenization later became a serious challenge to Jewish culture and religion. The Greek translation of the OT (the Septuagint) was begun during this time (around 285 BC), to be completed sometime during the 100s BC. (The Septuagint was the Bible for Greek-speaking Jews in the first century AD; many of Paul's OT quotations are drawn from it.)

Syrian Rule: Seleucids (198–142 BC). When Seleucid king Antiochus III of Syria (223–187 BC) won the Jewish territories from the Ptolemies in 198 BC, he continued to tolerate the Jews' religion and the Jewish high priest's rule over both civil and religious affairs. These irenic policies ended when his son, Antiochus IV Epiphanes, took the throne (175–163 BC). Antiochus Epiphanes (meaning "a manifestation of a god") sought to impose unified Hellenistic culture and religion on his kingdom. He gave the Jewish high priesthood to the highest bidder sympathetic with Hellenism. In 167 BC, Antiochus responded to a humiliating defeat in Egypt at the hands of the Romans by brutalizing the Jewish people, banning the Jewish faith, and murdering Jews who refused to give up Judaism (see 1 Maccabees 1; cp. Dan 11:28–39).

The heat of persecution forged Jewish resistance. A priest named Mattathias, followed by his five sons (nicknamed Maccabees, "hammers"), led the revolt against Antiochus. In 164 BC, the revolt succeeded in temporarily gaining freedom. The Temple was restored and rededicated in December 164 BC (now celebrated as Hanukkah, "Dedication"; see John 10:22). Meanwhile, Antiochus Epiphanes died while on a campaign to reassert his rule in Persia. Then Judas Maccabeus (leader of the Maccabees) was killed in 160 BC in one of a series of battles that brought the Jews once again under Seleucid domination. But this time, the Jews were not again subjected to fierce religious persecution.

Semi-Independence: Hasmonean Dynasty (142–63 BC). In 142 BC, Syria granted Judea semi-independence, and for most of the following century the Jewish people were self-governing under the Hasmonean dynasty, the descendants of the Maccabees. As time went on, the Hasmoneans embraced Hellenistic perspectives and policies. In violation of OT law, the ruler was also the high priest. Not surprisingly, given this concentration of power, corruption and abuses quickly arose among the Hasmonean rulers. The party of the Pharisees came into view at this time, opposing hellenization and the singular power of the ruler (see "The Pharisees" at Matt 3:7, p. 1581). The Sadducees also appeared, supporting hellenization and the power of the priesthood (see "The Sadducees" at Matt 16:1-12, p. 1610).
